BC forecasts enrollment decline

One school board member is skeptical

By JIM CUOZZO cuozzoj@spotlightnews.com

For the first time in 20 years, overall student enrollment in the Bethlehem school district is on the decline. The annual longrange planning report compiled by the district shows a decrease of 10 students in the 2007-08 school year, brining the projected enrollment to 5,172 students.

"This is pretty noteworthy," said Superintendent Les Loomis.

enrollment increased by 600 from 4,619 students to more than 5,200 students before the trend shift.

"Finally, we are projecting enrollment will go down a bit," Loomis said.

Statistics indicate that student enrollment will remain relatively constant for the next five to 10 years, and new capital construction was on target with the projections.

One of the main reasons for Loomis said. From 1996 to 2006, student the stagnant enrollment is the lack of new single-family housing development.

> "I have been reading these reports. and every one of them shows no growth and every one of them has been wrong."

> > Warren Stoker

"There is just not that much new land for development here,"

Town officials who worked with the district compiling the data believe future Bethlehem development will shift to more town houses and senior housing, rather than new construction.

> "One would expect the source of our enrollment will be a turnover of existing homes," Loomis said.

Enrollment in elementary schools will decrease by 13 students in the

Fugitive caught after standoff

By JIM CUOZZO cuozzoj@spotlightnews.com

A Krumkill Road man wanted for crimes in Florida held police at bay outside his home for nine hours before several rounds of tear gas forced him to give up.

Paul Harris, 44, was arraigned Friday afternoon, Jan. 5, in New Scotland Town Court by Judge Thomas Dolin.

Harris was charged with three violations in New York to go along with his outstanding warrants in Florida. They include resisting arrest, criminal possession of a weapon fourth degree and being a fugitive from justice.

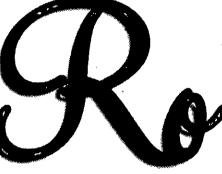

It is not clear how long Harris has been in the Albany area. Albany County Sheriff James Campbell said a Colonie police officer on patrol identified Harris' vehicle around 1:30 a.m. on Sand Creek Road on Thursday, Jan. 4.

"The police officer was going in one direction, and the suspect was driving in the opposite direction," said Campbell.

Harris was gone by the time the officer began his pursuit. Albany County Sheriff's Department was contacted next and a short time later Harris' car was spotted sitting in a field next to a home along Krumkill Road, police said. Police tried to enter the residence at 881 Krumkill, but there was no response from the three people inside. Police then surrounded the building and tried to coerce Harris into give up.

By WILLIAM R. DEVOE devoew@spotlightnews.com

Salvation Army Lieutenant Roger Miller calls her an "icon"—one of those rare people who volunteers without fail and is so reliable that they become a sort of fixture in the community.

Rowina Squires, or "Auntie Ro," as she is known in bell ringing circles, is an icon. At the age of 84, she still gives almost 12 hours a day to the Salvation Army, collecting donations as she sits and smiles beside her red kettle.

Auntie Ro began swinging the clapper at the Saratoga Race Course a dozen years ago. She didn't do it to be charitable, she said. Instead, having been retired for a number of years, she just wanted to meet people.

"When people come up to me and they give, I talk to them," she said. "And after you've talked to someone," they're not a stranger anymore."

At the race course, during the summer and without a winter holiday to nudge people toward generosity, Auntie Ro said she sees people at their best and worst.

East meets west in art exhibit

Showcase features student works from both Japan and Bethlehem

By JIM CUOZZO cuozzoj@spotlightnews.com

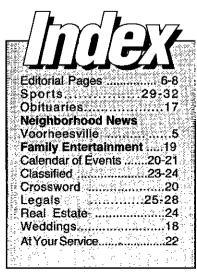

Face to Face, a joint art exhibit showcasing the artwork of Japanese and Bethlehem middle school students, is on display at the Bethlehem Central School District's administrative building during the month of January.

The project stems from an idea that germinated over time from Suzanne Hokanson, a middle school art teacher who spent three weeks in the end of 2005 in Japan on a Fulbright Memorial Fund Scholarship. It was on that trip that Hokanson met a teacher who knew Kenji Koike, a middle school teacher from Tokyo. The two teachers corresponded, and Hokanson explained her idea of having students from both countries paint their own self-portraits.

"Mr. Koike was very interested in the exchange, and since last March we have been e-mailing each other back and forth," said Hokanson.

The concept was that the completed paintings would be displayed and viewed side by side. The paintings from Japanese students would face east and the artwork from Bethlehem students would face west.

"It has been very exciting," said Hokanson. "It has expanded the students' understanding of the world."

At one point during the work exchange, students from both countries talked to each other through a video conference with the Japanese students in a classroom at 8 a.m., and the Bethlehem students gathered at 6 p.m. because of the time difference.

"It was fun for them to be able to talk face to face," said Hokanson. "Some of the students have become e-mail friends."

The art exhibit can be viewed at the Adams Street school district headquarters through the end of the month. A reception featuring the arrival of Koike in Bethlehem was held Friday, Jan. 5. The teacher from the Far East walked around the district building taking pictures, viewing the artwork and meeting students and parents from Bethlehem.

"For Mr. Koike to come here and see this is amazing," said Hokanson.

Koike's trip will include visits to Boston and New York City before he heads back to Tokyo.

Koike presented an oil painting to the district, and seemed to enjoy his time in Bethlehem.

"Thank you very much," he said.

Rail car fire forces evacuation

Thirty homes surrounding a onehalf mile radius of the CSX rail yard in Selkirk were evacuated for a brief period of time Thursday evening, Jan. 4, after a rail tanker car holding more than 23,000 gallons of highly flammable methanol caught fire.

The colorless liquid often used in antifreeze and other solvents burned for well over 90 minutes before fire crews from a variety of departments contained the fire with foam and extinguished the flames.

Most of the residents who were temporarily evacuated lived on South Albany Road according to Bethlehem Police Lt. Thomas Heffernan.

"We went door to door and evacuated several homes for precautionary measures," said Heffernan.

There were no injuries. The cause of the fire is under investigation.

Lack of snow, ice not stopping new day of fun at Thacher Park

'Winter Chill Out' slated for later this month

By ROB IRWIN irwinr@spotlightnews.com

Though, as of late, it may not feel like a typical winter in the Capital District, Thacher Park is inviting the community to a day of outdoor winter fun on Sunday, Jan. 21, as part of its first "Winter Chill Out."

Joy Scism, the events' coordinator, said, "We're trying to get people into the park this winter."

Typically, said Scism, the park holds an annual ice-fishing competition which brings people into the park, but. 'This year's there's not a lot of ice, or any."

Scism said the event isn't dependent on the weather.

"It's going to go on," said Scism, "snow or no snow."

However she would like to see some snow fall.

"People want to go to a winterfest with snow," she said.

The Winter Chill Out will take place at the Pear Orchard Picnic Shelter and adjacent areas of the park from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

From 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., Vic DiSanto will be on hand with his "Second-Chance" sled dogs, offering educational programs and opportunities to meet the dogs.

DiSanto said each program he does consists of a 45-minute history of dog sledding and an additional 45-minute "Meet the Sled Dogs" portion, where people can sit or stand with their dogs and have their pictures taken.

"If there is snow, I usually bring four dogs and a do a demonstration and give a few rides to children," said DiSanto in an e-mail. "If there is not any snow, I'll probably only bring two dogs."

From noon to 3 p.m., attendees may take part in an old fashioned horse-drawn wagon ride around the park or follow clues in the Chill Out Treasure Hunt. If the unseasonable weather doesn't last, people may build a giant snowman, create a snow sculpture or design a unique piece of snow art.

In addition, Eastern Mountain Sports will be offering winter sports fun workshops and demonstrations, including snowshoeing, backcountry skiing and winter camping.

Get to know the people in your life

By ROBIN SHRAGER SUITOR news@spotlightnews.com

Many years ago I was at a funeral service where the clergyman mispronounced the deceased's name throughout the eulogy. I'd never even met the deceased, yet I was irritated at the error.

I just squirmed in the pew, suppressing the urge to take action and wishing someone would go whisper a correction in the clergyman's ear. No one did. Everyone was either too grief-stricken or too polite to interrupt and set the record straight.

This was one of those situations where all is lost unless you step in right away. Someone needed to speak up immediately after the first mispronunciation. No one wants to break in halfway through the service to say, "Excuse me, the guy's name is

It wasn't the mispronunciation itself that bothered me so much as the realization that the person delivering the eulogy didn't even know the deceased. I know this happens a lot. The clergy or funeral home staff meet with the family. learn the crib notes version of the person's life and then mother-in-law should be compose the tribute.

Really, how hard could it be to write a eulogy?

My mother-in-law lived in Florida and wasn't affiliated with any house of worship in the Northeast. So when she passed away in 2002, I turned to my own rabbi. He came to our house and sat and talked with my husband and me.

What was she like, the rabbi wanted to know. My husband, grief-stricken and at a loss for words, didn't know how to describe his mother. All I could think of was "she liked to watch TV." That didn't sound appropriate.

That's when it hit me. I didn't know the woman enough to describe her properly. It was like showing up to a final exam and realizing you had forgotten to attend class all semester.

I had a flashback to that other funeral where the deceased's name was mispronounced. And although I had confidence in my rabbi's ability to correctly say, "Lillian," I felt strongly that the person speaking on behalf of my someone who had actually met

In my impulsive, I'm-in-charge-of-the-world way, I volunteered to write and deliver the eulogy. For my husband's sake and the sake of his family, and for the memory of my mother-in-law, I didn't want the service to be impersonal. My husband checked with his sisters. They were fine with my offer.

Talk about biting off more than you can chew! I suddenly felt presumptuous. Why did I think I had the right or the ability to take on this task? This was not a book report or a work presentation or a play.

What the heck was I thinking?

I contacted each of Jeff's siblings and asked them to share their memories. And it was through their stories that I got to know my mother-inlaw. And late at night. as I worked to piece it all together, a million tears splashed onto my keyboard.

I cried and cried because while she was alive I knew so very little about her. I knew a lot of the facts, but never took the time to reflect about how the events in her life had affected her.

What her were responsibilities growing up the second oldest of eight children? What was it like to be raised in New York City and then swept off your feet by a guy from Oklahoma? What was it like to move around the country and then finally settle down in Colonie? How did she endure when she became a widow with three kids, ages 10, 14, and 16, still at home, and pipeline family construction business to run?

I always felt very different from my mother-in-law. She kept her feelings private. I wear mine on my sleeve. She was a dignified, elegant woman who dressed properly and acted properly. I'm prone to singing in public and my shoelaces are often untied.

"My mom thinks you're terrific," my husband would tell that she thought I was peculiar. I imagined that she would have gotten along well with my grandmother who used to say to me, "Can't you brush that

It's common to want your inlaws to approve of you. One time my mother-in-law commented on how svelte I was. I thought the word svelte meant "stocky" and that left me perplexed on two counts: why did she consider me stocky and why would she announce it out

Looking back, I realized that it was my own insecurities that made me think Jeff's mom had doubts about me. But there was also the time she said, "Are you getting new sneakers soon?"

For the record, it's easier to keep sneakers white and clean when you live in Florida. Here in upstate New York, we get all sorts of weather. Also, I have weird feet, so if I find a pair of shoes that are comfortable I wear them into the ground.

Anyhow, Lillian was a private woman who needed her personal space. With five children I don't imagine she got a lot of "me" time. She believed in the philosophy that children should be seen and not heard, which is most likely how she was raised.

However, after the birth of her first grandchild, her views of parenthood began to change. Her grown daughter taught her ideas different about motherhood, including being more affectionate and spending more time with your kids. This paid off for my husband, the me, but I generally suspected youngest child, who was just 6 years old when his oldest sister started her family.

> Of course, I didn't know any of this until after his mom died. And as I sat sobbing, trying to organize the information into a meaningful, appropriate tribute, I realized that there was no good reason I couldn't have gotten to know my mother-in-law while she was alive.

> Only my ignorance and arrogance had kept me in the dark. I could have listened more and assumed less. It really didn't > > take much research to gain some insight: just five conversations, one with each of her children.

Writing the eulogy was nerve-racking. I agonized over whether I had made the right decision in volunteering for the job. Why didn't I just let the rabbi do it? He's a professional. He would have done an appropriate job. What if I disappointed the family and added to their grief?

I struggled because it's impossible to capture the depth of person's life in just a few pages. How can a short tribute do justice to a person's memory?

It turns out the tribute in no way begins and ends with a funeral service. We have opportunities to honor our loved ones every day. And when they pass on, we continue to honor them by sharing recipes and stories, by raising their grandchildren, and by enjoying the warmth of an afghan they knitted.

I delivered a eulogy filled with Lillian this" and "Lillian that." Later that day, as the family gathered for food, one of Jeff's sisters was saying how weird it was to hear me refer to her mom as "Lillian." No one ever called her that, she said. Growing up she remembered people calling her mother "Lil." Aw gee, so I messed up on the name after all.

My mother-in-law would have turned 87 this month. Happy Birthday, Lil. We miss you.

"I was a partner in the firm for 11 years prior to my position with the state, and I had the opportunity to come back," Dering

His new duties will include working in areas of health care law, corporate law and commercial litigation.

"It's good to be back, the transition is nice," said Dering.

"Having this government experience will be invaluable to my ability to better serve clients in the health care field," he added.

Dering is married with a daughter who goes to Glenmont Elementary School. He has served as a member of the school board the past two years, and is looking forward to 2007.

"I would like to continue to seek improvement in all aspects of the district, including new ways for the community to interact, said Dering.

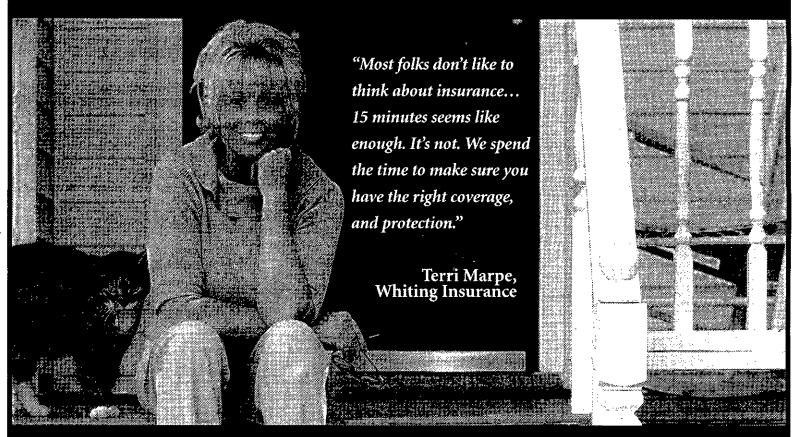

Dering is also active in the community, having served as a soccer coach the past seven years with the Bethlehem Youth Soccer

"It's important to participate as a parent and give back to the school community," said Dering.

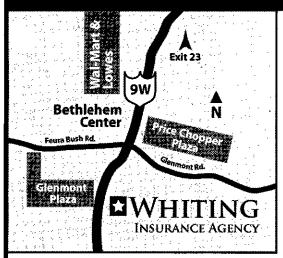

Prior to his work as deputy general counsel, Dering served one year as director of the bureau of house counsel for the state Department of Health.

Some are born great, William Shakespeare wrote in his play "Twelfth Night," some achieve greatness, and some have greatness thrust upon 'em.

Gerald R. Ford, who died last week, planned to achieve greatness by becoming speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives, where he served for 25 years, eight of them as minority leader. But as he himself said, "A funny thing happened to me on the way to becoming speaker ...

to resign. In August 1974, Nixon's choice to resign rather than tarnish the office of president, thrust greatness upon Ford when he became our 38th president.

One of his first acts – pardoning Nixon for his Watergate activities – drew a firestorm that likely kept Ford from winning the 1976 election.

Time and historians are beginning to be kinder, as we recall Ford's time in the White House as an era of healing.

Watergate, following Vietnam, was a dark time for the country. Ford's calm demeanor let us believe the door was cracking open to let in the light of brighter days.

Ford was a quiet, stalwart Midwesterner, a football hero with a round face. His unsure footing proved fodder for comedian Chevy Chase on "Saturday Night Live." After years of nervous laughter at political thievery, to laugh at a pratfall seemed almost healing. Mourners lining up to view Ford's casket called him an "everyman."

While controversy will probably continue about the presidential pardon, there are qualities we can learn from Ford. His loyalty to country was evidenced in his combat duty in the Pacific during World War II. His loyalty to family came in the years that he supported his wife as she bravely gave a public face to her private battle with alcoholism.

His simple ways were evident in the funeral he received. No caisson, no riderless horse for this president, but a motorcade that paused at the World War II memorial partially illuminated against the night sky.

While a bos'n pipe played a Navy tune, we should all hear "Hail to the Chief" when we think of President Gerald R. Ford.

Bellevue Hospital is here to stay

By ANNE SAILE

The writer is president and CEO of Bellevue Woman's Hospital in Niskavuna.

The past several weeks have been scary, challenging and exhilarating for the staff of Bellevue Woman's Hospital in Niskayuna. Scary, because we are on the list of hospitals slated to be closed as recommended by the Berger Commission, a statecommissioned panel charged with examining the efficiency of health care in the state. Challenging, because we have been working diligently to make sure our doors remain open.

Finally, the past few weeks have been exhilarating due to the overwhelming support Bellevue Woman's Hospital has received from thousands of people who are determined to make sure Bellevue is here to stay.

It is no wonder. Our hospital is a beloved and important piece of the Capital District.

For more than 75 years, Bellevue Woman's Hospital has provided generations of women – from daughters to mothers to grandmothers - with unique high quality care that can only come from a facility that is dedicated solely to women's medical needs. Some of our doctors have been on staff for decades, becoming experts in their fields.

Bellevue has a rich and groundbreaking history. The hospital was founded in 1931 by M. Grace Jorgensen, a 28-year-old nurse and mother of two.

Women are not simply small men," Jorgensen said.

This pioneer had a dream to create a hospital to meet the special needs of women and their babies and families. To date, more than 110,000 babies have been born at Bellevue. which has grown to become the oldest and only freestanding nonprofit woman's hospital in New York and one of only two in the country.

M. Grace Jorgensen would be so proud — and there is much to be proud of

In the 1960s, Bellevue was the first hospital in America to have a mammography unit. Today, we have the most advanced diagnostic breast cancer center and the most comprehensive pelvic health center in eastern New York. Our hospital also provides invaluable services to the community. For example, it is estimated that Bellevue's award winning "Before Your Baby Basics Program" has saved millions of dollars in state Medicaid funds. The program educates high-risk, expectant mothers and is designed to keep babies safe and healthy. In addition, Bellevue has spearheaded a successful partnership with two local hospitals to form the Northeast Comprehensive Center for Eating Disorders. It is estimated that as are fighting a life-and-death battle with an eating disorder. We are committed to help women take on this potentially deadly issue.

These are just some of the services that make Bellevue stand out as a unique and invaluable asset to the Capital District. In fact, our hospital is so special that health care professionals from around the globe have traveled thousands of miles to visit Bellevue so they could learn how to set up similar facilities. Just think: a hospital right in our own back yard has turned into a symbol of premiere women's health care for women the world over.

For these reasons and more, it would be a tragedy if Bellevue Woman's Hospital were forced to close down.

The Berger Commission was certainly faced with an extremely difficult task when it was asked to restructure the state health care system. Unfortunately, much of the information contained in the Berger Commission Report simply isn't accurate.

For one thing, the report states Bellevue Woman's Hospital had a $17.3 million deficitin 2004-2005. The number is actually $1.3 million. The report also claims Bellevue does not perform surgery. This couldn't be further from the truth. Our physicians perform more than 3,000 surgeries a year. The report also states that Bellevue is mainly a Schenectady hospital. I am thrilled to report that Bellevue has served women from 54 of the 62 counties in New York and from 42 of the 50 states in the nation.

On Jan. 1, the state Legislature allowed the Berger Commission's recommendations to become law. As a result, a number of lawsuits have been filed on behalf of facilities set to close. While Bellevue Woman's Hospital has not taken the legal route, we have reached out to lawmakers, including Gov. Eliot Spitzer. He has said if something doesn't make sense in the Berger Commission Report, he will seek a way to address it. I believe him. I also believe that the people of the Capital District have the power to make a difference in the future of women's health care in our area. They can make sure their voices are heard by contacting their representative and insisting that Bellevue must remain

As I write this, Bellevue continues to thrive. I am happy to say our business is actually up 20 percent many as 10 million American females since the commissions report was released. Our staff received pay raises in January and continues to be incredible throughout this difficult time-reporting to work with as much passion as ever. Another positive fact has emerged in the midst of all this Berger Commission chaos — more people than ever before are learning about Bellevue Woman's Hospital.

> As we enter 2007, my heart is filled with hope for the women of the Capital District. I am confident that women's health care will not be cast aside. I am confident that the dream of M. Grace Jorgensen will live on. I am confident that Bellevue is here to stay!

School district cites insurance, legal liabilities in turning down a park on school property

Members of the Bethlehem school board decided there will be no skateboard park at the middle school, or on any other school district property.

next year, while middle school enrollment will increase by 41 students. The high school enrollment is projected to decrease by 38 students, with overall high school enrollment staying between 1,700 and 1,800 over the next few years.

The projections are used by the district as a base for future enrollment and classroom size, along with individual school building capacity.

"We have planned for growth, and we do have additional space available at the middle school, high school and elementary level," said Loomis.

Warren Stoker said he has served on the school board for many years and believes the projections may not hold up.

"I have been reading these reports, and every one of them shows no growth and every one of them has been wrong," said Stoker.

Loomis said the annual enrollment projections in this district are more comprehensive than they are in most school systems.

In other school news, the district citizens budget committee will hold its first meeting at the end of January. The committee comprises district staff, union officials, PTA members and residents, and is designed to give input on the budget process before the school board's budget committee formally begins its review of next year's budget.

"We have heard from at least three at-large community members who want to be a part of this group," said Loomis. The deadline for volunteers to contact the school district was Friday, Jan.

The members of the committee will total anywhere between 20 to 30 people.

Last year was the first year in more than 20 years that the Bethlehem school district budget went down to defeat. More than $800,000 in reductions were made before the budget was finally adopted in June.

The giving season doesn't end after holidays

By CARI SCRIBNER scribnerc@spotlightnews.com

The presents have been unwrapped, the dinners shared, the family visits made, and thoughts return to getting back into the routine of non-holiday

For many, the holidays were a time to look outside their own lives and share the spirit of the season with people in need. Whether that meant donating to local food pantries, spending time at a residence for older adults, or making a charitable donation, the season from Thanksgiving to December holidays can bring out the best in us.

The theme of good will to men motivates us, but come Jan. 2, for many, those good intentions are packed up and put away until next November. But sadly, the basic needs for food, shelter and comfort among the less fortunate don't end when the calendar changes, leaving staff members at area charities hoping the holiday spirit will carry on well after the New Year is rung in.

"We continuously need volunteers; it never goes away,' said Crystal Hamelink, assistant to the Rev. Phil Grigsby, who founded the Schenectady Inner City Ministry (SICM) 40 years Hamelink said she has seen a trend year after year of volunteer troops rising in numbers in the last months of the calendar year, only to drop off when hands-on support may be most needed.

"We have so much business, we have people lining up in the snow to get into our food pantry,' said Hamelink.

SICM. located in the heart of Hamilton Hill, relies heavily on the time and energies of volunteers to keep the shelves of the food pantry stocked and other essential programs running.

The SICM food pantry serves about 700 shoppers a month, typically adults selecting meal items for a larger family. Hamelink estimates they help nourish more than 2,000 people each month.

"We need help stocking the food shelves, sorting, bagging and handing out food," said Hamelink.

Even after the winter winds die again. down, the need for volunteers holds its course at SICM.

The lunch program, run under a federal grant, operates at 12 sites for seven weeks, giving 850 children a day picnic-style lunches in parks or on church lawns. By the end of the program, 26,000 lunches will be served to in any volunteer, and I work to

"We need at least 400 people ... We're actually looking to recruit groups of people to work together, such as co-workers, church members, even Scouting troops." Crystal Hamelink

otherwise not have a mid-day

"We have a very small staff," said Hamelink. "Ninety-five percent of our work is done by volunteers."

The close of the holiday season is just one factor concerning staff members relying on the kindness of strangers. The average age of today's volunteers has risen, and new recruits are scant. Hamelink said she is struggling to entice people into the ranks earlier in their lives.

We lose many of our regular they are older folks who go south for the winter," said Hamelink. We can count on them to be back in April, but we fall short in between." Other area agencies are also hoping to recruit volunteers as "new blood."

"In our generation, it has become harder and harder to find younger, enthusiastic volunteers," said Ruth Tietz, director of public relations, marketing and development at Baptist Retirement and Rehabilitation Center (BRC) in Scotia. "We rely now on retired people who have time to give back to their community. We're working to augment that with younger volunteers."

A time crunch following the frenzy of the holidays also contributes volunteerism to the back burner. Think you haven't got the spare time to keep volunteering at a charity of your choice? Think

"People can come in one hour lds its course at SICM. a week and play bingo with the "We need at least 400 people residents," said Tietz. "We'll take to help run our summer lunch as little or as much as people are

At Shelters of Saratoga (SOS), looking to recruit groups of an agency providing safe housing people to work together, such as and meals for up to 15 adults, co-workers, church members, volunteers log in a total of 5,000 hours annually, but the skeletal staff of four full-timers still needs help. In order to keep the new recruits in the active ranks, the director of SOS strives to keep their interest level high.

"I jump at the chance to bring retain them," said Nancy Breen Lamb, executive director of Shelters of Saratoga. "When someone calls about volunteering, I invite them to come in and tour the facility. I will match them according to their skills and interests; I won't just plug them in somewhere.'

More food for low income children who might thought: Food drives are common during the holiday months, but the need for groceries doesn't go away, particularly in the middle of winter. Many pantries receive large numbers of canned and boxed foodstuffs, but there's still a need for nutritious staple foods for dinner tables.

> "There are so many canned goods collections at schools and churches that we actually get a glut of non-perishable foods," said Breen Lamb. "What we really need year round are fresh foods, produce and meat."

Another key element in volunteers in January because holiday giving is the opening of wallets and purses to make monetary donations. If you've fulfilled your charitable contribution commitments for the fiscal year 2006, it's never too early to start up the donations for

> "We always need monetary gifts," said Breen Lamb. "That's a need that never ends."

"I have people come up and tell me that they lost all day, but they was saving their last dollar for me," she said.

And sometimes it's the other way around. Rowina still tells a story of a woman she encountered her first summer at the track: "This woman was very well dressed, and she was counting money all out in the open." So Rowina tried to make eye contact with the woman, to see if she would make a donation. "And do you know what she did? When she was done counting her money, she came and gave me a penny. A penny!" Rowina exclaimed. "I asked if she wanted it back!"

Five years ago, Rowina began ringing the bell at the Wilton Price Chopper during the holiday season. Though she still considers it "new territory" for her, she likes it. So much so, that she virtually never leaves.

"She truly is wonder," said Miller. "You can't get her to stop ringing that bell."

Miller said that, at times, her devotion has her own well being.

While the Salvation Army can pay its bell ringers minimum wage. doing so would affect the Social Security benefits that Auntie Ro receives. Benefits Miller said were insufficient for even her daily needs.

"It was getting that she couldn't even pay her rent," Miller said. So, because Rowina works for the Salvation Army more than 10 hours a day, and without breaking for meals, Miller arranged for her to collect a meal stipend.

"It's only $23 a day," Miller said, "but Auntie Ro rings for us every day she can, so it adds up, and it certainly helps."

As for the meals themselves, Auntie Ro doesn't mind waiting until she's done at 10 p.m. to eat.

"I don't want to miss anybody that wants to give," she said. And besides, there is never a short supply of people that want to get her food or something to drink during her long day.

"I say 'No, thanks, I'll wait until I get home," she said. "I don't mind if someone buys me a hot chocolate or coffee, though. I get coffee, hot chocolate out of my ears.

Rowina said she'll ring in the Price Chopper and at the track until she's 100 years old.

That's my goal — 100 years. I always get people telling me it's not going to be the same without me here, and I wonder if they know something I don't.' Auntie Ro, who has 13 greatgrandchildren, and who has outlived two husbands, always tells those people that she'll be back next year. "I'll just be a little bit older, I say.

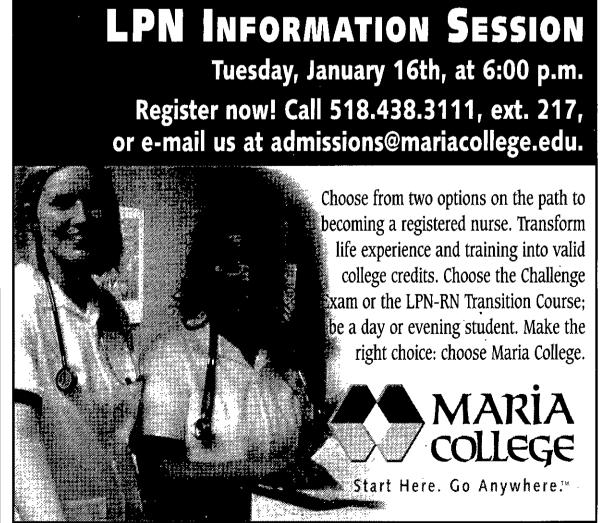

And if they really miss her,

"When people come up to me and they give, I talk to them. And after you've come at the expense of talked to someone, they're not a stranger anymore."

they can come see her at the track this summer. And if you find it in your heart to do so, ring the bell for her for a few minutes — because, you see, in the dozen years that Rowina has been working the kettle at the Saratoga Race Course, she has never seen a race.

In the meantime, now that the holiday season is just about wrapped up, Auntie Ro will temporarily retire her bell with one thing in mind: "I'm going to get caught up on my sleep," she said, "and woe be unto him that bothers me."

Home Performance with ENERGY STAR® Helps New Yorkers Save Up To 40 percent On Energy Costs

Program connects North Country homeowners with trained and accredited 'whole-house' contractors

or residents who want to improve the performance and comfort of their home, Home Performance with ENERGY STAR offers comprehensive and quality solutions.

Whether a home is old or new, it could be wasting energy due to inefficient heating and cooling systems, poor insulation, and air leaks through cracks and gaps in the attic, basement, plumbing fixtures and duct systems. Many homes have drafts, rooms that are too hot or cold, poor indoor air quality or problems with ice building up on the roof that may cause structural damage. These are often common signs that a house is not properly sealed, ventilated, insulated or heated.

Sponsored by the New York State Energy Research and Development Authority (NYSERDA), Home Performance with ENERGY STAR can help households save up to $600 on energy bills every year. With Home Performance with ENERGY

STAR, homes of any style or size can be improved to reduce energy use and costs by up to 40 percent.

"Our specially trained and accredited contractors take a 'whole house' approach to improving home energy performance," said Peter R. Smith, CEO and president of NYSERDA. "They test the energy efficiency, health and safety of each home before and after any improvements are made."

Under the program, a contractor accredited by the Building Performance Institute (BPI) will measure a home's energy efficiency, insulation and air infiltration levels, heating/cooling equipment efficiency, appliances and lighting. Unlike traditional contractors, participating BPI Accredited contractors are specifically trained to check heating equipment, ovens and water heaters to help ensure that dangerous combustion gases like carbon monoxide do not leak into the home. They assess airflow and moisture levels, which can lead to structural damage and poor indoor air quality if left unchecked. The contractor conducts these tests during the initial home assessment and after any work is done to the home.

When the assessment is complete, the contractor will identify what improvements can be made, the cost of making those improvements and what kinds of financial incentives, such as low-interest financing, are available to homeowners who decide to have the improvements made. Income-qualified applicants may be eligible to receive additional incentives through the Assisted Home Performance with ENERGY STAR program.

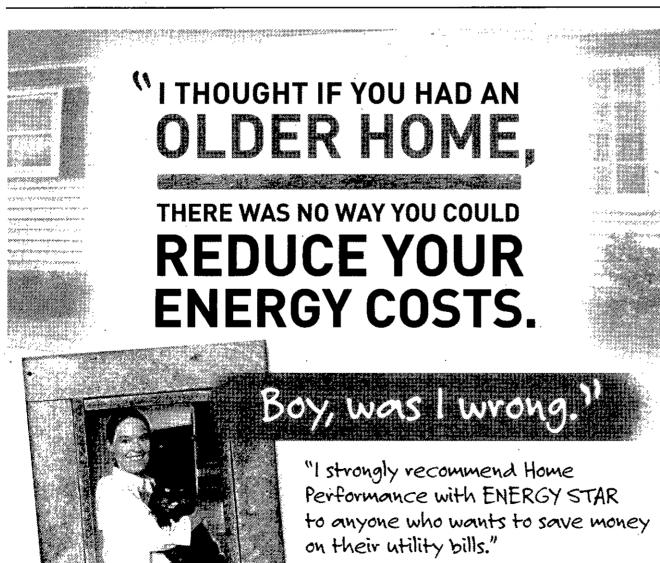

"When we bought our 1860sstyle fixer upper, the previous owner told us that we wouldn't be able to afford to heat the house so we picked Home
Performance with ENERGY
STAR for the energy efficiency and environmental results.
After the work was completed, our heating bill went from $450 to $90 in one month," said
Martin Clement of Watertown.

10 easy tips to save energy

Reduce wasted energy and improve comfort at home this winter with these simple tips:

- Make sure storm windows are down and secure, and lock double-hung windows to be sure they are sealed.
- 2. Add weather-stripping to drafty doors.
- 3. Use tight-fitting glass doors on fireplaces and close doors and damper when the fireplace is not in use.
- Move carpet, furniture or other objects away from heating vents and radiators. Blocked vents can affect air circulation and cause an imbalance in a home's heating system.
- Install an ENERGY STAR qualified programmable thermostat and set it to automatically lower the temperature at night and when you are regularly away from home.
- Set the thermostat to 50-55 degrees overnight or while away from home. Maintain a comfortable temperature while at home and away.
- Replace incandescent light bulbs with ENERGY STAR qualified models that use up to two-thirds less energy and last up to 10 times longer. Turn off lights when not in use.
- 8. Use money-saving ENERGY STAR qualified appliances in the kitchen and the laundry.
- Set the refrigerator temperature at 37-40 degrees and the freezer at 5 degrees. Clean the coils and seal the fridge gaskets regularly.
- Install efficient showerheads and faucet aerators to save water and reduce water-heating costs.

For more information about Home Performance with ENERGY STAR and a list of participating contractors, visit www.GetEnergySmart.org or call toll-free 1-877-NY-SMART (1-877-697-6278).

hen you have your home performance tested by a contractor accredited by the Building Performance Institute (BPI), you get an expert assessment using the latest diagnostic equipment. BPI Accredited Contractors show you where improvements can be made, how much you can save on energy costs, and then do all the work.

Call and ask for Home Performance with ENERGY STAR® to get your comprehensive home assessment. We can even offer low-interest financing for making the improvements so you can start saving energy this year.

Bv JENNIFER FARNSWORTH

or more than 200 years, the Albany Institute of History and Arts has offered cultural and educational programs for all ages. The institute's objective has been to preserve and interpret the art, history and culture of Albany and its surrounding areas. This winter, the institute will offer a number of programs to its visitors of all ages.

"Our programs appeal to many diverse audiences. Our exhibitions and programs take a unique ook at our region," said communications represenative Paul Purdy.

The January programs offer a variety of family entertainment. A home school program combines gallery and studio time on riday, Jan. 12. Registration s required for the four :lasses and there is a fee per child, which includes he museum admission and ill art materials.

There will also be painting programs and storytelling events. On Saturday, Jan. 13, there will e a special preschool hour rom 10:30 until

Eagles' comeback falls short against Colonie

By ROB JONAS jonasr@spotlightnews.com

It was a night of close losses as the three area boys basketball teams returned to league action Friday.

Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk and Voorheesville each lost by one point to Colonial Council foes, while Bethlehem's late comeback fell short in a 50-46 Suburban Council loss to Colonie.

Bethlehem (3-4 league, 3-7 overall) trailed by 10 points after the third quarter, but put together a 19-point fourth quarter to close

"Any time you have to make a comeback like that, it means you didn't play well in the first half, and that's what happened to us," said Bethlehem coach Jeremy Klugman.

Kevin Stempsey led the way with 18 points, and Joe Kane contributed 10 points for the Eagles. Still, Klugman said he's looking for better balance - not only in the scorebook, but also the type of shots his team takes.

"The thing with our team is we're normally good shooting the ball from the outside, so we're trying to find ways of scoring in- day, Bethlehem, R-C-S and Voor-of our guards driving the lane or one of our forwards grabbing a rebound and putting it back in, we have to find a way.

Voorheesville (3-4, 3-7) came close to beating Watervliet. The Blackbirds had a 39-37 lead late in the fourth quarter before Jason Keevern made three out of four free throws to put the Cannoneers ahead for good.

Keevern was one of five Watervliet players with six points, while Justin Shields led the way with 10 paced Voorheesville.

R-C-S (0-7, 0-10) looked like it was on its way to its first win of the season after jumping out to a 20-8 lead in the first quarter. However. Mechanicville outscored the Indians 40-27 the rest of the way to pull out the one-point win.

Jared Fortier scored 12 points, and Pat Filkins added 10 points for the Indians. Josh Rougia had 13 points for Mechanicville.

Bethlehem and R-C-S returned to action Tuesday. Bethlehem visited Guilderland, while R-C-S traveled to Schalmont.

Logan Pintka scored 19 points, Taylor Amarando contributed 12 points and Lindsey Branche added 11 points for Colonie. Leah Gillham and Kiersten Swete each had seven points for Bethlehem (3-3, 6-4).

In Ravena, Mechanicville points. Nick Kinisky's 13 points jumped out to an 18-4 lead and cruised to a 49-39 Colonial Council victory over the Lady Indians. Jessica Byerwalters and Ashley White each scored 15 points for R-C-S (2-6, 3-8)

At Watervliet, the undefeated Cannoneers grabbed a 16-3 lead in the first quarter and pulled away for a 60-37 Colonial Council first quarters by their opponents. ley and Amanda Pierson com-In Colonie, Bethlehem fell be- bined to score 33 of Watervliet's points.

Not to say that Plattsburgh doesn't pursue junior hockey league players. In fact, the Cardinals roster is loaded with players that were part of junior leagues in the United States and Canada, which is nothing new. Plattsburgh has been plucking Canadians for its hockey team pretty much since the program began. The school's close proximity to the Canadian border helps, but I like to think that what sells these kids on coming to Plattsburgh is the fine academic reputation (damn, what is my tongue doing stuck to my cheek).

So, what can fans expect next Tuesday when Plattsburgh and Skidmore face off at Weibel Avenue Rink? It should be a lot closer than in previous meetings, around Skidmore. The Cardinals struggled to a 5-6-4 record through the first two months of the season, while the Thoroughbreds have played well in all of their games. Still, Plattsburgh is a dangerous opponent (just ask Middlebury, which lost to the Cardinals 4-2 in late November and had to fend off a furious comeback to defeat Plattsburgh 2-1 two weeks later). And the Cardinals should neutralize Skidmore's home ice advantage with its own cheering section provided that enough area

Caswell stops 29 shots against Guilderland

By ROB JONAS jonasr@spotlightnews.com

The Bethlehem hockey team played well for two periods against Guilderland Saturday. Unfor tunately, it was the one period the Eagles didn't play well that did goals in the first period and received some timely saves from Brendan Glennon to shut out Romano's tally, scored off a Fogel Bethlehem 3-0 on senior night at Bethlehem Area YMCA.

Glennon made 21 saves, including several key stops in the last two periods to prevent the Eagles from gaining momentum.

..."If we had gotten that one goal, we would have definitely been back in the game," said Bethlehem coach Richard Hughes.

Joe Romano got Guilderland going within the first minute of the game when he took a pass Guilderland scored all of its from Ben Fogel and shot the puck past John Remmel for a 1-0 lead. Collin Burg, who also assisted on pass 3:14 later to double the Dutchmen's lead.

Hughes replaced Remmel with T.J. Caswell, and the junior responded by stopping 29 of the 30 shots he faced. The only one that got by him was a power play goal by Fogel with 3:16 left in the first

"T.J. Caswell certainly kept us in the game. He kind of held us together," said Hughes.

"To geth that third goal was huge because he shut us out the rest of the way," said Guilderland coach John DeRubertis.

Bethlehem had several scoring opportunities from the midpoint of the second period through the final horn, but Glennon came up big to earn his first shutout.

"He's starting to look like he's a solid high school goaltender," said DeRubertis of Glennon.

Bethlehem has a challenging week ahead of it. The Eagles travel to defending Section II, Division I champion Shenendehowa Friday and host defending Division II champ Burnt Hills/Scotia-Glenville Saturday.

"We still have a lot of work to do and a lot of games left," said

Still a proud Plattsburgh State alum

I ordered a new Plattsburgh State hockey cap and an alumni T-shirt.

That's because in less than a week, the Plattsburgh State hockey team makes a rare visit to the Capital District to face Skidmore College.

To give you an idea of how psyched I am, the last merchandise I bought from my alma mater was in 1990 - when I was still attending the school (a basketball sweatshirt I still wear today).

I haven't seen the Cardinals play since they won the 1992 NCAA Division III championship against Wisconsin-Stevens Point in Plattsburgh. I made a special trip to the North Country that weekend and snuck into the game through a contact I had at the college radio station so I could witness the madness first hand. Let me tell you, I was never happier sounded and Plattsburgh received the trophy. Then again, I haven't had much to celebrate since (the price I pay for being a fan of the New York Mets, Cleveland Browns and Albany River

I could have seen Plattsburgh win the 2001 national title had I still worked in Rochester that winter. Rochester Institute of Technology earned the right to host the Final Four, but I had recently moved to Albany to work, and I didn't feel like making the trip back to western New York. I bet

inside the Ronald B. Stafford Ice

I might have had a chance to see Plattsburgh play in the Capital District at some point between 1992 and now had Union College's hockey team remained at the Division III level. The Cardinals and the Dutchmen used to meet once a season, but Union decided to give Division I hockey a shot. Thus a great rivalry between two top-notch Division III programs ended, and a so-so rivalry between two middle-of-theroad Division I programs (Union and RPI) began.

With Union's departure from the Division III ranks, the only area team that Plattsburgh can · high school, but freshmen and play is Skidmore. The trouble is, than when that final buzzer it was dead silent in the RIT arena unless you happen to be a as Plattsburgh skated with the Skidmore hockey player, you championship plaque, though — don't even know the team still nothing like the wall of noise that exists. The Thoroughbreds get as accompanied the 1992 celebration much media coverage as high school cross country skiing, which is too bad because they have a 7-2-2 record including wins against St. Anselm and defending Division III champion Middlebury. The next-best area college team is Union at 9-9-2.

What makes Skidmore's record more impressive is that the Thoroughbreds are only a couple of years removed from being nearly erased in a budget cut and finished with a 6-18-1 record just last year. And they're turning things around with a roster dominated by freshmen and sophomores. Freshmen and sophomores that played either junior or prep league hockey in
