Blue Circle offers health, safety answers

Waste solvent burning at issue

By Patricia Mitchell

Environmental and health and safety concerns were voiced by about 250 residents attending a public meeting last week on Blue Circle Atlantic Cement Company's proposal to burn waste solvents at its Ravena plant.

Blue Circle would like to burn waste solvents from New York State manufacturers, such as turpentine, paint thinner, floor wax, nail polish, perfume and other household products, to generate energy and replace about 35 percent of the coal used for making cement. Company officials said they are interested in burning waste solvents as an alternative energy source to reduce costs because the cement industry is extremely competitive.

The public meeting was sponsored voluntarily by Blue Circle to gain some public input and start a "dialogue" with local residents over their plan. The company plans to file with the state Department of Environmental Conservation later this spring for various permits needed to burn the waste solvents, and the whole review process could take up to two years.

Another plan to burn waste oil at Blue Circle was not discussed at the meeting. Officials said the two proposals don't have the same process, and will be treated by DEC differently. Officials also said regulations are not as stringent for waste oil burning as for burning waste solvents.

The residents questioned six representatives from Blue Circle and Systech, an Ohio-based waste management company that would be contracted, for three hours last Tuesday night at the Ravena-

Coeymans-Selkirk High School, directly across from the plant on Rt. 9W. While the tone of the meeting was informative, a few residents left during the presentation disgruntled with the plan and the information.

When Dr. Marvin Marshall, a local resident with children in RCS schools, challenged officials over their claim that they wouldn't mind having their children attend schools across from a waste solvents-burning plant, Albany attorney Mark West, acting as moderator for the night, warned that a dialogue wasn't being achieved. A woman then shouted out that the meeting wasn't a dialogue and would not accomplish anything, and walked out of the auditorium.

Many questions centered around the location of the RCS junior and senior high schools across the road. "I have a 16-year old investment in this community and he's going to go to school here across the street," said Coeymans resident Steve Mantor.

RCS school board member Ronald Peretti asked if the school district can share lead agency status during the environmental review with DEC, and if officials plan to meet with and notify the district throughout the application process.

The school district would have a legitimate claim to have an interested party status under the State Environmental Quality Review Act, the process for making an environmental impact statement, said William Hennessey of Hennessey Associates, Blue Circle's consultant for the project. Local and state officials will not only be meeting with the school district during the application, but a public scoping session will be held at a later date when residents and interested groups will be invited, he said.

Marshall received some applause when he asked if Blue Circle will screen the school children for toxics, help with evacuation of the schools in an emergency and build new schools if an accident does occur.

"We have not had an incidence of any type," said Mel Eifert, vice president of Systech. He said since 1979, the company has managed over 80 million gallons of waste. "We have had a very good record and we intend to maintain that record."

Connolly seeks a rematch

Almost eight months before the votes will be counted, Voorheesville Village Justice and former New Scotland Republican Chairman Kenneth Connolly has announced he will run for town justice in this November's election.

Connolly will be running on the Republican ticket for the seat now held by Democrat Cynthia LaFave, who four years ago took the justice's seat from Connolly by a 26-vote margin. The loss was considered a major upset, and led indirectly to changes in the New Scotland GOP leadership.

The town justice job is just one of nine seats that will be coming

Why Bethlehem tax hikes are more

By Tom McPheeters

Back in 1983, a state survey established that the market value of property in the Town of Bethlehem had increased by 8.33 percent since the last survey three years earlier. In the same period, property values in New Scotland and Coeymans actually declined slightly.

That, in a nutshell, is why Bethlehem property owners in the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk School District suddenly find themselves facing a 15 percent property tax increase next year, while New Scotland residents of the district face only a six percent hike, and in Coeymans the increase will be only four percent. And that same disparity will probably show up when the Bethlehem Central School District announces the tax rates for Bethlehem and New Scotland property owners later this month.

The fact that property values are increasing rapidly in Bethlehem will come as no surprise to most people. But the link between that increase, driven solely by the prevailing market, and property taxes is a bit more difficult to follow.

The key is the equalization rate, which is set by the state Board of Equalization and Assessment. The equalization rate is an attempt to maintain parity between different parts of a taxing district, such as a school district, that cross town lines. The RCS district, for instance, covers four towns, while BC covers two. Because assessment practices vary from town to town, properties in brought into the plant from Rt. 9W, Eifert said. Instead, they will be tanked in off the Selkirk Thruway exit, then south on Rt. 144 to the plant entrance. Eventually, the company would like to bring in the waste solvents by Conrail tank cars on railroad lines that go through the plant.

Systech Corp. operates a waste burning kiln very close to a school in Kansas, and Eifert said risks are "extremely small" that an accident will happen that would cause the schools to be evacuated. The location of the RCS schools wasn't part of the decision to burn waste solvents at Blue Circle, Eifert said. Instead, Systech looked to the plant because it is a good operating plant and is near locations where wastes are being generated.

The school board will be able to question Hennessey Associates about Blue Circle's plans when they make a presentation to the board at 8 p.m. Monday, April 20, at the senior high school.

In a handout distributed at the meeting, the Town of Coeymans Neighborhood Improvement Association also questioned the proposal. The group said it questioned the effect of burning waste solvents on the health and safety of the residents, the impact on surrounding areas of transporting these wastes along streets, and asked what benefits the town will receive in return for accepting the wastes of the county and the region and what impact the proposal would have on the future of the town.

Several local government officials also questioned officials. Assemblyman John Faso, who represents the towns of Bethlehem and Coeymans, asked if the burning of waste solvents would be strictly mechanical or would require some worker control, what kind of emissions would come from the plant, and if information on the solvents being burned would be available.

Asking about Blue Circle's contingency plan for emergencies, Coeymans Town Supervisor Winthrop Irwin said the town has part-time fire departments that have periods of being short-handed, and there are times during the day that the departments have difficulty getting a large number of hands to respond.

Irwin also said the school district has part-time bus drivers, and he questioned if the district would have enough bus drivers and buses to evacuate the junior and senior high school at the same time. Eifert said there would be no problem to work with the local people when making contingency plans, and they will also have to met with fire departments and other emergency workers, and have emergency response equipment at the plant.

Schodack Town Supervisor Beth Knauf Morgan asked if Blue Circle will take into account its neighbor across the Hudson River during the application process. Hennessey said Schodack will be included because areas within a 12-mile radius will be studied, with a separate study concentrating on areas within a two-mile radius.

With many residents getting drinking water from deep wells, Eifert said if a spill does occur the chances of contaminating the groundwater are extremely remote. The wastes won't seep through the soil quickly, and could actually take years to reach the groundwater, depending on the soil permissibility. Even so, Eifert said, the company will respond quickly to contain any spills, and can bring equipment out until state emergency workers can respond.

Blue Circle will be contracting with Systech to obtain the waste solvents, monitor transportation, store the material and monitor the burning. Systech has been in the waste business about 18 years, and has been burning waste solvents for about seven years. Eifert said Systech expects to process 45 million gallons of waste in 1987, and manages about six plants throughout the country.

"We think it is a sound technology. We think it makes good sense for Blue Circle to pursue this technology at this time," Eifert said.

The process of burning waste solvents as supplemental fuel in kilns has been thoroughly tested and evaluated, with the conclusion that all the hazardous parts are destroyed and there is no environmental impact, Eifert said.

Systech will set up strict guidelines for accepting wastes from approved companies, transporting it, checking orders and approving shipments once they arrive at the plant, Eifert said. Once shipments arrive at Blue Circle, Systech workers will take samples and analyze to make sure it was approved and then test for compatibility with other wastes at the site. Blue Circle will not be burning pesticides, PCBs or other carcinogens, and can reject loads of wastes if it decides to, he said. Eifert said this checking procedure will help keep unlicensed or organized crime transportors from dumping wastes at Blue Circle. With a lab on site for the chemical analysis, about six workers will be employed by Systech at Blue Circle, he said.

Once the waste solvents arrive at the plant, they will be stored in tanks with two walls of concrete. The tanks will be able to hold up to 300,000 to 400,000 gallons at a time. Eifert said Blue Circle could be burning 19 to 20 million gallons a year.

The final location and design of the holding tanks won't be completed until after the Environmental Impact Statement is completed. The waste solvents will be transported from the tanks to one of the two kilns at Blue Circle and will be used in the kiln only when the temperature is high enough to burn them completely, Eifert said. One kiln will be modified to add a solvent pipe and a special nozzle for the solvents to enter the kiln, and will be heated by the coal that is already used for making cement. Thermometers will be placed throughout the kiln to monitor the temperature at all times.

Systech will provide information to the plant on fire protection, spill containment, health and safety, and all employees of the plant will have a right to know about the hazardous solvents under the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's Right-to-Know Law.

Blue Circle Atlantic, as the owner of the plant, will have the most responsibility in the burning of waste solvents, Hennessey said. It will be as responsible as Systech for testing the waste solvents and for monitoring Systech.

Blue Circle is part of the community, said Peter Buttiker, operations manager, and it is important for the company to remain a good neighbor. In addition to a cheaper fuel bill for the company, he said, other benefits include an improved waste disposal program because much waste is now dumped in landfills, and a decreased public health risk. By cutting its fuel bill, Blue Circle will be able to remain competitive in the cement industry and will remain a stable company, Buttiker said.

Association.

By the time she's ready to set out this June from Seattle, Wash., with 200 other hardy souls for the 3,150-mile trek across the United States to New Jersey, this Bethlehem Central teacher knows she'll be tough enough, both mentally and physically.

"I really don't have any doubts in my mind — is there something wrong with me?"

The trip is scheduled to start June 1 and end July 16.

The idea behind the American Lung Association's "Trans America Bike Trek" is to raise the public's consciousness about lung disease. "Having worked with young people, I've seen some of them make very poor decisions about their health. And, I've seen some make terrific decisions and I want to celebrate that." In addition, Rice says, her father died from emphysema and her husband is a former smoker.

Rice and her husband William are residents of Rensselaerville and have two children, 13 and 10. "We enjoy doing things together, but this time my family is my cheering section." A graduate of Russell Sage College, she has taught health and physical education since 1972.

Rice is a late-comer to the trek, and has only a limited amount of time to raise the $5,000 (minimum) she needs in community support. She will be meeting with anybody interested in supporting the trek Friday from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Bethlehem Public Library, and is willing to speak with other interested groups.

Hearings, reviews for Blue Circle

The proposal to burn waste solvents as a supplemental fuel at Blue Circle Atlantic Co.'s Ravena plant could take up to two years to review.

The proposal will have to go through a myriad of state and federal agencies, hearings, documents and reviews. The Department of Environmental Conservation has assumed lead agency status in the review because of the state regulations involved.

Last Tuesday's public meeting will be just one of many public meetings, said Vince Moore, vice president of Fred C. Hart Associates, a consultant to Blue Circle and Systech Corp. on the proposal.

"There are other people who have the same concerns," Moore said.

Blue Circle first considered last August using the flammable industrial wastes to cut down on its coal consumption at its cement operation on Rt. 9W, in Ravena, across from the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Junior and Senior High Schools, and decided early this year to go ahead with the proposal.

Blue Circle is in the process of preparing DEC applications to burn the solvents, Moore said. Later this spring, it will hand to DEC an application for a hazardous waste treatment, storage and disposal permit, that will include handling methods, disposal methods, procedures to prevent environmental hazards and to respond to accidents, training, record keeping, monitoring and environmental control.

A modification to its air emission permit will also be needed by Blue Circle from DEC.

DEC and Blue Circle have already decided that a draft Environmental Impact Statement

(EIS) will be needed on the project, Moore said. A general scoping session will be held as part of the draft EIS, and residents and community groups will be invited to address needs of the community.

After a few months, DEC will rule on the completeness of the draft EIS, and either ask for more information or make it available after public notice. Moore said at the end of the public comment period, a public hearing on the waste burning plan will be held by DEC, and the public will again have the chance to comment.

The public hearing officer will evaluate the environmental aspects of the proposal at the end of the public hearing, and may recommend to DEC approval with or without permit conditions, Moore said.

A final EIS is published, and then a temporary permit for a trial burn of waste solvents at Blue Circle is issued, Moore said. A Hazardous Waste Facility Siting Board composed of state and local officials is appointed by the governor to look further into the proposal.

After a trial burn is held at Blue Circle, the results will be analyzed by DEC. Moore said if the tests are acceptable, then the siting board will issue a siting certificate and DEC will issue a permanent operating permit.

Including local government officials and residents in Albany, Columbia, Greene and Rensselaer counties, other agencies will also be involved. These include the Department of Health, the state Energy Office, the county Health Department, the state Energy Research and Development Authority, the Environmental Protection Agency, the Department of Transportation, and the Office of Emergency Preparedness.

Tax information

A temporary tax information center, sponsored by Assemblyman John Faso, will be set up at the Grand Union, Delaware Plaza, on March 26, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The center will be stocked with both federal and state tax forms and publications, and will be staffed by two State Tax Department information aides, who will answer questions about state taxes only.

Bethlehem Central still trimming budget

By Patricia Mitchell

After receiving an additional $67,000 in proposals, the Bethlehem Central Board of Education has started the long and arduous task of trimming its $20.5 million proposed budget.

With the transportation and program proposals handed to the school board last Wednesday, the proposed 1987-88 budget is almost compiled. Still to be added are costs for staff development and high school staffing, and they will be discussed after the school board's regular meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday (today).

The $20.5 million budget includes $20,076,430 in a fundamental operating budget, trimmed from $20.1 million, and $451,385, trimmed from about $560,000, in first priority proposals for operations and maintenance, staff, transportation and programs. This represents an 8.6 percent increase over this year's $18.9 million budget, but the final figures are likely to change as the board polishes the spending plan before the May 6 vote.

No tax rates have been discussed yet, but the administration is estimating a 3.6 percent increase in total assessed valuation in Bethlehem and New Scotland, based on past figures. Under the governor's proposed state aid package, Bethlehem Central could get $3,958,371 in state aid, an increase of four percent over this year's figure. The board is scheduled to discuss the tax rate when it does an overview of the budget on Wednesday, March 25.

The school board has started to discuss changes to make in its budget, and has received some updated figures in the basic budget and transportation and staff proposals, trimming almost $200,000 off previous figures.

About $62,000 has been taken off the basic budget, mostly by recalculating fuel costs and salaries; another $12,000 was deleted from retirement costs; and first priority items for operations and maintenance has been trimmed to $157,000 from $275,000 by the staff. The school board also made changes resulting in a decrease of about $32,000, including adding a half-time elementary remedial math teacher, and deleting work on fuel tanks and costs for teacher retirement.

Under the transportation budget, the administration recommended proposals to add time for a head bus driver position that is already included in the staffing budget, and to replace six overhead doors at the bus garage with insulated doors at $12,000.

Costs to retrofit older buses with seat belts will not be included in this year's budget. Board President Bernard Harvith said a few letters have been received from parents requesting seat belts, but that the school board should wait until next year to discuss retrofitting because new buses with seat belts have only been in use a few weeks, and it is too early to make a judgment.

The board learned that there is some problem with the retractor of the belt in the plastic buckle, and the manufacturer will be coming out to inspect them. There have been few reports of vandalism, but a few students have learned how to pull the belt through the seat in front of them and fasten it to the seat in back.

Under staff development, the board received about $98,000 in proposals. These include an inservice program, curriculum revision for all subject areas over five years, peer teacher coaching and a fund for teacher resources for time or materials to develop improvements in programs.

Environment at BCHS

The third and last meeting for parent input concerning the school environment at Bethlehem Central High School will be held on Monday, March 23, 1987, at 8 p.m. in Room No. 46 at the High School.

Topics discussed to date are: school activities, student parking, off campus passes, transition from middle school, staff leadership and recognition, and the difference between discipline and punishment. Teachers, students and community members are welcome.

Maher in BC race

In a potentially quiet Bethlehem Central school board race, only one candidate has come out to challenge an incumbent.

Greg Maher, of Albin Rd., Delmar, said Monday he will seek nomination to the school board seat now held by Velma Cousins.

Cousins and Barbara Coon have said they plan to seek reelection to the seven-member board. On Monday, incumbent Sheila Fuller was the only candidate to file her petition in the district office.

A Buffalo native, Maher said he is running because he hopes to add some continuity to the school board because he sees it struggling in dealing with so many issues now. Maher has been attending the twice-monthly school board meetings for the past year and a half. Maher and his wife, Mary Bickerman Maher, have three children, a second grade student, a kindergartener and a nine-month-old baby.

Nominating petitions for the three-year board seats are available at the district office, and must be filed by Friday, April 6. Interested candidates must file for a specific seat, and petitions must have at least 76 signatures.

Town may hire full-time planner

By Kevin Mullen

A five-member committee has recommended that Bethlehem should hire a full-time planner. The town's next decision is whether it wants to continue its association with its present part-time planning consultant.

The committee was appointed by Supervisor J. Robert Hendrick in January to study whether the town could use a full-time planner. It was made up of town Councilmen Ruth Bickel and Sue Ann Ritchko, planning board Chairman John Williamson, Commissioner of Public Works Bruce Secor and Building Inspector John Flanagan.

On Hendrick's recommendation, the town board allocated money in the 1987 budget for the hiring of a full-time planner. Following the meeting, Hendrick said he was pleased that the report was unanimous. "I'm convinced" of the need for a full-time planner, he added.

Hendrick said he won't know whether the town's current planning consultant, Edward Kleinke, will be considered for the job until a more complete job description is developed. If not, or if Kleinke is not interested, Hendrick said, a transition period would be necessary since Kleinke has developed a great deal of information about the town.

Asked Monday if he would be interested, Kleinke said, "I don't know — it's kind of premature." Kleinke, a landscape architect, has an office on Delaware Ave. and consults for a number of municipalities.

"I've been working with the town for seven or eight years," Kleinke said. "I certainly have an interest in seeing a lot of the things that we've gotten started carried through." Most recently, Kleinke has been working with the Planning Board to implement the recommendations of the Delaware Avenue Task Force and to assess the planning needs of the Rt. 9W commercial corridor.

As reported to the town board last Wednesday night, the committee said that a full-time planner could help "safeguard the quality of life" in the town and suggested that one be hired. "The committee reviewed the needs of the town and developed a duty statement, tasks that would be performed by the planner."

Ritchko said that the American Institute of Certified Planners was contacted. The institute has a job bank and can advertise for the town, she said. Ritchko said members of the institute "meet certain criteria" and that she was "confident we can find a qualified planner."

BETHLEHEM

In other business, the town board:

- Acknowledged receipt of a petition from Lynn Rhodes, president, and Douglas Zeno, vice president, of the Central Delmar Neighborhood Association, for a request to make Oakwood Pl. a one way street from Adams Pl. to Delaware Ave., from south to north. The petition was signed by about 80 residents. They also request no on-street parking. The petition was referred to the police department.

- Referred to the police department a petition from the residents of Elm Estates requesting traffic controls in their neighborhood. The residents say that there are 300 children under the age of 16 in the development and they are concerned with the traffic. They would like more stop signs.

- Set a public hearing for March 25 at 8:30 p.m. for Local Law No. 2 of 1987, which is a change in the town's flood damage prevention law to conform to state law.

- Acknowledged receipt of a letter from the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees (AFSCME), Council 66, which notified the town that it is representing all full-time and part-time dispatchers.

- Approved a police department request for the purchase of a 1987 Dodge pickup for $8,786 for the animal control officer. It will replace a 1983 vehicle with 81,000 miles.

- Acknowledged receipt of a preliminary plat for Lauralana Heights, extension No. 1, Section 3, from the planning board. The 24 lots are located between Rt. 32 and Elm Ave.

Piano needed

The Delmar Community Orchestra, which performs programs of classics, marches and show tunes for area organizations, nursing homes and charities, is in need of a donation in the form of a piano.

The orchestra, now in its 46th season, has scheduled a concert in April and three concerts in May.

On Monday, April 6, beginning at 7:30 p.m., the orchestra will perform for the benefit of World Hunger at the First United Methodist Church, 428 Kenwood Ave., Delmar.

Any individual or group that would like to donate a piano to the orchestra may call 439-8585 or 439-4628.

- Acknowledged receipt of a preliminary plat for the proposed Jessica Park subdivision from the planning board. Jessica Park, 15 lots, is located on Schoolhouse Rd. in North Bethlehem, across from the North Bethlehem Fire Department.

- Acknowledged receipt of a preliminary plat for the proposed Indian Hills subdivision from the planning board. Indian Hills, 125 lots, is located between Russell and Krumkill roads in North Bethlehem.

The next regular town board meeting is scheduled for March 25 at 7:30 p.m.

Tour the Rockies

On Wednesday, April 8, at 7:30 p.m. at the Bethlehem Public Library, Bernie Turoff will present a slide lecture of his month-long tour of Alaska and the Canadian Rockies.

The route Turoff took included Seattle to Vancouver by car, travelling the inland waterways by boat to Juno, and following the Gold Rush trail by train to White Horse, Fairbanks and Anchorage. One of the highlights of the trip is a drive across the Rockies to the Calgary Stampede, the renowned Canadian rodeo.

This program featuring the natural beauty of the Northwest is free and open to the public.

Home gets top rating

For the fourth straight year, Good Samaritan Home on Rockefeller Rd. in Delmar has earned the state's seal of approval with a "no deficiency" inspection. And, says administrator Robert Snow, just as importantly the home has the approval of its residents.

A state Health Department spokesman confirmed that Good Samaritan has received its fourth consecutive survey with no deficiencies noted, an "unusual" occurrence.

"What makes this even more significant," said Snow, "is that the approach used by the survey team this year focuses intensively on the residents themselves." The state inspectors interviewed residents, observed meals and the other daily routines at the home.

Good Samaritan "took this concept to its logical, but very unique in the industry, conclusion," said Snow. A resident representative attended the formal exit conference, when the inspectors present their findings and recommendations, and then presented the findings to all of the other residents.

"We believe that this approach helps us be, in reality, a resident-centered home," said Snow.

□ Why Bethlehem taxes

different towns tend to be assessed at different percentages of their true, or market value. Thus, it would be unfair if all paid the same tax rate.

The equalization rate, then, is the state board's estimation of the level of a town's assessments in relation to the market value of the properties. For instance, if properties in a particular town were assessed at half their true value, the equalization rate for the town would be 50. And when that rate decreases from year to year, it usually means that assessments have not kept up with the increase in property values.

A homeowner can figure out what the assessor thinks his home is worth on the market by dividing the assessed value by the equalization rate, after first moving the decimal two places to the left. In the example above, a house assessed at $50,000 in a town with an equalization rate of 50 would have an estimated full value of $100,000. When the equalization rate drops to 40, it means the full value is now considered to be $125,000.

However, the system is less than perfect. The 1986 equalization rates are based on a sampling conducted in 1983. Because of the amount of data involved in sampling real estate values, the surveys are conducted only every two or three years, and then updated in between, according to Joseph Pearson, a spokesman for the state Board of Equalization and Assessment.

As a result of the 1983 survey, Pearson said, Bethlehem's equalization rate dropped from 12.36 in 1985 to 11.53 in 1986. The decline probably would have been even sharper, but the survey data was averaged into the overall data base, Pearson said. New Scotland's rate went from 7.47 in 1985 to 7.56, and Coeymans' rate went from 9.24 to 9.48.

New Baltimore, which is also partially in the RCS school district, experienced an 8.77 growth, according to the state survey, so its equalization showed a decrease similar to Bethlehem's — from 12.76 to 11.75. As a result, the RCS tax rate in New Baltimore is scheduled to jump about 16 percent.

Also, the surveys are conducted for an entire town, with no distinction between the parts of the town that are in different school districts, according to Pearson. Several years ago, a sharp decrease in the New Scotland equalization rate was apparently triggered by real estate activity in Voorheesville — causing higher school taxes for New Scotland property owners in the Bethlehem Central district, which does not include Voorheesville.

Since most of the development and real estate activity in Bethlehem occurs in the northern part of town, it is possible that home owners in the RCS district are not enjoying the same rapid increase in property values. However, they are saddled with the town-wide equalization rate that reflects rapid growth — and thus the higher school taxes.

4 seats open on RCS board

Four seats will be filled during Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk school district budget vote on May 13.

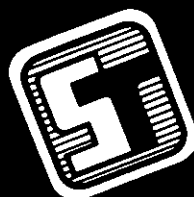

The three-year seats of Louis Neri, Ronald Peretti and Sara Hunter, and a one-year seat being now being held by James Morgan will be open in the at-large race.

Peretti said he will be seeking re-election to the nine-member school board, while Neri said he has not decided on running again and Hunter said she will not be running for the school board.

Morgan, who was appointed to the school board after Dr. Frank Filippone resigned last October, said he will be seeking election to his first full term on the board.

The three candidates receiving the highest votes will be awarded the regular three-year seats on the board, and the fourth highest vote getter will be awarded the one-year seat.

Petitions for the seats are now available at the district offices, and must be returned by April 13, signed by 30 qualified voters.

County looks at Jericho Bridge

by Patricia Dumas

Albany County will finance an engineering study to determine what should be done to put the Jericho Bridge into working order. The bridge, which carries Jericho Rd over the Conrail Melkirk Yard was closed a year ago.

The study was promised last week by Harold L. Joyce, majority leader of the county legislature, in partial response to efforts by Bethlehem legislators to have the county share the cost of repairing or replacing the bridge. A resolution asking for that kind of commitment was referred to the legislature's Law and Finance committees.

Introduced by Bethlehem Republican Legislators Robert W. Hoffmeister and James C. Ross, the resolution asked for the engineering study and also would have directed that the bridge be placed on priority status for federal, state and county share funding.

But Joyce made it clear that the county was not ready to pledge any share funding despite a statement earlier this year by County Executive James Coyne saying that he would support such financing.

Officials agree that the bridge is unsafe for public use, but they dispute whether Conrail or the county should be responsible for reopening it. The estimated cost for replacement is $5 million, and for repairs, $500,000.

The Ross-Hoffmeister resolution pointed out that the economic stability and health and safety of the community previously served by the bridge has been severely affected.

A delegation of 50 people from the bridge area attended last week's session of the county legislature to back the resolution. Some carried signs asking for for county aid and calling attention to business losses and health hazards which have resulted from the bridge closing. Hoffmeister explained that emergency vehicles now have to use longer alternate routes when responding to calls and that businesses in the area have lost trade because of re-routed customers.

The legislature unanimously passed a companion measure introduced by Ross, Hoffmeister and Charles E. Houghtaling of Feura Bush which memorialized Congress to enact legislation that would provide funding for rehabilitation and replacement of bridges and highways in Albany County under provisions of a federal aid program. The resolution has no force under law.

In other action at its meeting last week, the county legislature approved four measures related to the $42.5 million county civic center, which in in early construction stages.

A 10-year contract was approved with A.R.A. Leisure Services, Inc. of Philadelphia for operating food and beverage concessions at the 15,000-seat center. The firm has agreed to spend $1 million to equip and operate the service facilities, and guarantees a $750,000 minimum yearly payment to the county based on attendance at center-held events.

Six Republicans - Ross, Hoffmeister and Minority Leader W. Gordon Morris, Jr. of Bethlehem and Kenneth S. MacAffer, Jr., Robert G. Prentiss and Peter D. Ryan of Colonie - voted against the contract award.

Morris noted that three firms from Philadelphia had been awarded major civic center contracts and questioned whether other firms were considered for the food and beverage service. Joyce said none of the other proposals could match the A.R.A. guarantee.

□ Connolly-LaFave rematch

up on the New Scotland ballot this fall.

LaFave did not return several phone calls to her law office on Monday and Tuesday. Democratic Party Chairman Thomas Dolin said LaFave told him she is still unsure of her plans.

"I would suspect she would be running, Dolin said Tuesday, noting that LaFave will be the incumbent in the race and the party would be willing to back her.

The Republican Committee of New Scotland endorsed Connolly earlier this month. Chairman John Graziano said it was a two-way street for Connolly's endorsement because the committee asked him to run while Connolly was interested in the position.

"He is a very qualified person," Graziano said. "His credentials are outstanding and we are proud to be able to offer a candidate with his record and reputation."

The endorsement for office was given this early because Connolly is a sitting judge, and political campaigns by judges are governed by strict rules. If Connolly started campaigning without the endorsement, he said, it could be construed as a violation of state laws.

Connolly was defeated in his bid for reelection to the town justice post in 1983 after serving for one term in what some called a stunning defeat. LaFave was newly admitted into the state bar, and had mounted an ambitious mail and door-to-door campaign. Since her election, she has maintained a high visibility.

Since that defeat, Connolly headed the town's Republican Committee for a short time and then resigned last year to run for Voorheesville village justice. In the past year, he has been active in the Voorheesville Concerned Citizens, the group fighting the proposed Larned mine at the Tall Timbers country club site. If elected, Connolly said, he will be able to legally preside over both courts and expects no difficulties because they don't conflict in timing. Connolly said he would get more experience as a justice sitting on both benches.

Connolly said a number of people had approached him in the past four years and asked him to run again because the race was so close.

"I'm pleased," he said of his candidacy. "I'm looking forward to (the race). I think I can bring a lot to the job."

Meanwhile, eight other New Scotland seats will be up for election this fall, including supervisor, now held by Republican Stephan Wallace; town clerk, now held by Republican Corinne Cossac; highway superintendent, now Republican Peter Van Zetten; two town board seats, held by Democrat Kenneth Tice and Republican Wyman Osterhaut;

Clayton A. Bouton Junior-Senior High School students line up to register before Friday's Cystic Fibrosis Dance-A-Thon. About 50 to 60 students raised $2,600 between 3 and 11 p.m., topping last year's total by several hundred dollars. Students Lisa DeAngelis and Jason DePasquale each won a television for the most money raised. The event was sponsored by the Key Club, with some help from the New Scotland Kiwanis.

Patricia Mitchell

tax collector, held by Republican Edita Probst; and two county legislator seats, held by Democrat Charles Houghtaling and Republican Michael Ricci.

The Democratic Party has no commitments for candidates, Dolin said, but he is trying to get a full slate for the race. Committee members have been meeting informally, and he hopes to have an announcement by April 1. However, Dolin said the party will ask Tice to run again, and Houghtaling is also expected to run.

"I'm trying to get a strong candidate for supervisor," Dolin said.

For the Republicans, Graziano said most incumbents said they are interested in running again, but he is not sure everyone will be running or what changes will be made. Not all incumbents have spoken before the Republican Committee and said they are interested, he said. The committee plans on announcing its slate for the fall election by April 15.

District checks for asbestos, radon

by Patricia Mitchell

Environmental concerns dominated last Monday's Voorheesville Central school board, with reports on asbestos and radon in the schools.

Some asbestos has been found in the chlorination room for the high school's swimming pool. This asbestos was not removed when asbestos was investigated and supposedly all removed about two years ago. Superintendent Louise Gonan said asbestos had been removed from the boiler rooms and much of the piping at both schools, but it was not removed from a condensate pipe in the chlorination room.

The piping where the asbestos has been found is not in a student area, Gonan said, and she doesn't think the area vents throughout the rest of the high school, but that will be checked.

Board President John McKenna said it is very annoying and troublesome to be told there is some asbestos left, because the school board had been assured they had seen the last of it. He said he doesn't know how the asbestos could have been missed during previous surveys.

Some work is needed on the piping in the chlorination room, but before that can be done, Gonan said, the asbestos will have to be investigated. If it is flaking, it will have to be removed and if not it will be encapsulated by sealing it. If the asbestos is flaking and able to become air born, it could cost $35,000. to remove and reinsulate 110 feet of piping.

Both buildings will be surveyed again to check for asbestos to make sure it has been all removed, Gonan said.

Turning to recent radon testing, the board learned that the state Education Department has advised the school district to look into two areas where some high readings of radon had been found. The Health Department is recommending a year's testing of both schools. McKenna said two areas at the high school tested slightly high: an under-floor area where pipes run tested between four and nine picocuries, and a restricted work area tested between 40 and 50 picocuries.

"All numbers were very low. We will continue to monitor it," McKenna said.

Students do not use either area and only maintenance workers are allowed. McKenna said the district will probably have workers take some precautions when going into the areas.

The Health Department has no standards for results of three-day canister tests for public buildings, and Gonan said state officials seemed very much in doubt over what the readings meant for the schools. Even so, she said, the department recommended just testing for a year without taking mitigation steps.

Some school board members questioned the results of the radon testing and the Health Department's role. Peter Ten Eyck III called radon testing "chemical McCarthyism." Referring to a public meeting on radon at the high school in December, Joseph Fernandez questioned what the district should be protecting from. Fernandez said the Health Department "messed up" and put out a brochure on mitigation when there isn't any scientific evidence of effects on radon, but only policy. Health Department officials, he said, even disagree at what level of readings steps should be taken.

"It was not at all clear the Health Department had a handle on it," Fernandez said.

In other school board business, elementary school Principal Donna Grant Canavan was granted tenure in her position, which she has held for three years. Gonan said she "heartily" recommended Canavan for the position, and she is pleased with the way the elementary school is running.

The school board also learned that the first session of the Effective Teaching Model, an in-service training program in its first year at the district, was very successful, Canavan said. After taking part during the recent winter vacation, the 25 teachers and two principals came back with a positive feeling. Gonan said the program is intended to make good teachers better by refocusing their direction.

The Voorheesville Central school board also:

- Learned that information on kindergarten registration has been sent to 102 potential kindergarteners.

- Awarded a sabbatical leave to Frank Faber for the spring of 1988.

- Approved use of the soccer fields from Aug. 17 to 21 for use by the North American Soccer Camp, as long as the New Scotland Soccer Club sponsors the camp. Board members also stipulated that camp goers would not have to buy a ball for $25.

- Tabled a request from the Helderberg Business and Professional Women's Club for use of the high school on Nov. 21 for a craft fair until parameters of the fair could be worked out. Board members were concerned about the amount of people the event brings in and the backing up of the septic system that occurred last November when the fair and athletic events were held on the same day.

The school board will hold a public meeting on the preliminary 1987-88 budget at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, March 25, and is scheduled to adopt the budget after the meeting. The next regular meeting of the school board will be Monday, April 13, at 7:30 p.m.

Researching the Elephant

The Elephant

Oh, the elephant, least of the wild,
Large, standing there with what
looks like a smile,

The elephant
With it's many features Looks like a giant, king of all creatures

The legs,
Round and thick, like four strong posts

The ears Making shadows like big round ghosts

The head
Standing high with a trunk down below
With forty thousand muscles that could knock you with one blow

The tusks
Sticking out like overgrown teeth

The skin
Gray and rough, not a comfortable seat

They are so kind and such friends to each other,

If one falls behind, then another,
then another

His diet
Enough to feed a whole army
His cousins
Mammoth, mastodon, what a family!

The elephant
Oh! he just loves to swim

A whole farmer's crop is nothing to him

Oh, the elephant, beast of the wild

Large, standing there with what
looks like a smile.

Student: Jonathan Getnick

Elephants

An elephant is a common name for a mammal
It is the largest living land animal.
It's trunk is an extension of the nose
It can be used as an arm or hose.
Indian and African elephants are very tall
And too big to walk down the hall.
Elephants have average hearing and poor sight
With their four molar teeth they bite.
African elephants chew thick roots
But the Indian likes to chew bamboo shoots.
A wounded elephant will put you in danger.
You would feel scared as with a stranger.

Student: Cara Nolan

Elephants

Elephants are the largest animal on land.
They are very tall when they stand.
Their hairs grow about an inch apart.
Their tusks can strike like a dart.
Their relatives are very old.
But their memories we still hold.
They serve man very well.
They entertain as we can tell.

March

The month of March, I like it so much,
The whole world must even the Dutch.
I like to see if it comes in with a "Bamb."
If it does it will go out like a lamb.
The month of March is when spring begins
It is also when we stop getting cold winds.

The Sweet Older Lady and Me

Once there was a nice older lady who I liked a lot. She was very nice.
I would always help her with everything. I thought of her as my best friend. I don't know what she thought of me. Sometimes she takes me out to get ice cream. We like to go see her friends. We go see mine too. By the way, her name is Maggie. She is so sweet and kind to me. I wish she could live with me for the rest of her life.

Weather

The wind has a lot of flights
It blows so many kites
But when it blows it stings my nose and then it snows
It hurts my toes
And when it goes
I am glad everyone knows.

The Foggy Day

On a foggy day in March
I saw a color in the sky
It was shining through my window and it turned into a star and I made a wish
It came true
and I never saw the star again.

Why I Like March

I like March because it is the start of Spring. I also like March because it stops snowing and there are winds. I like having winds so you can fly a kite. Sometimes March is cold, so it is a good time to get a good book and sit by the fire and read.

Signs of the times

Service at Grand Union comes in many forms. It means everything from having us bag your groceries to giving you custom cuts from our butcher. We also believe it means taking a responsible position and informing you of health related issues as it pertains to food. For example, our customer research said the today's shopper wants to know more about the products they buy. We listened! And we responded by developing another service—a clear, concise, informational signage system that tells you things you want to know about the products we carry for you. It's just one of the many little things we'll do to make your shopping easier. Grand Union cares about you.

HELLO...NYSERNet?

On those days when all the pieces don't fit together, wouldn't it be nice to know that you could call upon a network of people and their computers to help you solve the puzzle? With help from New York Telephone, this network may soon be a reality.

In January 1987, a high-speed, data communications trial network, developed, constructed and operated in part by New York Telephone, made its debut. The New York State Education and Research Network, or NYSERNet for short, taps a wealth of available New York State educational resources. The network will eventually link professors, researchers and students with computers and data bases at Brookhaven National Laboratory and 14 New York universities.

When fully operational, the new network will allow the academic world to access huge amounts of data and exchange information with each other quickly and easily. Although assisting the scholar and the researcher is NYSERNet's primary goal, the network will also benefit the medical and business world. In the future, doctors may be able to consult instantly with colleagues across the state and business-people may reliably share information through teleconferencing.

CHP offers surgery

Community Health Plan has announced the opening of a new Ambulatory Surgery Center at its Latham Health Center.

The center, the first free-standing surgery center in New York State that is not part of a hospital, is one part of the Latham Health Center's "Phase III" expansion. The total addition, covering approximately 10,000 sq. ft., also includes a wing for family practice, ENT, audiology and dermatology.

The Ambulatory Surgery Center was conceived and designed with a three-fold purpose: to allow CHP surgeons and physicians complete control over the care and access to their patients; to aid in lowering operational costs to the plan; and to meet the comfort needs of surgery patients and their families.

The center, covering 4,000 to 5,000 square feet of the new Phase III wing, contains three operating suites, an eight-bed recovery unit, including a two-bed pediatric recovery room; patient changing and locker areas; work rooms and storage areas; and a large, airy waiting room. The CHP pharmacy, located in the Health Center, has dedicated a pharmacist to serve the new Surgery Center. Anesthesia is provided by Schenectady Anesthesia Associates.

The Ambulatory Surgery Center is equipped to provide surgical services for orthopedics, ophthalmology, gynecology, ENT, urology, dental and general surgery. Surgical procedures performed will include only those that can be completed in a single day, and allow the patient to recover so as to return home the same day.

Eagles win council championship

by Charles Henrikson

Bethlehem Central is the Suburban Council boys volleyball champion. The team played an excellent tournament last Thursday and Friday, going in as the second seed and emerging as number one.

The first day of the tournament was divisional play, with the field broken into halves according to seedings. BC rolled over Columbia in two fairly easy games, and then defeated Shaker in a closer match. Paul Evangelista deserves special mention, as he filled in for a missing starter in the first day of the tournament. Ken Malsan also saw some playing time.

Division competition was completed during the second day, in which BC knocked off Gunderland in two fairly close games. Shenendehowa, the number one seed going into the tournament, was beaten by Colonie in divisional play.

The semifinals were next. BC, the only team to go undefeated in divisional play, faced Shenendehowa, because of that team's loss. The first game did not go well for BC, as the Eagles lost 15-12. BC managed to reverse this score in the second game with a 15-12 win. Then BC got on a great roll, played very well, according to coach Ray Sliter, and buried the Plainsmen, 15-4. Shenendehowa had been seen by BC as the major stumbling block on the way to the sectional crown.

The final was against Colonie. The first game seemed to indicate a sure ending, as BC won 15-4. But the Eagles then went into a serious slump, seemingly unable to do anything right, and lost 15-5. The title had BC's name on it, however, as the Eagles clinched the crown with a final 15-5 score.

Senior co-captain Pete Russo was the only BC player to be named to the All-Tournament team. He has been one of the top players for BC all season, and had a very good tournament. BC has been a team of six all year, and so picking one or two BC players to be singled out is very difficult.

Coach Sliter was very pleased with the play of his team throughout the season and especially in the tournament. The other co-captain, Doug Pratt, had a marvelous tournament, setting the course for the win. Bill Liddle was his own steady self, contributing greatly. Mark Richter missed the first day of the tournament, but finished the season up strong against Shenendehowa and Colonie. Toby Dunmore added a lot to the success of the team, and Steve Ainsworth gets the Most Improved award for the team, as he went from a bench player to a valuable starter through the course of the season. Paul Evangelista and Ken Malsan also contributed greatly from the bench, being ready and able to play whenever help was needed.

Just for the record, the regular season ended earlier in the week, before the sectional tournament. BC beat both Scotia and Columbia, thus ending the regular season with a 14-2 record, second in the league behind Shenendehowa,

Spotlight SPORTS

but first in the Blue division. The BC JV team also deserves some mention, as it ended the season 12-2, the best record in the Suburban Council.

By Tom Kuck

For Sale By Owner?

Every so often, a homeowner decides to try to sell his home on his own. Why? He thinks he'll save the commission, and gee, it's not so hard to sell a house.

It's not easy, though.

The would-be seller discovers that it takes a lot of research to set an asking price, and then he doesn't know if it was the right price. Ads have to be written—and paid for. Someone has to stick around to answer the phone in case a buyer calls, though no one can tell if that prospect is a serious buyer or just a looker. OR if he can afford to buy. And, to top it off, the prospective buyers think that THEY are going to save the commission. It's no wonder that 9 out of 10 would-be sellers give up and list with a broker.

Smart sellers list with a broker right away. They get the professional help they need and usually sell for a higher price. And it doesn't cost the seller a cent until the deal is closed.

Bethlehem police car damaged

A 27-year-old Albany man is being held in the Albany County Jail on several charges after a chase through North Bethlehem Sunday that resulted in damage to a Bethlehem police car, Bethlehem Police said.

Dale Meisner, 27, of Exchange St., Albany, has been charged with felony driving while intoxicated; first degree reckless endangerment, a class D felony; third degree escape, a misdemeanor; resisting arrest, a misdemeanor; and criminal impersonation, a misdemeanor, police said.

Police Officer Jefferey Vunck said he first spotted Meisner driving north on Rt. 85 in a tow truck at 59 miles an hour in a 40 mph zone at about 4 a.m. Sunday. When he was pulled over, Meisner gave Vunck a false name and address, and when Vunck placed him under arrest, Meisner pushed Vunck and sped off on Rt. 85.

Vunck and Police Officer Timothy Beebe followed Meisner north on Rt. 85, and after a brief chase, Meisner leaped out of his vehicle and went off on foot off Rt. 85, police said. However, the tow truck continued up Rt. 85 until it started to roll backwards, crossing the road and forcing Beebe's police car into a guard rail. The tow truck then went over the guard rail, its gas tank punctured, leaking gas under Beebe's police car, and then the gas burst into flames.

After extinguishing the fire and requesting aid from the Albany Police Department and the Albany County Sheriffs Department, Vunck and Beebe chased Meisner on foot. He was found by Albany Police at about 5 a.m.

Meisner was also ticketed for several traffic violations, and was arraigned before Bethlehem Town Justice Peter Wenger, police said. No one was hurt during the incident, police said.

2 found with drugs

Bethlehem Police said they have charged two Delmar youths with unlawful possession of marijuana.

The youths were charged after police said they received a report of a group of youths smoking drugs at the Slingerlands Elementary School at 4:30 p.m. Sunday. Police said they found a pipe and a quantity of marijuana on the two youths.

BC transportation requests due April 1

Knife incident probed

An Olympian Dr., Slingerlands man, reported he was robbed at knife point by an Albany man last Monday, Bethlehem Police said.

Police said they are continuing their investigation into the incident.

The Slingerlands man told police he met the man who attacked him in an Albany bar Sunday night, and the man offered to give him a ride home because he was too drunk to drive.

The next day, the Slingerlands man drove the man back to Albany, and after making several stops, they drove back to Slingerlands, where the man pulled a knife on the Slingerlands man and took about $200 in cash. Police said the Slingerlands man called a cab and went back down to Albany. After making several stops, they drove back to Slingerlands, where the Slingerlands man called another cab and the man left, police said.

Grand Union Prices

Editor, The Spotlight:

On February 4, your publication carried a Letter to the Editor which noted that since Grand Union's acquisition of the lease of the nearby Albany Public Market, "prices generally at the Grand Union in Elsmere have skyrocketed astronomically." That statement is simply not factual.

Even prior to Grand Union's action in assuming the Albany Public Market lease, our policy was and continues to be to match the low price natural market leader in direct competition with us in all areas in which we operate. Thus, as our competition moves upward or downward in prices, we follow.

We fortify our actions on pricing with a Consumer Price Finder which is available for inspection at our store office by any customer. It represents our pledge to consumers that we are now and will forever remain competitive on prices.

Analyzing this pricing structure, you can then see that "astronomical price increases" are impossible unless competition so moves, and no such moves have occurred in recent weeks although there have been normal price increases and decreases.

The tone of the letter which you carried seemed to state that since the Albany Public Market was closed, Grand Union was taking advantage of the situation and dramatically raising its prices to gouge customers. Categorically, that is not nor never will be the case. Frankly, any supermarket that attempts tactics such as those will quickly lose its customer loyalty .... and it should.

Grand Union has been in business for more than 115 years and our reputation and business has grown through that long period (the second longest in America's entire supermarket industry) through responsiveness to our customers, excellent operations and fair pricing. Our Grand Union Food Market in Elsmere is a superb example of the finest that our company has to offer and our customers have enthusiastically embraced our style of quality food retailing. We pledge to maintain price integrity as well as the full measure of quality, value and operations which Grand Union consumers have a right to expect.

From Hawaii

Editor, The Spotlight:

Aloha from Honolulu, Hawaii. I am writing this note to compliment the professional quality of The Spotlight. I have read the community newspapers of Honolulu but they do not compare to The Spotlight. Readers must understand that the writers of articles in The Spotlight capture the essence of life and share the love which exists within the Bethlehem community. The Feb. 11 article titled "Love and marriage: the middle years," by Lorraine C. Smith, is a prime example of this.

My friend and I read The Spotlight the instant it arrives at our doorstep in Hawaii. This newspaper is a special highlight of our lives because it reminds of the comfort of home and keeps us in touch with our friends. Also, it allows us to know what community members are doing to benefit the Bethlehem community's needs.

I miss the family life of Delmar, but The Spotlight creates those feelings for us in Honolulu. I am a program director for the YMCA of Honolulu and my friend Holly Mayfield is a physical therapist at a large hospital, Queens Medical Center, in Honolulu. We have been unseparated friends during our Bethlehem school years; now, we are roommates in Paradise.

My move to Hawaii was the biggest risk I have challenged myself to take. My strength and courage was due to inspiration from strong leaders who live in the Bethlehem community. Thank you for your inspiration, Mom, Dad, family members, Mr. Whipple, Rev. Larry Deyss, Delmar Presbys, Bethlehem swimmers, Bethlehem Tom Boys, Mr. Molyneaux, Bethlehem school teachers and coaches.

Friends, please write and let me know what you are doing with your life. God's gift to us is life but what we do with our lives is our gift back to God!

Honolulu is different. It is a spiritual place, where no race is a minority and tourists are welcome. Yet, Christmas in Hawaii is not like the snowy, family Christmas in the little town of Bethlehem.

Tamara S. Lynk

Heartworm alert

The Capital District Veterinary Society is urging all area dog owners to have their dogs rechecked by a veterinarian for heartworm infection before beginning a daily dosage of preventive medication.

Heartworm disease is passed from infected dogs to healthy dogs by at least three species of mosquitoes that are common to this area. In a newly-infected dog the heartworm larvae burrow under the skin and develop in the tissues for 90 to 120 days before penetrating the blood vessels and moving to the heart. The adult heartworms that live in the heart and adjacent blood vessels are often 10 to 14 inches in length.

A veterinarian can perform a blood test to determine whether or not a dog has heartworms present in the bloodstream. If none are found, daily or monthly medication can be prescribed to prevent the animal from developing the disease during the mosquito season.
