TRI-VILLAGERS WIN PRIZES AT BIGGEST ALTAMONT FAIR, SAYS COLUMNIST

Crowds have flocked to the Altamont Fair setting record attendance for the first three days. There have been special days with various clubs sharing honors . . . everything possible to boost the visitors. The second day, Monday, many women from the Tri-Village Home Bureau groups competed. Mrs. Betty Morgan of Maple Terrace, Delmar, brought home three prizes featuring her excellent baked goods. Congratulations! Winners in the Vegetable Department were Donald D. Terhune of Fernbank Ave., Delmar; Judith Slingerland of Delaware Turnpike, Delmar; Peter G. Welling, RD, Slingerlands; and Don Slingerland, Delaware Turnpike, Delmar. The interesting exhibitions and displays were wonderful and the officials were pleased with the crowds which appreciated all the exhibitors' efforts . . .

By the way — did you know that melons are delicious not only fresh, but may be preserved by freezing? Cantaloupe may star for breakfast, as it rates

The first annual Albany County Little League championship saw Tri-Village, as represented by the Hilchie Hardware team, emerge as the suburban winner with a 2-1 triumph over Hudson Valley Yankees on August 4 at Magee Field. Pitcher Pete Caruso allowed only 2 hits, struck out 14 Ravena players, and singled home the winning run.

On August 11, Hilchie lost a close 6-5 decision to the powerful Trading Port team of the Albany National League, the Albany City champions. Bill Balfourt pitched a good game for Tri-Village and hit a 2-run homer. Pete Caruso had 2 doubles and 2 singles for a perfect night at bat. Hilchie almost pulled out a win the last inning when it filled the bases with one out. However, Albany stopped the rally after one run scored, to win the county trophy.

PLEASANT LUNCHEON

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Farnum of 476 Kenwood Avenue, Delmar recently entertained 25 guests at luncheon. A delightful time was had by all.

high in vitamins A and C. Half a large one may provide the vitamin C you need for the entire day. Special treat is to serve your family and guests melon balls from your own freezer in the winter or off-season. It has been a pleasure to have them at Jean Ladue's of Center Lane, Delmar, along with other freshly frozen fruit. And delightful to have a frozen fruit compote from the freezer during Christmas holidays in the home of Viola and Lincoln Petersen of Winne Rd., Delmar. Vi worked like mad during the summer fruit season with lovely dividends throughout the winter months.

There are loads of vegetables around to freeze, but nobody has ever been able to successfully master the tomato. Just doesn't freeze! Oh how we would love to locate a real homegrown tomato . . . during January.

Speaking of enjoyment, we were delighted to run into an Open House at Judy and Jim Hanson's of Herrick Ave., Elsmere, this past week. Their houseguests were their former neighbors, Alice and John Heide, now residents of Des Moines, Iowa. They were here for four days, en route to Lake Champlain, where they will vacation for some time before picking up Susan, who is a camp counselor in the east. Steve was around the village visiting prior to their arrival and joined them at the Lake. Upon returning to Iowa, Sue will have a very short stay before leaving for her freshman year at Colorado College. Certainly wish her well . . . at least Colorado has heard of skiing! Also at the same occasion we visited with Irene and John Thomas of Wellington Rd. and learned that their daughter Judy leaves this fall too for her freshman year at a Junior College

ber. He's long been an outstanding leader in the state's program to help community sponsors form two-year colleges and to help educate mushrooming populations of post-war children. We remember just back ten years ago when there weren't any community colleges, now there are 19 already in operation or approved by the State University and more on paper or in the process of being developed. What progress...

"COMPULSION" NOW ON SHELLEY STAGE

The eighth and final play of the 1960 Shelley season will be Compulsion, Meyer Levin's powerful dramatization of his novel based on the Leopold-Loeb murder case of the 'twenties.

Judd Steiner and Artie Straus are two brilliant young intellectuals, graduates of the University of Chicago at 17 and 18, respectively. They've committed a murder, and confessed to it — without too much prodding by the police. It is a crime that the police and the press call senseless, brutal, and perverted. Judd and Artie claim that it was an experiment, a test — they were trying to commit the "perfect murder" in order to prove a rather confused concept of their own; in order to prove that they were "Supermen," and therefore beyond the reaches of the law, as ordinary men know it. They claim to have chosen their victim, a young boy they knew, the age of Artie's brother, by chance.

The question throughout the play is "why?" The facts of the case are all known at the outset, and it soon becomes a matter of interpretation, the prosecution calling it a "thrill murder," and basing a lot of its case on the fact that the boys were sons of millionaires. The defense
