Police, firefighters & first responders honored at 39th American Legion awards ceremony

By ALI HIBBS
hibbsa@spotlightnews.com

ELSMERE — The Nathaniel Adams Blanchard American Legion Post 1040 held its 39th annual Community Awards ceremony the evening of Monday, March 5, honoring firefighters, police and first responders serving the Town of Bethlehem.

Each year, members and officers of Post 1040 honor a Person of the Year from each of the volunteer fire companies, the volunteer ambulance service and the Bethlehem Police Department. Each organization is asked to select a member it feels is deserving of the honor, and each of the awards is presented by another member of the recipient's organization during the annual ceremony.

Around 200 people attended the 2018 ceremony, including Albany County Executive Dan McCoy, Bethlehem Supervisor David VanLuven, all four Town Board members and both town judges.

"We are appreciative and grateful for the generous gifts of time, talent and energy these volunteers have given to departments in the town of Bethlehem," said McCoy. "They have bravely and selflessly volunteered with the Fire and Police Departments as well as Emergency Medical Services serving their friends and neighbors and truly helping their fellow citizens in Albany County. I was honored to be a part of a recognition ceremony this week to say thank you."

Lenhardt to leave BCSD board

Member encourages others to run for her seat after 30 years of service

By ALI HIBBS
hibbsa@spotlightnews.com

BETHLEHEM— Longtime BCSD Board of Education member Lynne Lenhardt was recognized for her service to public education during the board meeting on Wednesday, Feb. 28—before she announced that she will not be seeking re-election to the seat she has occupied for the last 30 years.

Tim Kremer, executive director of the New York State School Boards Association, presented the entire board with a plaque for supporting Lenhardt, who served as NYSSBA's president and on its board of directors during her time on the BCSD board.

"Our organization is challenged with a lot of issues these days," he said. "And we call upon people like Lynne and our members to help us think through things having to do with public education and standards and curriculum and testing. Things like school safety, mental health issues, drugs and opioids, staffing issues, budgetary issues, taxing issues, community relations. These are complicated times and if anyone thinks that it's easy to be in your seat, they're dead wrong.

"Lynne," Kremer said, "I want you to know that you have been an extraordinary president for the New York State School Boards Association and an extraordinary board member."

Later in the same meeting, Lenhardt made the announcement that she will not be seeking re-election to the board. "This is my 30th year," she said. "I've served for ten terms. That's a long time. I've seen staff come and go: we hired them, they retired, and I'm still here." She laughed. "So I figured it's just time."

Lenhardt reminisced and commented on the many changes she's seen in her time on the BCSD board, such as increased security measures and new mental health concerns. She said she initially ran on reducing class sizes in the district, at a time when her children were still students. "It took some time," she said, "and we did reduce class sizes." Her children may not have benefited, she said, "But when you serve on a board, you're serving the whole community, not just your own interests.

"I want to thank the community for supporting me for those ten terms," she said. "I appreciate the fact that they were willing to keep me here for all this time. And I hope that people will come out and try and serve the board." She noted that the job can be both rewarding and frustrating, but said, "It's important. We have a great community and we want to prepare our students the best way we can for the future, so I hope people are interested in taking out a petition and running for the board."

Other board members expressed their appreciation for Lenhardt's service, and she received a round of applause from those in attendance.

"It is a tremendous loss for the Bethlehem school board that you won't be returning," said Board President Christine Beck. "Your knowledge is irreplaceable and I have your phone number, so that doesn't mean you're off the hook when we need to know something."

"I have email too," said Lenhardt, smiling.

Clarksville sale seems imminent

BCSD officials uninterested in entertaining other offers for former school

By ALI HIBBS
hibbsa@spotlightnews.com

NEW SCOTLAND—After her purchase offer for the historic Clarksville Elementary School was turned down, a resident of the Bethlehem Central School District is now asking the district to consider redrawing its boundaries so that the building could be put to use by the Voorheesville Central School District.

Jennifer Bull said that she offered to purchase the building earlier this year for $325,000—which is $25,000 more than the total the sheriff's office has offered, and $152,000 more than the actual monetary exchange that would take place under the current deal under consideration by the BCSD Board of Education. Under that deal, $127,000 would be paid through "in-kind" patrol services.

While Bull said she didn't receive a definitive answer as to why her offer was rejected, a district official told Spotlight News that it wasn't in a position to entertain any other offers, as there was a pre-existing agreement with the sheriff's office. While the Board of Education has yet to vote on the proposed transaction, members seem to increasingly agree Albany County Sheriff Craig Apple, who has occupied the building for six years, has a legitimate expectation of a deal.

Some opponents of the sale argue that the district should prioritize the needs of the district and its students before it worries about inconveniencing the county. Resident Judy Abbott believes that enrollment projections released by BCSD are incomplete and do not adequately take into account the pace of growth in parts of the district. She would prefer to see BCSD hold on to the building, in case future growth necessitates more space in coming years.

Bull, however, believes that the building would be put to best use as a school now, and would prefer to see it incorporated into the Voorheesville school district, which she said is growing at a pace that would make the new building a welcome addition. She has been in touch with VCSD and said it may be interested in acquiring the building through a redistricting process.

When asked if VCSD Superintendent Brian Hunt had contacted the district, BCSD Superintendent Jody Monroe replied that he let her know that Bull reached out to him, but shook her head, implying that the conversation went no further.

According to Hunt, he spoke with Bull and with the district, but he said that to acquire the building would require a lengthy process and the approval of both school boards and other education entities. "Until Bethlehem decides what it wants to do, it's not really anything Voorheesville can act on at this point," he said. According to Hunt, VCSD enrollment is growing, but the current projections indicate it will have the room to accommodate all students for at least the next five years.

Opponents of the sale have also criticized the price tag, based on an assessed value that has dropped precipitously since 2016, from an assessed value of $1.7 million, and point out that BCSD still owes more than $1.6 million in debt on improvements made to the building a few years before the district relocated its students to Eagle and Slingerlands elementary schools due to declining enrollment brought about, in part, by a townwide building moratorium in Bethlehem.

During its meeting on Thursday, March 8, Board of Education members voted to approve the county as the lead agency to conduct a State Environmental Quality Review that will be necessary if the county proceeds with building a new garage on the property, which it will only do if the sheriff's office succeeds in purchasing Clarksville.

Abbott spoke at that meeting, urging board members to retain the building and characterizing the sale as the loss of a capital asset. "I would still like to see this go to a public vote," she said. "And I was kind of hoping the school district would be willing to consider saving some of the land for future growth . . . is that completely off the table?"

"What is important is what is best for the school kids of Clarksville and the taxpayers of the districts involved," said Bull, calling her personal feelings on the matter "irrelevant."

According to BCSD, the district is waiting for the county to act on the sale before it goes back before the Board of Education.

BETHLEHEM—Five high school students have won the Regional National Science Bowl and will be headed on an all-expenses-paid trip to the nation's capital for the 2018 National Science Bowl.

The team won a very close championship match against another Bethlehem Central team in the competition, marking the first time in the Capital District that both teams competing in the regional championship have been from the same school.

The tournament, which was held on March 3 at the GE Research & Development Center in Niskayuna, was hosted by GE and the Naval Nuclear Laboratory, formerly known as Knolls Atomic Power Lab. The trip to the nation's capital is sponsored by the U.S. Department of Energy.

Coach Paul O'Reilly stated that both BC teams performed excellently—where the winning team had only lost one game, the other was undefeated before the final.

"It was a great day for Bethlehem High School," said Coach O'Reilly. "The students had studied hard to get prepared for this tournament and it showed, and they should all be proud of their performances."

The BC Science Bowl team advancing to the national competition includes Liam Karl, Talia Sanders, Maggie Sui, Kevin Sui and Connor Chung. The team along with Coach Paul O'Reilly will travel to Washington D.C. to compete against up to 60 of the best teams from across the country at the tournament which takes place April 26-30.

Bethlehem has represented the upstate New York area 12 times since 1997 and has finished in the top 16 in the nation four times, one of which was last year.

BCSD Odyssey teams head to state

By ALI HIBBS
hibbsa@spotlightnews.com

BETHLEHEM—Six teams from the School District—two from the middle school and four from Hamagrael Elementary—competed in the Odyssey of the Mind Region 7 competition at Shenendehowa High School on Saturday, March 3.

Four teams took home first place trophies and one team took home a second place trophy. Those five teams will now move on to compete at the New York state competition at Binghamton University on Saturday, April 7.

“Every team brought their very best to the regional competition,” said BC Odyssey coordinator Betsy Gumustop.

Odyssey of the Mind is a creative problem-solving competition involving students from kindergarten through college. Teams of five to seven members apply their creativity to solve problems that range from building mechanical devices to presenting their own interpretation of literary classics. They then bring their solutions to competitions at the local, state, and international level. While each team has an adult “coach,” the coaches remain hands-off throughout the process, as team members must conceive, write and construct all the elements of their solution themselves. This year’s BCSD winning teams solved problems involving Tolkien, navigating a triathlon course, creating an intergalactic “hangout,” and building and “feeding” animals.

Allison Ryan-Reichman coaches her older son’s Odyssey of the Mind team and helps out with her younger son’s team, which is coached by Rebecca Beiter. Her older son’s team has been together for five years, since they were in second and third grades.

“Odyssey of the Mind is a nearly year-long project,” she said. “The team chooses their long-term problem in August and work for months to solve and present it. On competition day, they are also given a “spontaneous problem” to solve together that is unknown to the team until the kids walk into the judge’s room.”

The team Reichman’s older son is on generally chooses the “Classics” problem every year. “This year,” she said, “they were tasked with writing and performing a skit that shows a mockumentary version of events for one of five predetermined classic novels: ‘The Hobbit,’ ‘Alice in Wonderland,’ ‘Gulliver’s Travels,’ ‘Peter Pan,’ ‘Charlotte’s Web.’ His team ultimately chose ‘The Hobbit.’ Within each Odyssey problem, there are several limitations or rules; essentially pages of rules the team must follow and work into their skit.”

“My fourth grade team has been together since second grade and has chosen to solve a different problem every year,” said Beiter of the team on which Reichman’s younger son competes. “This year they tackled ‘Animal House,’ which required them to build a structure out of balsa wood that would hold as much weight as possible.” She explained that the solution also required a script that involved an animal leaving home, which they built and decorated out of the balsa wood, and to which they were required to “feed” food that would remain attached once the structure eventually broke under increasing weight.

“Their process began with brainstorming ideas for scripts that might include a group of animals,” said Beiter. “They then researched towers and bridges and looked at the different types of trusses that are used. Each team member designed, built, and tested their own structure and the team chose the design that they all felt was the best to use at competition. Their winning structure had a mass of only 14 grams (about 0.03 pounds) but was able to hold well over 300 pounds!”

“A huge accomplishment for 9-year-olds,” said Reichman. “Each kid gets to bring their own talents to aid the team in what is really a complicated production of writing, performance, engineering, art, set-building, and on-the-spot problem solving.”

Odyssey of the Mind originated with Dr. C. Samuel Miklus, a professor at Rowan University in New Jersey, where he taught an industrial design class in the 1970s, in which he challenged his students to use creativity to solve unique problems, such as designing a vehicle without wheels or a mechanical pie thrower, caught the attention of other educators and, eventually, local media. The first competition in 1978 was only for middle and high school students in New Jersey. In 1980, the first teams from outside of New Jersey, including international teams from Canada, participated. In 1982, the burgeoning organization helped organize local not-for-profit associations to administer the program for the schools and teams in their respective state or country. Today, there are associations all around the world serving thousands of participating schools. Thousands of teams represent nearly every state in the U.S. and approximately 25 other countries.

While some schools take the lead in organizing OotM teams, in Bethlehem it’s parents who facilitate the process and coach the teams, according to Leslie Perrin, who co-coaches one of the middle school teams with Beiter and another parent. “Ultimately, coaches chauffeur kids and props back and forth to practice, secure practice space, take kids out to purchase supplies, supervise, and ask a lot of Socratic questions. We also plan practice spontaneous problems.”

Odyssey problems have challenged students to design mechanical dinosaurs, invent new factory machinery, build working vehicles, write a new chapter to Moby Dick, put a twist on classic artworks, turn Pandora’s Box into a video game, and more.

“If you’re a parent putting a team together,” Perrin said, “you’d ideally want kids who get along well, and who have varied talents: dreamers, doers, and dramatics. Or kids who are good at all three!”

“Creative problem solving is a skill that needs to be nurtured and developed, says the OotM website. “While a conventional education is important, learning to solve problems creatively and confidently gives them an important edge in their education and career goals. There is creativity inside each of us and OotM teaches how to tap into it so it can be applied to real-world problems.”

“The most rewarding part for me is seeing them persevere and even shine when things don’t go as planned,” said Perrin. “That is a serious life skill,” she said. “But shhhh, don’t tell them that!”

State Police arrests

On Friday, March 2, investigators based at the Latham barracks arrested Brezenae Daniels, 19, of Rhode Island. Officials scale back search for missing Guilderland man

By JAMES FRANCO
francoj@spotlightnews.com

NEW SCOTLAND — The search of Thacher Park for a missing 71-year-old Guilderland man is being scaled back to "limited-continuous," with an eye towards additional field searches once the snow melts, according to the state Department of Environmental Conservation.

Bruce Decker went missing on Feb. 19, when it is believed he parked his car near the Paint Mine hiking trails.

There was not a missing person's report filed and Decker was familiar with the park's some 25 miles of hiking trails.

The search began on Thursday, Feb. 22 and by Friday, March 2, six state agencies - including 40 members of the Department of Correctional and Community Services Emergency Response Team, Albany County Sheriff's Department, eight Albany County fire departments and 12 volunteer search and rescue teams - contributed 4,487 hours to the search.

The search operations included 2,442 acres of intensive searching, 502 acres of extensive searching, 56.7 miles of trails, 355 acres of drone searching and 4.5 square miles were searched by a State Police helicopter.

K9 units and drones were also used.

No trace of Decker was found and the continuous field search concluded on March 1 after a Nor'easter dumped nearly two feet of snow on the park. More snow is expected later this week.

Lynnwood fire caused by faulty motor

GUILDERLAND — Students at Lynnwood Elementary School in Guilderland were evacuated to the high school on Thursday, March 8, after a small fire began at around 10 a.m., activating the building's fire alarms. Students were relocated to school busses to keep warm until the decision was made to move them to the high school when the incident caused power to go out in the building.

The cause of the fire was determined to be a small motor that overheated and began smoldering, according to district officials, and it was confined to the school's "maintenance/receiving room."

Lynnwood students arrived at the high school by 11:30 a.m. and were served a hot lunch. Parents were able to pick up their children from the high school or have them bussed home at the end of the day on their regular routes to their regular destinations.

"We would like to thank everyone involved with today's incident," wrote Superintendent Marie Wiles and Lynnwood Principal Alicia Rizzo in a letter to the school community. "From the Guilderland and Fort Hunter Fire Departments who quickly responded, to the Guilderland Police Department who helped make sure our students [were] provided extra security at the high school while they were housed there."

Thanking students, teachers and administrators as well, the letter went on to say, "The response to this incident shows the importance of having good plans in place and practicing them."

Vets salute town heroes

2017 honorees were as follows:

Officer Kristen Spinnato, Bethlehem Police Department

Lt. Robert Gehrler & Lt. Eric Kerr, Delmar-Bethlehem EMS

John Smith, Delmar Fire Department

Jack Brennan, Elsmere Fire Department

Francis William Aspion, Jr., Selkirk Fire Department

2nd Asst. Chief James Daly, Slingerlands Fire Department

According to BPD Commander Adam Hornick, who presented Spinnato's award, Spinnato was on maternity duty in 2017, during which time she "was a tremendous asset to the agency in regards to the completion of special projects." Hornick said Spinnato worked on numerous assignments regarding the agency's general orders and accreditation standards, the largest of which was the completion of Operation Safeguard, an initiative from the New York state Intelligence Center which involves partnering with local businesses to remain vigilant against potential criminal or terrorist acts.

"During this assignment, Officer Spinnato personally visited over 600 businesses in the Town of Bethlehem and helped educate them on this process," said Hornick. "She went above and beyond and worked to forge long term bonds with our business partners on this important topic."

Selkirk Fire Commissioner Doug VanApeldoorn presented former Fire Chief Bill Aspion with his Firefighter of the Year award, listing off some of his accomplishments during seven years in that office, which culminated last year. "Seven years as Chief is one hell of an accomplishment and deserves to be recognized rightfully so," he said. He spoke of Aspion's work to build mutually beneficial relationships with local businesses, his work responding to Hurricane Sandy and the 2015 fire at the Bethlehem Industrial Park.

American Legion Post Commander Lyle Maddock said that honoring those who put themselves in harm's way to keep the rest of us safe is not only important, but also something he looks forward to each year. He said the post intends to step it up next year for the 40th anniversary and is hoping to reserve a larger space, such as at the town park, to allow for more guests, more fanfare and more fun.

"We thank you Commander Maddock," said VanApeldoorn, "and the members of the 1040 Post, for giving us this stage, and opportunity to recognize one of our own for their contributions to not only our fire department, but also to our community."

Post-season run comes to an end

By JIM FRANCO

TROY — The Voorheesville girls team fought back from a 25-11 deficit on Saturday, March 10, to force overtime in the state Class B quarterfinals against Northeast Clinton High School of Clinton.

But, the Section II champs came up short in OT, getting outscored 7-2 and lost to the Section VII champs in a wild game at Hudson Valley Community College by a score of 51-44.

“The effort was good in the second half. I thought we came out a little flat and we turned the ball over too much in the first half,” Voorheesville coach Andrew Karins, in his first year as head coach. “I yelled a little at half time and they responded.”

The Blackbirds were led by Olivia Barringer with 18, 12 of which came in the third quarter when Voorheesville outscored Canton 14-7. Emily Burke had nine and Victoria Konicki had seven while Rebecca Clair and Leah Weber had five each.

Karins said his team was bigger than the squad from Canton but not as speedy and the 3-2 zone prevented his two standout senior guards — Clair and Burke — from getting the ball to his two post players. That changed in the third quarter, he said, when he changed his post players around a bit and Barringer and Konicki were able to work together and put some points on the board.

“The two post players who do pass the ball well started to click in the second half,” he said.

For the squad from Canton — who brought a large fan base to Hudson Valley Community College to watch the boys play also — sophomore standout Kya McComb led all scorers with 28 points, Caitlyn Houghton had 10 points and Emily Sample had nine.

The Blackbirds had a difficult season — with the abrupt resignation of coach Robert Baron in November and the promotion of Karins from the JV ranks — came into the postseason as the No. 6 seed. The team finished the Colonial Council season below 500, going 6-7 in league play and 10-9 overall.

But, once the sectionals started, they got by the No. 11 seed Johnstown, then No. 3 seed Cobleskill-Richmondville and No. 2 Mechanicville and then beat the top seed Tamarac on Saturday, March 3, at HVCC.

The team will graduate its two senior captains Burke and Clair — who Karins called leaders on and off the floor — but the majority of the squad will be back next year.

“In the end, things didn’t fall our way but still a fabulous year and we are still sectional champions and I couldn’t be more proud of the girls,” Karins said. “But, the younger girls didn’t like the result of this game, and I can tell they will use this as motivation for next year.”

March 10 was a tough day for Section II hoops at HVCC: the Colonie girls lost the Class AA quarterfinals to West Genesee, Averill Park girls lost the Class A quarterfinals to Jamesville-DeWitt and the Shen boys lost the Class AA quarterfinals to Liverpool.

Check out our website for more photos of the games at HVCC.

ALBANY — The number of private sector jobs in New York state reached an all-time high in 2017, according to new numbers released by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Four areas lost jobs with the Elmira area losing 1.3 percent followed by Glens Falls with a .9 percent loss.

News of the record breaking 8.1 million statewide private sector jobs comes coupled with the state's lowest unemployment rate in a decade at 4.7 percent.

"In 2017, our annual private sector job count exceeded 8 million for the first time and the state's jobless rate reached its lowest yearly level since 2007," said Bohdan M. Wynnyk, director of the state Department of Labor's Division of Research and Statistics.

The state's private sector job count is based on a payroll survey of 18,000 New York employers conducted by the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The unemployment rate in January 2018 though, remains unchanged at 4.7 percent, which is higher than the nationwide rate of 4.1 percent.

In New York City it was 4.3 percent, which is slightly lower than the 4.4 percent in December 2017 and significantly lower than the 4.7 percent in January, 2017.

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

Thank you, Lynne

The late Sheila Fuller took pride in her service as president of Bethlehem Central School District's Board of Education, perhaps more so than her time as town supervisor. If she was approached by a Bethlehem Central alumnus, she'd ask what year they had graduated. There are hundreds of graduated Eagles whose diploma has her name on it. But, in regards to Lynne Lenhardt who currently sits on the board, Fuller's time on the board was a relative blink of an eye.

Politics — and you can believe school board work is political — is a thankless job. You're lucky when a decision is approved by half the people you serve. Other times are defined by strong words in public forums where the only thing standing between you and someone who passionately feels you're wrong is a table, and you can't hide behind it. We don't even need to discuss school budgets.

Lenhardt is held with as high regard as Fuller. The two served together on the school board more than 25 years ago. Lenhardt, in total, has logged in 30 years on Bethlehem's school board. She has officially stood for the pledge of allegiance more than 700 times. In her time, she has witnessed three decades worth of graduation ceremonies, seeing off more than 9,000 students. Those first class of students have moved on, established careers, fostered children, and some of whom have donned the Orange and Black.

The community's respect for Lenhardt may not have been more apparent than the night she announced she would not seek re-election. It wasn't necessarily the words of Tim Kremer, the executive director of the New York State School Boards Association, who said "we call upon people like Lynne... to help us think through things..." Public education. Standards. Curriculum. Testing. School safety. Mental health. Drugs and opioids. Staffing. Budgets. Taxing. Community relations. Though, she is now more of an expert on these subjects than she could have imagined when she first signed a petition to run.

Bethlehem Central is losing the one constant this well-respected and ever-changing school district has had since 1988. Meeting halls have changed, our school buildings have doubled in size, and the internet has expanded communication. She joked to say she's been on the board long enough to see both the beginning and end of teaching careers, from hiring to retirement.

No one on this newspaper can remember a time without Lenhardt on the school board. That is an amazing accomplishment. The community's respect for Lenhardt was most apparent after those in attendance applauded her. That's not something you see every day. She, too, is someone who doesn't come around every day. When you see her next, make sure to say, "thank you."

Federalist Papers finale

Don't miss the final talk in the "Hamilton's Federalist Papers" reading and discussion series Monday, March 19, from 7-8:30 p.m. Humanities scholar Giacomo Calabria will wrap things up with a look at Papers No. 64, 70 and 78.

Initiated by Alexander Hamilton, the 85 anonymous Federalist Papers advocated for the adoption of the United States Constitution. Paper No. 64 focuses more deeply on the concept of treaties and how they are formed; No. 70 argues that unity in the executive branch is a main ingredient for both energy and safety; and No. 78 was written to justify the structure of the judiciary under the proposed Constitution.

The Federalist Papers can be accessed through Wikipedia, with limited paper copies available during the presentations. Pick up a brochure with additional details at the Information Desk or visit www.bethlehempubliclibrary.org.

The series is grant-funded and sponsored by Humanities New York.

Construction updates online

The planned upgrade to the building's aging heating and cooling system has begun. As construction progresses, we will keep you informed through a dedicated construction page on our website (www.bethlehempubliclibrary.org/hvac-project-updates), in-house postings and through social media.

Board candidate information

Nominating petition forms and informational packets are available at the library information desk for those interested in serving on the Bethlehem Public Library Board of Trustees.

There are three seats on the 2018 ballot. Two, currently held by incumbents Harmet Narang and Mark Kissinger, come with five-year terms. The third seat, currently held by Caroline Brancatella, has a partial term of three years. All three trustees are seeking re-election.

The election and budget vote will be held on Tuesday, May 15.

Gabler Realty open for business

Successful realtor makes jump to owning her own firm

DELMAR — The Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce recently welcomed in a new real estate broker in town, but one with a familiar face.

Gabler Realty, LLC, opened the doors to its 321 Delaware Ave. location in February, a dream now realized by its broker owner, Judi Gabler, after several years of being a top performer at RealtyUSA.

“I had a plan to start-up my own company for about two years,” said Gabler, who was named as one of the National Association of Realtors’ 30 under 30 in 2016. She said she wanted to make the move at the start of 2018.

However, she was coaxed to branch out on her own earlier than planned after RealtyUSA merged with Howard Hanna Realty last year. Instead of expending resources to rebrand with a new realtor company, only to do so shortly afterwards on her own, she started making her move last September. That’s when she closed on the Sears Craftsman house on the corner of Delaware Avenue and Howard Place.

Gabler, a Bethlehem Central alumna, said she wanted to establish her new business here in Delmar because it’s home. From there, she wanted to establish a footprint that was familiar and accessible. That footprint led her to a location within a mile from Four Corners, and just a short walk from the Albany County Rail Trail.

The transition, she said, was tough. Especially while waiting the four months to renovate the new office space. “But, it worked out just fine,” said Gabler. Her team is comprised of seven, full-time realtors, most of whom she has worked with over the past several years. “We made it work like we always do, and never dropped the ball on our customer service.”

Last year, Gabler’s team earned just under $40 million in sales. For 2018, Gabler said, the goal is to reach $60 million. With the average realtor outside her team earning $2 million in sales, it’s a lofty goal, but, “I’m very goal oriented,” she said. “If I have a goal in mind, I’ll make it there.”

Amazing Memorial Day plans

Lonestar set to play Rivers Casino & Resort Memorial Day weekend

SCHENECTADY — Lonestar will rock Rivers Casino & Resort Schenectady this Memorial Day weekend. The chart-topping quartet will play the Event Center on Saturday, May 26.

The multi-platinum and award-winning recording country music group has charted more than 20 singles on the Hot Country Songs chart. The band has nine No. 1 hits including “No News,” “Come Cryin’ to Me,” “Amazed,” “Smile,” “What About Now,” “Tell Her,” “I’m Already There,” “M Front Porch Looking In,” and “Mr. Mom.” “Amazed” was the first new country track to top Billboard’s Top 100 chart in nearly 20 years when it did so in March 2000. The last country group to accomplish the genre bending feat was Kenny Rogers and Dolly Parton in 1983 with “Islands in the Stream.”

After more than two decades, “Amazed” remains one of the most popular songs for the first dance at weddings. The group – Michael Britt, lead guitar

Move Festival to come back in April

ALBANY — The Move Music Festival recently announced it will kickoff its seventh year next month.

and have access to our Industry Panel Discussion free and open to the public,” stated a recent press release.

The Hampton Inn is expected to host the discussion panel on Saturday, April 28, at 5 p.m. in downtown Albany.

Over the years, Move has hosted over 600 local, regional and national artists including The Wombats, July Talk, Arkells, Locksley, Paranoid Social Club, SoSo Glos, Magic Man and Local favorites Sean Rowe, Eastbound Jesus, Jocelyn and Chris Arndt and more.

Featured artists to be announced soon.

WHAT’S HAPPENING NOW

Goodbye?

MALTA — After less than a year, 106.1 WAIX-FM unceremoniously flipped the switch, leaving its “independent experience” on the AM dial.

Empire Broadcasting changed the format on its FM station on Monday, March 12. A terse message on the station’s Facebook page officially announced the change: “The X has moved to 900 AM... All your favorites are now on 900AM!”

The X, known for its devotion to local music under its independent format, was replaced by a Top 40 program under the resurrected moniker “The Jockey.”

The Jockey was last broadcast on 101.3 WJKE-FM before that frequency was sold to Education Media Foundation last November.

“We’re very disappointed and hope management reverses this decision,” stated Jenn Newman Mele. The radio station had just sponsored the Dustin Mele Memorial Concert in Troy over the weekend.

■ PICK OF THE WEEK

Get your Irish up, Jack

Traditional Irish folk band plans to make everyone a little more Irish at Revolution Hall

By MICHAEL HALLISEY

halliseym@spotlightnews.com

TROY — Get Up Jack is set to play in front of a Brown's Revolution Hall crowd on another St. Patrick's Day, on Saturday, March 17.

That band, widely known for playing traditional Irish folk songs, has been making a tradition out of playing on what has become the most popular day to be Irish.

"Yeah, that's the beauty of it," said Tom Pirozzi, of Get Up Jack, who is Irish on his mother's side. When the band played Troy last year on a Friday, it filled Revolution Hall with 500 people. "This year, St. Patrick's Day falls on a Saturday."

Here's some fun math for you as we all approach St. Patrick's Day.

There are 4.68 million people in Ireland, from which the holiday originates. Keep in mind, St. Patrick is a Catholic saint and one only needs to look at the Irish flag to be reminded that not all who reside there are Catholic.

In the United States, according to the latest Census, there are 34.5 million people who claim Irish heritage at least partially. That's seven times more than everyone living in Ireland. But, come St. Patrick's Day, that number jumps to somewhere in the ballpark of 323 million people. That's, you know, everybody.

A funny thing, the things we know to be associated with St. Patrick's Day — parades, corned beef and cabbage — originated here. Ireland is only now just joining the party.

Local tradition calls for parades to fall on the Saturday preceding St. Patrick's Day. The shenanigans, of course, are not limited by the date on the calendar. But, when the 17th falls on a Saturday, parades ensue and the revelry picks up with fervor.

Guitarist and singer John Haggerty said the band's day will start that morning with a pre-parade party at 9 a.m., "and it just goes from there," he said. "It's kind of crazy, but it's great. Everybody is psyched from 9 o'clock, on."

Get Up Jack has steadily developed a following in recent years since Haggerty, Mike DeAngelis and Scott Apicelli split from Hair of the Dog. The intent was to focus on more traditional Irish folk music. "Wild Rover" and "Whiskey in the Jar" are just two examples of songs that call for the crowd to sing along. The rousing scene keeps the craic up in the room — the fun.

"We challenge ourselves to keep up with the crowd," said Haggerty. That, "and some Irish coffee."

The band has organized a trip to Ireland that embarks later this month. The two-week tour involves members of the band and 90 of its fans, highlighted by two gigs at a couple of local pubs. The atmosphere, Haggerty said, can oftentimes be different over there than here in Troy.

Sometimes, "you can hear a pin drop," he said. "They like to hear every word." And, though the natives appreciate hearing "their" songs from an American band, Haggerty said, the crowds in Ireland often want to hear some country music. "So, we make sure we have a few songs for us to play."

Get Up Jack plays Brown's Revolution Hall on Saturday, March 17, at 7 p.m.

Kale-Potato Soup

By STACEY MORRIS
news@spotlightnews.com

Oh, my... Old Man Winter is certainly digging his heels firmly into the frozen and snow-covered earth this month and doesn't want to be evicted by the Spring faeries. Much as I'd love for the faeries to take over instantaneously, the reality is, in much of the country, the weather will be ranging from chilly to frigid. And what better way to counteract that than with a steaming, colorful bowl of homemade soup.

As a fan of Paleo cooking, I'm quite enamored with potatoes of every variety. They're grounding, nourishing, and just plain comforting and good-tasting. As a fan of maintaining my 180-pound weight loss and my overall good health, I choose to be careful and particular how I prepare potatoes. Their danger-factor can increase significantly if fried or drowned in butter. This soup is a way to enjoy their velvety goodness with minimal processing or pesky excess of fat.

Kale for me has been another matter. I don't love it as ardently as I do the potato, but I find ways to consume it that are enjoyable. Soups are one of my favorite ways because the simmering and blitzing in the Vitamix transmutes their tangly, rough texture into something user-friendly. The result is a smooth, nutritious, fabulously warm salad-in-a-bowl – enjoy!

Ingredients:

- 1 bunch kale, washed and de-stemmed

- 2 pounds potatoes, washed and cut in chunks (I like Yukon gold, but use whatever variety you prefer)
- 1 head celery, washed and cut into 3-4 inch sticks
- 4 quarts chicken stock
- 1 tablespoon fennel seeds
- 2 teaspoons coriander
- 1 teaspoon cumin
- 1 head garlic *peeled
- 3 large Vidalia onions, sliced into thick rings

 For an extra kick, reserve 3-4 cloves from the head of garlic and use it raw.
Light olive oil or grapeseed oil for baking*

Instructions:

Preheat oven to 350°F. Heat stock in a large stockpot on the stove over medium-high heat. Bring to a boil and add potatoes, kale, and celery. Turn heat down to medium, cover, and let simmer until potatoes are fork-tender (at least 20 minutes).

While soup is simmering, pour enough oil on a shallow baking sheet (with sides) to generously cover the bottom of the pan. Place onion rings and garlic cloves in the pan, distribute evenly, and bake for 20-30 minutes, until they just begin to brown.

When potatoes are done, remove from heat and let sit covered until the

■ HEALTH & FITNESS

What's my fave?

Our Health & Fitness columnist shares his favorite piece of equipment

By DAN ROMAND
news@spotlightnews.com

Earlier this week I received an email from one of friends, Julie. Julie asked: What's your favorite piece of gym equipment?"

To be honest, that's a GREAT question and, honestly, one that I can answer in different ways.

I love all pieces of fitness equipment but tend to gravitate towards a few select ones that I think deliver the most bang for your buck. One of those is my current fave, kettlebells!

This simple yet relatively inexpensive piece of equipment can be used to deliver a total body workout. One that builds lean muscle and helps shed fat.

Simply put, kettlebell training amplifies your power output in many ways.

Classic kettlebell lifts such as the snatch, and the clean and jerk cannot be performed slowly. Thus, they develop a special quality known as power-endurance, or your ability to produce movements over an extended period of time.

Power-endurance also adds a time component. It's your ability to sustain fast muscular contractions over an extended period of time. Then there is strength-endurance.

Strength-endurance is your ability to produce force over an extended period of time.

While both strength-endurance and power-endurance are essential qualities to possess, power-endurance is usually what determines who the winner is in sports.

That also translates, in many ways, to determine the value of our overall health.

Power-endurance training is an excellent way to training for fat loss and conditioning, and that is one reason I love me some kettlebells.

Using kettlebells forces your body to contend with a constantly changing center of gravity. This is by design. Due to the way it is made the kettlebell's center of gravity lays six to eight inches outside of your grip; which mimics the forces you encounter in both sports and everyday activities. This feature of the kettlebell will help improve this aspect of sports performance and increase quality of life.

Another benefit is that by using kettlebells we build up our forearms and develop a strong grip. This is largely because Kettlebells possess a thicker handle than their barbell and dumbbell counterparts taxing your grip and developing greater forearm strength.

I can see ladies checking out of this exercise out of fear of developing large forearms, or "Popeye" arms. That won't happen. Grip strength is something that many of us are lacking. Ever try and open a jar and can't? That's lack of grip strength. As our society continues to move away from manual labor it's only going to get worse. The problem is also exasperated by our constant typing on keyboards, both computer and mobile devices. Kettlebell training will help reverse this trend.

Another benefit of using kettlebells?

CONCERT REVIEW

Bird soars above Egg

An intimate evening with Andrew Bird

By ALYSSA LADZINSKI

nysmusic.com

ALBANY — With ten years in the rear view mirror since his last visit, Andrew Bird finally returned to The Egg Performing Arts Center in Albany for a nearly sold out, intimate performance for an all-ages crowd. Making a comeback to the acoustically enchanting venue, the violin-wielder set up a cozy shop on stage for an uninterrupted show, complete with ample finger plucking and whimsical whistling for an evening of nature-inspired bliss.

A dapper Bird took the stage solo to unleash an eclectic mix of live music and cinematic visuals to "River" and "Canyon" from his 2015 and 2017 albums, "Echolocations." Combining the delicate sounds of nature, alluring violin compositions and "visuals generated from USGS Topographic Imagery of Los Angeles River and Coyote Gulch, Utah," the ethereal musician was able to bring the great outdoors to a chillingly quiet audience, ready to absorb the emotion ahead. With previously captured video of Bird strumming along to the rhythmic flowing of canyon water while barefoot, the audience felt like it too was ankle-deep in the same stream Bird splashed around in.

Showcasing his talent and vulnerability as a solo artist, the Chicago native proved that one instrument and a few foot pedals can provide endless looping and musical possibilities. With a main backdrop and two smaller screens off to the side of stage left and right, visuals of vast canyons of wonder and trickling rivers worked in tandem with Bird's musically replicated sounds of nature, creating a sensory highway for the masses. The film footage, captured by Tyler Manson, allowed Bird to duet with himself for a harmonious delivery and even seemed stunted to the larger scope of the musician playing on screen behind him.

As the visuals subsided, the tranquil music was paused for three bandmates, a drummer, bassist/guitarist and pianist/guitarist/bassist to hop on stage. While the fans remained glued to their chairs with wide eyes, Bird didn't refrain from rocking out in front of an illuminated, color-changing backdrop. The whistling wizard and his band began with a mini throwback off the 2005 album "Andrew Bird & the Mysterious Production of Eggs" (fitting for the venue), "A Nervous Tic Motion Of the Head to the Left," which brought exuberant energy to the spherical theater. While maintaining the up-beat tempo the band supplemented on stage, Bird partook in some witty banter with the crowd admitting he was "... shredding so hard" as he ripped loose hairs off his shedding bow.

After "working out some frustrations" to the song "Are You Serious," he and the band scaled back to play acoustic tunes with all four musicians circled around one booming mic. The 44-year-old musician collected a group of fantastic artists to play alongside him, as they were able to swap instruments to perfectly compliment each song's energy. Among xylophone solos and a spinning double horn speaker, a fan-favorite treat of the night came in a flawless cover of Neil Young's "Harvest" during a three-song encore.

With acoustics bouncing off the walls and striking internal emotional chords, last Monday night's story was illustrated through a perfect amount of sensory creativity and topographical genius for the audience to talk about for the foreseeable future.

Toubab Krewe's 'Stylo'

By SARAH BOURQUE
nysmusic.com

Earlier this month, Toubab Krewe released its third studio album, "Stylo," (pronounced Stee-lo), and have since hit the road for a tour following a two-year hiatus. Its last album, "TK2," was released in 2010 so fans have been anxiously awaiting this new one that is simply chock full of energy, positive vibes and soul filling goodness. With "Stylo," they continue its combination of musical twists and turns that ebb and flow from Appalachian and West African tones to funk, jazz and jams galore.

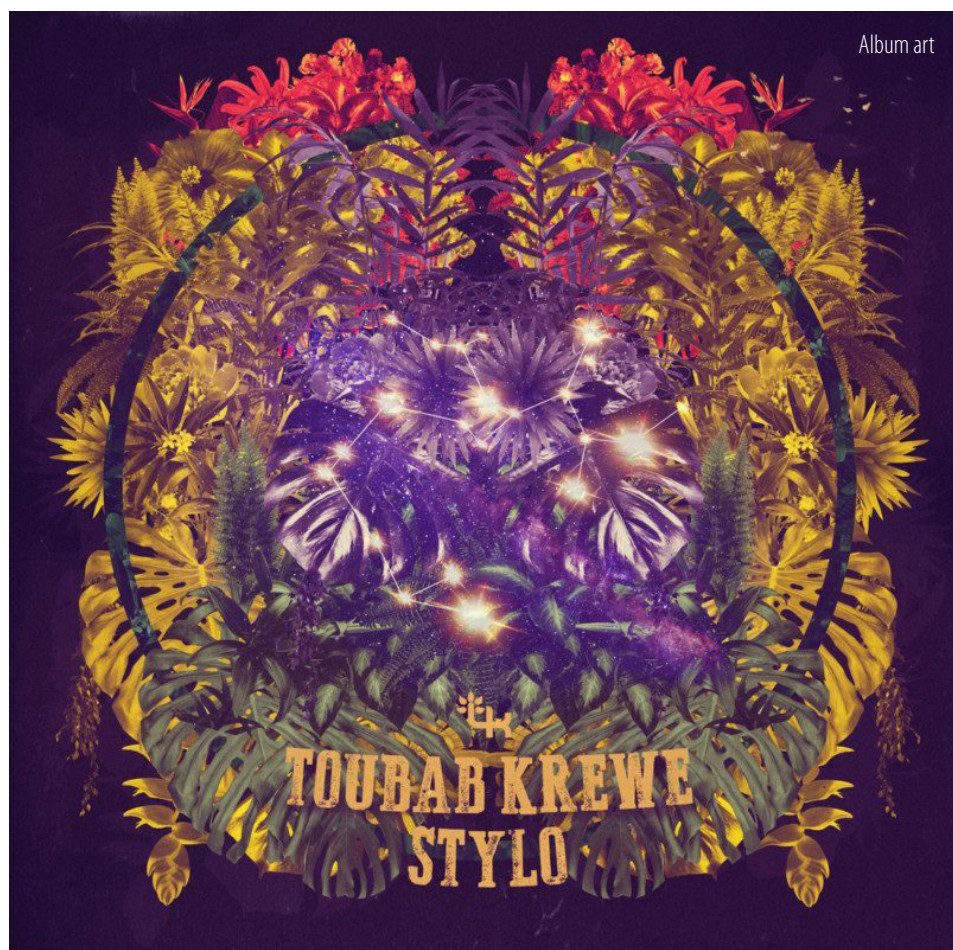

The album eases listeners in with "That Damn Squash." Stocked with an endless supply of percussion on the back beat, the tune rolls along, begging listeners to get up and sway its hips. Clean guitar tones carry the song making it impossible not to bob your head to the beat. "Night Shade" hints at Middle Eastern styling, with an edgier guitar flowing along the edges of the song, creating a musical ride of ethnic rhythms that have no barrier.

As "Stylo" touches upon layers of Spanish flair, the melody brings out visions of beaches, cold umbrella drinks and toe tapping sways of dancing under the starry sky. An easy track that puts the listener into a carefree mood, it's hard not to smile when this tune rolls along at a relaxed pace. Be prepared to suddenly want to take a vacation in the Caribbean and enjoy a cold one at the swim up bar with this track.

The Caribbean infused, African timbre shines through once again on "Saba Meniya," picking up the beat with whimsically magical chords that tiptoe around the track, creating a beautifully mixed ensemble of musical genres. "Salut" is stacked with crisp guitar, tight drums and percussion, releasing a breath of fresh air with this uniquely laid track before heading into a quick paced jam towards the backend.

"Lafia" wastes no time taking off with an upbeat melody. A slight taste of funk and deeper rocking tones break through ever so slightly, while maintaining the energetic vibe that drips throughout the entire album. Brisk notes ramble along this jam, though holds a heavier feel before emerging into a calmer "Miriam." This melody features vocal notes and foreign lyrics, forging an air of spiritual soul that embodies this innovative song. Wrapping up the album is "Southern Tracks," a calm track that blends mystical rhythm with psychedelic accents, bringing the entirety of the album to a clean finish.

Overall, "Stylo" presents a unique blend of sounds, tones and styles into a tightly wound package of creative musical melodies. If you are seeking something different and outside the box creative, this is the album to grab. It's different, will keep you moving and a plaster a constant smile on your face.

■ SIDE NOTE

Residency for Helm

ALBANY — Woodstock musician Amy Helm is to have a three-week residency at The Hollow Bar + Kitchen this April.

Helm and her band will perform at the downtown Albany venue on three consecutive Sundays; April 8, 15 and 22. These shows are part of her annual Woodshed Residency tour which includes dates in New York City; Northampton, Mass. and Marlboro, N.Y.

Helm has won widespread praise as a singer, songwriter and live performer. She first received acclaim as a member of the alt-country collective Ollabelle and later for her extensive work with her father, musical icon Levon Helm of The Band.

Helm is blessed with a commanding and deeply expressive voice that, coupled with an uncanny skill for songwriting, draws audiences in with a deep well of American musical traditions.

Helm released her debut solo album "Didn't It Rain" in 2015 and has a follow up in the works.

Tickets are $16 in advance and are on sale at www.guthriebellproductions.com. Doors open at 7 p.m. each night, with the show starting at 8 p.m.

Affectionately known as "The Barn," Levon Helm Studios is a nondescript building set off a country road on the outer edges of Woodstock. This building has an air of reverence about it as soon as you approach it. Once inside, it's easy to get the feeling of being inside a church. High, vaulted ceilings with impeccable woodwork force one to take in the architecture. It's not uncommon to see first-timers looking around with jaws agape at the craftsmanship that went into building this structure.

The story of The Barn has its origins as the home and recording studio of Levon Helm. Helm was best known as the drummer for The Band while he took turns acting in such films as "Coal Miner's Daughter," "The Right Stuff" and "Feeling Minnesota," among others. The Arkansas-born musician grew up with minstrel shows and wanted to recreate that in his home studio. What became known as The Midnight Ramble was born out of necessity, but also out of a love for the informal feel of a simple jam session. Helm's Midnight Rambles began in 2004. Word spread in the musical community and Helm and his Midnight Ramble Band (guitarist/mandolinist/fiddler Larry Campbell, guitarist Jimmy Vivino, Helm's daughter Amy and Campbell's wife Teresa Williams) began attracting the likes of Elvis Costello, Phil Lesh, Dr. John, Emmylou Harris, My Morning Jacket and Norah Jones to this tiny Catskills hamlet two hours north of New York City.

When Helm died in April 2012, his final words to Amy and his manager Barbara O'Brien were, "Keep it going." And keep it going they have. The Midnight Rambles occur regularly and provide an opportunity for musicians of Helm's ilk to "keep it going."

The magic that occurs at The Barn isn't just with the music and the venue. What is truly magical about this venue, is experiencing the reactions of first-time attendees. NYS Music photographer Brian Cornish attended his first Ramble with his brother in 2006. The joy in his retelling of his first Ramble is consistent with so many others who have experienced this jewel of a venue:

The fact that a venue such as Levon Helm Studios exists in the age of big sheds and ticket brokers is a miracle in itself. The down-home flavor that accompanies the attendance at a Ramble and the pure magic of the room itself makes this venue a required trip for any music aficionado.

"It was November of 2006. My brother had heard about these house parties in Woodstock where you could buy a ticket and listen to Levon Helm sing and play, and the kicker was that it was in his own home/studio. We decided to go. Following the opening act, with no fanfare and no announcement, Helm and his band emerged and walked down a hallway to the studio. He preferred to set up on stage left, to be able to look directly at all of the other musicians and catch their eye, read their moves, maybe give them a cue or a nod, or maybe grin and point a drumstick at someone approvingly at the end of a song. Due to this atypical arrangement, we astonishingly found ourselves seated at his left elbow, six feet or so from an American treasure. With a brief flourish on the snare drum, he set the tempo, the horns kicked in, and the band followed. "Boards on the window, mail by the door..." The entire crowd was immediately dancing, tapping their feet, or singing along. It was magical. It still is."

Cornish's proximity to Helm during his first Ramble is what makes this venue so unique and keeps people coming back. You're not attending a concert at Levon Helm Studios. You're celebrating music in a pure listening room with friends, friends you know and friends you just haven't yet met. The capacity is around 200 and there isn't a bad spot in the house. It lends itself to chatting with your neighbor between songs and the chance of chatting with any of the musicians at some point during the night.

"One time, I and a few friends were seated behind the keyboards so we could look across the room at Levon," said Cornish, about another Ramble experience. "A man emerged to the right of my friends, stood at the end of the row, nodded hello, and exchanged small talk between songs in the semi-darkness. After ten or 15 minutes, he said, "It's been nice talking to you folks, but I have to go to work." Only when he was under the stage lights and grabbed his guitar did we realize we'd been chatting with John Prine. Unannounced drop-in guest appearances and unexpected moments are hallmarks of many Midnight Rambles."

Cornish has made it his mission to introduce as many of his music-loving friends as possible to this experience by gifting a ticket to a first-timer as long as the next time that person goes, he or she brings another first-timer and does the same. This writer was the recipient of one such gifted ticket to a Ramble. We were joined by two other music loving friends, Dan Frieden and Rob Bishton for a performance of Amy Helm and Friends on Black Friday 2015. What made this performance so incredibly special was the appearance of Donald Fagen of Steely Dan sitting in for a performance of his band's "Black Friday." The fact that this musical legend was mere feet away from us during this performance was not lost on us that night and is the stuff that will be remembered for a lifetime. Two new converts to the Church of Levon were made that night.

A visit to Woodstock isn't complete without stopping by Big Pink, the house rented by the members of The Band as they killed time waiting for Bob Dylan to recover from injuries suffered in a motorcycle accident in 1966. Dylan lived in Woodstock at the time and the members of what would become The Band were members of Dylan's backing band. Band members Rick Danko, Richard Manuel and Garth Hudson lived in this rental in the town of West Saugerties and spent time in the basement recording covers and Dylan originals. The time spent at Big Pink, so named for the pink siding that adorned the house, solidified The Band's sound and resulted in the oft-bootlegged and finally released album The Basement Tapes in 1975.

Big Pink

Each time this writer visits Levon Helm Studios, a visit to Big Pink is on the itinerary, as well as a stop at Catskill Mountain Pizza Company, a pilgrimage if you will. It will be left to the reader as to how to find this legendary abode. Anyone familiar with the music of Dylan or The Band can feel the ghosts surrounding this property. Frieden described it this way:

"There is an energy at Big Pink," said Frieden. "I had never been a big Dylan fan, but being on a property that sparked so much musical creativity made me wonder what it is that really flipped the artists' 'on' switch."

A recent visit to Woodstock for a performance by Joe

"There is an energy at Big Pink. I had never been a big Dylan fan, but being on a property that sparked so much musical creativity made me wonder what it is that really flipped the artists' 'on' switch."

— Dan Frieden,
music lover

Henry and Rose Cousins last December indoctrinated April and Enzo Cacciatore to The Barn and Big Pink. Witnessing each of them as they took in the entire experience is what sharing a Ramble is all about.

The nearly two and a half hour trip from Rome took longer than anticipated due to a Nor'easter clipping the southeast section of the state. Despite that, a visit to Big Pink still occurred as did a dinner of pizza and craft beers at Catskill Mountain. Traveling through Downtown Woodstock during Christmas season, especially in the midst of a snow storm, is magical in itself. The storefronts are all decorated as is the town square. The snow cover offered an added air of peacefulness to the town that prides itself on the ideal of peace.

Adding to the family gathering atmosphere at the barn is the communal food table in the merchandise area. Each person is asked to bring a "dish to pass" just like at the potluck dinners of yore. This communal space in what would normally be a garage, is a place for all to gather, share food and talk music. Here, you'll hear tales of past shows at The Barn or encounters with musicians. This is also the area where the artists' merchandise is sold, often by the artists themselves after their set, as was the case with Rose Cousins on this night. Cousins was friendly and quick with a joke with each person she dealt with.

Once inside, the Cacciatores took in every inch of the space. Enzo has been in the construction business as a licensed plumber and pipe fitter for almost 40 years. He's a man who appreciates good construction and good music. He and his wife, April, are 17-year veterans of the Poconos Blues Festival and regularly attend the Chenango Blues Festival. His pure appreciation for the architecture of the room was worth the price of admission. He commented that the room is perfectly built for acoustics.

April is a massage therapist and completely took in the arts-centered culture of Woodstock. Those who know April, know she wears her heart on her sleeve and this was clear in her appreciation of the music that she was just being exposed to on this night. She warned earlier in the day that tears may flow early and often throughout the show and while that can't be proven, the emotion exhibited on stage between Cousins' and Henry's sets would lean this writer to believe that there were some tears shed.

Joe Henry is no stranger to this setting. His previous performance at Levon Helm Studios was with British folk/punk troubadour Billy Bragg in 2016 as they were touring their train songs album, "Shine a Light." Henry commented during his performance that he and his band don't view a stop at The Barn as just another tour stop. He likened it to being at a church, deserving of reverence.

onions and garlic are done. Scrape onions, garlic, and remaining oil in the baking pan into the stockpot. Add raw garlic cloves (if you desire), fennel, coriander, and cumin to the pot. Stir with a large wooden spoon to blend all ingredients.

Blend soup in batches in a Vitamix or blender. Return to the stove and heat over medium heat, stirring occasionally, until thoroughly warm. Serve immediately. Makes a great appetizer or light dinner.

Soup also freezes well.

They help improve your cardio-respiratory fitness.

Since many kettlebell exercises take place with your arms in an overhead position the muscles responsible for assisting the breathing process are engaged in muscular activity, not allowing them to assist in the respiratory process.

Put in layman's terms... Kettlebells force the muscles most responsible for breathing to play an even larger role in cardio-vascular fitness. Because they are so versatile and effective, you get more bang for your buck. Because of that, kettlebells allow you to reduce overall training time, allowing you to devote your attention to skill sets, rest and recovery.

Let's face it; we all are time-crunched these days, so having a quick yet effective workout is the order of the day. And, kettlebell training delivers that in spades!

The use of kettlebells in training helps bridge the gap between strength training and cardio; it's why they are an integral part of our training here at Full Circle Fitness—NY.

One final beauty of kettlebells is that anyone can use them!

From absolute beginners like those in our Beginner-Bootcamp program to our advanced athletes, they all benefit from the use of Kettlebells.

So if you're looking for that "perfect" piece of fitness equipment consider the kettlebell.

For beginners 10-15 pounds will get you started safely and effectively and won't break your wallet.
