Firefighters spark up for 40th fair

By Mel Hyman

The Glenmont Firemen's Fair, which starts Friday night and expects more than 5,000 people for its flea market Saturday, has come a long way from its humble beginnings 40 years ago.

"A bunch of us were sitting around a brand new desk at the time (1956), which is still in the firehouse, and we were trying to think of a different way of raising money," recalled Bob Wiggand, former chief of Selkirk Fire Co. 2.

Formed in 1953, members had been accustomed for the first few years to going door-to-door and soliciting with wrapped-up coffee cans.

"We made $200 a year, if we made that much," Wiggand said. "It was very embarrassing for us to go door-to-door and beg for money. We were looking for something easier that could be considered a family event."

The first three firemen's fairs, then called bazaars, were makeshift affairs held in a wooded grove next to the Glenmont Road firehouse. Decorations and banners were tacked onto trees and booths were made out of whatever lumber could be rustled up.

"Setting up a kitchen was one of our biggest problems," Wiggand said. "We've rarely had a rainout, but in our second year, we had this massive downpour that washed us right out of the tent. It was the craziest thing you ever saw, with everyone running for their cars. We didn't make a lot of money those first few years, but we had a lot of fun."

In 1959, the official name of the fair was changed to the Glenmont Firemen's Fair, and the event has gradually grown in popularity over the years so that it is now a townwide event that everyone looks forward to on the last weekend of July and first weekend of August, said Jack Bailey, a member of the Selkirk board of fire commissioners.

Of course, many people are attracted by the flea market, which is in its 20th year and is one of the largest in the entire area, Bailey said. The flea market will be from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

Marie Rose neighbors say traffic only problem

By Mel Hyman

Most residents of Marquis Drive seem satisfied with the new senior citizens housing development at the end of their road; they just wish people going to and from the facility would drive a little slower.

"There is not as much traffic as I thought there would be," said Marquis Drive resident Rick Corcione, but there are some vehicles that do "go a little fast."

Corcione said, "Sister Grace (Diaz) stressed during her orientations with the residents and staff that they should watch their speeds. Our main concern is all of the children. I give (speeding drivers) hand signals when I see them. A number of the cars I would think are guests, so what can you do?"

Corcione noted that it might be a bit premature to judge what the effect of Marie Rose Manor will be, since it only opened in June and is not yet fully occupied.

Many residents of Marquis Drive, part of the single-family development called Dutchbrook, opposed

Glendale residents press for stop signs

By Mel Hyman

With the recent pedestrian fatality on Rowland Avenue fresh on their minds, a group of Glendale Avenue residents last week presented the Bethlehem traffic safety committee with a 38-signature petition in favor of a four-way stop sign at the intersection of Glendale and Maple avenues.

"Our children frequently run, bike and walk down Glendale on their way to visit friends," said Bonnie Goldsmith-Rooney. "Last year, my son was almost hit. Is the town willing to be held responsible if they deny us a stop sign and there is an accident? I just hope you're not looking to maximize traffic flow in town."

The situation on Glendale is an "accident waiting to happen," said resident Donald Hinsdale. "We just had a fatal accident on Rowland, and I don't consider Rowland to be any busier than Glendale."

"A lot of motorists use Glendale and Maple as a shortcut to avoid red lights and stop signs on Kenwood and Elsmere (avenues)," Hinsdale said. "I don't have kids, but I'm very fearful for them. I know they shouldn't be in the street, but they are. And it's also walkers, joggers, skateboard-ers and young people walking to and from the middle school and to and from Elsmere school."

Bethlehem Police Lt. Richard Vanderbilt, chairman of the traffic safety committee, cautioned the dozen or so Glendale residents, many of whom had small children in tow, that stop signs "were not a panacea," and that children should be supervised at all times and not allowed to use the street as a playground.

At the same time, however, he acknowledged that unofficial traffic counts indicate that more than 800 vehicles weekly travel Glendale in the summer, when the street is relatively quiet.

"That surprised me," Vanderbilt said. Traffic counters will be installed on the street as soon as possible to more

Autopsy determines victim was intoxicated

By Dev Tobin

An investigation by the Onondaga County Sheriff's Department has concluded that Voorheesville college student Michael Welker was intoxicated at the time he was struck and killed by a freight train outside Syracuse on July 13.

An autopsy by the Onondaga County medical examiner's office found that Welker had a blood alcohol content of .23 percent, substantially higher than the .10 percent legal standard for driving while intoxicated, at the time of his death.

Welker, 20, was salutatorian of the class of 1993 at Clayton A. Bouton High School, and had just completed his junior year at Cornell University. An honors civil engineering student, he had been working this summer in the city of Ithaca's engineering department.

The sheriff's department's accident investigation team concluded that Welker accidentally stepped in front of a 95-car Conrail freight train at about 11 p.m. following the Lollapalooza concert at the State Fairgrounds, which he had been listening to from railroad tracks adjacent to the fairgrounds.

Sheriff's deputies identified and interviewed three children, ages 9, 13 and 14, in the area when the train hit Welker. The children said they saw Welker on the tracks, but that they were several hundred feet away when the accident occurred.

After reviewing the children's statements, investigators ruled out the possibility that Welker may have been trying to warn the children of the oncoming train, as had been reported in next-day media accounts.

Investigators said it was likely that Welker was confused by the unfamiliar surroundings.

"When it's pitch-dark and a bright light is coming at you, it's hard to tell how fast it's going and which track (of four in the area) it's on," said Sgt. Robert Burns, spokesman for the sheriff's department.

The train was going about 50 mph, within the speed limit for that section of track, Burns added.

The department's investigation included interviews with Welker's friends and relatives, Conrail employees, and people who were in the area behind the State Fairgrounds grandstand at the time of the accident.

Driver strikes bicyclist in CVS lot

A Delmar man suffered minor head injuries last week after his bicycle was struck by a car in the parking lot of the CVS Pharmacy at Delaware and Elsmere avenues.

Mark Cerezin, 28, of Rockefeller Road, was hit at about 9:10 a.m. Thursday, July 18, by a car driven by Welena Shparaga, 31, of Patroon Drive, Gunderland, police said.

Shparaga was proceeding east on Delaware Avenue and entered the CVS parking lot when she "drove across the path of the bicyclist and threw him from the bike," said Bethlehem Police Lt. Richard Vanderbilt.

Cerezin was transported by the Delmar Rescue Squad to Albany Medical Center Hospital, where he was treated and released.

Shparaga was cited for failing to yield, having no proof of insurance and driving an unregistered vehicle, Vanderbilt said.

Officer Jeffrey Vunck investigated.

Residents raise traffic concerns anew about New Scotland Road

By Mel Hyman

The proposed Terramere luxury subdivision has some residents of New Scotland Road ready to throw in the towel.

"When are we going to be a little more responsible about this road?" asked Bruce McDonald during a public hearing on the $50 million project last week. "We live here. We're a small group of people affected in a negative way by all the things going on here."

McDonald, who lives on New Scotland Road right across from Terramere, threatened to "leave the area because because I cannot take the risk of my children being hit by the traffic."

Proposed for a 133-acre parcel bounded by Route 85, Cherry Avenue, McCormack Road and the Normanskill, Terramere would contain 22 large estate lots and 48 single-family homes arranged in clusters.

The project has been drastically reduced since Kenneth Goldman first proposed more than 1,000 residential units for the property in the 1970s.

"I'm wondering what it's going to be like (once Terramere is built)," said Diane Head of New Scotland Road. "There is an extraordinary traffic flow now — it's almost impossible to get out of your house in the morning."

Planning board chairman Doug Hasbrouck tried to assure McDonald and other neighbors that the board takes note of their concerns.

"We're very aware of your situation," he said. "This road has been extensively studied, especially when we did our review of Price Chopper."

The traffic, especially during rush hour, is "heavy," Hasbrouck noted, but "We need to downplay the intensity of (Terramere), because we're talking about a small number of vehicles here. More than a thousand units has been reduced to 70."

That was little consolation to Alice Lenhardt, a New Scotland Road resident since 1946. The town's approval of the new Price Chopper shopping center, slated for the intersection of New Scotland Road and Cherry Avenue Extension, was bad enough, she said, but Terramere could be the last straw.

"My main objection is the darn road," she said. "You can just about get killed going in and out (of driveways). If I have an 8 o'clock appointment with the chiropractor on Kenwood Avenue, I have to leave the house by seven."

Not everyone opposed the development, which is classified a planned residential district.

Mark Eryant, vice president of Bryant Asset Protection Inc., located in an office building directly adjacent to Terramere, described it as a "positive benefit to Slingerlands. I want to endorse this project. Our family will hopefully look out on these properties for the rest of our lives."

While the traffic load on New Scotland Road is heavy, town planner Jeff Lipnicky said the added volume from Terramere would not add significantly to the problem.

At the same time, he said the planning department remains concerned that one of the proposed entrances to Terramere, just south of the intersection of Route 85 and New Scotland Road, could disrupt traffic flow.

"What you have in the afternoon is a constant stream of traffic making that right-hand turn off the bypass onto New Scotland Road. If anyone gets caught making a left into the development, it could interrupt the flow" and lead to a bottleneck, Lipnicky said.

"We're looking at some alternative ways to deal with it," he said. "But right now, it's still a general concern."

Pilot school-village cooperation on buses takes off in September

By Dev Tobin

The most politically palatable kind of regionalization is cooperation between different levels of government to deliver services more efficiently.

The devil is in the details, though, and many bright ideas to share services break apart on the rocks of institutional self-interest and parochialism.

The village of Voorheesville and the Voorheesville Central School District hope to steer clear of those hazards and provide a model for cooperation in an activity that most municipalities and school districts have to deal with — parking, fueling and repairing large vehicles.

"We have five facilities that fuel and repair large vehicles within a few miles of each other — the school and village, town, county and state highway departments," said Anthony Marturano, the school district's assistant superintendent for business. "Isn't that a place to look to save money?"

The pilot program, agreed upon by district and village officials last week, will have 10 of the district's approximately 25 buses park on a three-quarter-acre section of the public works department facility for a period of up to six months.

If successful, the pilot will lead to all of the district's buses being parked on village property and fueled via village tanks before the end of the school year.

"There are just too many questions that cannot be answered without any experience," said Mayor Edward Clark. "We don't want to invest the dollars until we see that it's going to work."

The buses in the pilot program would continue to fuel at the elementary school, avoiding one of the major costs of the comprehensive project — $20,000 for new fuel meters.

Clark said that the village's concerns include security, traffic, scheduling, how buses turn around, where drivers go when they're waiting and drivers' access to telephones and rest rooms.

"Everyone is supportive of the concept, but we don't want to overlook anything that could become a real problem," Clark said.

If the project goes forward, the district would pay rent that would cover the village's out-of-pocket expenses for site preparation and fuel meters and some consideration for the loss of the land, which would no longer be available for other village purposes. The district will receive state transportation aid to defray the rent expense.

For the district, an arrangement to park and fuel its buses at the village public works department facility will save as much as $60,000 in expenses, and make the elementary school, where the buses are currently parked and fueled, a safer place, Marturano said.

The district has two problems with its current site — underground fuel tanks that will eventually have to be replaced and pedestrian and vehicle safety with all the buses pulling into and out of the elementary school, Marturano said.

"We were looking for another site, and village officials got wind of it and came to us with the idea" of using part of the public works department acreage on the other side of Vly Creek, he said.

Clark and other village officials working on the proposal "deserve to be commended for their insight and willingness to tread into uncharted territory," Marturano added. "This will be very beneficial to everyone, especially the taxpayer."

Water woes flow before NS town board

By Dev Tobin

Like a broken record, concerns about groundwater quality in the northeast part of New Scotland have become a regular part of the town board agenda every month.

In July, the board considered two residents' requests — for an extension of the Font Grove Water District and for a new district, served by the Guiderland water system, along Wormer and Normanskill roads.

Bob Cook of Font Grove Road said that he and two of his neighbors had received informal approval from Bethlehem, which supplies the Font Grove district, for an extension.

Cook noted that he and his neighbors would pay the estimated $40,000 construction costs out-of-pocket, to avoid going to the state comptroller for approval of construction financing.

"This is too expensive to bond, but we feel it's a worthwhile investment on our part," Cook said. "We just want water for our houses."

The board scheduled a public hearing on the Font Grove extension for 6:30 p.m. on Aug. 13.

The board also received a copy of a letter from Carl Meyer of Normanskill Road to the Guiderland town board requesting a formal water district along Wormer and Normanskill roads.

Meyer wrote that about 16 families with a current population of about 38 persons would be in the proposed district, and that future development in the area would be limited.

In the past year, Guiderland has approved three contracts to supply water to individual residences in the proposed district area, Meyer noted.

According to Bruce Ringrose, Guiderland's director of public works, the town's water system has undergone a major upgrade in the past two years, so that the supply is now available for extension requests.

Supervisor Herb Reilly said he will try to arrange a meeting with the Guiderland town board to discuss the proposed water district.

In other business, the board filled two vacancies, naming Lorraine Tuzzolo to the planning board and Cynthia Elliott to the zoning board of appeals.

construct a similar 40-unit facility at the site. There is a waiting list to obtain storage space, Swasey told the board, and he has consulted neighbors regarding fencing and screening.

Traffic is not heavy at the site, he said, as most of the renters are long-term, such as parents moving in with adult children or college students returning home who need to store furniture. Swasey said his tenants also sign a contract regarding what can be stored. Chemical storage and vehicles are not allowed.

The commission said Swasey's plan lacked detail, and expressed their concern that the county would not have enough to work with. Village attorney Don Meacham said there had also been no word yet from Albany County Planning.

Swasey said he was "irritated about only getting a letter on July 15," two days before the meeting, notifying him of the necessary additions.

Commission Chairwoman Kathryn Scharl said that they had received Swasey's application in early July, which then went to the county. "We have to get their approval," she said.

Village engineer Hank LaBarba said that he needed to see "elevations" on Swasey's plan, which would indicate drainage from the site. Swasey had told the commission that the gravel site had been driveable "the next day" after 3 1/2 inches of rain had fallen. Still, LaBarba said, "The plan is incomplete. There are specific standards that have to be met. I'm not trying to give the applicant a hard time, but I would be reluctant to approve the plan based on the information provided."

Swasey, who claimed the board "liked people to spend money," apparently did not believe Scharl's assurance that there was not a major problem with the site, saying, "There always is, that's why Karen (Lausa) quit," as he left the

"We need to stick by the rules," LaBarba said, "or everybody will come in with a (sketch on a) paper napkin."

Drainage was also the main issue for Ann Roberts, who proposes to build a two or three-bedroom house on her property at 16 Cling Terrace. At the rear of the property is a 30 foot strip of forever wild land, with a 20 foot drainage easement for the village. Approval has not yet come from the Albany

Roberts said that the dry well was not even in her deed, and expressed her dissatisfaction at not knowing sooner that the Department of Health would have to approve the project. LaBarba explained that the process was to prevent conflicts or a return to the commission later. "We're here to minimize problems," he said.

Roberts questioned the need for Cling Terrace's drainage to go over her land. With the tilt of the street necessitating raised bed septic system, she wonders why the village doesn't take more responsibility for the drainage issues. Scharl reminded Roberts that the drainage easement was in place when she purchased her property; Roberts responded that perhaps the issue had not been examined closely enough when the subdivision was created, and could be reexamined now.

Scharl said that the issues had come up bit by bit, and although she understood Roberts' frustration, the problems had been made known up front, and that Roberts' engineer should know that the Health Department needs to be involved. Roberts claimed that her engineer was good, and that the problem was the drainage easement, not the septic system. Scharl firmly replied, "No. There are many issues. 'Roberts summed up her frustration. 'I've sold my house, and bought land to build and may not be able to. I've got $40,000 worth of land.'"

Scharl reiterated that she was not trying to give Roberts a hard time. Should inspection of the French drain and dry well prove positive, and with a good report from the department of health, queried builder Owen Roberts, could a verbal OK come at the August meeting? Although Scharl could not promise anything, she said that is everything was in order, approval would come.

In an easier matter, the commission OK'd Bernice Meacham's subdivision of her property at 60 Altamont Road, pending DOT approval of a single curb cut for two driveways. Jim Meacham reported on his mother's behalf that he had received approval from the Albany County Department of Health for a conventional sewage system.

Scharl said they would also need to make a SEQR (State Environmental Quality Review) finding that dividing the property into two lots would have no significant environmental impact.

On an administrative front, Scharl reported that new by-laws for the commission had been adopted to supersede the old ones. Scharl also requested that anyone with suggestions to replace Lausa's position contact her or Mayor Ed Clark.

V'ville organizes for new school year

By Katherine McCarthy

Vowing to uphold the Constitutions of the United States and the state of New York, Nicholas Faraone was sworn in as the newest member of the Voorheesville school board at its organizational meeting.

John Cole and Steven Schreiber will again serve as president and vice president of the board, respectively, and Superintendent Alan McCartney's contract was extended through June 30, 1999.

Cole reported that the board would be meeting with the Voorheesville Teachers Association today, July 24, to discuss teacher contract negotiations.

"This is our first meeting with the VTA itself since December," Cole reported, adding that they had met with a VTA representative early last winter.

If no agreement is reached, Voorheesville teachers will go into their fourth year of teaching without a contract when they return to school in September. Currently, the board is offering a 12 percent salary increase over five years, while the VTA is seeking a 25 percent increase for the same period.

In other business, Anthony Marutano, assistant superintendent for business, said that a facilities report will be represented to the board in the fall. The report will address the issue of growth in the district and how to accommodate increased population.

"It's difficult to address the problem of growth," Marturano said. "It's not just classrooms, but cafeterias and gyms too. It's difficult to come to a reasonable answer in the realm of doing and affording to do."

Marturano said that recent heavy rains had caused the high school's small gym to flood again, and that he had applied to the Federal Emergency Management Agency for funding to prevent future flooding, and repair damage to fields, trees and pumps.

"It's been impossible in such a wet year," Marturano said, adding that he had been told verbally that there was "some certainty that the FEMA funding would come through."

In a discussion regarding Internet use on the high school's networked computers, board member Tom Thorpe advocated a proactive stance be taken to educate children and their parents on the positive use of the Internet.

To help ensure students' safety on the Internet, McCartney said that Voorheesville accesses the Internet via a BOCES node, which has built-in defectors.

Should a student initiate a search with the word "sex," for instance, references to "hiking" might be given, McCartney explained.

Schreiber questioned whether it was possible to know where a student is on the Internet; McCartney said that while he was not 100 percent sure, he imagined it was "likely."

Although Erica Sufrin was not present at the meeting, the board addressed her concern that the public is not given enough notification of topics to be discussed at board meetings.

Responding to her suggestion that agenda packets be prepared one week in advance, McCartney said that it already required a great deal of effort to provide the packets to board members on a Friday for a Monday meeting.

Backing it up more, he said, would delay topics getting onto the agenda.

The board agreed with board member Robert Baron's suggestion that regular meeting agendas should be available in the superintendent's office on the day of a meeting.

In another matter, the board agreed to set this year's schedule for Focus Forum discussions at its next meeting on Aug. 5.

Cole closed the meeting on a sad note, pausing to remember the salutarian of the Class of 1993, Michael Welker, who was killed in a train accident outside Syracuse on July 13.

BC grad receives doctorate

Christopher M. Burns, son of Pamela Burns of Slingerlands and Paul Burns of Guilderland, received his doctorate degree in molecular biology from Indiana University on May 30.

Dr. Burns was a 1985 graduate of Bethlehem Central High School. He completed his undergraduate studies at McGill University in Montreal, Canada, where he received his bachelor of science degrees in immunology and microbiology.

He later attended Indiana University to pursue his work under a training grant from the National Institute of Health.

Burns has been granted a fellowship at Oxford University in Oxford, England, for postdoctoral studies. He is currently a senior research assistant and lecturer at Oxford University's John Radcliffe Hospital in the Institute of Molecular Medicine.

Burns resides in Oxford, England, with his wife, Dr. Stephanie Wragg.

Bethlehem Welcome Wagon celebrates 60th birthday

Supervisor Sheila Fuller has proclaimed the week of July 22 as Welcome Wagon Week to mark the organization's 68th birthday.

Welcome Wagon representatives visit the homes of new movers and other families in transition to present useful gifts and special offers from local businesses and professionals. These are given in a gift basket the group calls "The Most Famous Basket in the World." Representatives distribute information for many civic and cultural groups and answer questions regarding the community.

In the proclamation, Fuller wrote, "Welcome Wagon promotes good will, helpfulness and solid sense of community among our new and long-standing residents by extending the warm hand of hospitality to new movers, newly engaged couples, new parents and new citizens."

Welcome Wagon is a nationwide organization that has greeted more than 50 million families. Its 2,200 representatives around the country expect to reach more than 600,000 homes this year. It was founded on July 28, 1928.

The group's name comes from wagons of frontier days. Then, townspeople often sent messages of greeting with a wagon full of supplies to passing wagon trains in the hope of enticing the travelers to settle in the community.

In Bethlehem, a Welcome Wagon visit can be arranged by calling 785-9640. A visit can be arranged for anywhere in the country by calling 1-800-77-WELCOME.

Matters of Opinion

Contact committee

For many months, The Spotlight has published letters concerning the appropriateness of a Christmas tree at the Bethlehem Public Library. Feelings run high on both sides of the issue that is obviously of great interest to the community.

Editorials

Last week, in addition to the letters, we published the names of members of an ad hoc committee, who have been charged with coming up with a policy on holiday decorations at the library. Perhaps, as one letter writer suggested last week, it's time for the paper to bow out, and let the committee take over.

We urge those people who have an opinion about this issue to contact the committee, since it will have a definite impact on the library's future policy on holiday decorations.

To share your views, write to the Ad Hoc Advisory Committee on Library Decorations, c/o Bethlehem Public Library, 451 Delaware Ave., Delmar 12054.

Kudos for sharing

At its core, the local regionalization movement is a laudable attempt to reduce the Capital District's relative disadvantage in terms of property taxes.

While ambitious plans to eliminate village governments and share tax revenues from new development across county lines face uncertain futures, smaller cooperative ventures make both political and fiscal sense.

In Voorheesville, the school district and village will launch a pilot project in September for parking and fueling school buses on the grounds of the village public works department. The project has the potential to save the district thousands of dollars while also providing additional revenue, much of it derived from state aid, for the village.

If the pilot program flies, the district will avoid spending money on two evidently redundant facilities — new above-ground fuel tanks and a new site to park buses, which currently clog the elementary school campus.

District and village officials, especially Anthony Marturano, assistant superintendent for business, and Mayor Edward Clark, are to be commended for their foresight in finding a way to save money by sharing services.

Bruno idea a bust

Word is that Sen. Joe Bruno, Republican state Senate leader, is considering appointing a commission to come up with ideas to reform the budget process so the state will have a document passed by April 1.

Sure, Joe! A commission is something that can perpetuate itself, if for no other reason than staffers need some longevity in a job to make it worthwhile.

But, what can a commission tell us that common sense can't? At the risk of repeating ourselves one more time over and over again in ever redundant fashion, what is needed is a firm resolve by both parties to review the budget, cut to the chase and get it over with on time.

Years ago, when a budget a month late was considered a travesty, a sage fellow at the end of the bar suggested that the legislators be paid their full annual salary in the first three months of the year. Under our friend's plan, these worthy lawmakers would be on their own for expenses if they had to deliberate beyond April 1. That fellow has long gone to the big tap room in the sky, but his idea seems even more appropriate today.

Support firemen's fairs

For an old-fashioned, down-home good time, take the family to one of two local fairs this weekend.

Glenmont firefighters are readying for the 40th annual Firemen's Fair, which starts this Friday night.

Another longtime summer tradition returns Thursday, when the New Salem Volunteer Fire Department hosts the annual Punkintown Fair. Support these worthwhile local fund-raisers.

Teens often painted with dangerous brush

A different face of youth

By Joshua Kagan

Joshua Kagan is a 1996 graduate of Bethlehem Central High School. He is a member of The Spotlight editorial staff and will attend Yale University in the fall.

I rarely cross the Hudson River to go into Troy, but I couldn't help paying close attention recently to the Troy City Council's deliberations over imposing a curfew on youth. The apparent popularity of such a curfew is indicative of a broader phenomenon in society.

Curfews essentially treat all minors as if they were criminals. The worst face of youth is presented as a reason to institute a public policy that treats young people as second-class citizens.

Unfortunately, this seems to be how society views young men and women — assumptions based on the lowest common denominator are used to form quick judgments about individuals.

The face of youth most commonly seen in the mass media is an image associated with the relatively low rungs of the social ladder — drug addicts, tattooed and body-pierced moshers, unwed teen-age mothers, or those who spend their time waiting for the next wild party. These images shape people's views about an individual young person, before that person has even opened his mouth.

For example, a friend of mine, who is 17, baby-sits for a toddler and usually takes the child for walks around the block. But these walks have changed from an enjoyable activity to an unpleasant task because she doesn't get far before receiving rude looks or hearing someone say, "Girls that young shouldn't have kids." These people do not even consider the innocent explanation of the situation. Rather, they jump to unwarranted conclusions based on their preconceived notions.

I know this must sound like petulant whining, but it ceases to be whining when events like this, and worse, occur regularly. It ceases to be whining when people become the subject of unwarranted police harassment solely because of their age.

In my town, if you are walking with several people at night, especially on a weekend, you will be stopped by a police officer. A police car will pull alongside you, the officer will roll down the window and begin interrogating you.

The officer will likely ask for your name and phone number,

In today's schools, you will find young men and women doing amazing things.

some form of identification, and, directly or indirectly, accuse you of alcohol or drug use. I have been in such situations six times, including three times in one night and one occasion in which I was frisked. (And it's probably worse for teen-agers who are dressed alternatively or who are not white.)

In my experience, prejudices about young people have shaped people's initial opinions of me. These opinions change only after a person gets to know me, and comes to believe I am an exception to the stereotype. This seems to be the case with many people — young people in general are bad, but the young men and women that they know are good.

The obvious problem is that all the assumptions have an element of truth to them. There are a depressing number of teens mixed up in crime and drugs, who have become unwed parents, or who spend too much of their time at wild parties. These people, of course, do not make up the majority of teen-agers; in fact, they make the news because they are outside the norm.

When people get to know a young man or woman, most quickly drop their stereotypes, or at least make an exception for that individual. They discover that the person has much to offer.

For instance, most working teens quickly prove themselves to be a very able employees, often doing more than flipping burgers or bagging groceries. Teen-agers are very capable of performing complex office jobs, generally have excellent computer skills (often much better than older employees), and are eager for any experience they can get.

This newspaper is an example of a business that enjoys many contributions of youth. Five teens, plus several high school sports correspondents, play large roles in putting The Spotlight together. In fact, the production department recently complained that they did not have a teen-ager working for them. (It should also be noted, for the sake of budget-minded bosses, that teens are hungry for jobs, so they work well for little money).

In today's schools, you will find young men and women doing amazing things. You will find people who manage to balance all their classes with activities like presenting high-quality theatrical and musical performances, composing respected publications, and generally doing any number of impressive things that counter the stereotype.

Unfortunately, this fact is lost on the police officer who frisked me without probable cause, or the people who assume my friend is a teenage mother. When people wait to judge young men and women, and realize that the young men and women they know and respect are the rule, not the exception, young people will finally be able to fully showcase their skills, to everyone's benefit.

Your Opinion Matters

NiMo plant manager cites case for tax break

Editor, The Spotlight:

Niagara Mohawk agrees with your July 10 editorial, "Switch Tactics, NiMo," that the stakes are high in our challenge to the assessment of the Albany Steam Station in Glenmont. We also agree for your call for a compromise. That is our preferred solution as well, and we will continue to pursue it.

There is a vast discrepancy between the tax burden the plant is now being asked to carry and the obligation it can afford to pay in a competitive power market.

The Public Service Commission has ordered the implementation of a wholesale power market in New York, beginning early next year. In such a market, power plants will operate or not operate based on their ability to produce a competitively priced product.

The traditional regulated monopoly structure made large utility properties an attractive and dependable source of increasing tax revenues that were passed along in rates to all customers. Niagara Mohawk's property tax bill grew from $214 million in 1990 to $290 million in 1995, contributing to rising energy prices, as you remarked, "Utility bills soar, yet there is no recourse for its customers, no other act in town or any place else to turn to."

That situation will soon change as competition replaces monopoly regulation. There will be no guaranteed customers in one part of a service territory to help pay taxes in another part.

The Albany Steam Station will have to compete for business with plants that are taxed more favorably, in a marketplace skewed by the legal requirement that Niagara Mohawk buy unneeded, overpriced power from independent producers.

Our aim is simple: serve the interests of both Niagara Mohawk and the community by allowing the Albany Steam Station to remain an important employer and taxpayer in the town of Bethlehem. With today's tax burden, that future is very much in jeopardy.

All-stars are good will ambassadors

Editor, The Spotlight:

Our community can take pride in the recent accomplishments, both on and off the field, of the 1996 District 5 13-year-old Babe Ruth All-Star Champions.

Their exemplary play and sportsmanship in winning the district championship has been documented in The Spotlight. Their participation in the state championship in Plattsburgh was valiant, but fell short of their goal of bringing home the state title.

But it needs to be mentioned (perhaps most important in these times of such attention to the undesirable activities of some youth) that the 15 boys who lived and played in Plattsburgh were superb and gracious guests of that community.

Our boys and 105 others were house guests of families of the host team. As the week progressed, with no shortage of idle time because of inclement weather and numerous rainouts, those of us accompanying the team received many compliments on the fine manner in which the boys handled themselves with families, community members and as role models for the other seven teams.

As the team prepared to leave the town where they had made so many friends, tournament officials, community leaders and other coaches and managers were again most sincere in their praise of the young men who called themselves the Bethlehem Black Socks. They deserve our congratulations and respect for how very well they played.

The team, their parents and coaches would like to thank their many supporters in Bethlehem, including Klersy Building Corp., Wm. P. McKeough Landscaping, Blackman & DeStefano Real Estate and Burt Anthony Associates.

"No Sweat!"

"One study suggests that 70 percent of us might boycott those that use sweatshops."

—Ellen Goodman, syndicated columnist, in The Times Union, July 19.

Recent revelations about dangerous, inhumane conditions persisting in sweatshops have horrified everyone. Or almost everyone, it seems.

Tomorrow, July 25, a good law goes into effect to clamp down on those shops in New York State.

The new law will crack down on apparel manufacturers who don't pay the wages employees have earned—and then close up shop and disappear, only to reopen under different business names though with the same sleazy practices.

A good, progressive, fair law protecting people whose fingers are their only asset, you agree? Governor Pataki signed it after approval by both the "Republican Senate" and the "Democratic Assembly."

Your Assemblyman, John Faso, was among those who voted against that good law. He said "No!" in an effort to kill this reform.

Why? Is this 1996 or is it 1906? What penny-pinching technicalities did the cheating owners' lobbyists offer for a "No" vote?

Does that callous vote reflect a point of view you would like to have represent you any longer? (This is 1996, after all).

This November 5, there's a great alternative to 1906 attitudes and votes:

RCS school board members attend training seminars

Veteran RCS school board member Mona Selover and newly elected member Shirleen Kreplin attended a two-day training academy of the New York State School Boards Association in Albany July 13 and 14.

Selover attended an intensive training conference for experienced school board members on "Educational Standards: Preparing for the Future."

"The Board of Regents is redefining the educational standards by which local school districts must evaluate their students," Selover said. "These new requirements will profoundly affect the academic lives of our students, and the program helped me understand these standards and how our school board can ensure success for our district's students."

The academy attended by Kreplin was designed to orient new board members to the duties and responsibilities of serving on a school board.

"The scope of what school board members must know can be overwhelming," said Kreplin. "But it is a fascinating challenge which this seminar will help me meet."

"I also met other newly-elected school board members from across the state, and learned about how different districts have handled the same issues," she added.

Seminar topics ranged from state education finance to the role of the school board in the school budget process and labor negotiations.

Each year, approximately 600 new school board members from across New York State attend these weekend training seminars.

Fair

Every year, the parking lot of Town Squire shopping plaza is filled to capacity, and a shuttle bus runs back and forth from Farm Family parking lots on Route 9W to accommodate people who cannot find a parking space.

Bailey, who joined the company in 1972, remembers when the fair was still in its formative stages and volunteers included an auction as one of the draws.

"One year, we had this full-size piano that we had to roll right down Glenmont Road in order to get it there," he recalled.

Another cherished tradition that has fallen by the wayside, Wiggand said, was rolling out a huge piano from the firehouse into the grove on the last night of the fair. "It signaled the end of the fair, and we would all stand around it and sing songs."

Organizers of the first Glenmont Firemen's Fair, the proceeds of which go to charity and ancillary company expenses such as upkeep of the firehouse and parade uniforms, included Wiggand, Bob Burns, Bill Mooney, Carl Kendall, Al Relation, the late Charlie Fritts, the late Art Fleahman and the late Bob Pauley.

This year's event kicks off at 6 p.m. Friday, July 26, and runs to 11 p.m. After Saturday's flea market, festivities continue to 11 p.m. The following weekend, the fair will be open Friday, Aug. 2, from 6 to 11 p.m. and Saturday, Aug. 3, from 6 to 11 p.m.

Problem

locating Marie Rose Manor at the end of their road because of concerns over traffic. Two residents, Doug Fisher and Rona Devane, sued unsuccessfully to stop the project.

"I really didn't anticipate (the project)," Corcione said. "I chose the lot based on the presumption that it would be forever wild (at the end of the block). I was definitely disappointed. I came from Western Avenue (in Albany) and was looking forward to the open spaces. I was hoping to put in a tennis court or hockey rink (where Marie Rose Manor is), but I guess it shows what happens when you put some faith in real estate people."

Resident Mike Gallagher said he has noticed a "significant" increase in traffic on the street, which is the only access to the project.

"I really don't have a strong feeling one way or the other (about Marie Rose Manor)," he said. "But it would have been my preference if they had found another entrance."

There are 50 one-bedroom apartments at Marie Rose Manor, which is geared to seniors with low incomes. In 1994, the Bethlehem town board granted a zoning change to allow DePaul Management Corp., the housing arm of the Catholic Diocese of Albany, to build the facility on land that had been zoned AA residential.

Marie Rose Manor is currently about 75 percent occupied, Diaz said. Within another month or two, the building should be fully occupied.

"No one has mentioned anything about the traffic to us," she said. "I'd be surprised if (speeding) was the case."

For Marie Rose resident Rosemary Dahl, her new home has been a blessing.

"I'm as happy as a lark," she said. "This is a beautiful spot. It almost feels like millionaire's row. This is heaven as far as I'm concerned."

Dahl said she understood the neighbors' concerns about traffic, although she wondered where all the traffic was coming from since "Most of us have given up our cars."

Now that the facility is up and running, "It has proven not to be a great problem," said Marquis Drive resident Hilton Segal. "The way it was presented to us was deceptive. We were led to believe that the area would remain forever wild."

"It probably goes all the way back to buyer beware," Segal said. "We should have gone to town hall and attended the first town board presentations."

"There is definitely an increase in traffic," he added. "I'd prefer that nothing would have been built there."

On the other hand, he said, "Aesthetically speaking, it looks better than I anticipated."

Fisher, the chief opponent of Marie Rose, said he felt bad for the residents at the end of Marquis Drive who are next to the project.

"I know they're extraordinarily unhappy because of its closeness and visibility," he said. "When you look out your window, all you see is a two-story apartment building, and that's not what should be next to single-family homes. I still believe that."

Diaz noted that since Marie Rose Manor broke ground, 10 new homes have gone up (or are going up) in Dutchbrook, which "would not lead us to believe there is any drop in property values."

"I've just been very impressed by how happy (the residents of Marie Rose Manor) are to be in a community where they lived before or have family," she concluded.

This week's book suggestions:

In Margaret Yorke's "Dangerous to Know," a wife abused by an outwardly perfect but inwardly rotten husband not only gets revenge but discovers her own worth and amazing strengths in a very satisfying mystery.

In "The Real Frank Zappa Book," the late musician/composer relates hilarious and surreal anecdotes from adolescence and his years as leader of the Mothers of Invention. He also offers chapters on his Congressional testimony against censorship of rock lyrics, the unethical tactics of con-artist televangelists, his marriage to his "fabulous wife," and of course, "All About Music."

Vlomankill excursion slated this month

A guided walk will be offered on Saturday, July 27, at 10 a.m. at the Five Rivers Environmental Education Center on Game Farm Road in Delmar.

A walk along the Vlomankill stream, led by center naturalists, will explore the watercourse of the stream and the life within.

For information, call Five Rivers at 475-0291.

Families are invited to campfire sing-along

Educator George Steele will entertain families with participatory stories and songs about nature at a campfire sing-along entitled "Nature Tunes and Tales" on Monday, July 29, at 7:30 p.m. at the Heldeberg Workshop on Picard Road in Voorheesville.

Admission to the event is $5 per family.

For information, call 463-8644.

100,000+ books checked out

This year produced a new record of 105,309 checkouts from the library. The library has been closing in on the 100,000 mark for several years and surpassed it for the period from July 1, 1995 to June 30, 1996.

Library Director Gail Sacco said, "Based on a head count of 7,485 people in the district, this is an average of 14.07 items per person. We are thrilled to be serving a community of such avid readers."

When the official total was calculated, library staffers celebrated with a cake.

We note with sadness the passing of Jane Blessing, who served on the library board of directors for 40 years and is remembered with great fondness and respect.

All the cool kids will be watching the animated movie classic "Thumbelina," the Hans Christian Andersen story with musical score by Barry Manilow on Thursday, July 25, at 2 p.m.

The Every Other Thursday Night Poets meet at 7 p.m. July 25. Newcomers are invited. For information, call 765-2791.

The sketch club will not meet during the summer. The next scheduled meeting is on Wednesday, Sept. 11. Prospective members can leave their name and telephone numbers at the desk to join up in the fall or get information about special events during the summer.

Fishing poles and equipment are available for checkout. Courtesy of the Helderberg Bass Masters, the equipment can be borrowed for a two-week period. Take a pole with you on vacation or just down to the Vly Creek for an afternoon.

accurately identify the volume of traffic and the speed of motorists.

"I'd like to see sidewalks, but I know I won't get too far with that," said Jean Brooks. "The kids have to walk in the street to get to other people's houses, and when they see a car they normally race to higher ground."

"While we all train our kids to stay off the street, there is a reality that needs to be dealt with," said Eszter Weress. "This is not a seniors' community or an above-40s community. We have teen-age drivers and the situation on Roweland, that was a teen-age driver, although not all teen-agers are poor drivers. For all of the aforementioned reasons that people have given, and for about 20 more, I'd like to see a stop sign put up."

"A stop sign would certainly be a bother, yet I'm willing to put up with that type of hindrance," said Jeff Brown, a Glendale resident with three small children.

"I've seen near-misses, and it's terrifying to see the look of panic on a parent's face seeing what could happen," said Nancy Heinzen of Glendale Avenue. "And I don't believe it's a matter of being irresponsible."

Of the 30 children living on Glendale, "The oldest is 16 and the rest range from 5 to 10-years-old," Gil Boucher noted. "The yards are not that big, and there are kids out there on the street. My son is sometimes out in the road, and while I watch him carefully, I can't be out there all the time guarding him. If we can just slow the traffic down and give people something to think about, that would be a plus. I just think it's crazy that you can't put a stop sign there."

Vanderbilt said a special meeting of the traffic safety committee would be scheduled in the next few weeks, and that a recommendation on Glendale would be forwarded to the town board in time for its first meeting in August.

In another matter, Vanderbilt said he was amazed at the volume of cars using McCormack Road as a shortcut to avoid traffic on New Scotland Road.

"This is a rolling road with hills and curves," Vanderbilt said. "I'm quite surprised to see the speeds that we're getting in light of this."

St. Thomas to host reunion

On Saturday, Aug. 3, all graduates and former pupils of St. Thomas School, Delmar, are invited to spend a day reminiscing. On that date, the school will be open from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. The classrooms and auditorium will be filled with scrap books and displays of newspaper clippings about present and former students. The pavilion at the Bethlehem Town Park has been reserved from noon to 6 p.m. for family picnics.

The reunion will be the culminating event of a year-long celebration of St. Thomas School's 40th Anniversary which began last summer with a faculty reunion. At that time, all past and present faculty members were invited to spend an afternoon enjoying the displays, slides, and scrap books. A Mass of Thanksgiving for all God's blessings during these 40 years was celebrated by several present and past parish priests.

Later dinner for guests was served in the auditorium.

During this year, the names and addresses of all 2200+ former students were entered on the computer and attempts were made to correct that data. In October, letters were sent to 1,000 former students for whom we had current addresses.

On Aug. 3, each of our 37 graduating classes will have a folder containing a current class list and the "Update Sheets" returned by their classmates. An attempt was also made to help present students develop a "sense of history" re: their school. There were displays of newspaper clippings of present/former students in the corridor. This display changed daily.

All present and former faculty members are invited to join with our graduates and former students at the school.

Along the Plank Road from Albany to New Scotland

By Hugh Hewitt

The most frequented [drive] is the New Scotland turnpike which leads to a drive of inexhaustible extent and variety.

The Albany Hand-Book for 1881

The compiler of "The Albany Hand-Book for 1881" whets the reader's appetite with mention of sights along Albany's New Scotland Avenue and Bethlehem's New Scotland Road, known then as the Albany, Rensselaerville, and Schoharie Plank Road.

First, there is the "famous Log Tavern, the glory of which has somewhat faded under modern management." Several miles further west is "the pretty village of Slingerlands." From there, he writes, the plank road "takes us to the top of the mountain, from which the view is almost as sublime as is that from the hotel verandah [of the Catskill Mountain House] in the Catskills."

The Log Tavern was on the northwest corner of Krumkill Road and New Scotland Avenue. The small development there was named Hurstville for William Hurst who settled there in 1861 and built what was known as Hurst's Hotel on the site of the Log Tavern.

Hurst Avenue near New Scotland Avenue and Krumkill Road

This New Scotland Avenue sign refers to "Charles' Field." Doug Persons perpetuates the name of William Hurst. During prohibition days, the hotel was known as The Love Nest, and the proprietor was "Pop" Johnson. It was a popular place in the Roaring '20s, with dance bands, floor shows, and the accompanying excitement. Sadly for some, the building was destroyed by fire on Election Night in 1929.

The plank road, was opened for traffic as a toll road in 1859. It ran from Lydius Street (present Madison Avenue in Albany) through Slingerlands, New Scotland, and New Salem, up on the Helderbergs, through Berne and Gallupville, and on to Schoharie. Although much of this road was originally covered with planks, the authors of a county history published in 1897 stated, "The use of plank on a large part of this road was abandoned some years ago."

The Hurstville post office was first located in Hurst's Hotel, but later transferred to the toll house, opposite O'Neil Road and the entrance to the present-day Albany municipal golf course where the Walley farm was located. It was abolished in 1902 when rural free delivery came into existence. The plank road tollgate in the 19th century was between the schoolhouse and the Walley farm, near Paddock Road. The white painted brick Walley house (1841) still stands even though the farm has disappeared.

Travellers driving west from Albany to Slingerlands may wonder about the sign announcing "KARLSFELD" across New Scotland Avenue from the Training Academy of the state Department of Correctional Facilities (the former Mater Christi Seminary, opened in September 1954). Karlsfeld is German for Charles' Field and was the name in the 1920s for the athletic field where the training academy is now located.

It was set up by Rev. William R. Charles when he was pastor of St. Vincent de Paul's Church in Albany.

Mildred Flagler, who has lived in Karlsfeld since 1942, said that the people there petitioned Mayor Corning in 1967 to annex the area so they could have water, sewerage, and electricity. They also received the mayor's promise that their taxes would not be increased for five years, and he kept that promise. Karlsfeld today contains more houses than 50 years ago.

Then, too, there was a small neighborhood store in the house next door to the firehouse on New Scotland Avenue. The store was run by Woodruff and Agatha Sorrell. Both of the Flagler sons are volunteers in the Slingerlands Fire Department. They have to go to the firehouse in Slingerlands, at least two and a half miles west on New Scotland Road, when there is an alarm.

And now, since Karlsfeld is within the city limits of Albany, fire fighting equipment must come from the firehouse on New Scotland Avenue near St. Teresa of Avila Church in the city. The firehouse is a relic of the days when Karlsfeld was in Bethlehem. It contains a fire engine used in Slingerlands.

The plank road formerly crossed the Normanskill on a covered bridge, and the road to North Bethlehem (Blessing Road) went to the right just before the bridge. This section of road, which no longer exists, was another drive recommended by the compiler of The Albany Hand-Book for 1881.

Mantle squad keeps on going

By Scott Isaacs

The Bethlehem Mickey Mantle squad held off Sorensco to take the Eastern New York Mickey Mantle League championship last week, finishing the regular season with a record of 20-1 — the first 20-win season for the program since 1991.

Bethlehem, which begins play in the North Atlantic regionals on Thursday, Aug. 1, received a bye for the New York state tournament.

The Blue Eagles' closed out their season with two easy victories, the first being a 12-2 drubbing of Stillwater. Dan Conway knocked three doubles, while Cory Czajka had two singles and a home run. Matt Elfeldt pitched a two-hitter, striking out six in his complete-game effort.

The Blue Eagles then traveled to Twin Town to close out the regular season, and did it in grand fashion, scoring 14 runs in the first inning to coast to a 17-4 victory. Conway again exploded offensively, hitting two homers.

The victory clinched first place for Bethlehem, and also marked the return of Matt Tulloch and Chris Brown to the mound. They each pitched half the game after coming back from lengthy injuries. Their return bulks up the Eagles' pitching staff, which has worked short-handed all season.

Coach Jesse Braverman was pleased with how his team maintained its consistency throughout the season.

"We had a great regular season, and we are reaching our peak at just the right time," he said. "It's the first time since 1990 that we've gotten to the regionals, and it wasn't an easy trip. Hopefully, this only marks the beginning of our success."

Black Sox win district tourney

The Bethlehem Black Sox, Bethlehem's 13-year old Babe Ruth All-Star team, recently completed a successful march through the District Babe Ruth Tournament.

After losing to Colonie in the first game of the tourney, the Black Sox won four consecutive games. They defeated Central (Albany) and Colonie, and later swept both ends of a doubleheader against Guilderland to win the district championship and a trip to the state championship tournament in Plattsburgh.

Babe Ruth

The Bethlehem squad ran into tremendous pitching in the state tournament, losing to Rondout Valley (near Kingston) as Lex Redding tossed a one-hit shut-out and fanned 15 Black Sox.

They were then eliminated by Cohoes. A team representing Kent, in Putnam County, was the eventual tournament champion.

Members of the Bethlehem District Championship team include Jon Albert, Tyler Crosier, Ben Felson, Morgan Gmelch, Alan Lewis, Mike Mahan, Jon Nowak, Lucas Parks, Avi Rasowsky, Tim Rice, Adam Rodriguez, Rick Root, Brian Rowan, Bill Tierney and Nate Turner.

Manager Berny Rasowsky was assisted by coaches Wayne Parks and Steve Rice.

Bethlehem hopes to host an invitational tournament this week for several local teams, including several that competed in the state tournament.

Olympics provide valuable lessons

This is a very exciting time for the many people who are following the Olympics. Our children can learn important lessons watching the talented young people taking part in the games. Parents can use this opportunity to initiate discussions with their children about competition in sports and the place of competition in other aspects of life.

Competition can be a positive force in young lives. It can promote self esteem, develop positive life skills and enhance a sense of achievement. Many of our children compete in soccer, baseball, softball, football and other athletic leagues. Hopefully, participation in these sports and leagues help youngsters learn how to win, and how to lose. Parents and coaches have a key role in teaching children how to handle both winning and losing. We all feel good when we see athletes do their best and when they react with dignity and grace, whether they win or lose.

It is important that children learn how to be a sports fan as well as a participant. What happens in the stands is an important lesson for youngsters. Parents need to keep in mind that positive comments and encouraging remarks are the only way to react during kids' athletics. Many of us feel embarrassed when we hear other adults complaining and arguing as they watch their children compete in athletic contests. Promotion of healthy and positive reactions to the events on the playing fields are responsibilities we all share.

The Spotlight remembers

This week in 1986, these stories were making headlines in The Spotlight.

- Bethlehem received two legislative member items, totaling $54,000, for an addition to its fire training tower off Kenwood Avenue, which is used by all five fire districts in town.

- In a rare primary, William Cleveland challenged incumbent Michael Frantsov for the 10th election district seat on the Bethlehem Republican committee.

- By a 6-1 vote, the Bethlehem planning board approved, with conditions, a controversial psychiatric hospital proposed for Route 9W in Glenmont.

- A bill before Gov. Mario Cuomo to exempt city of Albany water facilities from local property taxes would cost the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Central School District more than $240,000, the town of Bethlehem $75,000, and the Bethlehem Central School District $78,000, in annual revenue, according to district and town officials.

- Tracy Farley Walsh Rabineau, who founded The Spotlight on her Rowland Avenue kitchen table in 1955, died at her home in Lake Placid at the age of 73.

HISTORY HUNT

- Cherry Hill recreates 1890s family life

By Joshua Kagan

Families can step back in time to see what it was like to grow up in the late 1800s through a History Hunt at the Cherry Hill mansion in Albany this summer.

The program recreates the childhood pursuits of Emily, Herbert and Elmendorf Rankin in the 1890s. The children raised bunnies, gardened, drew pictures, read and wrote in secret languages at Cherry Hill.

"They'll learn what it was like to be a child in the 19th century and about one particular family," Cherry Hill Education Director Rebecca Watrous said. "It was a very active life and a very happy childhood they had."

Watrous said the Rankins were typical upper-middle-class children of the time. "Their pursuits were something other children their age would have done," she said.

The activity, which takes about 45 minutes, is recommended for families with children in fourth-grade or older. Participants will be given a sheet of questions with clues to point them in the right direction. They will then be on their own to search for more clues on the five-acre property.

Many historical documents and photographs, including items written by the Rankin children, will be seen during the hunt. At the end of their search, participants will be able to play one of two common games from the late 1800s — cup and ball toss and Jacob's ladder. The games require creativity, dexterity and hand-eye coordination.

Watrous said the History Hunt will allow families to compare growing up today to growing up a full century ago.

"There's a lot of parallels to 20th century and a lot of differences, too," Watrous said. "The Rankin children enjoyed typical childhood things that are universal." Among these things, she said, was their fascination with using secret codes.

Watrous said families will be impressed with the Rankins' "creativity." Without radio, television or other modern day technologies, they created many of their favorite activities.

The Cherry Hill home was built by the Rankin children's great-great-grandparents, Philip and Maria Van Rensselaer in 1787. The Van Rensselaers were a prominent Albany family and Philip was the first superintendent of the town of Bethlehem. The Rankin children were the fifth and last generation to live in the Georgian-style mansion.

The home became a museum in accordance with the will of Emily Rankin, who wanted the public to be able to view the home that had seen 176 years of continuous family life.

The History Hunt is offered Tuesdays through Saturdays through the end of August from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., and Sundays from 1 to 3 p.m., at 523 1/2 S. Pearl St. in Albany.

Guided tours of the house are offered during the same time. Admission for a tour of Cherry Hill is $3.50 for adults, $3 for senior citizens, $2 for college students and $1 for children, age 6 through 17. There is no charge to participate in the history hunt. Families are also invited to picnic on the museum grounds during the summer.

For information, call the museum at 434-4791.

Capital Rep staff keeping busy during summer with promotions

What does a professional theater do during the summer when the bucolic theaters are presenting their seasonal wares at resorts and mountain retreats?

If it's Capital Rep, it concentrates on sales promotions for the coming season.

On Saturday, July 27, the company will hold a garage sale at its North Pearl Street theater. From 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., Capital Rep staff will display the theater's excess stock of costumes, scenery and props and miscellaneous items used in past productions and not needed any longer.

The sale begins promptly at 9:30 a.m., with no early bird sales or previews. Coffee and snacks will be available, and a drawing will be held for two subscriptions for the coming season.

Capital Rep also sponsors another promotion whereby non-profit organizations can generate revenue by selling season ticket subscriptions.

As the theater clears its warehouse of excess materials and encourages non-profits to add to the theater's subscription base, plans are being made for the opening production of the season, Brian Friel's Dancing at Lughnasa, which opens Oct. 15 as the first of five major productions and the Authors Theatre Winterfest.

The latter is a collaboration of Capital Rep and the New York State Writers Institute, New York State Institute and the

Then the company will return to the Opera House on State Street to do three well-known musicals throughout the rest of the season.

For two weekends (Dec. 6-15), the company will offer They're Playing Our Song, which combines Neil Simon's script with the music and lyrics of Marvin Hamlisch and Carole Bayer Sager.

In March, the classic Guys and Dolls will provide a view of the Damon Runyon world of the 1920s.
