Rash of recent fires
have common cause:
cigarettes

By GRAHAM S. PARKER
parker@spotlightnews.com

As seasonal wildfires burn swaths through rural and suburban areas of California and Florida, another type of fire has claimed dozens of residences throughout our communities in recent weeks.

At least seven fires in the Capital District have been attributed to unattended cigarettes. They have included fires in buckets of debris, beds of mulch and — in one Schenectady instance — a vehicle. A fire ignited by a cigarette claimed a 19-unit Carman Road apartment complex in Schenectady County on Tuesday, May 8. That same day, another cigarette-caused blaze in Colonie left dozens homeless when it broke out in a Fuller Road motel, destroying one unit and leaving several others damaged by smoke and water.

The remains are left for fire investigators to sort through.

"The state, several years back, put regulations on the capacity of cigarettes left unattended to self extinguish," said Eamon Moynihan, state Office of Fire Prevention and Control spokesman. "There is compliance and reporting mechanisms to help us track these things, but it's not an exact science for obvious reasons. The evidence can be destroyed."

Elementary school construction to be complete in fall 2008

By JIM CUOZZO

The first new school construction in the Bethlehem School District in 50 years broke ground Tuesday, May 22, at the future site of Eagle Elementary School.

The new school was named by students in a districtwide vote last fall, and dirt from the district's five other elementary schools was shoveled from separate buckets into the ground of the new Eagle school.

"I think this is a place where people can make friends and students can have fun and learn," said Glenmont first-grader Terri Skinkle.

The $7.4 million dollar project is part of the district's overall $93 million bond that included several classroom additions at the high school and upgrades to all district buildings.

"It's a continuing project to provide education," said board member Warren Stoker, who taught for 30 years in Bethlehem schools. Until last week's groundbreaking, Stoker said, he has never witnessed a new school being built in Bethlehem.

"All I have seen is additions," said Stoker.

The school is being built to reduce classroom size in the Grievance day in Bethlehem this year was much different from 2006.

On Tuesday, May 22, 52 people appeared before the three-member Bethlehem Board of Assessment Review, compared with 439 residents who met with the board over a three-day period in 2006.

"Most people who were coming in were people who did not go through the process last year," said Bethlehem Assessor David Leafer.

A townwide reassessment took place before last year's grievance day, and 1,480 homeowners filed petitions objecting to their properties' assessments. This year, 312 homeowners filed

St. Basil's celebrates its' heritage

For the 13th year in a row, St. Basil Greek Orthodox Church at 909 River Street in Troy will host a festival starting at 5 p.m. on Friday, June 1 and ending on Sunday, June 3. "The best little festival in town" is neither as extravagant nor as large as others in the area. The festival focuses on homemade authentic Greek food, exactly as it is passed down from generation to generation.

This culinary extravaganza, where the Greeks of St. Basil's prepare a feast of the "best of the best" of Greek foods, will make your visit memorable. There's moussaka and souvlaki, lamb with potatoes and vegetarian dishes like spanakopita, stuffed peppers, rice pilaf, and the meze platter. For dessert lovers, in addition to the bestsellers baklava and loukoumathes, there will be plenty of cookies, rice pudding and kataifi. Don't forget to ask for the specialty ice cream, "Never on Sunday." A Greek bazaar will feature breads, crafts, T-shirts and jewelry; church tours will be available throughout the weekend; children are welcome to enjoy the bouncy-bounce and other games; and everyone is invited to participate in the $10,000 raffle. Celebrating their 75th year since St. Basil became a congregation, the Greeks of this religious and cultural community are planning their best festival ever.

The festival will take place on Friday, June 1 from 5 to 10 p.m., Saturday, June 2 from noon to 10 p.m. and Sunday, June 3, from noon to 5 p.m. St. Basil's is located on River Street (Route 4) at 101st St., north of downtown Troy. The festival will take place rain or shine. Admission and parking are free. For information and directions, check the community's Web site, www.stbasiltroy.org.

Illegal immigrant in custody after traffic stop

A man living in Selkirk who was stopped by police on minor traffic violations was found to be in violation of federal immigration regulations.

Adao Custodio De Souza Sobrinho was stopped on Elm Avenue and Walimary Drive, Friday, May 18, when officers from the Bethlehem Police Department asked for a driver's license. Sobrinho produced a false document and registration from the International Automobile Drivers Club. A file check and search by police revealed Sobrinho was unlicensed. The U.S. Department of Homeland Security Bureau of Immigration was called in, and Sobrinho was taken into custody. A customs enforcement agent determined Sobrinho was an illegal alien from Brazil who also had an outstanding federal warrant from 2004, and he was charged with felony federal warrant immigration violations. Sobrinho was sent to Albany County jail and his file sent to U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement.

Police charge three with DWI in separate incidents

A Delmar woman was charged with DWI on Sunday, May 20, near the Slingerlands bypass on Route 85.

Stephanie Major, 30, of 18 Delmar Place, was observed by Bethlehem police officers crossing the yellow middle line several times driving south toward the city of Albany on Route 85. Major told police she had a few drinks at her sister's house in Schenectady. Major was charged with DWI, operating a vehicle with more than .08 percent blood alcohol content, aggravated DWI, and failure to keep right. She will appear in town court on June 19.

A 45-year-old Delmar resident was charged with DWI Sunday, May 20, along Delaware Avenue. Lila-Mae Woodgate was also charged with aggravated DWI and operating with more than .08 blood alcohol content.

Bethlehem police were called to 180 Delaware Avenue to respond to a possibly intoxicated driver in a red Toyota. When police arrived, they noticed the vehicle had no front license plate. Woodgate exited the car and police said she told them she was traveling home from Delaware Plaza after having three beers. She was charged with DWI and then transported to Albany Medical Center due to a high blood alcohol content. Woodgate will appear in Town Court on June 19.

Michael Verner, 44, of 11 McPherson Terrace, Albany, was charged with DWI, driving with more than .08 percent blood alcohol content, and three other traffic infractions by Bethlehem police.

Police observed a vehicle turning right on New Scotland Avenue from the Slingerlands bypass, failing to stop at the flashing red light intersection. Police then stopped the vehicle and asked Verner to perform several field sobriety tests. Verner was processed and placed in custody. His return court date is June 19.

New Scotland supervisor spot up for grabs

Dem Tom Dolin announces bid for position

By JIM CUOZZO
cuozzoj@spotlightnews.com

With Supervisor Ed Clark retiring at the end of the year, the town of New Scotland will elect a new boss this fall, and Democrat Tom Dolin is hoping it will be him.

Clark, a Republican, said last week he will not run for a fourth term, and he will throw his support behind deputy town supervisor Douglas LaGrange for the position. LaGrange, who is also a Republican, has not formally announced a bid for supervisor.

"I have been in office six years, and my decision evolved over the course of the last few months," said Clark.

Dolin, the former New Scotland town justice, announced recently he is seeking the position of town supervisor in the November elections. Dolin is well known to town residents, having served as justice for the past 14 years. Prior to that, he served as town attorney in Westerlo for seven years, and attorney for the village of Voorheesville planning board and New Scotland planning board.

Dolin said the town is at a crossroads, and he wants to reinvigorate its approach to decision-making. He said the proposed Vista Technology Park that is slated to spread across Bethlehem and New Scotland, along with the Harriman

Campus project, "provide both an opportunity and a threat to the future of the town."

"The vast majority of town residents have consistently and repeatedly voiced their opinion that the town and village retain their rural character," said Dolin.

A balancing act of controlling growth without burdening taxpayers is what Dolin said his campaign will focus on. He said small business development along New Scotland Road will be key, along with working with Bethlehem and the city of Albany to expand the town's water source.

"More could be done and sooner to help existing residents who have no other possible resource or solution," said Dolin, regarding the town's water needs.

Another concern Dolin mentioned in a written press release is the failure of Time Warner to negotiate a contract renewal with the town for cable television and Internet access.

"It's time for the town to explore and possibly develop a municipal network that would provide an alternative to the existing offerings of Time Warner," Dolin said.

The position of town supervisor is a full-time, two-year term in New Scotland and carries an annual salary of $52,935. Dolin has been a resident of New Scotland for 39 years and is married with three children and four grandchildren.

Democrat Tom Dolin, the former New Scotland town justice, will run for town supervisor in the November elections.

Board decides it's OK to spray

Pesticides will be used to fight grub problem

By JIM CUOZZO
cuozzoj@spotlightnews.com

The town board unanimously approved amendments to Bethlehem's current pesticide law Wednesday, May 23.

The measure stems from concerns about grubs attacking the turf at the town park on Elm Avenue and the town's ability to maintain the soon-to-be-acquired Colonial Acres Golf Course.

Supervisor Jack Cunningham said the amendments allow the town to use Level 3 and Level 4 pesticides.

"They will be used as a last resort to manage pests in the park," said Cunningham, who said the board's goal is to make the park more usable to residents. "We do have a park being rendered useless by bugs."

"We have introduced some changes I think will help if we ever have to apply pesticides," said town board member Sam Messina.

The decision to begin using pesticides that had previously been banned in town was not met with unanimous approval by residents, however.

Delmar resident Deborah Vogel told the board she opposes pesticides being used in the town.

"There are several alternatives to pesticide use that would be much safer to children and family pets," Vogel said.

At the May 9 meeting of the town board, several parents of youth soccer players who use the town fields complained the uneven ground caused by the insect infestation is creating unsafe conditions and adding to injuries like twisted ankles. A public hearing on the proposed changes to the existing pesticide law was held at the same meeting.

"The public hearing was a culmination of a long period of study," said town Attorney James Potter, who said the changes were approved by the town's pest management committee.

Nancy Heinzen, representing the pesticide committee, said the grub problem needed to be addressed.

"Natural practices have been used, but the fields continue to deteriorate," said Heinzen.

The committee even considered taking the fields offline because of the problem.

"The grubs are eating other vegetation in the soil, and the crows, skunks and wildlife are feeding on the grubs, tearing up the turf," said Nan Lanahan, parks and recreation administrator.

Resident Jaya Connors asked for an environmental review to assess the impact of using level three and four pesticides.

"I wasn't aware of the amendment to the law until two days ago, and I was very concerned," Connors said.

The pesticides will be used only as a last resort.

"I have three children, one who plays in the soccer club," said Kotary. "I wouldn't do anything that would jeopardize my children or any other children in this town."

Level 1 pesticides are considered the most toxic, and Level 4 pesticides are considered the least toxic.

Wine shop aged to perfection

Tastings to celebrate 40th anniversary

A Delmar business mainstay celebrates its 40th anniversary this month. Delaware Plaza Wine & Liquor Co. was started in 1967 by previous owners Donna and Peter Devine at another location in the Delaware Plaza. The current location, according to owner Todd Yutzler, a relative of the Devines, is now the single-oldest leased property in Delaware Plaza.

"They taught me everything I know about the business, including helping me develop my wine palate," Yutzler said of the Devines.

Yutzler offers a 10 percent discount on half cases and 15 percent off full cases of wine. There is a free carry-out service and there are wine tastings every Saturday from 2 to 6 p.m.

To help celebrate the store's anniversary, there will be several major tasting events at the Normanside Country Club in Bethlehem, including a five-course wine dinner with several samplings. Jeff Cohen, representing Sterling Vineyards, will be at the store on Thursday, May 31, from 5 to 7 p.m. as part of the tasting schedule.

"It's a very exciting time for us, and we could not have done it without all our outstanding customers," Yutzler said.

Several changes have been made over the years to accommodate the ever-growing customer base, including an inventory expansion, upgrading registers and starting an on-line newsletter. There are high-definition televisions inside the store that broadcast the Food Network.

"More changes are planned, including replacing the old wine racks with newer, more space-efficient models and installing new hardwood floors," Yutzler said.

Delaware Plaza Wines and Liquor is open Monday through Saturday 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Sunday noon to 6 p.m. For more information call 439-4361.

Looking for answers to the cell phone travel blues

By BILL GIERING
news@spotlightnews.com

Dear Travel Guy: How do you know if your cell phone is going to work if you are traveling out of the country?

Mine doesn't work that well inside my house, and I was never sure when traveling if it was ever going to work. If you call your service provider (and if you can reach a real person) he or she should be able to tell you about cell service and cost from your exact destination.

Let me share my worst and best experiences with phones on the road and what I've learned to do to stay connected.

The worst

I finally found the condo I rented for a short week just north of Myrtle Beach. It was about 1 a.m., and I was dead tired from driving in the rain. Finding the bedroom, I dropped my bags, jumped in the shower and dove into bed. At about 2 a.m. I woke up smelling smoke - nasty like the smell of burning rubber. I turned on the lights to find the ceiling hidden with about a foot of smoke hanging like a thick fog. My cell phone was in the car so I went to the kitchen to call 9-1-1.

Ask the Travel Guy

The phone has a recording: "To activate this phone please enter your condo room number."

I couldn't remember the number so I ran to open the front door, read it and rushed back to the phone.

"Now please enter your credit card number and expiration date."

I rushed back to the bedroom to get my wallet and glasses and tried a couple of times to enter the 16 numbers of my credit card plus the four numbers of the date of expiration, still remembering my three-digit room number.

"Now please enter your date of arrival and the date of your departure." Another 12 numbers I tried to punch in with burning eyes and smoke quickly lowering from the ceiling.

I'm not a great number puncher-inner to start with. And with the added pressure of trying to report a fire, I was really bad, so I messed up a couple times and had to start right from the beginning. By then, I was squatting in the kitchen in my underwear with my Master Card and papers all over the floor because the smoke was filling the room. I felt like I was on "Candid Camera" when the recording then asked me to enter my home phone number. I found a "for emergencies" number, which required me to punch in eight more digits, and the phone started ringing. Finally! At that time I didn't care if the place burned down, I was so proud of myself for getting the system to work and getting any phone to ring. I didn't care who answered.

In the end, they found an electric wire burning in the utility room and moved me to a different condo for the night. Everyone was very nice and helpful, and that's why I hated later writing the managers and owners to tell them that they had the worst phone system in the world, but who could push 51 buttons in a row during an emergency and not make a mistake? By the way, they changed the phone system about two months later and wrote to let me know about it. I was going to call and congratulate them but my button pusher finger was still sore.

Morocco mad money

My cell phone wasn't working and I was forced to use my phone card on the hotel phone in Morocco. I hate to use hotel phones because they cost too much just to tell your family what the weather is like in North Africa. They will be bored with the details five minutes after I get home anyway. In this case, I tried to call home four times and got through twice. Both times I left messages and got one return call message in my room. When I was checking out, I discovered that those calls cost me $58, and I never talked to one live person. The $58 still bugs me.

The best

With those phone disasters in mind, a couple years ago I found the answer for my cell phone travel issues. It's a company with the coolest product and service called Cellular Express Global Phone Service. They can be found at www.cellularphonerentals.com.

With services such as cellularphonerentals.com, you can stay connected when you travel.

Here is how it works: You go on line and tell them when and where you are going. They let you know right away what your temporary cell phone number is going to be so you can let your family and office know how to reach you. They deliver an international cellular or satellite phone to your door with a spare battery, a belt clip, hands-free earpiece, charger and foreign adaptors. It comes in a cool carry case with an instruction card and a FedEx prepaid return pack. They even send you some business cards with the temporary phone number that you can use while you're away.

You can take pictures and get voice mail; it's simple and very easy to use. No matter where you go, they have clear, reliable international service. You plug it in at night and keep it with you all day. You flip it open and dial like you would at home. Satellite phones work where cellular service is poor or nonexistent, even on tropical islands, safaris, cruises and in underdeveloped countries. I have tried it in Europe, North and South America and Mexico. And it only costs about $15 a week, plus your calls, which are about the same as your own cell phone, and sometimes less. I told you it was cool.

If you are going someplace really remote with dense forest or on a big ocean cruise, it will cost a little more.

When you get back home you download your pictures, put the phone in the prepaid FedEx pack and mail it back.

Matters of Opinion in the Spotlight

Don't play with fire

A fire can happen in an instant. An unguarded instant. And as we move into the time of year when we let our guard down and relax a little more, we urge people to be careful with anything that might start a fire.

Cigarettes are especially in the news, since recent fires in the Capital District were caused by cigarettes.

By law, cigarettes purchased in New York are self-extinguishing. Cigarettes that are purchased online or out-of-state might not be, thus extending the risk of smoking beyond the smoker. Investigators are spending big chunks of time tracing the origins of cigarettes that have recently burned out innocent residents of apartments.

Smokers receive constant messages about the life-threatening dangers of smoking to themselves and those who breathe in secondhand smoke. We'd like to add a word of warning about cigarette disposal. Like Smokey the Bear, we urge smokers to double-check that the tossed-aside butt is no longer smoldering but is truly extinguished. Don't be lulled into a false sense of security by self-extinguishing cigarettes.

Remind yourself of other precautions, too. Don't smoke in bed; if you're sleepy, don't smoke in the comfy chair in the evening; don't toss lit cigarettes out car windows, where they might land on dry grass or unnerve the driver whose windshield they might land on.

Those of us who "play with fire" in the summer months should also be careful. Use caution around the grill, so that only your hamburgers are flame-broiled. Backyard fire pits and outdoor fireplaces are becoming increasingly common; be sure they are extinguished before you turn in at night.

If your summer vacation plans include camping, douse your fire before you turn in for the night. If you have one last smoke before you crawl into your tent, give it an extra stamp with your foot.

Cari Scribner lists a number of fire safety tips in her page 1 article, "After the fire" this week. It's a good time to review them, particularly if you forgot to change your smoke detector battery when you changed your clock.

I'm just not feeling myself

By WILLIAM R. DEVOE
devoew@spotlightnews.com

The writer covers Saratoga Springs for Spotlight Newspapers.

Apparently I'm better traveled than I thought.

Last week I received notice that the telephone account that I set up in Oklahoma was overdue. Way overdue. Like, six years overdue.

It's possible. I've been known to forget a birthday, a deadline and certainly the due date for a bill. In fact, it seems that I've also forgotten that I've ever been to Oklahoma. I could have sworn that six years ago, around the time that this account went delinquent, I was working on a cargo ship, taking automobiles from our eastern seaboard to coastal northern Europe.

According to the third party debt collection agency that has purchased my delinquent account (the phone company wrote it off years ago), I was not where I thought I was. Which is unfortunate, because I'd hate to think that I spent a year crossing and recrossing the Atlantic, breaking my back turning wrenches with a German deck crew that I'm sure made fun of me in their native language and my own, while I was actually in Oklahoma, enjoying the clear, crisp reception of my telephone service.

I have to be honest with you: I don't think I set up this telephone account.

But, just to be sure that it wasn't something that I had done in my whimsical youth, I went to the globe to see if there were any possible way I could have passed through Oklahoma on my way to Belgium from Georgia. Nope. Oklahoma is not near the eastern seaboard and, if I have the colors correct on this thing, it is not very conducive to intercontinental seafaring mercantilism. Not where it is now, anyway.

Just to make sure Oklahoma hadn't moved recently, I decided to call the Oklahoma Tourism and Recreation Department. "Hello. It's a great day in Oklahoma, the Sooner state, how can I help you?" a sprightly young man said.

"Have you guys moved recently?" I asked.

"No sir. Not since Nov. 16, 1907, when we became the 46th state to join the union. Are you interested in vacationing in Oklahoma? Would you like some brochures?"

"You guys were never on the East Coast? Are you sure?"

"That's absurd, sir. Why don't you hold for a moment, and I'll send you out some bumper stickers."

Absurd, indeed. No more absurd than me either being in two places at once or opening a telephone account from the middle of the Atlantic Ocean.

My mother used to tell me, when I was in my teens and very nervous about attracting the opposite sex, "Just be yourself. People will always respect you if you just be yourself."

Now, as my banking accounts are being frozen and my credit score is being chipped away like limestone, I realize someone must have overheard her, and they wanted to be myself as well.

Identity theft is a bit of a misnomer. It implies that someone stole your life, your individuality — what makes you ... you. The fact is, whoever opened that account in Oklahoma merely stole my Social Security number and thusly the golden key to perform financial transactions in my name in this automated day and age.

If they had stolen my identity, they would've been awake at 3 a.m. today with my feverish and vomiting son; they would have labored over a shoddy Ford Focus transmission just a few hours later; and they would have been worrying about their weight, work, expectant wife, whether or not the cat's been fed, and how the hell they were going to pay the bills now that some jerk stole their identity.

But they didn't take those things. They didn't take the electric bill, the (real) phone bill or the rent, but I should be happy that they did not take my stately good looks, my razor-sharp wit or my overwhelming modesty, either. Nor did they take my wonderful (albeit feverish and vomiting) son, my beautiful wife, or the rest of my family, who have been very supportive since I found out that I was not where I was all those six years ago.

What bothers me the most about the whole ordeal is the Franz Kafka-esque way in which the repercussions of identity theft fall into your lap. The week before last, I was saving for a house, repairing my credit, and generally fighting the good fight to make a better life for my family. Days later I found out that I'm a degenerate bill-skipper.

I've also found out that there is not much New York courts can do for me. You see, according to my local city court, the third-party debt collection agency — which also conveniently happens to be a law firm — served me with a subpoena concerning the debt in July of last year. Yet another thing I can't seem to remember. Today I am a criminal, a debtor, and I have to prove to a law firm where I was not six years ago, and where I was last July.

I have also turned into a cockroach, but that's from an unrelated ailment.

Upon further review of the court documents, I find out that the subpoena was not served to me, but instead to my neighbor (his name is on the court docs, and is now entangled in this mess of bills and collections and frustration), who has assured me he did not receive a subpoena for me.

"I'd like to think that if I received something that important, I'd tell you about it," he told me as we spoke outside a few nights ago. He and I went to high school together more than a dozen years ago — at least I think we did.

"I know you would," I said. "I'd like to think that everyone would."

If I ever have the misfortune to meet the individual who stole my identity, I'll make him clean my house. "You wanted it? Here it is. Don't forget the dishes," I'd say.

Meanwhile, I'm keeping my eye on Oklahoma. I haven't ruled out the possibility that they are somehow involved with this. The place is shaped like a hatchet and there are misspelled words in its state song (Termayters? Pertaters? Come on, you're a state, for Pete's sake). If those aren't signs that it has a rebellious streak a mile wide, I don't know what is.

Until next time, be yourself. I mean it.

Greek Festival fun for all

Editor, The Spotlight:

The Festival of St. Basil Greek Orthodox Church in Troy is coming up, on June 1, 2 and 3.

In the 75 years since St. Basil became a congregation, many parishioners moved to Capital District suburbs, but the church remained in Troy.

Young and old work together to prepare for the festival. There is a psychological benefit Father Emmanuel, our priest, explains this the best: "For these youths it's really a bridge to their honored past, a bonding experience between themselves and the rest of the Greeks of the world, an understanding of their culture."

Women born in this country team up with older women who came from Greece to cook our traditional meals. In our kitchen, you often find three or four generations of the same family working together.

Our Greek Festival helps us showcase our own homeland," through music, dance and food. Although we come from different countries, we still are members of this larger community and in order to live peacefully we must learn to understand in order to respect each other.

The Festival allows us to keep our community in good physical shape, pay our housekeeping bills, make improvements to our church and community center and keep the neighborhood clean and lively. A viable ethnic community can only be an asset to its immediate region and to the Capital District.

Festivals such as St. Basil's are great family events for any family, Greek or not. Parents and children can spend an afternoon or evening together. The delicious meals are affordable; there are kids' activities; there's dancing.

Please join us to on Friday, June 1 beginning at 5 p.m.; on Saturday, June 2 from noon to 10 p.m. and on Sunday, June 3 from noon to 5 p.m. We are located at 909 River Street in Troy. For information or directions, visit us at www.stbasiltroy.org.

Stever eager to start

Editor, The Spotlight:

I am excited about being given the opportunity to serve our community on the school board.

Congratulations to Lisa Allendorph. I am looking forward to serving on the school board with her and the other members.

To the other candidates, your dedication and commitment to Bethlehem Central School District and our children is commendable.

I would like to extend a sincere thank you to my family and friends for all their support and effort in passing out fliers, making numerous phone calls, sending out e-mails, being present at the debate and waiting for the results to come in.

A special thanks to my children, Sean, Katie, Samantha; and the neighborhood kids, Danielle, Rachael, Erin, and Laura for all the hard work in making my campaign signs.

Thank you all for coming out on May 15 and voting.

Allendorph thanks community

Editor, The Spotlight:

I wanted to take the opportunity to thank the community of Bethlehem for taking the time to vote on the school budget on Tuesday, May 15. No matter how you voted, this shows a pride and hope for our town, that our citizens want an excellent education for our children but are sending the message that we need to take a look at how we spend our money.

My congratulations go out to Diane Stever and a thank you to Duane Bowman and Laura Bierman for offering the community good choices for our board of education. Ones that bring fresh, new ideas.

I wanted to express my appreciation to family, friends, colleagues, neighbors and the community for electing me to the school board. I plan to serve you for the next three years with honesty, openness and a willingness to learn and share new ideas.

My last thank you goes to my husband and children who had to listen to the kitchen timer go off every four minutes the night before the debate, as I was practicing to not go over my time limit.

I could not have done this without your love and support.

Hope to see you on tour with the garden club

Editor, The Spotlight:

The Bethlehem Garden Club's 11th annual garden tour and plant sale is Wednesday, June 13, from 4 until 8 p.m. in the town of Bethlehem. This year's tour includes five beautiful private home gardens and two public gardens. As always, there are varieties of gardens on the tour: large and small, formal and informal. Ponds and pools are found in several gardens to be visited that night.

Tickets ($12 per person) will be sold on the day of the tour, starting at 4 p.m. in the parking lots of the Price Chopper stores in Slingerlands and Glenmont.

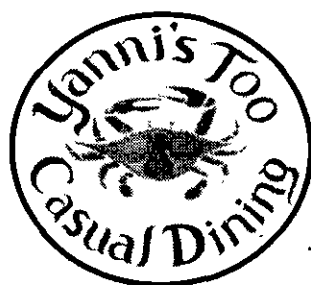

The plant sale does not require a ticket; it will be held during the tour hours on the library lawn on Borthwick Avenue. There will be a large selection of unusual nursery-grown perennials for both sun and shade. In addition, Bethlehem Garden Club members have potted perennials from their own gardens for sale.

For the first time, we will be selling $5 raffle tickets at the town hall garden. The winning ticket will be drawn at 8 p.m. that night. The winner will receive a minimum of 12 hours of fine gardening from Bethlehem Garden Club members (at least six members doing two hours each).

Proceeds from the garden tour are used to create and improve public gardens in Bethlehem. Look for the new plants recently added to the garden at the intersections of Cherry and Kenwood avenues. Proceeds from the plant sale are used for an educational grant awarded annually to elementary school teachers in local districts. This year it was given to Barb Riegel of Clarksville Elementary School for use in planting an American flower garden.

We hope to see you there!

Teaching duo calls it a career

Couple made a mark in many areas of the district

By JIM CUOZZO
cuozzoj@spotlightnews.com

Husband-and-wife teachers Robert and Helen Salamone will retire from the Bethlehem Central School District in June, and with their departure goes a combined 70 years of teaching experience.

Helen Salamone will leave her position as supervisor of the Early Learning Center, the district's centralized half-day kindergarten program that serves more than 300 students.

"I will miss it," said Helen Salamone. "I always felt I had the best job in the district."

Salamone has been supervising teachers and staff since it opened in 1997. Prior to running the center, she taught at Bethlehem schools for 10 years with teaching stints in Ravena and St. Thomas School in Delmar.

"Every day is different, and every day is exciting," Salamone said. "That will be the part I miss most."

The Capital District Association for Women in Administration awarded Salamone with an award for lifetime achievement in educational leadership on April 26.

"Her passion, knowledge and commitment has made the Early Learning Center the model program it is today," said kindergarten teacher Patty Skiba, who nominated Salamone for the award.

Robert Salamone retires in June after 33 years in the Bethlehem district, beginning as a physical education teacher at the old Delmar School and then moving to the middle school, where he worked as both a house leader and physical education teacher.

The Salamones said they have been very fortunate to live and work in Bethlehem and its school system because of the strong community bond and the quality of teaching.

The Salamones have two grown daughters they will now get to see more of, along with having more time to spend at their house on Martha's Vineyard.

"I worked with great colleagues and can honestly say that when I woke up in the morning, I never dreaded coming to school," said

Robert Salamone.

Most recently, Robert Salamone tried without success to convince town and school leaders to find a home in Delmar for an abandoned skateboard park from another community so teenagers could have somewhere to go.

"I feel badly that I ran into quite a bit of resistance," Salamone said.

Salamone tried to convince leaders that the middle school on Kenwood Avenue would be an appropriate location for a skateboard park, but the school board decided liability was a major concern.

"It would be nice to reach out to a segment of kids that have their own mystique so they can feel a part of the community," he said.

The Capital District Association for Women in Administration awarded Helen Salamone, center, with an award for lifetime achievement in educational leadership on April 26.

June book groups explore political, personal upheaval

On Monday, June 4, at 1:30 p.m., DayBooks will discuss "The Darling" by Russell Banks.

In this taut novel of political and personal upheaval, a woman wanted by the FBI for her involvement with the Weather Underground flees to Africa and assumes another identity.

On Wednesday, June 13, at 7

This debut novel is an exploration of the families people inherit and those they create for themselves.

New members are welcome anytime in both groups. Books are available at the information desk; alternate formats are sometimes available as well. Readers are also invited to join an online commentary at www.bethlehempubliclibrary.org.

After a summer hiatus, discussions resume in September with a great lineup; check out the July/August edition of our newsletter for a preview.

petitions requesting their property assessments be reduced.

"Of the 1,480 grievances last year, the board probably lowered 40 percent of those," Leafer said. "Assessments are reduced based on comparable property, and if a home is above that mark they certainly have to be lowered."

There have been three town reassessments in Bethlehem since 1992, with a major change in average home sale prices in Bethlehem occurring between the years 2002 and 2005.

"This was primarily a period when residential market value went up," said Leafer.

Prior to 2006, the average home price in Bethlehem was about $150,000. The average home price now is $230,000.

Last year's busy grievance period was orderly, according to Leafer, with notices and a final decision going out to residents before July 1.

"Every time you do a reassessment you will get a lot of people with questions," said Jack Cunningham, town supervisor. "This year's numbers are very much in line with what we anticipated."

Leafer said the town's Web site is quite helpful providing residents with assessment information to speed up the process.

"Residents will soon be able to rearrange data by street and style of home," Leafer said.

Bethlehem is a town with multiple market areas, according to Leafer, where you can walk across the street and be in a different neighborhood.

"Our main goal is to try and get everybody as close to possible to full value and that they are fairly and equitably assessed to properties similar to theirs," Leafer said.

Of the 312 homeowners who filed petitions to grieve their assessments with the town BAR, 95 of those petitions were filed by one individual on behalf of several homeowners.

Homeowners who are not satisfied with the board of assessment's decision can always file an appeal in small claims court. In small claims court a hearing officer appointed by the state will listen to both the homeowner and assessor make their case regarding an individual property. Last year, 255 people filed small claims after the grievance process, almost as many individuals that filed grievances this year.

"In the aftermath of a revaluation, you expect the number of grievances to be a little higher than normal," Leafer said.

Eagle

other elementary schools that, until this year, have seen a two-decade-long increase in enrollment.

When completed, Eagle Elementary will add the positions of principal, secretary, school nurse, librarian and custodians. Several teachers from the five existing elementary schools will be redistributed to Eagle when construction is complete by September of 2008.

"We will be gaining space in the other schools and reducing room sharing," said Superintendent Les Loomis.

Collins-Scoville architects designed the new school and Sano-Rubin construction will oversee construction. The school will accommodate up to 450 students with 16 new classrooms and an average class size of 22 students per class.

"We plan on having the structure up by the end of the year so we can work inside the building during the winter and spring," said Rudley Lewis, Sano-Rubin construction manager.

At the groundbreaking, school board president Stuart Lyman said, "Today is a new beginning."

"The whole community should really look forward to this day," said Lyman.

Many town, county and state officials were on hand for the groundbreaking, including Albany County Executive Mike Breslin.

"The fundamental backbone of our community is the school system," Breslin said. "It's a magnificent community because of the school system and the kids."

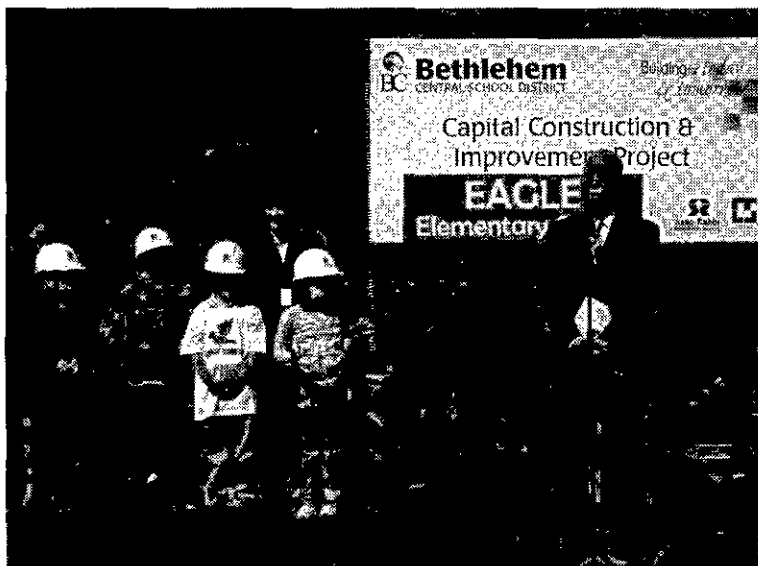

State Assemblyman Tim Gordon, I-Slingerlands, said this year's state budget showed "an unprecedented commitment to our local schools."

Bethlehem's school budget totaling $77.2 million passed in the May 15 district election. Fifteen new buses were also approved in a school proposition vote with five of the new bus fleet supporting student transportation to and from Eagle Elementary.

"People love this community because of the quality of several things, including our education system," said Bethlehem town board member Sam Messina.

Town Supervisor Jack Cunningham said Eagle Elementary is an "example of what we are able to offer to the community."

Glenmont Elementary was the last elementary school to be constructed in Bethlehem in 1957. Hamagrael was built in 1954, Clarksville in 1948 and Slingerlands in 1940. Elsmere is the oldest Bethlehem elementary school, constructed in 1927.

Bethlehem school Superintendent Les Loomis gives opening remarks to a gathering of students, plus town, county, and state officials during official groundbreaking for the district's newest school, Eagle Elementary. Construction for the $7.4 million Eagle Elementary will be complete by the beginning of the 2008 school year.

would donate their hair to Locks of Love so a child in need could receive a custom-made hairpiece.

"I know other kids who lost their hair with cancer, and I wanted to help," said Tori, part of a team of parents and their children who drove to New York City last week for the "Today Show" appearance.

"She has been growing her hair for a year and a half, so she's ready," said Tori's mom, Leslie.

The stylists hired for the "Today Show" segment cut at least 10 inches of hair, the standard requirement for a Locks of Love donation.

"I don't mind because I used to have it really short," said Tori. The three girls attend different Bethlehem elementary schools and an announcement was made in the schools last week advising the students of the TV segment. It's the second year in a row the NBC morning show aired a segment on Locks of Love.

"We received tremendous support from it last year, and we're very thankful," said Kukkamaa.

While in New York City, the three girls spent the day sightseeing and shopping, visiting Times Square, The American Girl store, Dylan's Candy store owned by Ralph Lauren's daughter, and the NBA store.

Locks of Love President Madonna Coffman appeared on the show with the three local girls.

The organization provides 250 natural prosthetics and 250 synthetic hairpieces annually and was established in 1957. One hairpiece takes four to six months to make, and the cost is anywhere between $3,500 and $6,000.

"We receive the donated hair and provide it to our manufacturer in California at a highly discounted cost," said Kukkamaa.

Because six to 10 donated ponytails go into one hairpiece, the process is time-consuming and the organization is always in need of hair.

"Each hairpiece is custom-made for the recipient with a silicone cap made for suction fit," said Kukkamaa.

Entertainment in the Spotlight

By ARCANGELA MELE
news@spotlightnews.com

After taking note of the events that have sprouted in big cities like New York, San Francisco and Boston, that celebrate and showcase each city's unique artistic culture, Michael Weidrich decided it was time for Albany to start showing its true colors.

The local artist and board member of the Upstate Artists Guild sat down with his fellow board members and from that meeting, 1st Friday was born.

The monthly event, which aims to bring the local community together in celebration of Albany's unique art scene, made its debut in September, with just three participating galleries, The Upstate Artists Guild, Romaine Brooks and Amrose Sable.

Less than a year later, the event has grown to include virtually every gallery in Albany, including the state museum and the Albany Institute of History and Art. In May, 1st Friday attracted more than 1,000 visitors, which Weidrich sees as a huge accomplishment.

"It's a great continuum of the arts, from the smallest gallery to the biggest museum," he said. "We're all together for one evening, showing the city and the Capital District just what a rich cultural resource this city is."

Lucy Lerner, director of sponsorship at the state museum, made the decision to get involved with 1st Friday because it was a chance to bring new audiences to the museum, including those who can't normally visit during daytime hours.

"We wanted them to get to know us better, and it's also an opportunity to show them that the museum supports the arts and culture and that we are definitely a part of the arts and culture scene," she said.

The state museum opens its doors late on 1st Fridays, from 5 to 9 p.m., with light refreshments, and an exclusive exhibit each month. For May it was "Look-Alikes" artist Joan Steiner; for June it's the Best of SUNY Student Art Exhibition, which features the 75 pieces selected from 200 works in the fall and spring SUNY student art shows.

The Albany Institute of History and Art, which normally attracts more than 200 people to its 1st Friday event, offers live music, food and wine tasting stations and several exclusive exhibits.

Christine Miles, executive director of AIHA, thinks the event places Albany in a very positive light.

"I've heard really positive remarks from people from the suburbs who said they had no idea the architecture was so beautiful in Albany," she said. "I think it's really creating a very dynamic environment, and I think it's fostering a lot of civic pride."

Aside from the large museums, there are also a slew of smaller venues and galleries that have exhibits on 1st Friday, such as the Schuyler Mansion which features more traditional art, The Albany Center Gallery, Capitol Repertory Theatre, Elda's On Lark, Envy Lounge, Red Square and Fuze Box.

For the late-night crowd, the event can continue into the wee hours with After First Friday, a musical event sponsored by the Barn, a nonprofit organization that advocates creative arts in Albany. The Lark Tavern, Red Square, Skyline, and Justin's on Lark all participate in After 1st Friday.

John DeJohn, owner of Justin's On Lark, believes that a successful and high profile event like 1st Friday ultimately keeps people out of trouble.

"The more foot traffic you have, the less crime there is, and the quality of life issues tend to get better with an event like this," DeJohn said.

With the warmer weather bringing more people out to the streets, Weidrich anticipates a larger and more diverse crowd in upcoming months.

"I've seen 6-week-old babies to 80-year-old grandmothers," he said. "The spectrum is just becoming huge."

For information, including a map, about the next 1st Friday scheduled for Friday, June 1, visit www.1stfridayalbany.org.

Steve Byington of Finger Lakes Community College created this untitled monoprint that is part of the 2007 Best of SUNY Student Art, on view at the state museum.

"Onlooker" by Andrew Sailer of Purchase College, will be at the state museum through September. See it at 1st Friday this week.

Venezia leads BC girls at class A's ☐ Arena

Jessica Venezia won the triple jump, and Colleen Hart added a second-place finish in the shot put to lead the Bethlehem girls track and field team at last Wednesday's Section II, Class A championship meet in Queensbury.

Venezia's distance of 35 feet, 5.25 inches was 9.5 inches better than her nearest competitor in the triple jump, Colonie's Claire Reynolds. Venezia also placed sixth in the long jump with a distance of 15 feet, 7 inches.

Hart threw the shot put a distance of 34 feet, 5 inches to place second behind Ballston Spa's Nicole Laiacina, who led the way with a throw of 34 feet, 8.5 inches.

Kristin Kenney also placed second in an individual event for Bethlehem. The senior finished with a time of 10:27.88 in the 3,000-meter race, more than six seconds behind Saratoga's Cassandra Goutos.

Sara Turner and Brenna Filipello turned in third-place performances for the Lady Eagles at Sectionals. Turner finished third in the high jump after clearing a height of 5 feet, while Filipello placed third in the pentathlon with a total of 2,063 points.

Bethlehem finished seventh in the team standings with 43 points. Saratoga claimed the class A title with 132 points.

On the boys' side, Bethlehem took seventh place at last Thursday's class A meet in Gunderland with 33 points.

Michael McManus led the Eagles with a victory in the high jump. McManus cleared a height of 6 feet, 7 inches, two inches ahead of Ballston Spa's Drew Fitzgerald.

Sam Smith contributed a second-place finish in the boys pentathlon with a total of 2,921 points. Smith won the high jump and placed third in the long jump to gain 1,233 points.

In other Sectional track action, the Voorheesville boys team placed second at Saturday's class CC meet in Greenwich. Mackey Lloyd (3,000-meter steeplechase) and Ian Powell (800-meter race) led the Blackbirds.

teams to play in, we may not be able to hold on to the teams we have. How long can the River Rats and Conquest continue to play there before owner Walter Robb loses too much money and has to sell both teams? How long before Siena starts thinking of building a new on-campus arena to truly create an intense, student-driven atmosphere?

Robb once proposed building a new, 7,500-seat arena in downtown Schenectady for the Rats. Though the location would have been questionable, the idea — looking back at it — has merit. If the Rats and Conquest only had to worry about filling 7,500 seats for every home game, it wouldn't be as bad as worrying about how to make 3,500 people look like a big crowd in a 14,000-seat arena with tarps. No matter how you slice it, 3,500 people in a 14,000-seat arena does not look good, and the fans know it. That's why it's hard for those teams to generate a passionate fan base, even though this region has passionate sports fans.

The key would be placing the arena somewhere that area sports fans would want to travel to for a game. As much as I'm for revitalizing urban areas, that's not where area sports fans like to go. Besides the fact that it's summer professional baseball, the reason why the Tri-City ValleyCats enjoy a healthy average attendance is that they placed Joe Bruno Stadium at Hudson Valley Community College instead of the heart of downtown Troy. People don't mind going to HVCC. It's just on the outskirts of the city, and there's plenty of nearby parking.

There aren't many available locations like that for a new arena, but I have a couple of ideas. One would be putting it off Interstate 787 just north of the I-90 interchange on the Albany-Menands border. Great highway access, plenty of room for a big parking lot — what more could you ask for around here?

The other idea is putting it just off the Northway in southern Saratoga County. It might lead to some protests by neighbors who wouldn't want it destroying the residential charm of a place like Clifton Park or Malta, but if that's where people are moving to, why not move the Rats and Conquest there?

Granted, another arena in the Capital District might seem like overkill. It certainly would cut into the TU Center's profits, but the folks that run that place could always schedule more second-rate concerts to fill the dates. They'd probably draw as much for a past-it's-prime rock act as they would for a Conquest home game.

Certainly, area indoor sports teams deserve a better home venue than the bloated TU Center — one that doesn't require tarps to fill seats.

the lefty. He was very impressive," said Helm.

Jimmy Sabbag led Gunderland's 16-hit attack with a triple and a double. Sabbag also drove in three runs, while Jake Colavito knocked two runs in with a pair of doubles. Ben Henderson added two singles and two RBI.

Nick Nardacci had a double and a single for Bethlehem, which advanced to the quarterfinals with a 15-6 nine-inning victory over Amsterdam last Thursday.

"I can't really complain," said Helm. "We got our seven (league) wins, we made the playoffs and we won a playoff game. We had a good season."

Shaker ends Lady Eagles' title streak

Bethlehem's streak of consecutive Section II girls lacrosse titles ended last Wednesday with a 16-15 double overtime loss to Shaker in the class A semi-finals.

The lead changed hands several times in regulation before Bethlehem's Lauren Wendth scored with less than 30 seconds left in the second half to tie the game at 14.

Shaker took control in the first overtime period, though. Abigail Rehfuß and Lexi Dalcol tallied to put the Blue Bison ahead 16-14.

Tee Ladouceur pulled the Lady Eagles within a goal late in the second overtime period, but that was as close as they got to Shaker.

Rehfuß netted six goals, and Dalcol contributed five goals and an assist for Shaker, which advances to Thursday's class A final against Guilderland.

Ladouceur scored eight goals, and Erica Hill and Kayleigh Hynes each added two goals for Bethlehem, which had won the last eight Sectional championships.

BC tennis team adds another title

The Bethlehem boys tennis team won the Section II, Class A title for the second year in a row with a 5-4 victory over Guilderland in last Wednesday's final.

The Eagles won four of the six singles matches, led by Jesse Hoffman's 6-2, 6-0 victory over Jon Ellenbogen at No. 1 singles. Mike Amico contributed a 6-1, 5-7, 6-3 victory over Mike Griggs at No. 2 singles.

Bethlehem defeated Guilderland 5-4 in last year's Sectional final.

Blackbirds fall in quarterfinals

The Voorheesville baseball team lost to Hudson 2-1 in last Thursday's opening round of the Section II, Class B playoffs.

Jay Conde had the lone hit for the Blackbirds.

Bethlehem's Jason Daniels delivers to the plate during Saturday's Section II, Class AA quarterfinal game at Guilderland.

Eagles can't slow down Dutch

Suburban Council champions advance with quarterfinal win

By ROB JONAS
jonasr@spotlightnews.com

The Guilderland baseball team is one step closer to ending a 30-year championship drought.

The Dutchmen piled up 16 hits, and Greg Barcomb pitched four shutout innings of relief to help Guilderland defeat Bethlehem 14-4 in Saturday's Section II, Class AA quarterfinal game.

Guilderland (16-2) advances to Wednesday's semifinal against Niskayuna at Joe Bruno Stadium in Troy. The Dutchmen defeated the Silver Warriors 2-0 in their only Suburban Council meeting.

"You never know what it's going to be like in these (playoff) games," said Guilderland coach Doug LaValley. "If we swing the bats the way we did Saturday, it could be a higher scoring game."

Bethlehem (12-10) certainly couldn't do anything to stop Guilderland's hitters. The Dutchmen scored at least one run in all but one inning and had at least two runs in four of their six innings at the plate.

"That was the best hitting game we've had all season, but that's what we're capable of," said LaValley.

"They're a great hitting team, and they hit the ball well," said Bethlehem coach Rob Helm. "I went through five pitchers trying to find someone who could stop them."

Bethlehem had a glimmer of hope when it scored three runs in the top of the second inning to take a 3-2 lead. But Guilderland scored four runs in its half of the second — a rally capped by Drew Simpson's two-run single — to go ahead for good.

"The one thing you have to do against Guilderland is get the first strike over (the plate), and we couldn't do that," said Helm.

After starting pitcher Nick Polsinelli struggled a bit in the top of the third inning, LaValley brought Barcomb in, and the senior left-hander delivered. Barcomb allowed one hit and struck out several Eagles to seal the victory.

"Nicky (Polsinelli) is hobbled a little right now. He seemed to have some soreness in his elbow, so we made the switch to Barcomb," said LaValley.

"I've got to give a lot of credit to

Latest move proves arena is too big

It was announced last week that to create a "more intimate" setting for Siena College men's basketball games, the seats behind each basket at Albany's TU Center will be blocked off.

The move will leave approximately 8,500 seats for every game, but it will also allow for two big, black tarps to cover the lower level end zone seats.

Great. While they're at it, perhaps the folks that run TU Center could also use the tarps to cover up unused sections of lower level seats for Albany River Rats and Albany Conquest games. That way, no one has to see the unused seats.

The sad fact is, the tarps are necessary because there are too many seats at TU Center. Approximately 6,500 seats too many by my count. That would be the upper deck — you know, that area above the luxury boxes that is usually curtained off with hanging black tarps.

The upper deck was included in the arena because back in 1988, then Albany County executive Jim Coyne thought that a downtown Albany arena with a 15,000-seat capacity could bring in a major league franchise. There was even a rumor that the St. Louis Blues were considering a move to our region before they and the city of St. Louis came to their senses and built a new arena for the Blues.

As we now know, Coyne's dream of an NHL or NBA franchise in Albany was only a pipe dream. At a maximum capacity of under 14,000 for hockey and 16,000 for basketball, it was too small for a major league team — even back in the early 1990s. Add in Albany's metro population (still under 800,000, even after Saratoga County is factored into the equation), and you can understand why NBA or NHL teams aren't talking about relocating to our region.

So today, we're stuck with an arena that is too small for a major league team and too big for what we do have — a top-tier minor league hockey team, a mid-major Division I college basketball team and a second-level Arena Football team. And it's not going to get any smaller, tarps and curtains notwithstanding.

The time has come to face our reality: as long as there isn't a smaller alternative to the TU Center for our high-profile sports

Putting the pieces together after the fire

By CARI SCRIBNER
scribnerc@spotlightnews.com

Where there's smoke, there's fire may be a truism, but the real question is, what caused the smoke in the first place?

The sleuthing begins, of course, after the fire: Fire investigators trace the cause of flames from a tiny flicker to a roaring inferno.

"The most common cause a few years ago was unattended candles, but over the last few years, it's been careless smoking materials," said Ed Trembley, fire coordinator for Saratoga County. "It's essentially careless discard. All fires are bad news, but it's depressing for us to see these accidents that could very easily been avoided."

The county cause and identification pursues the cause of fires after being called to the scene by fire chiefs.

"If the firefighters can't immediately find how the fire started, we go in," said Trembley. "We do a visual of the scene, look at the heaviest concentration of charring and damage, interview the occupants. With smoking materials, it can happen with someone of any age, not just teenagers or younger people."

Trembley's unit of 12 trained investigators went out to between 70 and 80 fires last year. He hopes the grim news about local fires will be a startling reminder for people to wake up and smell the smoke.

"When you see it on television, it reminds people to watch their habits and be more aware," said Trembley. "People may toss out their cigarettes carelessly 40 or 50 times a month, but it's that one that does you in. That's all it takes is just one."

Throughout Saratoga County, After the Fire organizations are run completely by volunteers who respond to fire scenes alongside firefighters.

"We're on call around the clock," said Kathy Hedgeman, vice president of the Saratoga County After the Fire group. "Most fires happen in the middle of the night."

The organization, which relies completely on donations, provides emergency supplies for families that have lost all their worldly possessions.

"We bring a supply of clothing, gift cards from retail stores, and we have contracts with hotels around the area which will give families their first night free," said Hedgeman. "After the first night, people can contact the Red Cross for more assistance. But we stay in contact with the families and continue to help as much as we can."

Hedgeman said in her 10 years working with the group, she has witnessed over and over again the disbelief on people's faces as they watch their home or apartment go up in flames.

"They're shell shocked," said Hedgeman. "People sometimes refuse help because they don't realize the extent of things. There are degrees of damage; some fires are better and you don't lose everything, but in the grand scheme of things, you need to realize material items can be replaced, but people can't."

The American Red Cross isn't on hand to help only in dire national and international emergencies. It's also the first group to turn to in the event of a home fire for assistance across the board. The local agency, headquartered in Albany, serves eight counties, and a total of 870,000 people.

"People have the misconception that we work only on the state level, but we're a grassroots organization," said Christine Powers, director of development and communications of American Red Cross of Northeastern New York. "Ninety-nine percent of the time, the emergencies we respond to don't even make the news. In reality, we're a vehicle for neighbors helping neighbors; that's the No. 1 priority."

The agency, which runs on donations and isn't government-sponsored, has 20 staff members and more than 1,000 dedicated volunteers.

The local Red Cross is required by its charter to send people to a fire scene within two hours of getting a call from the fire department or the families themselves.

"We go to the scene and assess the immediate needs of the victims, including clothing, food and overnight shelter," said Powers. "If there's a need for a larger group of people to be put up for the night, we'll open a shelter."

The agency also helps people replace supplies urgently needed, such as prescription medicines and eyeglasses. Fire fighters might also ask that neighbors be moved out for the night due to smoke conditions.

"We also have RN's and crisis counselors who can go right in and help people with their emotional needs," said Powers.

Powers said the number of fires has flared up this year, and last year, the Red Cross responded ed to about 300 emergency sites at homes throughout their counties.

"We're there until people get back on their feet, and then we hook them up with other social service agencies," said Powers.

The Northeastern New York chapter is also available via hot line 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

"On long holiday weekends, if a family needs help after a fire at the beginning of the holiday, we'll make sure they're taken care of over the course of the three days," said Powers. "Basically you'll find we're there as needed for as long as needed."

Tips to make your home fire-safe

- Smoke alarms save lives. Install a smoke alarm outside each sleeping area and on each additional level of your home.
- If people sleep with doors closed, install smoke alarms inside sleeping areas, too.
- Use the test button to check each smoke alarm once a month. When necessary, replace batteries immediately. Replace all batteries at least once a year.
- Vacuum away cobwebs and dust from your smoke alarms monthly.

- Smoke alarms become less sensitive over time. Replace your smoke alarms every 10 years.

- Consider having one or more working fire extinguishers in your home. Get training from the fire department in how to use them.

- Consider installing an automatic fire sprinkler system in your home.

—Plan your escape routes—

- Determine at least two ways to escape from every room of your home.
- Consider escape ladders for sleeping areas on the second or third floor. Learn how to use them and store them near the window.

- Select a location outside your home where everyone would meet after escaping.

- Practice your escape plan at least twice a year.

—Escape safely—

- Once you are out, stay out! Call the fire department from a neighbor's home.
- If you see smoke or fire in your first escape route, use your second way out. If you must exit through smoke, crawl low under the smoke to your exit.
- If you are escaping through a closed door, feel the door before opening it. If it is warm, use your second way out.

- If smoke, heat, or flames block your exit routes, stay in the room with the door closed. Signal for help using a bright-colored cloth at the window. If there is a telephone in the room, call the fire department and tell them where you are.

into effect in June 2004 calling for cigarette manufacturers to make and distribute extinguishing cigarettes in New York, investigators have been tracking cigarette fires and turning all information over to state agencies. They record the brand of cigarette and where and how it set fire to its surroundings, assuming they can get the information.

Although cigarettes aren't the cause of most fires in the area, say fire investigators, the fact that they continue to happen raises questions about the legislation's intent, enforcement and effectiveness.

"Sometimes what happens to us (fire investigators) is that some legislator gets up on a topic without the forethought of the legislation going forward, or how you are going to enforce it," said Bill Schmidt, assistant chief of the Colonie Department of Fire Services.

Schmidt has investigated several recent fires that were caused by poorly discarded cigarettes, and one left unattended.

Although New York cigarettes are regulated, cigarettes from states and countries that don't have similar regulations make their way into New York, investigators said. Despite that, it hasn't appeared that a surge of unregulated cigarettes are to blame for any fires caused by cigarettes, said Moynihan. But it raises questions of enforcement when market prices of cigarettes will lead smokers to purchase cheaper cigarettes often offered in states and areas that have limited or no fire-regulated cigarettes, he said.

Although most of the recent cigarette fires were the result of cigarettes being discarded in dry mulch outside of buildings, like the Carmen Road fire, others are the stereotypical cigarette left unattended in an ash-tray next to a bed or sofa. That was the situation at the Fuller Road fire, said Schmidt.

Whether the cigarettes met the state regulations has yet to be determined, if it can.

"When we identify a smoking-related fire it's the result of carelessness. They fall asleep or are under the influence of alcohol or whatever," said Schmidt.

State law requires that a cigarette treated for "reduced ignition propensity" as it is referred to in the tobacco industry, extinguishes itself 75 percent of the time when left unattended, said Schmidt. It is a test method developed by the American Society for Testing and Methods. It is the test that manufacturers like Philip Morris of Virginia use to develop reduced ignition propensity cigarettes.

Schmidt investigated the Fuller Road fire; it was the fourth reported fire in the town that week caused by a lit cigarette. The other fire occurred Saturday, May 5, at a St. Francis Lane home when a cigarette was thrown into a plastic container outside the home. The container caught fire and the fire spread to the outside of the home.

On the morning of Thursday, May 10, town fire departments also responded to two mulch fires, one on Wolf Road and another on Central Avenue in the village of Colonie, also caused by cigarettes.

Even a reduced-ignition propensity cigarette will catch fire in the right conditions, he said.

"We haven't investigated a fire when a cigarette started a fire on a couch or sofa or anything like that," said John Nuzback, a Schenectady County fire coordinator.

Outside of a vehicle fire started by a poorly discarded cigarette, the four out of 19 fires so far this year in Schenectady County, outside of the city and caused by cigarettes, started outside the homes or apartments, he said.

"The intent was to stop fires caused by unattended cigarettes. It's not meant to stop a mulch fire," said Moynihan.

"It's important to know that these cigarettes are not fire-safe," said Bill Phelps, Philip Morris USA spokesman.

The cigarettes are designed to reduce the likelihood of igniting a fire when left unattended, he said. Philip Morris manufactures banded paper cigarettes. They incorporate bands on the paper that act like speed bumps, he said. And, they make them to serve 10 different states. Many of the states have similar legislation, but there are some varieties, he said. New York was one of the first in the nation to pass such legislation. The latest was Minnesota that passed a bill calling for reduced ignition propensity cigarettes on Monday, May 7.

Each time a bill comes before state legislators calling for the new cigarettes, tobacco companies like Philip Morris and lobbyists have repeatedly called for a national and not a state-based initiative for reduced ignition propensity cigarettes.

"We support federal legislation that would set forth a national standard for reduced cigarette ignition propensity that would preempt state and local laws," said Phelps.
