NiMo tax battle keeps on running

By Mel Hyman

Niagara Mohawk Power Corp., which recently lost a long, drawn-out legal battle with the town of Bethlehem over the property tax assessment on its Route 144 steam generating plant, is showing no signs of giving up the ghost.

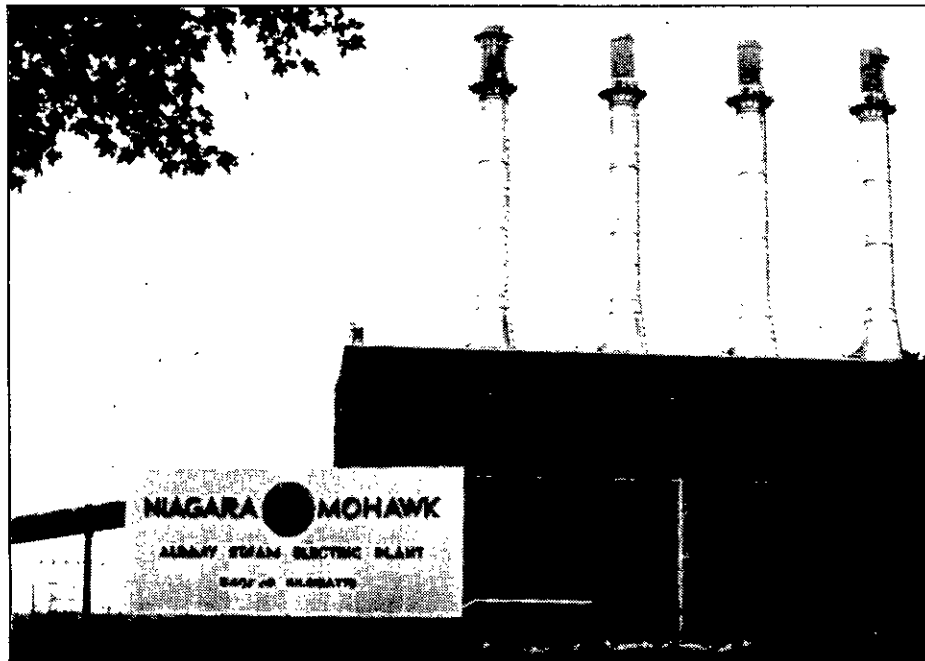

The company, which is the largest taxpayer in the town, has again signaled its intention to take court action to have its assessment drastically reduced.

If successful, NiMo's action could have devastating consequences for both the town and the Bethlehem Central School District, said Bernard Kaplowitz, town attorney.

The bulk of the company's annual tax payments on its steam generating plant go to the school district ($4,584,936 in 1995). The property last year contributed $1,380,601 to the town's general fund.

The town would be hard hit, Kaplowitz said, "But the effect would be horrific for the school district."

Since 1990, the company has repeatedly maintained that its steam generating facility, located on 270.4 acres near the Hudson River, is vastly overassessed.

NiMo claims its Route 144 steam plant is overassessed by more than $200 million. Elaine McLain

The property is currently assessed at $257,750,000, according to town assessor David Leafer, and the company is now seeking a reduction to about $46 million.

To date, the town and the school district have spent $371,043 in legal fees (split 50-50) defending its assessment figures. Two years ago they won a decision (covering 1990 to 1992) in state Supreme Court, which was upheld by the Appellate Court, which was upheld by the Appellate Court, which was upheld by the Appellate Court.

Fewer grieve assessments in Bethlehem

By Mel Hyman

The final property tax roll is set for the town of Bethlehem, and it appears that most taxpayers are satisfied with the results.

Only 138 property owners, representing 174 parcels, grieved their assessments this year with the town's assessment board of review.

Leafer

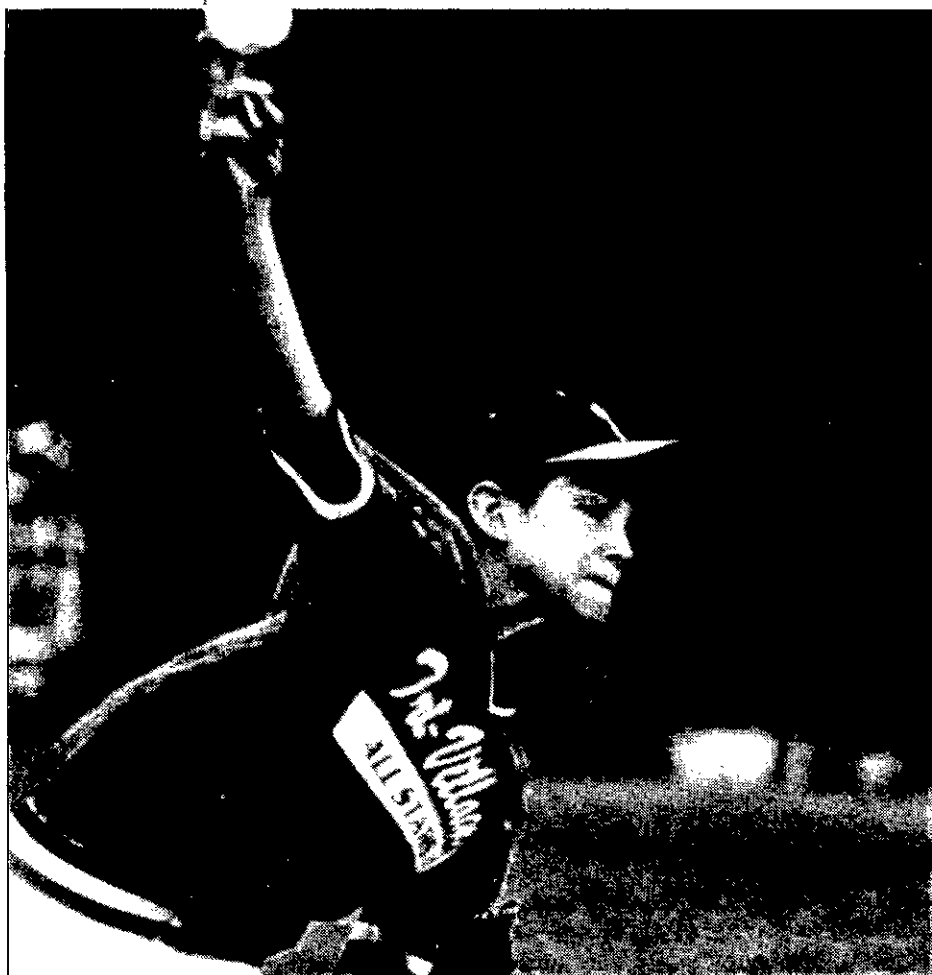

That's down from the 200 or so who filed grievances last year involving about 250 parcels, said town assessor Dave Leafer. The total number of taxable properties in the town is about 11,700.

"It's what I'd call a light year," Leafer said. "You would expect this kind of decline as you move away from the initial revaluation" that was completed in 1992.

Williams re-elected board president

By Dev Tobin

The Bethlehem Central school board attended to annual housekeeping chores at its organizational meeting last week.

The board re-elected Pamela Williams to serve as president, and chose Happy Scherer as vice president.

The board also approved the appointment of more than 40 teachers and other instructional staff, including two new half-teams at the middle school and an additional three teachers at the high school, needed to handle higher enrollment.

The board also approved the 1996-97 salary schedule for administrators, including $106,756 for Superintendent Leslie Loomis, $102,449 for Assistant Superintendent for Business Franz Zwicklbauer, and $97,319 for Assistant Superintendent for Curriculum and Instruction Judith Wooster.

Loomis said that the central office administrators' raise for next year was 2.5 percent.

The board also revised and extended Loomis' contract for another year, through June 1999.

Citizen group quick to target Orchard Street subdivision

A proposed 42-lot subdivision off Orchard Street in Delmar is generating the same kind of concern that has indefinitely delayed Delmar Village, an adjacent and far larger project.

Developers of the Phillipinkill subdivision had barely finished their preliminary presentation to the Bethlehem planning board last week when opposition surfaced from Bethlehem Citizens for Responsible Planning — the group that helped sidetrack the 220-unit Delmar Village project, also off Orchard Street, for 15 years.

Accountant tabbed for town IDA

By Mel Hyman

The newest member of the Bethlehem Industrial Development Agency wants to know why the town has come so close to landing major new industry, only to fall short when the final decision was made.

Frank Venezia, 42, of Glenmont was appointed to the five-member IDA recently by the Bethlehem town board.

While Venezia is upbeat about the town and the opportunities it offers investors, he'd still like to know "how close did we come, and what were the deciding factors" in the decision by GM/Super Steel to build a locomotive manufacturing plant in Scotia rather than Bethlehem.

Venezia, who is vice chairman of the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce, said he would like to see more activity generated by the town IDA, which has been relatively quiet since the early 1990s when it issued bonds for one of the largest industrial projects in the state's history — the Selkirk Cogen plant adjacent to GE PLastics off Route 32 in Selkirk.

At the same time, Venezia does not believe the town or the county should "give away the store," as some municipalities have been wont to do.

By offering developers "every inducement under the sun," he said, "All it does is create an unfair playing field, and in the long run, it's the taxpayers who lose out."

"We certainly have the ability and authority to do just about anything to attract new business, but that is not a regional approach, nor is it a cooperative approach." Venezia joins Joseph Richardson, Judith Kehoe, Bob Hendrick and Councilman Ted Putney on the IDA panel. He has been a resident of the town since 1976 and works as the director of accounting and auditing for Marvin & Co. in Albany.

Frank Venezia

He is a graduate of Rochester Institute of Technology, where he earned a bachelor's degree in accounting, and The College of Saint Rose where he earned a master's degree in accounting.

Putney, the IDA's chairman, said he's hopeful about seeing new applications for IDA-bonded projects once the town's master plan is adopted, since that will designate which areas of the town should be reserved for industry.

"We're also putting together a marketing plan in conjunction with the supervisor and the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce," he added.

Sprint Spectrum plans tower on Swift Road

By Dev Tobin

The next wave of cellular telephone technology, backed by a billion-dollar consortium, will offer higher-quality, more capable and more secure communications, but will need more towers than the current system, representatives of Sprint Spectrum L.P. told the New Scotland planning board last week.

But the physics of the higher-frequency digital service will require significantly more, albeit shorter, towers, including one in New Scotland.

Sprint Spectrum, with a local office in Latham, is seeking a special use permit from the planning board and several variances from the zoning board of appeals for a proposed 100-foot monopole tower on the site of the village of Voorheesville water tank off Swift Road.

Richard Brown of Sprint Spectrum said that the new system would "fulfill the earlier promise of cellular — hand-held, extended battery life, clearer signal and ability to receive and send digital messages such as faxes."

Brown said that towers for the new system need to be about 10 miles apart, so Sprint Spectrum is in the process of building dozens of towers for its planned coverage area of Orange County to Lake George (along Interstate 87) and Syracuse to Schodack in Rensselaer County (along I-90), including developed areas along those highways, like southern Albany County.

Philip Pearson of Clough Harbour Associates, a consultant to Sprint Spectrum, said that the village water tank site would be "least intrusive," noting there is already a public utility on the site and there are 60-to-70-foot trees around the tower that will minimize impacts to the viewshed.

Pearson presented photographs of red weather balloons 100 feet over the site from several angles, part of Clough Harbour's viewshed analysis.

Pearson said the analysis found a "fairly localized viewshed," adding that the balloons were not visible from the Helderberg Escarpment about three miles away.

Pearson noted that, since the tower is only 30 feet above the tree line, it need not have an aircraft warning light on top, according to Federal Aviation Administration guidelines.

The tower project needs height, lot size and setback variances from the ZBA, which will decide on those requests at its July meeting.

The planning board set a public hearing on the special use permit for its meeting on Aug. 6.

In other business, the board approved a special use permit for a pond proposed by Al Cook of Dunbar Hollow Road.

The board also agreed to withhold action on Timothy and Jeanine McCune's request for a special use permit for a two-family dwelling on Forest Drive.

The McCunes' architect Francis Cramer, noting that the design does not include a separate entrance for the proposed in-law living space, said that the couple would like to have the house considered a single-family.

Building Inspector Paul Cantlin said the in-law space as laid out, with a bathroom and kitchen, is a "complete dwelling unit," so the building is a two-family.

Planning board Chairman Robert Stapf suggested the architect meet with Cantlin to discuss how the design can be revised so that it is no longer a two-family house.

NS planners approve Troopers' substation

Parking, lighting and screening conditions seek to allay neighbors' concerns

By Dev Tobin

The New Scotland planning board unanimously approved a special use permit that will put a State Police substation on Route 32 near the intersection with Flat Rock Road, just south of Feura Bush.

At the board's June meeting and at a public hearing last week, neighbors had raised concerns about parking, traffic, noise, lighting, the potential for escaped criminals, impact on property values, and the commercialization of a residential zone.

State Police Capt. Robert Leffler attended last week's meeting, and said that escapes from a State Police station are "one-in-a-million," and that noise would not be a factor since, in most cases, the station's patrol cars would be dispatched to calls while on the road, well away from the station.

Leffler added that the new station will not be a dispatch center, so there will be no full-time civilian employees there.

The State Police will be leaving their Selkirk substation when the lease expires early next year, and are looking for a new patrol site closer to where most of its calls in southern Albany County are coming from — New Scotland and the Hilltowns.

"We looked for an advantageous site where we would not be duplicating the services of other police agencies," Leffler explained.

With the approval, the State Police will negotiate a 10-year lease with Gerald Robetoy, who was building a single-family house on the site before the State Police opportunity surfaced.

Board Chairman Robert Stapf outlined a series of stipulations, which Robetoy and Leffler agreed to, designed to lessen impacts on neighbors.

The stipulations include that all parking of police cars and employees' vehicles be behind the building; that the parking lot be screened on both sides by a line of pine trees from the back of the building to 25 feet past the end of the parking area; that lighting of the building, parking area and flagpole be directed so that it does not intrude on neighbors' property; and that there be no distinct parking area in front, just a wide semicircular drive.

We've taken the presence of law enforcement as a plus, a good thing.

William Childs

Board member William Childs told the neighbors that he lives near the sheriff's station on Route 85A and there has been "absolutely no problem — we've taken the presence of law enforcement as a plus, a good thing."

Stapf noted that a police station is a special use allowed in a residential zone, so Robetoy did not need a variance or zoning change and was essentially entitled to the permit.

But board member Robert Smith advised Robetoy that he would have to come back to the board for another permit and/or a variance for any future use other than a police station or a single-family residence.

Weather doesn't foul up Fourth

Rain didn't end Independence Day festivities at Elm Avenue Park on Thursday. Family Day at the park featured a chicken barbecue and entertainment from Cranberry the Clown. Fresh watermelon was also given out. A horseshoe tournament was canceled, a performance by the Theresa Burns Trio was postponed and other activities were moved indoors due to the rain. Not many people swam in the park's pools, but all who braved the weather to attend the special events enjoyed the holiday.

Habitat teens building more than just homes

By Katherine McCarthy

Summer vacation is here, but for 46 Bethlehem teen-agers, it will be hard to surpass what they accomplished during their spring school recess, when they boarded a train for Homestead, Fla., to build houses under the aegis of Habitat for Humanity.

This was the third year in a row that the Reformed, Presbyterian and Methodist church youth groups in Delmar have traveled south to work on housing projects. Last year, the group went to West Virginia, and the year before, they were in Miami, still suffering from the effects of Hurricane Andrew, with trailers serving as schools in many places.

Led by Nancy Hallock of Delmar, the group first set about raising the $100 per person they contributed to the project, as well as the $155 train fare, and the cost of renting passenger vans in Florida.

Church bake sales and a lasagna dinner served the dual purpose of funding the trip and giving the kids a chance to get to know each other. Recent Bethlehem Central High School graduate Shannon Cornelius said there was real "unity in the group."

This was Cornelius' third year building houses. It has been such a positive experience for her that when she enters St. Lawrence University in the fall, she plans to become involved Habitat for Humanity there.

"It's such an easy thing to do," she said. "It doesn't require a lot physically, and it's a real learning experience."

Erin Virgil, who went for the first time this year, said it was amazing "how quickly you can learn. It's an incredible feeling when you get up and say, 'I'm going to build a house today.'"

Habitat volunteers are split up into different teams, working along with other volunteers and future homeowners themselves.

Cornelius said that the site foreman coordinated the volunteers, providing instruction where necessary.

Erin Virgil drills some nails into one of the Habitat homes in Florida.

Hallock added that there's always someone to train the workers, and no one is forced to do anything.

Habitat for Humanity is a not-for-profit organization that partners with families to build low-income housing for ownership. Habitat relies on donated services, supplies, labor and cash.

The families chosen for the Habitat program put in a certain number of hours building either their house or a neighbor's, and pay a principal-only mortgage. The funds from this mortgage are used to help build other houses.

Trafton Drew, another first-timer, seemed surprised at how quickly his attitude changed.

"I wasn't sure how much work there was to do," he said. "We weren't forced to do anything, we got to choose. I didn't really want to work at first, but you see people building, and you want to be a part of it."

Doug Lloyd, a recent graduate of BCHS, has developed a specialty during his three years of Habitat volunteering: he works on trusses, the triangular braces that support the roof.

On his second day of work this year, Lloyd helped build nine trusses. No light laborer, he operated drill presses and saws.

"I really got into it," he said. "We made double what we did last year."

Lloyd and Cornelius reminisced happily about past trips.

On every job, the volunteers leave a little bit of themselves behind, often in the form of a "house blessing," a message they write on a part of the house that will be covered. Lloyd grinned, remembering his crew's message, "In God we trust."

Like Cornelius, Lloyd is considering further involvement with Habitat for Humanity.

"I like to build houses, and I want to help out," he said. "Working for Habitat might be a good break, and a way to earn money for college."

On the Homestead project, students got to meet some of the future homeowners as they put in their required 500 hours of work.

"Their families opened right up," Cornelius said. "There was no sense of pity anywhere." She added that it was a real plus to see that their work would have a positive effect.

Hallock said she had particularly wanted the kids to see a different place than Delmar. "It opens your eyes to the world around you," Cornelius said.

Hallock said she had been surprised at how much was accomplished the first year that she led a house-building trip.

"Now I've come to expect it," she said. "Teen-agers are my favorite people. They can do things that people don't expect. This is especially rewarding for young adults, who are still learning what they can do."

Most important, she added, "It's a new way to put their faith into action. It means a lot when they can actually help people."

The workers also had to have faith in themselves. "It was amazing at the end," Cornelius said. "We sat in the window holes of a completed house, trusting our own structure."

A structure that seems pretty solid, indeed.

Youngsters invited to create own games

School-aged children interested in learning and playing games, as well as inventing their own, can participate in the Bethlehem Public Library's "Game Club," which meets at the library at 451 Delaware Ave. in Delmar each Friday, beginning July 12, from 2 to 4 p.m.

Short comedy films will also be shown at the club meetings.

For information, call 439-9314.

Volunteer gardeners welcome at preserve

The Five Rivers Environmental Education Center at 56 Game Farm Road in Delmar will hold a work session in the wildlife garden on Wednesday, July 10, from 9:30 a.m. to noon. Volunteers may bring their own tools and gloves.

Refreshments will be served. Volunteers should dress appropriately.

For information, call 475-0291.

The Frederick Kelley Estate to go on the Auction Block

On Sunday, July 14th at 11:00 a.m. the Albany Auction Gallery will sell the contents of the Frederick Kelley Estate of Loudonville, NY. "This will probably be the Finest Auction held in upstate New York this year," according to Gallery co-owner Joan Bohl. Estates of this quality are becoming quite rare. Besides 4 signed Tiffany Lamps and Walter Launt Palmer paintings there is a fantastic Silver, European & American Art, French and American Furniture, Clocks, Oriental Carpets, WWI Posters, Orientalia Garden furniture and Decorative Accessories. "There are things in this sale that any auction gallery in the world would be thrilled to sell," states Mrs. Bohl.

Mr. Kelley was a well known Capital District personage for most of this century. After graduating from Cornell University with degrees in Mechanical Engineering, he worked in the family cement business before becoming a trust officer at Key Bank. His civic activities were many. He was on the board of the Albany Institute of History and Art, the Schyler Meadows Club, The Cornell Club. He was Director of the Vermont Railroad and the Trinity Institute.

Also in this sale is property from the Curtin Estate, former owners of the Troy Record and a local Physician of international renown.

There are over 40 Antique Oriental Rugs in the sale from the Kelley, Curtin and several other estates.

There will be a preview from 3 days prior to sale date.

Matters of Opinion

Switch tactics, NiMo

Niagara Mohawk Power Corp.'s request to have its assessment on its Route 144 plant in Bethlehem reduced by $211 million is outrageous. The company is essentially asking to have its tax assessment lowered to one-sixth of its current valuation of $257 million.

The last time NiMo went to bat for a reduced assessment in Bethlehem, it lost and so did the town. The town and the school district spent $371,043 in legal fees fighting the Goliath of the utility industry, and will now likely go through the same thing all over again. Nobody wins, everybody loses.

But should NiMo win this time around, the effect would be even more devastating to the town than staggering legal bills. Bethlehem would lose $1,132,000 in annual tax revenue and the school district even more, a whopping $3,729,000.

Even if NiMo gets only a portion of what it is asking for, the town and in particular its other business and residential taxpayers will have to bear the brunt of what can only be construed as a windfall for NiMo, which of late has been crying poor mouth throughout the region and in all too many cases getting away with it.

It seems NiMo deals with municipalities much the same way it deals with its individual customers — heavily-handedly. Utility bills soar, yet there is no recourse for its customers, no other act in town or any place else to turn to. Little wonder NiMo is viewed as a big bad guy, when it fits the role so well.

Get real NiMo. Why not approach the town with something remotely reasonable? How about a compromise? Plug into that idea.

Good news from Good Sam

Last week, Good Samaritan Homes conducted two groundbreaking in Delmar. The formal event included expected dignitaries, and the informal groundbreaking featuring residents of Good Sam.

The new $13 million project will include independent living facilities, an adult home and a skilled nursing home.

This is good news indeed for area senior citizens. The more options seniors have means a better quality of life for them. And "Good Sam" has an excellent track record of providing high-quality services to those who live in or use their facilities in any way.

Even with Good Sam's new venture and the new Marie Rose senior housing project, there are not enough options for middle and low-income seniors in Bethlehem. Town officials should begin to investigate housing possibilities for its seniors, so that they are not "driven out of town" in their golden years because there was "no room for them at the inn."

Hang tough on reform

Workers' compensation reform is a notable sticking point holding up final passage of the latest state budget ever.

Now that the budget process has taken us past July 4 for a record that no one will envy, it's time for Gov. Pataki to stand firm about workers' compensation reform.

Assembly Speaker Sheldon Silver is in favor of some reform but balks at complete overhaul. He needs to be reassured that total reform will only benefit workers and not reap profits for big business.

Silver and others have to know that high workers' compensation premiums help no one, particularly deserving workers.

Since their infamous showing of budget-making this spring and summer, legislators can't damage themselves any more, so now's the time they can reap some glory by using this time lost on the budget to ensure solid workers' compensation reform.

A fresh air blast from the past

By Martin P. Kelly

The writer is managing editor of the Colonie Spotlight and the Loudonville Weekly.

Last week, the first 31 Fresh Air Fund youngsters arrived at St. Pius Church X in Loudonville from New York City for a two-week vacation at the homes of local families, carrying on a program that began in 1877.

This project grew from a small idea when Rev. Willard Parsons convinced his parishioners to provide country vacations as volunteer host families for children from New York City tenements.

When the New York Herald Tribune took up the cause in 1884, a not-for-profit Fresh Air Fund was established which permitted private contributors to help provide these vacations.

First-time visits to host families are set up for boys and girls, 6 to 12 years of age, for a two-week vacation. They are children from low-income families, usually receiving some sort of public assistance.

Someone standing on a rail station in Hartford, Conn., in early July 1936 would have seen a line of children who just disembarked from the train and were waiting for the host families to read the tags tied to their shirts.

One young lad was particularly nervous as it was his first time away from home and his shyness made him appear overly timid. Soon, a woman who might have been a model for a farm wife in a Norman Rockwell illustration stood before the youngster. She took his tag in her hand and then called down the line, "Here he is, here's ours!"

In a matter of seconds, a man with a smile that lightened his severe face and a boy the New York lad's age were shaking his hand.

Minutes later, the young New Yorker was sitting in a big Dodge touring car, the likes of which he had only seen in gangster movies.

Point of View

Here, it was a vehicle for a family that laughed quite easily and made the visiting youngster feel at ease.

This family — appropriately named Smith — lived on a farm about one-half mile from Windham. Actually, the father worked in a bank in nearby Willimantic while his wife and children tended the small farm.

It wasn't long before the surprise and wonder of the place was replaced by the New Yorker's natural curiosity and boyish enthusiasm. It was quite a departure from the tenement he shared with his immigrant parents and two brothers in New York, where his disabled father did janitor work while the city's home relief program supplemented the family's meager income.

The second day on the farm, the rambunctious tenement kid fell into the pig sty, testing the patience of the hostess faced with a child covered in mud. When introduced to the game of croquet, he had to be cautioned not to take a stickball swing.

The family wasn't Catholic, but they made sure the New Yorker who was at altar boy at home got to a Catholic church on Sunday. He rode with a neighboring family who took him and their two young daughters to the church.

Trips to a nearby lake for swimming was topped by a stop at a countryside ice cream stand that had waffle cones, the first the youngster had seen or tasted.

The family wasn't Catholic, but they made sure the New Yorker who was at altar boy at home got to a Catholic church on Sunday. He rode with a neighboring family who took him and their two young daughters to the church.

If love is possible at the age of 11, the young New Yorker was its victim, smitten with the girl his age in the neighboring family. Sitting next to her at church made him feel awkward because of his confusion about his feelings.

He hoped that she noticed him and one Sunday she couldn't help it. With extra strenuous Saturday activity, the heat in the church and the pastor's long sermon, the New Yorker dozed off and slid off the church bench.

As he picked himself up, he noticed the mother trying to stop the girls from laughing.

Years later, as the tenement youngster was growing up, he would remember fondly the two summers spent with this family and the anxiety he felt when the farm was hit by the hurricane that swept New England in 1938.

The experiences gave the young man a different view of life as lived by others and the confidence he attained by being accepted for himself.

The work ethic of the Smith family and the pleasure they found in each other's company remained with him throughout wartime service and eventual college matriculation and a career where he would deal closely with all sorts of people in all walks of life.

As he moved through life, he didn't forget the the people who were so kind to him. He also understood better the strength it took for his parents to share him with strangers, knowing the Fresh Air family could briefly give him more than they could.

He also remembers walking along a stone fence with the farm boy and stepping into a hornet's nest. The two of them ran across the field to the farmhouse where the boy's mother gathered them into her arms and hushed their crying, while applying ointment on the numerous bites.

The two boys were put to bed to rest from the ordeal. Hours later, the New Yorker awoke to the most marvelous aroma of a cake baking and quickly made his way to the kitchen.

There, this wonderful woman had baked a yellow cake and covered it with thick, creamy chocolate frosting, all the while also making peach ice cream.

Now, 60 years later, I can still close my eyes and taste that comforting cake and enjoy the smooth coolness of the fresh ice cream.

Community attitudes disheartening

Editor, The Spotlight:

I had only to read the first page of the June 26 Spotlight to become disheartened by some of the attitudes in our community. It seemed that there was an overabundance of concern regarding the Christmas tree in the library, while at the same time we championed police presence in our schools.

As for the tree in the library, just call it a holiday tree and keep the ornamentation secular. Better yet have the students from our schools make the decorations for it. Almost everyone likes to see their work on display, and this might encourage some students to come to the library.

The tree is a representation of that time of year we set aside for festivity, merriment and wishing good cheer and good health to others in the new year to come. Since when is this offensive or in violation of anyone's rights?

It is time we stop being guided by the neurosis of political correctness and understand that the majority of us are taxpaying citizens, all with our own opinions and all entitled to something for our tax dollars. We cannot all be satisfied all of the time, and historically the American way has been the majority rules.

I find the constant presence of the police in our schools a far more egregious matter. Although my daughter is not in the Bethlehem system, as a taxpayer, I find it shameful that the school district is so out of control, so lacking in standards, so inconsequential to aberrant behavior that we need the police to maintain civility and to promote the educational process.

I also question the credentials of the police officers to be counselors beyond the expertise already available through school administrators, teachers, guidance counselors, social workers, school psychologists, special education teachers, school nurses and others.

Up to this point, the program may have worked because of the professionalism and ethics of officers McMillen and Rinaldi, but what happens when an "eager beaver" officer uses the information he or she hears from students to promote his or her career? Is there an officer/student privilege as in attorney/client or doctor/patient privilege?

Also, from a practical standpoint, police in our schools take more salary dollars from the already overburdened tax till.

On any given day, the police station parking lot is as filled with police cars and SWAT vehicles as the Meadowlands lot is for a Rolling Stones concert. I realize this is necessary due to all the serial killers, drug lords and rapists carousing through the streets of Delmar.

In a utopian community, there would be no police department and all of our high school graduates would go to Ivy League universities and become world leaders in their field of expertise.

Certainly, this is not totally possible, but let us get as close as we can. Let police officers do their job from the police station. Replace the officers in the schools with discipline, respect and consequences for actions.

Resident urges library board to put tree back in lobby

Editor, The Spotlight:

I strongly urge the library board of trustees to continue the custom of displaying a Christmas tree with decorations in the library lobby.

As a person of the Jewish faith, I wish to state that I enjoy the sight of a well-decorated Christmas tree any place it is displayed. For that matter, a menorah looks good, too.

Why let a small group of people, who want to make an issue of this, destroy long-standing traditions which add beauty to the community at large for all to enjoy as they wish?

These same folks would impose their will by demanding that all decorations be removed from public grounds such as the White House and the state Capitol. Ridiculous!

Perhaps they should devote more energy to helping everyone enjoy the holiday season, rather than trying to impose their preference on us all.

Here's to bland, unadorned public buildings during the holidays — Bah, humbug!

Matters of Opinion

Record supports bringing back tree

Editor, The Spotlight

This is an effort to expand upon the information published to date in The Spotlight on the Christmas decorations in the library.

In the library, there is a book titled "Dictionary of American Politics." In it, the phrase "separation of church and state" is defined as follows:

"An historic policy, embodied in the First Amendment to the constitution and in many state constitutions, which forbids public establishment and financial support of any religious confession, religious organizations being regarded as voluntary associations which, although enjoying the privilege of tax exemption, must seek support from their own members and not from the public treasury."

The Delmar Progress Club is a self-supported non-religious public service organization.

A recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling on religious symbols on public property reversed, on the principle of equal access, that a federal appeals court ruling forbidding the display of a creche on a town green by a religious organization. Yet the court did give local governments a way out of future controversies by granting them the right to ban unattended displays across the board.

In the book "All About Christmas" by Maymie R. Krythe, there is a chapter on the origin and spread of the custom of decorating trees. Noted therein are accounts of tree decorating from prehistoric times to the present for the purpose of worshiping everything from nature to life triumphant over death and to Christ. Nowadays decorated trees are used in great numbers for Christmas decorations in churches, clubs, government buildings, business houses, schools and public thoroughfares.

In the "Library Bill Of Rights" as adopted by the American Library Association, there are the following:

"Libraries should cooperate with all persons and groups concerned with resisting abridgement of free expression and free access to ideas."

"Libraries which make exhibit spaces and meeting rooms available to the public they serve should make such facilities available on an equitable basis, regardless of the beliefs or affiliations of individuals or groups requesting their use."

The Bethlehem Public Library board of trustees adopted a library display and exhibit policy in May 1990 and re-approved the policy in June 1995. Among the provisions of this policy are the following:

"Display and exhibit space is available to groups and individuals for educational, informational and cultural display purposes."

"Display space, other than the community bulletin board, is not available for religious, money-raising, political or commercial purposes."

Beginning with November 1994, minutes of the library board of trustees that deal with holiday decorations read as follows:

Oct. 16, 1995 — "The Delmar Progress Club's holiday decorations in the library were discussed and the board confirmed the previous decision to limit decorations and lighting."

Nov. 13, 1995 — "Mrs. (Susan) Birkhead (board president) reported on the receipt of two letters from local residents concerned with holiday decorations."

Jan. 17, 1996 — "Mrs. Birkhead sent letters to patrons concerning the library's display policy. The matter will be addressed with the Progress Club in the spring."

On April 15, 1996, a group consisting of some 600 Bethlehem residents submitted a petition to the library's board of trustees voicing concern about the virtual elimination of traditional holiday decorations in the library.

Minority has upper hand in banning holiday tree

Editor, The Spotlight:

To the best of my knowledge, the complaint of one person, or perhaps a few persons, was all that was needed to topple a Christmas tree tradition of some 40 years at the Bethlehem Public Library.

This happened in spite of the fact that a petition with some 600 signatures, in favor of continuing the tradition, was presented to the library board.

Now the same board that agreed with those few complainants has formed a committee of 17 persons to decide if we now should allow a Christmas tree with decorations to adorn the library.

Why was no committee formed last year to help the board with their decision to topple the tree? If the 40-year tradition is legal, do we really need a committee to decide its fate? Was the board sidestepping its responsibilities by only listening to the voices of the minority?

One suggestion that has already been voiced and which I support would be to have a holiday display area for celebrating all varieties of Christmas or holiday traditions.

Another would be letting the supporters of the library, the taxpayers, vote on the issue during the next library budget vote.

In the meantime, put the tree back up. If others want to join in with their holiday decorations let them. Santa, stay alert!

On another library matter

Editor, The Spotlight:

I am writing with regard to an article in the publication "Footnotes" of the Bethlehem Public Library.

The article on Page 5, entitled "Stinky Stories, Smelly Songs," describes a contest for the stinkiest sneakers to be judged by members of the community and library staff.

Upon contacting the cognizant individuals at the library, I apprised them of their lack of discretion and asked simply what useful purpose we are going to gain from an event like this. No one answered my question.

One party reminded me that the library staff were professionals and this had been done elsewhere and had been successful.

Our young people must by taught the truth; however, must we be so crass as to permit our institutions of learning to encourage mediocrity and to enlarge negativism for a cheap attempt to gain young people's attention?

I am sure our library staff can and should do much better.

Real workers' comp reform must end third-party suits

Editor, The Spotlight:

Richard Gurfein of the New York State Trial Lawyers Association correctly points out in the June 26 Spotlight Point of View that fraud in workers' compensation must be ferreted out in order to bring down the expense of this costly program.

His opposition to eliminating third-party lawsuits, however, is dead wrong.

Workers' compensation was started to cover workers injured on the job. By providing workers' comp, employers were to be shielded from lawsuits by employees.

The infamous Dole v. Dow case changed that by allowing employers to be sued by equipment manufacturers who have themselves been sued by an injured worker. Since then, every state but New York has moved to eliminate third-party lawsuits.

If third-party lawsuits were eliminated, injured workers would not lose out. They could still sue the manufacturer of unsafe equipment. New York farmers and other employers would save about 6.4 percent on workers' comp premiums or collectively more than $240 million—money that would be re-invested in the community or used to hire additional employees. It's no wonder the trial lawyers don't want to see the end of third-party lawsuits—they'd be the losers.

The goal of the Legislature should be to approve workers' comp reform that mirrors that introduced by Gov. George Pataki and passed by the Senate—a proposal that saves employers 25 percent while still giving workers solid protection.

Town streets need overhaul for safety of residents

Editor, The Spotlight:

Last week, there was a terrible accident that took the life of a young woman walking on a Bethlehem street.

Not having been at the scene, I can't say who was primarily responsible, but I can say who shares secondary responsibility.

Most streets in Bethlehem have no sidewalks. Many lack street lights. Cars routinely speed down residential streets. Traffic enforcement (off major arteries) is nonexistent. Stop signs are few and far between.

Because of a lack of sidewalks, children, joggers, walkers and bicyclists have to share the road with speeding cars. This is a recipe for disaster. There will be more accidents if measures are not taken soon by the town.

What would happen if someone who was injured by a vehicle on a town street sued the town for liability? This would, perhaps, make our town take a different approach toward pedestrian safety.

Delaware Avenue car wash will spruce up neighborhood

Editor, The Spotlight:

In reaction to the letter about the new car wash on Delaware Avenue being upsetting, I suggest that a visit to the East Greenbush location of the former Jiffy Lube will show Mr. Ross the quality job of enhancing the environment the new owners of the Delmar site will do.

As a matter of fact, a ride down

Delaware Avenue near the location in question makes me wonder what the other businesses that are there will do with their properties once the car wash is in operation.

This may be just the incentive they need to make an impact on the community.

'The voice is Jacob's but the hands are the hands of Esau.'

"We're stuck with Soviet-style politics in this place."

-- Assemblymember John J. Faso, quoted July 1.

The voice is John's, but the hands are George's.

Governor George Pataki, frustrated by his inability to gain every particular of his proposed Budget agenda, dispatches his journeymen to gripe about the State Legislature.

Who better to do his bidding than Assemblymember John, whose reputed "access to the Governor" brought him $24,225 from 85 lobbyists for Corporations and Corporate PACs in 1995, an "offyear," when no legislator was seeking reelection. What did they want? What do they get?

Why doesn't John speak for himself? Because in the Assembly he is lost among the impotent Minority, powerless save for the ability to squawk. Oh, there's that "access." But after ten whole fruitless years in "this place," who wouldn't feel impotent?

What the 102nd Assembly District needs is a Majority member representing its residents' real concerns and interests--and adding another pair of strong hands, a strong heart, and strong will to the tug-of-war against Pataki-ism.

The newspaper that quoted Assemblymember John stated he's "from Columbia County." Actually, the three gerrymandered towns in Columbia are only a small corner of the 102nd District.

It's about time that the 102nd is actively represented by a Member who can be identified with the entire District.

The founder and long-time pastor of Delmar Full Gospel Church left with his family recently for Palm Desert, Calif. The Rev. Mark Bratrud will become pastor of Valley Christian Assembly.

Bratrud and his family came to Delmar in 1980 to pioneer an evangelical church. After years of meeting in the Masonic lodge on Kenwood Avenue and Howard Johnson's on Route 9W, the church built its own building on Elsmere Avenue in 1994.

Today, the congregation of more than 350 members is served by one full-time and two part-time pastors. The church holds two services on Sundays, Pioneer Club meeting for girls and boys under 12 on Tuesdays, and evening service on Wednesdays, Home Group Bible studies on Thursday and Fridays and youth meetings for teens 13 to 18 on Saturdays. The church has also supported foreign Lorraine and Rev. Mark Bratrud missions in India, Mexico, Africa, France, Belize and Nepal.

Bratrud now hopes to build Valley Christian Assembly. The California church, located 10 miles east of Palm Springs, has fewer than 100 members.

Bratrud and his wife Lorraine have four children: Matthew, Andrew, Rebecca and Mark Edward.

Cops charge girl with cocaine possession

A Ravena girl was charged with possession of cocaine last week after she was stopped for speeding, Bethlehem police said.

Laura Bailey, 17, of 27A Winne Road was stopped at 5 a.m. Wednesday, July 3, for speeding on Route 144 near the Coeymans town line, police said.

During the course of his investigation, Police Officer Brian Hughes noticed a bulge in her pants pocket. When she revealed the contents it turned out to be a plastic bag containing rock cocaine, Hughes said.

She was arrested and charged with seventh-degree criminal possession of a controlled substance. She was released pending a July 16 appearance in town court.

Cunningham named Cohoes loan manager

John H. Cunningham of Delmar recently joined Cohoes Savings Bank as a commercial loan relationship manager. Cunningham previously held the position of senior commercial loan officer for Trustco Bank.

Cunningham earned his bachelor's degree from the University of Massachusetts.

Police nab 3 for DWI

Bethlehem police recently arrested three people on charges of driving while intoxicated.

John Michael Rose, 29, of Route 9W, Glenmont, was stopped at 4:31 a.m. Thursday, July 4, for weaving on Route 9W near Jericho Road, police said.

He was charged with a felony count of DWI (for a prior conviction in November 1987) and driving outside the lane markings, police said. He was released pending a July 16 appearance in town court. Officer Brian Hughes investigated.

David M. Miner, 30, of Oakbrook Apts., Ravena, was stopped at 6:30 a.m. Friday, July 5, at the scene of a property damage accident on River Road.

At the time of his arrest, Miner said he had imbibed a 12-pack of beer within the previous five hours, police said. He was charged with DWI and released pending a July 16 appearance in town court.

Officer Charles Radliff investigated.

Daniel T. Donnelly Jr., 34, of 1185 Route 9W, Selkirk, was stopped at 1:20 a.m. Sunday, June 23, for speeding on Route 9W near Thatcher Street, police said.

He was charged with DWI and released pending a July 16 appearance in town court. Officer Brian Hughes investigated.

Police investigating burglary report

Bethlehem police are investigating the burglary of a house in Slingerlands last week.

On Tuesday, July 2, an Erie Drive resident told police that when she arrived home she found the sliding glass door at the rear of her residence open.

The owner reported that $560 in cash that was stuffed in a shirt pocket was stolen.

The Bethlehem police K-9 was dispatched to the scene and tracked a scent from the rear of the residence out to Krumkill Road. Officer Cindy Reed-Kerr responded to the scene.

Church breaks ground for affordable addition

By Katherine McCarthy

Children from St. Matthew's Roman Catholic Church in Voorheesville turned the earth in a recent groundbreaking ceremony for the church's new addition.

Parishioners had reason to be pleased, as the new addition will be 12,000 square feet, not the original 8,000 that had been planned and approved by village officials. The best news of all is that there will be no increased costs to the parish.

The parish is really growing. We're like a family.

John Egan

"We couldn't do any better," said John Egan, a parish volunteer on the project. "It's a complete turnkey operation."

Egan said that the volunteer committee working on the addition was able to take advantage of the current economy and negotiate with the contractor to get the best possible price — $705,600.

"We've tried something innovative — design-build," Egan said, explaining that the builder Iota Construction Co. of Rensselaer, will both design and construct the addition.

Egan said that in addition to "hard" costs of a construction project, like the roof, air conditioning and wiring, there are always unseen "soft" costs that can add 15 to 20 percent to a project.

By consolidating design and building costs, Egan estimated that the soft costs of the St. Matthew's project will not exceed five percent.

When it comes to construction, Egan has solid credentials. As executive director of the Albany Airport Authority, he is in charge of the largest construction project in the region — airport renovation. He previously headed the state Department of Transportation, Dormitory Authority and Office of General Services.

Egan credits the volunteer committee who negotiated the "very favorable price," and the Rev. Arthur Toole with the success of the church project.

"We've got a great guy leading us," Egan said of Toole. "He quarterbacked the project and made it possible. He's not a flamboyant person; he truly leads us."

Egan was most proud of the fact that parish children did the actual groundbreaking. "This was very exciting to us. The parish is really growing. We're like a family."

Electric City Chorus to perform at library

The Electric City Chorus will perform barbershop quartets and other fare as part of the Bethlehem Public Library's Evenings on the Green summer concert series on Wednesday, July 17, at 7:30 p.m. The free family concert will be held on the library lawn at 451 Delaware Ave. in Delmar. If it rains, the program will be held indoors.

For information, call 439-9314.

New directory lists women in business

Three hundred product- and service-related women-owned businesses are included in the Women In Business Directory recently published by the Cornell Cooperative Extension of Albany County's Small Business Program.

To obtain a copy of the directory or for information, call 765-3500.

BOU elects officers

Bethlehem Opportunities Unlimited recently held its annual election of officers.

Phyllis Hillinger will serve as president, Vicary Thomas and Nan Hinman will be vice presidents, Carole Dorfman will be treasurer and Chris Keneston was elected to serve as secretary/newsletter editor.

Skip Parsons to jazz up summer lawn concert

The library's 30th annual Evenings on the Green concert series begins tonight, July 10, with Dixieland jazz performed by Skip Parsons' Clarinet Marmalade.

Show time is 7:30 p.m. Bring a blanket or lawn chair. Programs are held indoors in the event of rain. Admission is free.

School-age youngsters are invited to wear their oldest, smelliest sneakers to the library on Thursday, July 18, at 2 p.m. and enter the Stinky Sneaker contest. Putting their noses to the task of judging this event are library staff members Bill McDowell and Michael Farley, and Bethlehem police officer Mike McMillen, familiar to residents as director of the town's DARE program.

The contest is part of youth services' "Stinky Stories, Smelly Songs" event.

Call 439-9314 for details and to register. Contestants must fill out an application.

Other events in next week's youth services lineup include:

- Monday, July 15, at 10:30 a.m., Toddler Stars and Stripes; 7 p.m., Storytelling Workshop
- Tuesday, July 16, at 7 p.m., Books Before Bed
- Wednesday, July 17, at 4 p.m., Craft Club
- Friday, July 19, at 9:30 a.m., Children's Writing Workshop; 2 p.m., Game Club

Add the following to your summer reading list:

Fred Chappell's "I Am One of You Forever" is a delightful and poignant coming-of-age story set in the mountains of western North Carolina before and during World War II. Told from 12-year-old Jess' point of view, stories about his eccentric relatives range from pure fun to pure magic. The author achieves a luminous sense of place in this wonderful book.

Anne Wingate's "The Eye of Anna" is the second in a series of mysteries featuring Police Chief Mark Shigata, set in a small Texas Gulf town in the path of a hurricane. While most people are intent on boarding up their windows, one is intent on murder. Spine-tingling suspense is intensified by the author's vivid description of the hurricane's fury.

Please note: The library has increased its lost book fee to include the price of the book plus a non-refundable $3.00 reorder fee, payable within 30 days to facilitate more timely replacement of lost books.

Town library to hold show for young artists

Young artists are invited to submit their work in the Bethlehem Public Library's art show entitled: "Art On The Rise: Art by the Youth of Bethlehem."

The deadline for applications is Sept. 9. The show will take place in the library's community room on Sunday, Sept. 15.

School-aged children residing in Bethlehem can submit up to two works in any of the following categories: oil or acrylic painting, sculpture, photography, drawing, watercolor, printmaking or mixed media.

The winners from each category will be invited to display their work in a month-long group show at the library.

For information, call 439-9314.

Delmar woman to head university relations

Linda R. Petit of Delmar was recently appointed to the position of vice president of university relations at St. Lawrence University.

Petit, a graduate of Middlebury College, will be responsible for directing the offices of development, annual giving, alumni relations and communications.

Two wins over Pinebush set stage for showdown vs. Colonie

Tri-Village All-Stars start off on the right foot

By Jim Williams

The Tri-Village Little League 12-year-old All-Stars won their first two games of this year's District 13 tournament in Ravena over the weekend, setting the stage for what is expected to be a key encounter Friday with arch-rival Colonie.

Tri-Village third baseman Tom Frankovic led the hitting attack as he smashed home runs in both the Saturday and Sunday games.

Tri-Village won its opening round game Saturday against Pinebush American from Guilderland, 10-0. They coasted to the victory behind a 10-hit barrage and the shutout pitching of Ryan Williams.

Williams gave up only one hit, while striking out seven. The lone safety came on a line shot by Pinebush American's Kurt Manaco that skimmed down the third base line and into the outfield for a double.

Tri-Village started quickly with a four-run, second inning keyed by a triple from Steve Maltzman; walks to John Andrews and Parker Brown; and singles by Aaron Griffin, Frankovic and Ian Grovenger.

They closed out their scoring in the bottom of the third inning in an outburst highlighted by Frankovic's two-run shot over the fence.

A double by Maltzman and singles by Mark Bulger, Mike Hoghe, Brown and Grovenger helped build the rest of the runs.

Williams retired the side in order in the top of the fourth, prompting tournament officials to invoke the so-called "mercy" rule, which permits them to end the game after four innings when a team is losing by 10 or more runs.

Tri-Village manager Pete Bulger had high praise for the efforts of his players Saturday.

"Our pitching, which was instrumental in winning the (11-year-old) championship last year, continued this year with Ryan Williams. Plus our bats were alive, and we were pounding the ball, especially Frankovic. It was great to see."

But game two took on an altogether different tone, as Tri-Village struggled against a sharp Pinebush National team, finally winning a real nail-biter, 3-2.

In defeat, National's pitcher, Kevin Vanderwaker, twirled a neat, three-hitter that included Frankovic's home run. He struck out eight, orange-shirted Tri-Villagers.

TVLL's Mark Bulger also pitched an excellent game, ringing up 10 strikeouts, and surrendering only five hits.

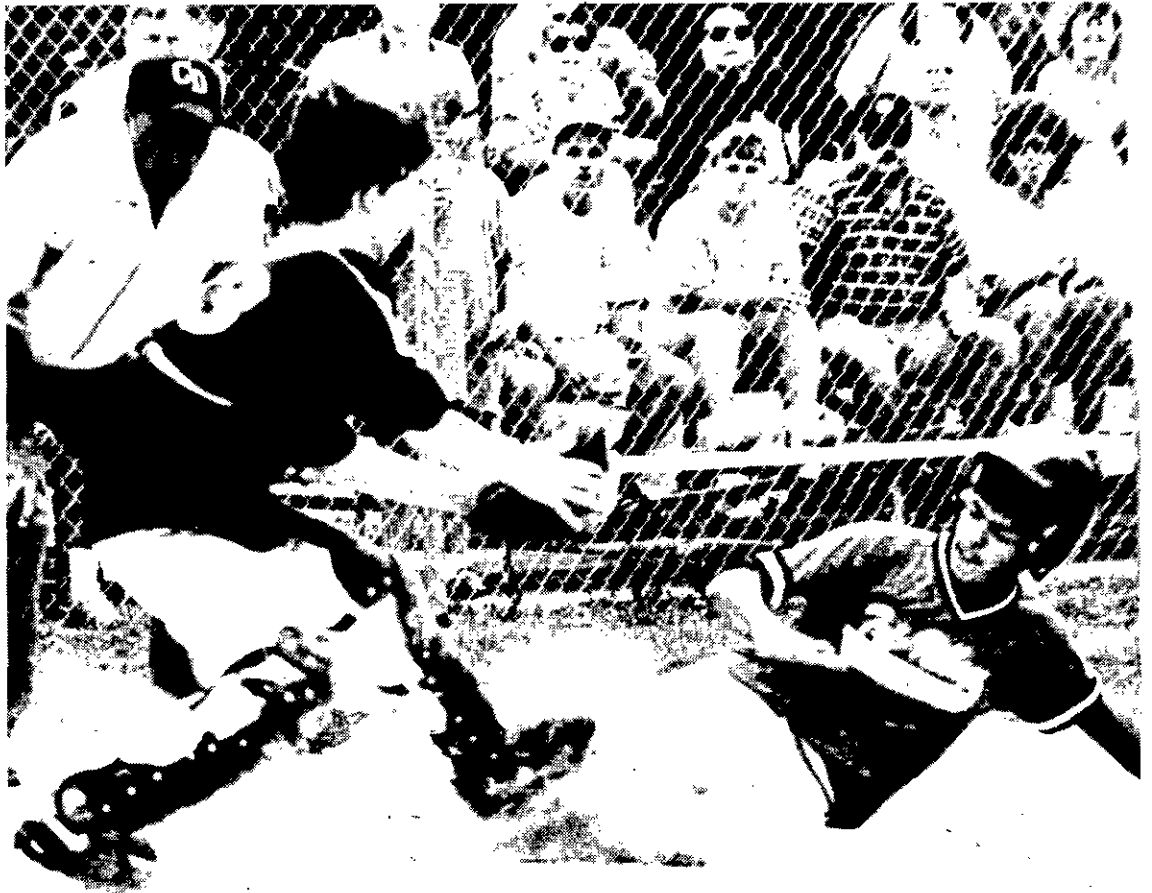

Tri-Village put scores on the board in the first, fourth and fifth innings. Maltzman, who singled and advanced to third on two passed balls, crossed the plate in the first as the result of a botched pick-off play by National.

With National leading 2-1 in the bottom of the fourth, Frankovic smashed a booming, four-bagger over the right field fence with no one on base, which knotted the score at two.

The tie-breaker came in the bottom of the fifth when Griffin rapped a hard-hit ball that was bobbled at second base, scoring Andrews from third.

After giving up a double in the top of the sixth, Bulger retired the side in order, ending the game.

"Flat" is how manager Pete Bulger characterized his team's second game. "After coming off an excellent game the day before, we were tentative on Sunday, and had to work hard to take advantage of every little opportunity that presented itself.

"Our ability to hang in is a very important lesson for us as we prepare for games down the road.... The kids know what they need to do prepare for a very well-drilled and very capable Colonie squad," he said.

Bethlehem Mantle team hangs on to top spot in the league

By Scott Isaacs

The Bethlehem Mickey Mantle squad maintained its stranglehold on first place, sweeping four games this week, and running their record to 15-1, a half game ahead of second-place Sorensco.

Last Monday the Blue Eagles defeated Fort Plain, 10-5. Matt Kelly belted a three-run homer to pace the Bethlehem offense. The run support continued the following night as Bethlehem smoked West Albany, 12-1. Matt Tulloch supplied the power in that contest, knocking a two-run dinger in support of Rich Petri, who struck out nine on his way to the complete game victory.

The first challenge of the week came Thursday against Colonie. Brian Davies came through in the clutch again for the Eagles with a single and a sacrifice fly good for two RBIs as Bethlehem scored a 6-5 victory. Pat Hughes pitched six strong innings for the win.

On Sunday, Bethlehem continued its winning ways, easing by Scotia, 6-1. Matt Elfeldt pitched a complete game, four-strikeout masterpiece, while Greg Bartoletti backed him up with a double and three RBIs.

Coach Jesse Braverman remained cautious about his team's prospects.

"We need to take in one game at a time and hang on to first place," he said. "It will be a challenge, especially due to the thinness of our pitching staff. The pressure is on us, and hopefully we'll come through."

RCS honors athletes

Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk athletes recently received 46 awards at the annual RCS Sports Award Banquet held in the high school auditorium.

Danielle Hummel and James Gorham received Athlete of the Year Awards. Hummel and Gorham were also named RCS scholar/athletes.

Connie Derway and Adam McMullen received coaching awards, and sportsmanship awards were presented to Derway and Shawn Campbell.

Each individual sport at RCS handed out overall achievement and most improved player awards, respectively. The sports awards were given to:

- Football: Steve Burns and John Grangella.
- Boys soccer: Shawn Kelly and Russ Wolfe.
- Girls soccer: Hummel and Sabrina Wilson.
- Volleyball: Judy Beachler and Asia Tierney.

Shredded Eagles still in the hunt

By Scott Isaacs

The Bethlehem Connie Mack Shredded Eagles, who have struggled to stay in the playoff hunt this season, won two important games last week, and rose to the top of a crowded pack for the fifth and final spot.

On Wednesday, the Eagles pummeled a winless Halfmoon squad, 11-3. Craig Garver pitched seven strong innings, striking out seven.

Nathaniel Sajdak doubled and

Connie Mack

singled, while Kevin Blanchard had three singles and three RBIs.

On Saturday, the Eagles notched an important victory over Hoosic Valley, 15-4. The win gave Bethlehem a tie-breaker advantage, as they swept the season series with the Rangers, but still maintained identical records.

Scott Isaacs tripled and singled, Blanchard had two singles and a double, and Ted Hartman contributed a double and single.

Sajdak, a June graduate of BCHS, notched his fifth win of the season in going the distance for Bethlehem.

The Eagles are tied for fifth place with Clifton Park, Gloversville and Columbia County. They play Clifton Park on Friday at the BCHS field, starting at 6 p.m.

Bethlehem 13-year-olds advance

Bethlehem won the 13-year-old Babe Ruth All-Star District Tournament in dramatic fashion over the weekend.

After losing their first game to Colonie 6-5, Bethlehem came out of the losers' bracket with four straight wins, culminating in a double-header sweep of previously undefeated Guiderland on Friday.

The 13-year-olds won with strong pitching, solid defense, daring base running and timely hits. Bethlehem pitchers Avi Ra- sowsky and Lucas Parks combined for a three-hit, 5-0 victory in the championship game.

Alan Lewis also pitched well throughout the tournament and was supported by the clutch hitting of Rick Root, Morgan Gmelch, Ben Felson and Brian Rowan. Parks was named the tournament's most valuable player.

The team, which also includes Tyler Crosier, Jon Albert, Tim Rice, Adam Rodriguez, Jon Nowak, Billy Tierney, Nate Turner and Mike Mahan, travels to Plattsburgh on Friday, July 12, to compete for the state 13-year-old Babe Ruth title.

This is the third time in the past four years that the Bethlehem Babe Ruth 13-year-olds have advanced to the state tournament.

Berny Rasowsky is the manager, with Steve Rice and Wayne Parks sharing coaching responsibilities.

Cohen and Malinowski qualify for Empire State Games

Two local swimmers recently qualified for the 1996 Empire State Games as 82 swimmers attended the trials at Colonie Town Park.

Arianne Cohen of Delmar won the 400, 800 and 1500-meter freestyle and the 200-meter breaststroke. She is a student at Germantown Academy and a former swimmer with the Albany Starfish Swim Club.

Elizabeth Malinowski of Glenmont, a June graduate of St. Thomas School, also qualified for the games. She won the 200-meter individual medley and was second in the 800-meter freestyle. She also qualified in the 1500-meter freestyle. She represents the Albany Starfish Swim Club and will attend Albany Academy for Girls in the fall.

Cohen and Malinowski will be joined on the Adirondack team by Slingerlands residents Nancy Ann Oberheim and Annette Grajny. The two Bethlehem Central High School seniors will join the tennis competition at the games.

The games will be held at the University of Buffalo, July 24 to 28.

BC teachers busy behind the scenes

By Katherine McCarthy

Bethlehem prides itself on its school district, but most people don't know the half of it, according to Yvonne Doberman, a guidance counselor at Bethlehem Central Middle School.

"There are a lot of things teachers do behind the scenes that don't get recognized," Doberman said recently, as she organized a special delivery of bagels by Bruegger's "bagel boy" to the school's year-end picnic.

The bagel boy was a humorous way of acknowledging math teachers Barbara Bemis and Michael

You wouldn't find a teacher who isn't willing to do something at the drop of a hat.

Barbara Bemis

Fredette's fund-raising efforts for the Bethlehem Central Teachers Association scholarship fund.

Twice a week during the course of the school year, Bemis and Fredette purchased bagels to sell to fellow middle school teachers. Thanks in part to this "dough," the BCTA gave $811 to a graduating high school senior this year.

"A lot of people work hard to help the kids," Bemis said, downplaying her role in the fund-raising effort. "You wouldn't find a teacher who isn't willing to do something at the drop of a hat."

Bemis was also instrumental in organizing a "dress down" day at the school, where teachers paid $1 for the privilege of dressing casually for a day. Along with science teacher Lisa Wood, Bemis raised $50 so that students participating in the study skills program called "Strive for Success" could have a celebration after 10 weeks of hard work.

Although teachers were paid for working with the program, a district spending freeze had threatened the party scheduled for the end of the session.

"It's wrong that the district pulled the funding," Bemis said. "Schools are hard up for money, and teachers pull up the slack, often from their own pockets."

Wood echoed Bemis' sentiment, "I can't even tell you all the things teachers do, including spending their own money."

Wood said she was particularly interested in having the "Strive for Success" party because "The kids are great, and they try so hard."

Wood stressed the positive impact of rewarding the students.

"A little reward goes a long way," she said. "The kids try harder and they'll be more successful down the road."

No stranger to behind-the-scenes work, Doberman helped organize the celebration, which was also supported by a $100 contribution from Bethlehem Opportunities Unlimited.

A number of middle school teachers also put in a great deal of time on the school's craft fair, which raises money to improve the physical appearance of the school.

Retiring math teacher Barbara Talmage has coordinated the craft fair for the past two years, and estimates that at least 20 teachers work with her on the day of the fair.

The fair is sponsored by the Climate Committee, headed by Betty Koban and comprised of teachers Karen Eason and Ed Gill, as well as parents Cindy Stambach, Joann Purcell and Barbara Burt.

The craft fair, usually held on the Saturday before Mother's Day, is the culmination of a year's worth of planning.

"The Climate Committee starts meeting in September and we meet twice a month," Talmage said. "Last year, we raised almost $3,000, and there are new plantings outside the school as a result of the effort."

Delmar man tapped state association VP

Walter C. Waidelich of Delmar was installed as Area 4 (Northeast Region) vice president of the New York State Society of Professional Engineers (NYSSPE) at recent ceremonies held in conjunction with the society's annual meeting in Grand Island.

The Climate Committee was formed out of a desire to do something for the school itself, Talmage said.

"There's an ongoing need to make the kids proud," she said.

In addition to the plantings, the committee has provided a fish tank in the library, inspirational posters throughout the building, a painting in one of the hallways, and a hydroponics project for the seventh-grade.

Project suggestions come from teachers and committees throughout the school. "We have six we'll be considering for the fall," Talmage said.

Talmage pointed out that crafters are excited to come to the middle school fair.

"They always remark on how friendly and helpful everyone here is," Talmage said.

Each crafter pays a $30 fee, which is how the committee makes its money. Crafters also donate items for raffles and prizes.

The craft fair is run without aid from the district, and planting and maintaining the grounds also falls to members of the committee, parents and student volunteers.

One of Talmage's goals is to establish a gardening group to maintain the property.

Although Talmage has retired from teaching, her presence and contributions to the middle school with still be felt. "I'm not giving up the craft fair," she said with a chuckle.

As Area 4 vice president, Waidelich will play a major role in directing NYSSPE's mission to ensure the application of engineering knowledge and skill in the public interest and to promote professionalism in engineering.

William Cade of Slingerlands, wants to build 42 single-family homes that would sell for about $300,000 each.

The subdivision, just south of Cedar Ridge, which is currently under construction, would be split in half by the Phillipinkill, a tributary of the Vlomankill. Lot sizes would range from 17,000 to 20,000 square feet, depending on whether they are on the north or south side of the creek.

Even though the area is zoned AA residential, John Smolinsky, spokesman for the citizens group, said he has the same concerns about this project as he did about Delmar Village, which was first proposed in 1981.

"Forty-two lots on 23 acres? The density is just too high," Smolinsky said. "It's not compatible with the rural character of the area along Orchard Street."

Moreover, the amount of traffic generated by such a project would overwhelm Orchard Street and Fisher Boulevard, both of which are "poor quality roads," he added.

The developer "has apparently chosen to ignore" these concerns, the same ones the planning board raised about Delmar Village and Cedar Ridge, Smolinsky said.

Planning board chairman Douglas Hasbrouck advised the developer to submit new drawings that included a crossing over the Phillipinkill to join the two phases of the project. He also asked Maurer to reduce the number of access roads onto Orchard Street.

Dick Tice of Brewer Engineering told the board that the developer would be willing to create a conservation easement or a buffer zone on both sides of the Phillipinkill to protect the creek.

Another issue the planning board should consider, Smolinsky said, is whether "Mr. Cade avoided subdivision rules by stripping and regrading the property and filling in the wetlands."

"Whether it will become a formal issue, I don't know," Hasbrouck said. "He (Cade) apparently was intending to clear the area so he could use it for agricultural purposes. I guess to some of the neighbors it looks suspicious, since the work was done so recently, and all of sudden it's a subdivision."

On the other hand, Hasbrouck said, "In the long run, it might turn out to a moot point because the work has already been done, and we're here to base our action on what's already there."

Soviet students need local host homes

Families are needed to host foreign exchange students from the former Soviet Union. The exchange program, sponsored by World Heritage, is one year long.

The students are proficient in English and have full medical insurance and pocket money.

NiMo

Division of State Supreme Court in March.

During each of the past four years (1993 to 1996), the company has continued to file assessment grievances based on their original position. NiMo has also filed tax certioraris for 1993 to 1995 requesting legal review of their claims, which is the first step in the litigation process. A tax certiorari has not yet been received for 1996, although "undoubtedly they will (file one)," Leafer said.

"They have a right to attack (their assessment) every year," Kaplowitz said, "and it looks like they're going to continue the process. We've been through the court system before on this, and I expect that the issues are the same."

"They claim that, because of the obsolescence of their plant, they should not be taxed at the level they're being taxed," Kaplowitz said. "Every now and then, they have threatened to abandon it, but it's still in production."

The town had an independent appraisal done as part of its defense, and "It justified our position," Kaplowitz said. "We've spent a considerable sum on fighting this, and I expect it's going to continue to be expensive."

"Certainly we'd like to continue talking with town officials and reach some type of negotiated settlement," said NiMo spokesman Nick Lyman. "But in the meantime, the company has no alternative but to pursue tax relief through the legal system."

"Apart from the litigation and the tax challenges, we're trying to explain to town officials what's going on in the power industry," he said. "Our two biggest sources of overhead are taxes and the amount of power we're required (by federal and state law) to purchase from independent producers."

"Increasing the utilization of the Albany plant is what we have to worry about," he continued. "That's not the concern of the town. At the same time, we spend about $6 million a year in property taxes that contributes significantly to our overhead. Historically, utility properties have been taxed heavily, because it was assumed we could always pass on the costs."

"We're paying six or seven times the amount that Selkirk Cogen is paying (in property taxes)," Lyman maintained, "and we're supposed to be competing with them. The staffing at our Albany plant is half of what it used to be, and if we can't bring our overhead down, then we can't compete, and we may have to close it down. That's not a threat, but simply economic reality."

Built in 1952 to burn coal, the 400-megawatt Albany steam plant

(retrofitted in 1981 to burn oil and natural gas) sometimes "burns barely enough electricity to keep the lights on inside the building," Lyman added. "Just a few years ago the plant was running full bore most of the time. But recently it has been making less and less as more and more comes through the door from independent producers."

The Selkirk cogeneration facility off Route 32 is assessed at $106,114,971. The company, which received tax breaks from the Bethlehem Industrial Development Agency, is scheduled to pay $1.9 million in taxes this year and $2.1 million next year, according to Nancy Karins, town receiver of taxes.

Kaplowitz noted that up to now NiMo has shown no willingness to reach a compromise, and has stuck to its contention that only a drastic adjustment in its assessment would be acceptable.

In a related matter, NiMo for the first time this year filed 17 relatively minor grievances pertaining to its assessment on equipment such as pipes, wires and utility poles on property easements granted to the company.

The claims are related to a recent ruling by the state Office of Real Property Services on the adjusted depreciation schedule allowed utility companies on the equipment they own.

Chores

The revisions brought the contract into conformance with state law, which now states that provisions in superintendents' contracts cannot reference other contracts in the district, Loomis said.

The board also approved five district goals for the coming year, including a new goal, "to identify and implement specific ways to improve communication and collaboration among staff, parents, students, community members and the board of education."

The board again scheduled its regular meetings days for the first and third Wednesdays of the month at 8 p.m., as needed. Its next meeting will be Aug. 21.

The board also chose The Spotlight as the district's official newspaper.

In other business apart from organizational duties, the board approved an easement with the town of Bethlehem that moves a bike path linking the high school and Elm Avenue Park closer to reality.

Bethlehem Supervisor Sheila Fuller, a former school board president, said the free-of-charge easement along Van Dyke Road represents, "town and school working together and sharing resources for the good of our community."

Fuller said the town still needs two easements for the path, which it hopes to build in the 1997 construction season.

"People have been asking for this for years," she said. "There's a lot of bike traffic to the park, and students could also use the path to bike to school."

Grieve

satisfied with their assessments have until the end of this month to file a small claims court action. To date, Leafer said he has received six such claims, and he expects about a dozen in all this year.

Last year, Leafer said the town was taken to court by about 20 taxpayers unhappy with their assessments.

Leafer noted that plans are still on track to conduct a townwide update of the assessment roll in 1997, with final results used to revise the 1998 property tax roll. Details of that update will be announced this fall.

The current total assessed valuation of property in the town is $2,281,994,475, about $29 million more than 1995.

"That's not a real big jump," Leafer said. Most of the increase came from new construction and renovations made to existing residences.

Holly Billings: Role model

Today we hear a great deal about positive role models. Athletes talk about which hero of the 60s was their role model. Hillary Clinton has, Eleanor Roosevelt. Young rock stars point to the Beatles or Elvis or James Brown. Parents are role models for their kids. Teens are role models for younger children.

Holly Billings is a role model for what a community member should be. Our community has been extremely fortunate to have Holly as the model for giving, sharing and serving. Holly's commitment, dedication and service to the Bethlehem community can serve as a model for all of us. We achieve satisfaction by doing meaningful things. Holly Billings chose to help youth and she devoted her life to the youth of our community.

Holly Billings will be remembered for her achievements with Bethlehem Opportunities Unlimited and Bethlehem Networks. She has worked on numerous worthwhile projects, including The Pit at Bethlehem Central Middle School, Bethlehem Community Partnership, Friday Night Basketball at Bethlehem Central High School, MiddleWorks, Middle School Mentoring Programs, a teen drinking video and, of course, Bethlehem Opportunities Unlimited.

Holly Billings will always be a role model for caring community members. She is an example of the importance of making yourself necessary. Holly is moving to Rhode Island. She will be missed.

The bride is a graduate of Bethlehem Central High School. She is employed in the correspondence office of Gov. George Pataki in Albany.

The groom is a graduate of Bethlehem Central High School and attended Hudson Valley Community College. He is employed as a salesman by Curtis Lumber in Delmar.

After a wedding trip to Disney World and St. Petersburg, the couple lives in Glenmont.

The Spotlight remembers

This week in 1986, these stories were making headlines in The Spotlight.

- After 18 months of negotiations, the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk school board and the RCS Teachers Association agreed on a new three-year contract that provided 10 percent raises in each of the three years. "I am just very pleased that it's over," said Superintendent William Schwartz.

- A early retirement program in the Bethlehem Central School District left 55 teaching positions vacant, about double the normal turnover. The early retirements would save the district $170,000 over seven years, according to Briggs McAndrews, BC's assistant superintendent.

- After BC board president Sheila Fuller announced she would not seek re-election to that post, the board chose Bernie Harvith as its president for the 1986-87 school year.

- Main Square, a small shopping center in the heart of Delmar, was approved by the Bethlehem planning board.

Local M.D. presents at Mideast conference

William S. Oberheim, M.D., of Slingerlands was part of a team of physicians from Albany that recently attended the First International Medical Congress in Amman, Jordan.

Oberheim presented a paper on "The Diagnosis and Management of Bladder Cancer" and served as a consultant on difficult urologic cases at the King Hussein Medical Center during his stay.

Over 1,000 physicians from 22 countries attended the gathering.

Delmar attorney joins Albany Law School board

Delmar attorney Donald D. DeAngelis was recently elected to the Albany Law School Board of Trustees. DeAngelis is taking over the chairmanship from Albany attorney John J. Yanas.

DeAngelis is a graduate of Cornell University and Albany Law School. A former town justice, he has served as president of the Albany-Schenectady Magistrates Association and the Albany Law School National Alumni Council.

Museum commemorates "The Great Hunger" with unique exhibit

By Alvaro E. Alarcon

A new exhibit on the Irish potato famine at the Irish-American Heritage Museum in East Durham recounts the history of the famine and its impact on the Irish and the world.

Opening this Saturday, "The Great Hunger" is the only exhibit in the U.S. to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the beginning of the famine.

"Beyond the events associated with Ireland's independence, the single most recognized event for those of Irish descent during the last 200 years is the Great Hunger," said Joseph Dolan, chairman of the museum's board of trustees.

The famine, which began in 1846 and ran for several years, reduced Ireland's population by almost three million through death and mass emigration. Many Irish-Americans trace their family roots to famine-related emigration.

A Catholic Mass in memory of those who perished in the famine will take place at Our Lady of Knock Shrine in East Durham at 3 p.m. Saturday. The Rev. Angus Finucane, head of Concern Worldwide, will speak on famine around the world, past and present. Ireland's Consul General in America Donal Hamill will also speak.

The exhibit, while specifically looking at the Great Hunger, also shows that "hunger is a universal blight and should be recognized as that," Dolan said.

The museum's exhibit galleries present a myriad of images on the Great Hunger — from the agricultural history of the potato plant to its role in the economy to how the Irish and their English overlords reacted to the famine.

The exhibit is of special interest to Irish Americans, but is also "applicable to all groups of all nations who have suffered from famine or drought," Dolan said.

Visitors at the exhibit will see parallels between the Irish famine and other famines in history and how the famine disproportionately affected different classes in fragmented 19th-century Irish society.

For example, Dolan noted that a scale model of a famine workhouse helps depict the relationship between landlord and tenant farmers during the famine.

The exhibit also recognizes the famine relief role played by Albany County residents. A gallery will relate the work of the Albany Committee for the Relief of the Famine in Ireland and Scotland, which raised "nearly one-half of the amount of what was raised here in all our churches," according to a contemporary account by Bishop Hughes of New York City. The committee's activities have been recognized by the National Library of Ireland.

In addition to the exhibit, which will run through Oct. 14, the museum will host a lecture series in August, featuring Ciaran O Murchadha of Ennis, County Clare; Noel Kissane of Dublin; and Kathleen Browne, County Kerry Librarian. Irish-American author Peter Quinn has also been invited.

The Irish-American Heritage Museum's Exhibit Center is on Route 145 in East Durham in Greene County. Exhibit center hours until Labor Day are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Tuesday through Sunday; after Labor Day, hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Friday and Saturday.

Admission is $3.50 for adults, $2 for children, seniors and individuals with special needs, and $9 for families. Other group discounts are available.

Adults and groups can arrange for tours by calling in advance.

New actor at Mac-Haydn surprises producers with comic character

When you talk about show business myth and magic, there's always the story of a young man or woman who gains stardom almost by accident.

In the production of A Funny Thing Happened On The Way to the Forum which closed this past Sunday at the Mac-Haydn Theater in Chatham, a young man who was hired as house manager at the beginning of the season, was put into a show in May and then given the role of the zany slave, Hysterium, in the musical farce about ancient Roman romantic intrigue.

What's a marvelous coincidence is that this actor, Ron DeStefano, has a style that's a clone of Jim Carrey, the eccentric comic now being seen in The Cable Man. DeStefano's wide, silly grin and curled eyebrows are hilarious as he's put through all sorts of trials trying to keep virgins away from soldiers and masters away from courtesans. His style is frantic and every entrance is made at breakneck speed which DeStefano controls with complete disciplined disorder.

It was in the early 1980s that another actor played the same role in Chatham as a young college graduate and had the same impact on a Mac-Haydn audience. Today, that actor, Nathan Lane, is playing the role in a Broadway revival of the musical and is one of the most celebrated comics in show business.

Whether DeStefano shares similar success only time will tell but right now he's a winner.

Would you believe that producers Linda MacNish and Lynne Haydn don't have him cast in another role this season so far. It's a good bet that oversight will be taken care of.

MacNish reports that the theater is doing quite well so far this season with the blockbuster, Crazy for You, due to open in two weeks for a three-week run after Grease. "More people seem to be spending money," she says. "They're a little more relaxed about buying tickets. It's a welcome situation after the last several seasons."

Reservations and information about the next shows, Grease and Crazy for You, available at 392-9292.

Proctor's Theatre gets GE aid based on employee contributions

Proctor's Theatre's executive director Gloria Lamere got a lift in her fund-raising efforts when she received a total of $35,295 from the GE Fund's "More Gifts ... More Givers" program.

This is a contribution from the Schenectady-based company which matches the money contributed by GE employees and retirees during 1995.

Now in its 70th year, Proctor's has been part of GE history since 1930 when the company made its first television presentation on the theater's stage.

The company has long been a supporter of the revitalized old movie house.

New York City Ballet returns to Saratoga

Now on stage at the Saratoga Performing Arts Center for three weeks, the New York City Ballet company will present a Saratoga premiere Wednesday, July 17. Reliquary, choreographed by artistic director Peter Martins is a tribute to his mentor, the late George Balanchine. In this ballet, composer Charles Wuorinen finishes a composition by the late Igor Stravinsky. He received permission from the Russian composer's wife, Vera. The ballet involves 25 dancers.

Information and reservations for the ballet performance are available at 587-3330.

Family Players perform Annie this week at Tawasentha Park

For the 10th year, the Family Players of Northeastern New York will present the musical comedy Annie at Tawasentha Park in Guilford. Five performances of Annie will be given Wednesday, July 10, through Sunday evening.

The production, staged by DeLynn Scaringe, will have 100 cast members, among them 60 children.

As part of its non-profit status, it presents this musical comedy at a low admission cost, $6 for adults, $4 for children. Information and reservations are available at 463-0314.

In order to get all the power possible on your serve, try to bring your racket back as far as possible before you hit.

As you swing, think of it like you are uncoiling and snapping up toward the ball on contact.

Hyde Collection features work of Stuart Yankell

The Hyde Collection will present the abstract figurative painting of Stuart Yankell starting on Sunday, July 21, in the rotunda of the museum's education wing on Warren Street in Glens Falls.

Yankell's work is an attempt by the artist to reconcile numerous art historical traditions while seeking the evolution of the language of art. His paintings combine the figure, composition, lighting and form of older European traditions with more contemporary concepts of evocative abstraction.

Yankell's work is represented in museums, institutions and corporate collections across the country.

The exhibition will be on view until Sunday, Aug. 18. Hours for The Hyde Collection are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday, with extended hours until 8 p.m. on Thursday and Friday until Aug. 4.

For information, call 792-1761.
