Spurlock wants EnCon to review plant specs

By Mel Hyman

Spurlock Adhesives Inc. has joined the battle over who should assume lead agency status for the environmental review of its $9.5 million formaldehyde production plant proposed for Glenmont.

In a letter to the state Department of Environmental Conservation last week, Spurlock attorney Jeffrey S. Baker of Albany argued why EnCon, rather than the Bethlehem town board, should oversee the review.

On Tuesday, Dec. 3, Bethlehem Supervisor Sheila Fuller outlined the town board's position for seeking lead agency status. She cited the discharge of wastewater into the town's sanitary sewer system, the public's concern over health risks posed by plant emissions and the possibility of an accident.

On Wednesday, it was Spurlock's turn. Baker's two-page letter to EnCon emphasized three main points: first, that the town lacked jurisdiction over the Route 144 plant since no approvals were needed — from the town board, the planning board or the zoning of appeals — for the project to proceed.

Since it is located in an industrial zone,

It's apparent that Spurlock is in bed with the DEC and that they have no reason to oppose local control.

Normanside to expand dining, banquet rooms

By Mel Hyman

Normanside Country Club has been around since the 1920s, so it's not surprising that club members would decide that a little sprucing up would be in order.

What's actually being done, however, is much more ambitious than a little sprucing up. Ground was broken Monday on a $1.6 million expansion project that should ensure the club's viability well into the 21st century.

The project is multi-faceted, club president Larry Mokhiber said, with the biggest component being an expansion of the dining facilities, with the main dining room growing from its current capacity of 125 to 225 (with a dance floor still included), and with a small private dining room for up to 25 being built.

Once completed, the Normanside banquet rooms will be better equipped to Parking remains stickler for Mr. Subb shop

By Mel Hyman

Once again, Ella Ruff and Cindi Reilly, owners of the Mr. Subb franchise at the Four Corners in Delmar, are fighting for the right to put in tables and chairs for their sit-down customers.

And once again, the Bethlehem zoning board of appeals seems uncertain whether to grant the area variance for parking that Ruff and Reilly need to avoid violating the town's zoning code.

Richard Feirstein of Slingerlands, attorney for Ruff and Reilly (both of whom live in Bethlehem), complained last week about having to

What's hot, what's rot in kids' toys

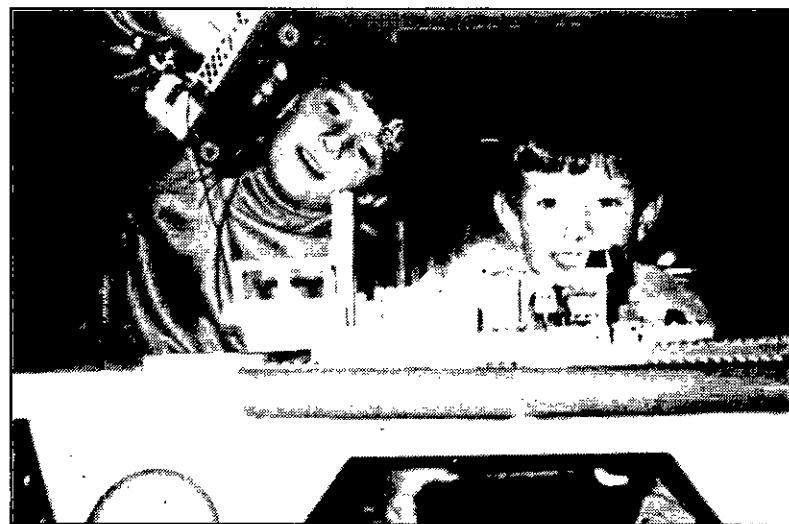

By Katherine McCarthy

When Christopher was 4, he discovered commercial TV — and sat hypnotized in front of the toy advertisements. One, in particular, became his obsession: Better Blocks, which could be bent into crowns, necklaces and pirate ships and they glowed in the dark to boot.

The true benefit of blocks that glow in the dark remains to be seen, but grandma paid what she considered the exorbitant price for this coveted item, and Christopher was delighted to find them under the tree on Christmas morning.

Within minutes, he was in tears. The blocks didn't fit together very securely, and when he tried to make the neat circles he'd seen on TV, they fell into a million pieces in his hands. The December sun that reflected off the snow to shine in the window precluded any chance of them glowing. Soon he stood up and flung the offenders onto the floor, proclaiming in great frustration, "They shouldn't be called Better Blocks. They're worse blocks!"

PBA earns 50% more from telemarketing campaign

By Mel Hyman

For 1995, the Bethlehem Police Benevolent Association received about 30 percent of the proceeds raised for it by outside telemarketers — the same cut of the pie it received in 1994.

But PBA president Anthony Arduini promises that will change because a new agreement was negotiated for 1996 with Nordel Publishing Inc., in which Bethlehem will receive 45 percent of proceeds.

"I don't think you'll find any other organization out there that's going to put the return any higher than that," he said. "I think if you check you'll find the average (percentage returned to charities or nonprofit organizations) is about 30 percent."

Arduini

Nordel telemarketers raised a total of $115,030 for the Bethlehem PBA last year, with a total of $34,509 going into the organization's coffers.

Statewide, the average return for charities in 1995 was 38 percent, according to state Attorney General Dennis Vacco, which is a 5 percent increase over 1994.

Vacco said he is committed to helping "charities strike a better deal" with fund-raisers, because it "enables them to better serve the community and maintain the public's trust and confidence."

Regionally, the return for nonprofits pretty much followed the norm. The Colonie PBA garnered about 34 percent of the $153,953 raised on its behalf by Nordel last year.

That was a drastic drop from 1994, however, when the Colonie PBA received 67 percent of the $148,495 raised for them.

There were also some organizations that fared quite a bit worse in 1995, such as the Albany County Sheriff's Department Employee Local 775, which only received 22 percent of proceeds.

Bringing up the rear was groups like Hudson Valley Community College Endowment Corp., which only managed a return of 9.1 percent from Nordel, been no problems that we have found."

If town residents are wary about the legitimacy of callers making a pitch for the Bethlehem PBA, Arduini said they should call him (or Detective John Cox) at the police department (439-9973) for verification.

The 1996 fund-raising campaign is just about over, Arduini said.

While most of the money raised by Nordel goes for publication of the annual P B A magazine, Bethlehem Defender, a significant portion is donated to local community groups.

Among the recipients of the PBA's largesse are Bethlehem Babe Ruth, Bethlehem Mickey Mantle, Bethlehem DARE, Bethlehem Opportunities Unlimited, the Capital District Fire Investigators Association, the Bethlehem Youth Bureau, Bethlehem Pop Warner, Delmar Dolphins, First Methodist Church Food Pantry, the Muscular Dystrophy Association, New York Special Olympics and the RCS-FHA Youth Leadership Conference.

Regardless of the charity involved, Vaccourged that potential donors ask the following questions:

- Is the caller a staff member of the charity they represent or a paid telemarketer?
- What does the charity plan to do with the money?
- Can the caller send printed literature that explains the charity's purpose and goals?
- What portion of your gift is used for administrative costs and what percentage will go to the charity after fund-raising expenses are deducted?
- Is the gift is tax-deductible?

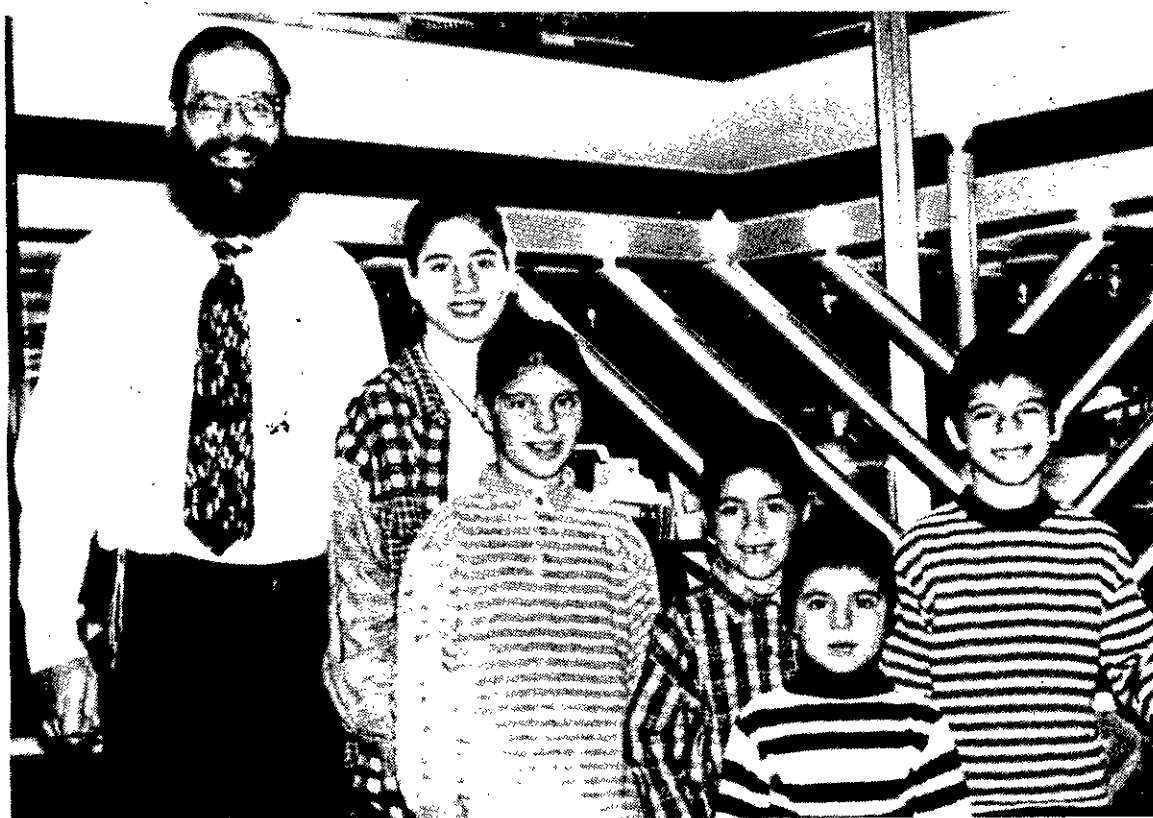

I don't think you'll find any other organization out there that's going to put the return any higher than that.

Anthony Arduini

and the Schenectady County Fire Chiefs Association, which only received 14 percent of proceeds from Stage Door Music Productions.

"We've been very happy with what Nordel has done for us up to now," Arduini said. "There have

NS planners approve Route 85 self-storage

By Dev Tobin

The New Scotland planning board granted site plan approval for the controversial self-storage facility proposed by Donald and Joan Wagner for the corner of Route 85 and New Scotland South Road last week, but not before the project had been changed again to reduce its impact on surrounding residences.

The Wagners had downsized the project from 76 to 67 units after the town zoning board of appeals voted to deny setback variances this summer. The Wagners had received a use variance last December to allow self-storage in a commercial zone.

The Wagners also reduced the size of three units at the end of one of the two buildings to allay concerns about the turnaround there and to site the building further away from the banks of the Vlomankill, according to the Wagners' attorney Roz Robinson.

In response to opposition from the Albany County planning board, the project's access to New Scotland South Road was eliminated, she added.

The town planning board's approval comes with several conditions, said board Chairman

Robert Stapf.

The conditions include limiting hours of operation to 6 a.m. to 9 p.m.; requiring hay bales and a silt fence during construction to limit storm water runoff into the Vlomankill; using a neutral paint color, such as tan, for the structures; having a flat roof, to reduce the visual impact; and coming up with a specific plan for screening by evergreens.

In other business, the board referred to the ZBA without recommendation Alfred Cook's proposal for two 199-foot radio transmission antennas on his Dunbar Hollow Road property. The project needs an area variance due to the height of the structures.

In previous informal appearances before the board, Cook had proposed one 250-foot tower, for two-way radio communications.

Stapf said that while having the towers under 200 feet might technically avoid the Federal Aviation Administration requirement for lighting, "We would probably require lighting anyway."

The board also approved a major expansion plan for Camp Pinnacle, including a new 16-unit dormitory, a new gym and an addition to the dining hall.

Contractor lugs illegal trailer off Clipp Road property

By Dev Tobin

More than a year after a trailer was illegally placed at 154 Clipp Road, a contractor engaged by the town of New Scotland removed it on the Friday after Thanksgiving.

"We're certainly glad to see this cleared up for the people living in that nice neighborhood," said Supervisor Herb Reilly.

One of the leaders of neighborhood opposition to the trailer was less pleased.

"I'm very happy the trailer is gone, but disappointed that the debris has not been removed yet," said John Dearstyne. "The town hasn't completed the job."

The trailer and other debris on the property were supposed to have been removed by Sept. 1 or its owners would face thousands of dollars in fines, according to a legal stipulation agreed to in July by the town board and the trailer's occupants, James and Ann Marie Charron.

Following eviction from a Troy trailer park in November 1995, the Charrons moved their mobile home to the Clipp Road property owned by Ann Marie and her mother.

Neighbors immediately complained that the trailer violated town zoning law.

In February, the Charrons received a conditional two-month temporary use permit to live in the trailer, during which time they said they would clean up the property and rehabilitate a structure there. The zoning board of appeals decided not to renew the permit in April after finding there had been no visible progress in the cleanup.

After failing to comply by the Sept. 1 deadline, the Charrons faced fines of up to $600 a week, starting from April 23, when their permit expired.

Under a new agreement reached later in September, the town did not enforce the provision calling for fines back to April.

The agreement empowered the town or its contractor to enter the property and remove the trailer, unregistered vehicles and other illegal debris, and then charge the costs of removal, along with attorney's fees, as a special assessment on next year's property taxes. Failure to pay the assessment may result in foreclosure and eviction.

Building Inspector Paul Cantlin, who has been supervising the matter for the town, estimated that total cleanup charges, including attorney's fees, would be about $3,000. He said the cleanup of the rest of the property should take place in the near future.

The Charrons moved into the structure on the property several weeks before the trailer was removed, Cantlin noted.

handle large outside gatherings, said club vice president Darryl Serian.

"We do have a public license, so we can accommodate special events such as wedding receptions and anniversary parties that need to be catered," Serian noted.

"There is a need in the community for this," Serian said. "I think the nearest facility that seats more than 200 is in Guilderland or Colonie. There will be nothing like this in Delmar, as far as I know."

To go along with the dining room expansion, the kitchen will also be upgraded. The locker rooms will receive a face lift, the parking lot expanded and the club's existing pool will be replaced with a new one.

Just in case you're burned out on golf, there are plans to construct two Har-tru tennis courts. The courts will be lighted for play during the evening hours.

To ensure proper maintenance of the club's 18-hole golf course, a new storage facility will be built for the tractors, mowers and golf carts.

Mokhiber, who has been a member for 40 years, recalled some of the club's up and downs over the years. The biggest disappointment was in 1962 when the clubhouse was destroyed by fire.

"I remember standing outside with my father and watching it burn," he said.

Mokhiber said that since the club had no existing debt, members decided to take out a new mortgage to pay for the upgrade.

There are currently about 340 members — encompassing all categories — with plans to increase the membership pool by about 15 in the coming year.

Even with the expansion, Normanside will certainly have plenty of open area surrounding it. The club is located on 200-plus acres, which includes a "lot of undeveloped land near the Normanskill."

And as you might expect, this area, nestled between densely populated Delmar and the Normanskill, contains a healthy amount of deer.

"There's certainly a lot of them," Mokhiber said. "They've almost become our pets."

"It's an ambitious project," Serian acknowledged, but "sometimes when you don't make any moves at all you end up going backward."

"We have one of the finest golf courses in the area," he added. "Everyone says that for such a short yardage course, it gives people fits."

reapply for a variance.

"Why are we here again?" Feirstein asked. "The question we have to consider, which is the same question that should have been asked" when Ruff and Reilly first applied for a variance in March 1995, is whether the applicants' business can be considered a restaurant.

Under the definition of a restaurant in the town code, Feirstein said a restaurant is a public eating place where food is served largely, if not entirely, at tables and where food is not sold to be taken from the building for consumption elsewhere.

Ruff told the board that while the vast majority of customers take their food out of the store, her total business would drop 15 percent if she had to operate without the three tables and 12 chairs.

Since Mr. Subb is primarily a takeout operation, Feirstein continued, the ZBA has no jurisdiction in the matter, and could be violating the owners' civil rights by holding them accountable to a statute that doesn't apply to them.

In their original March 1995 application, Ruff and Reilly applied for permission to put in seven tables and 28 chairs. That application was rejected by the ZBA, which maintained that the establishment needed at least 62 parking spaces contiguous to the store, and only 23 existed.

Ruff and Reilly did not immediately appeal the decision, but hired Feirstein to research the issue. Earlier this year, believing they were on firm legal ground, the owners decided to go ahead and put in three tables and 12 chairs because of the continuing demand for a sit-down eating area from seniors and young people who arrived at the store on foot.

Moreover, Ruff and Reilly received an overwhelming show of support for their position from their customers. They collected more than 1,000 petition signatures supporting the placement of tables and chairs in their store.

In June, building inspector John Flanigan went to town court and obtained a criminal citation against Ruff and Reilly for installing the tables and chairs in violation of the town code.

When the owners appeared in town court in September, Justice Peter Bishko adjourned the case in contemplation of dismissal so Ruff and Reilly could reapply for an area variance. Once their application has been filed, Flanigan was supposed to notify the court so that the tickets could be dismissed.

But until the ZBA rules on the current application, the store owners are in limbo. Are they violating the law or not?

ZBA Chairman Michael Hodom agrees that the question of whether Mr. Subb should be considered a restaurant is crucial.

"If in fact the business is not considered a restaurant, then it would be considered a retail establishment like the prior tenant, Linens by Gail, and they would not have to appear before us because the (Four Corners) plaza qualifies as an existing nonconforming use, and Mr. Subb would be grandfathered in," Hodom explained.

On the other hand, in the public interest, the board still has to consider the parking situation at the small strip mall, he said, and whether allowing a "minimum number of tables" in the store would exacerbate an already tough parking situation.

Board member Marjorie O'Brien questioned Ruff regarding the peak hours of business, which Ruff said occurred around 4 p.m.

O'Brien said that it didn't seem to jibe with her observations of the situation and the fact that Mr. Subb's dinner business (according to Mr. Subb franchise executives) didn't really begin until 5:30 p.m.

Other factors complicating the parking situation is the fact that some people patronizing other businesses in the Four Corners area park in front of the strip mall rather than on the street or in the municipal lot on the other side of Kenwood Avenue.

Ruff said customers have seen her "fly over the counter when I see people using other businesses in the parking lot. I ask them, 'Please, if you're going to the post office or the (Ocean Deck) fish market, use the municipal lot.'"

Since the demolition of the Getty gas station, seven or eight new parking spaces have been created, which has eased the crunch somewhat, Flanigan said, but at the same time, building owner John Treffeletti has failed to install three handicapped parking spots, which are required by law.

Flanigan said, in his opinion, allowing two or three tables in the store would not be a "detriment" to the current situation.

Hodom asked Ruff to supply the board with a profit-and-loss statement so it could ascertain whether a "practical difficulty" would be created by denial of the application.

When asked by Hodom whether she would stay in business if the board denied her application, Ruff replied, "I'm not sure."

"We're asking the zoning board to do the right thing," Feirstein said, "which is what you should have done all along," and "which would have saved the applicants a lot of money."

One local resident, Kay Leonard of Adams Place, spoke at last week's public hearing and questioned what all the fuss was about.

"I don't understand what the problem is. When I go to Mr. Subb, I don't think of it as a restaurant, and I've never had a problem parking there," Leonard said.

Festival Fund launches annual campaign

By Susan Graves

The Bethlehem Festival Fund, which quietly chugs along from year to year, lending community residents a helping hand, has launched its annual campaign.

And although, Bethlehem is generally thought of as an affluent community, real need does exist here, according to fund trustees.

"The needs increase, year after year. I'm not sure people in this community realize the needs that are there," said Eileen Perkins, Festival Fund trustee.

Festival Fund President Greg Jackson agreed, noting that last year the fund paid for and distributed 81 holiday food baskets to families throughout Bethlehem and this year, even more baskets will be needed.

What keeps Jackson, Perkins and fellow trustee Sue Cunningham working on the Festival Fund is that their efforts directly benefit the community. All money raised, with the exception of postage, is used to help people, either with food or in situations where people find themselves temporarily strapped.

The fund, which started in the 1940s as the White Christmas Festival to help families during the holidays gradually evolved into a year-round helping hand.

"We're an organization that fills in the cracks," said Perkins.

tank, or a senior citizen in the same dilemma, or a teen-ager who needs suitable clothing to get a job, she said.

"I'll always remember those two white shirts and two pair of black pants that helped get a job," Cunningham said.

Often, school nurses and social workers refer people to the fund for temporary help.

Regardless of the situation, the fund is there to help, and everything is held strictly confidential.

"The fund is a supplement, not meant to be ongoing," said Perkins.

During the holidays, the Festival Fund works in conjunction with the school district to collect food for the holiday baskets. Civic groups, including Delmar Rotary, Delmar Kiwanis and the Bethlehem Lions, local businesses, fire departments, PTAs and individuals also help fill the fund's coffers. "It's very community centered," Perkins said.

"It's really a rewarding experience to know that time and money go right back to the community, whose needs are identified and taken care of," added Cunningham.

Jackson said he is committed to the fund's future.

"If it didn't exist, it would be virtually impossible to create anything like it," considering state regulations and the like, he said.

"The bottom line is how many people we help. The bottom line is help," Perkins said.

To make a contribution to the fund, write to PO Box 341, Delmar 12054; or for information, call Jackson at 462-6731.

Man injured in Route 144 accident

A Waterbury, Conn., man remains in the intensive care unit at Albany Medical Center Hospital after a two-car crash on Route 144 in Glenmont Saturday.

Nathan Butler, 35, was traveling south on Route 144 at about 5:55 p.m. when he lost control of his car and entered the north-bound lane where he crashed head-on into a vehicle driven by Michael P. Pinney, 25, of Sodom Road, Hannacroix, police said.

Butler's head hit the windshield upon impact, and he was unconscious, suffering from head trauma, when police arrived.

Pinney was transported to Albany Medical Center Hospital where he was admitted for treatment and released on Monday, according to a hospital spokeswoman.

Jolene Pinney, 27, also of Hannacroix, was treated and released from Albany Medical Center Hospital on Saturday.

Butler was not wearing a seat belt at the time, police said, and imprudent speed is believed to have contributed to the accident. Officer Robert Berben investigated.

Matters of Opinion

Lend a hand

Chances are you won't get a phone call or knock on the door from a Bethlehem Festival Fund representative. The local organization makes only one appeal each year during the holiday season, and that's usually a letter to past contributors asking for a donation.

But that doesn't mean the fund doesn't need your help. It does — this year more than ever. The Festival Fund, which helps community residents in numerous ways, is hoping to raise $10,000, which goes directly to the recipients, who may be a family in need of a holiday food basket, a senior citizen who needs help with an oil or gas bill or someone who needs a pair of eyeglasses and can't afford them.

There is no red tape to cut through when it comes to the fund — no high-priced telemarketers or middlemen or administrative costs. It does what it sets out to, and that is helping people who are down on their luck. And Bethlehem, like any community, has its share of people who could use a helping hand.

Fund members stress that it is designed to help "fill in the cracks" for people experiencing temporary need. The fund is not meant to be an ongoing source of support, but a means to help out in a direct and confidential manner.

To contribute to the fund, send a check to Bethlehem Festival Fund, PO Box 341, Delmar 12054.

Look at big picture

The Christmas shopping season enters high gear, now that there are a mere two weeks left before the big day.

We hope the second part of The Spotlight's annual gift guide helps our readers last-minute-shop with a dual purpose — finding the right gift, of course, and also supporting local businesses that are a bulwark of the community.

Almost every week, we get letters from people involved in youth or church activities thanking local business owners for their support.

These business people, most of them neighbors, open their wallets year-round to make Bethlehem and New Scotland better places to live. Now is the time when shoppers can provide the means that allow local business owners to underwrite a myriad of non-profit good works.

We realize that, in some cases, prices at local small businesses may be higher than elsewhere. But we urge shoppers to look at the whole picture, factoring in the direct and indirect costs in gas, wear-and-tear, time and stress that commuting to shop adds to the bottom line.

A complete cost-benefit analysis would also include the hundreds of jobs, largely filled by your friends and neighbors, and the thousands of hours of volunteering they contribute to the community and, last but not least, the property taxes paid and sales taxes collected by local businesses, which moderate the taxes paid by residential property-owners.

Mark your calendars

Mark Saturday, May 3, on your calendars for another Bethlehem first. Bethlehem Community Partnership is in the middle of plans for Feestelijk Bethlehem, an evening featuring a variety of music groups, theater acts and festive family entertainment.

The name, Feestelijk Bethlehem reflects our Dutch heritage and translates to festive Bethlehem.

The event is already receiving support from the chamber of commerce, Bethlehem Networks Project, Bethlehem Opportunities Unlimited, the school district, the town and church youth groups.

The evening of entertainment will occur at various venues throughout town, similar to the First Night activities at the town bicentennial.

Volunteers are needed to work on committees. To volunteer, call Mona Prenoveau at 439-7740.

Charting life's course in a diary

By Susan Graves

The writer is managing editor of The Spotlight.

Several years ago Floyd Brewer sauntered into The Spotlight office to ask if I would help him on a "little" project related to the town's upcoming bicentennial. His project involved publishing a diary he had been keeping for 10 years to illustrate what life was like in the town of Bethlehem. I agreed.

Several years later Bethlehem Diary, Stories and Reflections: 1983-1993 was published. The book, the second to commemorate Bethlehem's 200th birthday in 1993, is something like a journey of one man's life, while at the same time reflecting life in a small town.

But, in the diary, what I thought would typify an average Delmar man — former SUNY professor, registered Republican — often ended up the opposite of what I had expected, turning the tables on me and my fellow editors, Joseph Allgaier, Teresa Buckley, Kristi Carr and Hugh Hewitt.

Each of us read two years of the 10 covered in the diary, and each of us was surprised at least once, by Floyd's story, which was remarkable for its assiduous attention to detail.

Brewer, in fact, was deliberate in focusing on the minutest detail, in the hope that some future scavenger into Bethlehem's past would find help in figuring out the life of a small town in the 20th century.

When he was researching the first bicentennial book Bethlehem Revisited, Brewer said it would have been helpful to have had first-person accounts of daily life. The dearth of this type of information was one reason Brewer decided to create his own record, via the diary.

Brewer was always forthright and candid in relating his story, sometimes painfully so. His own family history is packed with drama, with its own joys and tragedies.

Brewer

Point of View

In a more global sense, Floyd wrote about national politics, grappling with issues that in at least one election turned him away from his party of choice — the GOP — to vote for Bill Clinton in 1992. But the focus of the diary was primarily Bethlehem as seen through Floyd's eyes.

Readers will have to wait until October of next year to read Floyd's diary in its entirety at Bethlehem Public Library, but in the meantime, the edited version is available at town hall and local bookstores.

Our version of the diary, scaled down to probably a tenth of the size of the original, clearly portrays town life, with vignettes of local celebrities and snippets of daily life. The index reads like a Who's Who in Bethlehem with bits and pieces about townspeople, both in public and private life dotting Floyd's landscape. Floyd's diary also includes pictures of many of the people and places he writes about.

backgrounds determine what we become later in life. Floyd hoped, with his diary, to leave something of value for future historians. He has. But he also may be leaving something more than he bargained for. A picture of a generation, who eked out a living in hard times, who lived honest lives and unconditionally loved family, dreamed dreams and sometimes made them come true.

Today, Hugh Hewitt has taken on the diary project using the old-fashioned oversized diaries like Floyd did, but pasting in his entries from his computer printer. Hugh, also a former SUNY professor (political affiliation unknown so far), is continuing the town's story through one man's eyes. He will chart a course different yet Floyd's diary also includes pictures of many of the people and places he writes about.

Reading Frank McCourt's current smash memoir, Angela's Ashes recently reminded me of Floyd's diary, and in particular, his childhood, which like McCourt's was stark and poor, yet rich and colorful with strong family ties and traditions, that prevailed no matter what adversity befell them.

In a sense, the character of both Brewer and McCourt is molded by the circumstances of their childhoods, one in Maine and the other in Limerick, Ireland. But the interesting thing is how much our similar to Floyd's. With Hugh's sense of humor, intelligence and love of community, Bethlehem's story is in good hands.

What I have enjoyed most about the diaries and memoirs is the authors' complete honesty. With no nod toward political correctness, Brewer and McCourt both present their stories with absolute candor. Both writers paint a portrait of what is, not what should be, so their stories ring true whether you agree with them or not.

The diary is like a map to the past that also points to the future charting peaks and valleys of human existence. How lucky future historians will be to have these immediate reflections on everyday life.

Festival Fund seeking help from community

Editor, The Spotlight:

The holiday season is here. This is the busiest time of year for the Bethlehem Festival Fund. Last year, we provided 82 families in Bethlehem with holiday food baskets.

This week, we are ordering our turkeys and coordinating our holiday deliveries. Financial responsibilities escalate and human service needs in our schools and community increase during this time of year. We are setting a goal of $10,000 to enable us to continue to provide this important service.

The Bethlehem Festival Fund assists those whose needs slip through the cracks of traditional social service programs. Throughout its 50-year history, the fund has come to the aid of thousands of Bethlehem residents, young and old alike, quickly, without red tape and with the utmost respect for confidentiality. Every dollar that is donated is used for assistance.

We would like to give you an idea of the many services the fund has provided for the community. Its work does not stop after the holidays. Throughout the year, we help families in crisis. Children in the school district receive help with field trips, school supplies, breakfast food and more.

Last year, we focused on summer camp, summer school and tutoring during the summer months. This year, the fund responded to specific emergencies for heat, clothing and medicine.

Your gift will touch the lives of many people in the community, helping each recipient in a unique and much-needed way. If you have questions about the fund, or if you would like to have a board member speak about the fund to a group, don't hesitate to contact us.

Thank you for your support of

Are library trustees select group?

Editor, The Spotlight:

There was a notice in The Spotlight that the Bethlehem Public Library board was meeting to discuss replacement of a member who is resigning.

Is the board a closed group that selects its members? Are they all volunteers?

Ed. note: Bethlehem Public Library board of trustee members are elected. When a member resigns, the board has the authority to name a replacement until the next election, when the board member would be required to run for election. Board members are unpaid, so in a sense they are volunteers.

Teenage boys blamed for lawn vandalism

Editor, The Spotlight:

I implore all parents of teenage boys in the Bethlehem area to read this letter to their sons.

Last summer, in the Kenholm section of Delmar, it was a usual occurrence to see front lawns and fences destroyed by vehicles, leaving tire tracks in their wake.

As a woman, I could not fathom why someone would find it fun to destroy a stranger's lawn. You see, I was never a teenage boy. I have asked my husband about this social hobby, and he has some trouble understanding it too, as his parents didn't bring him up to enjoy damaging other people's property.

A friend has extensive experience in seeing these young men after they have been incarcerated. He explained to me that they are "punks" who are experiencing low self-esteem.

I was not surprised to learn that it takes a coward of the lowest type to get a thrill from destroying something that another person owns, while the victim is asleep and defenseless.

What makes me genuinely happy, however, is that this vandalizing is continuing nightly, and so the chances for the boys getting caught and sent away (the neighbors will not hesitate to press charges) are 100 percent.

Please let your boys know that even though you can't seem to keep track of them in the middle of the night, once they are in prison, they'll be watched every minute of the day and night.

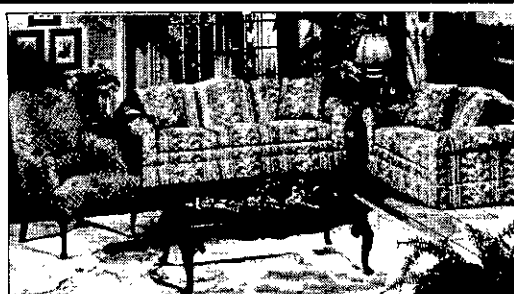

I, for one, will be delighted when they are charged with this most cowardly crime.

Writer calls for action to prevent accidents

Editor, The Spotlight:

Within the past four months, our town has grieved over the deaths of two teenagers from pedestrian-automobile accidents. Although one occurred on a residential street in Delmar, and the other on highly trafficked New Scotland Road in Slingerlands, what these tragedies have in common is that they occurred in areas without sidewalks.

Expecting sidewalks on all streets might be unrealistic, but campaigning for sidewalks on both sides of heavily traveled, bicycled and jogged-upon New Scotland Road in Slingerlands would be a big step toward preserving the safety of all who use it.

Another approach might be the enactment of a law requiring that if there is a sidewalk on one side of a street and not the other, joggers and pedestrians must use the sidewalk. Failure to do so would result in a ticket, much like the ticket one can receive if not wearing a seatbelt when riding in the front seat of a car.

Complacency over our lack of sidewalks could result in more lives being lost and more sadness.

Firefighters deserve kudos for fine program

Editor, The Spotlight:

Each year at St. Thomas School, we have Fire Prevention Month activities.

Firefighters visit classes and bring fire trucks to school. All this helps to reinforce the important lessons of fire safety.

This year, Delmar Fire Department gave our pupils a real-life experience in home fire safety. The firefighters brought the Coldwell Banker fire safety house to our school. Because of the demand for the house, it was necessary for the fire department to put in a request for it a year ago.

"The house" is a trailer set up with a living room, kitchen, upstairs bedroom, and a balcony. All the rooms are similar to a normal home, only much smaller. The living room has a fireplace and a telephone, the kitchen a stove a sink and the like.

Prior to visiting the house, firefighters talk with the pupils in each classroom — kindergarten through grade-five — explaining the day's events and reviewing fire safety rules.

Children then enter the house in small groups. In each area, the firefighters and the children discuss the hazards and safety measures peculiar to that room. The pupils use the telephone to practice calling 911. An operator leads the children through this call's very important points. After the bedroom procedure, the children had to follow the proper procedures to evacuate to the "designated meeting spot."

The children were urged to discuss the experience with their families as a way to review their own safety procedures at home.

The safety house activities certainly made a great impression on our pupils.

We were also very impressed by the dedication of our firefighters, who gave up their free time between jobs to provide this experience to our children.

We are most grateful to members of Delmar Fire Department and Coldwell Banker Prime Properties for the excellent program at the school.

Police charge Cohoes man in spate of local burglaries

Bethlehem police arrested a Cohoes man and charged him with carrying out a crime spree in which he allegedly burglarized two local businesses and a church all on the same day.

Scott Patrick Deason, 26, of 7 St. Agnes Highway, was arrested on Tuesday, Dec. 3, and charged with one count of second-degree burglary, two counts of third-degree burglary, two counts of petty larceny and one count of criminal mischief, police said.

The crime spree began early on Saturday, Oct. 12, when the suspect allegedly broke into the Delmar Animal Hospital at 910 Delaware Ave., ransacked the office and took a hammer to the hospital safe, knocking off the dial.

Shortly thereafter, Deason is accused of entering First Church of Christ, Scientist, at 555 Delaware Ave. by breaking a window and then ransacking the premises and stealing a computer keyboard, police said.

On his way out of town, according to Bethlehem Police Lt.

Frederick Holligan, Deason allegedly stopped at the small retail plaza just before the Normanskill Bridge where he allegedly proceeded to pry open the rear door at 50 Delaware Ave. and burglarize the Finishing Touch Hair Salon.

Once inside, he allegedly smashed a vending machine trying to get at the receipts and removed a computer game.

The owner of the building, who lives over the hair salon, reportedly spotted the suspect leaving by the rear door and managed to obtain a license plate number and description of the vehicle, Holligan said.

Deason was arrested at Albany County jail where he was already incarcerated in lieu of $50,000 bail on burglary charges from Colonie.

He has reportedly agreed to plead guilty in Albany County Court to several criminal charges stemming from the burglary spree in both municipalities, Holligan said.

In all, 11 police departments took part, including the Albany County Sheriff's Department and the State Police.

Bethlehem gymnasts ready for a new season

By Alli Tombros

The Bethlehem girls gymnastics team is ready to take the mat with a fresh start.

Returning coach Mary Judd is hoping to lead the girls to a successful season, aided by the return of senior captains Heather Mann and Sharon Fellows.

A lot of the team's fresh talent comes from the seventh and eighth grade pupils who have joined the varsity.

"We've improved a lot on bars, and we have more skills in general," said team member Jamie Pivar. "A lot of that is due to the middle schoolers."

Other returning gymnasts this year include Jill Pappalardi and Rian Kovarik.

"We've got a lot of depth," said Pappalardi. "We've got three girls who have been on the team for five years, and a couple who have been on the team for four. We really have a wide range of abilities."

Unfortunately, the team is already facing difficulties due to pre-season injuries. Almost all the team members have some sort of injury, including two of last year's all-around competitors, Mann and Pappalardi, who participate in all four gymnastic events: floor exercise, vault, bars and beam.

Mann is hampered by a knee injury sustained during the soccer season, and a wrist injury is causing problems for Pappalardi.

The first home meet will be on Wednesday, Dec. 18, against Niskayuna.

Bethlehem police nab three for DWI

Bethlehem police arrested three people on charges of driving while intoxicated last week.

Richard W. Weidman, 33, of 107 River St., Coxsackie, was stopped at 7:35 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 3, after he pulled off the road suddenly while traveling on Route 9W in Selkirk, police said.

Asked by Officer Charles Rudolph why he pulled over, Weidman reportedly said, "I can't drive. I'm too drunk."

Rudolph noticed an open 12-pack of beer on the front seat of the vehicle and another 12-pack on the passenger side floor. Paramedics were called to the scene to check Weidman for excessive alcohol intake.

Weidman was charged with a felony count of DWI and sent to Albany County jail without bail. He reportedly told police he was on his way to an alcohol treatment center.

Robert J. Batcher, 20, of 26 Albion Ave., Albany, was stopped at 2:19 a.m. Thursday, Dec. 5, after he was spotted leaving Henry Hudson Park on Route 144, police said.

Officer Thomas Heffernan, who was patrolling the area, stopped the vehicle on its way out because the park was closed at the time. Upon interviewing Batcher, he noticed a 12-pack of beer on the passenger side floor.

Batcher was charged with DWI and released pending a Dec. 16 appearance in town court.

Jeremy Robert Wilkins, 21, of New Salem South Road, New Scotland, was stopped at 11:55 p.m. Friday, Dec. 6, for weaving and following too closely on New Scotland Road near Couse Lane, police said.

He was charged with DWI and released pending a Dec. 16 appearance in town court. Officer Robert Markel investigated.

AnimalLovers to conduct adoption clinic in Delmar

AnimalLovers, the Animal Welfare League of the Greater Capital District, will hold a dog and cat adoption clinic at Main Square Shoppes in Delmar on Saturday, Dec. 14, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Tom and Dennis Corrigan have graciously donated the use of their storefront property for the clinic.

A variety of cats and dogs — young and old, purebred and mixed, and some with special needs — will be there to meet prospective companion people.

Among the many animals awaiting adoption are Raiser, a regal young German shepherd; Julie, a kitten found trapped under a porch whose front leg required amputation; Cindy, an energetic Dalmatian puppy; Gustav, a young Akita recovering from surgery to correct hip dysplasia; Sam, an affectionate Old English sheepdog; Bridget, an American Staffordshire terrier rescued from the streets of Albany; Harriet, a unique, red-headed terrier; Andy, a boisterous but good-natured black lab mix; Emily, a gentle, well-trained English pointer abandoned by her owner at an area kennel; Buddy, a handsome golden-retriever mix; and several litters of kittens, left to fend for themselves on the street.

AnimalLovers, an all-volunteer, not-for-profit group with nearly 200 members, rescues and finds homes for unwanted and abandoned dogs and cats; provides loving foster homes and veterinary care for animals awaiting adoption; carefully matches each animal with its new family; promotes sterilization, rather than euthanasia as a means of population control; educates the public about the responsibilities of pet ownership; and supports laws that prohibit cruelty to animals.

The long-term goal of the group is to build a sanctuary where animals awaiting adoption can find temporary refuge and where elderly, sick or otherwise hard-to-place animals can live out their days in peace and safety.

AnimalLovers strives to ensure that the animals it takes in find good homes. Each prospective adopter must complete an adoption application and be personally interviewed by an AnimalLovers volunteer.

Volunteers visit the potential owner's home to be sure it is a suitable environment.

AnimalLovers requires that all animals adopted through the group are spayed or neutered, and the group pays the cost of these procedures.

Perhaps most important, AnimalLovers requires that, if for any reason, an owner does not want to keep an animal adopted from the group, the owner must return the pet to AnimalLovers, which will find the cat or dog a new home. This mandatory "return" policy is a lifetime guarantee for every animal adopted through AnimalLovers.

Since AnimalLovers began its work a year and a half ago, the group has found homes for 102 cats and 67 dogs.

Adoption fees defray some of these expenses, but the group relies on donations to make up the shortfall.

If you are interested in adopting an animal, volunteering your time, providing a foster home or making a donation, contact AnimalLovers at PO Box 6426, Albany 12206-0426 or call 383-2184.

Listen to Winter's tale Dec. 17 BCHS students take silver in tournament Musician-storyteller Cathy Winter will share "Stories and Songs for the Season of Lights" at the library on Tuesday, Dec. 17, at 7 p.m.

This participatory family concert will concentrate on the ways different people celebrate the winter solstice and the gradual return of light to cold northern-hemisphere days.

This aptly named entertainer's diverse collection of songs and stories offers a glimpse of many cultures and traditions. She also concentrates on affirming the experiences and hopes of young people. One person who heard Winter's program observed, "Children enjoy her very real understanding of their plight in a world run by grownups."

Winter, who lives in the Capital District, has toured throughout the U.S., Canada and England. She has recorded three solo albums for the Chicago-based Flying Fish label, and a children's album for Gentle Wind.

The program is free and open to the public. Call youth services at 439-9314 to register.

Winter days are indeed long and dark, but they do lend themselves to video watching. The library's collection includes feature and educational films for all ages, travelogues, and a variety of "how-to" videos, from bridge to yoga.

Movies can be borrowed two at a time for three days. Non-fiction fare is loaned for two weeks.

Audio-visual hardware is also available for loan and includes Polaroid cameras, slide and film-strip projectors and an eight-millimeter projector — so that you can record new holiday memories or recall holidays past. This equipment can be borrowed for two weeks, but it must be reserved in advance.

Remember to keep cassettes and equipment dust-free and away from extremes of cold and heat. Store tapes away from sources of magnetic fields (computers, TV monitors, audio equipment) that can degrade the recorded information.

The library's media department is open and staffed during all regular library hours. After hours, audio-visual equipment can be returned at the book drop.

A group of 11 students from Bethlehem Central High School took second place and a silver medal in the Capital District Science Olympiad tournament held at Burnt Hills-Ballston Lake High School on Dec. 4.

Science Olympiad is a national nonprofit organization devoted to improving the quality of science education, to increasing interest in science education by both students and teachers. Tournaments are academic interscholastic competitions consisting of individual and team events for which students prepare during the year.

Twenty-four teams from 10 school districts in the region participated in the mini-Olympiad. There were four events in the competition: rocks, minerals and fossils; bio process; chem lab; and spaghetti bridge construction. The students from BCHS, who formed three teams in the competition, are: Brian McCarthy, Serguei Vassilvitskii, Calvin Miaw, Tom Downes, Jatin Roper, Liz Solomon, Pete Bocola, Dan Glick, Pete Wagle, Sean Bradley and Karen Rossi. Their coach is BCHS science teacher Paul O'Reilly.

After intense competition in various events, one BCHS team won first place in the rock, minerals and fossils event and all BCHS teams scored second highest overall. Jim Bell, Cullen Blake, Jessica Berlow and Mohit Tinani were unable to attend the competition on that day.

BC district to pursue site for natural gas fueling

By Dev Tobin

In theory, natural-gas-fueled buses are easier on both the environment and the wallet than their diesel counterparts.

So, using state aid to make up the initial cost difference, the Bethlehem Central School District has bought seven natural-gas buses over the past few years.

While the air is no doubt cleaner as a result, the cost savings have proved illusory, especially after the fueling station at the Stewart's in Glenmont closed earlier this year.

Now, the buses have to refuel the Hess station on Wolf Road in Colonie, at an estimated annual cost of more than $25,000, according to Franz Zwicklbauer, assistant superintendent for business.

Zwicklbauer reported on the fiscal impact of the Stewart's closing at last week's school board meeting, as the board was considering a proposal to install a natural-gas-refueling facility at the district bus garage.

Zwicklbauer estimated the excess labor costs of refueling in Colonie at $21,000 a year, and noted that the higher price the district pays at Hess, compared to at its own facility, represents another $4,100 a year. The district would save most of that money by having its own fueling site.

Zwicklbauer said there would be some costs associated with BC having its own facility, including $14,000 over three years in capital costs, about $6,000 for installing the electrical service and an estimated $1,500 to $3,700 in annual maintenance.

He added that state aid from the recently approved bond act may be available to defray some of the one-time costs, and that the district still has $40,000 (enough to buy two more buses) available in state aid.

But "We won't purchase more buses unless we have a fueling site," he said.

Zwicklbauer received board approval to proceed with the project, in particular, working along with school district attorney Roger Fritts on details of the contract with Niagara Mohawk Power Corp., which will provide the pumping equipment and the natural gas.

Theme tree on display

The Gingerbread Man is making a special holiday appearance at the library in the form of a theme tree by the Helderview Garden Club.

Based on the well known children's story, the decorations were created by club members Mary Beth Portanova and Diane Biernacki. The tree has been on display at the Albany Institute of History & Art as the club's entry in the Festival of Trees.

Voorheesville Public Library

Shirley Parham's angels are another treat for the eyes in the display case. An appropriate theme for December, the collection is made up of many lovely, unusual and amusing variations of angels. Don't miss it.

When you stop to visit the angels and the tree, you might run into Diane Biernacki checking books in or out. She recently joined the part-time staff at the circulation desk. Please welcome her.

Once again, the library is an official Toys for Tots dropoff location. Patrons are invited to bring new unwrapped toys and deposit them in the box in the young people's area of the main reading room.

Bring your gifts early. They will be picked up several days before Christmas to be sorted, wrapped and distributed.

There is also a basket for food donations near the circulation desk. The food will be distributed locally through St. Matthew's Human Concerns Committee. Now is a good time to give.

The reference department has culled some entertaining videos and book cassettes to offer as an antidote to the stresses and aggravations of the season. Peruse the section and take something home to relax with.

Bethlehem stops Gloversville to capture tip-off tournament

By Jessica Fein

There's nothing like starting off on the right foot.

The Bethlehem boys basketball team rolled to a 69-54 victory over Gloversville on Sunday to capture the Colonie Tip-off Tournament.

"I was pleased with their effort," said head coach Chuck Abba. "We really pushed the ball and took some good shots. The boys really did a terrific job."

Center Tim Staniels led the way for the Eagles with 13 points. The balanced scoring attack also featured Scott DeFeo,

Basketball

Geoff Hunter and Mark Svare all with 12 and Leo Bresnahan with 11.

The Eagles had a spectacular first half, outscoring Gloversville 35-18. Gloversville reached the tournament finale by edging Colonie, 67-66. Bethlehem received a forfeit victory in their first round game when Ichabod Crane cancelled.

While the offense was in high gear for most of the game, the Eagles defense was equally impressive with players contesting every shot. "We were anxious to play," said Bresnahan.

"Overall, it was a good opening game, but there's still room for improvement," said Seamus Gallagher. "We need to take one game at a time."

The tournament MVP award went to Svare.

This year's team also includes Kevin Russell, Pat Hughes, Eric Hjeltnes, Ryan Venter and Justin Pinchback. Ken Lyons is the assistant coach.

BC hockey team bounces back

After a disappointing start to the season, the Bethlehem ice hockey team found the net last week and recorded two big victories.

I think the game and the score reflect where we are at as a hockey team. ... We are learning to score.

Paul Machelor

Looking for their first win, the Eagles took on Burnt Hills at the Albany County hockey facility. The Eagles drew first blood as assistant captain Greg Cooper connected with Chris Mullen for a goal.

Later in the period, Scott Lacy found Mullen to put BC up by two goals.

In the second period, Burnt Hills got their first and only goal of the game, but BC matched that tally when Dan Cocozza assisted captain Ethan Drake on a goal.

In the final period, Mullen connected with Brad Colacino. Adam Dimuria had another great game in goal, holding Burnt Hills to just one goal as the Eagles emerged victorious, 4-1.

On Friday night, an enthusiastic Eagles team took on a sluggish Shaker team. Shaker scored early in the first period, but Bethlehem countered as Colacino found Cocozza, and the Eagles never looked back.

Colacino passed to Matt Holmes for a goal, and Mike Coker assisted Drake to end the period.

To start a lopsided second period, Drake found Cooper, and Jeff Smith assisted Cooper. The onslaught continued as Drake scored an unassisted goal and Cooper scored again for the hat trick.

Early in the third period, Mike Griffith tapped it in for the Eagles last goal. The final score was 8-1.

Paul Esmond and Mike Plante shared the goaltending.

"I think the game and the score reflect where we are at as a hockey team," said coach Paul Machelor. "We are learning to score. We had a lot of opportunities to capitalize, and we followed through. That is excellent."

Lady Eagles drop Vestal in Shen Invitational

By Tim Kavanagh

After letting first-round opponent August Martin slip through their fingers on Friday night, the Bethlehem girls basketball team won the consolation game of the Shenendehowa Invitational Tournament on Sunday against Vestal in the closing seconds.

Zornow

Vestal was leading 54-53, and they had the ball on the sideline. The inbounds pass was tipped by Kate Smith and stolen by a BC defender. The Eagles then broke out in a fast break as Nicole Conway hit a driving Magan Sellnow for the shot. Sellnow, who was fouled, then approached the foul line for a one-and-one.

After she missed the first foul shot, Conway grabbed one of her 11 rebounds and dished the ball back to Sellnow who buried the shot with just eight seconds left. The Vestal team was unable to answer back.

This was a big win for the team because they had trailed by 19 points at half-time.

"We came out really flat in the first half," said Smith, "but then we picked it up during the second."

The keys to the victory were big games by Conway, who scored 17 points to go along with her 11 rebounds and six steals, and Karly Decker, who scored 19 points and grabbed 14 rebounds.

The win is more impressive when you look at Vestal's team, which won its sectional championship last year, and returned four starters to this year's team.

In the first round game against August Martin, a perennial powerhouse from Queens who made it to the state semifinals last season, the Lady Eagles lost a game (68-58) that was closer than the final score indicated. Smith led the Eagles with 17, and Decker scored 10.

The team's strong finish gives the team a 2-2 record at the start of the regular season, "which is quite encouraging," said coach Kim Zornow, "considering the high level of competition at both tournaments."

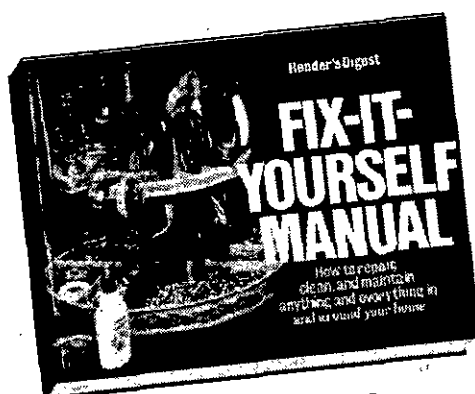

The regular season starts Friday at home against Burnt Hills. The Eagles are expected to once again make a strong bid for the Section II title.

BBC kicks off new hoop season with record number of players

With a record 352 participants, the Bethlehem Basketball Club kicked off its ninth season of play for fifth through eighth graders in the middle school gym on Sunday.

In NBA action, the Spurs, behind Matt Perazelli's 19 points, bested the Bulls, 55-42. Chris Weyant tossed in 17 for the losers.

Behind a strong defensive effort spearheaded by Ed O'Keefe and Dan Kohler, the Rockets edged the Nuggets 32-29. Paul Wolfert had 10 in defeat. Dan Royo and Nate Turner combined for 19 as the Suns ran past the Magic, 50-28. Kyle Velvis netted eight in the loss.

Josh Burnett turned a host of good passes by his teammates into 23 points, as the Sonics knocked off the Knicks, 57-28. Dan Teitler had seven for the Knicks.

Michigan beat Ohio State 37-23 in a key Big Ten match up. Vinnie Berghela led the winners with seven, and Suzanna Kelly contributed a strong offensive effort in the loss. In the day's most exciting comeback, Indiana roared back in the fourth quarter to overtake Purdue, 37-36. Matt Glannon drove the lane for 11 to lead Indiana, while Ricky Grant had 12 to lead the Boilermakers. John Thibdeau had 14 points and 10 rebounds to key Wisconsin's 32-23 victory over Northwestern. Jared Cohen's tough defense kept Northwestern close.

Nick Criscione had 10 points as Penn State beat Minnesota 26-12 in a hard-fought contest. Andrew Osterman had eight in defeat.

In the Big Ten finale, Dane Barclay's 13 offset Kevin Gutman's 10, as Iowa beat Michigan State, 44-21.

Big East highlights included a hard-fought tie between Syracuse and Miami. Peter Cooley had six for the Orangemen, and Brian Gars had 12 for the Hurricanes.

In another barn-burner, Providence nipped St. John's, 27-25. Mike Nuttal's eight were not enough to overcome an identical number by Mark Bulger.

Paddy Reagan led the Irish of Notre Dame with six, but they fell to a powerful West Virginia squad, 44-22. Gary Ting had a game high 11 to help secure the victory.

Adam Rodriguez dominated the inside with 10 points and a slew of rebounds as Georgetown swept past Pitt, 34-17. Tim Kindlon had 10 for Pitt. Finally, Boston College squeaked by UConn, 29-27. Nitin Roper led BC with eight, while Justin Lavelle had 13 for UConn.

Three are perfect

High School senior Brian Belemjian, Rich Cullen and Lee Aiezza bowled perfect games last week at Del Lanes in Delmar. Other top scorers included:

Senior Citizen Men: George Bickel 234; Dick Neumann 576 triple; Ed Kellman 805 four games.

Senior Citizen Women: Cora Kubisch 200 and 521 triple.

Men: Ken Krzykowski 717 triple; John Bickel 1076 four games.

Adult-Junior Men: Phil Hausman 258 and 673 triple; Stephen Vnuk 240 and 643 triple.

Swimmers sink Shaker

By Annette Grajny

The Bethlehem boys swim team won their opening meet last week against Shaker High School as the 400 freestyle relay team set a new pool record.

Coach Ken Neff said the team performed above his expectations. "I think that we did everything well, much better than I expected."

The Eagles had more than a 30-point lead by the end of the meet, finishing with 110 points to Shaker's 76.

The highlight of the meet was a new pool record set by the 400 freestyle relay team of Reid Putnam, Sean Barclay, Steve Corson and Brian Strickler.

Scott Strickler, Greg Teresi, Brian Strickler and Barclay captured first with a time of 1:45.42 in the 200 medley relay.

Putnam and Corson finished first and second respectively in the 200 free, while Brian Strickler took first place in the 200 IM and the 100 fly. Putnam, Barclay and Scott Strickler swept the 100 free, finishing first, second and third, respectively.

Other winners included Corson in the 500 free, Scott Strickler in the 100 backstroke and the 200 free relay team of Putnam, Brad Pryba, Brian Taffe and Teresi.

Chris Shafer, Sean Boyle, Ben Samelson-Jones, Rob Storey and Todd McCoy all contributed solid efforts. In the diving, Kurt Lamitie finished third and Marc Bassoti finished fifth.

Although Neff was pleased with the results, he felt the victory was bittersweet.

"Shaker was missing two of their top swimmers," he said. "We also have to remember to keep working hard. Sometimes a huge win early in the season can cause us to become too relaxed, especially since we broke the pool record by four seconds."

Bethlehem faces Mohonasen on Wednesday at home.

Toys

Fortunately, that was also the year Legos entered our home in abundance (thank you, Uncle Tim, for saving Christmas), and both Christopher and his younger brother have been playing intently with them ever since.

As parents, we learned an important lesson about the power of advertising on our children. From then on, we tried to focus on toys that let the kids use their imagination.

Curiosity led me to survey other parents about the best and worst toys their children have ever received.

"What I love about Legos is that the kids play quietly with them," said Tracy Stanton of Delmar, whose children are 11, 6 and 4. "They also take a lot of mind work trying to figure out how you're going to construct things. We've gotten more than our money's worth out of them."

The Stantons have suitcase carriers for their Legos, which makes them good travel toys. "They just plop 'em down, and it keeps 'em busy," Stanton said. She also gave high marks to Magna Doodle, which the kids can use over and over again.

The worst toy? "That Sky Dancer thing," Stanton said. "Two of my kids had black eyes from it on the same day." Another victim of TV advertising, Stanton's 4-year-old daughter had begged for the appealing, ballerina like doll that flies with a pull of a string. "It flew into the air, and landed on the corner of Matthew's eye, while he was lying on his bed," Stanton said. "I sent Becca outside with it, she pulled the string, and it hit her in the eye. The doll ended up in the trash — at Becca's request."

Legos got another set of high marks from Delmar resident Nancy Heinzen. "They go on forever, and the kids can do all kinds of different things with them," she said. Her sons, Max, 8, and Gil, 5, create "warfare-like scenarios, building guns, walls and pirate islands."

Even 10-year-old Nell will still play with Legos sometimes, building more sophisticated houses. "Wooden blocks and trucks are also successful," Heinzen said.

Plastic things that break easily have made for some holiday distress. "My mother got the kids a red cash bank from some catalogue, and it broke within four hours on Christmas day. And for some reason, the hinges frequently come off the battery compartments on plastic toys."

Heinsen is also leery of different kinds of kits. "They can be parent-intensive," she warned.

Lisa Finkle of Delmar also praised the Danish building toys.

"Legos are still the best," she said. "They have real staying power." All three of my children play with them — Ben, who's 8, 6-year-old Evan, and 4-year-old Brianna."

Finkle confessed to liking a toy she never thought she would: Barbie. "As much as I hate to admit it, Brianna loves Barbie. I never thought I'd have them, but she lines them up, and plays with them for a long time."

The worst toy? Finkle laughed. "Barbie." Along with toys with little pieces that get lost as soon as they're out of the box, like Polly Pocket or Mighty Max.

Bonnie Glaser of Voorheesville also confesses to letting the tiny-waisted blonde into her home, where she's a favorite with 8-year-old Ali and 7-year-old Lauren. "I know it's not the most politically correct toy, but they like Barbie," Glaser said.

"Barbies are pretty good, since they girls use their own imagination, they role play," she said.

But the most favorite toy at the Glasers is a chalk board. "The girls play school games for hours on end," she said.

Glaser is disappointed with today's games. "Games used to be so great," she said, "like Parcheesi and Scrabble. We had a Goosebumps game that took two hours for an adult to setup, and as soon as the kids touched it, it fell apart."

Pets are also a mixed bag. Karen and Vince Thompson's son had a pet bird that died recently.

"They're good to have, but they're so fragile," Vince Thompson said.

"Connor was devastated when his bird died," added Karen, who said they'll try again with a bird at Christmas.

Mary Lou Morris is firmly against any species of pet that isn't flushable.

"For us, the best Christmas gifts create lasting memories or provide quality family time, like a portrait, season ski tickets or a special trip or event," she said.

the only legal involvement the town has is through the issuance of a building permit, which must be granted if the plant meets all requirements.

EnCon, on the other hand, has broad discretionary powers over the project, Baker said, since it is responsible for issuing an air permit, a SPDES (state pollution discharge elimination system) permit and registration of chemical bulk storage facilities.

Second, Baker said, the main effects of the plants would be regional, and not local. "Given the location of the project on the Hudson River, near the northern boundary of the town, the area of potential impact to air resources is regional and not limited to the town."

Moreover, concern over the spillage of methanol, the raw ingredient used to produce formaldehyde and which will be transported to the plant via the Hudson River, was a regional issue because the "river is a regional, if not a state, resource."

Finally, EnCon has the time, money and expertise to undertake a thorough and extensive environmental review of the project, according to Baker.

"Spurlock is agreeable to preparing a full environmental impact statement so that involved and interested agencies and the public will have a full understanding of the project," he said. "It is incumbent upon DEC, as the chief environmental regulatory agency in the state to take the lead in the SEQRA (state environmental quality review act) review to assure a thorough consideration of the project."

Town board member George Lenhardt said Spurlock's contention that EnCon was the only agency able to oversee the SEQRA review was not necessarily true.

"I don't see where we have any less capability than DEC. We can ask the developer to contribute toward the cost of hiring an outside consultant like we did with Southgate," Lenhardt said. "Personally, I don't have that kind of expertise, but there should be people out there who do."

Sigi Moriece, spokeswoman for Bethlehem Citizens for Clean Air, said "It's apparent that Spurlock is in bed with the DEC and that they have no reason to oppose local control other than the fact that the town will hold them to more stringent standards than the DEC."

Why would anyone think that just because a local entity reviews the project that its regional impact would be ignored? Moriece wondered. "We would be looking out for the region as well as the rest of the state. It all starts here."

A decision by EnCon Commissioner Michael Zagata on which agency receives lead agency status is expected "anytime after Dec. 16," said EnCon spokesman Darwin Roosa.

The Spotlight remembers

This week in 1986, these stories were making headlines in The Spotlight.

- Construction was set to begin on the proposed civic center in downtown Albany, which will cost a maximum of $42.5 million, according to the county Legislature's Democratic majority. Legislator James Ross, R-Delmar, disagreed, calling the project "a comedy of errors, but it's not too late to admit you made a mistake."

- The cost of garbage was going up, as the Albany-led ANSWERS consortium informed Bethlehem, New Scotland and Voorheesville that tipping fees would rise from the current $6.59 a ton to $18 a ton by the first of the year. "I was prepared for an increase, but I was startled by the size of the increase," said Bethlehem Supervisor Robert Hendrick.

- Victoria Graffeo of Voorheesville was appointed legislative counsel and director of legislative resources for Assembly Minority Leader Clarence Rappleyea.

Snow Queen swoops into Troy

By Dev Tobin

The New York State Theatre Institute presents its third original family musical in as many years this month, as a new version of The Snow Queen debuts in the Schacht Fine Arts Center of Russell Sage College in Troy.

The fantastic tale of Gerda's search for her friend Kai, who is in the icy clutches of

The Snow Queen is a collaboration of high-powered theatrical talent, both behind the scenes and onstage, made possible by a grant from Warner Music Group.

For example, American composer Richard Peaslee and British playwright Adrian Mitchell (creators of the legendary London and Broadway hit Marat/Sade) were reunited to reinvigorate the music and book based on the classic Hans Christian Andersen fairy tale.

And Patricia Birch, a veteran of Broadway, off-Broadway, TV and film (she choreographed the current hit The First Wives' Club), will direct and choreograph.

Another international touch comes in the set design and costumes, which are the creation of Russian immigrants Danila Korogodsky and Galina Solovyeva, respectively.

"We are grateful for the expansion and refinement of talent that our collaboration with Warner Music has made possible," Snyder said.

In front of the lights, Linnie Godfrey, with numerous stage and TV credits, stars as the Snow Queen, and Broadway veteran Lorraine Serabian — the show-stopping godmother from A Tale of Cinderella — plays Grandma and the Magic Lady.

The two juvenile leads, Gerda and Kai, are played by Kate Hettesheimer of Albany and Bunky Hubbard of Manhattan, the Snow Queen, was told once before by the institute, in 1990, but this production is totally reconceived and redesigned to the point that it is new, according to Patricia Di Benedetto Snyder, institute producing artistic director.

"When we decided to continue working with this wonderful tale, we sat down and completely rethought everything, starting with the story itself," Snyder said.

As with the previous two new musicals, A Tale of Cinderella and The Silver Skates, respectively.

Lending a local touch are three Bethlehem Central High School students — Hally Gutman, David Lefkovich and Sara Richardson.

Gutman and Lefkovich will be on stage, playing an assortment of choral roles — townperson, skater and crow — and Lefkovich will also play a robber.

Richardson, like Lefkovich an intern at the institute, will be working in the costume shop, as she did for the institute's first 1996-97 production, Arctic and Old Lace.

Performances of The Snow Queen will be Dec. 11, 12, 13, 17, 18 and 19 at 10 a.m.; Dec. 13, 14 and 20 at 8 p.m.; and Dec. 15 at 2 p.m. Tickets are $15, $13 for seniors and students and $8 for children under 13. For information, call 274-3256.

Charles Dickens does well in area with Christmas Carol characters

Two theaters whose adaptations of Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol ended their runs this past weekend, reported successful presentations.

At the Palace Theatre in Albany, the 16 performances of A Christmas Carol featuring John Astin netted a 25 percent increase in revenues this season over last year, according to Robert Goepfert, executive director of the theater.

With 12 public performances and four school shows, the company fulfilled its Equity restrictions for eight performances a week and gave local audiences sufficient time to see a performance.

This year, because the original sets made four years ago weren't designed for touring, it was decided by the producers not to tour this year because of the wear and tear received in two previous tours.

However, by the end of next January, it is expected that the producers will examine the profitability of the Albany engagement this year and determine the feasibility of building a touring set for next year.

"There are four weeks of holiday season after Thanksgiving," Goepfert said Monday. "We have to determine whether to continue the show for two weeks in Albany or contain it to one week and then tour for the next three weeks."

In any event, the production has to have at least two weeks of performances to make it practical for actors to work in it.

More than likely, the producers will opt to tour again next year after first playing in Albany, whether one or two weeks.

As A Christmas Carol was closing last Saturday with a good crowd despite the storm. Mr. Scrooge, a musical version of the novel, was in the midst of its five-performance run at the Bethlehem Central Middle School in Delmar.

It, too, exceeded expectations for attendance after closing Sunday and the reception by the audience may prompt the Village Stage producers to make this show a holiday season tradition in future years. Village Stage is a community theater based in the town of Bethlehem.

By mid-winter, the Village Stage producers will evaluate the prospects for such a continuing holiday show.

Area shows help sustain holiday spirit for next weeks

A number of theaters in the area are doing shows which capture the holiday spirit, including the New York State Theatre Institute's production of The Snow Queen, currently on stage at Russell Sage in Troy, until Dec. 20. It's a revival of a musical adaptation of Hans Christian Andersen's fairy tale. Information and reservations available at 274-3256.

The Schenectady Civic Players are offering Seasons' Greetings! through Sunday afternoon (Dec. 15) at their theater on Church Street in the Electric City. It tells the story of a family with a dark attitude finding holiday redemption. Reservations available at 382-2081.

Although not specifically about Christmas, the musical They're Playing Our Song at the Schenectady Light Opera Company's theater through Sunday afternoon (Dec. 15) has a light-hearted look at the love affair between two songwriters. The combination of Neil Simon's script and the music of Marvin Hamlisch and Carole Bayer Sager provide a breeziness which makes light holiday fare.

Reservations available at 399-9359.

eba Dance Theatre's A Child's Holiday continues playing through Saturday

The two-week presentation of A Child's Holiday will play Friday, Dec. 13 at 10:30 a.m. and Saturday, Dec. 14 at 2 p.m. to conclude the dance theater production's run.

A festive and creative work underwritten by NYNEX and combining theater and dance, A Child's Holiday is designed around a mischievous young girl who encounters a fanciful cast of characters.

In her playing with dolls, toys, snow people in an animated playground, the child encounters a blazing fire monster.

The lesson learned by the child and the audience is the need to practice holiday fire safety.

Children attending the production get a chance to greet the various characters after the show and take home a coloring poster.

Tickets for A Child's Holiday are available at 465-9916.

DRIVING THE BACKHAND

To unleash your power on the backhand, turn your upper body as you prepare to hit. Shift your weight forward as you stroke, driving through the ball without any hesitation in your stroke.

As you uncoil your upper body, your weight will transfer to your front foot. As you do that, bend your front knee and keep your center of gravity down low as you swing through the ball.
