Judge opens Conservative line

Kotary's lawsuit successful, candidate to be decided in September primary

By CHARLES WIFF
wiffc@spotlightnews.com

There's been yet another shakeup in the Bethlehem supervisor race that's effectively opened up the Conservative line to all comers.

Albany County Supreme Court Judge Thomas McNamara on Friday, Aug. 5, ruled in favor of supervisor candidate Kyle Kotary's lawsuit seeking to invalidate the Conservative Party's late endorsement of his opponent, John Clarkson. But at the same time he also authorized an opportunity to ballot race to be held on that line in the upcoming September primary.

The lawsuit centered on the Conservative Party's certificate to substitute Clarkson for sitting Supervisor Sam Messina, who had originally garnered the party's endorsement before he bowed out of the race. Kotary argued a section of this form had not been properly notarized, nullifying the substitution.

"This midnight deal to mislead the voters was done in such haste that they forgot to follow the law. The judge agreed. Hopefully, my opponents will now join me in signing the Fair Campaign Pledge, and in running an open, transparent, and issue-based campaign," Kotary said in a statement following the ruling.

Clarkson issued his own statement. "Kyle's lawsuit took advantage of apparent procedural errors, serving his campaign strategy of limiting choice. The voters are not well served by such technical legal wrangles,

Return the Favor program a way for local businesses to show their appreciation

By ANDREW BEAM

Albany County Executive Mike Breslin said he doesn't want war veterans to receive the lukewarm reception he got after 12 years of service in the Army during the Vietnam era. Instead, he wants them to know he's grateful for their service and make life a little easier for them.

"I spent 12 years in the Army, and when I came back, I didn't get much of a welcome at all," he said. "Today is different. There's a small percentage less of people serving who are going

A fair week for all

118th annual event to kick off; all-inclusive passes return

By CHARLES WIFF
wiffc@spotlightnews.com

Next week the population of Altamont will surge as thousands converge on the small village for its biggest yearly event: the Altamont Fair.

This year's six-day extravaganza will mark the 118th time the gates have swung open for the storied annual tradition. From its modest roots touring the Albany area to the modern-day incarnation at its permanent home, each year, the fair promises to bring something new, yet something familiar, to neighbors near and far. And 2011 will be no different.

"I think we've got a different mix," said Pat Canaday, who's on the fair's Board of Directors. "You try to meet people's needs in providing some favorites, and then some new events as well."

The big news this year is really the same as it was last August - the fair's unlimited, one-price admission ticket will make a return, granting patrons parking, admission to all events and as

American Legion labors to help pregnant vets

Local posts organize showers for servicewomen

By CHARLES WIFF
wiff@spotlightnews.com

Tiffany Varney is an Air National Guard veteran.

Discharged last October, the South Glens Falls resident was grouped with the 109th Airlift Wing out of Scotia and was stationed overseas in Qatar for six months during her service. She's also pregnant.

While there are many supports in place for veterans, female service members are still in the minority, and sometimes their needs get overlooked. That's something local veteran support groups are looking to remedy, though, and on Tuesday, Aug. 2, the Nathaniel Blanchard American Legion Post Ladies Auxiliary, the Voorheesville American Legion Post Ladies Auxiliary and the Bucci McTague Post Ladies Auxiliary came together at the Nathaniel Blanchard Post in Delmar to throw Varney a baby shower.

"It is a huge, huge, huge help," said Varney, who was 36 weeks pregnant with her first child at the time of the shower. "I never expected anything like this ever before. It's amazing how everybody comes together and helps."

There are more pregnant vets than you might think. According to Jane Weber, the women veterans program manager at the Albany Stratton VA Medical Center, about a dozen have recently passed through the halls of the VA hospital.

It's something that's becoming more prevalent as the number of women serving increases and the average age of all veterans goes down. In some cases, both halves of a couple serve in the military.

"The women population is growing, and the face of the veteran is changing," Weber said. "In some cases, they're alone because their partner is deployed."

And just like thousands of other veterans, pregnant vets sometimes need a hand. But female vets may find the system is not always set up with their needs in mind. Simply making women veterans aware of the resources the VA offers is an ongoing mission, said Weber. She has organized an all-women support group at the Albany VA that sees about 60 female veterans meeting regularly. Many might not take advantage of anything the VA has to offer without such a group, Weber said, as it's common for women to feel marginalized in the military even though they now constitute about 15 percent of the active duty force.

Since pregnancy is by definition unique to women, this is one area veteran supporters can really step up to engage women vets, said Nathaniel Blanchard American Legion Post Ladies Auxiliary President Francine Waldron. The Delmar post has recently partnered with others to bring donations directly to the hospital and now hopes to throw more affairs like the shower for Varney.

"How large is the scale? You don't know," Waldron said. "We're just concerned with helping. We just decided that somebody needed to help."

YMCA holds Strong Kids Day

About 750 kids from area YMCA summer camps converged on the Guilderland Y's Camp Nassau on Friday, Aug. 5, to celebrate Strong Kids Day with a day of fun, fellowship and games.

Strong Kids Day has long been an annual tradition for YMCA campers, and it's meant to remind of the Y's core values of caring, honesty, responsibility and respect, as well as provide a fun summer day.

"We used to do them just at your own camp ... and the last couple years we brought all the camps together," said Camp Nassau Director Brian Robinson.

Meeting at Camp Nassau this year were campers from the YMCA camps in Troy, Albany, Schenectady, Bethlehem, Greenbush, Greene County and the Southern Saratoga YMCA.

The YMCA's summer camps run for 10 weeks, and kids can come for a single week or for the entire program. The programming varies from branch-to-branch, but on Friday, campers were engaged in a lot of the classic outdoor games of summer like tag, soccer and water fights. There's even a zipline at Camp Nassau.

"It's a celebration for YMCA kids," Robinson said. "It's just to give the kids a day of recreation and a great day out."

Police charge G'land woman with sexual abuse of girl

Carolyn Lorrain Wilson, 55, of the Park Guilderland Apartments, 461 Route 146, Building 4, Apartment 317, was arrested on Tuesday, Aug. 2, and charged with sexual abuse in the second degree and endangering the welfare of a child.

Police said Wilson "claims the title of Reverend," but that she is not known to be affiliated with any church. The alleged sexual contact occurred at Wilson's residence, according to police.

Wilson was arraigned in Guilderland Town Court and remanded to Albany County jail in lieu of $5,000 bail. She was scheduled to appear in court again on Aug. 4.

Anyone with information about similar incidents involving Wilson is asked to contact Guilderland police at 356-1501.

Police plan 'Speed Week'

State Police will be cracking down on speeders this week.

Troop G, covering the Capital District, recently announced that a "Speed Week" campaign will coincide with the NASCAR Race at Watkins Glen International Raceway on Aug. 14.

Between Aug. 8 and 14, police will be on the lookout for speeders. Troop G Commander Major William S. Sprague said every available trooper will be on patrol during the week.

"Too often, police officers witness first-hand the tragic and needless loss of life resulting from highway crashes," Major Sprague said in a statement. "Many of these highway deaths and injuries result from common but illegal actions such as speeding. We're encouraging the public to think about their driving behavior and comply with speed limits, to help prevent needless tragedies."

Troopers will also be on the lookout for other traffic infractions, including the recently-instated move over law, which requires motorists to move over a lane for stopped emergency vehicles on multi-lane roads, if possible.

Police said motorists should remember traffic tickets can quickly add up to hundreds of dollars and could potentially mean the loss of driving privileges.

A Robin's Nest that's strictly for the birds

By ROBIN SHRAGER SUITOR

kind of wanted to touch it.

It's not like this nest was the first real bird's nest I have ever seen. I've seen several. We have a birdhouse in our backyard and when we remember to clean it out we get to see the most amazing vacated nests. We have also seen little birds (wren? sparrows?) flying in and out of the birdhouse, sometimes resting on the wire from which the house is suspended between two trees.

I had read that birdhouses should be cleaned out each year. You'd think that a pregnant bird would appreciate a furnished home, but I guess she'd grow bored and restless if she didn't have the responsibility of building a nest.

I know enough not to disturb a nest on a tree branch, but I have touched the nests that we've removed from the birdhouse. The craftsmanship is incredible. I always wondered how the birds accomplish the task.

This year I witnessed the robin, the one I had startled, working on her nest. I had a pretty good view of the nest from a window inside our home.

One day I looked out and the bird appeared to be pecking at the nest. Later I was outside and saw the bird fly into the nest with a twig or grass in her beak.

She then proceeded to walk in circles around the nest, her beak down and her tail feathers way up. This was followed by additional laps around during which it appeared she was bouncing her feathery bird bottom against the nest.

As soon as she left the nest I ran inside for the video camera. I set up several feet away hidden in the breezeway. Through the flip-out screen I watched the birdie work on her nest for several minutes. My arm was cramping up and my knees were aching from crouching, but I had a great view. Finally the bird flew off for more supplies.

"The camera's not on," said Jeff, coming up behind me as I worked to get myself out of the crouching position.

"That would have been great footage," I lamented, letting out some cuss words to express my frustration.

"Don't worry, the bird will be back."

"It's not easy perching in this crouched position," I complained. Clearly, I'd be useless at a real stake out.

"Then don't crouch. Just sit on your bottom and tilt the screen."

Sensible spouses make life so much easier!

I recorded the bird when she returned, although for a shorter interval than I originally spent when the camera was on pause. There's only so much time one can spend watching a bird walk in circles. What would have been really cool was if the bird was wearing a tiny camera on her head that could record her beak as it weaved the nest.

I've been referring to the bird as "she" based on what I found when researching robins on the Internet.

Only one source indicated that the male may help the female build the nest, and we didn't spot a second bird hanging around until after we saw the eggs, so I concluded it must be the mama bird doing the work.

A few days after we saw the robin putting the finishing touches on her nest, Jeff noticed two eggs. I had to stand on a step stool to catch a glimpse. A few days later there was a total of four eggs. Each time we left the house the mama bird would chirp once as she flew out of the nest. When we were out of sight, she'd return.

Eventually from the blue eggs came a blob of yellowish aliens, which became a blob of feathers with giant beaks, which became little fluffy birdies.

It was after the birds hatched that the papa bird came around. He and mama took turns bringing food. One parent would send out warning chirps from its perch on a nearby maple tree while its mate hopped toward the nest with a worm in its beak. The parent birds would also chirp like crazy if we lingered at the bush to admire or photograph the babies. The baby birds never made a sound when we were near. They were obviously taught never to talk to strangers.

Only I didn't feel like a stranger. I felt like these birds were an extension of my family. And I felt a great loss when they left the nest.

I actually witnessed

Robin Page 30

On my bedroom dresser sits a robin perched on the edge of a nest that contains three tiny blue eggs. Wildlife enthusiasts need not worry; the entire ensemble is ceramic. I got it from my sister quite a few years ago. "A robin for a Robin," I think she told me.

These days the statue reminds me of the real bird who built a real nest in a bush outside our door. I discovered the nest after the bird and I surprised each other one day. I was walking toward the house and she suddenly flew out of the bush. This caused me to yell "yaahh" or something similar. Then the bird seemed momentarily panicked, either because I had made a weird noise or because it had flown into our breezeway and thought it was trapped. After a few seconds of rapid wing flapping, she flew over my head and away.

"What's the matter?" asked my husband who had heard me yell "yaahh" and was walking over from the driveway.

"Everything's fine," I told him, "A bird and I startled each other. It was a robin."

"And then I examined the bush..."

"There's a nest!" I announced.

"Don't touch it."

"I wasn't going to touch it," I said, even though I

Matters of Opinion in The Spotlight

Council could have better reps

Maybe he thought GE was enough.

Last week, Gov. Andrew Cuomo announced the members of the Capital Region Regional Economic Development Council, one among 10 statewide that will compete against one another to submit plans for economic development to attain the biggest chunk of $1 billion in state funding. The Capital Region council represents Albany, Schenectady, Saratoga, Columbia, Greene, Rensselaer, Warren and Washington counties.

When Cuomo made the announcement at Schenectady County Community College, someone in the crowd asked why Neil Golub wasn't on the list. For those who dwell under rocks, Golub is president of the Golub Corporation in Schenectady, owner of the Price Chopper supermarkets and noted philanthropist.

It was a good question, albeit a loaded one. It's easy to play "should-of-would-of-could-of" with a council that draws its members from such a wide area. But the question led us at The Spotlight to look at the make up of the council, and what we found is that basically the only representative from the Schenectady area is General Electric.

That's a shame; there are many of our readers, we're sure, that would argue General Electric isn't necessarily the best representative of Schenectady County. And it's not like Cuomo was limited to one rep per geographic area, either. Glens Falls, in contrast, has three representatives. Saratoga County has four.

In the interest of full disclosure, Judith D'Agostino, chair of the Schenectady County Legislature is on the council as well, but having elected officials represent an area on a council that should embody a competitive business spirit is a lot like kissing your sister. It doesn't count.

MDA supports research that could save young lives

By STEVE, JOAN and IAN COFFEY

The authors are residents of Bethlehem and supporters of Muscular Dystrophy research.

Labor Day Weekend again marks the annual Jerry Lewis Telethon devoted to the eradication and cure of severe neuromuscular disease, in particular, Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy (DMD).

DMD is a fatal disease that affects approximately one in 3,500 boys and causes these young boys to gradually and progressively suffer permanent loss of their muscle function. It is the most lethal genetic disease to strike young boys. These boys lose their ability to walk at an early age, generally in their early teens, and ultimately they lose their lives in their early 20s. It is a savage, relentless and heart-breaking disease for which there is no cure or effective treatment.

We are the family of Quinn Ennis Coffey, who died from DMD in June of 2007 at the age of 23. After he was diagnosed with DMD at the age of 5, our family was compelled to travel the painful journey that was dictated by that disease. Needless to say, we support the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA), and the annual Jerry Lewis Telethon every year, praying that the money that is generated from this telethon will ultimately advance research to the point that others will be spared the ravages of this disease.

MDA is an organization devoted to finding a cure. Started in the early 1950s as a fundraiser by parents of young boys who were afflicted with DMD, MDA has evolved into an exemplary organization devoted exclusively to finding a cure for neuromuscular diseases. It supports families and patients around the world and assists them through very difficult times. For example, MDA has created an art website that illustrates remarkable accomplishments that these young boys can achieve in their lives with limited physical mobility. Interestingly, Quinn was not only an excellent student achieving very high academic standards in high school and college, but also a very creative artist. Since Quinn's death, his unique work has been reproduced into beautiful, enchanting note cards. Quinn spent numerous hours patiently laboring over his artwork, and as a result, achieved beautiful compositions and color for each piece. With limited mobility to finalize these pieces, Quinn would steadfastly continue until he mastered the image he had created in his mind.

While some of Quinn's cards have been given as gifts by us, we have also established a scholarship through the Bethlehem Central High School in Quinn's name and have sold Quinn's cards raising the funds for this scholarship. This is funding directly from Quinn to a graduating senior who has met our criteria to receive this scholarship. So far, two students have received this scholarship. We hope to bestow another scholarship in 2012.

(Anyone interested in purchasing these cards, may call 439-8631 or email with any questions to j.e.coffey@hotmail.com. A website is currently being created with photos of the cards and will be under the domain of "CardsbyQuinnCoffey.com" by September.)

The MDA is active throughout the year. Many organizations including The Spotlight, have created their own fundraising efforts for this cause as well, and we and all families are eternally grateful for those efforts. We hope and pray that the Jerry Lewis Telethon will once again go beyond its goal to raise the necessary funding for research so that a cure for these neuromuscular diseases, and especially Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy will be discovered.

Vista Boulevard leads nowhere

Editor, The Spotlight:

I am puzzled by the apparent lack of development at the Vista Technology Park in Slingerlands.

It was just last winter and spring when the local Industrial Development Agency (IDA) apparently carried the water for Columbia Development, the owner and developer of the large parcel, to fashion an innovative financing strategy to pay for construction of a road that we were all told was essential to attract tenants for the Park.

The road project had to be built immediately, we were told, so that tenants could be in place by the end of this Autumn. So the IDA got Albany County, the Town of Bethlehem, and the Bethlehem Central School District to do handstands for the developer, all in the name of the ever-elusive goal of bringing technology jobs to the Region.

Now, as the end of summer appears on the horizon, I have yet to see a shovel turned or, for that matter, a bull dozer even parked at what would be the roadway entrance, as perhaps a hint that progress is near. Maybe the tenants weren't so real after all.

Maybe the tenants weren't so real after all.

If construction of the road was that important, Columbia Development should have financed it without burdening our local governments with unusual financing schemes. That's what developers should do. Or is my view of what it means to "unleash the power of the private sector" misplaced?

Be wary of Kotary's record

Editor, The Spotlight:

As a resident of Bethlehem, I write to express my concern over the endorsement by the Republican Party of Democrat Kyle Kotary and respond to comments presented by the Republican Committee in defense of that endorsement.

Bethlehem Republican Committee Chair Ralf Ambrosio and fellow Committee member Peter Lauricella have each made unsupported claims that Mr. Kotary's has a record of fiscal discipline. In a June 8 letter to the editor, Mr. Ambrosio refers to Mr. Kotary as a "...budget hawk." Mr. Ambrosio, and the members of the Town Republican Committee who also voted to endorse Mr. Kotary, apparently forget about the 4 percent pay raise for town employees Mr. Kotary voted for in the fall of 2008 (for the 2009 budget) under the leadership of then Supervisor Jack Cunningham.

In doing so, Mr. Kotary was among those who disregarded the many men and women in the community who spoke out against the proposed pay hike at Town Board meetings. Their objection to the pay increase, and their assertion that it was at the very least untimely - was reasonable.

Recall that this occurred during a time of devaluing home prices and retirement accounts; the country was literally in a financial free fall.

Fast forward to 2011: At a time when town finances were fragile, Mr. Kotary, under the leadership of current Supervisor Sam Messina, supported a bid by the town to purchase the Norman side Golf Club. Fortunately, the bid was not successful.

Lastly, the Bethlehem Republican Committee also apparently forgets about Mr. Kotary's voting record in supporting "balanced" budgets at the expense of town reserve funds. A hawk Mr. Kotary is not.

It is one thing for the Bethlehem Republican Committee to be unable to field and run a candidate for the position of Town Supervisor from the ranks of its own party - it has occurred in the past without controversy. However, to endorse a candidate from the opposition party, who has or is likely to receive his own party's endorsement, is quite another; particularly when the basis of the endorsement (in this case fiscal discipline) is not evident in the candidate's established track record. Taken at their word of no deal being struck, The Bethlehem Republican Committee's purportedly good-intentioned "above it all" endorsement of a member of the opposition party, and any benefit to the registered Republican voters in Bethlehem it was expected to achieve, has been overwhelmingly trumped by the suspicion and cynicism it has created within the community - among all voters, regardless of party enrollment.

The cynical feelings which have developed in the community during this endorsement season have been further exacerbated by the recent action of Mr. Kotary, who holds endorsements by the Democrat, Independence and Republican Partys, and his recent "success" in invalidating (on a mere technicality) the Conservative Party's nomination - the one party line he does not have.

It doesn't take a degree in political science to observe that there is something amiss in how Bethlehem party leaders do business.

The principal prerequisite to a democracy is choice. Party "leaders" in Bethlehem appear to have forgotten this.

Your Opinion in The Spotlight

Clarkson the one to lead Bethlehem

Editor, The Spotlight:

While I am not running for Town Supervisor again, my hope and commitment to Bethlehem's future will always remain strong.

That is why I wholeheartedly support lifelong Democrat John Clarkson for Town Supervisor.

I know John Clarkson well enough over my career in NYS Government and during John's volunteer leadership contributions for Bethlehem while I was a Councilman and now Supervisor, that I trust this man to be the best person I know to lead our Town.

Most importantly, John Clarkson has the principles and courage to stand up, speak his mind, and give his loyalty and duty as a public official to Bethlehem residents and businesspersons first, above anything else. Becoming Bethlehem's Supervisor is not a stepping-stone for some future job for John. I know he considers this an opportunity of a lifetime to serve his community. That's the right reason to run for public office.

Also weighing on my decision to support John is that I know he will act professionally and civilly as Supervisor, including treating elected officials in Town government as colleagues, and respecting and supporting our excellent Town employees.

Besides having the values, integrity and principles Bethlehem deserves and needs in its Supervisor, no one I know understands local governments better than John Clarkson. He will use his expertise in Town finances and operations to achieve cost efficiencies, while respecting and maintaining the quality of life that makes Bethlehem such a great place to live and work.

I appeal to all Democrats to vote in the September 13 Democratic Primary Election this year. It is critically important for you to make your vote count, because the primary election will likely determine who your Town Supervisor will be!

When I walked door-to-door during my campaign, I asked the thousands of people I met to become informed about the candidates, to consider me for Supervisor, and most importantly, vote! That's what's most important now, because Bethlehem is your Town and your vote counts.

I have confidence that you will make the right choice for you and Bethlehem. I have made my choice and it is John Clarkson. If you want to speak to me directly about my reasons for supporting John, I would be pleased to do that. You can call me at home (439-0346), or on my cell phone (859-2918).

Sam Messina
Bethlehem
Town Supervisor

Kotary has the experience, dedication for town supervisor

Editor, The Spotlight:

I am writing to support Kyle Kotary for Bethlehem Town Supervisor in the Democratic Primary on Tuesday, Sept. 13.

Kyle has impressive experience at every level of government. He worked for Vice President Gore, and for United States Senator Moynihan during his tenure as Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. He also was a senior advisor to former New York State Comptroller Carl McCall.

Most importantly, Kyle has spent the last six years as an elected member of the Bethlehem Town Board, working to implement the Town's first ever comprehensive plan and to make town government more efficient and cost-effective.

Kyle Kotary is the only candidate in this race with the hands-on, practical experience in town government that Bethlehem needs. That's why the Bethlehem Democratic Committee, of which I am a member, unanimously endorsed him after also interviewing John Clarkson and Sam Messina, who had each sought our endorsement.

As a member of the Bethlehem Planning Board, I also appreciate Kyle's commitment to smart, controlled growth and a reasonable, robust planning process. His support of projects like the Vista Technology Park Master Plan and of a revamped zoning law helped to carefully expand our tax base and ensure that Bethlehem's future is one of which we can all be proud.

On September 13, Bethlehem Democrats have the opportunity to vote for the only candidate for Supervisor who has hands-on experience in town government - OUR town government. I urge my fellow Democrats to vote for Kyle Kotary.

Stephen W. Rice
Delmar

Kotary tireless in keeping Bethlehem a wonderful place to live and work

Editor, The Spotlight:

As residents of Delmar and the Town of Bethlehem, we would like to express our support of Kyle Kotary for Town Supervisor in the upcoming September Primary and General Election.

We have known Kyle and his family for many years - prior to and during his time serving on the Town Board. Kyle wants to keep Bethlehem a wonderful place to live and raise a family, and he has worked hard to promote this vision.

Kyle has served our community for six years as member of the Bethlehem Town Board. He was first elected to the Board in 2005 and was re-elected in 2009. We voted for Kyle because we know how much he cares for our Town and how much he wants to maintain Bethlehem's quality of life.

Kyle's efforts and common sense approach while serving on the Town Board have kept Town taxes in check while simultaneously preserving our critical services. Furthermore, Kyle has worked hard to protect our open spaces such as Colonial Acres and the Rail Trail.

As neighbors and friends, we have witnessed first-hand that Kyle is a great father to his family and he truly cares about continuing to enhance our community. Kyle's experience, leadership, and dedication to community service are but a few of the reasons that we will be voting for Kyle Kotary.

Making the cut

The Meat House threw a twist on the traditional ribbon cutting on Thursday, July 30, when the opening of the Stuyvesant Plaza store was commemorated with a slice through an oversized cut of steak. Pictured making the cut was Stuyvesant Plaza President Ed Swyer and Meat House employees. The Meat House offers premier meats and assorted gourmet products in a setting reminiscent of the neighborhood butcher and is owned by Kevin Wickert and Eric Jackson, the proprietors of Meat Houses in Wilton and Clifton Park.

RCS names interim superintendent

The Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Central School District has selected Assistant Superintendent for Curriculum and Instruction Elisabeth Smith to serve as interim superintendent following Superintendent Daniel Teplesky's recent departure.

The decision was made at a Tuesday, Aug. 2, meeting of the Board of Education. Smith has been an RCS employee since 2003, when she became principal of Pieter B. Coeymans Elementary School. She was previously employed in the Bethlehem Central School District.

"The Board of Education is very pleased to have Mrs. Smith in this role," said Board of Education President John Vadney in a statement. "She has a strong educational background to propel the district ahead in a time of challenge and opportunity for our children."

Teplesky's resignation became effective Aug. 1. He left the district to head the Monticello School District in Sullivan County. A search for a permanent replacement will be proceeding.

Troops host supply drive

During the month of August, Junior Girl Scout Troop #1467 and Brownie Troop #1801 are teaming up to run a School Supply Drive to collect school supply donations for the Bethlehem

Food Pantry and the Venture Churches Food Pantry. Supplies will be distributed to children whose families utilize the pantries. The Girl Scouts have decorated boxes, and have placed them at area businesses and various locations in the community to collect donations. The girls are also collecting donations from neighbors, friends and family, as well as "earning" supplies they will donate themselves. Anyone interested in making a donation of a school supply, look for the labeled boxes at the following community locations: the Bethlehem Public Library, Bethlehem Town Hall, Blue Sky Recording Studio, the First Reformed Church of Bethlehem, Delmar Reformed Church and the Bethlehem Town Park.

Interested parties can also contact Tracey at (518) 858-9092 with donations.

BCN-TV: New name and channel

Bethlehem's community access television station has a new name and an additional channel. Bethlehem Community Network Television (BCN-TV), formerly TV-18 Bethlehem, is now available as Verizon FiOS channel 28 as well as Time Warner channel 18.

Public access television provides a medium for free speech. It ensures that cable companies do not have a monopoly in decisions about programs available to the community.

BCN-TV cablecasts can be in-house studio productions, shows produced elsewhere by members of the public and cablecast on the channel, or shows produced with cameras loaned by the station to the public. Studio staff provide technical expertise, editing services, and production help.

Find out more at www.bethlehempubliclibrary.org or by contacting studio manager Janice Irwin at 439-9314 option 6, bethtv@bethlehempubliclibrary.org.

A monthly program guide is available in the library and online.

Upcoming exhibit celebrates Jewish songwriters

Once again our library has been awarded a grant from the American Library Association to host an exhibit highlighting an aspect of American history and culture. Like last year's Forever Free exhibit that focused on Abraham Lincoln and Emancipation, this year's exhibit will consist of museum-quality panels on display in our lobby in November and December.

The topic, "A Fine Romance: Jewish songwriters, American songs 1910-1965," will highlight the contributions of George Gershwin, Oscar Hammerstein, Jerome Kern and others to American life in an era that included two world wars and the Great Depression.

The exhibit will be accompanied by talks, book discussions, films and concerts. Watch for details in the fall.

"A Fine Romance: Jewish

songwriters, American songs 1910-1965" was developed by Nextbook, Inc., a nonprofit organization dedicated to supporting Jewish literature, culture and ideas, and the American Library Association Public Programs Office. The national tour of the exhibit has been made possible by grants from the Charles H. Revson Foundation, the Righteous Persons Foundation, the David Berg Foundation, and an anonymous donor, with additional support from Tablet Magazine: a New Read on Jewish Life.

Writers' reception slated

Participants in the Young Writers Workshop, My Writing Project and my.media.project and their families are invited to a reception on Thursday, Aug. 11, at 7 p.m. Young Writers will present their completed books to the library. A photo exhibit will present the participants in My Writing Project and their books, which they have taken home. Videos produced through the my.media.project will be screened at 8pm.

Summer means vacations, family time, sports events and lots of "Kodak moments." The library is offering a digital photo workshop just when you need it. Learn how to organize and edit your photos, along with a few special tricks, the first week. The second week will offer you the tools you need to deal with the videos you have recorded this summer.

Daytime classes will meet on Aug. 17 and 24 at 11 a.m. Evening classes will meet on Aug. 18 and 25 at 6:30 pm. Space is limited and registration is required. Call (756-2053) or email (info@

RCS COMMUNITY LIBRARY

Storytimes take a break

Library storytimes will take a break Aug. 12 through Sept. 5. Mark your calendar for the first week of school when library storytimes will resume with a bumper crop of fun stories and activities for kids. Meanwhile, visit the library for lots of picture books about starting school and concept books about letters, numbers, shapes and colors.

Reading has its rewards

Kids have been reading up a storm this summer as part of the Summer Reading Club at the Library. While many Town Recreation Programs will be coming to an end, kids can still earn beads and trade them for prizes at the Library, right up to the first day of school.

In addition, RCS Community Library's Rewarding Readers program offers teens and adults many chances to win weekly prizes for reading during the summer. Sharon Balta was our adult Rewarding Readers winner last week. Our teen winner was Tayna Gegenbauer. Congratulations to both winners. Enter a coupon for every three books you read, and you may be our next winner.

Creating compelling productions by integrating the energy and passion of Kathak, grace and lilted charm of Odissi, spirit and splendor of Bhāratnatyām, Aakriti also employs other Indian dance forms. While Aakriti uses the rich traditions of Indian classical dances, it adds eclectic and contemporary flavors to create wonderfully entertaining productions.

Aakriti in Sanskrit means "shape" or "formation," and the troupe endeavors to express ideas and issues through artistic formations. Aakriti's

Elsmere veterinarian celebrates five years in business

By CHARLES WIFF
wiffc@spotlightnews.com

It's not always easy to follow your dreams, especially when that means guiding a new business through troubled economic times.

That's just what Tara Estra has been able to do with Canterbury Animal Hospital, though. She and her staff are celebrating the practice's fifth year in business this month, and are inviting the public to celebrate along with them.

Dr. Estra is a transplant from the big city, but now that she's settled in the Capital District, she says she's found a sense of community here and intends to stick around.

"It's nice to practice in the community you live in. ... It's nice to see your clients in other settings," she said.

Estra didn't start out in veterinary medicine. She actually worked for years as a television producer in New York City, creating news and documentary programs for the likes of PBS and cable news networks. But after a decade of such work, she decided that wasn't the career for her.

"I loved the sciences and was particularly interested in medicine, and just really loved being around animals," Estra said.

"So she enrolled at Cornell University, got her degree and before too long found herself practicing in the Capital District.

She opened her own business just three years after graduation when she saw a vacant property on Delaware Avenue on her daily commute.

"I was always interested in owning my own practice. ... When you're working in a practice it's a little more difficult to make changes," she said. "It happened a little faster than I had ever planned."

One of the things Estra wanted to make a focus of her own practice was superior customer service. Part of that commitment is staying open in the evenings and on Saturdays. But more important is getting to know clients (human and otherwise) and taking special care in making sure the best care — not the cheapest or easiest — is always given.

Dr. Tara Estra, owner of Canterbury Animal Hospital, is shown with her 13-year-old Labrador, Vivi, who served as a brood dog for the Guiding Eyes seeing eye dog program. Canterbury is celebrating its fifth anniversary with an open house celebration on Saturday, Aug. 13.

—Charles Wiff/Spotlight

Estra's office makes sure to follow up on visits with a phone call a few days later to see how pets are adjusting to new medicines or recovering from a surgery.

That approach seems to be working. Canterbury has thrived even through the recession.

"We certainly appreciate that people's disposable income goes towards their pets," Estra said.

But now that she's made a success of Canterbury Animal Hospital (the name coming from the well-known Geoffrey Chaucer tale), Estra figures she's here to stay.

Estra and her staff will be celebrating the office's fifth anniversary with an open house on Saturday, Aug. 13. From 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., the public is invited to stop in for a tour and meet-and-greet and even a pet-owner portrait with local photographer Linda Conley. There will also be a Mohawk Hudson River Humane Society Adoption Clinic, raffles and door prizes (including a year's supplies of pet medications and foods).

The practice in the past has held community events like cancer fundraisers and Halloween costume contests.

Canterbury Animal Hospital can be found online through Facebook and at canterburyvet.com, where there is more information on the practice and even tales of some of the interesting surgeries Dr. Estra has performed at her practice. The offices are located at 88 Delaware Ave.

Guilderland middle schoolers host annual butterfly exhibit

By JACQUELINE M. DOMIN
dominj@spotlightnews.com

Every year, Farnsworth Middle School gets a shipment of caterpillar eggs.

And then the fun begins.

Students at the school raise butterflies, which they move into the butterfly house in a courtyard at the school. The butterflies mate, and soon the house is full of colorful creatures — never moreso than this year, when a bumper crop of butterflies has been fluttering around.

The butterfly station is open to the public for one final week, wrapping things up on Friday, Aug. 12. Head over to the school between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m., and you'll get a glimpse not only of butterflies, but of kids who willingly giving up part of their summer vacation to teach people more about butterflies.

"What makes this special is that it's student run," said science teacher Jennifer Ford, who helps oversee the station.

On a recent afternoon, Ford stayed largely in the background, letting the students guide tours, paint faces, explain the metamorphosis process and run the gift shop and museum. She has complete confidence in her helpers, noting that each must go through a week of training before they can take part.

Andrea Musteata is going into seventh grade. She decided to spend part of her summer back at school because she likes butterflies which was evident as she led a tour of the butterfly house. Musteata explained that because of the recent rainy weather, a lot of the butterflies were in hiding. Even when they did emerge, it wasn't necessarily easy for them to fly because the rain had sapped their flight power, she said.

Those that did fly swooped around the butterfly house, sometimes grazing or even landing on visitors. Musteata told everyone not to be startled if they found a butterfly on them. In fact, more than once, she reached for a butterfly and coaxed it on to her hand. Then she asked visitors if anyone wanted to hold it, carefully transferring it to that person's hand.

Musteata detailed how to tell the difference between male and female monarch butterflies — the male has "perfume" spots — noted that painted lady butterflies are so small that they're hard to see, pointed out the colorful flowers in the garden that butterflies enjoy and paused at a memorial to the Space Shuttle Columbia, recalling how Farnsworth students had sent plants native to the Albany Pine Bush to the shuttle crew to take into space.

Outside the butterfly house, Musteata said toads are sometimes spotted nearby, and students try to chase them away lest they harm the butterflies.

"We don't hurt the toads," she said, explaining that they're put in a nearby swamp. "They are alive. They're animals. It's not their fault."

Down the hallway from the butterfly house is the metamorphosis room, where dozens of caterpillars are stored in plastic containers. The caterpillars, of course, eventually turn into butterflies and are moved outside. Visitors get to see the caterpillars in various stages of metamorphosis.

They can also make a butterfly craft in another room, where students help and paint faces. Lauren Boyce doesn't have a lot to do over the summer, and thought helping at the butterfly station would be fun, so now she manages the arts and crafts room, cleaning it up and keeping an eye on supplies.

Ford said some students enjoy the station so much that they come back even after they graduate from middle school. A college student even recently contacted her and asked if she could put in some hours at the station before her summer job started. Ford said there was a waiting list for helpers this year.

The station is largely funded by grants. It's been harder in recent years to find as much money, but so far, the station has been lucky. This is its 13th year.

Farnsworth Middle School is at 6072 State Farm Road in Guilderland. Students inside the main entrance can direct visitors where to go.

Milestones

Joyce Cynthia White Cameron

GLENMONT: Joyce Cynthia White Cameron of Glenmont, New York died Monday, August 1 at home after a long illness. She was born October 12, 1935 in Quebec City, Canada to the late Frank and Violet White. Joyce was predeceased by her brother, George White of Hudson, Quebec.

A graduate of Glebe Collegiate Institute in Ottawa, Ontario and McGill University in Montreal, Quebec, Joyce was employed by the Canadian Ministry of Foreign Affairs at its U.S. Embassy in Manhattan when she met and married Australian physician Cyril T. M. Cameron, M.D., a fellow of the American College of Surgeons. She is survived by their daughter, Cathi Anne Cameron, of Saratoga Springs, N.Y. She was born in Edinburgh, Scotland to Joyce and Cyril while he completed his fellowship of the Royal College of Surgeons there.

Joyce and her family traveled widely while her husband taught and practiced surgery in Australia, the United States and the United Kingdom, as well as in international waters as a ship's surgeon. One of her favorite trips included viewing African wildlife in their native habitat from the quiet of a hot air balloon drifting over the Masai Mara in Kenya.

Joyce's talent for interior decoration and design was evident in the family's various homes. She came to the Capital District when her husband opened the Emergency Department for Samaritan Hospital in Troy, N.Y., where he became one of the founding members of the American College of Emergency Physicians before his death in 1984. Joyce was employed as office manager for West Mall Office Plaza in Albany, and later by School Pictures in Glenmont, retiring in 1999. She was among the parents who helped found the Doane Stuart School's successful "Imaginauction" fundraiser, and later served on the board of Dowerskill Village in Glenmont, where she resided from 1985 until her death.

In addition to her daughter, she is survived by her niece, Tisha White Feghali of Quebec. Funeral arrangements are private at Joyce's request. In lieu of flowers or food, memorial contributions may be made to the American Lung Association or to Col. Potter's Cairn Rescue @ cairnrescue.com, as she was a life-long lover and owner of Cairn terriers and a strong supporter of animal rescue efforts. The family wishes to thank members of the Community Hospice of Albany County for their help in her transition, and her friends and neighbors in Glenmont - especially Christine Wickman and her family - for their ongoing support.

A PRAYER

To the Blessed Virgin

Oh most beautiful flower of

Mt. Carmel, fruitful vine,

Splendor of Heaven, Blessed

Mother of the Son of God,

Immaculate Virgin, assist me in My necessity. Oh Star of the Sea,

Help me and shelter me, herein you

Are my Mother. Oh, Holy Mary,

Mother of God, Queen of Heaven

And Earth! I humbly beseech you

From the bottom of my heart to Succor me in my necessity.

(Make request). There are none

That can withstand you power.

O Mary, conceived without sin,

Pray for us who have recourse to

Thee (3 times). Holy Mary, I place

This cause in your hands.

Reading records

Can you believe it? It's time to make sure your Reading Records are in (by Aug. 12), and then it's time for the capstone event of our "One World, Many Stories" Reading Summer: The Grand Finale!

You have read and listened to many books during the summer, so we'd like to give you the world! One reader (that's you!) deserves many prizes! Hand in your reading record on or before August 12, so we'll have time to fill out your reading certificate and stuff your prize bag during the week.

Come to the library on Aug. 18, between 11 a.m. and 6 p.m., to collect your prizes. You might even catch a glimpse of yourself in our special slide show: One Library, Many Readers!

At the next GPL Digital Photo Forum, which will be held Thursday, Aug. 18, at 7 p.m., veteran photographer and digital photo guru Art Small will demonstrate how to make photo collages. You're invited to bring a set of 20 to 30 images on a memory card or flash drive, and we'll learn how easy it is to produce a photo collage.

In addition to this (or as part of the photo collage process) we decided to share photos of animals. Bring along your images for collaging or sharing.

By the way, Metroland newspaper has a bi-weekly photo contest. The next contest has as its subject "Concrete Jungle" and images are due August 15, with winners appearing in Metroland on August 18. Two photos per person can be entered. Go to www.Metroland.net/photoland where you need to set up an account. When you upload your photos, you need to include your name, contact information and a short descriptive ID for the photo.

FLAME to play Lynnwood Church

Lynnwood Church invites you to a free outdoor concert featuring the band FLAME on August 19 at 7 p.m.

Lynnwood Church is located on Carman Road in Guilderland and our facilities serve this huge diverse residential community.

FLAME, a group from upstate New York made up of 10 people with developmental/physical disabilities, including autism, Down's syndrome, and blindness, is capturing the world's attention but their message remains the same. The band, with members from from Lexington Center, Fulton County Chapter, NYSARC, Inc., wants to change the world through music. A local band, Citizen Genet, will perform from 5-7pm, at which time hot dogs and beverages will be served. A bonfire will be lit during intermission.

Please bring family, friends and lawn chairs. Many local businesses have made this community event possible.

and I would not have launched such a lawsuit, nor challenged his petitions. Kyle's nonsensical linkage of whether a substitution certificate was properly notarized with a supposed 'deal' is classic psychological projection. Kyle's careless use of rhetoric and negative sound bytes cheapens politics in our town. Bethlehem voters are tired of negative campaigning, and deserve better leadership," Clarkson said.

McNamara reportedly did not want to leave Conservatives without a candidate, so members of that party will have an opportunity to write in a candidate of their choice in the upcoming primary.

Albany County Conservative Party Chairman Richard Stack said it's a situation he's never encountered in his years of politics, but he remarked that it makes for an entirely open process.

"I think it will come down to between Kyle and John," he said. I don't know of any other people who have come forward through this whole mucky muck."

There are 385 registered members of the Conservative Party in Bethlehem. While that's but a sliver of the total number of voters in town, in recent elections voters have migrated to this ballot line in increasing numbers, making it a more valuable prize than voter rolls alone might suggest.

"Kyle's careless use of rhetoric and negative sound bytes cheapens politics in our town. Bethlehem voters are tired of negative campaigning, and deserve better leadership."

John Clarkson

Clarkson said he would seek to regain the Conservative line through a write-in campaign. Kotary could not be reached to comment on his plans. But the situation could be further complicated by discord in the party itself. Stack and Bethlehem Conservative Party Chairman Ben Conboy have made it clear in recent interviews with The Spotlight they hold divergent views on the supervisor race, with Stack supporting Clarkson and Conboy backing Kotary.

Stack reckoned the doorsteps of Conservative voters in Bethlehem will be getting busy in coming days.

"Ben's a registered member of the Conservative Party, he'll be using what influence he has and what connections he has," Stack said.

Conboy could not be reached.

Clarkson and Kotary (both Democrats) are still slated to face off in September in a primary for the Democratic line.

many rides as their stomachs can handle for $15.

The all-inclusive pass premiered last year, and organizers said it was well received.

"We believe we're offering a lot," Canaday said. "The price of a movie ticket today is getting right up there ... for just a little more you could spend the day and the evening having fun."

Fans of the midway attractions should note Reithoffer Shows will be bringing some new rides for the 2011 fair, including the Stinger, which swings 16 riders on a pendulum more than eight stories above the ground as their seats rotate 360 degrees. The midway opens at noon every day.

When you've had enough of rides, there's still more than enough to do. Amazing animal acts include Robinson's Racing Pigs, back by popular demand after a year away; The Disc-Connected K-9's, a Frisbee show featuring dogs rescued from shelters; the Raptor Project Birds of Prey, with eagles, falcons, owls and hawks; and the Bear Mountain Wildlife Show.

Spread throughout the expansive fairgrounds every day will be craft demonstrations, agricultural information, vendors selling everything from homemade soaps to furniture and enough delicious fair food to feed an army.

There will be special events each day of the fair, too.

On opening day, Aug. 16, perennial events like the Battle of the Teen Bands and the Miss Altamont Fair Pageant are scheduled.

Scheduled for Wednesday, Aug. 17, senior citizens will receive free admission until 4 p.m., as will Grange members, and there will be a performance by Colleen Pratt.

An 8 p.m. performance by Anthony Garguila on Thursday, Aug. 18, will be followed by a fireworks show best viewed from the grandstand, sponsored by Quick Response Restoration.

Friday, Aug. 19, is WGNA Country Day, with a special appearance by Steven L. Smith Band, the Ramblin' Jug Stompers, the Back 40 Band and the Jessie Stewart Band.

Saturday, Aug. 20, is Irish day, with performances by the Schenectady Pipe Band and the Farrell School of Irish Dance. The McKrells will perform, headlined by Kevin McKrell. Also appearing are Who's Your Paddy, the Fighting 86's and the Wild Rovers.

Sunday, Aug. 21, the Grove music stage will feature all kinds of gospel music as well as the winner of the Battle of the Teen Bands and special guests, Spuyten Duyvil. Sunday is also military day, when a show of military ID will grant free admission.

Patrons can save $1 on regular admissions by ordering ahead of time through altamontfair.com, where more information on all the attractions and a full schedule can be found.

The gates will open every morning at 10 a.m., with vendors and exhibits opening at 11 and the midway starting at noon. Opening day is Tuesday, Aug. 16, and the fair runs through Sunday, Aug. 21.

overseas with families at home. We want to make sure there are enough resources and that they're all taken care of."

MaryAnn Jones, director of the Albany County Veterans Bureau, said a new program, known as Return to the Favor, is expected to roll out in mid-September. It will ask businesses to participate in a discount program for veterans. If veterans want access to those discounts, they will have to go to the bureau and fill out a DD 214 form, which is a record of discharge, and fill out a FAVOR form, which the county clerk will keep on file. Jones said this program is only meant for those who were honorably discharged. Veterans will then receive a photo ID card and must present them to businesses that have a sticker in front of the store indicating they are part of the program. Designing those stickers will be Stacy Myron, owner of Tumbling Tykes and a resident of Colonie. She will also be participating in the program.

Jones said this program should be seen as a win-win for both the veterans and the companies. Not only will veterans be able to have access to more benefits, this will hopefully drive more people into those stores.

"I think, from a business standpoint, you are creating traffic within your store," said Colonie Chamber of Commerce President

Tom Nolte. "People are calling businesses and inquiring about the offer and are going in and taking advantage of the offer. They're then hopefully gaining a new customer."

Nolte said this is just a "very small way" of showing the county's appreciation to its veterans. He said he has been getting a good response from many of the members within his organization, and he plans to highlight those businesses that are getting involved.

"They're doing it for all the right reasons," he said. "We want to let people know these businesses are out there, and we want to promote them."

she thinks this program will benefit both veterans and businesses. She said this will help businesses find a new population that they might not be aware of.

"I think it's a very simple discount for businesses to give, but it also benefits a group of people who have made significant sacrifices for each of us," she said. "I'm just happy to be involved and happy to assist the county."

There is a side-benefit for veterans other than just receiving discounts, according to Jones. Once a veteran makes a visit to the bureau, possibly for the first time, they may discover various other benefits that are available to them they may not have been aware of before.

"They'll not only be able to receive discounts but this brings them into the office," she said. "It allows us to reach more veterans in Albany County that we're not aware of and get them benefits they're entitled to."

Jones said there are more than a dozen businesses that have opted to participate in the program and a spreadsheet of participating ones will be available on the bureau's website when the program is ready to launch.

"I think it's a way to say thank you and recognize folks that aren't recognized formally or informally," she said. "Albany County has close to 20,000 veterans and it's a nice way to say thank you for all you've done, especially for fighting on two fronts."

Orchestra holds composer contest

The Albany Symphony Orchestra is holding its third composer competition: the Composer to Center Stage Reading Session.

Open to young and emerging composers nationwide, the Albany Symphony will select three finalists to join the orchestra in February and May 2012 for a number of professional development sessions, in-depth collaboration with the orchestra's resident composers and a chance to hear his or her piece read and rehearsed by the Albany Symphony at the orchestra's May 2012 American Music Festival.

Application guidelines can be found on the orchestra's website (www.albanyorchestra.com).

the final two birds leaving. I leaned into the bush to take a photo and for the first time the birds reacted. They flapped their little wings, startling me just as their mother had a few weeks earlier. One jumped out of the nest onto a branch. The other sort of tumbled out of the bush and then started hopping away.

I was distraught. "The birdies left," I sobbed to Jeff.

He said, "Did you think they were going to hang around here, that you'd see them lined up on the lawn getting flying lessons."

"No, of course not. Well, yes, I kind of thought or hoped that we'd watch them grow up."

Several weeks later, I still look over at the nest when I walk by the bush. Perhaps one of the former baby birds will return to the spot next spring and refurbish its old childhood home.

Schroon Lake Seagle Music Colony has a number of local connections

David Lefkowich is an accomplished stage director and fight choreographer who has had success with several different companies including the Metropolitan Opera, San Francisco Opera, Glimmerglass Opera and Opera Saratoga, and has made his European debut as a director.

He is a graduate of Bethlehem High School and was active there in Stage 700 productions. Lefkowicz recently directed "Tales of Hoffmann" at the Seagle Music Colony in Schroon Lake.

The oldest training program for singers in the country was founded in 1915 by Oscar Seagle. His grandson, Pete Seagle, is a long-time resident of Delmar. There are other Capital District connections.

John Seagle, Pete Seagle's father, directed the Seagle Music Colony for 40 years and also produced the first operas on television at WRGB in Schenectady.

The Seagle Music Colony is rated by Classical Singer Magazine as "the best summer vocal program in the United States." "Pirates of Penzance" by Gilbert and Sullivan is the final production at the Seagle Music Colony for the season and will be held Aug. 10-13 at 8 p.m. and a matinee on Aug. 12 at 2 p.m. at the Oscar Seagle Memorial on Charlie Hill Road in Schroon Lake.

General Director is Tony Kostecki and part-time Artistic Director is Darren Woods who is also General Director of Fort Worth Opera.

walks and a failed fielder's choice, but Mohawk Valley starting pitcher Tyler Dunaway got out of the jam with a pair of strikeouts and a fly out to left field.

"To get no runs in that situation, that's tough," said Albany coach Nick Davey. "A ball in play gets us a run."

Mohawk Valley took a 4-0 lead in the top of the second inning off pitcher C.J. Sohl, who was making a rare start. The big blow was a two-out, bases-loaded double by third baseman Colin Monagle that drove in two runs and chased Sohl.

Albany's bullpen did its best to keep the Dutchmen within striking distance. Tanner Barron pitched 3.2 strong innings, allowing one run on five hits and striking out six batters, and Casey Wilson tossed four innings of shutout ball.

"I couldn't ask for more from our bullpen tonight," said Davey.

Albany's offense came in the latter innings. Werli scored on first baseman Garren Palmer's two-out RBI single in the sixth inning, and center fielder Andrew Deeds added an RBI single in the bottom of the seventh.

The Dutchmen sought one more rally in the bottom of the ninth inning off Mohawk Valley closer Willie Gabay. After Boney walked, a throwing error on Anthony Turgeon's grounder to first base allowed Boney to reach third. Turgeon reached second on Will Remillard's fly out to right field, but Boney stayed at third. Deeds then flew out to center field to end the game.

"The pitchers got it done out of the bullpen, but the hitters couldn't get it done," said Anderson.

Deeds finished the season as Albany's top hitter who played at least half of the season. Deeds batted .326 with six doubles, 16 stolen bases and 25 runs batted in. Anderson, a Guilderland High School graduate, led the Dutchmen in home runs (six) and RBI (27), while Remillard – a Latham native – finished the season with a .297 batting average and 24 RBI.

"Personally, it's been a great thing for me coming home and playing in a great league," said Anderson.

Brantley was the top starting pitcher for Albany this season with a 4-2 record, a 3.94 earned run average and 43 strikeouts in eight starts. Albany native Mike Hughes compiled a 3-0 record with a 3.07 ERA, and Steve Poche led the Dutchmen with 45 strikeouts in his eight starts.

from the state to do so. Instead the communities that hosted the event got together to organize it, and they received some contributions from local businesses to off-set the cost of it. And, they are going to do it again in 2012.

Cortland did a similar thing to keep the Empire State Senior Games alive this year. A regional sports council stepped in to fund the annual event for athletes ages 50 and older, but they off-set their costs by having participants pay a small registration fee. SUNY Cortland – the traditional host of the senior games – offered the use of their facilities.

Getting the Empire State Games going again requires a larger effort, though.

A statewide non-profit organization would need to be created to select host cities and seek major corporate sponsorships. Regional committees would be in charge of coordinating the event and seeking support from more local businesses, but you need the strength of a statewide organization to back an event which draws tens of thousands of athletes to one city every summer.

The host city rotation would have to be reduced, too. Holding the Empire State Games in locations such as Long Island and Westchester County created too much traveling between venues. The games should be compact enough that spectators can see a variety of events in one day. Places like Syracuse, Buffalo, Rochester and Binghamton are perfect since they all have large colleges with plenty of available sporting venues. They would all make the cut.

(Side note: Albany would also make the cut if the New York Giants stop holding training camp at the University at Albany. For the purposes of this column, though, I'm assuming that the Giants will resume training at UAlbany in 2012 and continue to do so for the near future, which would keep Albany out of the running for the Empire State Games.)

The question is, would major corporations be willing to back a privately-run Empire State Games? Several stepped up to the plate when Buffalo hosted the last games in 2010, and I believe they would do so again, even in these tough economic times. Major corporations like attaching their names to high-profile events, and a rejuvenated Empire State Games would be as high-profile as they come – at least, in the amateur sports world.

That corporate support would be vital in order to continue the Empire State Games' tradition of not charging entry fees for participants. Athletes should still participate based on their athletic merits, not on the size of their wallets. That must not change.

Can all of this be done? Of course, if there are people willing to do it. Otherwise we may wind up losing the Empire State Games for good, and that would be a shame. It was one of the few sporting events that could bring together a large group of people for five days of fun, athletic competition.

Hugh Carey had the right idea when he helped to create the Empire State Games. Now, it's up to the private sector to keep the games going.

ALBANY-DUTCHMEN SPOTLIGHT PLAYER OF THE WEEK

Jevonte Osterhout

(Saint Rose/ Albany, NY)

As the Albany Dutchmen came down the final stretch of their 2011 Perfect Game Collegiate Baseball League inaugural season, they found themselves in a predicament. Short of players due to injuries, the Dutchmen looked for homegrown talent to fill their roster. Albany native and St. Rose sophomore Jevonte Osterhout fit the description. Osterhout gave the Dutchmen more than they could bargain for. Starting seven of the last nine games for Albany, the Albany Academy graduate led the team in batting average along with a memorable night against the Newark Pilots last Thursday. Osterhout, who also plays his home games with St. Rose at Bob Bellizzi

JEVONTE OSTERHOUT

WEEKLY STATS:
.346, 9H, 6R, 5 RBI, 22Bs (7.24-8.3)

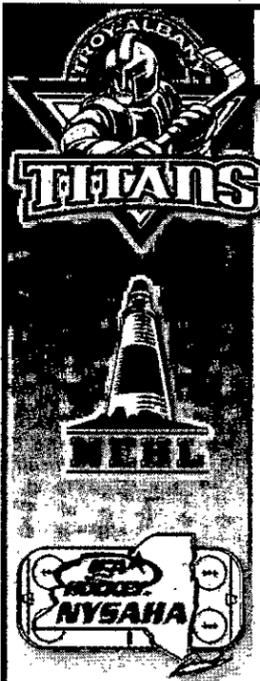

Field, finished the game 3-3 and batted in three of the Dutchmen's five runs.

"I'm really comfortable here [at Bellizzi Field]," Osterhout said. "It is a beautiful field and I've felt right at home playing for the Dutchmen in the past week."

Osterhout, who stands at just five-foot-five, said his height has always been nothing more than motivation to prove his critics wrong. Something he's down plenty of in his week with Albany.

"People who look at me and think I can't play as well because of my height, I use that as my motivation," Osterhout said. "If anything my height has given me a drive to work even harder."

Sports Survey IV

Guess what, folks. It's Spotlight Sports Survey time again.

You know how this works by now. I give you a bunch of multiple choice questions, and you select the answer that best fits your opinion. Then you send me your answers, I tally them up and come up with a pithy article describing the results. It's simple, it's fun and it totally fills up the sports pages. Clever, eh?

This year, I'm taking the pulse of the average Capital District sports fan. Some of the questions have to do with how our region's premier sports teams will do this year. Others have to do with how well our sports scene is run. Also, please note the two write-in questions about sports coverage. Those specifically correlate to Spotlight Newspapers coverage. Here we go.

1. Will the Siena College men's basketball team post a winning record in 2011-12?
A. Yes
B. No
C. Not sure
2. Will the University at Albany men's basketball team build on last year's winning record?
A. Yes
B. No
C. Not sure
3. Will the RPI hockey team finish higher in the ECAC standings than last year's fifth-place effort?
A. Yes
B. No
C. Not sure
4. Will the Union College hockey team overcome losing coach Nate Leaman and remain an ECAC power?
A. Yes
B. No
C. Not sure
5. Does the University at Albany football team need a new stadium in order to be successful at the NCAA Division I FCS level?
A. Yes
B. No
C. Not sure
6. After cancelling this year's training camp at the University at Albany, will the New York Giants return in the summer of 2012?
A. Yes
B. No
C. Not sure
7. Given its recent financial issues, is the New York Racing Association better qualified to run Saratoga Race Course than a private company?
A. Yes
B. No
C. Not sure
8. Are the Albany Devils doing enough from a promotional standpoint to bring fans to their home games?
A. Yes
9. Are the Tri-City Valleycats doing enough from a promotional standpoint to keep fans coming to their games?
A. Yes
B. No
C. Not sure
10. Has classification play been good or bad for Section II football?
A. Good
B. Bad
C. Not sure
11. Which high school sports deserve more coverage (please write in your answers and be specific)?

12. Which high school sports deserve less coverage (please write in your answers and be specific)?

13. What kind of NBA career will Jimmer Fredette have?
A. All-star
B. Solid starter
C. Sixth man (first player off the bench)
D. Bench warmer
14. Which Section II alumni will have a better Major League Baseball career?
A. Tim Stauffer
B. Casper Wells
C. Neither
15. Which local radio host do you respect the most as an authority on the area's sports scene?
A. Brian Sinkoff (104.5 FM ESPN)
B. Brian Noe (104.5 FM ESPN)
C. Rodger Wyland (980 AM-FOX)
D. John Graney (TALK 1300 AM)

Now that you've answered the questions, mail your responses to Spotlight Newspapers, P.O. Box 100, Delmar 12054. Your responses need to reach my desk by Monday, Aug. 22 to be counted in this year's results. The poll will also be available online at www.spotlightnews.com Aug. 3-22. Online responses can be e-mailed to jonasr@spotlightnews.com.

Dutch avoid last place

Doubleheader split give Albany critical victory

By ROB JONAS
jonasr@spotlightnews.com

The Albany Dutchmen narrowly avoided having the Perfect Game Collegiate Baseball League East Division basement to themselves.

By beating Glens Falls 3-2 in the first game of last Wednesday's season-ending doubleheader, the Dutchmen tied Mohawk Valley for third place in the East Division with an 18-29 record. The 18 wins is the most for the Dutchmen since they moved to Albany three years ago.

Mohawk Valley pulled into a virtual tie with Albany for third place following last Tuesday's 5-2 victory over the Dutchmen at Bob Bellizzi Field. A rainout denied the Diamond Dawgs an opportunity to take over sole possession of third place.

Albany rallied from a 2-0 deficit to beat Glens Falls (31-17) in the opening game of last Wednesday's twin bill. Joey Boney singled home Matt Wherli for the Dutchmen's first run of a three-run fifth inning. Jevonte Osterhout then followed with a two-run double to give Albany the lead.

Justin Brantley pitched all seven innings for Albany to pick up the victory. The Siena College sophomore allowed two runs on six hits, and he struck out 11 batters.

Glens Falls responded by beating Albany 7-0 in the nightcap to wrap up the East Division title. Josh Anderson drove in three runs on three hits for the Golden Eagles, while pitchers Neil Fryer and Kyle Ruchim combined on a six-hit shutout.

Albany ran into similar problems scoring runs in its final home game of the season last Tuesday against Mohawk Valley. The Dutchmen had runners on base nearly every inning, but they couldn't get them home.

"People were there. We just couldn't get them around," said designated hitter Steve Anderson, who went 1-for-3 at the plate.

The key moment came in the bottom of the fourth inning. Albany loaded the bases with no outs on two

Revive the games in Carey's name

The good news for Sean Avery is that he has a winning horse named after him. The bad news is that Sean Avery the horse is a 5-year-old gelding.

What kind of message does that send Sean Avery the hockey player? And why isn't there a horse named after Tie Domi? OK, moving on...

One of late Governor Hugh Carey's greatest accomplishments from a sports and recreation perspective was creating the Empire State Games in 1979. It gave New York athletes of all ages something to aim for – the chance to be considered the best in their sport. And for many years and through several governors, they had that chance.

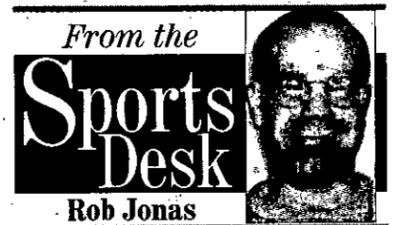

As we all know, the 2011 edition of the statewide, Olympic-style competition was canceled – the second time in three years – after budget cuts in the state's Department of Parks and Recreation eliminated the funding for it. Shortly after that announcement, the division responsible for organizing the event disbanded, which was a not-so-subtle hint that the state no longer felt that it could afford to subsidize the Empire State Games.

In light of Carey's death last weekend, I think a renewed effort should be made to keep his vision of promoting statewide athletic competition alive.

Lake Placid and Cortland already did so to keep two off-shoots of the Empire State Games going – the Empire State Winter Games and the Empire State Senior Games.

Lake Placid was able to hold the Empire State Winter Games back in February, despite not receiving a dime
