District OKs Vista plan

Stakeholders must visit town before bonds can be issued

By CHARLES WIFF
wiffc@spotlightnews.com

The Bethlehem Central School District Board of Education on Wednesday, April 13, gave its approval to a plan that would see the Bethlehem Industrial Development Agency heading construction of Vista Boulevard.

Developers must still have Albany County and the Town of Bethlehem agree to hand over to the IDA any proceeds realized through a payment in lieu of taxes (PILOT) agreement, which would then be used to pay down tax-free bonds. The PILOT payments would be collected from property owners and tenants in the park.

It's an unconventional arrangement that had several members of the school board running through details with Vista Technology Campus stakeholders. Ultimately, they concluded BC would have nothing to lose by signing off on such a plan.

"I most definitely think this is a win-win for the school district and for the town in general," said Superintendent Michael Tebano.

Vista Boulevard will run ¾ of a mile into the proposed tech

Clarksville kids get early Earth Day

Christina Chiappetta of the Stormwater Coalition of Albany shows students at Clarksville Elementary School ways to make sure their area's water stays clean and unpolluted. Businesses, nonprofits and government entities came to Clarksville Elementary School on Friday, April 15, for the school's third Earth Fair. Though the goal is the same every year, there's always something new and different for the kids to see, said parent and organizer Amy Price. "It's just great because we have a variety of local and state entities as well as private companies," she said. Student went through the school's gymnasium in groups and saw exhibits from the state Department of Health, the Pine Hollow Arboretum, National Grid, the Town of Bethlehem's Recycling Department, the Northeast Cave Conservancy, Friends of Five Rivers and many more. The Department of Environmental Conservation sent a contingent of forest rangers, who set up shop outside the gym with their vehicles. One big hit was a station manned by the Bethlehem Public Library where students could make "seed bombs" filled with wildflower seeds to plant at home. Earth Day is Friday, April 22. ## County could open part of rail trail

Pending approval by Bethlehem and county lawmakers, trail could be used from Slingerlands to Delmar

By CHARLES WIFF
wiffc@spotlightnews.com

The Albany County Rail Trail could see some limited use in the near future, contingent on the approval of lawmakers in the Town of Bethlehem and County Legislature.

The county has reached an agreement with the town and the Mohawk Hudson Land Conservancy (MHLC) to open a 1.85-mile stretch of the trail to pedestrian use.

The portion of trail to be opened would begin at Fireman's Park in Slingerlands and end at the Veteran's Park on Delaware Avenue in Delmar.

PaTHs and town roll out bike/pedestrian safety campaign

By CHARLES WIFF
wiffc@spotlightnews.com

With the arrival of spring, many Bethlehemites are shedding sweaters, flinging open windows and venturing into the outdoors. And town officials and the Bethlehem Pathways to Homes, Hamlets and Healthy Hearts Advisory (PaTHs) Committee are reminding pedestrians, bicyclists and motorists to be aware of one another this season.

The committee is launching an educational campaign aimed at driving safe practices home among these groups. Palm cards are to be distributed throughout the community and tips will also run on Channel 18.

This is a new approach for the PaTHs Committee, which has contributed to planning how to expand bicycle and pedestrian access throughout town.

"I think in the past we concentrated more on the engineering side of bike/ped," said Bethlehem Senior Planner Robert Leslie, who serves as town liaison to the committee.

The palm card is to highlight rules that most everyone knows but far too few follow. Though most feel the community is behind a walkable, bikeable community and that goal is part of the town's comprehensive plan, planning and outreach go hand in hand, said PaTHs Committee member Anne Benware.

"That safety education and potentially enforcement of different aspect of pedestrian safety and bike safety is also important. The whole thing has to work together," she said.

Common rules to remember: bicyclists should ride to the right

Slingerlands firehouse project vote scheduled

Expansion plans moving forward

Plans are moving forward to expand the Slingerlands firehouse, with a public referendum on borrowing for the project tentatively scheduled for this September.

The Slingerlands Fire Department, which serves parts of Bethlehem and New Scotland, has been investigating making some more space for over a year now. Though discussion had stalled for a while, the department's Board of Commissioners have formed a committee and are searching for bond counsel and a construction manager.

"Right now we are in full swing with moving the project forward," said Walter Eck, chairman of the board.

A study has pegged the cost of the project at $1.8 million, which would buy an equipment room, larger vehicle bays, a day room for on-call EMTs and training and shower facilities. A ventilation system would also be added to the vehicle bays; right now, there is no venting of diesel fumes when the department's vehicles are started up.

That cost estimate doesn't include design work and other extraneous expenses, so the final figure could be larger, said Eck.

"There will be many more details coming out about all of this," he said.

The Board of Commissioners also approved setting a public meeting two weeks out from the bonding referendum. The department will need the approval of voters in the fire district to borrow money for the project, though an amount to bond has not been decided on.

If voters approve the borrowing, the department will look to the spring of 2012 for a groundbreaking.

Buon Viaggio!

A group of 79 Bethlehem Central students embarked from the High School Thursday, April 14, for a 10-day trip to the Mediterranean. The group was accompanied by 14 chaperones and social studies teachers David Lewis and Marsha Buanno-Mackey. The trip will tour Greece and Italy, making stops in Rome, Florence, Pompeii, Athens and other ancient world landmarks. This is only the second year since 9/11 that BC has allowed overseas trips. Last year, a group of students made an excursion to China.

Town Hall renovations decision postponed

Supervisor requests more time for discussion

By ALYSSA JUNG
jung@spotlightnews.com

The much anticipated agenda item pertaining to the use of General Fund Capital Reserve money to complete Town Hall renovations was tabled at the Wednesday, April 13, meeting of the Bethlehem Town Board.

The Board was scheduled to discuss the request from the town's deputy commissioner of public works to authorize the use of up to $385,000 from the General Fund

Capital Reserve to complete renovations. But with Supervisor Sam Messina absent from the meeting to give a presentation to the Board of Education, he requested the item be tabled until the April 27 meeting because there were still discussion points that need to be addressed.

The Board passed three bond resolutions by a vote of 3 to 1, with Mark Hennessey being the dissenting vote on all three. Resolution 1 authorizes the issuance of serial bonds not to

Looking over Delmar

A bald eagle was perched on a limb on the side of the Delmar Bypass last Wednesday afternoon, April 13. According to Craig Thompson of the Five Rivers Environmental Education Center, bald eagle sightings aren't all that uncommon in this area since eaglets were introduced to the area at the Alcove Reservoir in the early '80s. Thompson reminds bird watchers that it is illegal to harass a bald eagle and that if someone sees one, they should contact Five Rivers at 475-0291.

Resolution 3 authorizes the issuance of serial bonds not to exceed $15,000 for the acquisition of a 1 ton roller as approved in the 2011 budget.

The Board also acknowledged it was in receipt of the police department's 2010 annual report, per the request of the Chief of Police.

The Board approved seasonal personnel for the Parks and Recreation Department and voted to authorize Messina to sign an agreement with Thomas Rowlands, Ellison enterprises to operate the concession stand at Elm Avenue Park Pool from 2011-13.

There were no significant changes between the old agreement and the new agreement, and the Parks and Recreation Department said it was planning to build in a couple nights that the pool would be open later to accommodate special events. The department was also considering a separate project where people could reserve an area for pool parties, bring in party goods and have their own space.

Chris Hughes spoke during the public comment period and informed the board about a March 11 search warrant that State Police served him at his residence.

Ritter convicted in Pennsylvania court

Former U.N. weapons inspector and Delmar resident Scott Ritter was last week found guilty of exposing himself over the Internet to someone he thought was a 15-year-old girl.

Ritter was convicted by a Pennsylvania jury on six of the seven charges brought against him after about eight hours of deliberation.

The charges include unlawful contact with a minor. He was acquitted on a charge of criminal attempt. Sentencing will be in May, and Ritter could face up to five years each for his two misdemeanor convictions and seven years each for his four felony convictions, though it's unlikely the judge will dole out that full sentence.

Monroe County Assistant District Attorney Michael Rykechevski said he argued a case based on the evidence at hand.

"I think that [the jury] looked at the evidence and made a decision based on the evidence," he said.

"The evidence really was the video and the chat log," Rykechevski added.

Ritter, 49, was arrested by the Barrett Township Police Department in February of 2009. An officer running an Internet sex sting operation pretended to be a 15-year-old girl named Emily and Ritter, under the screenname "delmarm4fun," exposed himself via web camera and masturbated.

The jury viewed that tape during the trial.

Ritter's attorney, Gary Kohlman, argued in court his client believed the exchange to be a manner of fantasy and at no time did he believe the person he was chatting with was actually 15.

That was an unbelievable defense, Rykechevski said, given the fact Ritter deactivate the camera when the issue of age came up, but later turned it back on to complete the act. That fact was a key component of the prosecution's case.

"I think it's clear that he consciously disregarded a risk that this was a minor," he said. "If he would have stopped right there...I would have had a lot more difficult time prosecuting it."

Ritter took the stand in his own defense. A call to Kohlman's Washington, D.C. office was not returned.

The jury also heard information about Ritter's two past arrests in the Capital District under similar circumstances. Of those, one case was dismissed and records were sealed in the other. Ritter allegedly tried to meet with underage girls he met on the Internet but were, again, actually undercover officers.

In court, Ritter argued that he knew these were sting operations and wanted to be caught.

Rykechevski said the information from New York law enforcement was of great help in his prosecution.

Ritter will have the opportunity to appeal the conviction.

YOU'RE THE CRITIC

Out of the blue and onto the stage

Blue Man Group's performance includes ample audience participation

By DREW SCHIAVI
news@spotlightnews.com

Living, breathing, vaudevillian comic book.

This is the most accurate description of Blue Man Group's appearance at Proctors in Schenectady on Tuesday, April 12. To simply call the show that however, is to sell short the magnitude of the performance.

Not so different from great exhibitions of magic or professional wrestling, Blue Man Group's stage act is best viewed with suspended disbelief. How the marvels of music, technology and stagecraft you are watching unfold are happening is secondary to the fact that they are happening. To spend time concentrating on the how or the why is to focus too closely and lose the big picture of the show's vibrant colors and attention holding blend of elements.

Blue Man Group's idiom is carefully crafted out of a mix of mime, physical comedy and broadly appealing music sensibility. The show is, in an abstract sense, a distant cousin of the classic Chuck Jones "Tom and Jerry" cartoons from the early '60s – the ability to tell a complete story without dialogue, and have the audience comprehend and react to that story, is testament alone to the skill of the performers.

Blue Man Group clearly told the Fourth Wall to stay at home and not wait up. From the very beginning, the troupe entices the audience to participate with scrolling LED marquees displaying light comedy and asking the audience to set the opening tone for the show through a combination of claps, cheers and chants.

The kind of in-depth audience participation on display, particularly as it relates to the selection of patrons for various hijinks, lends the performance an intimate feel, and opens the doorway for the two-way interaction with what's happening on the stage. The show ends up being a whimsical and curious exploration of human interaction and observation; you are not just there to watch Blue Man Group, Blue Man Group is also there to watch you.

To that end, there is a part of the show that features a classically staged comedic scene of the Group eating at a dinner table. What makes the comedy stand out is that the trio has invited (perhaps "coerced" is more appropriate) an audience member to take part in it. And the more the audience volunteer reacts to the Group's outlandish takes on activities we take for granted, the more they focus the attention on that person. As a spectator, you are drawn into the scene, wondering what your own reactions would be and empathizing with your peer who has been put on the spot before the masses.

What gets easily lost in the flashing lights and quality, if perhaps simple, comedy is the underlying musical base on which the entire show floats.

Though the music is predominantly percussive in nature, this is not simply a recitation of drums. The music is artfully crafted and skillfully arranged, especially as it interacts with the light show going on in the background. The songs rely heavily on the tropes of dance music or rock and roll, but are approached on stage in an unorthodox manner, with strange and unusual instruments, so as to appear fresh and imaginative.

Meeting at the crossroads of stand up comedy, jovial Broadway celebration and rock and roll spectacular, Blue Man Group puts on a light-hearted and captivating performance.

Drew is a Capital District native and graduate of Shenendehowa High School in Clifton Park. He has an associate's degree in Radio and Television Broadcasting from Adirondack Community College (now known as SUNY Adirondack,) and a bachelor's in Broadcasting and Mass Communication from SUNY Oswego. Help...I think my dog has fleas! What do I look for and what can I do?

Flea infestations are a common cause for itching in dogs and cats this time of year. Adult fleas feed on the blood of your pet. The adult flea can live for weeks and lay hundreds of eggs. The eggs fall off of your pet into your home and hatch into larvae. The next life stage, the pupae, makes flea eradication difficult as they can survive for up to 9 months!

Fleas can be tricky to diagnose as the adults are very fast and good at hiding in your pet's hair coat. Using a specially designed comb to check for pepper-like specks of flea feces is a good way to check for the presence of fleas. Other signs of a flea infestation include excessive scratching and chewing, hair loss due to self trauma, scabs and hot spots, anemia and tapeworms.

There are many flea treatments for both your pet and your household. Although dogs and cats are both prone to fleas, it is important not to use products labeled for dogs on cats as this can be fatal. Please be aware that many of the flea treatments are toxic; before using any of these products consult with your veterinarian. Thoroughly clean your home and remember to discard all vacuum bags.

Police Blotter

Suspect in high-speed chase arrested

Bethlehem Police have arrested a man they say fled a traffic stop last week, led police on a high-speed chase and then vanished into the woods.

Robert Cooper Moor III, 43, of 16 Pulver Avenue, Ravena, was on Tuesday, April 12, arrested by Coeymans Police on an arrest warrant and arraigned in Bethlehem Town Court on charges of reckless endangerment, fleeing, resisting arrest, reckless driving, aggravated unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle and a laundry list of traffic violations.

Moor allegedly eluded police for over week after he was pulled over Sunday, April 3, on Route 9W for having inadequate exhaust on the 1998 Hyundai Elantra he was driving. As the patrol officer approached the car, Moor took off and headed south at a high rate of speed and "traveling erratically," according to police reports.

Police caught up to Moor and maintained contact as he allegedly broke a litany of traffic laws. In the vicinity of the Van Allen Senior Apartments he left the roadway and traveled across a muddy field, briefly becoming stuck at one point, police said.

Moor then allegedly drove the vehicle onto the parking lot at the apartment complex and circled the building, when police briefly lost sight of him. Upon circling the building, police saw the unoccupied car about 300 feet into the woods, sitting unoccupied.

Police set up a perimeter and began canvassing the woods. A call was received from a nearby homeowner reporting a white male on the property and police briefly caught up with their suspect before Moor was again lost in a dense growth of high bushes, according to police.

The registered owner of the Elantra said she had loaned it to her daughter's boyfriend and police began tracking down Moor. At about 10:43 p.m. that evening an off-duty Coeymans Police Department officer reported seeing Moor at the Stewarts on 9W in Bethlehem Center, but while he was phoning in the information Moor became suspicious and left, according to arrest reports. A canvass of the area was fruitless.

The next contact reported by police was when Moor was arrested by Coeymans Police. He was arraigned and remanded to Albany County Jail in lieu of $15,000 cash or $30,000 bail bond.

The crimes Moor was charged with were misdemeanors and violations. He did not reveal why he decided to flee, said Sergeant Robert Helligrass, of the Bethlehem Police Department, though he was allegedly driving on a suspended license.

Bethlehem files charges on three-county chase suspect

A man who ended up in Schoharie County jail last week for allegedly leading police on a three-county car chase isn't there anymore.

Now he's in Albany County jail after being picked up by Bethlehem Police on an arrest warrant stemming from crimes related to that remarkable incident.

Bethlehem Police on Monday, April 11, arrested Joseph Vincent Wagner, 44, of 608 Third St., Albany, and charged him with felony reckless endangerment, felony criminal possession of stolen property, unlawful fleeing in a motor vehicle, eight various speeding violations and other traffic law infractions.

Wagner on April 5 allegedly stole a car in Colonie and drove through Guilderland, New Scotland, Greene County and Broome County before flipping the vehicle.

This is far from Wagner's first brush with the law, as well. Bethlehem Police arrested him in February on identity theft charges.

DEC says area men fishing illegally

A group of men, including four Bethlehem residents, were recently arrested for allegedly getting a jump start on the fishing season with an illegal fishing practice.

Brian Filkins, 30; Mark LaFave, 42; Keith Manganaro, 35; and Todd Wickham, 31, all of Bethlehem; John Jenkins, 41, of Clifton Park; and Joseph Reilly, 41, of Mechanicville; were all charged with taking walleye illegally. They face fines of up to $4,000 and up

Propane leak

The Selkirk Fire Department was responded to a school bus reportedly leaking propane at the corner of Route 9W and Cottage Lane in Selkirk around 4 p.m. Monday, April 11. The bus driver evacuated the students and sent for another bus. No injuries were reported.

Department of Environmental Conservation Officer Anthony Glorioso allegedly saw the six men snagging walleye in the Catskill Creek in the Village of Catskill on April 3.

The men were allegedly dragging a large hook through the water until it snagged on the fish, which is an illegal practice.

The men then drove the fish four miles back to the Village of Catskill to hide their catch, according to

Matters of Opinion in The Spotlight

Just this once ...

You can only go to the well so many times.

Waterford-Halfmoon and the Berne-Knox-Westerlo school districts are among 101 statewide that will use "surplus" from Employee Benefits Accrued Liability Reserve funds (EBALR) to ease the pain of state aid cuts, an act made possible through an allowance by State Comptroller Thomas P. DiNapoli.

Editorial

First of all, what the heck is EBALR? We at The Spotlight aren't financial whizzes (we're in newspapers, for Pete's sake), so let's use the comptroller's own words:

"Reserved portions of fund balance are committed for specific legal purposes. Reserve funds are created under various laws which determine how the reserves can be established, funded, expended or discontinued. School districts can establish an Employee Benefit Accrued Liability Reserve (EBALR) under Section 6-p of General Municipal Law (GML) and use EBALR monies to pay employees for accrued leave time due to them when they leave district employment. Interest earned on money in the EBALR must become part of the reserve fund. School districts are not required to fund the liability for compensated absences, but they are required to calculate this liability and to report it in their financial statements."

OK. So, this money is used to pay out accrued time when an employee separates from the district, and the interest the fund earns must be used for the same purpose. The comptroller has deemed some districts have an "excess" of this separation money and is allowing them to use it, presumably, to keep people employed in order to offer a better education.

It seems that districts have somewhat of a problem with the EBALR, and that is they're not firing teachers fast enough to work off their "excess."

Or, you could change the municipal law that states accrued interest for one reserve fund can't be transferred to another. If the comptroller is going to make an exception just this once (yeah, right) then why not take a look at a system that would let school districts be more flexible with all their "excess" cash.

Staying within the lines

Reforming New York's legislative redistricting system

By ASSEMBLYMAN
JIM TEDISCO

Assemblyman Tedisco represents parts of Schenectady and Saratoga Counties.

We urge children to stay in the lines when they learn how to draw, shouldn't we hold New York's lawmakers to the same standard when it comes to drawing reality-based legislative districts?

If you're into modern art or enjoy taking Rorschach tests, you might be interested in looking at a map of our state's legislative districts where you will see Assembly, Senate and Congressional districts that resemble salamanders, snakes, Abraham Lincoln, a witch on a broom and a whole host of other odd configurations that will leave you scratching your head.

New Yorkers deserve fair and equal legislative districts that are based on the commonalities of communities and not on political power blocks.

Unfortunately, the redistricting process has become more about legislative leaders cherry-picking voters to keep control rather than about voters picking their legislators.

If we're ever going to truly change the way New York State's government works, we've got to start by reforming the way legislative district lines are drawn.

No doubt, you may remember first learning about redistricting back in high school civics class. Redistricting is the process of using U.S. Census data to redraw legislative boundary lines of electoral districts.

In the last few months, you may have heard talk about redistricting reform and wondered, "Why does this even matter?" Redistricting impacts our communities in every possible way imaginable, from government spending to property taxes to job creation and even public safety. It sets the stage for the kind of representation you will have in our state and nation's capitol and the volume of its voice on our behalf.

"Rather than drawing districts based on commonalities, legislative leaders engage in packing and stacking voters to protect partisan agendas."

Assemblyman Jim Tedisco,
R-C-1 Saratoga-Schenectady

History has shown that too often legislative districts are gerrymandered – or carved up – to benefit the party in power to the detriment of minority party voices and the common concerns of voters. Cities are broken up and small towns and rural communities are lumped into districts dominated by larger municipalities that have very little in common in terms of economic, geographic or cultural needs.

Rather than drawing districts based on commonalities, legislative leaders engage in packing and stacking voters to protect partisan agendas.

The current process for drawing district lines in New York State has been widely criticized as lacking independence from the Legislature and serving partisan interests rather than the public interest.

Free, fair, open and competitive elections are at the heart of the democratic process. In spite of this fact for too long election maps in this state have been drawn up behind closed doors are motivated entirely by political concerns that have little if anything to do with effective representation for the people of New York State.

To restore public faith in our state government, meaningful reform of the redistricting process is necessary and such reform must create a new and permanent process whose hallmarks are independence, transparency and fair representation.

Last year, I was among several state legislators from both sides of the aisle who signed Mayor Ed Koch's NY Uprising "Hero of Reform" pledge on redistricting reform. I'm pleased to report back to you that I've kept my pledge to support non-partisan, independent redistricting.

I'm the author of two redistricting reform bills to create legislative districts based on common communities and not political power blocks. One bill would accomplish that goal via a constitutional amendment (A.1512), which is the most rock-solid legal approach. My other bill would get the job done via statute (A.4771). I stand ready to vote for any bill that ensures lines will be drawn by an outside, independent, bipartisan commission.

There is no better way for ensuring that people have a voice in the process than by mandating that they play a role in choosing the people who will craft New York's election proposals. My legislation ensures that the expertise of elected representatives will continue to be part of the process by allowing the governor and legislative leaders the opportunity to appoint members to the reapportionment commission.

I've also signed on as a sponsor of Governor Cuomo's redistricting measure (A.5388) which establishes an independent redistricting commission that would draw maps for congressional and state legislative districts every 10 years following the Census.

The governor's bill is not perfect. For instance, I'm concerned about the number of appointments to the commission the Executive branch would have. Nonetheless, Mr. Cuomo's bill is a positive step in the right direction for reform and would lead to a better system of redrawing the legislative lines then now exists.

The bottom line is I will support any measure that produces true redistricting reform that creates fair and equal districts based on the things that unite people. This shouldn't be about what's best for Democrats or Republicans but what is best for all New Yorkers.

Time is running out to reform the redistricting process for New York's 19.5 million residents as the lines will be redrawn by next year to take effect for the 2012 election. Unfortunately, we missed an opportunity to pass the strongest possible redistricting reform late last year by taking up my bill to amend the state constitution to enable independent redistricting. A constitutional amendment requires passage in two consecutive legislative terms. This would mean the new process would not take place until 2022. This would be unacceptable and the people of New York have waited long enough for redistricting reform.

Let's bring redistricting reform to the floor of the Legislature this year for an honest and real debate. Our state deserves no less.

Missing this important opportunity to take decisive action will only delay the real reform that New Yorkers seek.

Elmwood referendum passes on second go

The second time's the charm for the Elmwood Park Fire District.

A public referendum held Tuesday, April 12, passed 87-79, giving the fire district the OK to bond up to $265,000 to purchase a six-acre plot of land behind the North Bethlehem firehouse. The Elmwood Park Fire District funds the North Bethlehem Fire Department.

A February vote

had ended up in a tie, and since then the fire department has held two public meetings. Though Tuesday's voter turnout was but a sliver of the roughly 3,000 residents in the district, for a fire district issue anything in the triple digits is considered a strong showing.

"Most of our votes over the last 10 years have been 25 people," said North Bethlehem Fire Department Chief Paul Fuino.

The district will take $50,000 out of its building improvement fund to supplement the borrowing. Also, the plan is to sell off portions of the property, including a trailer included in the sale. The bonds will be taken for one year, and hopefully money from the sale will cut down on debt service.

"The minute the property is in our hands, we're going to have the real estate agent in," Fuino said. "Hopefully next year when the renewal comes up we won't have to renew as much."

Once the land is paid off the department will look at building an accessory structure for storage, operations and training. There is also talk of carving some nature trails out for community use.

A ticket to read — and more It's time to get active

"Opening doors"—that's what it says on our redesigned library card. What that means for you is access to the collections of 29 libraries in Albany and Rensselaer counties. It is also your ticket to free services beyond books and DVDs.

Show us your card and you can use one of our fifteen public computer stations for research or recreation. An hour session can be extended if no one is waiting.

Once you've logged on to one of our computers, we provide access to 21 online databases—magazines, journals, newspapers, academic reference tools for adults and kids, /Ancestry Plus/, business and consumer information, and more. Most are provided to us by the Upper Hudson Library System or the New York State Library. But eight of them—including Auto Repair Reference Center, Consumer Reports, Grolier Online, New York Times Historical, and several literary reference tools—have been purchased by us with your taxpayer dollars. Access to these requires a Bethlehem Public Library card.

Your Bethlehem Public Library card also allows you to borrow individual and family passes to a dozen regional museums. Family budgets get a reprieve when parents and kids can visit Hancock Shaker Village, the Old Stone Fort, the Eric Carle Museum of Picture Book Art, the Schenectady Museum and Planetarium and more, all for free. A complete list can be found at www.bethlehempubliclibrary.org.

If you have a library card, you can use one of our small study rooms for small-group study. Again, sessions of one hour can be extended if no one is waiting.

If you have a library card, you can sign up for advance email notification of holds and overdue. You can access your library "account" to track what you've borrowed and requested. All of this information is confidential and secure.

And of course, you can borrow books, DVDs, CDs, periodicals, ebooks and downloadable audiobooks—not only from our library but also from the 28 other libraries in the Upper Hudson Library System. Please bear in mind that although a library card from any system library is valid at all system libraries, borrowing policies of the lending library apply.

Bethlehem Public Library cards are issued to residents of the Bethlehem Central School District. Bring a picture ID and proof of current residence. Cards come with an additional key-tag version, and special-edition cards are available for children.

Any way you look at it, your library card opens doors to the Main Event—a richer, more informed life—and admission is free.

Really. Get out of the house. And come to the Guilderland Public Library's "Discover the Great Outdoors! Expo on Saturday, April 30, and connect with local hiking and camping clubs, outdoor and sporting goods retailers, local parks and recreation departments, and more. Whether you already spend time outdoors, or wish you did, this event has something for everyone.

We live right in the middle of one of the best recreation areas in the country (and you're sitting inside reading the paper?). We are minutes from great canoeing and kayaking, a 15-minute drive to great hiking in the Helderbergs, and right between two of the best mountain recreation areas in the country, the Catskills to the south and Adirondacks to the north. And lakes? Don't even get us started on all the wonderful lakes we have in our area.

The Expo runs from 10 am to 2 pm. There are hiking experts and someone to show you how to use a compass. There are equipment people who can help you select the right gear. And there are continuing Family Storytimes in the Storyhour Room so that kids and parents can take a break. And there is just so much more. See our website for a full list of exhibitors.

"Discover the Great Outdoors" takes over pretty much the entire Library. So, if you see a canoe on our roof, it's not actually floating up there; it's just telling you that you've come to the right place.

Special Notice

The Guilderland Public Library will be closed all day Wednesday, April 27, for Staff Development Day. This is that one day a year when the entire Library staff gets together to do some group training and education. We thank you for your patience and understanding.

This Friday's Movie is about a Gully of Ferns

We didn't know a fern from a gully until we saw this film, but we get it now. And what a fun film it is, too. A fleet of magical inhabitants of a rainforest fight to retain their home. The fun begins at 7 pm on Friday, April 22. In the Helderberg Room.

The D.A. Bennett Service Company of Delmar sponsors this show. There are going to be lots of kids there, so be sure to arrive early!

Look After Your Planet

Join us on Earth Day, Friday, April 22, at 6 pm to celebrate this very special planet-party day by reading We Are Extremely Very Good Recyclers by Lauren Child. You'll learn about recycling and play a recycle game. Children attending this program will be given a tree counter to record items recycled throughout the week.

We will meet again on Arbor Day, April 29, at 6 pm to reflect on the task of recycling, discuss the importance of trees; we'll play musical trees and create a unique craft project using an assortment of recycled materials. Children who register must attend both sessions. At the last session participants will receive a small tree to plant at home and help make a difference for our precious planet.

Trees donated by the Albany County Soil & Water Conservation District.

Registration is required for both sessions. Intended for children ages 4 through 7 with a parent or caregiver. Register by calling 456-2400 x 9.

A political legacy comes to an end

Albany County Executive Mike Breslin will not seek a fifth term

beama@spotlightnews.com

After 16 years as the Albany County Executive, Mike Breslin will be ending his run in office, saying he feels he has left a positive footprint in the county.

"I've been very pleased with what we've been able to accomplish over the last 16 years," Breslin said. "I did far more than I anticipated to be doing. I didn't come in as a professional politician. I feel like I have done a lot of great things."

One of the greatest accomplishments he achieved was making the Albany County Government more open, professional, transparent and accountable by focusing more on serving the public rather than political needs. Breslin said that he is going to continue

"I want to make sure the legacy continues," he said of finishing out his term. "Through the next eight months, I look forward to those challenges, particularly during these times, the bad economic times."

Breslin was appointed Albany County Executive in December of 1994 and was elected to his first full term in November 1995. During his tenure, Breslin has been able to expand support for seniors and individuals with disabilities wanting to remain in their community with a home and community based services model. He also implemented several shared services to work with municipalities aimed at making government work more efficiently.

He also created the Department for Children, Youth and Families in 2001. This was meant to consolidate the delivery of services for at-risk children.

Albany County Legislature Chairman Dan McCoy, who said he is currently mulling over the possibility of running for county executive with his family, praised Breslin for his ability to consolidate the department but said that there were some complications that went along with it.

"It has its hiccups," he said. "But when you consolidate a department like that, you're going to have some hiccups."

There were some topics Breslin and he disagreed on during the county executive's time in office. But McCoy said that he thought Breslin did a fine job as the county executive and said that they had both agreed on the importance of caring for the elderly.

"Obviously, with being chair, we've have had our battle over the years," he said, adding that

"I've been very pleased with what we've been able to accomplish over the last 16 years."

Mike Breslin, who will retire as Albany County Executive at the end of the year

Breslin came in during a period where a lot of things had to be cleaned up. "I think his record speaks for itself. We would agree to disagree on certain topics, but I think he has done a fairly good job. I wish him well in his retirement."

Newly elected Albany County Republican Chairman Don Clarey said that he had been hearing rumors for months that Breslin would not be running again, so it wasn't a surprise when the news broke.

Breslin was not the strongest executive, Clarey said, adding that the Democratic Party had significant internal issues that were reflected in his tenure.

"His heart was in the right place," he said. "From a policy point of view, taxes are going up, but I realize a lot of that is mandate driven."

Clarey said he would give Breslin a grade of "Incomplete" for his time in office since he has a few months left, but said at this point he would give him a C.

"It's been an honest government," he said. "I think that in itself should be his legacy."

Former GOP Chairman John Graziano Sr. said that he also had heard rumors of Breslin stepping down and said he hopes he enjoys his retirement.

"My interactions with him have always been genuine," he said. "I wish him luck."

Breslin said he has no specific plans after finishing out his term in office. He said he would still like to be involved in the community, but he's not sure in whether it would be in a public or private manner.

He did say, however, that he has not looked into possibly running for office in the state legislature.

"No, it's not something I've explored," he said. "I'm very much impressed with what Cuomo [Gov. Andrew Cuomo] has already done."

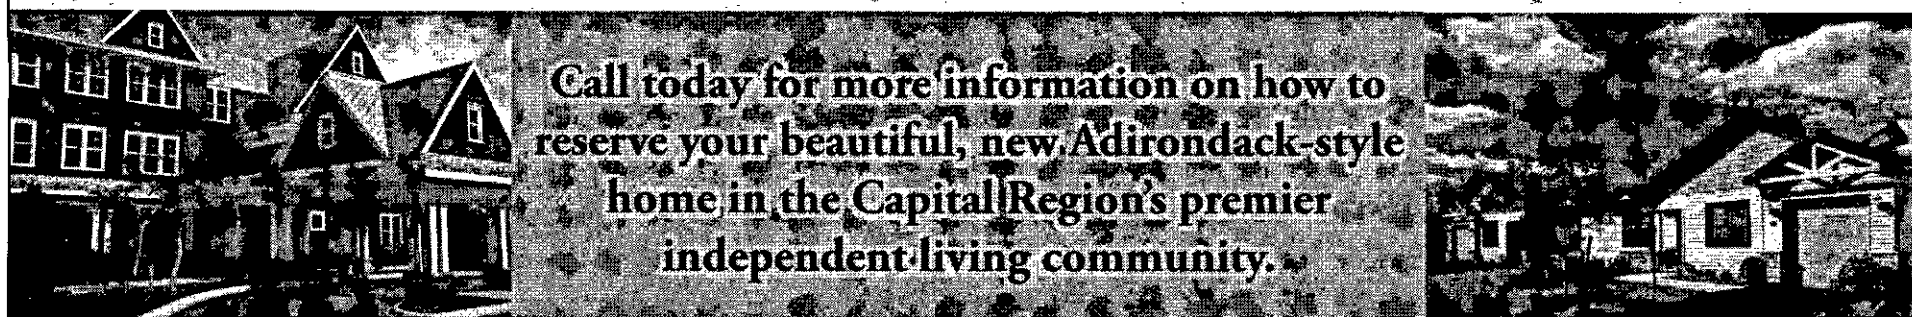

There would be multitude of advice Breslin said he could give the next county executive. But he would make sure to tell that person to continue the path he has paved.

"I think first and foremost that there are a lot of wonderful people working in county government that are doing a great job," he said. "They need to make sure we can continue to do that so we can serve people the best way possible."

Breslin said he thinks the residents of Albany County will remember the work the county government has done during his tenure and that they will ask of the next county executive to do the same.

"I think those people who are in county government recognize the difference in how it functions now," he said. "I'm confident they will retain that commitment to all those ideals. I think the public will demand it."

Bethlehem Children's School (BCS) is kicking off its annual Greenfest, an Earth Day-inspired celebration, with a day of food, educational games, crafts and music by Ruth Pelham of The Music Mobile.

Scheduled for Friday, April 29, from 3:30 to 7 p.m. at the school, Greenfest will feature local artists and crafters, a huge community yard sale, a book sale, games and a chance for children to make crafts and instruments from recycled materials. A focus on the environment is the theme as students and their families will have just planted trees around the schoolyard earlier that afternoon in recognition of Earth Day.

The school will also be highlighting its Greenhouse Project, an ongoing initiative to build a usable greenhouse out of 1,800 clear two-liter plastic bottles.

There will be a Community Concert at 6 p.m. led by local musician and social activist Ruth Pelham of The Music Mobile. She will lead BCS students and community members as she performs original songs including "Love is All Around" and "All Cleaned Up." Local folk duo, Cavanaugh & Kavanaugh, will also be performing earlier in the afternoon.

Greenfest is free and open to the public.

BCS was founded in 1995 as an independent K through 8th grade school specializing in innovative, environmental-based education.

IN BRIEF

Boater safety training offered at Lynnwood Church

An 8-hour New York State Boater Safety Training program will be taught at Lynnwood Reformed Church on two evenings, April 27 and 29, from 6 to 10 p.m. Successful completion leads to a state safety certificate necessary for youth ages 10 to 17 to legally operate a motorboat solo. It is also needed for all operators 14 and over to legally operate a personal watercraft (PWC).

Instructors do not charge for this course, however a $20 facility donation (tax deductible) to Lynnwood Reformed Church is requested. Students ages 10 to 17 receive their certificate for free from NYS Parks and Recreation - 18 and over pay $10 to NYS Parks to obtain their certificate. Certificates are good for life and never have to be renewed. Some insurance companies may offer discounts to certificate holders.

Clarksville man awarded research assistantship

Dean Valentini of Clarksville was one of four engineering students offered a full Research Assistantship for The University of Rhode Island Graduate Energy Team as he pursues his Computer Engineering Master's Degree at URI.

He was a 2007 graduate of Bethlehem Central High School and will graduate from URI this May with a Computer Engineering degree.

Tucker named to Dean's List at Johns Hopkins

Kathleen Tucker of Delmar was named to the Dean's list for academic excellence for the fall 2010 semester at The Johns Hopkins University.

To be selected for this honor, a student must earn a grade point average of 3.5 or higher on a 4.0 scale in a program of at least 14 credits with at least 12 graded credits.

Kathleen Tucker is the daughter of F. Michael and Lynette Tucker and attended Albany Academies in Albany. Kathleen, who is majoring in public health studies, will graduate in May 2012.

Trail

"We are excited to be able to progress the Rail Trail project with the help of the Town of Bethlehem and the MHL as we know many are eager to start using the trail," said County Executive Michael Breslin in a statement. "This collaborative effort will allow residents to begin enjoying part of the trail by the summer."

Once approved, the deal would see the Town of Bethlehem Highway Department clearing the stretch of trail for pedestrian use. This should be possible within the existing budget, said Supervisor Sam Messina.

"We're in really good shape, because it's not going to be a cost addition for us," he said. "We'll be able to take care of this with no strain on our staff."

"We're in really good shape, because it's not going to be a cost addition for us. We'll be able to take care of this with no strain on our staff."

Bethlehem Supervisor Sam Messina

This will still leave the trail in a relatively rustic condition, however. The MHL has agreed to begin raising funds to make additional improvements that would make mountain bike use possible, but it's unclear how soon that could happen. The town and conservancy would be responsible for trail maintenance.

This specific section of the trail was selected because it will require the least amount of work to get ready for public use.

The entire Rail Trail is nine miles, and was purchased by the county in January of last year. Since then, however, development has stalled because the county has been unable to secure more grant funding. The goal has been to develop the trail without the use of taxpayer money.

The total cost of finishing the trail is pegged at about $8 million. That would pave the entire length and pay for repairs to several bridges. A $2.4 million in federal funding has been promised to the project, but only if it's completed all in one shot.

The Bethlehem Town Board will likely consider a resolution signing off on the agreement at its April 27 meeting. The Albany County Legislature's next meeting is on May 9.

Once the agreements are inked, the work can begin, Messina said.

of New York State Town Law to pass a retirement incentive resolution that had failed during a regularly scheduled meeting the week before. Another pointed out that a high-tech consortium's move to New York may not be as good as it seems after some research into the millions of dollars it cost the state it was leaving. Another took aim at media coverage, itself, when The Spotlight's hometown of Delmar, made national news after a homeowner chased down and tackled a teenager after he and a group of friends trespassed on the man's property, pounded on the man's door, rang his doorbell and ran away.

"It's an honor to be recognized by NYPA," said DeVoe, who writes the editorials for the various Spotlight papers around the Capital District. This is the second time DeVoe has won first place statewide for editorial writing, and has also received NYPA awards for column writing and news coverage. "The award is a testament to the good work we do here at The Spotlight and our commitment to providing the best local news in the area."

"It's always great to win for editorial writing," said Spotlight publisher and owner John McIntyre. "To me, that means the rest of the paper is doing well, because that's the foundation on which good editorials are based."

Reporter John Purcell, who joined The Spotlight in 2010, received an honorable mention for his story on a political challenger alleging an incumbent threatened his job if he pursued a campaign against him. NYPA commended Purcell for obtaining for the story a taped conversation between the two politicians.

"I'm proud to have been acknowledged by Press Association," said Purcell.

Reflecting about it now, I think about how as my children got older, the books they read touched our lives. They became not just a part of bedtime or story time. When Lucy was 4, she discovered fairies. I found and read to her all of the beautiful fairy books by Cicely Mary Barker. We read and collected all of her books, and then spent hours building fairy houses in our backyard. She enlisted Paul to make tiny wooden chairs for her fairy houses. And would leave raspberries and bits of herbs as gifts for the flower fairies. Occasionally, they would leave her pretty, poetic notes and a small stone in return. A few weeks ago, on a particularly warm afternoon, I found her in

An old, beloved book character came back to us just the other day while we were eating dinner. It was Pippi Longstocking. Her name came up just

Most recently, Elliot has been reading the A-to-Z mysteries. He loves to talk about what's happening in the book, who stole the money or the jewel. Zoe still comes to sit with us and listen to Elliot's books. I'm happy to have her close. The books she reads these days come alive when we sit at the dinner table. If she decides to talk about the book she's reading, we all settle in. Most recently it was "The Invention of Hugo Cabret." It's a richly illustrated book and a very detailed story. Zoe likes details.

In a nod to Pippi and her creative way of eating spaghetti, I made this pasta dish for my family. It's got lots of good things: cheese, pancetta, pasta, and also good for you things: spinach and peas. Surely Pippi, in her big house with her horse and her monkey, wasn't thinking of spaghetti with spinach and peas. But even though she wouldn't have approved of my spaghetti, I'll let her character make an appearance at our table, when my kids beg for the scissors and trim their spaghetti, Pippi Longstocking-style.

Return the pan to medium low heat. Cook the leeks, stirring, until soft. Add the spinach and peas. Cook for a minute or two, then add the broth and the cheese. Cook until heated through and the cheese is melted. Pour over the hot cooked pasta and serve.

Poll: Some support, no consensus on consolidation

Survey finds public has reservations on merging some services

By CHARLES WIFF
wiffc@spotlightnews.com

A majority of New Yorkers are in favor of government consolidation, but when it comes to saying what that means and where it should be done there are divergent opinions.

So says a Marist College/Dyson Foundation study released Tuesday, April 12. The survey, titled "Striking a Balance: New Yorkers Speak Out on Rightsizing Local Government," polled 4,500 state residents by telephone, including about 500 in the Capital District. It was found 54 percent of respondents outside of the city would favor consolidations in their own local government.

But an equally important discovery was how little of the public was aware of the issue. A whopping 86 percent of those polled said they had heard little or nothing about government consolidation. Also notably, about the same amount of respondents said consolidation means sharing services as those who said it constitutes merging governments.

"There are about as many ways to refer to consolidation as there is to restructure local government," said Lee Miringoff, director of the Marist College Institute of Public Opinion. "People don't have a clear position, a precise meaning of what it's all about. I think people find the multiplicity of governments to not make a lot of sense."

At the same time, most New Yorkers gave their own local governments passing grades and responded negatively to the concept of dissolving them. But a slight majority outside New York City think there are too many local governments, suggesting that while they see waste in government they are loathe to give up their own structures.

Robert Conway, Mayor of the Village of Voorheesville, said that finding is along the lines of what he hears from his constituents every day.

"Most people like the sense of local control over government," he said. "Most people I think feel government at the very local level is very responsive."

When the issue of consolidation is raised, the idea of dissolving villages and other small municipalities into the larger towns they inhabit invariably follows. At the same time, there have been only a few places across the state where this has gained traction.

"I think what has happened is that the discourse on this in the general public has been part of political campaigns, and they have purposes behind them that are skewed towards a political outcome rather than one based on fact," said Village of Altamont Mayor James Gaughan.

Again, the debate turns to a matter of definition. Both of these mayors said their towns have responded to the recession by seeking efficiencies and shared services agreements with the towns they are a part of—Voorheesville with New Scotland and Altamont with Guilderland.

But they also defended the necessity of their

Finance in the Spotlight

No time like the present for homebuyers

By JOEL BISAILLON JR.,
District Sales Manager,
KeyBank Mortgage

If you're in anyway involved in the real estate market this spring, there's one thing you're going to hear over and over: it's a buyers market. Inventory continues to increase; prices, if not declining, have remained steady in many markets; and interest rates remain historically low.

However, according to economists at Freddie Mac, prices are expected to gradually increase throughout 2011 and 2012. So if you are currently in the market to buy a home, value more than location. Value timing as well. Because securing financing at a low rate for house priced to sell can save you tens of thousands, if not hundreds of thousands of dollars over the course of your loan.

And don't be unduly influenced by media reports that banks are not making loans. Banks are in the business of lending, and they want to help you.

Here are some things you can do to help ensure that you can take advantage of the optimal market conditions.

What you need

When it comes to getting a loan, doing your homework pays off. You will want to make sure you know what to expect from the process. Even if you have been through this before, reviewing the application steps can streamline the process and will help you find best loan and interest rate for you.

First, get your finances in order. Check your credit score. For the best rates, lenders are looking for a FICO of at least 720. The healthier your FICO score, the better your rate will be. But even if your credit is not stellar, there are still options available to most potential homebuyers. You just need to know where to look prepare and yourself by taking the following steps.

Step one: determine your available down payment. How much will you be able to put down on a house? You should have at least five percent, but 20 percent down will save you money and could improve your interest rate. If you have less than stellar credit, a substantial down payment could make it easier to get approved.

Step two: research interest rates. Do not go into the process blind. Read up on what is being offered right now and get rate quotes, so you can make an informed decision.

Step three: collect paperwork and documentation. You will need to provide pay stubs for the past 30 days, W-2 forms or tax returns if self-employed from the past two years, as well as statements from bank and investment accounts when you begin to apply for a loan.

Step four: get preapproved. You will need a preapproval letter from a lender to put an offer in on a home.

After you've had the opportunity to talk with lenders, determine the type of loan that best suits your needs. There are many types of loans available, including fixed rate (FRM), adjustable rate (ARM) and government-insured loans. The type of loan you choose will really depend on your particular situation, such as how long you plan to stay in the home and the monthly payment you can comfortably afford.

Alternative financing

Although credit standards are fairly rigorous these days, there are alternative forms of financing available to potential homebuyers:

• FHA – these are a great option for those with steady income but not a substantial down payment.

• VA – for those with current or previous military service, low down payment options are available.

• USDA – another great option for those with a lower down payment but with income limits.

• Jumbo – for loans exceeding the conventional loan limits in your area.

Many banks have programs that cater to the needs of individuals who require alternative financing. For example, KeyBank offers clients up to 100 percent financing through our Key Community product. Other lenders offer other programs to help individuals and families fulfill the dream of homeownership.

Word to the wise

Taking steps to organize and prepare for the financing process will enable you to take advantage of the prime real estate conditions this spring.

One of the best steps you can take to make the financing process easier on you is to get pre-approved for a loan. When you are pre-approved, you know your price range for shopping, you are more attractive to sellers and you can expedite the closing process.

Shop smart and stay within your price range. Save yourself time and possible heartache by shopping for homes you can actually afford. Many people have had to sell or foreclose on their dream home because they were in over their heads.

Look for lenders with history and stability. New regulations are shaking up the entire industry. So now, more than ever, consider the value of financing your home purchase with a credible and stable institution. And remember the old adage: if it seems too good to be true, it probably is! Read the fine print.

Buying a house: Are you ready?

1. Take a good look at your budget. Are you in good financial shape? If you do not currently have a budget, creating one should be the first step in the process of purchasing a home. You must review your income and expenses to see what type of mortgage payment your budget can accommodate.
2. Consider your long-term plans. Economic times are still a little uncertain. To make buying a home worth your while, Kiplinger.com advises staying in the home five to seven years. Always remember that your home is your shelter. The housing bubble of the last decade was unprecedented, and it is likely that we are returning to a more realistic market where house values only increase marginally year-over-year.
3. Take a good look at your income. Remember, home ownership requires more than just a monthly mortgage payment. Will your income support home maintenance, upkeep and the occasional emergency? Don't forget to account for taxes.
4. Review your FICO score. This is what lenders will look at first to determine your rate. If your number is not as high as you would like, see what you can do to strengthen your credit before applying.
5. Know your down payment capacity? Ideally, you should have a down payment of 20 percent. This will save you from paying PMI and may help you get a better interest rate. But remember, low down payment options are available to credit worthy buyers.
6. Research your market. On a national level, experts are forecasting that the housing market will stabilize, even as foreclosure rates continue to rise. But regionally, markets are shaped by local influences. Talking with realtors and lenders can provide you with trends and forecasts for your area. Not only will this help you make a more informed decision about whether or not buying is the right thing for you to do, it will help you understand the market you are buying in, and it will help you predict what the value of your home will do in the foreseeable future.

governments, even if it means residents might pay another level of taxes.

Gaughan said his village is about 5 percent of the population of Guilderland, and having an autonomous leadership means residents will have their needs addressed instead of swallowed up in the din at Town Hall. He also argued taxes would probably go up for the rest of the town's residents if Altamont were absorbed.

"Behind the green door is a lot of other issues that don't get talked about," he said.

Conway said the recession means there's a lot more outside the box thinking, but added there needs to be a concerted effort to make sure people understand what's being done.

"You're always going to deal with turf battles and that type of thing, but I think overall, as long as the municipal leaders are going to be able to show there's a clear benefit to any consolidation, I think the public will support moving forward with it," he said.

Marist poll respondents showed varying levels of support for consolidation in different areas. Things like public transportation, road maintenance and parks and recreational programming are prime candidates for mergers, but the citizenry was more or less split on consolidations in fire and police services. These are the services citizens tend to say they value most, according to the poll's findings, and their attitudes breaks down similarly among supporters and opponents of consolidation.

The public responded negatively to the concept of dissolving local governments altogether, and their attitudes were even more clear when it came to schools. Just 45 percent thought districts should be consolidated at all.

"They think there are too many local governments in the state, but they think there's the right amount of school districts," said Marist's Barbara Carvalho.

Robert Dyson, of the Dyson Foundation (the survey's backer), said homeowners will often feel there's a direct connection between the quality of the community and the school district that's not present with municipal services.

"It ties in with property values," he said.

School district taxes tends to be the largest portion of an upstate New York homeowner's tax bill.

Perhaps one of the more solid conclusions of the study was that there seems to be little outside connection between those advocating for change and those against it.

"Demography and party don't drive these answers," Miringoff said. "What drives this is position on local government."

The survey is available at www.nylocalgov.org.

'The memory will always be there'

Vincenzo Russo addresses a crowd at the Albany Crime Victims Memorial at Academy Park in Albany last Thursday, April 14. Russo's sister Gabriella was killed by a drunk driver at the age of four, nearly a decade before he was born. "Not having been able to meet Gabriella has been a challenge," he told the crowd. "Pain will never go away, but today it is OK to remember — it's normal to remember — the memory will always be there. We should not and cannot forget our loved ones."

It's EASY being GREEN

Local organizations observe Earth Day in their own unique ways

Sandy Steubing knows that there are more relaxing ways to spend retirement.

"I could be scuba diving in the Caribbean," she said with a laugh.

But Steubing's life course was altered when she visited a website that mentioned "peak oil."

Curious, she clicked on a link. She learned about studies and research that concluded the world's oil supply is going to run out soon. The peak oil theory maintains that we are extracting the maximum amount of oil from the earth that we can; if we don't reduce our dependency on oil, our economy will collapse in about 10 years.

The volume of research and studies supporting this overwhelmed Steubing. And so retirement turned not into a life of leisure, but one aimed at reducing the world's dependency on oil. It's a lofty goal, but Steubing believes small steps can add up to a big accomplishment. To that end, she's helped organize a lunchtime bike ride through Albany on Friday, April 22, in honor of Earth Day. It's one of several local events being held in conjunction with Earth Day.

Steubing hopes the bike ride will accomplish a few things. It will get people on their bikes instead of driving cars. Maybe they'll think about riding their bikes more often. Even better, maybe they'll think about other ways they can reduce their dependency on oil.

Maybe a few will even be moved to adopt the cause the way Steubing has.

Bicyclists will meet at 11:30 a.m. at the corner of Eagle Street and Pine Street, kitty corner from City Hall. There will be Earth Day flags for bikers to fly from their bikes, the better to draw attention to their mission. There will be a speaker, and then riders will set off on a roughly one-hour journey that ends in Washington Park.

This is the first year for the bike ride, which had drawn about 25 participants as of the weekend. Steubing hopes for more people to take part in future years, but she's encouraged by the numbers.

"Each one of these things makes a small impact," she said.

Growing and eating local food is another step that can pay off, she said. "Gardens are a great thing - anything that encourages relocalization so we're not transporting food from thousands of miles away."

The Gunderland Public Library will celebrate Earth Day on Friday, April 22, with a reading of "We Are Extremely Very Good Recyclers," among other activities.

That's why she supports the movement to keep chickens and hens inside city limits, and she was excited about a career fair at Albany High School that taught students about career options in farming. The fair spotlighted more than growing crops and breeding animals; it showed how job choices like repairing tractors fit into the big picture.

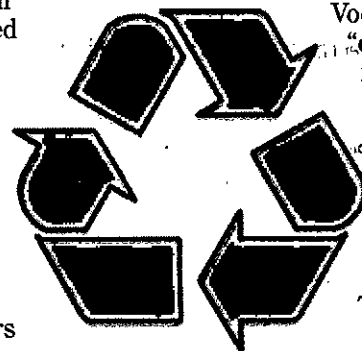

Steubing is part of the Capital District Transition Network, which is focused on transitioning away from oil dependency. She encouraged people who want more information to visit the group's website at cdtransition.net or to email her at ssteub@gmail.com.

Meanwhile, Five Rivers Center in Delmar is having an Earth Day festival on Saturday, April 23. An event organizer said the focus is not on handing out pamphlets and fact sheets, but on putting a fun spin on ways to "be kind and good to the earth."

There will be a couple of hybrid cars on display, and kids can make a craft using recycled paper. There will be a presentation on invasive species, and people who order plants from the DEC's nursery in Saratoga Springs can save on shipping by picking them up at Five Rivers, which serves as a drop-off point.

Not far up the road, Thacher Nature Center in Voorheesville will sponsor "earth-friendly creative fun" from 10 a.m. to noon. For $3, attendees can make an earth-friendly reusable tote bag and watch two short films, "The Story of Stuff" and "The Story of Cap and Trade."

The Gunderland Public Library will celebrate Earth Day on Friday, April 22, at 6 p.m. All kids will receive a tree counter to record items recycled throughout the week, and they'll play a recycling game, learn about recycling and listen to the book "We Are Extremely Very Good Recyclers."

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

to officials. Authorities found a cooler full of fish averaging 11 pounds and 27 inches long, many of them pregnant females, according to arrest reports.

It is currently the walleye spawning season. The walleye fishing season does not open until the first Saturday in May, and closes March 15.

Theft suspect also had shotgun

Marcelle Chandler, 16, of 424 Elk St. Albany, was arrested by the Guilderland Police department on Friday, April 15.

Marcelle Chandler

Chandler was apprehended by Macys security after taking two Polo shirts and concealing them in a shopping bag. Chandler was found to be in possession of a loaded sawed off shotgun. Chandler had the weapon concealed in his backpack and he did not make any threats towards anyone with it.

Chandler was charged with Criminal Possession of a Weapon which is a Class D Felony as well as Petit Larceny which is a Class A Misdemeanor.

Chandler was arraigned and transported to the Albany County Correctional Facility.

Other arrests

• Bethlehem Police on Thursday, April 7, at about 9:20 a.m., arrested Albert Gustaf Lindh II, 21, of 1 Concord Road, Glenmont, and charged him with DWI, misdemeanor criminal possession of a controlled substance and trespassing. Also arrested was Tanya Nicole Mcfarlane, 25, of 7 St. Joseph Terrace, Albany, on charges of misdemeanor criminal possession of a controlled substance, trespassing and an open container violation.

Police conducting a patrol at Elm Avenue Park in Delmar allegedly observed Lindh's 2011 Chevrolet Cruze entering the park just after 5 a.m. and driving to the rear of the park into an unlit area. When police interviewed him, Lindh had the odor of alcohol on his breath and failed sobriety tests, police said.

Police allegedly found a pill bottle in the car containing Alprazolam, an anti-anxiety medication and controlled substance.

A breathalyzer test allegedly showed Lindh's BAC to be 0.12 percent. He was remanded to Albany County jail in lieu of $2,500 bail with a court date scheduled for May 3.

• Bethlehem Police on Saturday, April 9, at about 4 a.m., arrested

Kimberly Gibson, 25, of Middletown, and Erika E. Molle, 25, of 74 Delaware Avenue Apt. B, Delmar, and charged both with felony criminal possession of stolen property and unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

Police said a routine patrol on Delaware Avenue was alerted by a license plate reader that a 2005 Mercury Sable was reported stolen in January by the Middletown Police Department. After the vehicle pulled into the CVS parking lot in Delmar the duo was arrested.

Both were remanded to the Albany County jail in lieu of $10,000 bail. A preliminary appearance was scheduled for April 14 and a court date was set for May 3.

• Bethlehem Police on Saturday, April 9, at about 1:52 a.m. arrested Dylan James Drummer, 21, of 15 South St., Selkirk, and charged him with DWI, speeding and failure to keep right.

Police allegedly observed Drummer's 2004 Dodge Neon violating traffic laws while driving southbound on Route 9W. A traffic stop was conducted near the intersection of Jericho Road and police said Drummer told them he was trying to bring his girlfriend to the hospital because she may have been drugged.

His girlfriend was slumped over and unconscious in the passenger seat of the car, police said. Police were able to rouse her and she asked for medical attention, so Bethlehem EMS was summoned, but when paramedics examined her the woman allegedly became "combative and belligerent." Another passenger in the car said this behavior was unusual so she was detained for treatment.

A breathalyzer test showed her BAC to be 0.12 percent, police said.

Drummer allegedly had the odor of alcohol on his breath, showed other signs of intoxication, said he had four or five beers at a party in Albany and failed sobriety tests. A breathalyzer showed his BAC to be 0.11 percent. Drummer was scheduled to appear in court on May 3.

• Bethlehem Police on Saturday, April 9, at about 1:29 a.m., arrested Kelsey E. Mathusa, 23, of 12 Rose Court, Delmar, and charged her with DWI, failure to signal a turn, failure to yield and an open container violation.

Police said Mathusa's 1998 Volkswagen Beetle was observed violating traffic laws on Elsmere Avenue in Delmar. She allegedly had the odor of alcohol on her breath and watery, bloodshot eyes. Mathusa failed sobriety tests and was taken into custody.

Police allegedly discovered a partially consumed bottle of Sobieski Vodka in the vehicle. A breathalyzer showed Mathusa's BAC to be 0.11 percent, according to police. A court date was set for May 3 and Mathusa was released to her father.

• Bethlehem Police on Tuesday, April 5, at about 9:26 p.m., arrested Justin James Dumas, 28, of 445 Maple Avenue Apt. 2, Selkirk, and charged him with DWAI; that charge was later increased to felony DWI under Leandra's Law.

Dumas was also charged with failure to keep right and refusal to submit to a breathalyzer test after police stopped his 1995 Buick Regal on Route 9W in Glenmont. Police said he had the odor of alcohol on his breath and when asked to perform sobriety tests would not follow directions. He also allegedly refused to submit to a roadside breathalyzer test.

Police also discovered

Dumas had an active warrant issued earlier that day for obstruction of government administration in the second degree and menacing in the third degree.

At the police station, Dumas allegedly refused to take a breathalyzer multiple times. When he did provide a sample it was more than an hour after he was originally asked, and his BAC registered as 0.06 percent, police said.

Dumas was remanded to Albany County jail in lieu of $1,500 bond or $2,500 cash bail, but he was returned to court the next day and bail was increased to $25,000 when he was charged with felony DWI. Dumas allegedly had several passengers in the car, two of them small children. A preliminary hearing was set for April 11 and a court date for May 3.

park, and carry in not only traffic but infrastructure like sewer and electricity. It's a key component in getting the stalled Vista project moving, said Joe Nicolla of Columbia Development, who tonight said he has signed leases from four tenants that are contingent on the installation of the road.

He declined to identify those tenants, though several retail interests have been unveiled, including a ShopRite grocery store.

The problem, Nicolla said, is competition from other such developments in the area and a freeze in lending set off by the recession.

"There is no money to put in right now," Nicolla said.

That spawned the idea to have the IDA rustle up the bonds for the estimated $7 million project. The tax-free notes should be more attractive to long-term investors, who Nicolla said would be the ones exposed should the project languish.

Bethlehem Supervisor Sam Messina was at the meeting, and said the decision was an important step for Vista.

"I have seen nothing more exciting for Bethlehem, including for the school district, than the Vista Technology Campus, in the last 25 years," he said.

BC's agreement to hand over PILOT receipts would only extend to this bond issuance. Future PILOT agreements and tax receipts would flow to the county, town and school district normally.

A meeting similar to the one held Wednesday was conducted the following afternoon with Albany County Executive Michael Breslin. Messina said after that meeting that Breslin agreed to bring a resolution to the County Legislature at its next meeting on May 9.

It's possible there will be a discussion about the $1 million the county promised in 2003 for Vista development at that meeting. Earlier this year, the county was noncommittal on the realization of that payout, saying the money was promised to promote high-tech jobs and none have been identified yet.

Nicolla said Vista Boulevard can be completed in about seven months once the funding structure is in place, and there are plans to build the first of Vista's buildings even as the road is being laid. For now, developers are waiting on decisions from the town and county on the PILOT plan.

"Once we get them, then we'll be in great shape," Nicolla said.

of the road with traffic, walkers should stick to the left; motorists should slow down when approaching bicyclists and make sure to pass with a minimum of a 3-foot distance; cars must yield to pedestrians in a crosswalk; and bicyclists and pedestrians should always make an effort to be visible to motorists.

But the most important rule is to simply remember to share the road and be conscious of one's surroundings. Though motorists can sometimes draw the ire of walkers and bike riders for hogging the road, it's everyone's responsibility to keep things safe and orderly out there.

That goes doubly for areas with high pedestrian traffic. The town's Highway Department recently installed pedestrian bollards in several major crosswalks in town, such as in front of Town Hall and outside the Delmar Post Office. These are to serve as reminders to motorists that they law requires traffic yield to pedestrians in crosswalks.

Bethlehem Police Deputy Chief Timothy Beebe said police officers will be keeping an eye out for motorists violating this law as well as others who are acting unsafely. Walking facing traffic is one rule he sought to emphasize.

"I see this on a daily basis, and people are busy, speeding, talking

BICYCLISTS SHOULD...

- Always wear a helmet.
- Be Seen. Wear reflective bright gear and use appropriate lights at night.
- Ride Right. Always ride on the right side of the road.
- Obey All Traffic Laws. You are entitled to your space on the road and must follow the same traffic laws that apply to motor vehicle drivers.
- Travel no more than two abreast and remember to share the road with motor vehicles.

SHARE THE ROAD

MOTOR VEHICLE DRIVERS SHOULD...

- Share The Road. The streets are for everyone and you should expect to see bicyclists on the road.
- Keep Eyes on the Road. Look for bicyclists when changing lanes, turning and opening car doors.
- SPEED KILLS. Obey the Speed Limit.
- Pass at a Safe Distance. Slow down and wait for a safe place to pass with a minimum of 3 feet of clearance.

Developed by the PaTHs 4 Bethlehem Committee - April 2011

Bethlehem Highway Department worker Scott Myers after installing a pedestrian awareness bollard on Delaware Avenue in front of Town Hall. The signs have gone up in three other locations around town to remind motorists to yield to pedestrians in crosswalks. The town and its PaTHs Committee are embarking on an educational campaign as the fair weather arrives. The PaTHs Committee and town will be distributing palm cards replete with reminders for motorists, pedestrians and bicyclists to help keep the roadways safe for all this spring, summer and beyond.

on their cell phone, whatever," he said. "At least if you're facing traffic and a car is coming close to you, you may have an opportunity to jump out of the way."

Beebe also suggested bicyclists and pedestrians wear bright or reflective clothing, especially at night or in the twilight hours.

The PaTHs Committee has also spoken about getting the educational campaign into the schools. The warm weather means more children will forsake the bus or a car for their commute.

"I'm just always amazed at the number of bikes that are ridden to the high school and the middle school by students," she said.

The cost of printing the palm cards will be assumed by the now-inactive Bethlehem Citizens for Pedestrian Safety group, which was also behind the "walk left, ride right" signs posted around town.

The hurdles aren't your standard, thin, easily-knocked over type of hurdles you see in the 100- and 400-meter events. These are long, thick wooden planks that are not easily cleared by a single bound. Many of the competitors I saw tackling the Lady Eagles Invitational steeplechase stepped on to the top of the hurdles before going over them. So in addition to having to pace themselves to cover 2,000 meters, they had to break their strides in order to deal with the obstacles.

Overall, the steeplechase seems to be suited for runners who embrace a challenge because it is the most difficult event in track and field. You have to admire any high school runner who completes the event, win or lose.

• The University at Albany women's lacrosse team's chances of a perfect regular season improved significantly with last Saturday's 12-11 win at America East rival Boston University.

The Great Danes (12-0) showed grit in battling the defending league champion Terriers. Boston University led by two goals three times in the first half, but UAlbany kept coming back and took a 9-8 lead late in the second half. The Terriers tied the game two more times before Arianna Parker scored on a free-position shot with 10.4 seconds left to put the Great Danes ahead for good.

The question for the No. 7-ranked Great Danes is can they avoid the upset bug down the stretch? They visit Metro Atlantic power Canisius (10-4) Thursday in a non-league game. If they get past the Golden Griffins, then they have to avoid a trap game against Binghamton Saturday before facing their closest America East competitor, UMBC, in the regular season finale April 30.

A loss in any of those three games would be disappointing, but by now it would not be a dagger in UAlbany's hopes for a NCAA Tournament bid. With their top-10 national ranking and four wins against teams that were ranked in the top 20 at the time of their meetings, the Great Danes have done enough to earn at least an at-large berth.

Still, you get the feeling that UAlbany isn't going to relinquish its role as one of the last remaining undefeated teams in the nation without a fight. That was certainly in evidence against Boston University.

• Beware of the Ballston Spa boys lacrosse team this season.

The Scotties are 4-1 after the first two weeks of the Suburban Council season, with their lone loss coming against defending Section II Class A champion Shenendehowa. Ballston Spa's signature win thus far is last Saturday's 8-7 overtime victory over South Division power Guilderland, with Troy Gargiulo netting the winning goal in the extra period.

Gargiulo is in the middle of a breakout senior season for the Scotties. He has 14 goals and eight assists for 22 points, which ties him with Bethlehem's Liam Christiansen for second place among all Suburban Council players in scoring. Bethlehem's Jordan Scheid leads with way with 23 points.

Though the 14 goals are impressive, the eight assists are the more telling statistic for Gargiulo. He's getting his teammates involved in the offense — something he didn't do much last season.

"I played with the Albany Power last summer, and I learned how to distribute and play better team lacrosse," said Gargiulo. "And we have kids here [at Ballston Spa] who play at a much higher level this year."

With Gargiulo leading the way and a defense that has been fairly stingy in allowing goals thus far (27 in five games),

Guilderland's Michelle Fish lands in the water during the 2,000-meter steeplechase at the Fleet Feet Sports Lady Eagles Invitational in Delmar. Rob Jonas/Spotlight

Ballston Spa is a team that may challenge Shen and Niskayuna for the Class A title this year.

• Finally, permit me a moment of self promotion. I'll be playing my first New York City show Saturday at the Recoup Lounge on the lower east side of Manhattan. I'd say stop on by if you're in the neighborhood, but it is about 160 miles away from here.

The defense also lacks experience outside of junior goaltender Sean Klim, who is in his second year as the varsity starter.

"Not one of the guys playing defense for us ... played many minutes for us last year," said McConaghy. "It's nice to see them stepping up and learning from last year."

How quickly the younger players continue to develop will go a long way to determining where Guilderland finishes this season. Beyond challenging for the Suburban Council South Division title, the Dutchmen are also looking to reach the Class A Sectional semifinals at least and get to the finals.

To reach those goals, though, Guilderland will face a tougher Class A field that includes Niskayuna for the first time since the Silver Warriors won the title in 2008. Niskayuna was the Class B champion the past two years.

"Now you have to go through either Niskayuna or Shenendehowa to get to the finals, and then get through the other team as it stands right now," said McConaghy. "Come the end of May, it's a whole new season."

Guilderland has a light week of games during the school vacation week. After facing defending Class A champion Shen Tuesday, the Dutchmen visit Section I's Arlington Saturday. They host their first league game next Monday when Saratoga Springs pays them a visit.

Another young team riding the lacrosse roller coaster is Bethlehem. The Eagles are 3-4 on the season after losing to Schenectady 12-7 last Saturday in Delmar.

Bethlehem had a 7-6 lead going into the fourth quarter, but Schenectady rattled off six unanswered goals to pull out the victory.

Tim Cox led the Patriots with six goals, while Sam Hartz contributed a hat trick. Dan Thompson's five goals paced the Eagles.

Bethlehem entered last Saturday's non-league game off a 13-7 Suburban Council victory over Saratoga Springs last Thursday. John Gosstola and Jordan Scheidt each tallied four times, and goaltender Andy Reilly made 15 saves for the Eagles.

After hosting Niskayuna Tuesday, Bethlehem travels to Burnt Hills-Ballston Lake Thursday.

Voorheesville's Vinnie Saccocio took first place in the pole vault by clearing the bar at 12 feet in fewer attempts than Shaker's Tim Derocher.

Bethlehem eased past the competition at the Albright Invitational. The Eagles finished with 129 points, 42 points ahead of runner-up Albany.

Mike Williams and John Carswell swept the top two places in the discus for Bethlehem. Williams won with a throw of 127 feet, 5 inches, while Carswell took second place with a distance of 111 feet, 7 inches.

Luke Carpinello and Chris Collier contributed individual victories for the Eagles. Carpinello won the 800-meter race with a time of 2:01.5, and Collier finished first in the 3,200-meter race with a time of 9:51.2.

Queensbury jumps on Bethlehem

Queensbury built a 7-0 lead and cruised to a 13-2 non-league victory over Bethlehem in last Saturday's baseball game in Delmar.

The Spartans scored three runs in the top of the first inning and four more in the second to gain control. They finished with 11 hits and took advantage of eight Bethlehem errors.

Ryan Davis led Queensbury with a home run and a single. Charlie Peltz and Alston Moses each added a double and two singles.

Stephen Drew doubled twice, and Eric Mueller chipped in with a pair of singles for Bethlehem.

Reloading isn't easy

Dutch go through growing pains as season starts

By ROB JONAS
jonasr@spotlightnews.com

Change is in the air with the Guilderland boys lacrosse team.

With only a small number of holdovers from last year's team, the Dutchmen are trying to develop a chemistry that will lead to wins.

"We expect to win the [Suburban Council South] division, and we expect to put in a good run in Sectionals," said Guilderland coach Sean McConaghy. "The guys are working hard together to make sure it all pays off at the end."

So far, the Dutchmen (2-1 league, 2-2 overall) have had mixed results. In their most recent games, they held on for an 8-6 Suburban Council victory over Shaker last Thursday before falling to an improved Ballston Spa squad 8-7 in overtime last Saturday.

"It was a great game to be part of," McConaghy said of the Ballston Spa game, which Guilderland led 6-5 entering the fourth quarter. "It's unfortunate that we came out on the short end of it, but it was a great game."

The Dutchmen are getting contributions from several players on offense. Connor McLachlan leads the team in goals with 10, while Taylor Dubose and Cody Dyer have each scored five times in the first four games. Connor Guilderland's Patrick Wood (23) is guarded by Shaker's Joey Chiara during last Thursday's Suburban Council South Division game in Latham.

Rob Jonas/Spotlight

Drislane leads Guilderland in assists with eight, to go along with four goals.

The promising thing for the Dutchmen is that their leading scorers are mostly underclassmen. McLachlan, Dubose and Drislane are juniors, while Dyer is a sophomore. But with that youth comes a certain amount of inexperience that McConaghy acknowledges is a concern.

"We're all a lot of new guys on offense," said McConaghy. "We're just trying to click, but they're all awesome kids. You can see them developing together."

Kearney leads Lady Eagles with three titles

The Colonie girls track and field team took top honors at last Saturday's Fleet Feet Sports Lady Eagles Invitational at Bethlehem, but there was room for athletes from Shaker, Guilderland and Bethlehem to shine.

The Garnet Raiders finished with 135 points to win the team title. Shaker was second with 87 points, followed by Shenendehowa in third place with 81.5 points. Guilderland finished fourth with 77 points, and Bethlehem took sixth place with 67 points.

Bethlehem's Jackie Kearney had a big afternoon winning three events. Kearney took first place in the 400-meter dash with a time of 1:01.15, won the 100-meter high hurdles with a time of 15.86 seconds and finished first in the 300-meter intermediate hurdles with a time of 48.26 seconds.

Kyle Plante led Colonie with an individual victory in the 100-meter dash in a time of 12.42 seconds. Plante also ran the anchor leg on Colonie's sprint medley relay team, which finished first with a time of 4:27.69. Amy Becker, Kristina Lenge and Uwa Omorogbe ran the first three legs of the sprint medley relay.

The Garnet Raiders' 800-meter relay team of Jaimee Walters, Kawandi Young, Alicia Bousa and Racquel Cunningham took first place with a time of 1:51.42.

Shaker's top performer was Kayleigh Lavender, who won the 600-meter race with a time of 1:40.46.

Guilderland's Kendra Lizotte and Cadi Diamante won field events. Lizotte finished first in the pole vault by clearing the bar at 9 feet, while Diamante won the triple jump with a distance of 35 feet, 10.25 inches.

In boys track and field, Shaker and Bethlehem won area invitationals last Saturday. Shaker took first place at the Warrior Classic in Niskayuna, while Bethlehem finished first at the Albright Invitational at Albany Academy.

Shaker had little trouble winning the Warrior Classic boys team title. The Blue Bison finished with 137 points, easily outdistancing runner-up New Paltz (50 points) and third-place Colonie (49 points).

Shaker's dominance in the distance events helped it pull away from the pack. Kyle Foster won the 800-meter race with a time of 2:03.54, Casey Gilboy finished first in the 1,500-meter race with a time of 4:16.40 and Mike Libruk took first place in the 3,000-meter event with a time of 9:13.82. Ian Weykamp added a victory in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles with a time of 58.24 seconds for the Blue Bison.

Competitors splash down during the girls 2,000-meter steeplechase at last Saturday's Fleet Feet Sports Lady Eagles Invitational at Bethlehem Central High School.

Rob Jonas/Spotlight

Steeplechase is not for the meek

Who would have guessed that AJ Burnett would be the New York Yankees' most reliable starting pitcher? That's nearly as scary as relying on Charlie Sheen to carry a one-man play. OK, moving on...

• I don't get the opportunity to watch the steeplechase at track meets very often.

When I do, I wonder what drives these athletes to compete in an event that looks like a method of torturing humans.

The steeplechase combines a long distance running event — 2,000 meters for high school girls and 3,000 meters for high school boys — with jumping over hurdles, one of which is set up in front of a sizeable pit filled with water.

In warmer weather, I imagine that the water pit is probably the most pleasurable part of running the steeplechase because you get to cool off every 400 meters. But when the event is held on a cold, gray afternoon — like it was at last Saturday's Lady Eagles Invitational at Bethlehem — the water pit becomes ... well, far less pleasurable, to say the least.
