Crackdown on junkers

By Nat Boynton

New Scotland is gearing for a crackdown on junk cars that residents say desecrate not only their neighborhoods but the rural beauty of the entire town.

The town board last week gave town attorney Frederick C. Riester the go-ahead to beef up the town's junkyard ordinance and to draft a new ordinance that would pave the way for a cleanup of junk cars and other items littering private property.

Riester's proposed revision of the present ordinance and the language in a proposed new law that would give the town some legal clout to eliminate several notorious residential eyesores will be ready for a public hearing set for 7 p.m. on Wednesday, June 22.

To show that it means business, the board also voted to retain James C. Blackmore of Helderview, a member of a prominent Albany law firm, to prosecute individual cases once the ordinances become law. The board set a limit of $3,000 on legal fees for Blackmore's services.

"He's tough," Supervisor Steve Wallace said of Blackmore.

"We're going to make changes in the definition of junkyards," Riester said following last Wednesday's regular town board session. "The new ordinance will also have definitions dealing with outdoor storage of junk vehicles and waste materials on private property."

Riester said he was in the process of reviewing those definitions and the legal language in the ordinances with other attorneys to make sure the laws would stand up to any future court challenge. The proposal also must define a junk vehicle.

Town officials have been under pressure from local citizens off and on for several years to take action against unsightly collections of abandoned vehicles, but it was not until several New Salem residents pursued their complaint against Fred Carl, a prominent New Salem auto dealer, that board members were moved to act.

Wallace showed Mr. and Mrs. Cortland R. Wenk, Carl's neighbors on New Salem South Rd., a copy of a letter from Walter Miller, New Scotland building inspector, that cited Carl for a violation of the town zoning ordinance. The letter

New Scotland? Where's that?

When the New Scotland town clerk called the county executive's office last month to inquire about a suspected delay in the town's expected quota in the federal cheese distribution program, she got a shock.

A staffer in the program was dubious.

"New Scotland?" he reportedly said, "Is that in Albany County?"

Corinne Cossac, who served as chairman of the town's susquicentennial committee during the past year, couldn't believe her ears.

"We've been here for 150 years, and we aren't about to leave," she said.

P.S. She got the cheese.

Apartments: who rents?

By Vincent Potenza

Fears that the Town of Bethlehem would be inundated by apartment buildings haven't turned out to be valid. But new research into 1980 census data may provide town planners with some guidance in the type of apartments needed in Bethlehem.

Al Basch, whose report comparing trends in apartment building in Bethlehem with neighboring towns caused a stir among town officials in the summer of 1981, recently submitted to officials an updated version of that report.

A close look at census data reveals that Bethlehem still has fewer apartment units than comparable towns, and that they are in smaller buildings and less densely populated.

Basch, a private citizen and former head of the statistics unit for the state Department of Commerce, correlated census figures with those for building permits and arrived at the conclusion in his original report that Bethlehem, during the period from 1960 to 1980, had a percentage increase in apartment construction that was disproportionate to its increase in population and greater than that of other area towns.

The new version of the Basch report takes into account 1980 census data that was unavailable at the time the original was written. In a cover letter to the revised report, Basch says, "My earlier fear that Bethlehem would wind up with a higher percentage of its dwellings in apartments than its neighbors has not come true so far. In 1980, the town still had a smaller percentage than any of the others, but it had jumped from two percent to 14 percent."

The town planning board took the new report as seriously as it took the old and asked its planning consultant, Edward Kleinke, to investigate further. The results of that investigation proved interesting as Kleinke outlined them at a recent board meeting.

Kleinke's method was to use the same sources that Basch did but to look at them more closely. He correlated census and housing data for Bethlehem, Colonie, Guilderland, East Greenbush, Clifton Park and Niskayuna, just as Basch did, but broke the figures down into more specific categories to see where the real differences might be.

One of the most interesting facts was that Bethlehem has the highest percentage of population over the age of 65 — 13 percent. Niskayuna was next with 12.2 percent and Clifton Park was the lowest with 4.4 percent. The Capital District average was 11.7 percent.

The number of persons per household in Bethlehem was at the Capital District average, 2.7. Clifton Park led with 3.2 and Guilderland, at 2.6, was low.

Good Samaritan Home residents raised $360 in their Stroll-a-thon on the Rockefeller Rd. grounds in Delmar.

Good Samaritan residents step lively

By Caroline Terenzini

Residents of the Good Samaritan Home, Delmar, have a new spring in their step these days as they wind up a four-week Stroll-a-thon that is a benefit for the Salvation Army's new soup kitchen in Albany. The Stroll-a-thon is the brainchild of Pam Taft of Delmar, who is a consultant therapist for the home on Rockefeller Rd.

The impetus was the need to get residents up and active. "It was frustrating to see people sit so much," Mrs. Taft said. "Watching TV, reading the paper, taking a nap — it's just not healthy." when she came up with the idea of a Stroll-a-thon, she did some research on the benefits of walking, and then presented the idea to the staff, who were enthusiastic.

So was the Resident Council. Verna Fox, director of resident services, said residents chose which organization would be supported and then the home began seeking sponsors through news articles and mailings.

"The whole thing has gone over beyond our wildest expectations," Mrs. Taft said. "We're just delighted!" Not only did 89 of the 100 residents sign up to participate, including some who require wheelchairs or walking frames, but also the public response has been great. So the soup kitchen, which opened in April on

Clinton Ave. in Albany, will benefit to the tune of more than $350.

The strollers also are benefiting, finding that they feel better and sleep better because of increased activity, Mrs. Fox said. Yet another benefit of the Stroll-a-thon has been the socialization it has generated at the home. Strolling down the corridors or around the grounds has encouraged more conversation, and some residents who had been withdrawn now chat with other walkers.

The strollers get going three times a day, while marches and other lively music are piped through the building. Each participant has his or her own walking program, formulated with the nursing department and therapists, plus the attending physician. The home's oldest resident, who is a spry 102, says, "I keep my feet moving even when I'm not walking."

Staff members are participating, too. Mrs. Fox is sponsor for the home's administrator, Richard R. Thomas, Jr., and he, in turn, is sponsoring her. Staff are keeping track of the distances covered both as an incentive and so they can announce a grand total.

"I don't know many places you can go and make work for everybody and get such acceptance," Mrs. Taft said in praise of the staff's participation and enthusiasm.

A large amount of the enthusiasm among residents is due to the fact that they are helping others, the organizers agree. "People need to be needed," said Mrs. Taft.

Needed they are. The soup kitchen is in the converted office of a parking garage at 32 Clinton Ave. and serves a noon meal to 20 to 30 people a day. "Food stamps just don't go far enough these days," said a Salvation Army spokesperson. The kitchen, which is still being furnished, is open three days a week now, but plans are to be open five days when the resources have been obtained.

The Stroll-a-thon will end Sunday, June 12, when Good Samaritan plans an afternoon open house to celebrate and say, "Thank you." Sponsors and other supporters are invited to share in the celebration, from 2 to 4 p.m. As for the walkers, they'll probably just be strolling around.

Ready to race

The checkered flag is all set for the second annual "motocross" bed races Sunday at the Bethlehem Town Hall, beginning at 12:45 p.m. The event, sponsored by the Delmar Fire Department, will follow a Mardi Gras parade from the former town hall, 343 Delaware Ave., with bands and the competing beds. The marchers will step off at noon.

Food and beverages will be available at the Town Hall. Proceeds from the event will go to the Albany County Burn Unit Fund. For information and registration, call 439-3851 or 439-5004. Entries will be accepted up until parade time.

Now THAT's a strike! So stated the note handed in by Spotlight photographer Tom Howes for a photo caption on this shot of the conversion of a Four Corners landmark from a bowling alley to a clothing store. Peter Elitzer of Albany purchased the building at Kenwood and Adams as the future home of Peter Harris Clothes — after renovations.

The new Tri-Village Directory is off the press. Irma and Milton Crounse and Howard Gmelch are setting up for distribution this week and next. Spotlight

Directory a group effort

A nearly year-long effort involving some 350 residents of the Tri-Village area has just come to fruition. It's the 52nd edition of the Tri-Village Area Directory, which is being distributed now by volunteers. The directory contains more than 5,000 listings of residents, plus an index of stores and services, and lists of churches, schools, community organizations and professionals. And an absolute must — a map of the Delmar-Elsmere-Slingerlands area. All in all, an invaluable volume.

Compilation of the 1983-84 directory began last September when scores of volunteers enlisted by the Tri-Village Area Directory Association started telephoning to update the listings. Each neighborhood worker is responsible for tracking down any "disconnects" and for getting the correct listing for new arrivals in town, said Irma Crounse of Glenmont, a coordinator of the project for the past 14 years. "A great effort is made to make the book accurate," she said. After it is typeset, she noted, it is proofread "five or six times" in an effort to spot any error.

Mrs. Crounse also noted the long hours that have been put in on coordinating the advertisements in the directory by Patricia Swanson of Slingerlands, who is co-director of the Bethlehem Preschool in Glenmont.

The idea for such a directory came from the late Mrs. Alton C. Rowe, Sr., wife of a former Town of Bethlehem supervisor, who proposed it as a fund-raising project for the First United Methodist Church, Delmar. In its five decades, the directory has experienced several administrative reorganizations (for example, the Tri-Village Area Directory Association was formed in 1940), but it remains a church project and is based in the church offices on Kenwood Ave.

Howard Gmelch of Elsmere, current director of the association, is supervising the volunteers who are delivering the directories door-to-door and accepting donations. The recommended donation is $5.

Shortly, Mrs. Crounse and others will sit down with a list of every street in Delmar, Elsmere and Slingerlands, and confirm the deliveries.

And then, come September, they'll start all over again.

Petrol station held up

Two armed men took $460 in cash from the attendant at the Petrol Station on Rt. 9W in Glenmont early Saturday morning and then escaped on foot, according to state police at Selkirk.

One of the men held a hand gun on attendant Kyle Moak while the pair scooped up the cash, police said.

□ Apartments

broken down to those containing three or four units and those with more than four, Bethlehem was far and away more committed to the smaller buildings when compared to the other towns. In Bethlehem, 52 percent of apartment buildings are of three or four units. East Greenbush was next with 22 percent. Six percent was the figure for Clifton Park at the other extreme.

And, with the exception of Niskayuna, Bethlehem had the lowest household size for apartments of three or four units at 1.64 per unit. Clifton Park, with 2.3, again took high honors.

For apartments of five units or more Bethlehem was the lowest with 1.68 people per unit and East Greenbush was the highest with 2.32 people per unit.

What does it all mean? A profile offered by Kleinke and backed up by Building Inspector John Flanigan is that while Basch's figures are correct (and maybe the reason they are correct), most of the apartment units in Bethlehem are occupied by a single person and most of these single people are senior citizens, who prefer small apartments in small buildings to living alone in a big house or apartment complex.

"And," Flanigan noted, "percentage increases always look bigger when you're starting out with nothing."

The board labeled Kleinke's findings "very useful."

It's suppliers they're after

True to their word, Bethlehem police are continuing their get-tough policy toward persons who contribute toward under age use of alcohol in the town.

Last Thursday officers arrested a 20-year-old Delmar man behind Bethlehem Central Middle School for possession of marijuana. Then they rounded up two 15-year-olds and an 18-year-old who were persuaded to testify that the man had supplied the beer for their party in the woods — that brought on an additional charge of "unlawfully dealing with a child." To round off the day, the school principal filed trespass charges against the man.

Sunday, police picked up five youths, ages 16 to 19, on Rockefeller Rd. and charged them with marijuana possession. All were released in custody of their parents except a 16-year-old who was carrying a fake identification card — he got hit with a forgery charge and was sent to Albany County Jail pending a June 28 town court date.

Road projects planned

Bids are to be opened Thursday in Albany on 40 transportation-related projects statewide, including replacement of a bridge that carries a Conrail track over Rt. 143 in the Village of Ravena. The present bridge is to be replaced by a 96-foot-long span carrying one track and a parallel maintenance road over the highway.

Bids also are sought on reconditioning of Rt. 85A and Rt. 85 and 443 in the towns of Berne and New Scotland. The work on 85A will take place between the county highway garage and the Voorheesville grade school. Resurfacing and new guide rails are planned.

Bike-a-thon planned

A Bike-a-thon to educate the public about diabetes is planned for this Sunday. Riders will obtain sponsors who pledge a specific amount of money for each mile ridden. The riders start at any participating McDonald's. The event is put on by the Capital District Chapter of the American Diabetes Association.

Viburnum plicatum tomentosum mariesi

Maries Double file Viburnum, large flat clusters of creamy white flowers in late May and June, borne on the upper side of horizontal branches. Bright red berries and dull red foliage in the fall. Beautiful in sun or shade, a sturdy shrub easily grown and easily maintained. We think it superior to the flowering dogwood because of the dependability of its bloom.

BC eyes an advanced degree

By Caroline Terenzini

A proposed new degree program tentatively titled the Bethlehem Baccalaureate was outlined for the Bethlehem Central school board at its meeting last Wednesday. Assistant Superintendent J. Briggs McAndrews said the high school curriculum committee will examine the proposed baccalaureate degree program as well as proposed changes in the regular diploma program, and make a recommendation to Superintendent Lawrence A. Zinn and the board in November.

Suggested changes in the regular degree program call for an additional credit in both math and science beginning with the class of 1985, plus a credit in fine or practical arts. Beginning with the class of 1986, proficiency in a foreign language and in computer literacy also would be required.

The more rigorous baccalaureate degree program option, if adopted, would be offered beginning in 1988. It would require four credits in English, math and social studies, an three in science.

BETHLEHEM

"We have felt over the years that we should do our best to increase the expectations for all students," Zinn said in presenting the proposals to the board. He said work on diploma requirements had begun before the recent report by the National Commission on Excellence in Education, which was critical of the quality of public education nationwide.

In other business, the board decided to seek bids on installation of an energy management system at the high school to help control costs by eliminating overheating of some rooms. An engineer from HA2F in Jonesville said plans call for about half of the building to be regulated by the system, which would consist of sensors, valves to control flow of heat and an electronic panel to control the valves. Budget limitations dictate the size of the system, according to the engineer, but it could be expanded in the future. The installation is expected to be in operation for the next heating season.

Board member Robert Zick declared that he was "getting more and more irked" at motorbike riders and others who abuse school district athletic fields. "We put a lot of money into those fields," he said.

Zinn noted that while there is "a limited set of rules . . . if we get really strict, we're going to have to police it, and that's another expense."

High school principal Charles Gunner was granted a sabbatical leave for the second semester of the next school year. Gunner also told the board the Key Club at the high school plans to donate $700 to the school to improve trophy cases there. The money was raised primarily through the Air Band contest, Gunner said.

She's still more 'dead' than alive

By Caroline Terenzini

Edward J. McKeon of Delmar is finding, to his increasing annoyance, that mistakes don't get corrected quickly when you're dealing with a complex process involving more than 20 million Americans — that is to say, Medicare.

Despite assurances that his wife, Doris, had been "resurrected" in the Social Security Administration's computer system after her mistakenly reported demise, McKeon said he now finds that Medicare claims for Mrs. McKeon's recent hospitalization have not been processed because Medicare records show Mrs. McKeon has been dead since Feb. 23. Mrs. McKeon is not too comfortable with this status, she said, and McKeon himself is "exasperated" with the slowness with which the error is being corrected.

He also is unhappy with the response of Social Security employees he's contacted. He said he has written three letters to the Medicare office in Binghamton, N.Y., in the last month and none has been acknowledged. And when he called Binghamton four weeks ago asking why claims were being paid so slowly, he was told two claims were in process "but nothing was said about her being considered deceased," he said. "How could she be considered dead on Feb. 23 and I don't get a letter asking until May 16 . . . ? This is very exasperating, when you don't get any information. I don't need aggravation from the government."

Lewis Epstein, district manager of the Albany office of the Social Security Administration, said recently that a computer programming error by a firm under contract to a local health care provider permitted incorrect entries on claims submitted during the first three months of the year. "Basically, it was human error," Epstein said. He noted that while the number of beneficiaries involved was first thought to be nearly 600, a later count showed only about 270 were affected.

Epstein said a central computer system in Baltimore, Md., keeps track of the approximately 24 million Americans nationwide who are eligible for Medicare benefits and, in a separate file, the names of the 36.5 million persons receiving monthly cash benefits from Social Security. He said the Hospitalization

Insurance Utilization Master and the Master Beneficiary Record are periodically cross-checked by computer to ferret out discrepancies. He noted that a "deceased" entry into the HIUM would lead to the "assumption" during the cross-check that the notice of death was accurate.

Epstein observed that the system, in addition to serving a large number of people, involves a number of agencies — in this case, the Social Security Administration, Medicare, the local health care provider, and the claim processor (Blue Cross of Syracuse). He said he intended to look into McKeon's problem.

McKeon said Mrs. McKeon is receiving her Social Security benefit check.

Meanwhile, he isn't sitting back waiting for more unpleasant surprises. He called Albany Medical Center Hospital to alert them that Mrs. McKeon was considered dead and that claims in her name would be rejected. "Evidently these things have happened to them before," McKeon said. "They said they know she's not dead and they're not worried."

Hearings uneventful

The Bethlehem Board of Appeals held a public hearing last Wednesday for Thomas and Bonnie Fahey, 3 Wilhemina Way, Glenmont. The Faheys were before the board to request a variance from the zoning ordinance so that they might build a garage addition on their premises. No one in attendance objected to the proposal.

The board also held a public hearing for Raymond Whiting, Jr., Winne Pl., Glenmont, who requested a variance to permit an addition to his home. No one spoke in opposition to the request.

Later in the week the board held an unscheduled meeting to set a public hearing for June 15 at 8:15 p.m. for Dr. and Mrs. Marvin J. Sagor, who are requesting permission to expand the dentists offices at their residence at 50 Adams Pl., Delmar.

A Colonial retreat in Pictuay

"In the name of God Amen, I, Tobias Ten Eyck, being weak in body but sound and disposing mind and memory, do this 25th day of November, 1791, make and publish this my last will and testament in the manner following:

"I will and order that my true and loving wife, Judica Van Buren, shall remain in the peaceable and quiet possession of my house, farm and chattels in the same manner I now hold them.

"I give and bequeath to my eldest son, Coenrad Ten Eyck, my negro Tom, my negro Harr, my negro Robin.

"I give and bequeath unto my son John Ten Eyck, my negro Jack, my negro Prins and my negro wench Dien.

"I give and bequeath unto my daughter Itie, wife of James Waldron, Jr., my negro Cato and my negro wench Saar."

Tobias also gave land in the Cripple Bush (vine-covered section) to his son John. To his daughter, Itie Waldron, he bequeathed all of his real estate in the Patent commonly called "Halfmoon," and a parcel of land in the Coeymans Patent.

He apparently was in the last stages of his life when he revised this will. His gun had exploded in his face while he was hunting wild turkeys near his home in the Pictuay (south of Selkirk). He was a gunsmith by trade. His father was

TIMES REMEMBERED

Allison Bennett

Coenrad Ten Eyck, a well-known Albany silversmith whose works have become museum pieces. Tobias' brother was Jacob Ten Eyck, who served as mayor of Albany. This was a clever and prominent family in colonial times.

From the number of slaves and the size and magnificence of his dwelling, plus the many other properties that he owned, it is easy to understand that Tobias Ten Eyck was not the usual Dutch farmer but was a landowner of some means. Part of his inheritance came through the Coeymans line through his grandmother, Garritje Coeymans, daughter of Barent, the first settler of that name. She married Jacob Ten Eyck in 1676 and her children inherited land in the Coeymans Patent from her brothers, who had no issue of their own.

The lands have long since been divided up and sold, but Tobias Ten Eyck's Dutch style colonial brick home is still sheltering a family some 225 years after its construction, circa 1756. Tobias Coenrad Ten Eyck had received the land for his house from his uncle, Samuel Coeymans. He farmed the land, but he also carried on a profitable business of freighting war supplies from New York to Albany during the French and Indian Wars, on his sloop the Cristiana. After the wars were over in 1763, he retired to his farm in Pictuay. It is felt that he put some of those shipping profits into the construction of this fine house. It is tradition that the bricks for the house were made by slaves from clay taken from the bank of the creek nearby.

Nearly five years ago a young couple, Marc and Sarah Hafensteiner, purchased the property after a period of vacancy. They have been hard at work restoring it to its former glory. They are only the third family to own the property in all its long history. It remained in the Ten Eyck family for over 180 years, then was sold to the Knox family, who in turn sold it to the Hafensteiners. The house has long been known locally as the "Lily Pond House," since Tobias Ten Eyck's grandson, Andrew, left the house to his two children, Catherine and Hester. Hester married Willard Pond and was the mother of Anna Lillian (Lilly) Pond, last Ten Eyck owner of the property.

Both Catherine and her niece Lilly Pond are buried in a little cemetery on a hill above the house. Within the wrought iron fence which surrounds it are also buried Tobias Ten Eyck, d. 1791, age 68 years, and his wife, Judica Van Buren, d. 1823, aged 88 years. In the field beyond is a slave cemetery but only one headstone has a name carved on it — that of "Sarah."

Tobias originally owned 1300 acres of land and there are still 95 acres surrounding the home he built along the old road from the Onesquethaw to the Coeymans Landing. The house sits snugly beneath a hill and beside the creek, its red brick walls laid in a "Dutch Cross Bond" pattern. The gable ends are finished in an interesting mouse-tooth pattern. On the northwest wall one can admire the owner's wrought iron initials, TCT, set into the brick when the house was finished. This was a common custom of the Dutch in the Hudson Valley. The main portion of the house has a gambrel roof with a recessed front entrance sheltering a Christian door. These doors bear the shape of the Cross, with the two bottom panels supposedly representing the Old and New Testaments of the Bible.

The large brick extension on the rear wall may well have been the original dwelling house, with Tobias adding the front section later from the profits he earned in the freighting business conducted on the river. The house boasts six over six small-paned windows and arrow-shaped wrought iron beam anchors with an interesting chased design.

Inside the house we find the usual center hall with a large room on either side. The 200-year-old double Dutch doors with 30 inch wrought iron hinges, handsome fireplaces, wide board floors and graceful stairway mark the house as a gracious reminder of Albany County's place in a lively colonial history. The ceilings in the main rooms downstairs rise to 10 feet in height. There is raised 18th century pine panelling on the fireplace wall of the west room, and in the corner is a panelled cupboard. Wrought iron HL hinges are found on cupboards and doors throughout the house.

There is still a lot of labor to be put forth into bringing this old house into the 20th century . . . anyone who cherishes old ways and days can be happy that it is being cared for by enthusiastic young people.

The walls are an 18 inch thickness of brick and the cross beams for the second floor lay directly on the brick as there is no wooden framing in the house; the plaster for the interior walls was laid directly on the brick. In the interest of modern heat conservation and moisture resistance, Marc Hafensteiner has insulated and furred out the exterior walls, then replastered them, a large and tedious job to say the least.

The rear extension downstairs contains the kitchen, bath and laundry room. At one end of the long kitchen is a wood burning range. Here little Benjamin, aged 2, has a warm place to dry his mittens. His mother likes the range for simmering stews and cooking a big Thanksgiving dinner for friends and relatives. Beyond the original Dutch door that once served as an outside door, the Hafensteiners have built a sky-lighted and many-windowed family room and porch. This lets in plenty of southerly sunlight and makes a pleasant place to dine and view the wooded hillsides of their domain at all times of the year.

Leading upward from the kitchen are small steep stairs that give access to a large room that must have served as sleeping or servants quarters in the early years. Later it was divided into two rooms, but someday it may be put back to its original form. The small windows in the gable end attest to the fact that this is an early dwelling. The ceilings upstairs are only six feet high, so tall men have to stoop when they step through the low old doorways. Here, too, small cupboards with shelves are found built into the chimney spaces in the end rooms and they boast 18th century panelling also.

There is still a lot of labor to be put forth into bringing this old house into the 20th century in a way which will preserve its colonial character, but make it efficient for today's living. Anyone who cherishes old ways and days can be happy that it is being cared for by enthusiastic young people. In restoring this house into a beautiful and liveable family home they show a feeling and reverence for the past. It gives us all hope for the best ideals for the future.

Longest parade

Albany County will turn 300 soon, and the city of Albany is celebrating in a big way. It will host the longest parade the city has seen in 25 years to celebrate the tricentennial on Saturday, June 11. The two-hour long parade will begin at 10 a.m. on Central Ave. at Partridge Street. It will run downtown along Washington Ave. and State Street to lower Broadway. The reviewing stand will be in front of the county offices at 112 State Street.

Parade highlights include the Anheuser-Busch "Budweiser" Clydesdales, the Langley Air Force Band and antique cars. Each township in the county will form a separate division in the parade with floats, marching bands, fire company units, twirlers and drill teams.

AAUW meets

Sandra Bernard, president of the New York State division of the American Association of University Women (A.A.U.W.), will address the Albany branch at its June general meeting on Wednesday, June 15, at the Albany Country Club, Wormer Road, Voorheesville. The social hour begins at 5:30 p.m. Reservations should be made by June 8 with June Magnuson.

Falls at Thatcher park

An 18-year-old Delmar woman was in fair condition Monday at Albany Medical Center after she fell off the west end of the Indian Ladder trail at Thatcher Park Sunday.

Witnesses said the woman was running on the trail when she slipped and fell approximately 25 yards down the slope. According to a preliminary report by park police Officer Gary Wade, the woman sustained hip and leg injuries.

Even before the awards program, honors have been pouring in for Voorheesville. Students from the high school recently participated in the second annual Colonial Council Home Economics Fair held at Lansingburg High School.

Dee Duncan, Sue Kernozeck, Debbie Butler and Marsha McKaig won first place ribbons for their child development project. In addition, 13 students received outstanding ratings, 18 students received excellent ratings and 18 students received good ratings. Six schools competed in six areas of home economics.

Wendy Knapp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Knapp of Rock Hill Rd., recently won first prize in an essay contest sponsored by the Health-Physics Society. For her essay entitled "Nuclearphobia" Wendy, a junior, received $100 and the chance to present her paper to the society at a recent dinner held at the Golden Fox Restaurant in Colonie.

All boys who are at least 8 and have finished second grade are eligible to join the Cub Scouts. Prospective cubs and their families are invited to come and join the fun and get a first hand look at scouting. 'Going Places'

With school closing in only two weeks, summer will bring that old question — "What to do with the kids?" To help answer this, the library will host a program entitled "Going Places," presented by the Junior League of Albany. Many valuable ideas concerning area places of interest will be offered Thursday, June 16, at 7 p.m. Suggestions on arts and entertainment, sports, museums, festivals and such will be given. Copies of the league's new guide, "Going Places," will also be on sale.

Places gone

The end of the school year is here and last minute field trips abound at the elementary school.

On Friday, June 3 sixth graders and their teachers ventured to see the natural wonders of Howe Caverns before beginning "extensive training" for the annual sixth grade field day scheduled to be held on Monday, June 13 — weather permitting.

Fourth grade teacher Greg Robinson and his class took a short trip to Westmere Elementary School in Gunderland to visit with penpals they have been writing to this year. So as to make a good first impression the Voorheesville students dressed as famous people giving their penpals something to write home about. Among the "dignitaries" represented were Rip Van Winkle and Ronald Reagan. Coincidentally, the Westmere class belongs to Mrs. Joan Robinson, mother of Greg.

Third grade students were also on the move this past week traveling to the Ecology Center in Schenectady to get a first hand look at members of the animal kingdom.

The rest of the school had to travel no further than their front door this past Monday to see some most unusual animals when naturalist Dean Davis visited the school with his collection of unique reptiles. All grades took part in full day seminars.

Remedial programs

Elementary School Vice Principal

Another group of Bethlehem Boy Scouts is back from the exciting two-day, 15-mile tour of the Gettysburg-battlefield set up by the Boy Scout Council of York, Pa. and the National Park Service. Brian Hoogkamp, Scott Smith, Gary Wirth, Rob VanValkenburg and Mark Freeman of Troop 72, Slingerlands, earned a patch by answering the 40 questions in a special booklet, questions that can only be answered by being Johnny Reb one day and Billy Yank the other day, using a compass and following the trail point by point.

R.H. Davis

Roger Kallop has announced that a summer remedial math and reading program will be held at the elementary school from July 5 until August 5 this year. The program is open to all students in grades 4 through 6 and is "designed to help students retain and upgrade their skills in preparation for the new school year."

Parents who are interested in this free program may call the school at 765-2382.

New nursery school opens

Families in Voorheesville and the surrounding area who are interested in enrolling their children in a nursery school program are certain to be happy to hear that teacher Robin Gerry announces the opening of the Alfalfa Sprout Nursery School on Rt. 85, New Scotland Rd. Previously Betty's Barn, the building will be open in September housing a program for 3- and 4-year-olds. For information call 439-3960.

Another Latin winner

Among the Albany Academy students receiving magna cum laude certificates in the recent Latin Contest was Christopher Tobin of Delmar. Other local winners were listed recently in The Spotlight.

Neighborhood group forms in Feura Bush

Residents of the hamlet of Feura Bush are invited to attend a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Jerusalem Reformed Church with the goal of forming a neighborhood association. Organizers Judy Wing and Donna Frueh noted that with installation of a public water supply, the hamlet seems destined for growth and will need "a unified voice as decisions affecting our village come before the Town of New Scotland board." One possible topic for discussion, they said, is a plan for developing land purchased by the town for a park.

Outdoor hikes at 5 Rivers

Two outdoor programs are scheduled for Five Rivers Environmental Education Center, Game Farm Rd., Delmar for Saturday, June 11. An orienteering program for beginners and intermediate map readers will begin at 9:30 a.m. "Show Me The Way To Go Home" will cover the basics of map and compass coordination using the Center's orienteering trails. This family-oriented program is open to the public free of charge. Sturdy hiking shoes and a compass are necessary. Pre-registration is also required, since space is limited. Call the center at 457-6092 for more information.

Center naturalists will lead a hike along the North Loop Trail beginning at 2 p.m. This leisurely 2½ mile hike will reward the casual hiker with the many sights and sounds of the deep woods, including a look at some of the largest oak trees in the area. Cameras and binoculars are encouraged. Sturdy hiking shoes are necessary. This program is open to the public free of charge. Both programs will be cancelled in the event of bad weather.

also set a June 10 deadline for compliance.

The town's position is that expansion of the business use of the property Carl owns on the corner of South Rd. and Rt. 85 requires a special use permit from the zoning board.

As of Monday, the cars the town considered constituted the violation had been removed from the corner lot.

Carl said Monday he had received verbal confirmation from Miller by phone that the town was satisfied that removal of the cars had resolved the violation.

Carl told the Spotlight he hopes to complete demolition of the frame house on the property, for which he already has a demolition permit, and to install new drainage from the rear of his garage to forestall flooding. Also in his plans, he said, are fencing the property along South Rd. and blacktopping (next year) the lot and "use it for new and used cars, not junk cars."

Carl added: "If the town doesn't let me do all this, I would hope they would tell me what they want me to do."

In the liveliest meeting of the year, the town board came under fire from a dozen taxpayers on several subjects other than the effectiveness of the zoning regulation of junk cars and its seeming reluctance to enforce the laws. Wallace and board members fielded complaints from Feura Bush residents on drainage in that hamlet, on restoration of front yards defaced by the current water project, and on what neighbors termed the lack of progress on the new town park in Feura Bush.

There were also complaints on the designation of town roads as opposed to private roads, on spraying to combat poison ivy, and on shoulders for Spore Rd.

Wallace assured the Feura Bush delegation that the unusually wet weather of the spring had stalled the development of the recreational area of the new town property earmarked for a park, including a baseball diamond.

In regular business the board:

- Appointed William Childs of New Salem to fill the unexpired term of George Saba of New Salem on the assessment review board, and reappointed John McKenzie of Clarksville to a new three-year term. Saba, whose term runs to March 31, 1984, resigned this spring.

- Received a petition from property owners on Spore Rd. to establish a new water district to connect with a previously requested district serving Bullock Rd. and Orchard Hill Rd. A petition filed six months ago by 17 residents of the latter section has been put "on hold" pending resolution of the proposed new water district serving the Swift Rd. area.

- Designated polling places for the seven new voting districts stemming from the recent realignment of New Scotland's previous six districts. The polling places are: St. Matthew's Church (now serving District 6), the New Salem senior citizens center, Clarksville firehouse, Unionville Methodist Church, New Scotland Town Hall, Voorheesville Methodist Church and Voorheesville firehouse.

IDA to issue bonds

The Bethlehem Industrial Development Authority, in its first (and possibly its last) official act, has approved the sale of $3.6 million in tax-free bonds to enable Suit-Kote, an upstate New York company that manufactures and installs blacktop materials to be located in the town.

The company is negotiating with Texaco to take over its now-empty tank farm on Rt. 144 in Glenmont, according to Supervisor Tom Corrigan. No further action will be required until a deal between Texaco and Suit-Kote is completed, and then a public hearing will be held, the supervisor said.

According to company officials at the IDA meeting last week, Corrigan said, Suit-Kote has no plans to manufacture asphalt products at the Glenmont location. "It only means about five jobs because it's a storage and distribution facility," he said.

The company has eight plants from Utica to Buffalo and is looking for a storage facility with access to water and rail transportation; the Texaco facility, with fire buildings and 13 buk storage tanks, fills those requirements, but apparently will be considerably more expensive to adapt to the company's use than first thought, Corrigan said. That's because of the need to add heating elements to the piping so that the asphalt can be moved.

Suit-Kote had originally asked the town IDA for $2.6 million in bonds, but at the meeting last week raised that request to $3.6 million. Corrigan said that in view of time constraints, the IDA (composed of himself, Councilwoman Ruth Bickel and Assistant Comptroller Richard Mann) agreed to the increase and to issue the bonds.

Technically, the Bethlehem IDA went out of business as of Monday because it has issued no bonds in its 10-year life. The town has asked the state legislature to extend the IDA's life, and passage of the necessary legislation is expected in the current session.

Natalie Buchman of Loudonville displays the miniature she fashioned of American Indian Treasures, Western Ave., Guilderland. The miniature will be shown at the shop on Sunday, June 12 from 1 to 5 p.m. A portion of the day's sales will be donated to the Cradleboard Nursery, St. Regis Reservation near Massena.

Workshop plans 18th year

The Bethlehem Christian Workshop will be offered for the 18th consecutive year July 11-15. Sponsored by Bethlehem Community Church, the Workshop features varied class offerings for Bethlehem residents from kindergarten age through adult.

Most classes for younger students will be held from 9 to 11:30 a.m. at the church and in homes throughout the Bethlehem area.

The Workshop this year will feature a special section for driving Workshop mothers. It includes two classes — crafts and exercising to music — held at Bethlehem Community Church from 9:15 to 11:15 a.m. to allow for convenient delivery and pickup of younger students.

Special classes geared to teenagers also highlight this year's Workshop. These include an adventure course featuring white water rafting, spelunking, snorkeling and rappelling; a sailing course on Warner's Lake, and a music course that will examine rock music.

A Teenadult section, from 9th grade through adult, will again be part of

Focus On Faith

Rabbi Bernard H. Bloom

Congregation Beth Emeth

President Reagan has proclaimed "the Year of the Bible" to arouse Americans to solve the problems of our society. Yet his pious proposal is as questionable a "quick fix" as any of the political policies he disapproves.

First, there is no such thing as "the Bible." There are several Bibles — the Jewish, the Catholic, the Protestant, the Mormon — but the contents of each differ. And even where there is agreement on the contents, the translations reveal denominational bias.

Second, despite the simplistic belief of fundamentalists, there is no complete consistency of doctrine within any of the Bibles. Doves quote the prophets Isaiah and Micah as calling on mankind to "beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks." Hawks can cite the prophet Joel, who announced, "beat your plowshares into swords and your pruning hooks into spears."

Since each bible is an anthology of many writings coming from many hands and from many times, it contains a broad diversity of views on almost any subject. It is possible to support some of the most bizarre and outlandish positions by invoking "the Bible says."

Take the Christian storm-troopers of the Posse Comitatus, who justify killing their foes by citing Luke 19:27: "As for these enemies of mine . . . slay them before me." Similarly the snakehandling cultists of the Southern Appalachians support their custom by quoting Mark 16:17: "Those who believe . . . will pick up serpents . . . it will not hurt them."

Jehovah's Witnesses will die rather than accept blood transfusions, because of their interpretation of Leviticus 17:12: "No person among you shall eat blood." Orthodox Jewish fanatics in Israel hurl rocks at cars driving on the Sabbath, on the basis of Numbers 15:32-36: "They found a man gathering sticks on the Sabbath day . . . and all the congregation . . . stoned him to death with stones, as the Lord commanded Moses."

As a divorced man President Reagan should be particularly wary of invoking the Bible. Presumably he accepts the authority of Mark 10:11, which quotes Jesus very precisely. "Whoever divorces his wife and marries another commits adultery against her."

Certainly the Bible has eternal value and should be studied and applied. But this can only be done individually, or within groups that share the same ideology. To suggest that "the Bible" can solve all of America's problems is to do a disservice both to the Bible and to sincere religionists.

Musician in business

The newest thing in music lessons is the "Shens' Music Corner". The Corner is the creation of Grace Shen of Delmar, a Bethlehem Central graduate and now a student at the Eastman School of Music in Rochester.

It is a group musical experience for young children ages three-and-a-half to six. Classes will be held from July 11 to August 5 at the Clark Music Co., Wolf Road Park, Colonie. All the children attend two weekly afternoon classes. Registration is $5 and materials cost $5. Tuition is $32 for younger students and $40 for the five and six-year olds.

The classes are small, allowing for individual attention as well as group participation. The Shens' Corner uses music to help children develop speech, coordination, creativeness and a permanent interest in music.

For information, call Grace Shen at 439-2362.

Town sells notes

The Town of Bethlehem has sold a new set of bond anticipation notes for its ongoing sewer project, with an interest rate a good two points lower than the town paid last year, according to Supervisor Tom Corrigan.

The town sold $3.5 million worth of notes with a 6.22 percent interest rate, the supervisor said. Last year, the town sold $5 million worth of notes with an 8.61 percent rate. "Considering the state just got 6 percent for substantially more money, I feel we're very fortunate," Corrigan said.

Bethlehem Central's track season produced many efforts like this high jump by Jeff Ross.
Spotlight — Tom Howes

Hammer, Cai led BC track

By Julie Ann Sosa

Pete Hammer and Tung Cai have been synonymous with Bethlehem track this spring. They are runners 365 days a year, competing in cross country, indoor and outdoor track.

Hammer is a two-miler. He already lowered the school's two-mile indoor record to 9:39 when he finished 11th at the Intersectional track meet at Cornell University in March. Among his outdoor laurels are wins at the Suburban Council championships and the Class A Sectionals (in a personal best 9:32.2). He was third at the Niskayuna Co-Ed Meet and fourth at the Schenectady Invitational.

The other half of the team's scoring tandem is a hurdler. Among his achievements in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles were a first at the Suburban Council meet (in a personal best 57.3), a third at the Schenectady Invitational and a fifth at Sectionals.

This two-man sample of the 60-member boys' team went to the state qualifiers at Shaker last week. Cai got no further than the semifinals, but Hammer mustered a fourth. The heat on the track slowed him to 9:42.9. Neither qualified.

The boys' track team finished the year 0-9, last in the Suburban Council. Varsity was a misnomer for the team, which was mostly a freshman and JV squad. It had four middle school competitors and will lose only six to graduation. Among the standouts on the team were eighth graders Bernie Colligan, a jumper, and Charlie Hendrickson, a hurdler, and distance specialists Craig Isenberg and Tommy Nyilis; freshman John McAllister, a triple jumper who has leapt 38 feet, and long jumper Brian McGarrahan; sophomores Paul Montanus, a budding pole vaulter and established two-miler, and Tony Eckel; juniors Tom Denham, a hurdler, and Jeff Ross, a sprinter, and senior cocaptains Jim Ross and Matt Roberts.

Ainsworth in Intersectionals

Christine Ainsworth did it... again. She was the fastest seventh of the girls' Section 2 championship cross-country team that went to Intersectionals last fall. Now she has qualified for the Intersectional outdoor track meet to be held at Baldwinsville this week.

Ainsworth, a sophomore, will be the lone Eagle at the state meet. As a 3,000-meter runner in her second year on varsity, she lowered her 11:07 indoor best to 10:45 early in the season against Niskayuna. Her 10:54.2 clocking at state qualifiers last week earned her second, although she lagged far behind nemesis Laura LaMena of Shaker, who turned in a 10:22 personal best. Ainsworth will be one of three Section 2 girls competing at Baldwinsville in the 3,000 meters.

Bethlehem's small 20-member girls' team fielded three other competitors at the state qualifiers. Junior Marisa Weaver has been long jumping for three years, but she has come into her own only this year. Going into her third and final jump, her best effort was 15 feet, 11 inches. But then she travelled 16 feet-4 3/4 inches to boost herself into third place.

Spotlight SPORTS

She missed qualifying for Intersectionals by 1 1/4 inches. Eighth grader Ann Carey is the younger sister of Evelyn, a former BC great in hurdling and sprinting. The younger Carey was a fifth-place finisher in the 400-meter hurdles in 67.2, a personal best. Jenny Hammer, a freshman in her first year on varsity, competed in the 1,500 meters.

Other outstanding team members are Laura Koban and Jenny Warren.

Gone again

The American flag at Bethlehem's Memorial Park on Delaware Ave. has been stolen — again. After repeated thefts, town crews recently moved the rope to a cleat out of reach from the ground. That, however, didn't stop the determined thieves from taking the flag and the rope Saturday night. That flag replaced one stolen the previous Saturday night.

Give the gift of love.

Power display in Little League

Karim Jakhra of CPM became the first senior league player this year to hit a home run in the Tri-Village Little League. Jakhra's shot helped beat K-Mart, 12-2, Sunday. Earlier in the week, CPM beat Houghtaling's, 14-3, with a slew of doubles. Rick Jones, Paul Stracke, Chris Oberheim and Rick Carlson each had a two-base hit.

Applebee and Owens-Corning played one of the most exciting games of the year Saturday. Tom Roberts, Mark Hansen and Andy Miller of Applebee combined for a triple play. Owens-Corning brought up major leaguer Bill McFerran for the game because of a player shortage. McFerran did his job by making a diving catch in right field while wearing a wrong-handed mitt. The game was declared a 10-10 tie after being stopped on account of darkness in the eighth.

In major league action, Sean Perkins of Meyers hit a grand slam as his team beat Convenient, 14-6. Pete Cocozza hit a home run for Convenient.

These young soccer players will be the beneficiaries of the Bethlehem Soccer Club's gala bake sale, garage sale and raffle at Delaware Plaza Saturday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. The club last week began interclub play with other age-group teams in the Capital District.

The starting gun

The Town of Bethlehem's Elm Avenue Park will open for the summer session with the bang of a starter's gun on Saturday, June 11, at 10 a.m. The Park will be the starting point for a five kilometer race to benefit the Leukemia Society of America. There will also be a 1.2 mile race for young runners ages eight to 13.

Race registration is $4 for adults and $2 for children. Entry blanks are available at the Bethlehem Town Hall and the Town Parks and Recreation Department office at the town park. Checks should be made payable to the Leukemia Society of America.

Winners in the six children's and six adult age groups will take home prizes. For the children, prizes will be sleeping bags donated by Leukemia Society.

For the adults, the prizes are certificates for two dinners at the following local restaurants: Normanside Country Club, The Shanty, The Starlite Restaurant, Stone Ends, Tool's and Phil Giaccone's. Men and women winners in each age category - 14-25, 26-36, and 36 and above - will pick their restaurant out of a hat.

All runners can enter the pool complex free of charge on opening day.

Soccer sprites win

One of the few times the Bethlehem Soccer Club's under-10 age group team has been able to conquer Clifton Park came last week in a 2-0 victory by the Bethlehem II team. Todd Sussman, David Stasiuk and Brian Farrell excelled in the game, in which Bethlehem controlled play throughout.

Republicans already involved

Editor, The Spotlight:

As an Albany-County legislator representing the 33rd District, covering McKnowville and Westmere in the Town of Guilderland and North Bethlehem and parts of Slingerlands in the Town of Bethlehem, I would like to respond to the story by Tom McPheeters in your May 25 issue.

Mr. McPheeters' column on the Republican slate of candidates for town and county office infers that electing more Republicans to the County Legislature would enable them to exert a decisive role in matters before the County Legislature which involve bonding.

As a Democrat who represents the Town of Bethlehem at the County Legislature I would take the position that Republicans, some of them from the Town of Bethlehem, already play a decisive role in matters involving bonding.

As a Legislator who is a Democrat, I have developed a reputation for being opposed to the use of bonds for the operation of government. I take the position that bonding, with its inherent interest costs, is an avenue available to government for emergency type situations involving the protection of the public.

I would suggest that residents of Albany County look at the voting record on bond issues approved by the County Legislature. Over the past three years, bond issues have been approved because Republican members have provided the two-thirds vote necessary for passage.

I will continue to vote on the issue at hand in a manner which I believe reflects desires of the people who elected me and to whom I am responsible. Some of these people happen to be Republicans, who believed in my credibility as a candidate and as a public servant. I am honored to have this privilege to serve the people of Bethlehem through December of 1983.

An invitation

Editor, The Spotlight:

As you know, the residents of the Good Samaritan Home in Delmar have been participating in a four-week "Stroll-a-Thon" to benefit the Salvation Army. On June 12 at 2 p.m. we will be holding an open house to wind down our Stroll-a-Thon at the Home on 125 Rockefeller Rd. The community, families and friends are invited to attend and will have the opportunity to meet the residents they have sponsored.

The Resident Council at Good Samaritan wishes to thank the public for their support, as well as wishing a special thank you to all of you at the Spotlight for the marvelous publicity you have given.

Quality needed

Editor, The Spotlight:

The following is an open letter to Neil Golub, of Price Chopper Supermarkets:

"This is a message of thanks and compliments with a plea that you bring Price Chopper to Delmar. It was your generosity in donating a percentage of receipts for a local group, Families For The Future, that brought me to your supermarket at 234 Central Ave., Albany. I had just bought a two-week supply of groceries and only drove the 10 miles out of my way to make a token order for this worthy organization. My first impression of your store was a reaction to the extra sized green carts lined up outside: No way would I need such a large basket.

"I was wrong. Because when I stepped outside, I was pleasantly surprised. When I sniffed the enticing aromas of your bakery, I was hungry. And when I finally checked out, my basket was full.

"Since my family moved to Delmar, some 200 or so shopping trips ago, meal planning and buying has become practically a drudgery. We moved here from Florida where I had been accustomed to shopping at Publix Markets, where shopping was indeed a pleasure. Not to demean our two local markets that are expanding and remodeling, and hopefully improving, your store is the first in the Capitol District to restore that experience.

"When I came home with five times the order I intended, I tried to analyze why shopping in your store was so enjoyable.

Why did everything really look good enough to eat, why did I buy items I had never bought before, and would I pass by my local markets and travel the additional distance to shop there again?

"My next shopping expedition brought me some answers, briefly, yes, I would.

"It was not any increase in size or selections that made your store so attractive, it was the cleanliness and attention to detail. Above all as an economizing buyer, I experienced the definition of the name Price Chopper: your prices are reason alone to make shoppers return.

"I would hope that our present Delmar stores could learn from your example of what a shopper appreciates in a supermarket. Price-Chopper, you DO do more, won't you consider doing it in Delmar?"

What to look for

Editor, The Spotlight:

Let's stop berating schools and students, as Nat Boynton has recently done in three Spotlight articles. It's time to stand up and be counted for our pride in the quality of students Bethlehem Central graduates each year — students who have been exposed to an impressive variety of experiences at BC to aid in decisions about jobs, careers, college and other future paths.

Nat Boynton would have all athletes be so singleminded as to neglect academics, all teams be so competitive that only the few students who have superior skills can participate. For what purpose? To provide a bursting trophy case — a "proud legacy" for residents like Mr. Boynton to brag about.

I would prefer to brag about the strong bonds formed between athletes on our teams, and the cooperation and persistence taught by coaches, who don't have to be "pros" to know how to bring out the best qualities in our children — the qualities that will serve them later in life, when trophies have collected dust.

As a frequent spectator at "non-pivotal" as well as "pivotal" sports at BC, I have been impressed by the effort, skill, stamina, and sheer physical energy displayed by our students. It's as beautiful to watch as a championship victory, Mr. Boynton. You just have to know what to look for.

Athletes and more

Editor, The Spotlight:

The Bethlehem Central junior varsity girls softball team won the Suburban Council Gold Division championship this year with a fine 10-5 record.

That is an achievement to be proud of. But it is also important to recognize other achievements about this group of athletes. Four players visited Spain this season as part of their foreign language course. One player performed in the successful production, "The Boys from Syracuse." Two players competed admirably in the New York State Music Association competition. Several of the team members have outstanding academic records. Several of the team members participated in four sports this year.

I think it is relevant that this particular team is actually not unique at Bethlehem

Central. Examination of team rosters would indicate a multitude of "all around" individuals who excel in many areas. Winning and losing records are not the only indication of the quality of a high school athletic program. Sports is one part of a multi-faceted and superior educational program at Bethlehem Central.

I personally coach three sports a year and the current softball team was the only one to achieve a winning record. Nevertheless, I feel I can say without reservation that all three teams were successful and in each instance I was proud to have been their coach.

Robin Keyes married

Robin Leslie Keyes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Keyes of Slingerlands, was married May 29 in Albany to Jeffrey John Palmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Palmer of Skaneateles, N.Y. Edward S. Conway, state Supreme Court justice, officiated.

Maid of honor was Mrs. Douglas Leenhouts and bridesmaids were Kathleen Anderson and Catherine Hill. David Allen Sheppard was best man, and ushers were Peter and Scott Palmer, brothers of the bridegroom.

The bride is a 1982 graduate of Colgate University and is a research assistant at Tulane Medical School, New Orleans, La. The bridegroom, also a Colgate graduate, received a master's degree in geology from the University of Texas at Austin and is a geologist for Exxon Corp., in New Orleans. The couple are residing in Metairie, La., following a wedding trip to Mexico.

Researchers honored

Two local residents, a nuclear physicist and a chemist have been named recipients of this year's University awards for Excellence in Research at the State University at Albany. They are Walter Gibson of Voorheesville and Henry Kuivila of Glenmont.

Gibson, who is chairman of the Department of Physics at the university, is a specialist in nuclear science and engineering.

Kuivila, chairman of the Department of Chemistry, is a leading authority on organo-tin compounds, which have been used in agriculture to control pests and as preservatives in plastics.

Toys needed for St. Peter's

With the garage sale season in full swing, area residents are urged to keep an eye out for bargains in children's toys. Bonnie Haley of Delmar, whose son, David, 3, recently spent a week at St. Peter's Hospital in Albany, is seeking donations of toys for the playroom in the pediatrics ward there.

The staff were "so loving and caring" during David's hospitalization, she said that the family wanted to do something in return, hence the idea of equipping the playroom. The playroom is an attractive room with cabinets, but the supply of toys is badly depleted, Mrs. Haley said. The staff says infant seats, potty chairs, a carriage and mobiles are needed, plus strong plastic furniture for the dollhouse, which was donated by teenagers in a shop class. The play barn, too, needs a new supply of plastic animals.

The hospital would prefer not to have fabric toys that could harbor germs or items a baby might put in her mouth, or messy craft items such as fingerpaints, but the staff would welcome any other toys. The services of one or more carpenters also are needed, to make repairs to the dollhouse and to build a portable puppet stage that could be used, for example, for pre-operative therapy. Mrs. Haley also noted that the ward lacks a rocking chair.

Residents are urged to keep their eye out for garage sale bargains. Donations may be dropped off Saturday, June 11, at 25 Nathaniel Blvd., Delmar, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Also, McDonald's in Delmar and in Ravena will accept donations for the hospital playroom during the week of June 10-17.
