BCHS class decorates journals for victims of domestic violence

By MARCY VELTE
veltem@spotlightnews.com

For those who feel embarrassed sharing their troubles with another person, a journal or diary can be a cathartic lifeline, and a group of Bethlehem High School students are using that idea to help victims of domestic violence begin a new chapter of their lives.

A new collaboration by art instructor Diane Segal and Unity House Director of Development Diane Cameron Pascone is aiming to teach students about the warning signs of domestic violence, while allowing them to give back to woman in need.

"It's been determined that those who journal are more likely to be connected to their emotions, and (it) helps develop problem-solving skills," Spotlight News recently named two longtime employees to top management positions in the newsroom.

"We're thrilled to have two very talented editors with a wealth of institutional knowledge take the reins here at Spotlight News," publisher John McIntyre said. "It will be a seamless transition for the newsroom."

Making a plan to plant

Garden Club partners with town, DOT to improve median on Cherry Ave.

By MARCY VELTE
veltem@spotlightnews.com

In its latest effort to improve the overall beauty of the town, the Bethlehem Garden Club is expanding its reach.

A new partnership has been forged among the town, Garden Club and state Department of Transportation to help develop beautification projects throughout Bethlehem. In a new pilot, the club began with the median along Cherry Avenue.

"This has been a long-range plan," said Virginia Acquario, a member of the club and co-chairwoman of the group's Community Projects Committee. "We've been trying to improve that median for years, and we finally contacted DOT to do a collaboration."

Supervisor John Clarkson said the median project has been an "evolving topic" with the town and state DOT. The portion of Cherry Avenue where the bushes were planted is a state road but is mowed by the town's Highway Department because grass was preferred to asphalt. The state worked with the town and Garden Club to develop the layout for the landscaping done through the pilot.

"These plantings will improve the looks of the road without endangering automobile traffic, and may also have traffic-calming benefits," said Clarkson. "They should not increase maintenance for the town, and the Garden Club will be helping with weeding, etc."

In June of 2012, Town officials went on a walk with members of the Garden Club, Chamber of Commerce, Rotary and Kiwanis to see what kinds of improvements could be made to make the entrances of Bethlehem look more appealing. According to Acquario, the Garden Club wouldn't have been able to keep the group's initiative going without the continued support from the town.

At the time, Acquario said the group was looking to step away from planting traditional gardens and focus on plantings like bushes and trees in order to improve the overall look of the town. The group is also placing more sustainable plants throughout the community that need less care and paying for benches to be placed in more heavily populated areas.

At the Cherry Avenue site, the Club planted three spirea bushes and some sumac. No chemicals will be used to treat them because the town is toxin free, and the plants will not need artificial fertilizer. Acquario said the group wants to see how well the bushes hold up through the spring, at which time, the rest of the median will be planted.

"The real reason we are interested in doing this project is to help our environment," said Acquario. "It's important for people to understand this isn't just for beauty. It buffers the noise from traffic for people that live along the road and sequesters carbon, so this is a benefit in multiple ways."

She said the group also wants to make sure that area is kept up since the road is dedicated to Capt. Timothy J. Moshier, a Delmar native and pilot killed in the spring of 2006 while on duty in Iraq.

Acquario said if the pilot works and the group's work along Cherry Avenue expands, members have other projects in mind. The Garden Club would like to re-plant canopy trees along that road and several others to once again give Bethlehem a welcoming, small-town feel, but that could take a few years.

"People still do lots of walking in this town, and we want to maintain that and keep it inviting," she said. "People move here because we are one of the few towns that has that pedestrian and biking focus, and we would like to do more pocket parks."

“I’m looking forward to helping out on the news side while continuing to provide the best sports coverage I can for our readers,” said Jonas.

The promotions come following the departure of former managing editor Charles Wiff, who recently took a position at public relations agency Gramercy Communications.

Guilderland Players to present ‘Night Watch’

Thriller is a change of pace for high school acting troupe

By JOHN PURCELL
purcellj@spotlightnews.com

The Guilderland Players are aiming to captivate audiences with a suspenseful thriller following a dominating husband and his seemingly mad wife.

The fall production for Guilderland High School’s drama club diverges from its typically comedic selection and turns to “Night Watch,” written by Lucille Fletcher. The story centers around a woman battling with insomnia and anxiety, said club advisor Andrew Maycock, and what she says she sees outside her window.

“It has some neat twists and turns near the end, and it is very dramatic and doesn’t really let up from beginning to end in terms of tensions and anxiety,” Maycock said. “One of the nice things about it is because of those twists and turns at the end, it kind of begs for a second viewing.”

Maycock said many of the drama club members have experience doing comedies, so he wanted to select something not quite as humorous this year. Many of the drama club members said after rehearsals on Friday, Nov. 1, they like shifting into a different direction.

“We have done comedies and it has had more of a lighter feel for the audience, but this show being a thriller is more serious in nature and that is a bit of a switch in pace,” senior Cody Ingraham said. “I think it is a good change of pace.”

Ingraham said he likes playing his character, Curtis Appleby, who provides much

“I am usually the shy person, but when I get on stage it is kind of different because then I get to be someone else.”

- Eliana Rowe

of the comedy relief through the play.

Sophomore Josh Kahn said having different personalities in the production adds to the depth of the story, and makes it feel more real. Several cast members also agreed the side characters stand out even more in the production because the main character, Elaine Wheeler, heavily drives the piece.

Some of the actors were new to the stage, Maycock said, so he provided them with an overview of the fundamentals before they got into character.

“Once they have the basics, I think they really enjoy the story and the telling of it,” Maycock said. “There are really wonderfully dramatic, explosives elements in this story that I think are going to really surprise people.”

The most challenging aspect is getting kids to attend rehearsals, said Maycock, with all of the other commitments students have from athletics to having a job. He stresses students to practice memorizing their lines so everything goes smoothly on the big night.

Maycock said sophomore Eliana Rowe, who plays the main character, has been great at playing Elaine Wheeler. He said what’s unusual about this play is how much Rowe’s character drives each scene, which also requires a lot of lines to memorize.

“I think she feels a lot of pressures, which she is handling great,” said Maycock.

Rowe said playing the lead role is sometimes difficult while balancing coursework and other extracurricular activities. Also if she doesn’t remember her lines, the play could come to a standstill.

“I have been in plays before, but it would be a funny character and I have never really had to play a serious character,” said Rowe, “so that was difficult and fun.”

Oddly enough, Rowe said she didn’t want the role at first, but she has grown to “really like” playing her character. She has also found some similarities between her and her character.

“I am usually a shy person, but when I get on stage it is kind of different because then I get to be someone else,” Rowe said. “And I don’t have to be myself, and I don’t have to deal with my problems ... I can just go. That is really helpful, and that is really nice.”

The Guilderland Players will perform “Night Watch” on Nov. 7, 8, and 9 at 7 p.m. in the high school auditorium. Tickets are $5 and will be available at the door on the night of the first showing. The high school PTA will also be hosting the concession stand each night.

Police Blotter

Three RCS middle schoolers charged with robbery

Coeymans Police arrested three Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Middle School students and charged them with stealing money from a peer after police were summoned to the school on Tuesday, Oct. 29.

Police said school administrators called the department after determining that three juveniles allegedly had attempted to steal money from a fourth student.

While attempting to steal the money, police said the suspects assaulted the student and held him against his will. The Coeymans Police Department school resource officer worked in conjunction with the middle school principal in investigating this case.

All three juveniles, including two 13-year-olds and a 12-year-old, were brought to the police station where their parents were notified. All three were charged with felony robbery in the second degree, gang assault and unlawful imprisonment, according to police. After consultation with the County Attorney's Office, one of the youths was transported to Capital District Secure Detention Facility and was to appear in Albany County Family Court on Oct. 30. The other two were issued appearance tickets for Albany County Probation.

"This case demonstrates the value of having a school resource officer who can work closely with school officials to ensure that we all respond quickly and appropriately to any incident which jeopardizes the health and safety of one student or all of our students," said Coeymans Police Chief Gregory Darlington.

Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Interim Superintendent Alan McCartney said he was proud of the actions of other students who got involved and didn't look the other way during this incident.

of Ravena, pleaded guilty to one felony count of attempted assault in the second degree on Friday, Nov. 1. According to the Albany County District Attorney's Office, on June 1, officers responded to a residence in the Village of Ravena after receiving a call of a domestic incident. When officers approached the residence, Ingersoll opened the door and refused to come outside after being told by officers that he was under arrest.

- Guilderland police arrested Khoozan K. Irani, 30, of 7 Shalimar Court in Loudonville, around 2:30 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 14, and charged him with DWI, operating a motor vehicle under the influence of drugs, refusal to take a breath test and failure to keep right. Police responded to a 911 call complaining of an erratic driver and discovered Irani's vehicle off the side of the road. He was allegedly standing near his vehicle and said he was driving. Police said he had a strong odor of alcohol emanating from him, bloodshot and watery eyes, and a "dazed and confused look on his face." Police said he also had "urinated in his pants and his zipper was down." Three hours after the crash, police said, a breath test revealed he had a BAC of 0.07 percent. During two earlier breath tests, police said he was not able to provide a sufficient breath. Police said while he was being processed he had "saggy eyelids" and a "sleepy look" on his face, along with "white chalky lips" that looked "as if he was foaming at the mouth." He allegedly asked police, while being processed, if the passenger was hurt, but police informed him there was no passenger in the vehicle. Police said an evaluation determined he was allegedly under the influence of drugs.

Officers went inside attempting to place the defendant in custody, at which point Ingersoll shoved one of the officers to the ground before fleeing from the residence on foot. During the chase, one of the officers fractured her leg and tore several ligaments in her knee.

According to the district attorney's office, Ingersoll faces two to four years in State Prison when sentenced on January 31, 2014.

Other arrests

- Guilderland police arrested Patricia Alfieri, 53, of 801 Rainbow Drive in Schenectady, around 3:50 p.m. on Monday, Sept. 23, and charged her with possession of a forged instrument in the second degree, a felony. Police said Alfieri deposited two counterfeit personal checks totaling $1,250 into her son's bank

Bethlehem BOE member to lead state organization

Lenhardt says she'll work for more equal funding

By MARCY VELTE
veltem@spotlightnews.com

A longtime member of the Bethlehem Central Board of Education has been selected to lead the state's School Board Association.

Lynne Lenhardt was elected by the NYSSBA Board of Directors to become the organization's president on Saturday, Oct. 26. Lenhardt has been a member of the BC Board of Education for 25 years and was elected to the NYSSBA board in 2001.

She said it was an honor and privilege to be elected to the position by delegates representing districts from the entire state.

"My theme is going to be 'Be the Change for Kids,'" she said. "I took it from Gandhi's 'Be the change you wish to see in the world.' I just feel there is still a lot to do with education."

The New York State School Board Association "provides advocacy, training and information to school boards in support of their mission to govern the state's public schools."

"For 25 years, Lynne Lenhardt has brought dedication, insight and guidance to the Bethlehem Central School District," said Bethlehem Central Superintendent Tom Douglas. "We are proud to support her as she shares her leadership skills statewide with more than 5,000 NYSSBA members, representing communities from Niagara Falls to Long Island, who will surely benefit from her experience and informed decision making."

Lenhardt said her goals while in her new position include helping school boards and teachers get through the different phases of the Common Core assessments and Annual Professional Performance Reviews. She would also like to see the end of the state Gap Elimination Adjustment, a formula that freezes or reduces a district's state aid based on its economical well-being, and equitable funding for school districts.

"There's a big gap in achievement between lower income districts and wealthier districts," said Lenhardt. "There is also a gap in funding, which is similar. Sometimes students suffer because of their zip code, and there needs to be equitable and fair funding to all school districts."

She also wants to work with school district staff on professional development so instructors feel comfortable teaching to the new standards and can help students learn using the methods, instead of teaching to the exams.

As a former high school social studies teacher and adjunct college professor of mathematics, Lenhardt has an extensive background in education. Along with her time at the Bethlehem School Board, Lenhardt has served on the Board of Education of Capital Region BOCES, is a member of the Tech Valley High School Operating Board, and has served as president of the Capital District School Boards Association.

Lenhardt, who takes office Jan. 1, has also participated in and spoken at a large number of education seminar throughout the years and was formerly a member of the College Council of Empire State College.

"I want to look at these issues, and maybe not resolve them but at least deal with them in a way that ultimately helps the students," said Lenhardt. "Sometimes we forget that the students are our ultimate consumers, and we have to do what's best for all of them."

Lenhardt will continue on with her role as a Bethlehem Central school board member, along with her new duties as NYSSBA president.

Your Opinion in The Spotlight

Reform Democrats deliver on platform of transparency

Editor, The Spotlight:

A letter was recently published by George Harder, "Let the truth be told," an unfortunate title given his letter's inaccuracies and bizarre claims.

Mr. Harder stated the Bethlehem Democratic Committee held a meeting on Primary Day, Sept. 10, suggesting that it was so scheduled to prevent "...those committee members who work as election inspectors from attending." Ridiculous. The last meeting the committee held prior to the primaries was Sept. 4. Mr. Harder knew this. Mr. Harder sent an email to the entire committee membership indicating he could not attend the Sept. 4 meeting because of a prior commitment.

Mr. Harder's letter suggests there were improprieties on the part of the current committee leadership during the 2012 election of committee officers. This is puzzling. Former First Vice Chairman Jack Cunningham chaired the meeting. Former committee Secretary Nanci Moquin and former committee Second Vice Chairman Mr. Harder (yes, George Harder) tallied the vote. The voting process conformed with existing committee by-laws that were signed by former Committee Chairman

Matt Clyne. The weighted vote, to which Mr. Harder takes issue, is required according to New York State Election Law. My questions then, to Mr. Harder, are simple: what on earth are you complaining about? After you and some fellow officers lost leadership posts, are you now claiming that there was something dubious about the process that you and your fellow officers administered? That is absurd.

Mr. Harder's letter marks the second attempt by an ousted officer of the Bethlehem Democratic Committee to cast a shadow on the activities of the Committee and the leaders of the Committee who ran as Reformers. The first were comments made in this paper in January 2013 by Jack Cunningham who, in a front page story, referred to newly elected members of the Committee as "outsiders" and "militants." Arrogantly rejecting the will of the voters, Mr. Cunningham also called for primaries of fellow committee members; this just 3 months after the election.

The Reform Democrats platform was to make the candidate nominating process more open and transparent. Contrary to the opinion of Mr. Harder, we have succeeded. The meetings of the Bethlehem Democratic Committee are announced in advance and open to the public. Our redesigned website now posts agendas and minutes of the meetings, and lists committee members with contact information. This spring, there was an open recruitment process for candidates that featured presentations to the committee that were open to the public. These improvements are in stark contrast from, and a vast improvement to, the closed-door sessions conducted by the Bethlehem Democratic Committee under the prior leadership of Jack Cunningham and Matt Clyne; sessions that yielded the infamous and very odd cross-party endorsement of Kyle Kotary as candidate for Town Supervisor in 2011.

Bethlehem voters are intelligent, well-informed, and can see through false claims. The Committee will move forward, committed to transparency and openness, with or without the support of disgruntled members who long for the days of secrecy and who refuse to accept the will of the voters.

A word on recent delivery delays

Newspapers make a business of being timely. Old news isn’t really news at all. That’s why a recent disruption in the mailing of our newspapers has had such a major impact on the work we do.

For years, our readers have been able to count on our weekly insight hitting their mailboxes on a Wednesday. It is no small amount of work shepherding all that local town, school and human interest news from hastily scrawled notes to a printed page, and Spotlight’s reporters, copy editors, artists and ad reps take a lot of pride in what we do to get it there.

Needless to say, we were more than a little dismayed when the calls started coming in a couple of weeks ago from some readers saying they had yet to receive their papers by Thursday, Friday, or even Saturday. Although these delays only affected a portion of our readers, we take them very seriously. Here’s what happened.

George Flood, a USPS spokesperson for the northeast area, told us the delays were not unique to our publication, but have affected bulk mail across a swath of Upstate. This is the result of a decision to shift some mail processing duties to an Albany sorting facility, from a Newburg facility, combined with some equipment issues.

Flood said there are about 400 full-size processing facilities across the country. With dramatic changes in the way Americans send mail – namely, a decline in volume – the postal service is trying to rightsize its operations.

“We are adjusting and tweaking the network,” he said, “and we hit some speed bumps along the way.”

We have also been told that, moving forward, our readers can once again expect on-time delivery.

“(We) will move mail around to be more efficient,” Flood said.

To say these interruptions in delivery service have been frustrating would be quite the understatement. These repeated delays, which also went unexplained for weeks despite our inquiries, have had an impact on us here at Spotlight News. It’s not just us, though.

We understand all of bulk mail, the delivery method for many local periodicals, was affected. The Guilderland Central School District also found itself a casualty of delivery delays when its fall newsletter notifying residents of an Oct. 29 building proposal meeting did not hit mailboxes until after the meeting was scheduled. The turnout at that important meeting was described by one official as “astonishingly low.”

We appreciate the steps the post office is taking to improve the situation, and we’re glad officials there are stepping up to take control of the matter. But explanations do little to repair some of the goodwill squandered during the weeks our message was not being received in a timely manner. While it’s never a good time for news to get stale before it reaches the mailbox, these past weeks have been particularly problematic because the time leading up to elections tends to be ripe for the type of discourse that local newspapers foster.

Readers should know that we do not take delivery disruptions lightly. We have brought our complaints to every pertinent office of the USPS, and we are hopeful the postal service will deliver on its promise to fulfill the obligation we and our readers pay for, and get your newspapers to you in a timely manner.

Customers experiencing delivery delays are welcome to pick up a complimentary copy of the most recent issue of The Spotlight at our Delmar office at 341 Delaware Ave. And if you are not receiving your paper on time, please call our offices at 439-4949 and let us know, so we can get a handle on any continuing problems and move to fix them.

And as always, thank you for supporting local news in your community, and your continuing readership.

The word on the street

Do you think people have forgotten the original meaning of Veterans Day?

Lorenz Herrmann, Menands

“I think it depends on who you talk to. We try to instill that original meaning in the children here at the school.”

Peter Vankampen, Menands

“I hope not. I’ve never considered it. I wonder if it is a little more of a generational thing.”

Melissa Mitchell, Menands

“I think it has because kids don’t really understand what it means. There aren’t a lot of veterans or military families in this area so it doesn’t hit home as much.”

Guest Opinion

BC’s coffee bar a disservice to everyone

By PAUL DOYLE JR.

The author is the science specialist at the Bethlehem Children’s School, an outdoor educator for the Mohawk Hudson Land Conservancy, the Heldeberg Workshop and Critter Patrol, and a parent of two BCSD students.

When our children are in our schools, a fundamental role of our schools is to look out for the welfare of our children. This means keeping our children safe, while giving our children the tools they will need to help them through life. The school must set good examples and help our children develop good habits.

At first glance, a café in the Bethlehem High School and junk food in our school cafeterias seems like no big deal, but take a minute to analyze it, you will realize how contradictory it is to the purpose of our educational system.

Good habits are vital to our children’s education. Math, writing, reading, exercise, work and living habits, the list goes on. In school, these habits are not options. English teachers don’t say, “write legibly or illegibly.” We don’t allow bullying while teaching acceptance. We don’t allow cheating while teaching honesty. So why are we teaching the immeasurable importance of a healthy lifestyle while providing an unhealthy one? Do we say, “don’t smoke,” and hand out cigarettes?

Our teachers spend an enormous amount of time and resources, (our tax dollars), teaching our children the importance of health and nutrition, yet we send them off to the cafeterias and offer them the exact things they are told to avoid! Sugar, caffeine and saturated fats trigger the same drug addiction responses in the brain as cocaine and heroin. They actually alter brain chemistry. Our children become subject to side effects, including mood swings and depression, due to chemical dependency. Isn’t child behavior turbulent enough already? They also lead to a lifetime of health and medical issues plaguing our country: higher health insurance rates, higher short and long term medical costs, lower standard of living, etc.

The school’s claim is they are offering “Healthy Choices,” which should outrage parents, because if you really analyze it, they aren’t actually choices. It is not a “choice” when you are craving an addictive substance. Two students told us they drank two large coffees a day from the café, one in the morning, one in the afternoon. Their parents didn’t know they drank coffee, so they had to sneak out on weekends to get coffee otherwise they felt sick from caffeine withdrawal.

Your child choosing between cookies or chips versus an apple is not making a “free choice” because they are unaware of the addictive nature of these items. They’re being sold unhealthy items that then cause them to crave more of those very items, that their school, who is supposed to watch over their welfare, is inviting them to consume. The school has the nerve to call this a “Healthy Choice?”

From every scientific and educational perspective this is a terrible idea. Health experts, scientists, doctors, our own educators, all tell you the worst thing a developing child can do is cheat their body of what it needs. Refined sugars and saturated fats in these foods are exactly what leads to innumerable medical conditions in our society costing billions of dollars every year. This is a lose-lose for everyone.

We teach good habits in school, coffee and junk food are bad habits. We teach sound science in school, science tells us caffeine and junk food are addictive substances. We teach good health in health class, coffee and junk food are the building blocks of disease and obesity (one in four Bethlehem students). We teach sound economics in school, economically these products are an abomination, their seemingly inexpensive unit cost in no way representative of the disproportionate economic footprint from unsustainable farming practices to societal medical costs.

Depressingly, the Bethlehem Central High School made $55,000 selling addictive products to our kids last year, such as coffee and junk food. This is money we gave the school to sell these products to our kids creating lifelong addicting habits that they may never be able to kick.

Selling these products in school is irrational, exactly how these products make our children behave while teachers are trying to teach. These products directly endanger their welfare. They directly limit their learning and athletic potential.

Put all the spin on it you want, but what we are doing is selling addictive products to our own children, and that’s not right, and it is certainly not the role of our schools. Our children have plenty of opportunity for these products everywhere they turn in life, this should not include school.

But don’t take my word for it, go online and read the research yourself.

The Bethlehem Public Library community room is the site for a Red Cross blood drive tomorrow, Thursday November 7, from 1 to 6pm. Walk-ins are welcome, but you can also contact the Red Cross at 1-800-RED-CROSS to schedule an appointment.

You can donate blood if you are at least 17 years of age, weigh at least 110 pounds, and are in generally good health. Building improvements up to G'land voters

Majority of $18M in costs tied to infrastructure renovations; low turnout at meeting

By JOHN PURCELL
purcellj@spotlightnews.com

Guilderland Central School District residents will head to the polls again on Thursday, Nov. 14, just over a week after Election Day to decide two building project propositions totaling $18.17 million. However, at a recent community meeting discussing the proposals, only a handful of community members turned out to ask questions.

About 25 people attended the Tuesday, Oct. 29, informational meeting, but a majority were board of education members, facilities committee members and other school officials. Several district officials and the project's architectural firm were on hand to answer questions after a presentation providing an overview of the facilities improvement plan.

The first building project proposal totals more than $17.3 million and includes building infrastructure renovations ($14 million), safety and security improvements ($1.5 million) and instructional technology upgrades ($1.8 million). The second recommendation of around $845,000 tackled high school auditorium renovations and replacing the high school football field light pole.

"Where you will see most of the dollars tied up in this project is the replacement of building components that are a safety concern, or are at or near the end of their useful life, or a detriment to the efficient and economical operation of a building," Superintendent of Schools Marie Wiles said. "We don't want things that are close to the end of their life to fail and put us in a position where we need to do emergency repairs that will, in fact, disrupt what happens each and every day during our school year."

The first proposition would result in an annual tax increase of $65 for a home in the Town of Guilderland assessed at $246,500, the median value. The second proposition would likewise result in an annual tax increase of $3 to the same home.

The second and smaller proposal is contingent upon the first proposition being approved by voters.

The first proposal doesn't require the second to be approved.

Wiles said the committee decided to separate the two proposals because the bigger project "best captured" needed facility improvements. She said the committee was concerned some voters would see the second proposal as more "frivolous," but she considers that designation "a stretch."

Lori Hershenhart, instructional administrator for music, said the proposed improvements at the high school auditorium were needed because it's used as a classroom during about half of the school day and is used "extensively."

Hershenhart said the auditorium lighting is poor, requiring students to come on the stage to read any materials, and the sound system is in need of improvements.

Athletic Director Regan Johnson said replacing the light pole at the high school football field is important for safety.

"I know that the wind blows constantly here," Johnson said. "Especially on the football field, when the wind blows, I know where I am standing just in case."

The wooden light pole

GCSD residents will head to the polls on Thursday, Nov. 14 to vote on two building project propositions.

was installed in 1986, he said, and the wood also attracts various insects and pests requiring it to be sprayed. The new poles would be metal and mounted in concrete, and the light fixtures would be replaced.

Few questions asked

Wiles called the turnout at the meeting "stunningly low," said she was not sure why it was sparsely attended.

"We have mentioned it at every board meeting. We have sent out SNNs, it is on our website. It is the front page of our newsletter that just hit homes this past weekend," Wiles said. "I know people are busy. ... The more important thing is that people come out (to vote)."

Wiles said there probably were not "a lot of burning questions" about the improvement projects, or anything "tremendously controversial." She described the upgrades and renovations as a "very nuts and bolts" project.

"All these things are things that I think your average homeowners would understand," Wiles said. "I think the nature of the things we are doing kind of resonate with folks in that respect."

She said if people were "worried, concerned or angry" there likely would have been a bigger turnout.

There is a section of the district's website, www.guilderlandschools.org, devoted to the project referendums with information on the project. A video of the Oct. 29 meeting is posted, along with the presentation slides, and the facilities committee's complete report to the board is posted.

Voters can request an absentee ballot be mailed to them by calling Linda Livingston at 456-6200, ext. 3125, or an absentee ballot can be downloaded from the district's website. The district office must receive completed absentee ballots on Thursday, Nov. 7, if mailed to the voter, or the day before the vote if the ballot given to the voter in-person at the district office.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 14, and residents vote at their local elementary school.

Highlights from a half-century ago

From The Spotlight, Nov. 7, 1963

- The local election results are in. Republicans win all Bethlehem offices in landslides across the board. Supervisor Bertram Kohinke bests Democrat challenger Philip Murray 6,903 votes to 1,793 votes to win his third term. Turnout was about 1,000 voters less than in the 1961 local election. The paper notes the "Lincoln Party" splinter group of the GOP played a factor in that year's elections.

- A letter writer bemoans the "clown" level of police protection on Hallowe'en, complaining only one police car passed through Feura Bush during prime trick-or-treating hours, yet patrols packed the deserted streets later, when residents had gone to bed. "Scallions to our peace officers!" the writer concluded.

- Another letter writer wonders, with developers buying up properties along Delaware Avenue in Elsmere "for quick profit," the area might take on "the Coney Island look" of Western and Central avenues.

Town Board accepts Ethics Board recommendations

Minor changes to appeals process to ensure employees' privacy

By MARCY VELTE
veltem@spotlightnews.com

Following a proposal from the Bethlehem's Ethics Board to make several changes to the law after a year being in effect, Bethlehem Town Board members opted to accept the committee's recommendations along with some minor changes to ensure the privacy of town employees.

On Wednesday, Oct. 23, Town Board members discussed the recommendations presented by the Ethics Board after applying the code for a year. The recommended changes include amending the code to include a way for town staff and employees to appeal an advisory opinion issued by the Ethics Board. The group also wanted to amend the code to render advisory opinions issued by the Ethics Board to be binding.

Other recommendations included authorizing the board to initiate an inquiry into an alleged violation of the code, since it currently cannot launch an investigation absent a formal complaint. The board would not be able to begin an investigation without reasonable cause, but the change would allow for some initiative to be taken if the board found out about an issue and no formal complaint was filed.

Town Board members agreed with many of the changes, but Councilwoman Joann Dawson said by incorporating them into the law, new problems could arise.

"If the Ethics Board renders an advisory opinion and the requester seeks to appeal that opinion at the Town Board, is the advisory opinion still in effect during the appeal?" asked Dawson.

Ethics Board Chairwoman Theresa Schallaci said the Ethics Board could make it clear in their decision if their recommendations should remain in place until the appeal process is complete, and she did not think it needed to be changed in the law. Supervisor John Clarkson agreed.

Dawson said that decision was fine, but there could come a time when this issue arises and she says "I told you so."

Eventually it was determined to add that the decision of the Ethics Board is to remain in place until the appeal process complete.

However, Dawson had another question. If an employee goes to the Ethics Board for an advisory decision, everything that occurs is confidential. If an employee was to appeal the decision before the Town Board, wouldn't the issue then be made public?

"It could be seen as a disincentive to appealed if it is known that the decision is made public," said Councilman Kyle Kotary.

Clarkson said it could be good to have a disincentive to appeal so that the decisions made by the Ethics Board carries more weight. "We wouldn't want every decision to be appeal to us," he said.

To date, no formal decisions have been rendered by the Ethics Board.

Councilman Jeffrey Kuhn said because of the state Open Meetings Law, whether or not the appeal could remain private would depend on situation that is brought to the attention of the Ethics Board. Every situation might not be able to be held in executive session.

The board eventually decided to include in the law that appeals would remain private, unless otherwise subject to state law.

A public hearing on the changes is set for the next Town Board meeting on Wednesday, Nov. 13.

opt-in through an airline’s frequent flier program or trusted traveler service.

Brian Johansson, federal security director for TSA at Albany, said the program provides a different level of screening based on risk assessment of a passenger.

Johansson said the program allows TSA to focus its efforts on “passengers the agency knows less about while providing expedited screening for travelers who volunteer to provide” information before flying. The TSA started selecting passengers based on information provided through reservations last Thursday.

“The program acknowledges the fact that we recognize the vast majority of passengers pose no threat to security,” Johansson said, “and it demonstrates a shift from our one-size fits all approach to a more risk-based approach to security.”

Travelers can enroll for the program through an application process requiring a background check, fingerprints will be taken and an enrollment fee of $85 for five years. Those enrolled will receive faster security screenings more regularly, but it is never guaranteed.

TSA enhances security of the program through random and “unpredictable security measures.” The expedited lane will not always be open either, but it will be available during peak hours.

“You have to inject a little bit of randomness into it to ensure that somebody is not beating the system,” he said.

The program is offered to passengers traveling on Delta Air Lines, United Airlines and US Airways out of Albany, with Southwest Airlines expected to participate before the end of this year.

“When you get your boarding pass, take a look at it; look for that pre-check designation,” Johansson said. “It is a much faster process. It is much easier — much less intrusive. As long as everything goes smoothly, you are right through the checkpoint and onto your flight.”

Duber Winters, Woodbridge, Va., who was returning home from a business trip, said the program was “fantastic,” but he did add he wouldn’t pay to enroll in the program.

“I am hoping they have it everywhere,” Winters said. “It is so much easier.”

As long as security is maintained, he said he doesn’t see the expedited program as having any potential problems.

through difficult emotions and circumstances.”

Segal is a longtime friend of Pascone and often volunteers at Unity House, a Rensselaer County-based human services agency that assists victims of domestic violence, adults with mental illness and those living in poverty. Pascone said one of the first possessions woman receive when seeking assistance from the organization is a journal.

“It becomes very important to them because it is often one of the first things in a long time the women feel is entirely their own,” said Pascone. “A lot of times, these women go to the police or hospital and come to us with only the clothes on their back.”

The women of Unity House are encouraged to write in the journals on their own and are asked to use them during group writing exercises. Since Segal has used journaling for years as a medium for her artwork and often teaches different units on it in her classes, she felt a collaboration would be appropriate.

Prior to the lesson, Segal sent a letter out to parents explaining the project and asking for donations of journals. The students would then be decorating the front and back of the journals using a mixed-media, collaging method.

On Friday, Nov.1, Pascone gave a 20-minute presentation about Unity

House and the warning signs of domestic violence to students before they began their art lesson with Segal. The class was filled with about 20 teenage girls, who learned how victims of domestic violence are often controlled by their partners and how often the cycles repeat.

“Many times, when woman come to us, they do go back to their abusers. It can take three or more times before they actually leave, and some never do,” said Pascone, explaining that some victims can find living on their own and facing the new challenges of everyday life to be overwhelming. “Some have never kept a checkbook before or may be confused about applying for a credit card so they feel it’s easier to go back.”

Pascone said the organization typically helps women between the ages of 25 and 45. To spread the word about their organization in a way that isn’t embarrassing for victims, the group will leave pamphlets small enough to hide in a shoe in places like the grocery store and nail salons. They also give out everyday items, like chip clips, with their phone number on it for easy access.

The students will work on their journals in class over the next month. Segal taught the class a special splatter technique for painting the covers. They will then be asked to find inspirational sayings and photos that will be placed on the journals in a collage style.

“It’s meaningful for these woman to get these journals from these girls,” said Pascone. “They were young once too and had similar dreams and aspirations. I think this project will work to form a unique connection between everyone involved.”

Segal said if the project is a success, she would like to see it expand. Not only would she be open to teaching the unit in her other classes, but she said she would be willing to go to other school districts to work with art teachers or do lessons with other community organizations.

“I have a lot of ideas about how to make this work, the problem is finding the extra hours in the day,” she said with a laugh.

Pascone said for others looking to contribute to Unity House, the organization is seeking donations and volunteers for their newly opened thrift store, ReStyle, at 2431 Sixth Ave., Troy. Monetary donations are also accepted on their website, www.unityhouse.org.

Making the most of waste

Albany County unveils $8.6 million technology generating clean energy from sewage

By JOHN PURCELL
purcellj@spotlightnews.com

Going green can sometimes mean looking for innovations and opportunities in the least likely of places.

Albany County Sewer District and state officials have done just that, unveiling Wednesday, Oct. 30, a new multi-stage combined heat and power system at the county’s North Plant in Menands. The $8.6 million Organic Rankine Cycle heat-to-energy technology is the first installed in North America. The plant previously burned sludge for disposal, but the new system will recapture the heat generated from the process and generate up to 3.3 million kilowatt-hours of power annually.

The county is estimated to save $400,000 in energy costs annually, with the new system reducing up to 75 percent of its electric grid usage. During colder months, the heat will also be captured and used to warm up buildings.

“Ideas like this, that use what was once considered waste to produce energy, need to be examined not only as environmentally friendly and economically viable, but also as an example of how government can be more efficient, effective and accountable to the taxpayers,” Albany County Executive Dan McCoy said in a statement.

McCoy said the renewable energy source would reduce the county’s carbon dioxide emissions by nearly 1,500 tons annually, along with reusing around 50,000 gallons of water daily to cool the system.

“In short order, the Sewer District will be saving electricity, water and natural gas while reducing greenhouse gases with one of the most advanced and innovative projects constructed in the state,” McCoy said.

New York State Environmental Facilities Corp. President and CEO Matthew Driscoll said the county competed against almost 300 other green projects in the state’s Green Innovation Grant Program to win funding for the project.

“A primary goal of the Green Innovation Grant Program is to increase the awareness and use of sustainable, energy-saving technologies in New York,” Driscoll said, “and Albany County’s unique system will undoubtedly spur similar projects in the rest of the state.”

The Environmental Facilities Corp. awarded $5.8 million for the project, which was provided from American Recovery and Reinvestment Act funding. The New York State Energy Research and Development Authority also awarded $2 million. The county funded the remaining expense.

“This project is a terrific addition to the Albany County infrastructure,” state Sen. Neil Breslin said in a statement. “It will benefit the environment by cutting down on power consumption from the grid, and it will also benefit the county taxpayer by reducing operating expenses.”

The North Plant was constructed 40 years ago and serves approximately 200,000 people. The plant is designated to treat an average daily flow of 35 million gallons.

Albany County Sewer District Executive Director Richard Lyons said the project provides long-term environmental and economic benefits for communities served, which includes a portion of the cities of Albany, Cohoes and Watervliet, parts of the towns of Colonie and Guilderland, and the villages of Colonie, Menands and Green Island.

Around 7,000 tons of dry sewage sludge is disposed annually at the plant. The heat created from burning off the dry matter will run through a closed-loop oil system and be pumped into a combined heat and power (CHP) system.

“The innovative aspects of this project will serve as a template for use by other communities in the state,” Lyons said.

couldn't capitalize thanks to the Brothers' defense.

"They beat us twice. They're just a better team," said Guilderland coach Dan Penna.

CBA's ground game pounded Guilderland's defense for the second time this season. Tailback Elliot Croskey rushed for 141 yards and two touchdowns, while Nick Marini and Max Anthony combined for another 152 yards and two scores.

"Our kids are pretty strong runners," said Burke. "Nick and Elliot – and now Max – gives us a different look on offense."

Marini set up CBA's first touchdown with a 23-yard run to Guilderland's 9-yard line. Two plays and a penalty later, Anthony scored on a 14-yard run to put the Brothers ahead 7-0 with 2:03 left in the first quarter.

After Guilderland's ensuing offensive series went backwards from its 20-yard line to its 9-yard line, a short punt gave CBA the ball at the Dutchmen's 33-yard line. Marini came close to scoring on the next play from scrimmage, as he broke several tackles before being forced out of bounds at the 3-yard line. Croskey essentially finished what Marini started when he scored on a 4-yard run on the second play of the second quarter.

Matt Hamel's extra point made it 14-0.

A fake punt turned into another big CBA play later in the second quarter. Backup quarterback Donald Vivian completed a 14-yard pass to Alex Koshgarian to set up the Brothers at Guilderland's 41-yard line. Four plays later, Marini bowled through Guilderland's defense for a 15-yard touchdown run to put CBA ahead 21-0.

Cameron Long pumped some life into Guilderland when he took the ensuing kickoff and returned it to CBA's 47-yard line. Some timely passes by quarterback Frank Gallo set up Micaiah Henningham's 4-yard touchdown run to trim the Brothers' lead to 21-7 with 3:04 remaining in the first half.

That turned out to be enough time for CBA to muster one more touchdown. This time, Croskey scampered along the right sideline for a 30-yard scoring run to put the Brothers ahead 28-7.

Guilderland had a couple of chances to get back in the game in the second half. The first came in the third quarter when the Dutchmen got to CBA's 5-yard line, but Vivian intercepted Gallo's pass near the goal line. Vivian then raced 97 yards for an apparent touchdown, only to have the play called back on a CBA penalty.

Guilderland's defense came up big early in the fourth quarter when lineman D'Angelo Livingston picked up a CBA fumble and rumbled to the Brothers' 34-yard line. A 25-yard pass from Gallo to Henningham set up the Dutchmen at CBA's 9-yard line, but they failed to score from there.

That turned out to be Guilderland's last gasp, as CBA's defense shut the Dutchmen down the rest of the night.

"I credit our kids," said Burke. "They have a really high football IQ, and defensively they're just in the right spot every time."

"When you're trying to climb back into a game where you're never closer than three touchdowns ... those stops really killed our momentum," said Penna.

CBA now turns its focus on a Shaker team that has posted five shutouts this season on its way to reaching its second consecutive Class AA final.

"It's interesting. I haven't seen Shaker all year, so we're going to have to study them this week," said Burke.

Corner kick goal propels Dutchmen into AA final

Czekay finishes O'Brien's cross to help Guilderland advance past Shaker in semifinals

By ROB JONAS
jonasr@spotlightnews.com

Connor O'Brien specializes in corner kicks, and Chris Czekay specializes in converting them into goals.

The Guilderland duo teamed up to score a goal off a set piece for the fourth time this season, which was enough for the third-seeded Dutchmen (14-4-0) to defeat No. 2 seed Shaker 1-0 in last Thursday's Section II Class AA boys soccer semifinal at Colonie Central High School.

Guilderland's reward was its first appearance in a Sectional final since 2008. The Dutchmen met Big 10 champion Albany in Monday's Class AA championship game at Colonie after the fifth-seeded Falcons stunned top-seeded Shenendehowa 2-1 in last Thursday's other semifinal.

"We feel blessed to be here, and we feel happy that we are fortunate enough to move on," said Guilderland coach Mike Kinnally.

O'Brien had six corner kicks in the semifinal against Shaker (14-4-0), most of which curled in on goal. The one that Czekay converted into the lone point of the match was a service that remained high enough for the senior midfielder to head past goaltender Tommy Macutek

10 minutes into the second half. "He's given us numerous opportunities all year," Czekay said of O'Brien, who has set up seven Guilderland goals via the corner kick this season. "Every set piece is a dangerous opportunity for us."

"Practice makes perfect," said O'Brien. "I just try to hit it to the same spot every time."

Shaker attempted several times to get the equalizer, but Guilderland's defense prevented the Blue Bison from generating any serious challenges on goaltender Kedrick Weeden, who needed to make only two saves to pick up the shutout.

"The boys fought hard from the first whistle to the last," said Shaker coach Dan Fountain. "We generated four or five opportunities in the (penalty) box that we didn't capitalize on."

Macutek had eight saves for Shaker, including several in the first half that kept the game scoreless at halftime.

"I thought we played well for the first 25 minutes," said Kinnally. "We had a couple of nice opportunities in the first 15 minutes that we didn't finish."

Albany (15-2-1) became the first Big 10 team to reach the Class AA Sectional finals by virtue of a fortuitous bounce late in the second half. Denis Leon's direct kick bounced off Shen goaltender Danny Juers' hands, and a Plainsmen defender accidentally kicked the ball into the goal to break a 1-1 tie.

Emmanuel Ishimwe tallied early in the first half for Albany, and Chris Schmid scored in the second half for Shen.

BC doubles team wins bracket

Buckley and Shi rally after first-round loss at state tournament

By SPORTS STAFF
jonasr@spotlightnews.com

The Bethlehem doubles team of Elizabeth Buckley and Aria Shi won the consolation bracket at this weekend's New York State Public High School Athletic Association girls tennis tournament at Latham's Tri City Tennis Club.

Buckley and Shi defeated Monroe-Woodbury's Isabel Arias and Lisa Weissburg 8-1 in the consolation finals to complete their two-day run at the state tournament with a 4-1 record.

After losing to eighth-seeded Katie Cirella and Rhea Malhotra of Syosset 6-0, 6-3 in Saturday's opening round, Buckley and Shi pulled out three wins to reach Sunday's consolation bracket final. They got past Sauquoit Valley's Ella Brutsky and Dana Bever 8-4 in a pro set match and then rallied from a 7-1 deficit to defeat Orchard Park's Kristen Zablonksi and Rachel Johnson 9-8 in the quarterfinals.

Buckley and Shi edged Warwick's Caroline Seeberg and Juliana Marcolini 9-8 in the consolation semifinals before meeting Arias and Weissburg.

digs to lead the Eagles. Kevin Cahill recorded five kills and two aces, while Kevin Mahar added 30 assists.

Kolin Krebs had 10 kills, and Reid Hartl chipped in with 25 assists for Shen.

Bethlehem advances to this weekend's regional round. The Eagles meet the Section III champion in Friday's semifinal match at BH-BL, and the winner advances to Saturday's regional final in Hudson.

"It's a single-elimination situation from here on out," said Wood. "We have to take each match and each practice as seriously as we can."

Eagles sweep Shen

Bethlehem claims fourth consecutive boys volleyball title

By ROB JONAS
jonasr@spotlightnews.com

The record books will show the Bethlehem boys volleyball team swept Shenendehowa in three games to win another Section II title. But, it wasn't easy.

The Eagles (24-1) rallied in the second and third games to get past the Plainsmen (16-6) 25-15, 27-25 and 28-26 in last Friday's Division I final at Burnt Hills-Ballston Lake High School to secure their fourth straight Sectional title and a berth in the regional round.

"It's an honor to take the Sectional win," said Bethlehem coach Jason Wood. "We've been trying to preach to the kids not to take anything for granted and take things one step at a time."

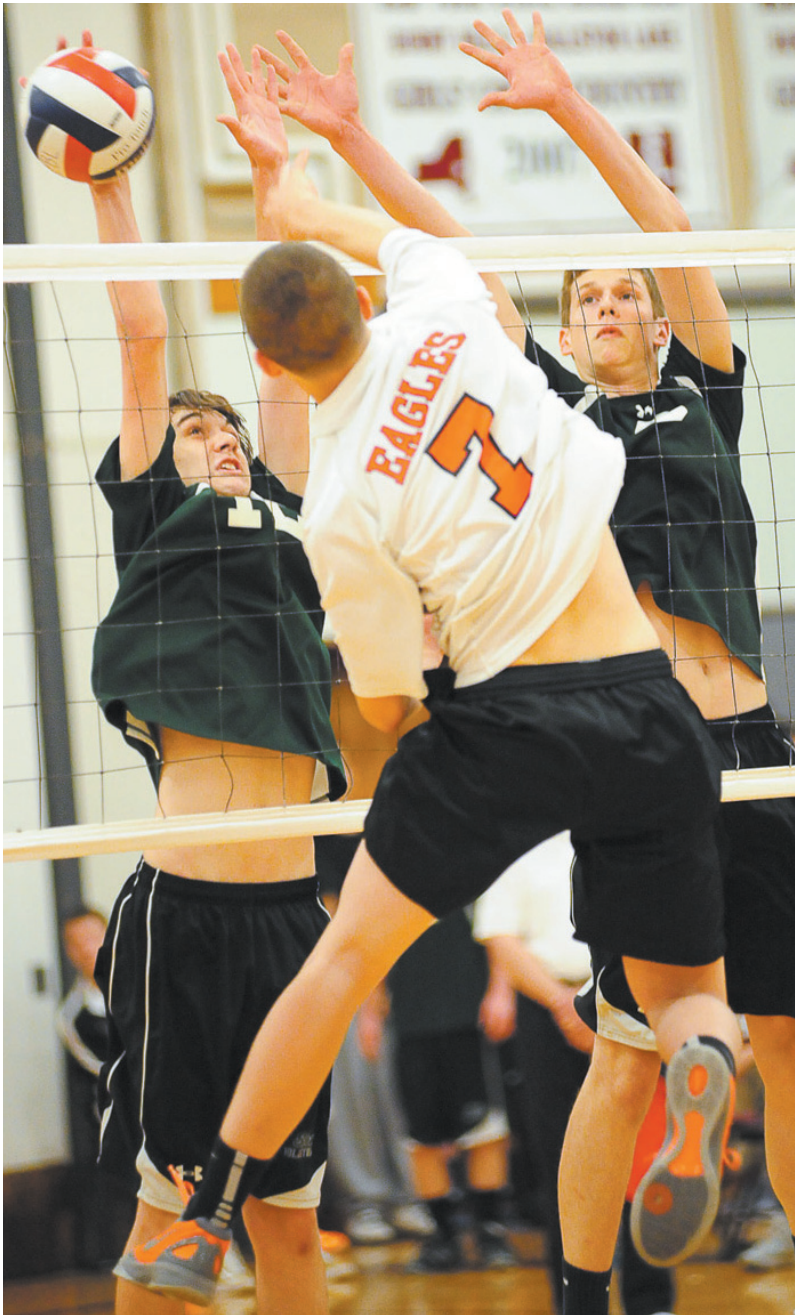

The Eagles were in danger of dropping only their sixth game of the season to a Suburban Council opponent when they trailed Shen 21-16 in the second game, but they scored 11 of the next 15 points to build a 2-0 lead in the match.

"The experience of what they've been through the last couple of years definitely helped us when we were down," said Wood. "They didn't panic at all."

Shen led for much of the third game, as well, but Bethlehem pulled ahead late to take it and the match.

Junior John Sica had eight kills and two service aces, and sophomore Aaron Carrk contributed seven kills and six

G'land girls second

Burns and Robinson qualify for state cross country meet

By SPORTS STAFF
jonasr@spotlightnews.com

Saratoga continued its run of girls Section II cross country titles by winning the Class A championship with 50 points at last Friday's meet in Queensbury.

Guilderland surged to a second-place finish with 64 points, and Colonie placed third with 72 points.

Guilderland's Emily Burns and Jenna Robinson each qualified for the state meet with top-10 finishes. Burns took fifth place with a time of 19:09.93 and Robinson placed sixth with a time of 19:11.54.

Saratoga also won the boys Class A team title with 52 points. Shen was second with 84 points, and Colonie claimed third place with 90 points.

Saratoga's Aidan Tooker earned the individual title with a time of 15:43.13. Bethlehem's Stephen Booker (second place, 15:55.06) and Alex Carlson (sixth, 16:14.28) earned individual berths to the state meet.

Brothers defense stops Dutch again

Guilderland has two drives end inside CBA's 10-yard line in Section II Class AA semifinal

By ROB JONAS
jonasr@spotlightnews.com

Last Friday's Guilderland-Christian Brothers Academy football game wasn't a carbon copy of their regular season meeting three weeks ago, but the theme was similar.

CBA (8-1) jumped out to an early lead and made several key defensive plays to defeat Guilderland (6-3) 28-7 in the Section II Class AA semifinals.

The Brothers advance to Friday's Class AA final at the University at Albany's Bob Ford Field against reigning Sectional champion Shaker, which shut out Saratoga 35-0 in the other semifinal contest.

"They're the defending champs, so they certainly have our respect," CBA coach Joe Burke said of Shaker.

Guilderland fared better than it did when it lost to CBA 40-6 in their Empire Division meeting Oct. 11. The Dutchmen had several big plays on offense, as well as a key fumble recovery, but they

MiSci to hold Super Science Weekend, Dudley Observatory kicks off activities

By JOHN PURCELL
purcellj@spotlightnews.com

Realizing the richness of the area's science offerings will be a simple calculation at an upcoming inaugural science festival.

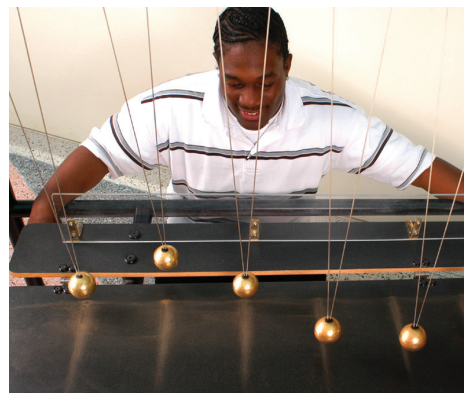

After he moved to the area, William "Mac" Sudduth, executive director of miSci, wanted to showcase various Capital District science community members, from clubs and universities to businesses and nonprofits. Sudduth moved from Georgia one year ago to join miSci (the Museum of Innovation and Science) in Schenectady.

"I was impressed with the number of people in the area who do something with science for families and for kids," Sudduth said. "I thought it would be neat if we could get them all together under one roof."

This led miSci to plan Super Science Weekend from Saturday, Nov. 9, to Monday, Nov. 11, which is to feature several hands-on and interactive attractions in a family friendly atmosphere. The Dudley Observatory will kick off the three-day

Lyle's lessons

A crocodile to entertain, teach youngsters in Steamer No. 10 production

By DANIA BIANCHI
bianchid@spotlightnews.com

"Cinderella" taught children to never give up, "Charlotte's Web" contained lessons on friendship and humility and "The Boy Who Cried Wolf" taught kids about the consequences of lying.

Children's stories have been a sneaky way to teach life lessons for years, so it's no surprise that the latest kid's show to hit the stage at Steamer No. 10 Theatre teaches kids that things are not always as they may appear.

Director Janet Hurley-Kimlicko said the message in the show is loud and clear: don't judge a book by its cover.

"Underneath might be something really good," she said.

"Lyle the Crocodile" is a story about a crocodile who is abandoned in a bathtub in an apartment on 88th Street in Manhattan. Lyle isn't your typical fierce crocodile, but rather a very likeable reptile who is discovered by a lonely boy named Joshua Primm, who was uprooted from his home and moved to the big city. It doesn't take long for Joshua and the rest of the Primm family to accept Lyle and take him in.

"He ingratiates himself by finding Mr. Primm's pipe, which was lost in the move; cleaning, dusting, setting the table, cooking and all these fantastic things that suddenly make him an indispensable part of the household," said Ric Chesser, executive director at Steamer No. 10 Theatre.

Not everyone is as accepting as the Primms, however. Lyle is threatened by a crabby neighbor with a very fitting name, Mr. Grumps, played by Joe Philips; a seasoned actor who has starred in a number of productions, the most recent being a musical piece about the making of the Erie Canal called "Clinton's Ditch."

Philips said Mr. Grumps is a man who is set in his ways and doesn't like anything that is different.

"When he learns that he is living next door to a crocodile, he is not happy and makes some trouble for Lyle," Philips said.

The show is based on the popular children's books, "The House on East 88th Street" and "Lyle, Lyle Crocodile," by Bernard Waber.

When Waber introduced Lyle to his readers in 1962 in "The House on East 88th Street," it was the beginning of a series about life lessons on acceptance.

Hurley-Kimlicko said a few changes were made to the original story, but the overall message and the "storybook-feel" remains the same in the theatrical adaptation.

She added that one element of the show makes it different from most children's stage shows.

"Its message is really nice for kids," she said, "but when the music is added, it has such a jazzy kind of feel that it makes it really feel like a New York piece."

Chesser said the show features a pit orchestra and has a score that is along the lines of swing jazz.

"Very seldom do kid's musicals go in that direction," he said.

Philips added that the lyrics include a lot of lingo from the 1950s, which he said can be a bit advanced for some of the younger members of the cast.

The show is one of Steamer No. 10's Kids' Fare Series, which casts young kids alongside professional actors.

"When you have a cast of eight professional actors with varying levels of professional experience and a handful of very young kids ... with the mixture of people, it's been challenging to try and put this together fast," Philips said.

Still, he finds children's theater gratifying.

"I love working with kids in the theater. I have done quite a lot of directing in community theater that involves children. I've worked with a theater program out of RPI and coached young children on stage, so this is right up my alley," he said.

eight students from area high schools.

The role of Joshua Primm is played by Justin Jasiewicz, a high school student at Loudonville Christian School.

“He was in ‘Pippi Longstocking’ last year with kind of a non-descript role, but did well with it. During the summer we had him in ‘Grease’ as Eugene, and he just created this fantastic character enough that during scene changes when it was kind of half-light, he and this other actor would come out and just continue their characters,” Chesser said. “The audience never really realized this was just stuff that these two were making up as they went along and not part of the actual show.”

Chesser said “Lyle the Crocodile” is a show for all audiences.

“The Lyle series is the kind of book that young kids would probably read, but our shows reach out to families,” he said.

In the end, good will and courage win out when Mr. Grumps learns to appreciate Lyle for who he is.

“People who are different have a lot to offer. I think that’s kind of the overall lesson of this show. A lot of people are put off by meeting a crocodile, but when they learn he is versatile, entertaining and has a lot of talents ... and just a plain good guy, they learn to accept him,” Philips said. “Essentially, he is just an ordinary person who happens to be big and green.”

“Lyle the Crocodile” is on stage Nov. 9, 10, 16, 17 at 3 p.m.; Nov. 11 at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m.; and Nov. 15 at 7 p.m. at Steamer No. 10 Theatre, 500 Western Ave., Albany. Tickets are $15. Tickets can be purchased online at www.steamer10theatre.org. For more information, call 438-5503.

Here’s How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

event on Friday, Nov. 8, with a lecture about the uniqueness of our solar system, followed by a stargazing party.

There are several daylong activities and presentations planned at miSci, along with some happening at designated times, allowing people to learn and explore different avenues of science. The activities will run from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday and Monday, and Sunday they will run from noon to 5 p.m.

“There will be something going on in different places all the time, so you can wander around and pick what you want to see,” Sudduth said.

Five Rivers Environmental Education Center staff will be at the event all three days with the “wild turkey” program. WMHT will be present the first two days with the program “Eat Like a Bird.” New York Wildlife Rescue will also have birds on display, along with a bird demonstration once each day. Several dry ice demonstrations will be held by miSci throughout the event.

Some unique events on Saturday include Union College professor Jim Hedrick explaining how to talk to robots, Niskayuna High School students giving chemistry demonstrations, Empire State Aerosciences Super Science Weekend festivities will include exhibits, lectures, demos and more.

Museum offering flight simulations and the Dudley Observatory offering a solar viewing.

On Sunday, there will be a robot scrimmage between Niskayuna and Mohonasen high school students. On Monday, SI Group will present its popular bubble hoist demonstration, and Mr. Sly the Science Guy will have a presentation on energy and matter.

Cabot Creamery has also donated cheese to be used for a food science presentation.

“There is a lot of chemistry in food,” Sudduth said. “I think a lot of people don’t realize how ubiquitous science is in our lives now.”

The festival will also feature Harry Ringermacher, who will be giving a lecture starting at 7 p.m. on Friday at the Dudley Observatory on discovering planets around other “suns.” There are around 3,000 candidate planets in the “Goldilocks zone” of their stars, and around three or four are considered “super-earths.” Ringermacher though will explain what makes our solar system rare.

Ringermacher retired last year from General Electric Global Research Center as a senior research physicist. He was project leader of the infrared imaging group, and he also worked with laser techniques and nuclear magnetic resonance for materials evaluation.

The “bread and butter” of miSci is families coming with children, Sudduth said, but seniors are also coming out to see what miSci has to offer.

“Parents and families are looking for things they can do with their children. And learning is lifelong, and I think a lot of people are still looking to learn things after they get out of school,” he said. “If you look at individual sciences, everybody has one they are interested in.”

Sudduth added learning more about science is a benefit for everyone.

“We don’t think people are going to make every child into a scientist or engineer,” he said, “but if you are familiar with it, you will be able to make better informed decisions.”
