Gas main leak near school

Slingerlands and Delmar fire departments were called to the Slingerland's Elementary School around 1:30 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 21, to respond to a two-inch high-pressure gas main rupture at the entrance to the school's parking lot.

Reservoir patrolman calls firing 'suspicious'

County cop says he was terminated for speaking out about mercury spill

By JARRETT CARROLL
Spotlight Newspapers
carrollj@spotlightnews.com

The town of Bethlehem fired Albany County Sheriff's deputy Gary Fish after he served 12 years as a part-time patrolman for the town's water supply.

Fish claims he was fired because he spoke out about the mercury spill at the town's water plant, but town officials said he was fired because of repeated scheduling conflicts. The town would not comment further because they said the incident is a "personnel matter."

As a veteran law enforcement officer of 23 years, Fish said the town wasn't fully disclosing incidents involving mercury and other problems at Bethlehem's water treatment plant located in the town of New Scotland. He was hired by the town in 1996 to patrol the restricted reservoir. Fish alleges that his termination has nothing to do with scheduling and is the result of his talking to Town Attorney James Potter after a meeting about what he called inaccuracies in the report given to the public by Public Works Commissioner Josh Cansler in February regarding mercury spills at the water plant.

Health-care employees want CDTA to build a better bus route

By ARIANA COHN

When it comes to work, it doesn't matter how you get there, all that matters is you get there on time.

For several hospital and health-care facility employees, getting to work on time is not so simple.

Some blame their tardiness on their dependence on buses that consistently run late. Others say the high cost of gas is slowing them down by forcing them to come up with alternative options like carpooling, leaving them subject to another person's dependability. Even when they do make it to work on time, many have trouble getting home again after a strenuous eight-hour shift.

It can be frustrating when buses run late, but what do you do when the bus never comes?

For Leishea White, 42, of Albany, the answer was simple. If the bus doesn't come, you walk.

Town officials confirmed that Bethlehem Court Clerk Patricia Parsons has returned to her job with Albany County after less than two months at the post.

Long-time Court Clerk Barbara Hodom, who recently retired and was training Parsons as her replacement, will continue working for the town until a new replacement is chosen, according to Supervisor Jack Cunningham.

"She wanted to go back to her job at the county," Cunningham said about Parsons' sudden departure. "Barb's back working, she's continuing in that role and putting in more hours."

Cunningham did not specify any of the details surrounding Parsons' departure.

The town's two judges, Bethlehem Justice Ryan Donovan and Justice Paul Dwyer, are the ones who appoint the town's court clerk, a post whose pay starts at $58,000 a year. The town board

Police Blotter

Three nabbed for DWI during county sweep

Bethlehem police arrested three motorists for driving under the influence while taking part in a countywide sweep on Thursday, Aug. 14, following the final Alive at Five concert of the season in Albany.

The sweep, dubbed "Operation Snapshot" by Albany County District Attorney David Soares, saw 31 DWI arrests, one DWAI arrest, and one driving while ability impaired by drugs arrest all in the matter of a four-hour block.

In total, Soares reported that the checkpoints held in municipalities around the county yielded 264 infractions that evening.

Bethlehem police held a checkpoint on Route 9W in Glenmont and arrested Charles J. Blanchard Jr., 20, of Delmar; Michael K. Altschuler, 54, of Glenmont; and Kira Stiles-Mikl, 24, of Albany.

Blanchard was arrested for DWI, operating a motor vehicle with a blood-alcohol content of 0.08 percent or greater, and unlawful possession of marijuana.

When police stopped Blanchard at the checkpoint, officers reported that they smelled alcohol on his breath and observed him display signs of intoxication, according to the arrest report.

Blanchard was given a field-sobriety test and tested positive for alcohol before being taken into custody without incident and transported to the Bethlehem Police Department, the report states.

Bethlehem police said they discovered four bottles of unopened beer and when Blanchard was searched at the police station, officers found a small plastic bag containing "green vegetation," which was later determined to be marijuana.

Blanchard was arraigned by Bethlehem Justice Paul Dwyer.

Altschuler, 54, of Glenmont, was arrested for DWI and driving a motor vehicle with a BAC of 0.08 percent or greater.

Police stopped Altschuler at the checkpoint and smelled alcohol on his breath, the report states, and his speech was slurred when speaking with officers.

Bethlehem Police said Altschuler failed a field-sobriety test and was taken into custody and transported to the Bethlehem police station where he submitted to a chemical test.

He was released to the custody of his son and scheduled to return to court on Tuesday, Sept. 2.

Stiles-Mikl was arrested for DWI, operating a motor vehicle with a BAC of 0.08 percent or greater; and aggravated DWI, with a BAC of 0.18 percent or greater.

Police smelled alcohol on Stiles-Mikl's breath and when officers asked if she had been drinking, she stated, "Yes, two beers," according to the arrest report. The report also states that she failed three field-sobriety tests, tested positive for alcohol, and was displaying signs of intoxication.

Stiles-Mikl admitted to officers she had been drinking "while in Albany at a friend's residence," according to police. She submitted to a chemical test and was found to be nearly triple the legal BAC limit of 0.08 percent, the report states.

Other arrests

• Peter J. Smith, 53, of Delmar, was arrested on Wednesday, Aug. 20, on New Scotland Road for DWI and following too close.

Bethlehem police said they responded to a property-damage auto accident, and when the interviewed Smith at the scene, his breath-smelled of alcohol.

When asked if he was drinking, Smith "state(d) he had [two or three] beers about a half hour to an hour prior," according to the arrest report.

Smith failed a field-sobriety test and tested positive for alcohol on a pre-screening device before he was taken into custody without incident, the report states.

He submitted to a chemical test and is scheduled to appear in town court on Tuesday, Sept. 2, according to police. He was released to his wife.

County announces Hudson-Helderberg rail trail

Legislature expected to pass proposed pedestrian pathway

By JARRETT CARROLL
Spotlight Newspapers
carrollj@spotlightnews.com

Albany County Executive Michael Breslin announced that the county is seeking approval to buy the Canadian Pacific Railway property and turn it into a nine-mile pedestrian pathway from Voorheesville to the Port of Albany.

Breslin said at a press conference in Bethlehem on Thursday, Aug. 21, that an agreement was reached with Canadian Pacific Railway and that he needs approval from the Albany County Legislature to enter into a contract.

With several members of the legislature at the meeting, approval is expected to easily pass by a majority vote.

"I fully expect the legislature ... will fully support it," Breslin said at the press conference.

The idea, he said, would be to convert the former Delaware & Hudson Railroad, which runs directly through New Scotland and Bethlehem to Albany, and link it to other recreational trails and municipalities along the way.

"We are excited at the prospect of acquiring this land," Breslin said. "The creation of this park would turn currently unutilized space into a huge resource for Albany County residents, creating recreational opportunities and preserving this scenic area."

Albany County was given the $700,000 asking price for the railway from Scenic Hudson and the state Department of Parks, Recreation and Historic Preservation to purchase the trail. Scenic Hudson, who is partnering with the county on the initiative, is a non-profit conservation organization that works with Hudson River communities to preserve land.

Bethlehem Deputy Supervisor Dan Plummer, who stood in for Supervisor Jack Cunningham who was driving his daughter to college at the time, said it is something the town has been interested in for a while.

"It's a no-brainer, we've got to do it," he said of the possible rail trail.

In a released statement, Cunningham said, "We are excited that this initiative has come to fruition. This rails to trails project is part of our overall comprehensive plan to interconnect neighborhoods and provide for a pedestrian pathway through our community."

Seth McKee, the land conservancy director for Scenic Hudson, was also on hand to announce the news.

"We are thrilled a basic agreement with Canadian Pacific Railway has been reached," said McKee. "Scenic Hudson is happy to contribute one half of the purchase price to this project which will benefit the entire Capital Region. We hope the County Legislature will approve this important agreement so that we can proceed."

County legislators helping to push the project through the legislature include, Hebert W. Reilly, Jr. of Voorheesville; Charles S. Dawson, Jr., husband of Bethlehem Councilwoman Joann Dawson; Thomas J. Cotrofeld, Jr. of Bethlehem; and William F. Aylward, Jr., of Guilderland.

Breslin said he wasn't sure of the final cost of the project or the specifics on what kind of material would be used on the trail, but that the purchase of the property would be the first step.

"This is not step one," Breslin said. "We've had many steps," he added referring to the number of years the project has been in the works for.

Bethlehem Councilmen Kyle Kotary, Sam Messina and Mark Hennessey were all in attendance at the announcement.

Kotary, who has three young children, said his family was excited about the prospect of the meeting.

Messina said the rail trail could mean more than just recreational opportunities for the town.

"It has some economic spin off," Messina said, citing the proximity of the trail to local businesses and to the eventual Visa Technology Park slated for Slingerlands. "This rail trail will be very close to all of that."

Voorheesville Mayor Robert Conway said the trail would be "a great tool for everyone."

A final environmental impact review will have to be conducted for the entire proposed site and the county legislature will have to approve the contract before Albany County can buy the railway.

More details about the proposed rail trail are expected as the project moves forward, according to county officials.

Dems go head-to-head at debate for 21st district

Event features potshots, calls for change, and a missing candidate

A packed Bethlehem Town Hall played host to the final Democratic candidate debate for the 21st Congressional District before the Sept. 9 primary.

Four out of five of the Democrats vying for the seat of retiring Congressman Michael McNulty, D-Green Island, attended the debate, which was sponsored by Democracy for the Hudson Mohawk Region (DFHMR) and supported by Bethlehem Neighbors for Peace (BNP). Robert B. Ward, deputy director of the Rockefeller Institute, was the evening's moderator.

Albany City Democrat Joseph Sullivan was expected but did not make an appearance at the event. Sullivan did issue a statement about his absence.

"First, I noticed in the advance publicity for the forum, that DFHMR had already endorsed Phil Steck," Sullivan stated. "Second, I knew that the audience would largely be made up of aides to the four other candidates, and members of your [DFHMR and BNP] two groups, who would not be receptive to my message or positions on the issues. Few minds to be changed or votes to be gotten here."

The debate covered a wide array of topics but focused specifically on policies such as foreign and domestic issues, energy, health care, education, campaign finance and even allowed for a sector where the candidates asked one another a question.

Democratic candidates Tracey Brooks of Coeymans, Darius Shahinfar of Albany, Phil Steck of Colonie, and Paul Tonko of Amsterdam fielded questions for more than two hours.

The candidates were each given a two-minute introduction and closing statement and were limited to one-minute answers, which was harder for some candidates than others. On multiple occasions throughout the night Tonko was cut off and asked to stop speaking.

The rules of the debate allowed a candidate to give a 30-second rebuttal if they were specifically named during another candidate's answer, something that Steck took advantage of by taking jabs at opponents Tonko and Brooks. He wasn't the only one though, as Brooks also took a shot at Tonko's support of energy deregulation during his tenure in the state's Assembly.

Tonko got his 30 seconds, and a little more, to tell Brooks he respects her opinions but she couldn't use her "own set of facts," as he blamed the Republican George Pataki administration for going around the state's Assembly to pass its own energy policies in the state.

All the candidates got a chance to defend themselves, even for comments made during closing statements, as when Steck said Brooks was working for a lobbying firm and Brooks rebutted that she was a lawyer working for a law firm, not a lobbying firm.

The biggest reaction from the crowd came when Brooks asked Steck during her question period if he would still support her as a Democrat if she won the primary, and would he work together with the Democratic Party to put her in office and defeat the Republican challenger for the congressional seat.

Steck's response sent a flurry of murmurs around the room.

"Well, unlike my colleague over here who spent her early years in the Republican Party and then in the Independence Party, I've been a lifelong Democrat," Steck said. "I've been a Democratic chairman, I have worked hard to support the candidates in the Democratic Party, and there's no reason to assume that this election would be any different."

Aside from a few occasional differences, the Democrats agreed with one another on a number of the issues, to the point where several jokes were made throughout the night about the similar answers among the candidates.

Steck opened up the debate stating he wanted to end the "corrupting power of lobbyist and special interest" and cited his work as a civil rights and labor attorney to paint himself as a candidate of "real hope" and change.

He also threw in that he was not like the "other lobbyist-dominated candidates up here."

Tonko went next, stating it was a "very critical time" in history and that he would bring his years of experience from the Assembly to represent a mixed district like the 21st, which includes rural, urban, and suburban interests.

As a career engineer, Tonko said he spent his years of public service working through legislative bodies in order to combat energy issues. Tonko said issues of war, energy and the slumping economy were the top concerns of residents he has spoken with.

Shahinfar said he was running for Congress to "renew America's Promise," so that 50 years from now the nation will still be a strong, viable force in the global economy with the same opportunities offered to his parent's generation.

"I'm the first candidate to reject special interest money," Shahinfar told the crowd.

The former Kirsten Gillibrand aide went on to say that "change doesn't come easily," and that if voters truly wanted change that "career politicians and lobbyists won't change a thing."

Brooks gave a well-rehearsed opening statement touting her experience working locally within the district and said she was running to undo the damage caused by the Bush administration.

The former Sen. Hillary Clinton aide talked extensively about health care and pointed to the 42 million Americans currently without health care. She made the possibly not-so-unintentional slip of saying, "A vote for me in November, oops, I mean September, is a vote for change."

Bruce Bushart, representing Bethlehem Neighbors for Peace, and Kate Powers, representing Democracy for the Hudson Mohawk Region, co-chaired the event.

With kids, you're always on the clock

By WILLIAM R. DEVOE
Spotlight Newspapers
devoew@spotlightnews.com

Sometimes you just want to mow the lawn.

But when you have kids, you can no longer "just" do anything. You no longer "just" go out to dinner. You no longer "just" run right down to the store. Things that you "just" used to do become ordeals that involve hours-long preparation, the stocking of diaper bags and the changing of diapers, the wrestling of clothes on and back on squirmy little kids as they do just about anything they can to delay the process of "just" doing something that used to take no time at all.

When I do get a chance to "just" do something, I like to spend my time in the garden or doing yard work. I have a ritual: I put some good music on my iPod, get a halfway decent cigar and plan on spending an hour-and-a-half mowing a lawn so small I could probably be done in a matter of minutes.

This is only halfway by design: Sure, I like to take my time with the lawn, particularly if the weather and the cigar are good, but I also have to account for the many interruptions that will begin as soon as I start the mower.

About 30 seconds into mowing the lawn, my 5-year-old, Kevin, comes running out on the deck. He knows I can't hear him over the lawnmower's engine, so he begins jumping up and down and flailing his arms like he's a shipwrecked sailor trying to get the attention of a passing airplane.

"Daddy!" I hear after turning off the mower. I don't like turning off the mower once I get started. I don't know what it is. Once it gets going, I just want to zone out to the drone of the engine and get the whole lawn done in one lazy shot. But a jumping, screaming child is nothing to ignore, if only for the benefit of my neighbors.

"What is it, Kev, is everything OK?"

"Can you make me a peanut-butter and jelly?"

"Can't mommy make it, Kev, I'm mowing the lawn."

His mother, I know, is in the living room, all of 20 feet from the kitchen.

"Mommy's reading," he says, and he's sincere. "Reading is important."

How do you argue with that? Do you tell him that mowing the lawn is more important than reading? "All right, let's make you a sandwich."

Back to the lawn again. Cigar. iPod. Start the mower and I'm off. I get two good full circles around the inside of the fence before I see Kevin once more, PB and J residue on his face, doing the stranded sailor dance on the deck.

Kevin starts talking before the mower's engine dies down completely. I hear what I believe to be the words "shredder," "little brother" and "broken." In the background I can hear our 11-month-old, Nathan, crying in the house. Fearing the worst, I sprint past Kevin, through the back door and into the house. There I see my wife, dancing with Nathan to something blaring from the television.

"What's going on?" I ask, out of breath. "Kevin just came out and said something about Nathan and the paper shredder and someone was dropped and something is broken..."

"You worry too much," my wife tells me. "Kevin was doing some shredding for me, when Nathan woke up crying because he was hungry. It surprised Kevin and he tipped over the shredder."

"Mommy pays me to shred things," says Kevin, who magically appeared at my hip.

"Time out," I say to my son. "You can work the shredder but you can't make your own peanut-butter and jelly sandwiches?"

Back to the lawn. Cigar. iPod. Start the mower and —

"Honey!" my wife yells over the buzz of the lawnmower. I see her standing on the top step to our deck, leaning forward somewhat with her hands cupped around her mouth. She looks like she's yodeling. I cut the mower off.

"What's the matter?"

"Who sings that song at the end of the 'Shrek' movie? 'Then I saw her face,' and all that? Kevin wants to listen to it in the car."

"That's great. What's the name of the song and is it on our computer?"

She would have been more impressed if Pearl Jam covered it, I'm sure.

Back to the lawn. Cigar. iPod. And a surprisingly long, uninterrupted run until I spot my elderly next door neighbor leaning on my fence. I stop the mower.

"It's taking you an awful long time to mow this small patch of grass," he says.

The old man who lives next door to us has provided running commentary on my family's yard work for the past decade or so. A number of years ago, when I was still a bachelor and me and my brother and his wife lived in the house that my wife and I

"Time out," I say to my son. "You can work the shredder but you can't make your own peanut-butter and jelly sandwiches?"

I married young. That is to say, I married a woman who is a few years younger than me.

When Neil Diamond wrote "I'm a believer," the song to which she's referring, in 1966, my wife wouldn't be born for another 17 years. She grew up on bands like the Red Hot Chili Peppers, Dashboard Confessional and Pearl Jam!

For the most part, my wife's youthful exuberance — coupled with a maturity that is beyond her years — keeps me young yet grounded. In this case, where all I'd like to do is mow the lawn, it was doing neither.

I decided that if I was going to be interrupted for what I thought was trivial matter, I'd try to show off my trivial knowledge as best as I could: "The song was written by Neil Diamond, made famous by the Monkees, and later recorded by bands like the The Four Tops and The Fifth Estate," I say to her.

"Wow," she says placatingly.

live in now, we used to mow the lawn with one of those old push manual reel mowers with the spinning blades out in front. My brother, and I would sit outside with a few drinks and take turns pushing the thing up and down the small patch of grass that is the backyard.

The old man — Tom is his name — used to watch us every weekend. I always thought it was because we were using a mower that was more in line with the equipment of his generation than with ours, until one day he commented that we had the only lawnmower he ever saw that ran on beer.

"It certainly is," I say to him.

He turns to go inside his house and says over his shoulder, "You'd probably be farther along if you weren't startin' and stoppin' all the time."

Making connections and covering the issues

Teens gather to create newsletter highlighting disability issues

By ARIANA COHN
Spotlight Newspapers
cohn@spotlightnews.com

Twice a year, they come from different locations throughout the state. They are different ages and from different groups of friends, but they all leave as friends.

The teens from across the state come together for a two-day workshop at New York State United Teachers (NYSUT) Headquarters, in Latham, in which they walk in, sometimes, knowing little about writing — and each other — and walking out as great friends and with a full-color newsletter they produced.

The newsletter is circulated to every high school throughout the state. Topics inside cover the issues that affect most high school students, primarily students with disabilities. Students write about all sorts of disabilities, and not necessarily ones they are familiar with.

The group, called "Connect-ability" has been sponsored NYSUT since 2006 when NYSUT Vice President Maria Niera saw a need for the program to continue operating after its previous sponsors ended their participation.

"It was my staff who brought the issue to my attention immediately and we, right away, made a decision that we would pick up the publication of this newsletter," Niera said.

The newsletter, which was originally called "Disability Awareness Newsletter" became "Connect-ability," by recommendation of the students.

The students, in fact, call most of the shots when it comes to the newsletter because it is written, and edited, by them.

According to Niera, the entire two-day event is sponsored by NYSUT, which covers the costs of the hotel accommodations, food, transportation and workshops. The teachers who help the students develop the newsletter volunteer their time.

"Our staff donates their time working with the students," said Niera. "They take time off from their jobs to come here to work with the students."

And it's the special attention the students receive that makes the newsletter a quality publication, according to Niera.

The group is unique in another way: It blends together students with disabilities and those without, making it an educational experience for teens of different backgrounds.

Together, the kids toward a common goal: the newsletter.

At this month's workshop, Tom Corrado led the group through a creative writing exercise.

He posed a question on a PowerPoint screen: "What is a disability anyway?"

Corrado, the teens' writing coach for the day, went around the room asking the students what their answer was, and coaching them to "get down to the ground" of the meaning of the word disability.

One student, Alexis Kim, said, "I feel like it has a negative connotation just because it has the word 'dis' in front of it."

Another student, Fabio Botarelli, said, "It's a mental or physical component of a person."

While some of the students do not have a disability, many of them have seen disability in their lives.

Bridget Ford, 20, of Delmar, said her sister, Cassie, who is also involved in Connect-ability, is autistic.

She knew a lot about disabilities and wanted to express her knowledge through writing.

"It's interesting to offer a completely different perspective," she said.

Ford said she would encourage younger people to get involved, if not with Connect-ability, then with something like it.

"I really think it broadens your horizon," she said.

According to Niera, NYSUT plans to broaden the program to include issues of race and diversity in the newsletter and have students discuss such topics at future meetings.

Matters of Opinion in the Spotlight

Colonie LifeGuard has outlived its use

It's hard to put a price on human life, more so in the town of Colonie than anywhere else, it seems.

In the town, where Supervisor Paula Mahan and others are proposing to do away with the Colonie EMS LifeGuard Air Rescue program, putting that price on life is proving to be not only morally, but logistically, challenging. That's because, in the months of debate about pulling the plug on the rescue service that has culminated in an extension of the air rescue until the end of the year, no one can pinpoint how much LifeGuard is costing or earning for the taxpayers.

Mahan reversed on Thursday, Aug. 14, her monthslong stance to not enter into a new contract with State Police in which 12 Colonie EMS flight medics assist in rescue missions. The 15-year-old program was scheduled to expire Sept. 1. A couple of months ago, the supervisor gave several reasons for not wanting to renew the contract, including liability, fiscal impact and in-air respondents not being able to care for residents of the town.

Supporters of the service, many of them members of United Public Service Employees Union, the organization that represents the members of Colonie EMS, are saying that the flight rescue costs the town only $17,000 a year and is moving toward a break-even point or may be profitable.

Mahan, in turn says the net loss to the town because of the program is around $400,000.

Neither have provided concrete numbers, although the union does state that the service's low cost is due to some $3.3 million in insurance billing. Remember that the next time you pay $80 for a pair of crutches.

Now, let's just say that the program is losing $400,000 a year — that's a pittance for human life, right? It may be, but that's easier said while reading an editorial than it is while paying your tax bill.

The program was not originally designed to generate massive amounts of revenue for the town. It was to fill a void for the surrounding community. That void has now been filled with the addition of two commercial operations that serve the Capital District.

Give the Colonie taxpayer a break. Pull the plug on the Colonie EMS LifeGuard Air Rescue program. Let someone else — maybe one of the many professional ambulance companies that have offered their services — ride in the choppers for a while. It will not result in wholesale loss of life, but will result in a little less financial hardship in a town, and a state, where there is plenty.

Editorial

The summer's sweet ending

By JULIE URBANSKI
news@spotlightnews.com

The writer is a Stillwater resident.

As a family of four — dad, Joe; mom, Julie; Jenna, 5; and Mei Lei, 3 — we decided to do a summer survey of ice cream. Our goal was to visit as many ice cream establishments as we could and survey their treats. We wanted to find the best taste, value and size of soft-serve, vanilla, kiddie cone. (We even visited the North Pole!)

Here are the places we visited; you may know of some around the area, and a few are out of the Capital District: Bon's Ice Cream, Martha's, Just Meat (formerly Memory Lane), Giffy's Snack Shack at Clifton Park Golf, Lefty's, Bubbles, The Ice Cream Man, Guptiles, Peanut Principial, Lakeside Farms, Friendly's, Corner Ice Cream Shop, Jumpin' Jacks, Country Drive-In, Kurver Crème, On the Farm, Farmers Daughter's Drive In, Mr. Ed's Ice Cream Station & Pizza, Dairy Frost, Bill's Dug Out, Control Tower, Marcella's Pizza & Deli, Slice's Golf, and Whitebrook Dairy Bar.

At least a couple of times a week, our family would gather up in the car and seek out our next ice cream stop. The girls can eat as much ice cream as Joe and I so the kiddie cones were no feat for them. Jenna and Mei Lei seemed to enjoy every cone no matter the size or taste. Why shouldn't they; they are kids.

They did tell us their all-time favorite flavors after a few stops. Jenna picked Hunka Chunka PB Fudge from Friendly's, and Mei Lei picked the one she was eating at the time — Mint Cookie Crumble from Stewarts. Of course they weren't included in what we were surveying, but that is their opinion, for the record.

Our soft-serve findings are below.

After visiting different areas, this was our outcome: Best Taste, Lakeside Farms, Ballston Lake; Best Value, Just Meat, Malta; Best size, Martha's, Queensbury.

The Urbanski family — dad, Joe; mom, Julie; Jenna, 5; and Mei Lei, 3.

Lakeside is an excellent value and was the creamiest. The serving size was a bit smaller than Just Meat and varied from server to server, but where can you still get an ice cream cone for under $1 that actually tastes great? Now if you want to compare all three together for taste/value/size, we would choose Just Meat. Its portion size is very large, and the taste is excellent. For the price, it can't be beat.

Martha's serves an extremely large cone, but the price is large also, although the taste is good. Once, when the girls and I stopped at Martha's to share a kiddie cone, they were very accommodating with our request for different flavors on one cone. Upon leaving, I noticed a man eating a very tall ice cream cone and asked if it was a large. I was shocked when he said it was only a medium. The ice cream had to measure 7 inches!

Mr. Ed's Ice Cream Station served a great-tasting cone for $1. The portion was small, but where else can you get free homegrown zucchini and the owner to wait on you?

A place that claims they have "the best" was rated by us one of the least desirable, but the advertisement did get us to visit them. We also noticed that the further south we went, the smaller the portion size, and as we headed north, the servings got bigger.

We even sampled a strawberry soft serve at Marcella's — now that was good.

We found in some establishments a kiddie cone was not offered on the menu board, but when asked they would gladly make one.

One establishment only served custard, so it was not a good comparison. Some places had nicer atmospheres, and the neatness of the cone varied by the experience of the servers and how busy they were. At some places, cone size was inconsistent.

Friendly's offers soft serve, which was news to us, and we were very disappointed with their offering, which we rated the worst. A popular comedian's quote about "eating a bowl of cold" went through my head when I was eating their soft serve. The serving was very small, and our girls wouldn't even eat it. The ice cream didn't even look real — a big disappointment.

Overall, most of the ice cream we sampled was good in unique ways. There were a lot of establishments that were in very close running for the best taste, if only we could have sampled them all at once. Our family had fun visiting and sampling the many treats of summertime, and we are sad to see the summer coming to an end. Next year we'll make it a goal to visit every ice cream establishment in the surrounding areas.

Tourist-rail option deserves second look

Editor, The Spotlight:

I am writing in response to the demands from our local bicyclists to "get on" with acquiring the old D&H tracks that run through Delmar into Voorheesville. I probably know more about the deal than most, as I was the only private citizen to attend all of the planning meetings starting in 1996, including riding the last passenger train to Delanson.

As the track was being put up for abandonment by the D&H, meetings held by the Capital District Transportation Committee opened the track to options such as another railroad operating it, a tourist line from Albany to the Altamont Fairgrounds and a bike trail — the bike trail being the default mechanism to preserve the right of way.

As meetings progressed up to 1999, the committee made it evident the right of way was going to become a bike trail, not by default, but by political influence and popularity.

In one meeting, everyone was shocked to hear that this trail was a $25 million project. As I recall, it included 186,000 feet of guardrail at $10 million, 10 bridges with lead paint from the 1800s at $2 million apiece to strip:

The study was commissioned by the Albany County Highway Commissioner and executed by the county engineer. Safety concerns would cost millions to make it safe for bicyclists. Drop-offs of 100 feet or more concerned the engineer to the point of saying it is impractical.

At this point, the state Department of Transportation jumped out of the plan and left the CDTC to make the decision. As the rails were still in place at the time, I decided to apply to operate a tourist train on these tracks. A state Department of Transportation judge refused to hear the case and informed me that they had more political influence leaning toward using this corridor as a bike trail.

A study completed in 1999 stated a tourist railroad would bring 83,000 people into Altamont fairgrounds yearly, spending an average of $39 per person per day for a total of $323,700. Additionally, the tracks could be used for a form of very light rail using buses instead of trains for commuter service in the mornings and evenings. The profits made by the tourist rail would offset the commuters' cost.

Unfortunately, now that the tracks have been removed and the property awaits some sort of disposition from the railroad, I would suggest that the tourist rail be given a good second look. Lightweight vehicles and composite plastic track are more in order than the railroad of old.

Student tours of the area by train and bike can show our youth the history of the area and how the railroad made our town, yet show the latest and greatest in transportation.

I would hope that both tourist rail and bikes could use the right of way in certain sections, without affecting the safety of the bikers.

Perhaps our town could be the test bed for a new type of mass transit with lightweight individual cars that bring you from home to work, using the rail as a controlled corridor.

The Bethlehem Town Board has been very hesitant in side stepping the issue of the rail, and rightfully so.

Where are they going to get the funding for the trail? From us taxpayers? So the board has reverted the right of way's usage back to Albany County and the "Rails to Trails" idea only.

The counties wanting to buy the right of way now, could only come with indemnifying the railroad from all the risks of past pollution from the 1800s on. Potentially leaving the taxpayer at risk.

I suggest that venture capital can be found to start the new project without the help of the taxpayer, clearing us from any burdens.

I challenge readers to call Albany County Executive Michael G. Breslin's office and make their suggestions. Help keep this the neatest place to visit and the nicest place to live.

Join Bethlehem Cares in walking to cure diabetes

Editor, The Spotlight:

For the 10th consecutive year, our community will be coming together to participate in the Walk to Cure Diabetes, sponsored by the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation.

Over the past nine years, the community has rallied around this important cause - finding a cure for diabetes by participating in the event as a team called Bethlehem Cares.

Thus far, our team has raised approximately $190,000; all of which has gone directly to research to find a cure for diabetes and its complications. On Sunday, Sept. 21, Bethlehem Cares will participate in this year's Walk to Cure Diabetes at Corporate Woods in Albany. You can join us as a walker by calling 439-6894, by pre-registering at www.jdrf.org, or by using one of the walk brochures found in many area businesses.

Remember to sign up as a member of the Bethlehem Cares community/family team.

If you are one of the first 150 people to turn in at least $25 for diabetes research, you will receive a free team T-shirt.

We would like to thank our business friends for sponsoring our T-shirt this year, especially our Gold Sponsors: the Kiwanis Club of Delmar and Meadowbrook Farms.

We would also like to thank all of our Silver Sponsors: Allen and Taub Plumbing and Heating, Bethlehem Family Practice, Callanan Industries, Capital Cities Imported Cars, Capital District Oral & Maxillofacial Surgeons, Choices Hair Studio and Day Spa, Crossroads Ford Mercury and Robert M. Deitz, DDS.

Also, Delmar Pediatrics, Farm Family Insurance Companies, Klersy Building Corporation, Michael F. Lyons, DMD, Nigro Companies, Northeastern Dental Lab and Re/Max Premier.

The next time that you visit one of these businesses, please thank them for supporting their community and for supporting diabetes research.

If you can't join us for the walk but would like to make a donation, you can mail your check (made payable to the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation) to Bethlehem Cares at 65 Boylston Drive, Delmar 12054.

Thank you for helping us show that Bethlehem really is a caring community!

RCS capital project to be revised

A project manager will oversee revisions to the RCS School District's EXCEL capital project and help the Board of Education and Interim Superintendent Michael Johnson determine how to conduct necessary health, safety and energy efficiency work within the funding allotted by voters last year.

The Board of Education on Monday, Aug. 18, approved the hiring of Armlin Damon McDormdie and Associates to serve as owners representative/project manager for the $2.35 million capital project that was approved by voters last October.

Base bids for the work – submitted earlier this year after a longer-than-expected state delay in approving the work – totaled $3.2 million, substantially more than was authorized by voters, said Johnson.

“Mr. (Tony) Armlin will look at the project, our five-year plan and the health, safety and energy efficiencies we need to address and work with our Buildings and Grounds Committee to develop our best course of action,” the interim superintendent said.

The Buildings and Grounds Committee consists of board Vice President Cindi Elliott and members John Vadney, Tracy Travers and Mike Robbins.

Armlin will examine areas of concern with district facilities that have arisen since the project was put before voters, which include façade issues with the two elementary schools.

Johnson assured residents that no new taxpayer costs will be incurred as a result of the review and revisions to the project.

The project manager will explore grant funding through the state, as well as investigate potential cost savings from using energy efficiency contractors for aspects of the project.

One area of savings being explored is the use of smaller hot water tanks in the elementary schools because the current tanks are not utilized to their capacity and – as a result – use more electricity than necessary. A significant cost savings could result from the purchase of smaller tanks instead of the originally planned purchase of the same size tanks.

The bids for the project were opened earlier this summer and Architect Mike Fanning of Dodge Chamberlin Luzine Weber Associates told the Board of Education this month that several factors combined to significantly drive the cost of the project up.

Specifically, he cited:

- A six-and-a-half-month state

Education Department review of the project, which delayed bidding until June and limited interest and competition among contractors, who had already filled their calendars with work.

- A longer and more difficult construction schedule than expected as a result of the delay.

- Escalating construction costs resulting from the economy. Specifically, Facilities Director Eugene Doane said, the costs of everything from fuel to copper, steel and other essential materials have skyrocketed.

Johnson said certain aspects of the project may be outright removed while others will be bid as alternates – meaning contractors can submit bids for the work, and the district may choose to accept the bids if it falls within the budget.

The interim superintendent said the review of the work is expected to take approximately six weeks with a course of action expected to be presented to the Board of Education by early October.

Explore '60s legacies in Woodstock

The decade of the 1960s was one of optimism, idealism, cultural change, turmoil and the coming of age of the Baby Boomers. In August 1969, young people came from near and far, by Volkswagen Beetle, helicopter, bus and thumb to take part in the largest music festival of all time. We invite you to explore the legacies of the 1960s and Woodstock as you recreate the journey at the newly opened Bethel Arts Center on a Library Friends bus trip on Sunday, Sept. 28.

The center has been receiving rave reviews in the news and also from visitors who have already been there. You can experience the "Three Days of Peace and Music" in a nine-minute immersive multimedia presentation, explore the festival site through a touch screen interactive activity, and examine festival artifacts and memorabilia at the Woodstock Museum.

It should be a beautiful day to ride through the Catskills and, as a bonus, the center is also having a Harvest Festival Weekend with vendors on site. You can bring your own picnic or lunch at one of several restaurants. The cost of the trip is $41, less for FOL members, and includes the admission price.

The tour bus leaves from the Voorheesville Elementary School at 8:30 a.m. and returns at 5 p.m. Paid reservations are being taken at the library circulation desk.

Ballroom crash course
Ron Tritto of Learntadance is offering another free crash course in basic ballroom dance here on Saturday, Sept. 6, at 11 a.m. You can try out steps like swing, foxtrot, rumba or waltz. Ballroom and Latin dancing is hot, hot, hot. Sign up to ensure a spot as space is limited and the fun will be boundless. Men and women from teens to grandparents, singles and doubles, are invited.

Seminar, workshop sign-ups

Signups are being taken for the Family Place seminars for parents and Healthy Choices workshops for seniors and caregivers, both starting in September. Don't miss out on these valuable programs.

Labor Day closings

VPL will be closed Saturday through Monday, Aug. 30 to Sept. 1, for Labor Day weekend.

Additional activities

- Lapsits for Babies will be on Thursdays, Aug. 28 and Sept. 4, at 10:15 a.m.

- The Every Other Thursday Night Poets meet on Aug. 28 at 6:30 p.m.

- Philosophers 101 meet on Thursday, Sept. 4 at 6:30 p.m. in the director's office.

IN BRIEF

Delmar Florist hopes to spread goodwill with free flowers

The Delmar Florist will be handing out dozens of flowers for free Wednesday, Sept. 3, as part of its annual FTD Good Neighbor Day.

Beginning at 8 a.m., Delmar Florist owner Barbara Ostroff says she will hand out flowers in bunches of a dozen to anyone who visits the 257 Delaware Ave. shop and signs a promise note to keep one of the flowers for themselves and give the others away to 11 different people — spreading goodwill and friendship throughout the community.

Ostroff is also asking that anyone who picks up a dozen free flowers donate one or more nonperishable food items to the Bethlehem Food Pantry.

Joining the effort at Delmar Florist are local sponsors, The Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce, Jerry Pittz of Edward Jones Investments, TD Banknorth and Spotlight Newspapers.

FTD Good Neighbor Day is being celebrated for the 13th year throughout the United States and Canada at participating FTD floral shops.

The free-flower giveaways will continue until supplies last.

Quilters to meet in September

QUILT Inc. will meet on Friday, Sept. 12, at Delmar Reformed Church, 386 Delaware Ave., Delmar. The meeting starts at 9:45 a.m.; doors open at 9:15 a.m. A $5 visitor donation is appreciated. There will be a giant show and share and service projects in the afternoon. For information, call 439-1194 or visit www.quiltinc.org.

*For those who qualify, monthly payments will begin in February 2009. Interest will accrue from the date of the initial loan advance. Effective January 1, 2009, we will add the accrued interest to the outstanding principal balance and use a payoff period of the time remaining to the maturity date to calculate your payment. Because you are not paying the accrued finance charges during this initial period, negative amortization will occur. Negative amortization will increase the amount that you owe us and reduce the equity in your home.
Annual Percentage Rate. Rates for a Home Equity Line of Credit begin at 4% APR for the first year and Prime minus 1% thereafter. This rate applies to loans up to an 80% Loan to Value (LTV) ratio with a 25-year term. APR is variable based on the Prime Rate published in the Wall Street Journal. Prime Rate as of June 1, 2008 is 5%. Interest and payments adjust annually with a 2% annual cap and a 14.9% lifetime cap. Annual rate floor is 5.0%. Other rates available are dependent upon LTV percentage. All loans are subject to creditworthiness. If the home equity line is discharged within 3 years of application, the closing costs paid on behalf of the borrower will be charged back and added to the pay off amount of the loan. Closing costs are estimated at $50-500. Rates are as of August 21, 2008 and are subject to change at any time.

Thacher plans for outdoor programs

The Thacher Nature Center is planning the following outdoor summer programs:

• Wednesday, Aug. 27, at 10 a.m.: Fossils Rock

Thacher Park is known around the world for its fossils. Find out how fossils are formed, take a walk to look for fossils and make a fossil replica of your own to take home. Space is limited. Call 872-0800 to register.

• Friday, Aug. 29, at 6:30 p.m.: Evening Walk

Beat the heat of late summer with an easy walk on the Nature Center's trails. Listen and look for signs of nature's nocturnal creatures. Program is appropriate for ages 10 and up. This walk will last approximately 1.5 hours.

Call 872-0800 to register and for meeting place.

• Saturday, Aug. 30, at 10 a.m.: Indian Ladder Trail Walk

Descend the cliff on the Indian Ladder Trail and learn about the geologic and cultural history of the Helderberg Escarpment. Walk will last approximately 1.5 hours. There is a $6 parking fee.

Call 872-0800 to register.

• Saturday, Aug. 30, at 2 p.m.: Wildlife Program
Wildlife live all around us and sometimes these animals get injured or abandoned. Wildlife rehabilitators take these animals into their care to help them survive. Meet Kelly Martin and some of the wildlife she cares for up close and personal. Find out what to do if you find an animal that needs help.

Call 872-0800 for information.

• Saturday, Aug. 30, at 9 p.m.: Stargazing
View the stars and planets through a powerful telescope and learn about what is visible in the night sky with amateur astronomer Ken Dubois. Meet in the field near the Nature Center parking area. Cloudy skies will cancel program.

Call 872-0800 for information.

School Board to meet

The next meeting of the Voorheesville Board of Education will be held on Monday, Sept. 8, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school cafeteria.

Library plans parent-child workshop

The Voorheesville Public Library will be hosting "The Family Place Parent-Child Workshop" on Wednesdays from Sept. 10 to Oct. 8, from 10:15 to 11:45 a.m. Each workshop will consist of playtime, art projects, rhyme and song segment. This is an opportunity to meet other parents with young children, to meet representatives of community agencies that can help with parenting questions and to have fun at the library.

The five-week workshop is for parents, caregivers and children through age 3. Participants must commit to attend at least three sessions. Older children are also welcome, but the program is geared for toddlers. Registration is necessary.

For information or to register, call 765-2791.

The Voorheesville Public Library will also be holding a "Healthy Choices Workshop" which begins on Wednesday, Sept. 3, from 1 to 4 p.m. This is a six-week workshop for seniors and/or caregivers on healthy living.

Call the library at 765-2791 for information.

Helderview Garden Club to meet

The next meeting of the Helderview Garden Club will be at the Albany Cornell Cooperative Extension on Martin Road in Voorheesville on Thursday, Sept. 4, at 7 p.m. Speaker Anita Sanchez from Five Rivers Environmental Education Center in Delmar will speak on "Wildflowers of New York."

For information, call 765-4544

IN BRIEF

Shopping event to benefit Community Caregivers

Area shoppers will have the opportunity to participate in a unique one-day shopping experience Saturday, Sept. 20, at Macy's that allows nonprofits, such as Community Caregivers, to raise funds by selling tickets that entitle customers to a 20 percent discount on regular, sale, and clearance items.

The event will also feature in-store entertainment, special events, and the opportunity to win thousands of dollars worth of prizes.

Each ticket costs $5 and all proceeds will directly benefit Community Caregivers.

For information or to purchase tickets call, 456-2898 or e-mail diane@communitycaregivers.org.

RCS Board of Ed OK's district tax warrant

The RCS Board of Education approved the final tax levy and tax warrants for the 2008-09 school year.

The $21,581,996 tax levy was approved with the May 20 district voter approval of the $41.8 million budget. Tax rates are as follows:

• Bethlehem - $18.59 per $1,000 assessed property value.

• Coeymans - $17.19

• New Scotland - $18.28

• New Baltimore - $26.86

Tax bills will be mailed by Sept. 2.

Out-of-town events spice up autumn calendars

Why not put some "zing" in your fall social schedule and sign up for some or all of the exciting out-of-town Senior Services programs for September and October?

How about a delicious Down East Lobster Bake Dinner at the East Greenbush Masonic Temple on Saturday, Sept. 6, which includes a lobster or steak dinner with baked potato, corn, slaw, dessert and beverage, and all for only $25?

Bethlehem Senior transportation will leave Town Hall at 3:30 p.m. with home pick-up available on a pre-arranged basis. This promises to be a popular event, so be sure to call 439-4955, ext. 1176 now because reservations end on Wednesday, Sept. 3.

Other September and October program highlights include: Cohoes Music Hall matinee performances of "Noises Off" on Saturday, Sept. 20, and "Dames at Sea" on Saturday, Oct. 25; the Berkshire Theater Festival production of "Eleanor: Her Secret Journey," about Eleanor Roosevelt on Sunday, Oct. 5; and the always popular and delicious Berne Volunteer Fire Co. and Fire Auxiliary roast beef dinner on Sunday, Oct. 19. All you have to do is call 439-4955, ext. 1176 beginning Tuesday, Sept. 2, for a reservation.

Another way to add to your weekly social pleasure is to join the Bethlehem Senior

Senior Action

Aug. 30 to Sept. 5

Citizens Inc., a community social organization that meets in the Town Hall auditorium every Thursday at 11:30 a.m. for several hours of fun.

Men and women 55 years of age and over are welcome to participate in the fun and games that include pinochle, bridge, Mahjong and bingo. If you just prefer conversation, good company or listening to a guest speaker at times, this is also the place to be. Light refreshments are served, and there is a minimal social and membership fee for members. You will be happy you added this activity to your calendar for Thursdays each week.

Also, be sure to look for the Fall "Bethlehem Report" in residents' mailboxes this week which contains the Parks and Recreation Fall 2008 programs. Several classes for seniors are once again being offered: Seniors in Motion; Yoga-50+; Stretch, Kick and Tone; and Water Works, with a registration deadline on Wednesday, Sept. 3.

For information or registration, call 439-4955, option 3.

Bethlehem Senior Services volunteer drivers Len Muhlich and Frank Hogan prepare to drive two new replacement vans that were purchased with community donations as a result of a two-year fundraising effort by the Bethlehem Senior Projects Inc. Board of Directors. Senior Projects pays for and owns one-half of the vehicles in the fleet that provides transportation to the town's seniors for medical and other important purposes on a daily basis.

Summer reading alive and very well in Bethlehem

Our youth services area was a beehive of activity this summer as kids from preschool to high school took part in our "Catch the Reading Bug" and "Metamorphosis" summer reading programs.

This summer saw record participation numbers. More than 800 children in grades K and up signed up online; another 200 preschoolers took part in various pre-reading activities, including a five-week, twice-a-week storytime series featuring teen story-readers.

Slingerlands Elementary had the largest number of participants with 163 registered summer readers; Hamagrael followed with 128. Bethlehem Central Middle School came in third with 85 participants. All in all, our young people read about 8,000 books this summer.

About 90 teens served as summer reading volunteers this summer, helping kids sign up, listening to weekly book reports, and assisting with program activities. In addition to our teen storyreaders, a troupe of teens rehearsed through the summer for their Drama-Rama Reader's Theater production, which entertained capacity crowds in two performances last week.

This year also saw an enormous increase in off-site participation.

Because of our online presence, kids could sign up and log their books and comments from home or from a vacation location. Our logs show over 4,000 online visits to the summer reading site by kids and teens in July and August.

In Bethlehem, kids are enthusiastic and engaged when it comes to reading. We thank them for taking part in our summer activities, and we thank their parents and caregivers for their encouragement and support.

Summer reading for grownups

Basking in Books, our summer reading program for adults, counted about 100 participants. Most wrote their reviews in longhand for posting at the information desk, and 20 intrepid adult readers submitted their reviews online.

Here's a small sampling:

- "Slaughterhouse Five" by Kurt Vonnegut — "If you've never read Vonnegut before, this is the one to start with."
- "The Echo Maker" by Richard Powers — "Great story, a little bit of mystery, humor, relationships."
- "Fearless Fourteen" by Janet Evanovich — "Fabulous as always!"
- "Peony in Love" by Lisa See — "Well-written and researched historical novel of aristocratic life in 12th-century China."
- "The Story of a Marriage" by Andrew Sean Greer — "A beautiful book ... of how a marriage can weather changes."
- "Three Junes" by Julia Glass — "In-depth character portrayal, thought-provoking and emotional."

• "The Woods" by Harlan Coben — "Good book, kept you on the edge of your seat."

Reviews are still available for perusal at the information desk and online at www.bethlehempubliclibrary.org; take a moment to check them out. You may come away with some ideas for fireside reading this winter.

Firing

Fish said more mercury was released inside of the water plant than what was reported and that workers were constantly put at risk by "having to track through mercury for two years."

Fish also said that mercury-tainted sludge was routinely "hosed down" past the plant's clear well and into a "sludge pit." The clear well contains treated water that is pumped directly into the town's water system.

Only a metal collar and a piece of plywood separated the mercury sludge being hosed away and the town's water supply, according to Fish.

There were two reported mercury spills at the town's water plant over the past two years, resulting from mercury that had escaped from outdated mercury flow meters still used at the plant, which each contain up to 5 pounds of mercury. The town said the spills were small and that mercury did not reach the drinking water. The state Department of Environmental Conservation's investigation into the incident confirmed that mercury was not in the town's drinking water.

Bethlehem is slated to replace all flow meters as result of the spills.

"I had come forward to someone in town government after a Town Board meeting because the story that was being reported wasn't true," Fish told Spotlight Newspapers in an exclusive interview. "It's kind of odd when someone has worked for 12 years and comes forward with information ... and lo and behold, they are fired."

Fish, who said he has contacted an attorney regarding his termination, said, "The whole thing is very suspicious."

Potter confirmed that Fish had spoken with him, but said he could say little else because of the legal ramifications involved. He said the town has not been approached by any lawyer citing a wrongful termination lawsuit or any other legal matter involving Fish's termination.

"He did mention that there were some issues at the water treatment plant," Potter said. "The DEC had an ongoing investigation at the time, and it appeared to be very comprehensive. ... The town was fully cooperating with the DEC's investigation."

Fish said there "were other things, too," but couldn't publicly comment because of possible pending litigation with the town.

"The people accused of mishandling the mercury spill are still employed, and the person who came forward with information was fired," Fish said. "I advised the town attorney afterwards, and basically the town didn't want to hear it. ... I was told by Town Hall that I'm merely a number on a piece of paper."

Bethlehem Supervisor Jack Cunningham said he couldn't comment about personnel matters but scoffed at the idea that someone would be fired for airing concerns to a town official.

Cunningham did say that the town is in full compliance with all of the state DEC regulations in regard to the water plant and pointed to state and local testing that revealed no mercury made it to the water supply.

"We're in full compliance with the DEC," Cunningham said. "DEC has been out there, and they looked at the entire situation and they issued a report and they have given us a letter of requirements ... and we're working very closely with them."

Cunningham said there was no wrongdoing on the town's part in Fish's termination, but said he is legally unable to respond to the accusations.

"The specifics on why he was let go - this is always a frustration because when someone gets let go, they can say anything they want, but we can't talk about it because it's a personnel matter," Cunningham said. "So that's all I can tell you."

Fish said the way he was fired was also unusual.

"I reported to work and got a note to call the [water plant] supervisor and was told to go to his house near the reservoir, which is taxpayer provided, and he told me that I was done," Fish said. "Usually when you fire someone you don't invite them to your house."

Cunningham confirmed that Bethlehem's chief water treatment plant operator Rich Sayward lives on town-owned property but said he couldn't comment on the specifics of the termination.

The DEC fined the town $15,000 in June for mercury and petroleum reporting and handling violations that occurred over the past two years.

By signing a consent form, paying the $15,000 and remaining compliant, the town does not have to pay an additional $60,000 civil penalty to the DEC, according to the state's signed consent order, which stated the fine could have totaled $75,000.

Fish said he was fired shortly after an article in Spotlight Newspapers reported that the town had signed a consent order and was fined by the DEC.

Currently, the town is in full compliance with all of the stipulations of the consent order signed by Cunningham on June 6, according to DEC Region 4 spokesman Rick Georgeson.

"Bethlehem is in full compliance with the consent order and has given us everything we asked for," Georgeson said.

Fish stated that problems at the town water plant were ignored until the DEC got involved and that he spoke out about the mercury spills partly because he felt he and other workers were being put at risk.

"The town's solution to that problem was to buy everyone new shoes to replace the ones they've been wearing for two years," said Fish. "Every employee at the plant was exposed to mercury and every inch of that plant was contaminated."

Cunningham spoke out against these allegations, stating the plant is routinely tested and local and state health officials have cleared the water treatment plant.

"They have not issued any report or anything that would indicate that any of the employees' health was at risk," Cunningham said. "We replaced all of their shoes, at a cost to the taxpayer, and the old shoes - from what I understand - were disposed of along with the other material that was removed by the hazardous waste company."

Cunningham said the town has created a new protocol requiring employees to immediately notify the DEC about "any" chemical spills in town. Currently the DEC requires any release of mercury one pound or greater to be reported.

Fish said he was never given anything in writing besides his termination letter about why he was fired and that he has no record of disciplinary measures taken against him or his work performance. Fish said he asked to be reinstated, but was denied.

Spotlight Newspapers has obtained copies of Fish's termination letter, his hiring letter, and a note from Sayward stating, "I have something that I need to discuss with you," which was ultimately his termination.

"It was a good job, I enjoyed it up until recently. I didn't enjoy them letting us walk around in mercury for two years," Fish said. "They informed the public there was no health risk to them in the water, but they didn't really seem to care about us employees."

Clerk

only votes to approve the judge's selection, Cunningham said.

An inquiry for comment from Donovan and Dwyer was not responded to.

Speaking in his office at Town Hall on Friday, Aug. 22, Cunningham said, "I met with them [judges] this morning and they have some candidates." The judges are looking at both internal and external candidates, according to Cunningham, but a time table for how long before a new court clerk will be appointed is unknown at this time.

"As soon as we can do it," Cunningham said.

The town board unanimously appointed Parsons its new court clerk during a Wednesday, June 25, meeting and she started five days later on June 30.

Parsons lives in Delmar and has worked for the county for 35 years. When she was first appointed, Parsons told Spotlight Newspapers she approached the town justices about the position, after learning Hodom was retiring.

She ran unsuccessfully for receiver of taxes on the Democratic line in 2007 against current receiver of taxes Nancy Mendick, the same year Justice Dwyer won his seat against former Justice Daniel J. Persing.

Although the board voted 'yes' down the line at Parsons' appointment, Councilman Sam Messina, an Independence Party member who has been openly critical of the town appointment process, said he wanted to make appointments "more competitive."

He did, however, support Parsons' appointment. He also pointed out at that meeting that neither judge, nor Parsons, was there to answer questions about the appointment.

With news that Parsons left the post, Messina is once again calling for a more open appointment process at Town Hall.

"When we appointed Patricia Parsons, I told the Town Board that the judges should open up the process, provide notice about jobs and interview several candidates," Messina said when asked about Parsons' leaving. "They did not. However, they have another chance to make things right and I hope they take the professional route in this decision."

Messina said he was unsure of the conditions surrounding Parsons' departure as court clerk, but had heard, simply, that "it wasn't a good fit."

The councilman put forth a defeated proposal in early March to create guidelines for the way the town advertises and appoints people who are non-civil service to various boards and committees not deemed competitive by the state.

The proposal was voted down 4-to-1 at a March 26 board meeting, with Messina casting the only vote in favor. Other members of the board, including Cunningham, said they felt the proposal was unnecessary.

State Town Law, section 20, provides that local justices appoint their own clerk, not the Town Board. So in essence, a town board "acknowledges" an appointment of a court clerk by the justices, according to Bethlehem's town attorney James Potter.

The court clerk is responsible for over $1 million in receipts annually.

Transit

And that is exactly what White did - from Ellis Hospital, in Schenectady, to St. Peter's Hospital, in Albany.

The 17-mile walk, White said, began at 11 p.m. when she had just finished her shift at Ellis and went outside, hoping to catch a bus from State Street to her home on North Allen Street, in Albany. What she hadn't realized was that the buses stop running at 11 p.m.

"I walked from Schenectady to Albany," she said. "My family was not happy about it!"

White said she arrived home around 3 a.m.

Moving to Albany from Manhattan in 1999, White said she was accustomed to walking, though not typically a walk as long as the one she made that night, but, for White, there were no other options.

White's concerns about transportation to and from work are mirrored by many people in her position - people who cannot afford gas, or the maintenance of a car, and do not have the time due to their family lives to "just take an earlier bus," as many advise. For others, buses are not even available.

As a result, many turn to taxi services, in which costs consume much of their salaries, according to Beth Slezak, account representative for the Nurse Connection Staffing Inc.

Slezak said it costs $26.50 to take a taxicab from Albany to a health-care facility in Clifton Park one way. To get from Albany to Scotia costs $37.50. While salaries range depending on the positions the Nursing Connection staffs - mostly Certified Nursing Assistants (CNA's), Licensed Practical Nurses (LPN's) or registered nurses -

Acosta, who said he came to CDTA as a social worker, told health-care facility managers who attended a meeting on the topic that his job is to pass along the suggestions from those who ride the bus on how the system can cater to them in a more efficient way. Also, Acosta said, he is in charge of fielding requests for routes that currently do not exist.

"When you put a route in place, there has to be a place to pull the bus over. Up there (in Clifton Park), there are no sidewalks."

Luis Acosta

White, said she gets paid about $13 and change per hour.

After a few failed attempts at public transportation, White now takes her car to work, which is not easy on her pocketbook.

"I put $10 in my tank, and that gets me there and back," she said. "By the next day, I need to fill up again."

According to Slezak, many employees are still choosing to drive their own cars, despite gas prices hovering around $4 per gallon.

Luis Acosta, manager of sales and customer service for the Capital District Transportation Authority, said that CDTA wants to hear the concerns of people for whom the transportation system is not working. He said the feedback will help CDTA become more responsive to riders' needs.

"I need to hear from you what it is you're looking to do," he said.

Getting to their work shifts on time is not the only complaint of those who depend on the bus to get them to the hospital. Some say the bus schedule can be extremely confusing and stressful to decipher.

In response, Acosta said that CDTA offers a hotline - the number is listed on the maps - where a bus rider can talk to someone who will help them through the planning of their route. Acosta said CDTA also has people who will go out and walk a person through the process of riding the bus.

Of particular interest at the meeting was the topic of bringing routes to Clifton Park. Acosta said that CDTA currently does not have service in Clifton Park, though they are working on it. According to Acosta, the transportation authority has already received funding to do a pilot program of bus service in Clifton Park to evaluate whether it would be beneficial. Other factors, aside from the costs, are taken into account.

"When you put a route in place, there has to be a place to pull the bus over," he said. "Up there, there are no sidewalks."

More plans in the works, according to Acosta, include re-vamping the service in Rensselaer County, and, specifically, Troy. He said that as the capacity of need grows, CDTA will be looking toward more solutions to the problems raised by the health-care facility employees.

In the meantime, Acosta recommended some smaller actions that employers can take to assist health-care workers, including offering discounted swiper passes for the buses. Another suggestion he brought up was having employers sponsor shuttle vans, which can take employees to and from the nearest bus stops.

Acosta emphasized that a team effort is needed to achieve optimal success.

Luis Acosta can be reached at luisa@cdta.org.

To Ellis and back

A reporter tests a typical bus route for a health-care worker

By ARIANA COHN
Spotlight Newspapers
cohn@spotlightnews.com

After hearing the health-care workers' complaints of how difficult it was to get to and from their shifts by bus, I decided to try it myself.

On the morning of Wednesday, Aug. 6, I became a CNA, minus the scrubs. Well, not really, but I was ready to make the trek from home to hospital that so many health-care workers make every day.

Beth Slezak, account representative for the Nurse Connection Staffing Inc. mapped out a route for my 3 to 11 p.m. "shift" from Troy to Ellis Hospital in Schenectady.

According to the route Slezak mapped out for me, I needed to be at the bus stop in between River and Front streets in Troy by 1:35 p.m., get off in Schenectady at Union Street and Nott Terrace (an unusual stop on the bus route, for which I had to remind the driver in advance) at 2:30 p.m., and I was scheduled to arrive at Ellis at approximately 2:55 p.m., leaving me five minutes to prepare for my shift. That meant I had to board the No. 70 bus in Troy, get off, and get on the No. 59 bus to Ellis.

My route ended up taking me directly to Ellis, but if I were coming from somewhere else, a direct route might not have been possible because many bus lines end in Schenectady with no connection to Ellis, according to Slezak.

The route, itself, should take approximately 29 minutes by car. In terms of miles, it is about 14.

Starting point

While some commutes are simpler than others, none is without any walking, even if it is to and from the car. So, for my experiment, I imagined that I lived somewhere in downtown Troy, near the bus stop between River and Front streets, an ideal situation for a regular bus rider.

I arrived at the bus shelter at approximately 1:21 p.m. on Wednesday.

The wait

Realizing I arrived a few minutes early, I was anxious, wondering if the bus would come and whether it would be on time. My real-life ride had long driven away, and I really was depending Reporter Ariana Cohn decided to take the bus to "work," role-playing as a health-care worker making their commute from home to the hospital.

Ariana Cohn/Spotlight

Commentary:

Reporter's Notebook

on that bus to get me to Ellis. I took notes on my surroundings: a busy road, a hot, summer day, a handful of strangers, my mp3 player and a book. 1:30 came around, then 1:33 when I looked at my watch again, then finally it was 1:35, and bus 70 was not in sight.

Less than a second away from 1:36, the bus pulled around the corner.

The ride

I boarded the bus, depositing my $1 fare, and kindly asking the driver to stop in Schenectady between Union Street and Nott Terrace. Without question, he agreed. I was depending on him to keep my route intact. Another thing I was depending on the driver for was knowing where that stop was. Unfamiliar with the Schenectady area, I had no idea where that stop was, and if left up to me, I might never have gotten there.

I don't have many complaints about the ride, except for some slight motion sickness around the corners and at all the stops. I will say I was beginning to get impatient, but this could be due to the fact that in real life I've hardly ever ridden a bus. Growing up less than 30 minutes from Manhattan, one would think I've had great practice, but I don't understand the subway maps, the bus routes, the switchovers, the stops or any aspect of public transportation.

Regardless, the driver did tell me where to get off, and from there I waited for the 59.

After a 15-minute wait (which was expected), the 59 came, and I would once again board the bus and pay a $1 fare. By the time I would get to the hospital, the entire trip would cost me $2.

Nearly 10 minutes later, the 59 arrived at Ellis hospital.

The ride home

I cheated on the way home. Since I did not actually work at the hospital that day, I did not stick around until 11 p.m. But what I did was have a friend drive my car and meet me at Ellis so that I could drive the distance back and see how long the trip would take if I had done it by car.

Adding together the stoplights, getting stuck behind slow drivers and other typical driving tribulations, the trip took me roughly 32 minutes to return to River and Front Streets.

In terms of gas, I used just under a quarter of a tank of gas, though my car is a six-cylinder 1996 Toyota Camry.

The outcome

As I said from the beginning, my situation is almost incomparable to the CNAs, LPNs, and registered nurses who have to make similar treks throughout the Capital District on a daily basis.

On the one hand, the bus got me there with a fair fare: $4 round trip, with little walking. On the other hand, the trip took nearly an hour and a half, whereas the car ride took only a half hour, and was more comfortable.

Convenience is key in this situation, but for many, it is not an option.

I would say that if you have the time and want to save a few dollars, taking the bus on the route that I described seems to be a reliable option.

Gas leak forces school evacuation

A gas main leak at Bethlehem's Slingerlands Elementary School forced the school to shut down Thursday, Aug. 21, as workers re-capped the gas line. Slingerlands and Delmar fire departments were called to the school around 1:30 p.m. for a two-inch high-pressure gas main rupture at the entrance to the school's parking lot. District spokesman Matt Leon said construction crews installing new curbs accidentally ruptured the line. Leon said the leak was fixed that day. Approximately 35 to 45 people were evacuated from the school and surrounding homes, according to Slingerlands Fire Chief Jason Tice. There were no injuries reported and National Grid arrived on the scene to clamp off the leak.

Adam J. Jones

Adam J. Jones, 26, died suddenly, Saturday, Aug. 16.

Born in Albany, he resided in South Westerlo and attended Greenville Elementary School.

In 1990 he moved to Voorheesville and graduated from Clayton A. Bouton High School in 2000.

As a former carpenter/laborer with C. M. Fox, he took great pride in being a part of building Severson Manor.

Mr. Jones was a member of the Voorheesville Rod & Gun Club, and enjoyed participating in the club's trap league.

He also enjoyed fishing, hunting and riding recreational vehicles and was a member of Sons of the American Legion, Voorheesville Post 1493.

Survivors include his parents, August H. and Barbara C. Jones; a brother, August III; and several aunts, uncles and cousins.

Arrangements were by Reilly and Son Funeral Home in Voorheesville. Services will be held Sunday, Sept. 7, at 2 p.m. at the Voorheesville Rod & Gun Club.

Contributions may be made to Animal Lovers, P.O. Box 6426, Albany 12206.

Walter Louis Balk

Walter Louis Balk, 84, died

Thursday, July 24, at his home.

Born Buffalo, he grew up in Paris and Rio de Janeiro and spoke English, French, Portuguese and German fluently, and was conversant in Italian, Spanish and Tagalog.

After serving in the Philippines as a field artillery flash ranger observer between 1944-1946, he earned an engineering degree from Lafayette College.

He played lacrosse and was active in community theater, where he met his wife during a production of "Twelfth Night." They married in 1951 and settled in Woodstock.

Mr. Balk worked for IBM for more than 10 years in Endicott and Poughkeepsie, then returned to college, receiving a doctorate from the School of Public Affairs and Labor Relations at Cornell University in Ithaca.

In 1966, he joined the faculty of Rockefeller College at the University at Albany, where he taught for 25 years.

Mr. Balk joined the college when it was still known as the Graduate School of Public Affairs and was one of the core founding members of the Rockefeller College faculty.

Mr. Balk authored numerous articles and a book called "Managerial Reform and Professional Empowerment in the Public Service," (Quorum Press 1996). He encouraged governments and corporations to value the insights of all workers.

As a recipient of a Fulbright Fellowship, Mr. Balk traveled to Africa, Europe, South America and Southeast Asia.

"Walter delighted in meeting people from all over the world. He exchanged letters for years with a gondolier he met in Venice, struck up conversations with Sudanese groundskeepers, and sang Tagalog songs with nurses at Swedish Hospital in Seattle," his family wrote in tribute. "His playful, humorous spirit came alive with his family and friends."

He enjoyed reading, fishing and camping, and animals of all sorts, especially cats, dogs, hummingbirds, ducks, and Alfonso, the bass in the pasture pond.

Survivors include his wife of more than 58 years, Ann Katherine Heins Balk; a son, Peter Balk of Port Townsend, Wash.; two daughters, Amy Balk (Laurence) Armstrong of Indianapolis; and Christianne (Karl Flaccus) Balk of Seattle; and five grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held Saturday, Sept. 13, at the University at Albany Alumni House, 1400 Washington Ave., in Albany, from 1:30 until 3 p.m., with a reception at 4 p.m.

Those attending can RSVP at (206) 380-9544, or c/o Balk, P.O. Box 15633, Seattle, WA 98115.

Contributions may be given to PLAN USA, 155 Plan Way, Warwick, RI 02886.

Albina DiPietro

Albina (Lil) Iannelli DiPietro, 87, of Slingerlands, died Saturday, Aug. 16, at the Rosewood Gardens Nursing Home.

Born and educated in Albany, she was the daughter of the late Joseph and Concetta (Guiliano) Iannelli.

Mrs. DiPietro worked as a fur finisher for M. Solomon's prior to her marriage in 1946.

She was a homemaker and mother, and was a communicant of the Church of St. Thomas the Apostle in Delmar.

She was the widow of Santo DiPietro.

Survivors include two daughters, Sandra F. (Gerald) Levy, and Barbara A. (Kevin) Boyle, of Delmar; four grandchildren; two great-grandchildren; two brothers, Vincenza Caminiti of Delmar, and Vito Iannelli of Albany; and several nieces and nephews.

Services were from the Church of St. Thomas the Apostle in Delmar, and arrangements were by the Daniel Keenan Funeral Home in Albany on Thursday.

Burial was in the St. Agnes Cemetery in Menands.

Contributions may be made to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, 511 St. Jude Place, Memphis, TN 38105.

Welcome these fall beauties into your landscape

Fall is a long, glorious process in upstate New York, and mums are as much a part of the mix as are apples and pumpkins.

Mums the word

By SUSAN PEZZOLLA
news@spotlightnews.com

The author is a community educator for horticulture at the Albany County Cornell Cooperative Extension.

As soon as the first few cool nights arrive in late August, thoughts of fall mums come to mind. Big pots of colorful mums for the front steps, more for the back porch, and of course some to fill in the few bare spots in the garden.

It is always a big part of switching gears outdoors to the coming reality of winter. But fall is a long, glorious process in upstate New York, and mums are as much a part of the mix as are apples and pumpkins. The mums that we purchase in fall are perennial varieties, but many gardeners complain that the mums they plant in the fall just do not come back reliably and if they do return, they rarely look the way they did the first year they were planted.

So what's a gardener to do?

When you purchase fall mums, try to buy from local growers, that way the only travel that your plants experience is the trip home in your car. Many people look only for size and color, but consider also the bud stage and buy plants that are mostly in bud, just beginning to show color. If you are buying several plants, ask for help choosing varieties that are early, mid-season and late blooming to prolong the fall "showtime." Look for Belgian varieties (the tag in the pot will designate this) as they have been developed to have a naturally tight-mounded shape with no pinching or staking needed. They also have many more blooms per plant than traditional varieties and they are more flexible so there is less breakage.

Seeds of Change

Many homeowners want to use fall mums decoratively to line steps or patios or to change out planters of summer annuals. In these cases it is best to consider these mums as annuals and discard them when they are done blooming. The mums that are planted in ground stand the best chance of becoming perennial by being planted as soon as possible after purchase.

Mums are very intensively grown so always check for swirling roots and gently tease out the roots before planting to encourage rooting out into the soil. This time to root out or get established in the garden is crucial to the mum becoming perennial as it is much less likely to heave out of the ground with the freezing and thawing of winter. Do not fertilize this first fall as the grower has done this for you.

While traditional mums are left alone until spring before cutting back, the Belgian types are cut back in the fall and mulched well after the ground has begun to freeze. The Belgian types often bloom in early spring and are then cut back once, fertilized well and allowed to grow on to re-bloom in fall. Remember that they are genetically wired to grow in a mounded tight shape. Traditional mums are fertilized and then cut back several times in spring until mid-July, when they are allowed to grow on until they bloom. The maintenance chores with the non-Belgian types are greater and the end result more variable. Even after all the cutting back, many traditional mums are still tall and floppy by fall. Perhaps this is the fall to try something new and plant some Belgian mums in your garden.

Don't be mum on this beauty, spread the word!

As the 2008 presidential election nears, learning about the candidates can feel a little like navigating a giant maze. Liberty Ridge Farm in Schaghticoke has taken that concept a step further, giving area families an opportunity to "vote with their feet" by walking through the farm's trademark corn maze in order to learn about the role of the presidency and the electoral process. The theme is all a part of Liberty Ridge Farm's 2008 Fall Festival, which begins Sept. 12 and runs through Nov. 2.

The election theme, which is co-sponsored by the League of Women Voters of New York State and Rensselaer County, was conceived as a way for children to learn more about the upcoming election.

"This is a historical election coming up, and we have a lot of school children who come here for field trips," said owner Cynthia Gifford. "We wanted to expose them to the voting process."

Before entering the maze, families will pick up an "election '08 passport," which has 10 questions corresponding with numbered signs within the maze. When a signpost is reached, the correctly answered question will yield the right direction. At the conclusion of the trek, children and their families will be able to vote in Liberty Ridge's own personal election for either the Republican or Democratic party, with votes being tallied and updated each week. Also, Uncle Sam, the Republican Elephant and the Democratic Donkey will make appearances.

Liberty Ridge Farm, founded by Gifford and her husband, Bob, opened in 2000. Although the farm is functional and offers many different crops, today it is primarily a "natural" theme park, offering attractions for the entire family.

The farm's crown jewel is its 12-acre corn maze, the first and largest in the Capital District. Approximately 40,000 people a year visit the maze. Liberty Ridge also bills itself as a "whole family farm adventure," offering animal feeding areas, pedal kart racing, tire rolling and trolley rides. There's also Li'l Farmersville, where children 6 and younger can enjoy safe play, and the animatronic Hill Billy Band that plays bluegrass music.

In addition to the election-themed maze, Liberty Ridge will host several festival events, including the Gifford Barn Corn Fest on Sept. 20-21, the Family Farm Olympics on Oct. 11-13, and the Liberty Ridge Farm Pumpkin Fest on Oct. 18-19.

Liberty Ridge will also be getting a bit frightening in the month of October, as every Friday and Saturday will usher in the farm's Haunted Nights events. The corn maze transforms into a spooky haunt for ghosts and goblins, while the strong-of-heart can visit the Forest of Fear and the new Creepy Fence Maze.

Admission to Liberty Ridge Farm and the corn maze is $9, with children 3 and under admitted for free. Admission to the Haunted Nights event is $15. For more information, contact Liberty Ridge Farm at 664-1515.

The farm features many activities, such as corn mazes, tire rolling and pedal kart races.

But wait...this just in from Troy: the RPI hockey team's 1985 NCAA Championship tied Siena's victory over Stanford for second place. Wow. Who knew there would still be people in the region who fondly remember that moment, which was seen by maybe 20,000 people nationwide? And that includes the people inside Joe Louis Arena in Detroit that night.

3. Who is the greatest Capital District athlete of the last 30 years?

Perhaps because this is an Olympic year (or perhaps because his backstory of overcoming cancer was so intriguing), 1984 Greco Roman wrestling gold medalist Jeff Blatnick led the pack with three times the votes as the other candidates. The Niskayuna native still has a strong following 24 years after his golden moment in Los Angeles.

The rest of the votes were split evenly among Sam Perkins (who, as a couple of voters noted, is a transplant—but he still graduated from Shaker High School), Dottie Pepper (yay for gelled thoroughbreds). I thought Perkins might give Blatnick a run for his money, but Blatnick pinned him easily.

There were a couple of people who went off the board with their picks. One chose recent Tewaaron Trophy winner Mike Leveille from Delmar, and the other went with Albany Firebird legend "Touchdown" Eddie Brown. Nice to see there's still some love for the old Firebirds around here, even though the team left town in 2000.

4. What is the best Capital District sports team?

This wasn't even a contest, as the Siena College men's basketball team ran roughshod over the competition (kind of like the Saints did to Vanderbilt in last season's NCAA Tournament). Fran McCaffrey's crew racked up more than half of the votes cast, leaving the rest to fight for the scraps.

Among the others who got votes were the Albany River Rats, the University at Albany men's lacrosse team, the 1984-85 NCAA Champion RPI hockey team (Mike Adessa would be proud) and the University at Albany men's basketball team. Sadly, the best average attendance in the region, the Tri-City ValleyCats, did not receive a vote. What's up with that, people?

5. If given the choice, what would you spend your sports money on?

This is the one question that I wish I had worded differently, since I think most people would rather go to a major league sporting event than stay at home. Who wouldn't want to travel to one of New York City's great sports venues or go to the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day?

So yes, more people said they'd go to an out-of-town major sporting event than stay at home and see one of our local college or minor league teams. However, the fact that the percentages were as close as they were (60 to 40) suggests that there are more people willing to stay close to home than I first thought. And that could be the best news for our sports scene.

6. What is the focal point of the Capital District sports scene?

I don't know if people were answering truthfully or just picking this because they thought this is what I wanted to see, but the overwhelming majority of votes went to high schools. Either way, it's a sign that our area's high school athletes are at the center of the sports scene, which is nice for them. Not only do they work hard on the field, but they also work hard in the classroom. It's a delicate balance, and one that deserves our admiration when they maintain that balance.

College sports picked up slightly more votes than minor league teams, which means that once again, minor league teams are at the bottom of the pecking order. Perhaps they need better marketing, or maybe they just need to win more often.

7. Would the sports scene suffer without professional minor league teams?

OK, this is where it gets confusing. The majority of respondents said the area sports scene would suffer without our minor league teams. This is contradictory to the responses that suggested people don't care enough to follow our minor league teams' exploits. You can't have your cake and eat it, too.

If you want this area to continue having minor league teams, you need to support these teams and care about how they're doing. Whether the Albany River Rats are in first place or last place in the AHL standings, you need to be at the Times Union Center to show them your care. When the Albany Patros are barely clinging to life, you need to help them survive—even if it's in the wretched CBA. In other words, show your support by showing up at the games.

8. Do local teams get adequate media coverage?

The vote was split here pretty evenly, as yes votes barely edged no votes. So, I guess we—the members of the Capital District sports media—are doing our jobs. That's good to know.

9. What type of venue should be added to the region?

I guess people around here are satisfied with the venues we have because the vast majority said we don't need another venue. Either that, or they really don't want to see any more public money spent to build a stadium or arena that they probably won't go to on a regular basis.

Of those who did say we could use a new venue, a slim majority said a big baseball or football stadium would be a good idea. So if the NFL or Major League Baseball wants to expand anywhere in the next decade, they should look into the Capital District.

(Side note: Only one respondent said a NASCAR track would be a good venue to add. So, I guess paving Lebanon Valley or Albany-Saratoga Speedway is out of the question.)

10. How proud are you of the area's sports scene?

Judging from the results, I'd say people are pretty satisfied with what we have because more than 90 percent of the respondents said they were either very proud or somewhat proud of the sports scene as is. So maybe we don't produce a bevvy of major league a lot of titles (state or national)—but what we have is good.

With that, I declare this year's "Pledge Your Sports Allegiance" poll closed. However, I plan to do another one next summer with more questions designed to take the pulse of the average Capital District sports fan. And if you have any suggestions for next year's poll, send them to jonasm@spotlightnews.com. Just remember, be nice about it. I don't want any suggestions for me to jump off the Dunn Memorial Bridge or stick the poll in my ear. Thank you.

Player of the year

Victor Fox, a 13-year-old from Delmar, was named the Northeastern New York Professional Golf Association junior division player of the year. Fox won six of the seven NENY Junior PGA tournaments, which also earned him an invitational to play in next year's state junior championships.

Thoughts

• "Need articles on stars who played locally - i.e. Ralph Kiner - and greats who appeared in area - Jack Dempsey, Gene Tunney, Max Schilling, Ellsworth Vines, etc."

I smell a feature story somewhere.

• "High school basketball receives excessive coverage, though more kids participate in baseball."

Yes, but do they play baseball in the middle of January?

• "Like having minor league teams, but the public seems very fickle toward them. This has been an ongoing problem for years."

First of all, it should be noted that this respondent went on to detail every minor league team we've had in this region and what happened to them. Secondly, I couldn't agree more with that statement. In fact, if you look at the accompanying story, you will see what I mean.

• "I am continually amazed by the biased (to the exclusion of other teams) coverage of Siena basketball. It is a small college that will never win the NCAA. It's simply a question of what round they lose in. Nevertheless, anything the school does gets unbelievable coverage, whether they're playing or not playing. The fact that it is a college that should be more concerned with academics and it's not dependent on sports for financial success makes this biased coverage more puzzling."

On this point, I have to kindly disagree. The fact that Siena is a small school that gets to play bigger schools in the NCAA Tournament is a big deal, especially when the Saints win (such as last year's opening round victory over Vanderbilt). Maybe Siena won't win the NCAA Tournament, but any win in the tournament is a big thing for a small school.

The respondent went on to mention that professional minor league teams are "ignored until they eventually fail." Again, I'm glad to see that I'm not the only one who thinks minor league teams get the short straw.

(Side note: another respondent criticized the Capital District media for not doing enough to cover local teams and that we should be doing "at least once-a-week stories on the local teams, and the newspapers should be covering the local teams on the front page of the sports section - not burying them in the back of the section." Can once-a-week local sports columns on the back

• "I live in Glenville, and my kids play sports for Burnt Hills. I want a Spotlight newspaper that includes the town of Glenville's news and the sports coverage for Burnt Hills."

I think the folks in Burnt Hills would also like more coverage for its sports teams. Shoehorning the Spartans in with Shenendehowa, Ballston Spa and Saratoga Springs isn't an easy task. But again, I will try to accommodate this request.

• "Capital District residents have long been known for being 'thrifty' when it comes to spending money to support athletic teams in the area. But even for those who do not want to spend much or anything at all, a lot of games, meets, etc. are free at many of the local high schools and colleges. So, opportunities are available virtually every day of the year to attend a local sporting event."

You hear that, Capital District? You have no more excuses. So, get out there and support your local teams.

Dolphins hold team tryouts

The Delmar Dolphins swim club will hold tryouts for the 2008-09 season at 6 p.m. Sept. 12 and at noon Sept. 20 at Bethlehem Central High School.

The tryouts are open to Capital District youth age 7 to 12 who are interested in learning competitive swimming while having fun in a progressive, instructional program.

Swimmers must be able to swim a 25-yard front crawl with good breathing to the side.

There is no fee or pre-registration necessary. Swimmers should bring a swimsuit, towel and goggles.

For information or to schedule an individual tryout, contact coach Doug Gross at 369-9733.

More thoughts from our loyal local readers

Some people were kind enough to share some additional thoughts when they responded to the "Pledge Your Sports Allegiance" poll. Since they took the time to do so, I felt it was only fair to include them. I won't use any names, since I didn't ask for any, but I will make comments where applicable.

- "Too much attention given to private high schools vs. public high schools that accept all students - not just rich ones."

Public school teams get plenty of coverage, too - at least, judging from the poll results.

- "Too much emphasis on certain high school sports and individual athletes. Too much football, basketball and (at this time of year) horse racing."

I guess some people don't like horse racing.

- "More NASCAR coverage - a closer NASCAR track would generate a lot of revenue. New York state would be out of (its) recession with a NASCAR track near the Capital District."

This was the only person to suggest we should build a NASCAR track in the region. Honestly I thought there would be more, but I guess not.

- "Cover boys volleyball at the high school level."

OK, I will do my best to honor this request. But, shouldn't I also cover girls volleyball at the high school level? It would only be fair.

- "Bring on a MLL (Major League Lacrosse) team."

Wouldn't we need a stadium that seats at least 10,000 people first? Oh wait, no we wouldn't because it wouldn't draw 10,000 people. I mean, if the Albany Attack couldn't draw big numbers for indoor lacrosse, how would an outdoor lacrosse team fare?

- "More updates about Colonie All-Star games. When? Where? Time?"

My guess is the next Colonie All-Star game will take place next summer at one of Albany County's numerous Little League and Babe Ruth complexes.

THANK YOU FOR PARTICIPATING IN THIS YEAR'S POLL.

Numbers don't lie, but they can confuse

The results are in from our "Pledge Your Sports Allegiance" poll.

First of all, I want to thank all of the people who responded to this poll. Even the person who used the poll to suggest that organized sports get too much attention and "contributes to American obesity." It shows that people cared enough to take the time to fill out the questionnaire and send it to me.

Secondly, I'd like to say that the results were enlightening, if not a bit contradictory - especially when it came to views about our minor league teams. Read on, and you will see what I mean.

1. What level of sports do you follow most closely?

It shouldn't come as any surprise that the level most people follow closely around here is the major leagues. Perhaps it's because major league sports coverage is everywhere - from daily newspapers to cable sportscasts. You can't escape the latest New York Yankees score, even if you tried.

After the major leagues, area colleges received the next highest vote total, followed by high school sports and then minor league sports. I can't say I'm surprised about those results either, since our local minor league teams haven't done a lot over the last several years to grab the headlines on a regular basis. Still, it would be nice to see people become more passionate about our minor league teams so we don't wind up losing them (more on that later).

2. What was the greatest

From the Sports Desk Rob Jonas

Capital District sports event of the last 30 years?

Let's jump on the big yellow school bus with the Sacketoga Stables gang, because Funny Cide wins this category. The "gallant gelding" born and raised outside Saratoga Springs claimed more votes than Siena's historic 1989 NCAA Tournament victory over Stanford and the Albany Firebirds winning the 1999 Arena Bowl in front of a sellout crowd at the Times Union Center on national TV. I guess the Kentucky Derby is still the granddaddy of all sporting events.
