Hughes trial gets under way

Alleged rape victim filed complaints against Bethlehem Police Department

By CHARLES WIFF
wiffc@spotlightnews.com

The first days of testimony in the trial of ex-River Rat Robert "Bobby" Hughes have seen a tearful account from the woman accusing him of raping her, charges leveled against Bethlehem police and their handling of the case and the revelation that Hughes advised his former roommate to stay away from the trial days before he testified.

Hughes is standing trial for allegedly sodomizing a Bethlehem woman at his Delmar apartment in October of 2008.

Testimony continued after The Spotlight went to press. For the latest on the trial, check spotlightnews.com.

The case

The defense has stated Hughes did have sexual contact with the woman, but it was a consensual one-night stand. The prosecution says she was in a disoriented

Redlich blasts ruling

Councilman says 'Democratic machine' wants to keep him from practicing law in town

By DAN SABBATINO
sabbatinod@spotlightnews.com

Councilman Warren Redlich, who sits on the Town Board in Guiderland and runs a private law firm, said he is asking a federal court to overturn a recent ruling by the Committee on Professional Standards preventing him from practicing law in Guiderland.

Redlich's lawsuit was filed Friday, May 14. He said by filing suit, the committee's otherwise private rulings have been made public.

In its ruling, the committee also is requiring Redlich make changes to his Web site, but he said that ruling infringes his free speech rights. At issue are claims the attorney can handle cases without the defendant appearing in court.

Police Blotter

Police: Parolee raped by her supervisor

State police have arrested a state parole officer for allegedly raping a parolee under his supervision.

Police say Nicholas B. Kordas, 50, of Clifton Park, raped the 23-year-old woman while conducting a curfew check on her residence in the Town of Guilderland. The woman reported the rape at Albany Medical Center on the morning of Jan. 13 and an investigation involved the use of DNA evidence, according to police.

Police said their investigation did not reveal any other victims, and steps were taken to ensure the safety of other parolees supervised by Kordas.

Kordas was charged with rape in the first degree and posted bond in the amount on $75,000 in the Town of Guilderland Court.

Other arrests

The Bethlehem Police Department arrested Michael B. Tenhulzen, 45, of 131 Trinity Place, Selkirk, and charged him with criminal possession of hazardous inhalants, a violation, on Friday, May 28.

Police received a call reporting a white male huffing on an aerosol can in the vicinity of 311 State Route 9W in Glenmont at about 1:41 p.m. that day, according to arrest reports. Police allegedly arrived to find Tenhulzen on a grassy portion of the Wal-Mart parking lot in possession of three cans of Dust Remover. One can was completely empty, and when asked if he inhaled the Dust Remover, Tenhulzen allegedly said "Yes, I did inhale the one can."

Police arrested Tenhulzen, who was issued a ticket returnable to Bethlehem Town Court Tuesday, June 15. Police contacted poison control, who advised that Tenhulzen must be taken to the hospital. Police transported him to Albany Medical Center, where he was turned over to staff.

State police arrested Juanita V. Jackson, 44, of Schenectady, and charged her with grand larceny in the fourth degree on Friday, May 28, at Crossgates Mall.

State police arrested Eric D. Carkner, 30, of Delmar, and charged him with DWI, aggravated unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle in the second degree and traffic violations on Saturday, May 30, on the I-787 southbound entrance ramp to I-90 in Albany.

State police arrested Teddy L. Blair, 59, of Feura Bush, and charged him with felony DWI Monday, May 31, on Wolf Hill Road in the Town of New Scotland.

State police arrested Emmanuel Green, 36, of Albany, and charged him with grand larceny in the third degree, falsifying business records in the first degree and offering to file a false instrument in the first degree, all felonies, on Tuesday, June 1, on Indian Fields Road in the Town of New Scotland.

Beverwyck breaks ground on expansion

'Greenhouse' design hailed as cutting edge in nursing home care

By CHARLES WIFF
wiffc@spotlightnews.com

Local politicians, businesspeople and residents gathered at the Eddy Village at Beverwyck Wednesday, June 2, to hoist shovels and celebrate the groundbreaking on a long-planned expansion to the retirement community.

Two buildings will be built, housing a total of 24 beds in private rooms. Residents will take meals and congregate in a communal space, and staff will prepare meals in an on-site kitchen instead of using a cafeteria.

The idea is to provide an experience that more closely resembles living at home as opposed to the institutional operation of a traditional nursing home facility.

It's a "greenhouse" style of design that was hailed by Beverwyck Executive Director Doug Miller as a way to better maintain residents' dignity, independence and range of choice.

"It also embraces the individual as someone who has strengths and weaknesses," he continued.

Beverwyck, which operates under the banner of Northeast Health, had originally planned to build a larger facility with a dedicated Alzheimer's care unit and gained town approval for that project in 2006, but with so many Alzheimer's care beds in the area, the decision was made to pursue

"It helps people who have stayed here for a portion of their lives stay connected with their families."

— Assemblyman Tim Gordon

the greenhouse facility instead.

The original buildout plan for Beverwyck drafted in the late 1980s called for a 125-bed nursing home facility, said Miller.

"Of course, over the past 25 years, the face of nursing care has changed," he added.

The addition will also add to the "continuum of care" offered to residents who often have changing needs, Miller continued, allowing them to stay at Beverwyck longer.

Assemblyman Tim Gordon, who lives near the retirement community, hailed this as a great benefit to local families.

"It helps people who have stayed here for a portion of their lives stay connected with their families," he said.

The new facility will be the fifth phase of building at Beverwyck. The expansion is expected to be completed in January of next year and will cost $6 million.

Helping to cover that cost were two Beverwyck residents, Robert and Beatrice Herman, who have lived at the community since 1997. One of the buildings will be christened "The Herman House" to recognize the contribution. They also donated money to construct a gazebo near the buildings.

The Hermans were recognized at the groundbreaking, but Robert Herman remained humble, saying the building should really be named after Miller.

"It was the vision and the foresight of the Eddy that got us to where we are today," he said.

Beverwyck opened in Slingerlands in 1993 with 85 beds. Since then, the campus has undergone numerous expansions to serve 270 residents in independent and assisted living.

Local officials and residents of the Eddy Village at Beverwyck gathered Wednesday, June 2, to celebrate the ground breaking on an expansion project to the retirement community.

Bethlehem Town Board agenda attachments a topic again

Councilman drafts proposal to govern the release of meeting documents

By CHARLES WIFF
wiffc@spotlightnews.com

Bethlehem Councilman Mark Hennessey has drafted a proposal for the standardized release of Town Board meeting attachments to the public prior to meetings, in a move he hopes will advance dialogue over the issue.

Hennessey's proposal stipulates the town clerk would make determinations regarding the release of agenda attachments, with exemptions made for personal information, trade secrets, contract information and law enforcement information.

"What we're trying to do here is take a very moderate approach to trying to put together a policy," Hennessey said. "It's an idea whose time has come. It's good to have a structure to things."

"What we're trying to do here is take a very moderate approach to trying to put together a policy."

Before each Town Board meeting, board members receive via e-mail, memos and other pertinent information from town staff regarding the items on that meeting's agenda. Hennessey said he'd like to see the public have early access to that information, as well, and in late April he released them for one meeting himself through his Web site.

Under his new proposal, the supervisor—who is responsible for setting meeting agendas—would complete and distribute the agenda and attachments a full week before the upcoming meeting. The town clerk would post all non-exempt documents on the town's Web site five days before the meeting.

The proposal also suggests a summary of all votes made by the Town Board and a database of town employee salaries be maintained on the town's Web site.

Supervisor Sam

Messina said the proposal was a topic of discussion during a meeting Thursday, June 3, with various town employees, including Town Clerk Nanci Moquin and Town Attorney James Potter. Hennessey was invited but was not in attendance, Messina said.

"We looked at this, and our feeling was it's a work in progress, we're going to give it more study and thought," Messina said. "It's a nice start, and we appreciate it."

Messina said he likes the concept of coming up with a way to release documents, but he doesn't think Hennessey's proposal allows the town clerk or town attorney sufficient time to review the attachments, especially for a large agenda. He has previously said a wholesale release of attachments could make public personal information or sensitive documents.

The town has to be careful in making sure this initiative doesn't overload staff, he continued.

"This is one of those things when you do it, you got to make sure that you do it right," Messina said.

Hennessey said he's aware of those issues.

"We're trying to balance putting too much work on [the town clerk's] back," he said. "If we're not real careful with it we could overwhelm her."

He also said he's hoping the public will weigh in on the draft proposal.

A day no toys would die

By WILLIAM R. DEVOE
devoew@spotlightnews.com

My dog, Sophie, a very rambunctious Golden Retriever/Labrador mix, is confined to her crate for the next 30 days.

We found out a few months ago that she had heartworms and has probably had them since we adopted her. The course we chose for treatment involves giving her two very deep shots of a medicine that is supposed to kill the worms, followed by at least a month of crating and inactivity so she doesn't throw a blood clot and die.

The treatment was very expensive by my standards, and the kids seem to be attached to her, so I'm trying to avoid her dying at all costs.

It's been a week, and all signs point to a good recovery, but in her absence from loafing about the house I'm learning what a ecosystem she is in my home.

In the DeVoe house, toys have one natural predator: my dog. Be it Lego or checkers or Matchbox car, no toy is safe at night. If a toy is left on the ground — and, admittedly, my kids tend to leave a lot on their floor — my dog will emerge from her crate late at night and perform unspeakable acts of violence on it before devouring it partially (or wholly, but we don't usually find that out until later).

Commentary:

Pop Culture

She's like a canine Jeffrey Dahmer.

One morning, I went in to wake my sons up for school. What I found on the floor almost made me toss my Wheaties.

Sprawled across the bedroom carpet, with four of his six arms broken, and his green and yellow jumpsuit torn and pulled over his head, lay what had been an action figure of Dr. Octopus. (Actually, we're still waiting on an official ID as most of his head had been eaten off.) The scene was so gruesome I expected Richard Belzer and Ice T from "Law and Order" to show up and start questioning the dog.

In a gesture to respect the deceased, I placed an UNO card over his naked plastic backside. I hope he finds peace.

I have to think my dog has a sick sense of humor. My sons have an Imaginext playset of a pirate ship that came with a few dastardly looking pirates, complete with hooks for hands. Sure enough, when they left it out one night, the dog attacked.

The only thing she ate off of the pirates? Their good hands. She left the hooks intact.

"Now they can't carry their swords," my son whined to me the next morning.

"Who cares about the swords?" I said. "Now they can't go to the bathroom."

I have to admit, though, that I've used my dog's thirst for plastic to my own parenting ends. My oldest son, Kevin, is developing an interest in professional wrestling that I really don't care for. And I don't know where he's gotten them, but somehow little figures of people like "The Undertaker," "Triple H" and "Rey Mysterio" have started popping up all over the house.

I would be lying if I told you that I haven't put these little wrestlers in my dog's crate at night. In her bowl. Covered in barbecue sauce.

I tried the other day to feed the dog Silly Bandz, but due to her convalescent state she wasn't having any. I hate them so much I ate them myself.

Toys aren't the only things that are going uneaten in the house. I've found piles of foodstuffs underneath my sons' chairs at the dinner table. Now that the dog's in the pokey, they have no one to feed their unwanted vegetables to. This led to an odd exchange between Kevin and my wife, Jess, the night Sophie came back from the veterinarian.

Kevin pushed away from the dinner table and announced he wanted dessert.

"That was awful fast. Did you eat everything on your plate?" asked Jess.

"I sure did," said Kevin. "Boy am I full."

"Kevin," said Jess, "your plate is on the floor underneath your chair. You need to finish your dinner."

"What? Where's the dog?" Despite my wishes, Jess allowed him to finish his dinner at the table and not on the floor where he had left it.

I've learned a lot about wildlife in the week my dog has been locked up. Sophie is allowed to go outside no more than three times a day, on a leash, to go to the bathroom and nothing else. Like I said, any undue strain could put her in mortal jeopardy.

In these brief trips, I've learned that bluebirds, squirrels and deer are the most mean-spirited creatures to walk the earth.

You know, Disney would have you believe all woodland creatures are soft, cuddly and will help you make a dress if you sing them a song. That's bull. After the first week, all these little tree rats near my house realized she couldn't chase them and started lining up and mocking my dog every time I took her out to pee.

It's like "Shawshank Redemption." We come out on the deck and some groundhog starts yelling "Fish! Fresh fish!"

The first few times she started jumping and starting at the vermin, they ran away. But soon they realized I can't let her go beyond her leash, so now they line up just out of reach to taunt her.

When she jumps at them, they laugh. One morning, a woodchuck gave her the middle finger.

It's gotten so that I go out in advance to scare the animals away and try to preserve what's left of Sophie's self esteem. But knowing I can't catch a single one of them, the animals have started mocking me, too.

Sophie has to be crated for another three weeks. After that, and if the vet gives her the thumbs up, I'm going to let her have free reign over the backyard. And, between you and me, I hope she catches one of those little buggers and gives 'em what for.

Ted Danz announces Congressional bid

Local businessman and Guilderland Republican Chairman Ted Danz has announced his challenge to incumbent Paul Tonko in the race for the 21st Congressional District.

"Like most Americans, I've been disgusted by the systematic dismantling of the freedoms and values that made America the greatest nation in the history of the world. I simply love this country too much to sit back and allow Paul Tonko and the career politicians to erode our ideals any further," Danz said.

"America is supposed to respect the individual; respect and encourage businesses to grow and create jobs; and America is supposed to put the public interest before the special interests. Unfortunately, Paul Tonko and the rest of the Nancy Pelosi crowd down in Washington have forgotten those things. I am running to restore American values to our government and send a message to all the career politicians that if you forget that it's the American people who are the boss you're going to be given your walking papers," he said.

Danz, the proprietor of Family Danz Heating and Air Conditioning, resides on a small farm in Altamont with his fiancé, Diane Rivers, and his mother Lucille. He has five children and eleven grandchildren.

The 21st District includes all of Albany, Montgomery, Schenectady and Schoharie counties and portions of Fulton, Rensselaer and Saratoga counties.

Danz said his platform includes a commitment to slash wasteful government spending, eliminate a bloated government bureaucracy and reduce massive debt and high taxes.

Matters of Opinion in The Spotlight

Lowered standards

Guilderland Town Councilman and private attorney Warren Redlich said he is asking a federal court to overturn a recent ruling by the Committee of Professional Standards preventing him from practicing law in Guilderland. The committee states Redlich should not practice law in town court, as he has oversight of the judges' salaries and the police department.

Complaints made by the committee also involve claims posted on Redlich's Web site that he can handle cases without the defendant appearing in court.

Redlich said he does make such claims, only because he does handle a number of traffic cases, more than 99 percent, where his client does not have to appear in court.

Here's the thing: Redlich shouldn't need a committee to tell him practicing law in a town in which he has authority over the judges isn't kosher.

Why fight this? There isn't so much of a shortage of people getting traffic tickets and DWIs in any other part of the Capital District that Redlich needs to grasp tenaciously onto Guilderland. If the attorney's case volume in Guilderland Town Court is so high that Redlich's unwilling to recuse himself from that court, then maybe the Committee of Professional Standards is on to something.

We at The Spotlight think Redlich should bow out of town court for the people of Guilderland, but also for himself. If the man is going to seriously run for governor, he doesn't need these complaints — that he, himself, has called "trivial" — distracting potential voters from whatever his platform is.

But we're willing to bet that, come Jan. 1, 2011, you're a heck of a lot more likely to see Warren Redlich arguing parking tickets in Guilderland Town Court than arguing state policy in the Capitol.

Redlich is right on one account in the whole affair.

The committee wants Redlich to make changes to the Web site thespooof.com, where he semi-regularly posts fictional stories. The committee cites sexually explicit content in their request.

Redlich says his free speech rights allow him to preserve the site's content. He's right. It's unprofessional, not at all the conduct you'd want from your attorney — let alone the next governor of New York — but it is his right to put sexually explicit material on his Web site.

At least he has that.

Couple puts wheels in motion

Albany pair biking across the country to raise money for juvenile diabetes research

By CHRIS WHITE
news@spotlightnews.com

It came when she and her triplet sisters were just 11 years old — a diagnosis that would change their lives forever. One of her sisters had juvenile diabetes.

Fast forward 13 years, and Julia Donelan, now 24, of Albany, said she still finds it tough to watch her sister lead a similar life but be so burdened by her disease.

Donelan's brother went to college to try to find a cure. Now it's Julia's turn to, as she puts it, give her sister back part of her life.

"People look at [diabetes] as something that needs to be treated," Donelan said. "I'm thinking it can be cured."

On June 1, she and her boyfriend, Scott Hobson, also 24, will be flying to the Seattle area with little more than their bikes, a few pieces of camping equipment to make their way back home while helping the thousands of people living with Type 1 diabetes.

The more than 3,800-mile trip will take almost 70 days — that's between 65 and 85 miles of biking per day.

The idea for the ride goes back to at least the spring of 2008 when the couple started to put the plans in motion.

The ride

From Seattle, Donelan and Hobson will bike mostly on backroads near the northern U.S. border, drop below the Great Lakes and then head northeast to end at the doorstep of their Albany apartment.

They'll be making the trek completely unsupported, meaning no car or van with supplies. Everything they'll need will be strapped to their bikes.

To save on weight, they're bringing very little: a lightweight stove, backpacking tent, ground pad and sleeping bags. They plan on buying food day-to-day and camping at night.

"I'm excited for the challenge of living with the basics," Donelan said, adding that it will make her better prepared for the future.

Hobson is not new to cross-country biking. He and his brother pedaled from San Francisco to Yorktown, Va., last summer.

He said people are incredibly generous along the way. Many days people, and especially churches, allowed them to stay overnight and gave them a meal.

Hobson said it's just another way to meet nice and interesting people.

Last summer, he and his brother ran into a couple on anniversary in Colorado who turned out to be from a town in Virginia that was on their bike route. A month later, the four reconnected on the other side of the country.

Hobson said the ride will help him and Donelan broaden their cultural knowledge and grow personally.

Support

Along the way, the couple will be handing out business cards and posters. They've also set up a Web site to take research donations and will be posting updates via Facebook and Twitter.

They're using the ride to generate visibility for their cause to "give everyone that personal connection so they'll feel the need to donate."

"We want people to see us and wonder what we're doing," Donelan said.

They've already taken in donations from family and friends to fund the cost of their trip, so every dollar donated will go directly to diabetes research.

"Everybody that approaches us is someone we can tell about the ride," Hobson said.

Hobson is quitting his job for the trip. Donelan was given the time off as a donation from her employer, Ameriprise Financial.

"If we didn't have everyone behind us, we won't be able to do it," Donelan said. "It would mean nothing without the support of strangers that we meet, too."

Training

When they get done, they'll likely be in the best shape of their life.

But that stress — including sitting on a bike day after day and sometimes, like in the Rockies, only riding uphill for days at a time, is not to be taken lightly.

Over the winter, Hobson and Donelan trained on indoor stationary bikes. When the weather got warmer, they brought out their bikes with one problem. Because they both work, the longest multi-day-bike-trip they could have taken was three days.

Donelan has been undergoing intense aerobics and free-weight training at Albany CrossFit gym since early spring.

She said the physical side of the trip will come down to strength, ability and balance — all things she learned there.

Expectations

Having done it before, Hobson said the thing he missed most was music.

"You go two months without listening to any music, really," he said. "You learn to appreciate the little things. A chair. Cooked food on a table, not on the ground in the dark."

At the heart of their trip is diabetes research and Donelan said she will keep that thought in her mind the whole time because of one fact: This is a trip her sister simply couldn't do.

The physical exertion and maintaining her body chemicals would be problematic. The other roadblock is that insulin needs to be kept cold.

Then again, that's why Hobson and Donelan are doing the trip — so one day, someone diagnosed with diabetes at a young age won't need any treatment, just a cure.

Your Opinion in The Spotlight

Controversy over webcasting meetings shows the need for it

Editor, The Spotlight:

All the controversy, politicizing, and finger pointing on the subject of internet access to the Town Board meetings only show the need for a record of meetings and archives to be available to the residents of the town. The issue is not so much broadcasting the meeting live over the internet, but having the full meetings available for viewing at the convenience of the viewer and having an archive of those meetings easily available for later reference. Being able to reference by agenda item is a bonus.

By law, the minutes of the meetings only have to summarize the motions, proposals and resolutions that are formally voted on. The previous Town Clerk also did a wonderful job of covering discussions and comments. But the current shorter versions of the minutes do not include those. Written minutes cannot show facial expressions, tone of voice, etc.

I, and others, have requested internet availability during the public comment period of the Town Board. Not everyone in the town has access to cable television, and during these fiscal times, may even be eliminating their cable bill. Internet availability would certainly add another means for people to see the working of their government. There is no reason that all the boards and public meetings can't be covered this way. The highly paid and award winning Information Technology group should be capable of doing this. It is almost old technology and not anywhere as expensive as the Board led us to believe.

Supervisor Sam Messina did try on numerous occasions to explore this issue further, even before he was supervisor. The rest of the board refused to allow him. Trying to keep the government open to the people, Sam used money that was allocated in the budget to his office for "communications." Certainly, this is communicating the Board meetings to the people. It is not just self promotion. Of course, all the board members of the previous year approved this budget with this item, and Jack Cunningham expected to be re-elected. So I wonder what he planned to do with this money.

The Town Board also gave the impression that this needs to go to bid. The state of New York already expended the time and money to go out to bid for the lowest price.

Purchasing off of a state contract by municipalities is a very efficient way to get the best price, just like the purchase of police cars off state contract that the board approved at a previous meeting. If there is a need to micromanage expenses, why incur the cost of bidding again and maybe not having as big a pool of bidders as the state can obtain.

I at least applaud Mr. Messina for wishing to open the Town Board meetings to more people; I have to wonder why the board members are so against this.

Everyone in town to should try to attend a board meeting to see your representatives in action and to take some time to express your views to your elected officials, in public and on record so they can't forget or hide it. Don't let them assume what you want, or give you political sound bites. Make them work for you, the taxpayer, for a better town.

Hold every politician accountable.

Opposition to webcasting 'petulance and puppetry'

Editor, The Spotlight:

Politicians are held in particularly low esteem by the public these days, with approval ratings approximating that of used car salesmen. Recent activities at Bethlehem's Town Board resoundingly confirm that ugly view of elected officials. The circumstances behind the latest bruhaha, as reported in last week's Spotlight, are as follows: Town Supervisor Sam Messina, following up on his and the Town Board's widely expressed support for more open government, entered into an agreement for the webcasting of board meetings. This has become a common means within government at all levels to provide greater access to public activities.

Notwithstanding their prior lip service for more open government, the four other board members reacted with a charade of horror to Mr. Messina's alleged act of despotism. The four — Kyle Kotary, Mark Jordan, Mark Hennessey and Joann Dawson — obviously hope that this move, proposed by the supervisor to promote public access and accountability, could somehow be spun as evidence of Mr. Messina's malfeasance. Even former supervisor Jack Cunningham, presumably presenting the Town of Colonie position, joined the chicanery, in a public letter. All this fuss over a small step, costing less than .0001 percent of the town budget, and in fact already budgeted to the Supervisor's appropriation, to improve public access to the activities of our elected officials! One would hope that they could focus on real issues.

Bethlehem's citizens have every right to be horrified at the actions of our Town Board, but for reasons altogether different than those cited at the meeting. Mr. Messina's four board opponents have opted to follow the intensely partisan script that has become endemic in our state and national politics. Committed as they are solely to the restoration of their party's control of the supervisor's position, they have decided that their wildly exaggerated claims will somehow resonate with the public. If the voters were to witness this horror show — through webcasts or otherwise — they would be disgusted by this foursome's obstructionism, petulance and puppetry.

It is unfortunate that even in Bethlehem gamesmanship trumps even a base level of cooperation and decency that the voters of this town overwhelmingly desire.

V'ville quilt group gives to Army Baby

Blankets go to infants who have parent serving overseas

On Thursday, June 3, the Voorheesville Village Quilters invited Roberta Cerniglia, founder of The Army Baby Quilting Project, to their monthly meeting at the Voorheesville Public Library so they could donate quilts to the organization.

The Army Baby Quilting Project is an organization that sends quilts to mothers across the country whose partners are serving in Iraq or Afghanistan and have yet to meet their babies. It was founded in 2004 after Cerniglia's son graduated from the United States Military Academy at West Point and was transferred to Schofield Barracks in Hawaii. Cerniglia went to visit her son, only to discover just how many young mothers were there raising their babies alone. The fathers of the babies were all serving in Iraq or Afghanistan and had not yet been home to meet their children.

Army Baby Quilt Project founder Roberta Cerniglia and Voorheesville Village Quilters co-founder Julie-Ann Fortran display some quilts to be donated to military moms.

"A quilt begins with scattered pieces, scattered like members of military families around the world. The finished quilt is the joining of all the pieces to make a whole. Hopefully, soon all our Army families will be whole again," Cerniglia said. "This is a way for us to say that Army Baby is really grateful for what you've done."

The Voorheesville Village Quilters donated 28 quilts to the project.

At the conclusion of the meeting, as she looked out on a crowd of teary-eyed women, Cerniglia announced, "Don't cry - quilt!"

For information about the Army Baby Quilt Project, e-mail armybabies@gmail.com or visit www.armybabies.com.

The Voorheesville Village Quilters meets on the first Thursday of every month at the Voorheesville Public Library.

Three honored at Eagle ceremony

Boy Scout Troop 58 of Elsmere celebrated a three-scout Eagle Court of Honor for Daniel Rios, Luke Herzog and Robert Tateo on Saturday, May 1, at the Bethlehem Lutheran Church.

All three attend Bethlehem Central High School and started their scouting careers as first-graders in Pack 272 of Slingerlands Elementary School, where they all earned the Arrow of Light award, the highest award in Cub Scouts, as fifth-graders.

The Eagle ceremony was attended by over 100 scouts, leaders, family and friends.

The award coincides with Troop 58's 90th anniversary. The troop started its tradition of outdoor skills, character building and service to the community only 10 years after the formation of the Boy Scout of America movement in 1910.

Lin, Morton win 2010 scholarships

Bethlehem Central High School seniors Yufan Lin and Jeffrey Morton are winners of the 2010 scholarships sponsored by Friends of Bethlehem Public Library.

Each received $500 for their essays describing how they would persuade a reluctant library user to come to our library. Judging criteria also included high school transcripts and faculty recommendations. You can read the winning entries at friends.bethlehempubliclibrary.org.

The mission of our library Friends is to increase community awareness of library services, offer cultural and educational programs to residents, and assist the library with special projects such as our winter concert series "A Little Sunday Music," our Writers and Friends guest author series, and the annual Riverway Storytelling Festival finale.

Friends also sponsor many of our museum passes and run seasonal bus trips: Glimmerglass

Opera in the summer, New York City during the winter holiday season, and Boston in the spring.

The Friends' 2010-2011 annual membership appeal is now under way.

Memberships range from $20 to $250. The Friends are a nonprofit organization; your contribution may be tax-deductible, and it will return many benefits to our community.

Membership brochures and donation forms are available in the library and online at friends.bethlehempubliclibrary.org. More information about the Friends, including meeting dates and minutes, are available there, as well.

Library plans party for families

It's a party! The families of Romp & Read and Library Babies are invited to celebrate with Kathy Meyer on Thursday, June 17, at 7pm in the Village of Ravena Court Room (enter on the right side of the building from the library entrance). Mark your calendar and bring the family for stories, activities and refreshments!

Clark Museum pass

It's back! Once again this summer, the Sterling and Francine Clark Art Institute in Williamstown, Mass has very generously donated a museum pass to us.

The pass, which may be checked out by RCS Community Library residents, is available for adult check out on a first come first serve basis.

RCS COMMUNITY LIBRARY

Using the pass entitles the borrower to free admission for two adults. Children 18 and under, and students with ID are always free.

This summer's special exhibit is Picasso Looks at Degas, on view from June 13 to Sept. 12. The Clark is the only North American venue for this exhibit, and your library card can be your passport to the show.

Free summer programs

School will be over before you know it, so now is the time to start thinking about summer activities. The library offers a variety of programs.

They begin the week of July 5 and will continue through Aug. 13. A few of our programs require registration, which begins this week.

Library Babies and Romp & Read resume their regular schedules during the first week of July.

Positively Preschool moves to Thursdays at 11 a.m. during the summer.

Chess-Club for Kids: Kids of all abilities are invited to join this multi-age group on Wednesdays from 4 to 5:30pm.

• All library programming is free (unless otherwise noted) and open to the public. RCS Community Library is located at 15 Mountain Road, Ravena. For information, call 756-2053 or visit www.uhls.org/RCSCL/.

Signup slated for summer reading program

On Monday, June 14, signup begins for the 2010 Summer Reading Program.

SRP is open to young people preschool through teens to encourage them to develop positive attitudes about reading and books and maintain their reading skills during summer vacation. It promises to be a summer of fun, fun, fun for all ages as we feature programs involving all aspects of water in accordance with this year's theme of Make A Splash - Read.

Different age levels will examine water bugs with George Steele, listen to water music, pet real fish, snakes and turtles, build a waterwheel and visit The Shark Zone. Specials for teens will have them elbow deep in tie-dye, Wii games and Chinese food, competing in Guitar Hero and learning about podcasts. There will be Book Events, complete with another Battle of the (Water) Books! Any age is welcome at two Splash Theatre movies with free popcorn.

Register anytime all summer with our online form through the library website from home or at the library. Keep track of your books read while on vacation or at camp. Students can print off their list of books at the end of the summer to bring to school. Mrs. Laiosa will keep track of popular books and series. We are also asking everyone to post reviews of favorite books on the website. Everyone registered is eligible for prizes at every program they attend. The form, the list of programs and the calendar are all available at www.voorheesvillelibrary.org.

Barbara Vink

• All library programming is free (unless otherwise noted) and open to the public. Voorheesville Public Library is located at 51 School Road, Voorheesville. For information, call 765-2791 or visit www.voorheesvillelibrary.org.

Half a world away

BC students tell of their journey to China

By CHARLES WIFF
wiffc@spotlightnews.com

For many, it was their first time overseas. Most didn't speak the language. But for a group of Bethlehem Central High School students, a spring trip to China was a memorable experience for each and every one.

Over spring break, 33 students and 12 adults took a 17-hour plane ride to the Far East, then took a whirlwind trip through the country that included skyscrapers, temples, monuments and a Wonder of the World.

Surprisingly, most of the students were not acquaintances before the trip. By the time they boarded the plane back to the States, however, they had shared nine hectic days.

"We were like a big family in the end, but in the beginning it was so awkward," said Raina Puels.

The cost per person was $2,900, which covered the entire trip. None of the cost came out of the school budget.

Despite making it halfway around the world to China, the group had to board more planes just to make it around the massive country. In all, they visited three cities — Xian, Shanghai and Beijing — that showed them different sides of a country that is ancient and modernized at the same time.

"It was a great experience to see that much of a different culture," sophomore Sam Baker said.

But throughout, the students said, the friendliness and openness of the people permeated the experience.

"I felt like I was a native and they were the tourists," said senior Damaris Skelton, who said she was taken for a member of the Obama family on one occasion.

Despite having only a few Chinese students in the group, they made it around with the help of guides and the fact much of the population speaks English. Most picked up the basics by the time they left, such as "hello," "good morning" and "get away from me."

The students enjoyed diverse food far removed from Chinese restaurants in America; including silk worm, lotus root, a range of dumplings and, of course, rice. They even sampled the Chinese versions of McDonald's and KFC (fun fact: the largest KFC restaurant in the world is in Beijing).

But perhaps the most interesting meal was the one taken in Hutong Village, a fairly poor area of Beijing protected from development by the government to preserve a traditional lifestyle in a modernized city. There, students sat down with a Chinese family.

Thirty-three students and 12 adults traveled to China over spring break this year in the first overseas trip authorized by the BC School District since 2001. Their nine days in the Far East not only took them to famous landmarks, but showed them a side of the country not found in any textbook.

Submitted photo

"I'd say the best meal we had was in the Hutong Village," said Puels.

Besides visiting ancient marvels like the Great Wall and Terracotta Army, the group also made stops in the financial district of Shanghai, where they rode the world's fastest elevator and even visited a disco.

"We went halfway around the world and there were many aspects of the city that were like western cities," said junior Ray Futia. "It's just a really small world."

That became even more evident when the group ran into students from Ballston Spa in Tienanmen Square. The students said that location was another highlight.

"Those bricks on the ground are 600 years old. It's an eerie feeling being in history," senior Joiele Coplin said.

But at the same time, the differences in culture were always present. Coplin said her trip to an open market, where slabs of raw meat were being bargained for, stuck out in her mind.

"That's how they shop, and they don't think twice about it," she said. "Seeing the open market was the most memorable thing for me."

The trip, halfway around the world was the first overseas expedition authorized by the district since a travel moratorium was imposed following the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks in 2001. It was so successful, plans are already in the works for a similar one next year, said teacher Marsha Buanno.

Summer

they're a diminishing resource. But Bethlehem has one in the Jericho Drive-In Theater, which has been open since 1957, a boom time for such operations.

Today, there are fewer than 30 in New York. Mike and Lisa Chenette have operated Jericho since 1995.

Besides nostalgia, these days price might be the biggest draw to the Jericho.

"I think it's a really enjoyable experience for the entire family, and it's not as expensive as going to the indoors theater," said Lisa Chenette. "It's a place where you can bring the entire family, including the dog and the cat."

For those who enjoy a throwback to earlier days beyond the outdoor theater, the second and fourth Tuesday of every month is a "Good Ole Days Car Cruise."

Admission will be free from 5 to 8 p.m., and attendees will enjoy '50s and '60s music, trophies, dinner deals, raffles and a free soft serve cone for the cruise driver. There is parking for 300 cars, and those who show up with a vintage car will receive discounted admission to that night's features.

The drive-in also features the Twist Ice Cream Shop, which is open from noon to 8 p.m. on Sunday through Thursday and noon to 9 p.m. on the weekends.

You can find more details on the Jericho Drive-In Theater, including the current features, at www.jerichodrive-in.com. Two movies show every night, and this summer will present a strong selection of kids' movies, Chenette said.

•Toll Gate

1569 News Scotland Road, Slingerlands (near the intersection with Kenwood Avenue)

When the weather heats up, there's one solution that's bound to satisfy everyone: ice cream.

And at the Toll Gate in Slingerlands, they've been cooling people down and feeding sweet teeth for over 60 years. Robert Zautner's grandfather founded the eatery in 1949, and he operates it today along with his father.

The namesake goes back even further than the Toll Gate's opening, though. The corner of New Scotland Road and Kenwood Avenue is the arguable center of Slingerlands, and also where traffic on one of the town's plank roads passed in the mid 19th century.

But now, instead of a ride down a plank road, your money will get you a range of delights.

Despite having a wide selection of fare, including summer pleasers like hamburgers and fries, what the Toll Gate is best

The Toll Gate in Slingerlands has been serving homemade ice cream for over 60 years.

Charles Wiff/Spotlight

the same way it was when the Toll Gate first started.

"It's pretty much the same machine," said Zautner. "We've had a couple of different versions over the years, but they're all pretty much the same. ... We try to use the best ingredients we can buy, that's always the key to making good ice cream."

During the summer months, The Toll Gate is open 11 a.m. to 10 p.m., seven days a week.

•Indian Ladder Farms

342 Altamont Voorheesville Road, Altamont

Peter Ten Eyck, whose family has owned Indian Ladder Farms for decades, said being a member of the community and offering quality service is essential to the farm's business model. The farm is located on Route 156 on the border of Guilderland, other fruits spring up.

"We're hoping that people are going to come out here to pick blue berries," Ten Eyck said.

On June 20, Father's Day, the farm will sponsor a food festival.

Store hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The Yellow Rock Café is open 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday and Wednesday through Friday. It is also open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekends. Call 765-2956 for information.

•Hoffman's Playland

608 New Loudon Road, Latham

Glenn Kewley, who has managed Hoffman's Playland for 15 years, said he considers the park a community staple. As big theme parks get even bigger, many smaller ones are struggling. The 7-acre Hoffman's sits somewhere right in the middle, giving kids something to do when the weather gets warm.

"There are very few parks like this in the U.S. left," Kewley said. "We carved out a niche."

He said the park, located on Route 9 in Latham, employs 150 people and focuses on providing a safe, comfortable environment for locals.

"We let them know that we are dealing with people and children. It's not a product," he said of the Playland's staffers, who keep the park running from April through September.

Much of the park's success is weather dependant, Kewley said, with the past two years less than ideal. This year has started well, though.

"We had some beautiful weather. We were pleasantly pleased," he said.

Kewley said there are 19 rides and an arcade, and admission is free. Tickets purchased for rides are good all season.

Rebecca Edwards said her son, Henry, visits three times a week, and her whole family enjoys spending days at Hoffman's.

"The kids love it here," she said.

Hoffman's Playland is open noon through 9 p.m. Call 785-3842 for information.

Empire State College to hold 2010 graduation

Empire State College will hold its 2010 graduation ceremony on Saturday, June 12 in the Hart Theatre of the Egg.

The College will graduate 212 Capital Region adults, who will be receiving associate, bachelor's, and master's degrees. Businessman and Philanthropist Richard Liebich, former chairman of the Empire State College Council, will receive an honorary Doctor of Human Letters degree from the State University of New York. Liebich is the chief executive officer of the Charitable Leadership Foundation and chairman of the Charitable Venture foundation.

For information, visit www.esc.edu.

Stock answers

BCCHS seniors Sam Stern, left, and Alex Iselin placed second out of 207 teams in the Capital Region High School Division Stock Market Game for their investments over the entire year. This was the first year that BCCHS students competed in the year-long schedule, which is a more challenging and valid simulation of the stock market. The group had a 14.3349 percent return above the S&P 500 Growth index.

people come here when they're sad," said Lorie Meineker, owner of the 57-year-old ice cream stand.

Kurver Kreme, located at the corner of Central Avenue and Fuller Road, is popular among locals, Meineker said, adding that some customers make trips a few times a week.

"Owning this place is fabulous because we're so loved by the community," she said. "It's a tradition with families. Many times we'll get three or four generations."

She said her own family helps out at the stand and a close family friend designed the menu logo, adding to Kurver Kreme's sense of community.

"The family has grown up with it," Meineker said. "I grew up here. We put 150 percent into everything we do here."

Buying local products, is also a priority of Kurver Kreme's.

"We like to do business with the local people as much as we can - to support the community - keep the money here as much as possible," Meineker said.

Kurver Kreme is open Monday through Friday: 11 a.m. to 9:30 p.m., Saturday, from noon to 9:30 p.m. and Sunday from 1 to 9 p.m. Call 459-4120 for information.

•Jumping Jacks

5 Schonowee Ave., Scotia

Mark Lansing keeps Jumping Jacks simple - one line with a family friendly atmosphere and a menu of summer favorites.

Curry Freeze in Rotterdam has been owned by Bob Draiss since 2002.

Sean Ahern/Spotlight

Jumping Jacks, established in 1952 as a ice cream stand, later evolved into something more, with residents flocking to it starting at the end of March for fried fish, hamburgers, onion rings, shakes and other summertime favorites.

"It's kind of like a rite of spring, a sign that winter is over," said Lansing, who started working there in 1962 under former owner Jack Brennan, for whom the summer hot spot is named. Lansing eventually bought the establishment in 1976 when Brennan retired.

"He wanted to retire, and I wanted an opportunity to advance. I was in the right place at the right time," said Lansing.

Since then, Lansing has worked to build on the eatery's family friendly tradition. His two sons - David and Mark Jr. - work alongside him.

"They're my retirement, but I don't plan on retiring soon. I'm having too much fun," said Lansing.

The Village of Scotia even has tips on its Web site for ordering food at the fast-food joint, including reminders that drinks are ordered separate from the meal, it is likely 10 degrees warmer at Jumping Jacks on any given day than anywhere else and leaving a tip will cause employees to shout "Subway!" in response.

Jumping Jacks is open daily from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m., with the U.S. Water Ski Show Team performing there every Tuesday evening through the summer.

•Curry Freeze

1085 Curry Road, Rotterdam

Through 50 years and three owners, Curry Freeze has provided frosty delights to residents of Rotterdam, Guiderland and the city of Schenectady. Owned by Bob Draiss since 2002, the ice cream shop creates its own hard ice cream alongside ice cream cakes, cones and sandwiches.

"Pretty much everything we have here is homemade and made with high quality ingredients," said Draiss.

Draiss' ice cream roots run deep. His parents are the former owners of Corner Ice Cream Store in Guiderland, and he has been around ice cream for most of his life. "My family's been in this for a long time."

As the third owner of the store, Draiss has used his own roots in ice cream to create specialty flavors like Panda Paws, Muddy Sneakers and Piece of Cake. Draiss said that he is also able to tweak the recipes to come up with custom flavors. One such request was a mint Oreo style ice cream. Draiss often tests out new flavors on his employees - local high school and college students.

"I'll go to them and say, 'Try this ice cream,' and they'll be very responsive for me," said Draiss. "If someone wants a special request, we can make it."

•PJ's Bar-B-Q

Route 9, Saratoga Springs

Driving down Route 9 into Saratoga Springs, you might notice the big white and red sign boasting "Chicken n Ribs." That sign and the establishment, PJ's Bar-B-Q, have been mainstays for 27 years and the family-run joint specializes in just what the sign advertises, plus plenty more.

"The longevity of lasting through the ups and down of the economy speaks for itself. We're kind of the beginning of spring and hope for good weather. There's a small window of time, about five months; when our food is available, and I think people really look forward to that and enjoy it," said Carolyn Davis.

Davis, her husband John "PJ," their daughter and their son and his wife operate what has become a destination of sorts for the summer months, attracting hungry customers from the Capital District and beyond.

"Our most popular seller has always been the barbecue chicken and ribs, but coming in a real close second is our pulled pork and beef brisket," said Davis.

The pork and beef are smoked overnight right on the premises, and all their meat is cooked in huge pits out back over charcoal briquettes. Their specialty is "Saratoga style" barbecue sauce but they also offer various meat sandwiches, signature curly fries and frozen custard treats for dessert. The family channels its Western New York roots by offering Wick, a Kaiser roll popular in the Buffalo region where they grew up that has caraway seeds and coarse salt on it. They also boast garbage platters, hot dogs shipped from Buffalo and their own Loganberry soda, also shipped.

Davis said folks come for more than the food; they come for the atmosphere. Tuesdays are "Bar-B-Cruis-in" with classic cars. Thursdays are Bike Night and can see up to 200 motorcyclists on a nice summer night. Sunday afternoons mean a clown who makes free balloon animals and every night there's a DJ who plays songs from the '50s.

PJs also does its part in revving up the anticipated opening day by reminding people all winter.

"We have a countdown. Starting at about 20 weeks to go, our sign has a countdown that shows until we open. People have told us it helps them get through the winter. PJs has taken on a life of its own," said Davis.

For a full menu, more information about the PJ's family, the brands and upcoming franchise ventures and news, check out the Web site at www.pjsbarbq.com. It's open every day at 11 a.m.

•JJ's Snack Bar

21 Saratoga Ave., Ballston Spa

JJ's Snack Bar prides itself on having a little something for everyone.

For 20 years, the family snack shack has been known for its ice cream and the large variety available, from lactose-free to frozen yogurt to protein heavy, for the health conscious to traditional soft serve, even offering gluten-free cones.

"We have 42 flavors, and flavor bursts are definitely very popular, especially the blue goo (cotton candy) and green slime (apple). We have peanut butter cup soft serve and we're different because we put flavor bursts on chocolate and vanilla," said Mary Desilippo, owner.

a different day each year, usually whenever the winter weather breaks. Desilippo said the business has become a recognizable landmark in Ballston Spa. "We have great burgers, fish fry and ribbon fries we make right here to order. They're spirals and you get a big heap with cheese sauce. We have home-baked rolls from a local bakery delivered daily and a lot of ice cream specialties like 'dirt and worms' and 'coconut creation,'" said Desilippo. "We have a lot of sprinkles like the Ballston ones of gold and purple, red, white and blue for the holidays and toasted coconut."

JJ's has also become a popular spot for weekends and post-baseball games because of the huge playground for the kids.

Entertainment in the Spotlight

Pro Musica goes pop

Classical choral group to 'loosen up' at Shaker Meeting House concert

By JACQUELINE M. DOMIN
dominj@spotlightnews.com

Services at the 1848 Shaker Meeting House in Colonie used to be a huge draw in the Capital District. People curious about the Shakers' traditions, which were heavy with dance and music, would turn out, with authors Herman Melville and James Fenimore Cooper among the crowds.

Hoping to reignite people's interest in the meetinghouse, the Shaker Heritage Society is marketing the space as a venue for concerts. It will host a Saturday, June 12, show featuring Albany Pro Musica, a 60-member semi-professional choral group that is trying to expand its appeal as well. Taking a break from its standard classical numbers, Albany Pro Musica will perform a mix of show tunes, songs from the '50s and '60s and do-wop numbers in a "Pops Night Cabaret" slated for 7:30 p.m.

"It's fun, a little different," Albany Pro Musica's executive director, Jean Leonard, said. "It's fun to do songs you know people will automatically recognize."

The chorus does have some recent experience in that area — in October, it did a selection of patriotic and folk tunes called "America's Song." Looking for a local historic venue to fit the theme of the show, group officials checked out the meetinghouse but decided it would be too small since the Capital District Youth Orchestra was sharing the stage.

But Leonard and David Griggs-Janower, the group's conductor and artistic director, realized the meetinghouse could be a great fit for the cabaret night.

"It's a pretty amazing building," Griggs-Janower said.

"The acoustics are fantastic," Leonard said. "It's a big, open room, and it's an easy place to put out tables and chairs. It will be perfect."

David Griggs-Janower, Albany Pro Musica's conductor and artistic director, said his work with the group is "great fun."

That's a message Startyn D'Angelo hopes other groups hear loud and clear. The executive director of the Shaker Heritage Society, D'Angelo called the meetinghouse one of the area's "hidden jewels."

"We see it as a natural oasis," she said, adding that the heritage society takes great pride in the meetinghouse's place in history. Located on land that was considered home to the first Shaker settlement in the country, the building was central to a group of people who envisioned a utopian society.

"They had a tremendous influence on decorative arts and music," D'Angelo said.

While she hopes that the concert will pique people's interest in the Shakers and the meetinghouse, Griggs-Janower similarly hopes it will create some new Albany Pro Musica fans.

"It might introduce us to some people who wouldn't come out for Bach," he said with a laugh.

That's not to say Albany Pro Musica's regular repertoire lacks an audience. Back in 1981, some friends approached Griggs-Janower about forming a chamber choir since there wasn't one in the Capital District.

"I was always game to start something," Griggs-Janower said.

There were two things that set the group apart: its small size and the quality of the singers. Although Albany Pro Musica is a volunteer group, music is a career for many members, who teach and direct throughout the area.

"They just simply have music as their passion," Leonard said.

"It's not a social group," Griggs-Janower said. "It's a musical group. These people really devote themselves."

One of the devotees is Ann Derrick, a soprano who directs the choirs at Burnt Hills-Ballston Lake High School. After majoring in voice and piano in college, Derrick did some teaching, then branched out into performing. She was in a number of theatrical shows around the country before settling in New York City. She met her husband there and they later moved to the Capital District, where Derrick heard about Albany Pro Musica through friends.

"I thought, 'This would be fun,'" she said, and her four years with the group have proved to be just that. Derrick said she thrives on the passion everyone brings to Albany Pro Musica.

"It is fantastic," she said. "I can't even describe anything else in my life that's even close to it."

She's gotten to share that passion firsthand with her students, who performed with Albany Pro Musica at Troy Music Hall in April as part of the group's "Adopt a Choir" program.

Derrick said performing at the music hall was a thrill, and she's equally excited about taking the stage at the meetinghouse.

"It's such a unique little place," she said. "There's not anything else like it in the area."

Derrick is also looking forward to reaching out to people with a different style of music.

"It's territory we're not used to," she said.

The concert offers a rare chance for chorus members to "show off," according to Leonard, with several having solos or singing in small groups. Derrick will perform a duet of "All I Ask of You" from "Phantom of the Opera" and be part of a quartet singing "Route 66."

"I love the jazz style," she said.

ALBANY Pro Musica

Leonard, meanwhile, still sings with the group, which she joined in 1997 after moving to the Capital District. For the cabaret show, she will duet on "Anything You Can Do, I Can Do Better."

Griggs-Janower, who also serves as the director of choral music and teaches at the University at Albany, said the chorus has toyed with the idea of a pops concert for a while, with some fans of the group urging one.

"I think they're looking forward to hearing pop music done at the level we usually perform at," he said.

The show should also be a treat for Albany Pro Musica's members, he said.

"We spent so much time trying to do classical music," he said. "This is a chance to reminds ourselves we can loosen up. It really gives them an outlet."

Admission is $10, or $5 for students. Leonard advised people to buy tickets early as a big crowd is expected. They are available on Albany Pro Musica's web site www.albanypromusica.org. Food and drinks will be available.

The meetinghouse is at 875 Watervliet Shaker Road, Colonie. For information on the meetinghouse and the Shaker Heritage Society, visit www.shakerheritage.org.

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Hughes

state and unable to give consent, and her memory from the night is incomplete.

The woman delivered her account of the evening Friday, June 4, to a jury made up of an equal number of men and women.

The woman, who is a mother of three, including a soldier wounded in Iraq, said she went out with two friends on Oct. 18, 2008, stopping at two locations before ending up at My Place, a sports bar on Delaware Avenue in Delmar. There, she sat next to Hughes at the bar. Later on, her friends left but she stayed.

"I said I'd take a cab home. They asked, 'Are you sure?' and I said, 'Yes, don't worry about it,'" she testified.

The next memory she had was sitting in the parking lot of Hughes' apartment complex, crying and with her sweater and jacket removed, she said.

After knocking on the door of the apartment and speaking to Hughes' roommate, who was unable to call a cab for her, she went to a nearby Stewart's store and dialed 911. Police arrived, gave her a breathalyzer, and took her home.

"I was scared more than anything," she testified. "It's hard to explain exactly how I felt."

She said she did not feel particularly drunk while at My Place, just "tipsy." She awoke the next day in pain and, at the behest of her sister, went to Albany Medical Center, where a rape kit examination was performed.

In her opening statements, Assistant District Attorney Shannon Sarfoh said this examination yielded DNA evidence that was linked to Hughes.

In his opening statements, Hughes' attorney Robert Molloy presented a markedly different version of events. He said the two struck up a conversation and flirted at the bar before agreeing to go back to Hughes' apartment, where they engaged in consensual sex.

"Frankly, they did what couples on a one-night stand do. It's not more than that, it's not less than that," Molloy said.

Hughes then asked her to leave and fell asleep on the couch. He only awoke when his roommate returned, and then he went to bed, Molloy said.

"Was he a creep about it, a jerk about it? Yeah, I'll give you that, but it's not a crime," he continued.

The alleged victim said she had no romantic interest in Hughes and wouldn't have recognized him in court if his face hadn't been in newspapers and on television. This claim was contested on Monday, June 7, by the testimony My Place bartender and bar-back Trevor Cox and Kari Steele, who observed Hughes and the woman on the night in question. Cox said the pair did not appear to be intoxicated, and Steele said the alleged victim bought Bobby Hughes a drink and appeared to be "flirting."

"It's a bar, everyone flirts," Steele said.

Bethlehem police officer Ryan Van Amburgh and the alleged victim's sister also made statements on Monday. Van Amburgh, who responded to the call made by the alleged victim the night of the incident, said she was "visibly upset, emotionally upset and intoxicated."

"She just wanted a cab. She wanted to go home," Van Amburgh said.

He said the victim was acting belligerent, and if she did not stop swearing police could have arrested her on disorderly conduct charges.

The victim's sister, who testified she was passed information from Bethlehem officer Chris Hughes, no relation to Robert, said Detective Charles Radloff's handling of the case was unsatisfactory.

"We didn't feel we were given the customer service we deserved," the sister said of the Bethlehem Police Department.

When initially interviewed by police, Hughes said he gave the woman a ride from the bar but that she exited his truck in the parking lot of the apartment complex and began to act in a strange manner. He denied any sexual contact.

Molloy explained his client's "inaccurate statement" was a way to defer the shame of a one night stand with a woman nearly twice his age and also to avoid harming his sports career.

Also at issue are 89 minutes worth of phone calls between the woman and a man in Alaska. The man apparently served as a mentor for her son and the family as he transitioned from combat.

The woman said she does not remember the calls.

Toxicology

An important element of the prosecution's case will be proving to the jury the woman was in a state that she could not have provided consent for the sex act. Both sides called on toxicologists to provide testimony.

Dr. Lee Blum of

NMS Laboratories in Pennsylvania testified he performed an analysis of the woman's urine taken during the hospital examination, and found five drugs, including anti-anxiety and antidepressant medications and Benadryl in addition to alcohol.

The alleged victim said she had taken less than her normal dosage of her medications knowing she would be going out.

A toxicologist called by the defense, Dr. William R. Sawyer, from Florida, said he had reviewed the analysis and said the combination of the drugs and the amount of alcohol she drank could lead to decreased judgment.

He also said amnesia is a documented side effect of Effexor and Celexa, two antidepressants found.

Sarfoh noted the side effects of Lexapro (another antidepressant) and Celexa include lethargy and decreased sex drive.

Sawyer testified the analysis indicates there is no way the woman could have overdosed on the drugs, and does not show the presence of any rape drug.

House, Kingsbury exchange vows

Heather House and Michael Kingsbury were married on February 13, 2010. The Bride is the daughter of Art House of Albany, N.Y. and Susan Tanner of Holiday, Florida. The Groom is the son of Dave and Kathy Kingsbury of Colonie, N.Y.

The wedding took place in Lori Wilson Park, North Beach, in Cocoa Beach, Florida. The flower girl was Alyssa Salvione, niece of the groom. The ring bearer was Mark Czwakiel, son of the Bride.

A reception was held at Stadium Golf Club in Schenectady, N.Y.

The Bride is a graduate of Stillwater

High School. She earned a Cosmetology License from Austin Beauty School and a degree in medical billing from Brandford Hall.

The Groom graduated from Colonie Central High School. He attended Hudson Valley Community College, SUNY Albany, and NYPD Academy where he earned a Master's in Criminal Justice. He is a Police Officer with the New York Police Department in Brooklyn, N.Y.

The couple took a honeymoon trip to Orlando, Florida and will travel to Mexico in July. They reside in Staten Island, N.Y.

Dropping in for a day

Deana Harrington, member services manager, and Wendy Meola, director of marketing of Community Resource Federal Credit Union, volunteered at Interfaith Partnership for the Homeless's Sheridan Hollow Drop-in Shelter, 26 South Swan St, Albany on Tuesday, May 25. They sorted clothing and shoes in the Clothing Pantry, a "store" where visitors can take donated clothing for free. From left are Meola; Willie Cheney, Clothing Pantry attendant, and Harrington.

Redlich

Redlich, who is running for governor on the Libertarian line, said he does make such claims, only because he handles a number of traffic cases, more than 99 percent, where his client does not have to appear in court.

"My Web site is honest," he said. "My Web site is straightforward."

In its ruling, the Committee of Professional Standards said Redlich should not practice law in town court because, as a councilman, he has oversight of the judges' salaries and the police department. The committee also called into question his legal advertising practices, but Redlich said they are in compliance with the law.

Redlich is seeking an injunction against the standards committee.

"The ethics rules allow for arbitrary and discriminatory enforcement and impose onerous restrictions on both commercial, noncommercial and political speech that the state has no legitimate interest in regulating. The rules are unconstitutional under the first, sixth and 14th Amendments to the U.S. Constitution," according to the summary of Redlich's suit.

Mark Ochs, chief attorney for the Committee on Professional Standards for the Appellate Division of the New York, Supreme Court; James L. Chivers, chairman for the Committee on Professional Standards; Anthony V. Cardona, presiding justice of the Appellate Division; and Michael Philip, deputy chief attorney for the Committee on Professional Standards are cited in as defendants in Redlich's case.

When his clients are set to appear in Guilderland court, Redlich said he asks that the case be moved to another municipality where he has no jurisdiction. In doing so, there is no conflict, he said.

Redlich said one case involving a Guilderland police officer was moved to Bethlehem town court after his 2008 election, and his firm has not taken any cases involving police officers in Guilderland since then.

Complaints were made to the standards committee shortly after he was elected councilman.

"I just got elected and they started shooting," he said.

Guilderland Supervisor Ken Runion said he had anticipated a potential conflict in 2008 and suspended budget workshops with the Town Board members and some departments, including police, in order to avoid a conflict between Redlich and those involved in law enforcement in town.

"They're not required by law," Runion said of the workshops.

Redlich also said he reserves the right to defend his mother should she appear in court in Guilderland, and the decision by the ethics committee would infringe on her sixth amendment right to council.

Redlich dismissed other complaints made by the standards committee about spoof news stories he posted on a United Kingdom-based Web site involving "edgy" material, including jokes about Britney Spears' sister.

"That allegation is kind of trivial," he said.

Redlich said the Democratic "political machine" in Albany County is behind the committee's ruling.

He said many Democrats, including Judge Mike Breslin, Albany County District Attorney David Soares and Guilderland grant writer Don Csaposs all have written complaints against him in the committee report.

"It's clearly politically motivated," he said.

Your Community in The Spotlight

Tech camp held at BCMS

Hudson Valley Community College will offer its Technology Enrichment Program at Bethlehem Middle School this summer for students entering grades 5 through 8.

The program, which runs 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. from July 12 through 16, helps students discover their interests in a variety of hands-on, interactive learning sessions. Topics include engineering, electronics, and rocketry, and time out for physical activities also will be built into each day.

Course instructors include science and technology teachers from the Bethlehem Central School District, including Andrew Cancio, Timothy Connelly, Lisa Kniffen, Todd Tyler and Cheri White. The cost for the five-day camp is $245.

For more information, contact the college's Office of Community and Professional Education at (518) 629-7339.

BHA exhibit to start

The Bethlehem Historical Association presently presents a new exhibit for the summer season, "Vintage Clothing, New to Us."

This exhibit features items recently acquired from local families. Men's, women's, and children's clothing and accessories that date from the 1860s to the 1940s will be on display.

This exhibit is free and open to the public. It can be seen at the Cedar Hill School Museum on the corner of River and Clapper Roads. The museum will be open on Sunday afternoons, June 13 to Sept. 26, from 2 to 4 p.m.

The Opening Reception on June 13 will include an Ice Cream Social. For that occasion, the hours will be extended, 1 to 4 p.m.

Nervosity to host event

On Friday, June 18 Nervosity will be hosting an event at Tawasentha Park, Guilderland from 6 to 10 p.m. There will be a battle of the bands showcasing 12 of the area's best high school bands, as well as a skate

Help BC win a grant for homework help program

The district is seeking $50,000 in grant funding to provide an after school homework help program next year across the district's six elementary schools and the Middle School, and your vote could help put it over the top.

Voting will be taking place throughout the month of June through the Pepsi Corporations' "Refresh" grant program. Students, parents, faculty and staff members and community members and taxpayers can vote once per day per e-mail address for "BCSD HOMEWORK HELP."

Voting can be done by visiting www.refresheverything.com/bcsdhomeworkhelp.

The grant funding would allow each elementary school and the Middle School to host afterschool homework help sessions for students who need any help. The program would also include monthly training sessions and access to technology resources for parents.

Like school districts around the state and country in these difficult economic times, BC is seeking alternative sources of revenue beyond taxes. Due to budget cutbacks, Homework Help is a program the district has offered and would like to continue but is not able to fund at this time.

In a survey earlier this school year about students' views on 21st Century Skills, two-thirds of high school students agreed with the statement,

"Homework helps me practice what I have learned."

"We are always striving to offer programs to strengthen students' skills," Pupil Personnel Services Director Rita Levay said. "This is a creative way to fund an important initiative in our community. I urge everyone to consider voting."

Anyone over age 13 with an e-mail address may vote. Each e-mail address may cast a vote each day through the end of the month, meaning that people with more than one e-mail address can cast multiple votes in a day. Grants are awarded based on the total number of votes received.

If you have questions please e-mail bchomeworkhelp@gmail.com.

The Pepsi Refresh Grant Program is a program where community organizations can submit grants in a variety of categories. Each idea submitted is evaluated by Pepsi and the selected ideas are posted for one month. At the close of the month the ideas with the most votes are awarded funding.

Previously a $25,000 Pepsi Refresh grant was secured by Glenmont Elementary first grade teacher Peter Rawitsch. The funds from the grant will fund a "Building Community Through Dance" program which will allow the school to bring a variety of presenters to facilitate interactive and instructional workshops at the school.

competition, dance competition and food.

Nervosity is a joint venture of Guilderland Performing Arts Center and Christ's Church that seeks to show teens the impact they have on the world.

Iris Society to hold sale

The Capital Hudson Iris Society will be holding its annual iris sale on Sunday, June 13 from 9 a.m. to noon at the Main Square Plaza in Delmar. There will be 45 varieties of Siberian irises available for purchase.

In addition, there will be many varieties of hostas, ferns, flowering perennials, ground covers and small bushes.

For information about the sale or CHIS activities, contact Euthemia Matsoukas at 439-3758.

Arts center to hold open mic

Old Songs Community Arts Center, 37 S. Main Street, Voorheesville, will be holding Sunday Four Poetry Open Mic Night on Sunday, June 27 at 3 p.m. The event will be hosted by Dennis Sullivan, Mike Burke and Edie Abrams and the featured poet will be Mary Kathryn Jablonski.

For information, e-mail dsullivan6@nycap.rr.com or call 469-0202.

Local man to receive degree

Businessman and philanthropist Richard Liebich will receive a Doctor of Humane Letters honorary degree on Saturday, June 12, from Empire State College.

Liebich was nominated because of his local philanthropy, having donated nearly $50 million to support education, scientific initiatives and social and community betterment projects.

Library to show film

The Bethlehem Public Library will be showing the award-winning documentary "Under Our Skin" on Thursday, June 10 in the library's community room, 451 Delaware Ave, Delmar. Doors open at 5:30 p.m. and the film begins at 6 p.m.

The film discusses the emerging epidemic of Lyme Disease. This event is free and open to the public. Anyone curious about Lyme Disease and its symptoms should come. Members of the Empire State Lyme Disease Association will be available to answer questions after the film.

Special showings for groups, schools, or organizations can be arranged by contacting the ESLDA at 631-818-6657.

Albany JCC to hold book talk

The Sidney Albert Albany Jewish Community Center will hold a Book Mavens session on Wednesday, June 23 from 3 to 4:30 p.m. in the Albany JCC's Massry Senior Center, located at 340 Whitehall Rd.

They will be discussing Peter Manseau's novel Songs for the Butcher's Daughter. Sixty-Plus Dining is available following the book talk at 4:45 p.m. and reservations will be taken until 9:30 a.m. on June 23.

Call the Albany JCC's senior adult office to register for the book discussion and/or dinner call 438-6651 x112.

Local student graduates

Edward Lytle of Delmar, NY graduated with a Bachelor of Arts in Music and Theatre from Muhlenberg College.

He is the son of Atty. & Mrs. James Lytle and is a graduate of Bethlehem Central High School.

Grange to host dinner

A chicken and biscuits dinner will be held at the Bethlehem Grange RR 396, Selkirk, on Saturday, June 12 from 5 to 7 p.m. Meals cost $9.

Proceeds benefit Wayne Lawson Jr., a three year-old boy who is currently undergoing treatment for Leukemia at Albany Medical Center. Their family is in need of financial assistance to put towards treatment.

For information, or to make a donation, contact Bonnie at 719-1666.

Hotel to host peace event

The Crown Plaza Hotel in Albany will host the National Conference to Bring the Troops Home Now from July 23 to 25.

The event, organized by 25 national peace groups, will be keynoted by internationally renowned political activist, author, and policy critic Noam Chomsky and Donna DeWitt, President of the South Carolina AFL-CIO and member of US Labor Against The War's Steering Committee.

One of the focuses of the conference will be on the unjust prosecution of Muslims like Yassim Aref and Mohammed Hossain of Albany Family members and supporters from around the country who have dealt with similar situations will also be present. The conference occurs as US involvement in Afghanistan increases.

For more information, call 518-227-6947, or visit www.nationalpeaceconference.org.

To Life! to hold support group

To Life! will hold a new support group for women newly diagnosed or in the early stages of breast cancer at their Delmar location. Meetings will take place the first Monday of every month at 7 p.m.

Participants are welcome to bring family members, friends, partners, or caregivers.

To Life! is located at 410 Kenwood Ave in Delmar. For more information, call Leanna Glavin at 439-5975 ext. 22 or email lgavin@tolife.org.

Delmar native graduates

Mark H. Shawhan, a Bethlehem High School and Columbia University graduate, graduated from Yale Law School on Monday, May 24. After taking the bar examination this summer, Shawhan will begin work in November with the law offices of Morrison and Foerster in Washington, D.C. Mark is the son of Peter and Joanne Shawhan of Delmar.

5 Rivers to hold seminar

A presentation on control of the invasive Phragmites, a common wetland reed, will be conducted at the NYSDEC Five Rivers Environmental Education Center, located at 56 Game Farm Road, in Delmar on Saturday, June 12 at 2 p.m.

During this indoor/outdoor seminar, Center naturalists will discuss the impact of Phragmites on wetland ecology, and outline the large scale efforts in the Hudson Valley to control this invasive species.

This program is open to the public free of charge. Participants are urged to dress for light field work. Garden clippers will be provided.

In the event of inclement weather, this program may be cancelled. Call 518-475-0291 for more information.

The alleged victim said she had drank while on her prescription medications before and never blacked out.

Former roommate testifies

Near the end of the first day of testimony, jurors heard Hughes' former teammate and roommate Harrison Reed say Hughes had contacted him via Facebook a week before the trial to say it would be better of the Ontario resident didn't appear.

"He said something to the effect he didn't want me to come," Reed said, although he could not recall the exact wording.

Reed said he arrived home on the night of the alleged incident from an away game to find the woman slumped against a car in the parking lot. He went inside to find Hughes — who was injured and thus not traveling — asleep on the couch. Later, after Hughes had gone to bed, the woman knocked on the door of the apartment asking for Bobby, Reed said.

"I thought she was drunk when I had seen her," he said. "She was disoriented and just didn't seem normal."

Reed also admitted he was reluctant to get involved in the trial.

"I don't have anything against Bobby," he said. "I work in the States to play hockey, and I was uneasy about not doing it [testifying] then crossing the border and having trouble."

Molloy suggested Bethlehem police detectives and the district attorney had used this to force Reed to appear, an assertion he denied.

Alleged victim protests police actions

While on the stand, the alleged victim also detailed two formal complaints she made to the Bethlehem Police Department regarding her treatment after her 911 call and the subsequent handling of the investigation.

She said police who responded to her 911 call treated her "like I was just a drunk," refused to investigate further when she told them something was wrong and threatened to arrest her when she became upset.

"I was telling them something was wrong and I didn't know how I got here and why wouldn't they help me," she said. "I recall being angry, and I was getting frustrated because they wouldn't listen to me. I said to the woman officer, 'As a woman you should be helping me,' and she blew me off."

She acknowledged she was upset and swearing.

She also alleged Detective Charles Radliff made a comment about her having a low-cut shirt on after he reviewed the security tape from My Place.

"I didn't think it was his place to say that," she said.

That tape will not be shown at the trial. Radliff and bar owner James Giaconne are the only two people to have seen the missing footage, according to prosecutors. It's not clear how the video was lost, but it's expected Radliff will be called to testify as to what he saw on the tape.

Molloy also asked the alleged victim if she saw Radliff in the bar that night. She said she didn't know him before the investigation and wouldn't have remembered him if she did see him there.

She also said a member of the police department told her sister that Radliff had accepted hockey tickets from Hughes when interviewing him.

Bethlehem Central Middle Schoolers put their CO2 propelled model dragsters to the test Wednesday, June 2, in the middle school's lower gym. Seventh-graders made the cars in technology class and raced them, with the 56 best cars advancing to the finals, seen here. Students studied the scientific concepts of drag and air resistance and designed their cars on computers. Technology teachers Tim Connelly, left, and Steve Costopoulos, launched the cars down a track that ran the length of the gym using compressed CO2 gas cartridges.

As much as I'd like to say that Bethlehem's appearance in the Section II Class A boys Lacrosse championship game is an indication of great things to come, I can't. At least, not in the short term.

Why? Two reasons:

1. The Eagles were loaded with seniors this year.

2. Niskayuna is moving back to Class A next year.

While Bethlehem may have plenty of young talent coming up through the system, Niskayuna will be returning a number of talented players from this year's Class B regional championship squad. If those players continue to improve, the Silver Warriors will be even harder to beat next year. Certainly, a young, inexperienced group like the one Bethlehem will have is going to struggle when it faces a talented, veteran squad like the one Niskayuna will be. Add a veteran Shen squad and potential challengers Guilderland and Shaker into the mix, and Bethlehem might get crowded out of the final four next year.

Bethlehem could still develop into a Section II power (the evidence: a ton of Bethlehem Youth Lacrosse Club players attended last Wednesday's championship game), but not before taking a step back in 2011.

I don't know what the fuss is all about regarding

New York City's subway system. The ride I took was pleasant. The car was air conditioned, and there was at least five inches of space between people.

Being in Manhattan last Friday night meant I missed the Albany Dutchmen's 2010 New York Collegiate Baseball League season debut at Blecker Stadium. It's a shame, too. It would have been nice to see Albany High School graduate Mike Hughes come home and pitch five strong innings to lead the Dutchmen past Cooperstown 8-5.

Hopefully, I'll get to catch Hughes and the Dutchmen several times this season. Last year was a difficult one, as games seemingly got rained out every time I tried to get to Blecker. One time, I arrived on a beautiful mid-June evening, only to discover that the game had already been postponed.

It was frustrating for me, but I'm sure for the fledgling Dutchmen, it was beyond frustrating. After all, they were trying to build interest, and they kept getting sideswiped by bad weather. It didn't help matters that the team finished 11-29, either.

Let's hope the weather cooperates this time around. After all, there could be some future major leaguers passing through Blecker Stadium between now and the end of July (21 current and former major leaguers have played in the NYCBL since 1978).

While in Manhattan, I bought a Montreal Expos baseball cap at South Street Seaport. I see it as a contrarian sports purchase — sort of like going to Montreal and buying a Winnipeg Jets replica hockey jersey.

Since Rowdy the River Rat was adopted by the Tri-City ValleyCats, I've heard rumors that his evil twin rat Rude-E has decided to go into politics. Personally, I think he'd fit right in with that crowd.

Watching the New York Mets beat the Florida Marlins Saturday on a TV set at a bar near Penn Station with a buddy of mine made me think I had a better seat than if I had tried to buy a ticket to CitiField that day. Nothing makes Manhattan more negotiable for an outsider like me than having a friend to help guide you around for a while.

When home teams dominate a playoff series, it's not really a series. When a road team wins to shift home court/field/ice advantage, then it's a series. By that rule, the Boston-Los Angeles NBA Final is now a series. Chicago-Philadelphia is a case of two home teams strutting their stuff to make their fans happy.

Finally to any New York Knicks or Rangers fans who may have heard me declare that both franchises stink as I passed Madison Square Garden Saturday, let me ask you one question: Can you refute that statement? Didn't think so.

That's it for this week, folks. If you have any comments, e-mail jonasr@spotlightnews.com.

Eagles fall to Raiders in final

The Colonie softball team fended off a late Bethlehem rally to defeat the Lady Eagles 4-3 in last Friday's Section II Class AA championship game at Clifton Common.

No. 2 Bethlehem (19-2) got a two-run triple from Meghan Burns and a sacrifice fly from Sammy Smaldone to pull within a run of the ninth-seeded Garnet Raiders (16-8), but Colonie pitcher Casey Rowland got the next out to end the rally.

Colonie took a 2-0 lead in the top of the fifth inning on an RBI double from Stephanie Reinhardt and a triple by Maria Casile. The Garnet Raiders added single runs in the sixth and seventh innings.

Bethlehem beat Colonie 3-1 in the semifinals.

Abelseth, Gregory qualify for states

Voorheesville's Caitlin Abelseth and Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk's Brittany Gregory qualified for the New York State Outdoor Track and Field Championships with victories at last Friday's Section II meet in Johnstown.

Abelseth took first place in the girls Division II (small school) 400-meter dash with a time of 58.21 seconds, while Gregory won the Division II 400-meter intermediate hurdles with a time of 1:17.34.

Voorheesville's Colin Kelly qualified for states by winning the boys Division II high jump title after clearing the bar at 6 feet, 2 inches. R-C-S's Jordan Skipper was second in the long jump with a distance of 21 feet, 5.75 inches.

to throw 100 miles per hour to be a successful pitcher," said Saratoga coach Dean Bailey. "If you throw a lot of off-speed stuff and keep a team off-balance like he [Tamburello] did, you're going to give your team a chance to win every time."

Tamburello also helped at the plate. His RBI sacrifice fly in the top of the first inning gave Guilderland a 2-0 lead, which gave him the confidence he needed to handle Saratoga's dangerous offense the rest of the night.

"That actually helped me pitch a little better," said Tamburello.

Guilderland's first-inning rally started with a bang when Jimmy Quinn singled and Sean Geisel followed with a double into center field. Saratoga intentionally walked slugger Matt Zanotta to load the bases for Luke Stark, who hit into a groundout to drive in Quinn. Tamburello's sacrifice fly brought Geisel home.

"That's the biggest thing we've gotten in Sectionals - the sacrifice flies," said LaValley.

Saratoga pitcher Matt Coleman stayed out of trouble until the top of the fourth inning. Nick Mastrianni belted a solo home run over the right field bullpen to lead off the frame, and Harry Brodsky drove in Tyler Hynes with a sacrifice fly to give Guilderland a 4-0 lead.

The Blue Streaks (14-9) got to Tamburello in the bottom of the fourth, though. Luke Fauler hit a leadoff double and moved to third on a Tamburello balk. Two batters later, Coleman singled Fauler home for Saratoga's first run.

Back-to-back walks to Chris Davis and Alex Lushkevich loaded the bases for Billy Johnson, who hit a ground ball to second base. Guilderland got the force out, but it couldn't turn the double play, which allowed Coleman and Davis to score and draw Saratoga within a run.

Tamburello collected himself from there. Though Saratoga threatened to score the tying run in the fifth and seventh innings, he got the outs he needed from his defense to seal the victory.

"I rely on my defense," said Tamburello, who only struck out three batters. "I can rely on them for any ball that's hit because they make the plays every time."

Coleman also made his fourth appearance of the playoffs, and though he allowed seven hits, he also pitched well - even getting Zanotta, who hit 16 home runs this season, to fly out and hit into a double play.

"I have a great deal of confidence in Matty [Coleman]," said Bailey. "The first inning, they got a couple of hits off of him, and he battled back to prevent them from having a big inning."

Guilderland and Saratoga entered the playoffs as underdogs to reach the finals. Both teams finished third in their respective divisions within the Suburban Council and had to beat the top seeds from the Suburban Council (Shenendehowa) and Big 10 (LaSalle) to reach last Thursday's championship game. Saratoga knocked off Shen in the quarterfinals, while Guilderland defeated LaSalle in the semifinals.

"Without question, they did our school proud," said Bailey. "Getting out of the section is never easy, and we came within a game of doing it."

Guilderland faced Section III champion Auburn in Monday's Class AA regional final at Bob Bellizzi Stadium in Albany.

Another playoff run ends in overtime

For the second year in a row, the Guilderland girls lacrosse team's season ended with an overtime loss.

Megan Bozek scored late in the first sudden-victory overtime period to give Section I champion Lakeland-Panas a 10-9 victory over the Lady Dutch in Saturday's Class A regional final at the University at Albany.

Lakeland-Panas took a 9-8 lead in the first of two full-time extra periods before Guilderland (18-2) tied it in the second over-time period on Kristen Cagino's goal. Bozek ended the game with her third goal of the afternoon.

Guilderland led by a goal three times in the second half before Lakeland-Panas grabbed an 8-7 advantage. Casey Gerety tallied with a little more than two minutes left in regulation to pull the Lady Dutch even and force overtime.

Kelly Camardo scored four goals to lead Guilderland, which was trying to get back to the state finals after losing in overtime to Farmingdale in last year's Class A championship game. Erin Mossop contributed two goals, and goaltender Amanda Santandrea made 11 saves.

Pitching leads Dutch to title

Tamburello gets help from some timely sacrifices to defeat Saratoga Springs

By ROB JONAS
jonasr@spotlightnews.com

Pitching had arguably been the Guilderland baseball team's weakness for most of the season. During the playoffs, one pitcher in particular has proven to be Guilderland's strength.

Junior Vinny Tamburello picked up his second win of the postseason with a complete-game four-hitter as the Dutchmen edged Saratoga Springs 4-3 in last Thursday's Section II Class AA championship game at Hudson Valley Community College.

"I knew we had a shot [at a title] if we got some pitching," said Guilderland coach Doug LaValley.

Tamburello used a variety of off-speed pitches to keep Saratoga's hitters guessing, and though his control wasn't always pinpoint accurate, he got the key outs when he needed them to send the Dutchmen (15-8) to their second regional final appearance in four years.

"My arm feels great," said Tamburello, who appeared in all four of Guilderland's Sectional games. "I could probably throw another seven innings."

"It's a good lesson for everyone that you don't have

Shen ends BC's run

Connor's OT goal lifts Plainsmen past Eagles

By ROB JONAS
jonasr@spotlightnews.com

The Bethlehem boys lacrosse team couldn't dodge all the bullets that Shenendehowa fired at it.

Brandon Connor scored the tying goal with 3:04 left in the fourth quarter and added the game-winner midway through the second overtime period to give the Plainsmen a 6-5 victory over the Eagles in last Wednesday's Section II Class A championship game at the University at Albany.

No. 3 Bethlehem (12-7) took a 5-3 lead on Stephen Russo's goal with 5:07 left in the third quarter, but Brian Powell tallied for top-seeded Shen (18-2) with 1:12 left in the period to make it a one-goal game. The Plainsmen had numerous chances to tie the game in the fourth quarter, including three shots off the goalpost, before Connors helped them draw even.

"The fourth quarter, we certainly played a lot of defense," said Bethlehem coach Dave Rounds. "I thought we held tough, but they obviously kicked things up a notch."

Mike Rondinaro scored twice for the Eagles.

From Wall Street to Madison Square Garden

From the outside, the New York Stock Exchange building looks so harmless. Who'd ever believe so much economic craziness happens inside such a stately building? More Manhattan observations to come, folks. OK, moving on...

• A couple of interesting teams won Section II Class AA championships last week. Guilderland's baseball team fended off Saratoga Springs 4-3 in one final, while Colonie's softball squad edged Bethlehem 4-3 for its first-ever championship. Neither team finished in the top two of the Suburban Council South Division and had to fight their way into the playoffs and then through three

From the
Sports Desk
Rob Jonas

rounds of Sectionals just to get to the finals.

Guilderland's run to the baseball title was surprising in that the Dutchmen received strong efforts from their pitchers—a group that struggled to shut down opponents at times during the regular season. Vinny Tamburello had two solid starts and two strong relief outings, while Eddie Pierce and Luke Stark provided some quality innings.

Colonie's softball team also benefited from strong pitching—in its case, it was courtesy of Casey Rowland. The junior shut down Shenendehowa in the quarterfinals and Saratoga Springs in the semifinals before fending off a late Bethlehem rally in last Friday's championship game.

As far as which team's performance was more impressive given how they did in the regular season, it has to go to Colonie. Knocking off previously-unbeaten Shen is an accomplishment in itself, but to top that by beating Saratoga and Bethlehem is amazing for a team that features several underclassmen. Guilderland did well to beat Big 10 champion LaSalle in the semifinals, but the Dutchmen had to be considered even with Saratoga in the finals. Colonie was a decided underdog against a Bethlehem team that had won the prestigious Moribito Tournament earlier this year—the only Section II team ever to do so.

Kudos to both Guilderland and Colonie for proving the point that it's not how you start a season that counts; it's how you end it.

• Reason No. 136 why I like going to Blue Rodeo concerts: You can get sports scores in the middle of a show.

At last Friday's Manhattan show, singer Jim Cuddy took time between songs to mention the score of the Philadelphia-Chicago Stanley Cup game (Flyers won 5-3) and needle New Yorkers about how the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Yankees (the phrase he used isn't printable in a family paper, but it involved kicking a person's hind side).

If other rock bands would be so kind as to provide this service during their shows, I might go to see them nine times—which is how many times I've now seen Blue Rodeo. Is it possible that I'm stalking them? We should move on...
