At its August meeting, the Bethlehem school board lowered the tax rate increase for district residents.

When residents voted on the budget in May, the district estimated a 4.85 percent tax increase for the towns of Bethlehem and New Scotland. The rates for both towns are lower than estimated due to additional state aid the district will receive as a result of the state budget agreement reached in August. A slightly higher-than- expectassessment growth will also help reduce the tax rate.

Using final assessment rolls provided by the Bethlehem and New Scotland town assessors and final equalization rates provided by the state

Office of Real Property Services, the board set the 2004-05 tax rates at $25.71 for Bethlehem and $22.74 for New Scotland, both per $1,000 of assessed property value.

These rates represent an increase of 4.72 percent ($1.16 per $1,000 of property value) for Bethlehem and an increase of 1.96 percent ($0.44 per $1,000 of property value) for New Scotland. For a home assessed at $100,000, a Bethlehem taxpayer would pay $115.83 more than last year, and a New Scotland taxpayer would pay an additional $43.71. Calculations are before any STAR exemptions.

"We are grateful to the Legislature and governor for finally agreeing on a state budget that provides us with additional aid," said board president Robin Storey. "Unfortunately, because the agreement was reached in August after our budget amount was approved by our voters, we cannot consider restoring any of the program cuts we made this year. But the money can and will be used to lower the tax rate increase, and that is certainly good news for our community."

Bethlehem wil! receive about $315,000 more in state aid than it estimated at the time of the budget vote in May. The school board decided to use those funds to reduce this year's tax levy and to maintain the staterecommended level of fund balance.

Steve O'Shea, assistant superintendent for business and finance, said the additional aid amount was actually $415,000, but the district built $100,000 of state aid into the budget before it went to the voters.

RCS provides info on delayed opening

By LIBBY SCHIRMER

Trying to quell rumors about the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk School District delayed start, school officials have announced more details on the delayed school start date of Monday, Sept. 13.

Instead of using a snow day before the winter, as originally planned, the district has decided to make Rosh Hashanah, Sept. 16, an instruction day.

A $29.2 million project that revamped the high school and middle school buildings, rendering them virtually unusable, is the reason for the delay. Even though district officials expected the project to be completed on time, it left only a small window of time for

Old rail route off limits for County is appraising value of pathway

By MARTIN BANNAN

Can residents of Bethlehem, New Scotland and Voorheesville expect to have a new recreational path where train tracks once ran from Albany into the villages and countryside?

That's the question on people's minds ever since the Canadian Pacific Railroad removed nine miles of track between the Port of Albany and Voorheesville earlier this summer.

According to Albany County spokesperson Mary Witkowski, the county is in negotiations with the railroad and is now having the corridor appraised in order to calculate a fair price to offer for the land.

"We are considering plans to convert the corridor into a recreational trail and bike path; however, the future of the corridor remains uncertain until an agreement can be reached," Witkowski said.

The appraisal, she added, is not expected to be finished until late fall, after which the county would make a bid to purchase the land.

Ever since the tracks were dismantled and removed, walkers, joggers and cyclists have taken to the corridor with hopes of further development being on the way.

Canadian Pacific Officials, however, warn that until Albany County or any other public entity takes ownership, the corridor is private property.

"The people walking there are trespassing and should stay off the corridor," said Canadian Pacific spokesman John Denison.

"What they are doing is the same thing as walking through someone's backyard," he said.

In 1994, the county and Scenic Hudson, a preservation group, were ready to buy the land until the railroad reconsidered and left the tracks in place. At the time, the county's senior natural resource

Bethlehem residents discuss development of riverfront

By LIBBY SCHIRMER

About 100 residents gathered last Thursday to collaborate on the ways development of the riverfront should and shouldn't continue, with town officials acknowledging new faces in the standing-room-only crowd in the town hall auditorium.

Town representatives have called the Hudson River waterfront an underutilized asset in town. The worth of the area has been mirrored in six project proposals over the past two years, four since Supervisor Theresa Egan took office in January.

At the same time, the town continues to be a finalist to house a dewatering site of the $500 million Hudson River dredging project, the largest of its kind ever attempted, slated to begin in 2006.

Residents who travel along the riverfront can see a myriad of development from the relatively undeveloped Henry Hudson Park and other green areas, to the heavy industrial development closer to the Port of Albany, like the PSEG plant.

In between, the river is zoned for residential and light industry.

The riverfront is considered everything from the Thruway east to the river, and from the city of Albany to Selkirk and the river itself. Last week's focus group session came days after the town revealed a conceptual design on a Hudson River Hamlet and Harbor Center that was released to foster discussion about riverfront development.

"The river is absolutely beautiful there," Egan said, referring to the stretch of the Hudson River that runs along the Bethlehem town line. "It's pristine, all green."

The hamlet and harbor center, as drawn, would require about $53 million of start-up revenue, from which the town could reap almost $700 million over a buildout period of 30 years. The center also considers a new Thruway interchange to alleviate traffic congestion throughout town.

Few, if any, at the focus group meeting said the concept was perfect, but it certainly sparked some discussions and ideas, which town officials were looking

The concept is nothing if not preliminary, and, Egan has cautioned, is meant for discussion purposes only. Egan has said the plan could be a start toward the town's local waterfront revitalization plan and represents a "proactive approach" to looming commercial and residential development.

involved in Bethlehem Tomorrow, said that, at the least, the town tried.

"It's not a hard and fast plan, but it's a good place to start to get people's reactions," Wistar said.

Residents rattled off things that are working for that area of town and things that perhaps "The river is certainly important to the region's economy," said Michael Welti of Saratoga Associates, the group contracted by the town to assist in its planning during the yearlong moratorium.

Residents noted Henry Hudson Park and other green and wild areas, its clean and pristine environment, and historic and rural character, as positively working for that area of town.

Residents listed seven more drawbacks, or concerns, than positive aspects about future development on the Hudson.

Those concerns included a lack of clearly defined natural preserve areas; the 94-acre OG Real Estate site that's a finalist for a dewatering facility; industries that have spoiled some of the riverfront already; a disruption of archaeological and historical artifacts; and a general concern about the capacity of the land to support growth.

"The future of that area is very uncertain at this point in time,' Welti said.

Next up is a Bethlehem Planning Advisory Committee Caleb Wistar, a resident monthly meeting, scheduled for Monday, Sept. 13, at 6:30 p.m. at Delmar Reformed Church at Avenue's Delaware Corners.

> More focus group meetings, including one focusing on trails. greenways and recreation, and one on farmland and agriculture, are scheduled for September and

Village to improve services

By MARTIN J. BANNAN

Voorheesville residents can look forward to better public services as a result of projects.

At the village's regular board meeting on Aug. 31, Public Works Superintendent Will Smith said construction of a new 500,000 gallon water tank has been completed and should be filled by the second week of September. Also, he said, all new pipes connected to the tank have been tested and chlorinated, and the system should be ready by late September.

The next step will involve taking the village's existing 1 million gallon tank on Swift Road out of service next spring to be refurbished. This, he said, will increase the village's water storage capacity to 1.5 million gallons. In addition, Smith reported that the village's water meter replacement is nearly Andre Grondin tried to rescue completed with about 50 meters, mers, still to be installed.

The board also agreed to lease land at its Swift Road tower site to Cingular Wireless in order to erect a 90-foot cell phone tower next to an existing tower leased to Sprint. The agreement calls for $12,000 per year in rent plus $300 per month for each additional be examined to determine the company that installs transmitters on the tower.

Stevens, a second tower is needed because the first is filled with transmission devices and antennas.

Towers up to 90 feet are as high as the village permits," he said. "Unfortunately, the trees in this location are as tall as 60 feet, leaving only 30 feet to work with.'

Stevens cautioned that before the village proceeds, the proposal has to be approved by the New Scotland planning and town boards. If Cingular builds the tower before mid-October, it must also comply with New Scotland's Interim Application Law. Approved and declared in effect on July 14, this law states that applicants looking to build a communications tower will be subject to any new local telecommunications regulations adopted by the town within 90 days.

soon because cell coverage here is terrible," Stevens said.

In a move to increase parking at village hall, the next-door building was torn down Aug. 13.

In May, Stevens proposed that the neighboring house be removed to add parking and provide better access to Nichols Park. Most important, he said, additional space could allow the village to have handicap parking, sorely desired by senior citizens.

At a village board meeting in June, Paul Richards, president of Capital District Habitat for Humanity, asked about possibly donating the vacant building as a home for Kiniski, who has a bipolar condition. He said they could fix the house in six months.

There's magic in the Irish air next to the Atlantic

By KATHERINE McCARTHY

It's easy to see why Ireland is home to so many poets. There's much to be inspired by in that land of green fields, craggy rock outcroppings, thundering ocean, charming pubs and inhabitants who always have time for a friendly word, a laugh or a story.

Perhaps the greatest inspiration for the time spent writing, chatting or just enjoying the day comes from the light, which takes on a special quality near Ireland's shores of the Atlantic Ocean. It's more than an indication of the time of day and the state of the weather; it's more than a backdrop to the events of the day. It's like a separate being, one that can surround, comfort and inspire even the most casual of visitors.

After a magnificent two-week vacation in the town that was home to my husband's grand-father before he immigrated to America early in the 20th century, the thought of the light that suffuses Ireland stays with me most.

Chris' mother and sister have returned to live in Tim Mc-Carthy's tiny West Cork village of Crookhaven, and we were blessed to awaken every morning in the former ferryman's cottage that Lanna has turned into a home at once magnificent and charm-ing. The light must have spoken to her, as her renovations in the past years have included French doors and floor-to-ceiling win-dows that let the daylight in to sit on the couch with us.

When we're in Ireland, we awaken in the room we've come to consider ours to the sound of seagulls. Sometimes, too, there's the chug of a fisherman's dinghy as he checks his lines in the water

iust outside Lanna's house

The windows in our room are miniature cathedral windows, with rectangular bottoms and triangular tops. Before I open my eyes every morning, I listen, and take my best guess as to how the magic light will look that day.

If Crookhaven harbor is quiet, perhaps it will be a sunny day. If the wind is making the palm tree in front of our windows rustle like students shuffling through pieces of looseleaf paper, it might be what the Irish call a dull day. A million different sounds can mean rain: a steady beat on the stone patio, lashing needles against the window pane, or howling winds that have me scurrying to check whether the skylight over the kids' bunk beds is open.

The best light is the kind that makes the sky a brilliant blue — not quite a sapphire color, but well beyond azure. Nobody goes to Ireland for the weather, so cloudless, warm days are a bonus. When the air is still and warm, the harbor can become a looking glass that reflects the surround-ing hills with their craggy rocks and blooms of purplish-red heather and yellow gorse.

When it's warm, the light illuminates the water, and we collect wetsuits and boogie boards to brave the icy waters of the North Atlantic. At Barley Cove beach, golden sand curves around dunes where children play. In a move that would startle American conservationists, child-ren slid down enormous dunes on plastic sleds, stopping just short of the tidal inlet that must have been their goal.

Where, we stopped to wonder, would the Irish have bought sleds, since it rarely snows on the Emerald Isle. Canadian relatives, perhaps? And could we manage to bring some along next time we go? There's a distinct link—swimming in Ireland is as bracing as sliding down a snowy hill on a sunny January day here.

"How are you lot on swimming here?" an Englishman yet to brave the water asked us, and although some of the Irish are able to wade into the water in bathing suits, we definitely belong to the wimpier swimmers who understand the pleasure of a Neoprene wetsuit.

I have fully abandoned all delusions of dignity and don the black rubber wetsuit that makes me feel (OK, look) like one of Willy Wonka's Oompah-Loompahs.

"This is how good a mother I am," I tell my boys, as we all head into the pounding surf to ride the waves on boogie boards. A little indignity, a strict no pictures policy and great gratitude that few people know me at Barley Cove make it well worth joining my children in the buoyant, incredi-bly clear water.

On another clear day, Lanna took us in her boat to Fastnet Rock, six miles offshore and for many immigrants who left by ship, the last piece of Ireland they ever saw.

"Last parish till Boston," local fishermen called to the ocean liners.

Now, a lighthouse on Fastnet flashes its mechanized signal, and in the sparkling swells of an August afternoon, it was hard to imagine how rough seas hadn't deterred past lighthouse keepers from their jobs.

Christopher stared at the horizon, where the silver-blue of the sea met the deep blue of the sky.

"Imagine what it must have been like for the Vikings, out on rough seas with no land in sight," our Norse history and mythology expert mused.

We gazed, more than a little daunted, at the vast open expanse of ocean the Vikings had crossed to reach Ireland. The red hair considered an Irish trait is proof, the saying goes, that the Vikings did more in Ireland than have a pint at the pub.

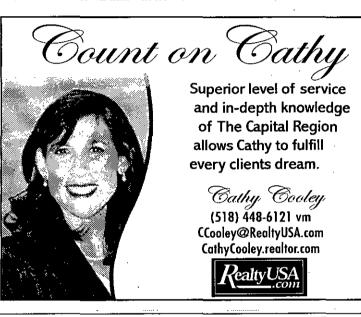

Back at our pub of choice, Chris questioned Dermot O'Sulli-van, who is continuing the family tradition of making O'Sullivan's pub feel more like a friend's living room than a business, about the good weather that seems to strike Crookhaven even when other parts of the country are stormy.

"Is it because this is the first landfall?" Chris asked.

"No," Dermot said, "it's because we pray more than they do."

If ever there was a place to pray, our piece of Ireland is it. It feels to us like one of the "thin places," where ancient spiritual Celts (and some modern-day religious people) believed that the distinction between heaven and earth is a little less clear than it might be in other places.

When I face the ocean, with my family around me and the everchanging light encompassing us, it's easy to believe that heaven is, after all, right here on earth.

Matters of Opinion

Sure sign of fall

It's a little early, but some of the area's beautiful orchards have already entered apple-picking time. Indian Ladder Farms in New Scotland launched its season over the weekend, and other orchards including Knight Orchards in Ballston and Bowman Orchards in Clifton Park are gearing up for the advent of fall and harvesting gourds and other late-blooming fruits and vegetables.

Apple picking is a great outdoor family activity, with kids scampering up the trees to pering up the trees to pluck the sweetest and juiciest fruit.

Mom and Dad's work comes later on at home to think of ways to best use the apples. Pies, crisps, applesauce, candied apples and a host of related recipes usher in fall with wonderful aromas emanating from the kitchen.

In New York, apples and apple by products almost define what it means to be autumn. And baking and freezing apple recipes can help take the edge off a frigid winter's day when our supply of fresh apples is depleted.

Many farms, like Indian Ladder, are user friendly. welcoming families to pick the wide variety of apples, which mature at different times during the season.

Giving kids a taste of what it means to commune with nature first hand is a wonderful history lesson.

Our suburban communities are fortunate to have the orchards, which have managed to survive despite the development surge in many of our towns and villages.

Indian Ladder's future has already been protected in a land conservancy agreement, guaranteeing its place as an orchard. This means that future generations will have the opportunity to enjoy its bounty forever.

With some of our towns holding moratoriums, it would be a good thing for other orchards to explore so they won't be phased out like many of the region's dairy

These places – the orchards – help to keep the region beautiful and picturesque. Ripping them up for housing developments erodes the charm of many of our more rural landscapes.

We encourage town leaders to explore preservation of the land in their deliberations about what the towns should and shouldn't have. With so many housing developments, we have already created our own version of suburban sprawl, with large houses, built close together on basically treeless lots.

Think about your children and their children. Will they be able to experience the joy of what we now take for granted? We sincerely hope the next generation and the next after that are able to "experience" an orchard. right in their own backyard.

Making healthy lunches for kids

By JAY COONEY

The writer, a registered dietician, is the clinical nutrition manager at Ellis Hospital in Schenectady.

As child obesity rates are soaring, dietary guidelines are changing and school lunch prices are rising, parents may be overwhelmed when it comes to making sure their children are eating properly. Knowing what to pack in a nutritious lunch for your child to take to the bus stop in the morning is a major step in overcoming this hurdle.

Children ages 5 to 18 spend most of their time at school, which makes food consumed away from home a major part of their daily intake. Kids may already know which foods they like and dislike, but their tastes can still be influenced throughout this time period. Eating habits developed during childhood have the potential to last a lifetime.

According to the American Dietetic Association, trends in the past 25 years show a decrease in children's consumption of healthy foods, such as milk, vegetables, soups, breads, grains and eggs, while a recent study released by the Federal Interagency Forum on Child and Family Statistics reports obesity rates increased among children from six percent in the late 1970s to 16 percent just a few years ago. Taken together, these studies suggest an obvious correlation.

Overweight children are at greater risk of developing obesityrelated illnesses as adults, such as heart disease, hypertension, type 2 diabetes and some cancers. reports the association. Additionally, more than two-thirds of children exceed the dailyrecommended amounts of total or saturated fats. These statistics are frightening.

dietary guidelines released recommendations on changes to the national food guidelines. Among the recommendations, the panel emphasized replacing bread, with whole grains, such as wheat bread.

Whole grains are an excellent source of fiber. Current guidelines call for all children 4 to 8 and girls 9 to 13 to consume about 25 grams of fiber each day. Adolescent boys require more fiber than girls — 31 grams per day. The committee urges a fiberrich diet to promote digestive wellness, and to help reduce the risk for heart disease and type 2 diabetes.

Selecting whole-grain breads can be difficult in the grocery store. Many whole-wheat breads are actually enriched flour, which is refined flour with some nutrients that were depleted in the refining process added back into the bread. Whole-grain breads list whole-wheat flour or whole-grain flour as the first ingredient. These breads should also contain two to three grams of fiber per slice.

Another key theme from the panel was that the proper diet should be accompanied by physical activity. The committee called for adults to participate in moderate to vigorous exercise for at least 60 minutes each day. To ensure proper health and fitness in children while allowing for weight gain during growth, the committee recommends 60 minutes of physical activity for children as well. Limiting the amount of time children spend watching television and engaging in other sedentary activities also can minimize the risk for obesity, according to the advisory group.

The panel also suggested increasing the amount of fruits, vegetables and nonfat or low-fat In an effort to make Americans dairy products consumed each ealthier last week the federal, day. Nonfat and low-fat milk government's advisory panel on products, such as skim milk and yogurt, provide essential nutrients while containing significantly less solid fat than whole milk products.

Although the panel's refined grains, such as white recommendations will not be reflected in a revised food pyramid until sometime next year, parents ultimately have the power today to make sure their children are eating the right amounts of the right foods. Here are some suggestions:

> The advisory recommends providing your child with the following servings per day in each food group:

- fruits and vegetables five to eight servings
- low-fat dairy products two servings

Kevin M. Bronner's review of presidential service is generally accurate and may be useful to Spotlight readers.

However, it contains two glaring errors, which should not be left without correction. Dr. Bronner refers to those presidents who "serve(d) a full eight year term."

Town should rectify water fee disparity

I would like to point out a problem with the way water is assessed in Bethlehem.

At the present time water is charged at a rate of $11 for the first 667 cubic feet, followed by 43 cents per 100 cubic feet thereafter. This works out to 1.65 cents per cubic feet for the first 667 units and three cents for water use above this value.

I understand the need for charging more for water above a base amount. The reasons for this are delineated on our water bills. My problem lies with the way water usage is calculated.

If you are a family of four who Delmar uses 3,000 cubic feet of water over a three-month period. Your water bill would amount to $11 for the first 667 cubic feet plus $69.99 for the subsequent 2,333 cubic feet, for a grand total of $80.99 over the three-month period.

Now imagine that four reople live alone, and don't share a water meter. Each of the four people will use 750 cubic feet during the three-month period (One quarter of the 3,000 cubic feet). The cost to each person now comes to $11 (the basic fee) plus $2.49 for the overage (83 cubic feet), giving the total per person amount to $13.49. This adds up to a combined usage fee of $53.96 for the four people.

This means four people living in one house pay $27 more per quarter ($108 per year) than the four people living alone just because they live in the same house.

This is a form of discrimination against families and needs to be rectified by the town.

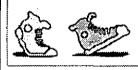

It is not right that one pays substantially more simply * because several people use the same water meter.

Matters of Opinion

BCHS student makes case for lowering voting age

Editor, The Spotlight,

It is my opinion that it is high time young people of all ages were allowed to vote.

This is a country where we are taught from day one that we live in a democracy, and the right to vote for elected leaders is one of our most precious. Why then, are we forbidden to vote entirely on the basis of age? Young people are people too, and that is why I believe we should replace the voting age with a more sensible measure of voting competency.

There are also many reasons youth should vote that make more sense to people not fluent in the philosophies of youth rights.

In the beginning, there was no voting age. Then in the mid-1800s Victorian notions about the innocence of youth led people to set the voting age at 21. That age was chosen because in Old England one became a knight at age 21, therefore people who were 21 were thought to be mature. In 1971, the voting age was lowered to 18 because it was thought that if 18-year-olds can fight and die for their country, they should be able to vote.

Between 1992 and 1995, 40 states made it easier to try youths as adults for certain crimes. This is corroborated in Frank Zimring's book American Youth Violence. Many of the youths who commit these crimes can be tried as adults at the discretion of judge and prosecuting attorney. Yet they can't vote.

The double standard of 1971 hasn't changed. If a 14-year-old can be given the death penalty, why can't they vote for the leaders who make the laws governing that penalty?

The commonly accepted rationale is that parents will vote in the interests of their children. but they don't have our experiences. That would also leave a problem for illegitimate. children or kids with neglectful parents. Everyone should be able to vote because no one can represent our interests quite like we can.

One common argument against youth voting is that we're not mature enough. Some even go as far as to argue that young brains are unformed, using this as an excuse to scapegoat drug, alcohol and promiscuity problems on teenagers. In Adolescence, G. Stanley Hall wrote that child development runs parallel to the development of the human species. This would mean that the species of homo sapiens right states, and the right to say who's before us. This is proven blatantly wrong in a common child psychology textbook called Child Development. In it is the research of Jean Piaget, which states that the brain is fully developed and able to make abstract and moral decisions at age 12.

Also, we do let stupid adults vote. If person X votes for a neo-Nazi party, it is not the government's right to pass judgment on his vote. The Ninth import tax. They then raise the and Tenth Amendments of the price of the products to reimburse competent to vote isn't delegated won't "vote right?"

Finally, there comes the most obvious reason youth should be able to vote. We pay taxes. Teenagers alone pay $9 billion in sales tax a year. Also when products are shipped into this country the importers pay an Constitution give any rights not themselves. So the import tax explicitly delegated to the federal gets passed onto us, the

BC board hears update on building project

By LINDA DeMATTIA

The Bethlehem Central school board received the first of its monthly bond project updates for the new school year at last week's Richard Peckham, architect with Collins & Scoville, said the appropriate documentation for the high school building project has been sent to the state Department of Education. He said he expects the department to review the project by mid-month. Peckham said a reduction in the number of projects before the state, additional staff and a more streamlined project will "move the things they want us to address, we will address them. With this schedule, we are in a positive position.

Peckham said it will be advantageous for the district to issue requests for bids at this time of year. Contactors have finished their summer jobs and are looking for work, he said, and it is long before the spring rush for construction projects. During the late fall and early winter, contractors are more predisposed to bid low to get work lined up process right along. If they find complexity of the project, we are planning on a six-week bid process," Peckham said. "It will give them (bidders) lots of time to look at the documents and work out the details."

> Patrick Hart of Sano-Rubin, the project managers, said the price of steel is fluctuating, with prices going higher than expected.

> "The time between November and when they have to get the steel gives (contractors) flexibility to purchase it when the price is best," Hart said.

> Board member Stuart Lyman suggested the architects replace that steel prices go much higher than anticipated.

"I would rather not spend the money for terrazzo for the whole district," Lyman said. "I'd rather take the money now so if steel is more in the end, we will have the

The board had to switch from terrazzo to ceramic tile flooring at the high school when design development estimates exceeded the original estimate for the job. Board members had to bring the cost down by modifying the design in several areas.

All members agreed that they would rather take the savings by substituting tile for terrazzo in all projects.

There were also changes to the design for the new elementary school based on committee input with more of an eye toward safety and security issues when the Bathrooms on the first floor were moved from the hallway closer to the gym, cafeteria and exterior doors, allowing classrooms to be closed off. The media center was also move on the second floor so classrooms could be closed off.

Peckham also said that work on the athletic fields has been removed from the project and will be done separately because of the wetland issues. Getting permits from the Army Corps of Engineers is a long process.

Currently, there are about seven or eight acres of wetland which the project will affect.

"This is more than we could get permitted," Peckham said. The magical number is under five acres. Anything over five acres gets kicked up to a whole other level of review.'

Getting the Job Done

Higher Standards in banking. Now in your neighborhood.

he drive behind everything we do is Higher Standards. It means always trying to be better than we were the day before. And it's a belief we've lived by for over two hundred years. It allows us to demonstrate Higher Standards for our customers, every time they visit our banking centers, use their Check Card or log onto our Web site.

We're proud to now be bringing these standards to your neighborhood.

We put banking centers and ATMs right where you need them.

Our plan is simple: to locate banking centers near where you work and live, and an ATM right where you need one. Already this has led to a new standard in banking; we've created the largest ATM and banking center network in America.

We demonstrate higher standards inside our banking centers too.

As you walk through the door, you will be met by a banker who can help with your every banking need.

You'll be offered products like our MyAccess Checking® account, which is free with direct deposit and gives added value to the word free. It offers free online banking, free online bill paying, free Check Cards, and free teller access. Plus, the very secure and free, Total Security Protection™, which promises that if your Check Card is ever lost or stolen, and used, you only need to report it promptly and you're protected. We'll put the money back in your account the very next business day.* Guaranteed.

And very soon, when you visit one of our banking centers looking for a mortgage, you'll find one that requires 80% less paperwork. It's our way of demonstrating what we believe: that it shouldn't take as much time to apply for a mortgage as it does to find a home.

We are America's number one Small Business bank.

More small businesses in more places have chosen us as their bank. Over two million of them.

But of course, that didn't happen overnight. We got there one business at a time.

We look forward to bringing you the same wealth of experience with the most sophisticated business tools and advice available. We also welcome the chance to help you find the funding you need, with a wide variety of unique small business loans and line of credit options.

We invest billions of dollars in neighborhoods and people.

For many years, we have demonstrated how banking can make neighborhoods better, by giving back to the neighborhoods where we live and work.

We've already invested more than $230 billion in developing our communities. And we're dedicating $750 billion more over the next ten years. Which, in simple terms, equates to $200 million per day going out to help build new communities, and bring new life to existing ones.

We're equally proud to be helping more people than ever realize their dream of owning a new home.

We've worked hard to pioneer a new program to offer affordable mortgages to those who serve and protect our neighborhoods—like firefighters, medical workers and teachers. We call it our Neighborhood Champions™ program, and it will be available in the Northeast in just a few weeks.

Teachers, for instance, will be able to afford to buy a home in areas where housing prices would have forced them out of the market. And out of the schools they teach in. In this way, the teachers benefit. So do the kids.

We believe one higher standard creates another.

Our philanthropic activities can create Higher Standards in other areas too.

We have recently dedicated $1.5 billion over the next ten years to organizations that are bringing excellence to neighborhoods like yours across America.

You see, we seek to demonstrate this excellence every day, in every way we can. And as Fleet becomes Bank of America, we're proud to have the opportunity to build upon a rich local heritage, creating a higher standard of banking for everyone.

It's why we're excited to be in your neighborhood. And we look forward to meeting you.

Lapsit programs designed for wee ones

They are an opportunity for parents and caregivers to relax, share books and play together with their very youngest children (newborn to 24 months).

Everyone participates, especially the adults. The emphasis is placed on rhymes and fingerplays with motion, bouncing and rocking during storytime. After storytime, the community room will have many different play stations for parent or caregiver to share some special time with their pre-toddler.

We will have a Lapsit program on Thursday, Sept. 30, and Thursday, Oct. 28.

They will begin at 10:15 a.m. and run for about one hour. Sign up or call the reference desk to reserve a place, as there is limited registration. Note: This is a special time for you and your pre-toddler. Older children may come and participate, but this not their

The books and activities will all be geared for the very youngest children. The Lifelines group, under the direction of Cathy Anderson, is hoping to encourage new prose writers to join them this fall. Bring a short piece to share and be there at 7 p.m. on Monday, Sept. 13.

High school seniors should sign up this week for a Sept. 14 college application program under the direction of Sally Ten Eyck, certified education planner. Ten Eyck will answer questions and provide assistance with the application process. Don't miss

The Federal Surface Transportation Board, which authorizes abandonment, requires railways to offer the land to public entities in the order of state, county and local agencies before allowing private buyers to

The green light to remove the tracks came in June of last year when federal transportation authorities gave Canadian Pacific permission to abandon the section. This June, crews from R&R Railroad Contractors of Cabot, Vt., began prying loose the tracks that carried trains on this route for nearly 150 years. Since then, lengths of rail as well as other devices and material, have been put back into use along other routes belonging to the railroad.

Correction

A quote by Public Works Commissioner George Leveille tin last week's Spotlight referred to the wrong subject.

The quote, which said: "The problem really is quality. The content of iron and manganese in the water is much higher than what the plant was designed to treat," should have referred to the Clapper Road water facility, which has the capacity to pump about 6 million gallons of water per day to mostly industrial customers.

RCS to ease transitions St. Thomas to dedicate

By LIBBY SCHIRMER

Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk School District officials are looking to make the transitions from summer to school, and from middle to high school, easier for students and their families.

A recently announced program will save parents from the backto-school shopping mob at the local department stores by providing school supplies to about five dozen RCS middle school parents.

The costs of the supply packages will be less than what they would pay at area stores, but district officials plan on a profit that will be donated back to the community, probably a charity, said Mike McCagg, communications director for the district.

Students' families order supplies before the end of the previous school year. The supplies are then shrink-wrapped individually and delivered to the district office for distribution.

Last year's program benefited fund-raising for the traffic signal that is being constructed in front of the middle-high school campus.

Another program looks to help ease the transition from middle to high school for some students who have been identified as being "most at risk for having

The Transitions Program is a new way to help students realize they are a part of a larger community. It is expected to benefit between 20 and 40 students this year.

Faculty members, social workers and guidance counselors will work as a team with students and families to "help students stay in school, improve academics and prepare for a career," McCagg

High school social worker Jessica Doerr said the transition from middle school, a smaller, more structured environment to high school, which is a larger, more open environment, is a historically difficult transition.

The program focuses on the transition at hand, and how to work that transition with regard to the future, by providing an intensive career identification and vocational employment initiative. The program features job shadowing, vocational training and social worker interaction with the families of students.

Alzheimer's Association seeks phone volunteers

The Alzheimer's Association of North-eastern New York is looking for some dedicated people to assist with its HelpLine telephone service. This Alzheimer's Association service provides information and referral for persons with the disease and their families. Volunteers will answer Help-Line telephone calls and assist families by providing information and gathering available resources.

Some other volunteer opportunities that are available at the Alzheimer's Association include resource librarian (organizing books and videos in the chapter office's resource center), support group volunteers (facilitate a caregiver's support group in the Capital District), special events volunteer (serve at health fairs, Memory Walks, golf tournaments, symposiums and special educational programs), in-office volunteer (assist with mailing letters, photocopying, etc.) and volunteer coordinator (an in-office job coordinating volunteers and jobs assigned to them).

Chapter staff works with volunteers to determine the best job that fits their interests. All volunteers will receive ample training by staff members.

To volunteer, call Kristen Vanderwarker at 438-2217.

The Alzheimer's Association is the only national voluntary health organization dedicated to research for the causes, prevention, treatment and cure of Alzheimer's disease and assistance to families.

The Alzheimer's Association's Northeastern New York Chapter serves approximately 40,000 families affected by Alzheimer's disease and related disorders in the 16 counties of Albany, Clinton, Columbia, Essex, Franklin, Fulton, Greene, Hamilton, Montgomery, Otsego, Rensselaer, Saratoga, Schoharie, Warren and Washington.

Local programs include support groups, respite training, public policy advocacy, and educational programs for family members and training programs for professionals paraprofessionals.

NiMo reminds customers to work safely outdoors

Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. offers a few reminders to customers who are working outside.

• Don't use an aluminum ladder or a damp. moist, or wet wooden ladoverhead near der electricity lines.

• Don't place a ladder in a puddle of water or on the damp ground.

• Before erecting a ladder, look up to make sure that it will not contact – or even come close to – power lines.

• If you're using an electrically operated tool, don't stand on damp or wet ground. Instead, stand on dry wooden boards.

• For added protection, install Ground Fault Interrupters on all outdoor electric outlets. This will help to prevent shock injury.

· Never work in any area where you are in danger of directly or indirectly contacting power lines.

• Children should not climb trees growing near overhead electricity wires.

Remember When All of Your Friends Lived in the Neighborhood?

As you grew up, many of your closest friends moved to other towns and even different states. Perhaps at no other time as much as when a death occurs do you miss the support of those who knew you best. We want you to know we are one friend who is still here in the neighborhood...as we have been for so many years.

Janet Grondin

Janet G. Grondin, 58, of Voorheesville, died tragically in a boating accident on Friday, Sept.

Born in Richmond, Va., she was raised and educated in Virginia and received her bachelor of fine arts from Virginia Commonwealth University.

Mrs. Grodin was a free-lance decorator and designer and was instrumental in display design at Saks Fifth Avenue, Vogue and many other companies. Ultimately, she established Decor Unlimited, her own company specializing in design and installation.

She was actively involved in the life of Berean Baptist Church in Guilderland Center.

Survivors include her husband, Andre Grondin; a daughter, Elizabeth Blair Badaracco; her mother, Marian W. Grove three sisters, Barbara E. Grove, Christine G. Fines and Martha G. Middleton; and her grand kitties, Elliott and Twizzler.

Services are scheduled at 10 a.m. today, Sept. 8, at Berean Baptist Church, Route 146, Guilderland Center.

Arrangements are by the Fredendall Funeral Home, 199 Main St., Altamont.

Burial will be in Prospect Hill Cemetery in Guilderland. Contributions may be made to the Humane Society.

Robert Rogers

Robert A. Rogers, of Ravena, died Monday, Aug. 30, at Albany Medical Center Hospital.

Born in Saratoga Springs, he was educated there.

He was an Air Force veteran of the Korean War. He served overseas as an aerial photographer and stateside as a ground safety specialist.

After the service, Mr. Rogers attended the former State Teachers College while working as an Albany city firefighter.

After graduation, he worked in advertising and sales for many years until finding his life's work, career counseling. Bob worked in county of Albany before founding Sage Associates and later Résumés Plus, both in Albany. He was a pioneer in the job club 12054. movement, starting many groups throughout the Capital District. He was the author of two books on job search. Secrets of the Hidden Job Market and The New Mosaic: Job Clubs. He helped many people and was especially proud of his work with people magna cum laude from Utica living at the margins.

He was an active member of United Methodist Church, where he worked in economic and social justice ministries. He was a representative to the Capital Area Council of Churches and was active in interfaith activities for many years.

He was an avid Boston Red Sox fan and loved old movies, Frank Sinatra and cherry pie.

Survivors include his wife, Mary Rogers; two sons, Samuel Patrick Rogers of Ravena and Matthew Cahn of Albany; and a sister, Ann Rogers.

A memorial service is being planned for a later date, to take place at First United Methodist Church, Delmar. Contributions in memory of Bob may be made to this capacity for both the city and Habitat For Humanity, 696 grandchildren. Delaware Ave., Albany 12209 or First United Methodist Church, 11:30 a.m. today, Sept. 8, at St. 428 Kenwood Ave., Delmar

Mary Heiser

Mary J. Heiser, 72, of Delmar, died Wednesday, Sept. 1, at Hospice Inn at St. Peter's.

Born in Utica, she graduated College with a bachelor's degree in social studies. She later received a master's degree in geography from Northwestern University and a master's in library science from the University at Albany.

Mrs. Heiser worked as an administrative assistant in Albany Medical College's biochemistry department.

She was an active member of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Tawasentha Chapter, the Delmar Progress Club and St. Stephen's Episcopal Church.

Survivors include her husband of 49 years, W. Wayne Heiser; two sons, Paul F. Heiser of Delmar and David W. Heiser of Albany; a daughter, Sarah E. Pulsifer of East Greenbush; a brother, Allen Noble of Akron, Ohio; and two Services are scheduled at Stephen's Episcopal Church, Elsmere Avenue and East Poplar Drive in Delmar.

Arrangements are by the Applebee Funeral Home, 403 Kenwood Ave., Delmar.

Contributions may be made to St. Stephen's Episcopal Church building fund.

Bert Hagyard

Bert J. Hagyard, 47, of Feura Bush, died Saturday, Sept. 4.

Born in Albany, Mr. Hagyard will be remembered as a jack-ofall-trades with a high work ethic.

Bethlehem opens with double overtime victory

By ROB JONAS

After a two-win season last year, the Bethlehem football team will take any victory it can get.

Ryan Eder scored on a 20-yard run in double overtime to lead the Eagles to a 14-7 victory over Albany last Friday in Delmar.

"It was a really good high school football game," Bethlehem coach Ron Smith said. "We showed some resiliency, and we played well on both sides of the

The Eagles (1-0) may not have needed overtime had they taken advantage of their scoring opportunities in the first half. Bethlehem drove deep into Albany's territory several times, but only scored once on an 18yard touchdown run by Eder in the first quarter.

"We had the ball inside their 10-yard line four times," Smith said. "We had penalties, and we misfired on our field goal opportunities."

The Falcons (0-1) tied the game in the third quarter on a 28yard touchdown run by Julius Irving and were looking for more following a Bethlehem turnover. But, the Eagles' defense stopped Albany on downs to prevent further damage.

"They completely had the momentum going their way, and we stepped it up on defense," Smith said.

Following regulation, Bethlehem won the coin toss for overtime and elected to go on defense first. The Eagles stopped Albany on four downs from their 20-yard line, but couldn't score on their ensuing offensive series and the two teams headed for a second overtime.

Bethlehem got the ball first in the second extra period and took advantage of it. Eder followed a lead block from fullback Geoff Wilcox and ran 20 yards for the go-ahead touchdown.

"Ryan actually scored on the same play as he did the first time,' Smith said. "We deployed a formation where we lined up most of our players on the left side and ran to our weak side on the right."

Albany had a chance to tie the game, but Bethlehem's defense came through with another strong series to seal the victory.

Elsewhere on Section II football's opening night, Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk scored twice in the fourth quarter to pull out a 21-14 home win against Mohonasen.

After Brad Carlton's second touchdown of the game gave Mohonasen a 14-7 lead, John Lynch capped a Ravena scoring Tim Jordan then threw a five-yard scoring pass to Josh Parella to give the Indians the lead for good.

Lynch rushed for 84 yards, and Jordan added a 15-yard touchdown run in the third quarter for Ravena. Carlton caught a 45-yard touchdown pass and added a 54yard scoring run for Mohonasen.

Voorheesville lost to Schuylerville 28-0 last Friday, despite 121 passing yards from quarterback Andy Catellier.

Miller said Germain will be an important part of Bethlehem's offense, even after moving him from forward to midfield this

"We also have Chris Dudek back, and he scored some goals for us last year," Miller said.

Bethlehem's lineup will have an international look to it, too. Sophomore forward Darko Knezevic — who moved with his parents to the United States several years ago from Bosnia is making his varsity debut, as is Herman Koumelon, a recent immigrant from the Ivory Coast.

The defense is anchored by senior goaltender Zack Sherman and junior defensive center midfielder Kyle Dunleavy.

"We've got to come together in the backfield," Miller said. "We have some new players back there that have to get used to the (defensive) system.'

Mark calendar for Community Day

Library renovations had just gotten under way at this time last year. Now we're back in full stride, offering our usual array of services, programs and special events this fall.

One annual event that returns this week is Community Day, which has been the official start of our fall season for many years.

Community Day will take place this Sunday, Sept. 12, from 1 to 4 p.m. We're pleased to welcome 18 Bethlehem civic and craft groups; whose representatives will be in the lobby to show and tell what they're about.

In addition, representatives of the local "Rock the Vote" chapter will be on hand to help folks register to vote at online registration stations set up in the lobby.

Fall storytimes

Fall storytime registration for Bethlehem residents begins Tuesday Sept. 14. One day of registration is designated for each storytime level. Registration is by phone only; no voice mail or email registrations can be accepted. Call 439-9314 extension 3026 according to the following schedule:

- Toddler level: call Tuesday Sept. 14, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.
- Preschool level: call Wednesday Sept. 15, from 9 a.m. ito 5 p.m.
- Advanced and Family level: call Thursday Sept. 16, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Registration opens to nonresidents in all levels on Friday, Sept. 17, and after that during library hours.

Storytimes run from Sept. 20 to Nov. 24. The storytime schedule can be found in the September/October issue of "Footnotes," the library newsletter, available in the library online www.bethlenempubliclibrary.org. Click on "About the Library" and go to the current issue.

Upcoming programs

Jack Hotchkiss of the Scotia-Glenville Traveling Museum returns to present "Glenn Miller: the man, the music, the era" this Friday, Sept. 10, at 2 p.m.

Hotchkiss will trace the life of the famed bandleader with slides, narration and clips of original recordings. He will also bring a portion of his Miller memorabilia collection, which he has assembled over the past 60 years.

This program is cosponsored by Bethlehem Senior Projects.

Join us for a shared reading and discussion of the Bill of Rights on Saturday, Sept. 11, at 11 a.m. This event is part of a nationwide observance sponsored by The September Project. To learn more about that organization, www.theseptemberproject.org.

Jazz goes down by the river

By DEV TOBIN

t's not Newport, or even Newport at SPAC, but the third annual Albany Riverfront Jazz
Festival continues to attract upand-coming jazz stars to the city's openair concert venue by the river.

And, unlike the bigger festivals with their well-known senior citizen performers, the Albany event is free.

The festival, on Sunday, Sept. 12, from noon to dusk, at Albany Riverfront Park, will feature Ann Hampton Callaway, the James Carter Organ Trio, Sensemaya con Mundo Nuevo, Curtis Stigers and Sonya Kitchell.

Dottie Dack, director of the city special events office, said Kitchell is "a 15-year-old prodigy who put a great show at Justin's" recently.

"She's very talented and just starting to make a name for herself," Dack added.

Dack said that headliner Calloway is "fantastic, with a beautiful voice and wonderful range."

In between Kitchell and Calloway, the festival features a variety of jazz styles from singer/saxophonist Stigers, saxophonist/band leader Carter and local Latin dance band Sensemaya con Mundo Nuevo.

After a summer where it seemed every afternoon had a chance of thunderstorms, Dack is keeping her fingers crossed for sun on Sunday.

"The weather has been torture this summer," she said. "Even indoor venues were affected by the downpours and the thunderstorms."

Plan B is case of rain will be moving the festival to the renovated Palace Theatre, Dack noted.

Ann Hampton Callaway

The schedule is Sonya Kitchell at noon, Curtis Stigers at 1:30 p.m., Sensemaya con Mundo Nuevo at 3:15, the James Carter Organ Trio at 4:30 and Ann Hampton Callaway at 6.

The ground rules will be the same as for other city festivals, and not as restrictive as at Live at Five. Dogs and other animal (except service animals) and glass containers of any kind are prohibited. But people can bring in alcohol and food in nonglass containers and coolers.

While people can bring food and drink,
Dack noted that Panera Breads and Mondavi

Wines will be major vendors at the festival.

Curtis Stigers

On a related jazz note, on Friday, Sept. 10, at 8 p.m., the eighth annual jazz benefit concert by Bethlehem Central High graduates Seth Fruiterman and Adam Waite will take place in The Egg at Empire State Plaza.

This year, Fruiterman and Waite, both pianists, will accompany Chilean jazz vocalist Claudia Asuna.

The event is a benefit for Albany Mayor Gerald Jennings' Literacy Campaign. Tickets are $22 and can be purchased at The Egg box office (473-1845). For information about the concert, log on to www.jazzbenefit.org.

has not allowed it to stand. We felt confident they would not allow that to happen and made a conservative estimate.'

Although the 2004-05 budget includes budget reductions, state law prohibits the district from spending more than the amount approved by district voters simply because revenues have increased, precluding the district from restoring the program reductions this year.

The difference between the tax rates of the two towns is the result of current equalization rate information.

Equalization rates are designed to equalize the tax burden across municipalities in the Bethlehem school district's case, between the towns of Bethlehem and New Scotland.

An equalization rate is computed by dividing the total assessed value of properties in a municipality (as recorded on the assessment roll) by the estimated market value of those properties (determined by ORPS based on a sampling of property appraisals) as of a specified date.

The rates are intended to ensure that all municipalities within a school district pay their fair share of the tax levy, as determined by municipality's share of the total market value of property in the school district, even when assessment practices differ between towns.

teachers to move in to their classrooms and get them ready.

Superintendent Vicki Wright has said the window of time was too small; that parents needed to be assured their children would be attending a school that was safe for instruction.

A revised version of the RCS school calendar is on the district's Web site at www.rcscsd.com.

Mike McCagg, communications coordinator for the district, said he was barraged with 30-plus calls from parents regarding rumors about the delayed start.

"I had calls referring to rumors that school wasn't ready to start, that we were going to have halfdavs until December, none of which were true," McCagg said last week. "I'm hoping the calls will stop at some point."

McCagg noted two reasons behind the decision to leave a snow day in place and make Sept. 16 a class day.

We live in the Northeast, you district goes up a mountain, so there's always a concern about using up a snow day before we need to," McCagg said.

who wish to observe Rosh Hashanah will not be penalized for not coming to school, McCagg said, noting another practical reason for the change.

Referring to the new start day of Sept. 13, McCagg said: "That gives you three days and then you get your first day off. We figured, let's try to not break up the first week of school."

School will start Sept. 13, no matter what, McCagg said. Contingency plans are in place to account for any possibility that the schools will not be ready for both groups of middle and high school students.

The district has also announced plans to hold a rededication ceremony to let the community see what district officials have repeatedly described as a "Herculean effort" that has resulted in a virtual overhaul of the middle and high school buildings.

The event is scheduled for Sept. 30 and marks an official close to the five-year capital know how it is here and that our improvement project, according to McCagg.

> Residents will be able to tour the new, up-to-date school buildings. The high school's new science wing, the middle school's

Any faculty, staff or student new band room, a renovated gymnasium and auditorium and a new media center, all at the high school, will be featured, among other classrooms.

Wright said the event is an opportunity for school officials and the community to take pride in the district's new facilities the community's tax dollars have made possible.

Local and state officials will be on hand to celebrate, McCagg

The official rededication of the high school will begin at 6:30 p.m., after a half-hour meet and greet. The middle school rededication will follow the high school's ceremony. Tours of the facilities will begin at 7 p.m.
