■ POLICE, FIRE AND EMERGENCY CALLS

RCS counselor charged with stalking

RAVENA—A middle school guidance counselor in the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Central School District has been “temporarily removed from his day-to-day guidance counselor duties,” according to a letter sent to families on Friday, May 18, by district Superintendent Brian Bailey.

Kenneth Blair, a 45-year-old middle-school guidance counselor from Mechanicville, has been charged with misdemeanor counts of criminal mischief and stalking a colleague in the school district, a woman he briefly dated four years ago. He was arrested on Wednesday, May 9, about six weeks after allegedly shooting a BB gun through the bedroom window of the woman's home.

According to the district, while there is no indication that Blair's behavior negatively impacted students, he reportedly continued to make unwanted contact with the victim on school grounds and, at times, followed her from the parking lot in his car. He also reportedly sent a series of emails, including from his district email account, to the victim and others that she knew. While the woman had notified police of Blair's behavior on multiple occasions, the district was apparently unaware of any impropriety until his arrest on May 9.

“There is absolutely no evidence to suggest that the safety of District students was ever in question,” said Bailey in the letter. “The ongoing safety and well-being of students remains the highest priority for the District and we will continue to monitor the progress of this investigation.”

Brooklyn man arrested for identity theft

BETHLEHEM—On Tuesday, May 15, Bethlehem police arrested Savion M. Brooks, 20, of Brooklyn, in connection with an ongoing identity theft investigation. Brooks was arrested on the strength of a felony arrest warrant issued in Town of Bethlehem Court for felony counts of identity theft in the second degree and grand larceny in the fourth degree, as well as a misdemeanor count of conspiracy in the fifth degree. Brooks, along with a co-defendant reportedly fraudulently obtained the personal identification material of another person and used that person's information to make purchases and obtain credit. Brooks was arraigned in Bethlehem Town Court by Judge Kirby and released to the supervision of probation. He is due back in court on Tuesday, June 19.

Thruway pursuit leads to drug charges

BETHLEHEM—New York State Police arrested a man on Monday night, May 14, after he led them on a chase along the New York State Thruway in the Town of Bethlehem.

Investigators say that Dominique Davidson, age 34, of Holtsville, was arrested after attempting to flee troopers for several vehicle and traffic law violations. During the pursuit, Davidson was reportedly observed throwing items out the window of his car, which were later determined to be cocaine.

After Davidson was taken into custody, he was charged with felony criminal possession of a controlled substance in the fourth degree, criminal possession of a controlled substance in the fourth degree with intent to sell, criminal possession of a controlled substance in the seventh degree, tampering with physical evidence, obstruction of governmental administration and unlawful fleeing in a motor vehicle, as well as multiple vehicle and traffic law violations.

He was arraigned in the Town of Bethlehem, and remanded to the Albany County jail.

Upon retirement in 1966, he married his high school sweetheart and moved to Delmar. He has been a member of the Nathaniel Adams Blanchard post for 31 years, serving as commander, chairman of the board and finance officer. Currently, he is on the Board of Directors.

According to Legion Commander Lyle Maddock, VanDeloo, who recently suffered a stroke, attended an annual awards dinner last month where Maddock asked him to serve as grand marshal of the annual parade.

"The grand marshal is someone the community should recognize for their achievements," he said, noting VanDeloo's service and subsequent years working as a local sales manager. The honor is generally bestowed on one of the Legion's older members, as well as those who have held leadership positions in the organization.

"It's an honor and a pleasure," said VanDeloo, who became emotional when he spoke of the "good people" he has served with, both during his time in the service and his time at the Legion. "I think the world of the place."

While VanDeloo and Maddock both identified the mission of the American Legion as supporting returning and aging veterans, VanDeloo pointed out that Post #1040 also provides a significant amount of community support for other local organizations, such as youth athletic leagues and scout troops who use space at Post #1040 for meetings.

"They'll all be marching in the parade," he said.

VanDeloo initially joined the Legion for social reasons, after leaving the USAF National Guard. "Our friends all died there," he said of the Vietnam War. "But it was a way to have some fun." Ultimately, it became important to continue to provide support and recognition for those who were returning from service and those who never did.

The Legion organizes the parade every other year, alternating with the Bethlehem Memorial VFW Post #3185. One topic Maddock, who was just elected to a second term as Legion commander, wants to highlight during a speech he will deliver is the issue of how many veterans are affected by post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD).

"There are like 15 suicides a day from people coming back," he said. "That's a really big deal." He said much of the Legion's work is dedicated to easing that transition for returning service members.

Early this century, under the leadership of Supervisor Sheila Fuller, renewal of the small park's landscaping and a Buy-a-Brick Campaign for the park enabled the town to add inscribed bricks to the park "to broaden the honor and recognition of those who served our country."

Some have been inscribed with the military engagements in which local veterans have fought while others have been inscribed with quotes related to those engagements. "The quotes reveal the passion and ideology of the time and are echoes of our history," reads a 2005 article in Our Towne Bethlehem, which describes the layout of the bricks as "a puzzle."

VanDeloo said he hopes that the new town administration will prove to be more supportive of Legion activities than the preceding one, commenting that the town has historically been more responsive under leaders such as Fuller, Jack Cunningham and Sam Messina. "I think we could do better," he said of recent years.

Prior to the parade, said VanDeloo, at 10:30 a.m., participants will gather at the grave of Nathaniel Adams Blanchard, in front of the post, for a brief ceremony honoring the soldier who was killed in action in November 1918, while serving with the 307th Infantry's 77th division, near the close of World War I.

State to groom closed trail for opening

Indian Ladder Trail to open once trail project work is complete

NEW SCOTLAND — The State is making preparations to open the Indian Ladder Trail starting this week.

State crews will spend the next four to six weeks removing loose rock and debris around the trail, according to a statement from The New York state Office of Parks, Recreation and Historic Preservation.

“State Parks crews will remove any loose surface material that may present a rockfall hazard,” stated the May 18 announcement. “Crews consist of experienced rope handlers and scalers, who are suspended along the slope edge to chip away loose rocks and debris.”

The footpath was etched into the soft limestone on the cliff side of the Helderberg Escarpment more than 13,000 years ago during the last Ice Age, when glaciers scraped across upstate New York. It has long been a place of interest for both nature lovers and history buffs, providing picturesque views of both the Hudson and Mohawk valleys. Hikers who have traversed the trail are rewarded by small caves and cascading waterfalls within and above the nooks and crannies of its surface.

However, the very same properties which initially created the natural masterpiece have also led to a string of incidents in which hikers have been injured. State officials closed the Indian Ladder Trail indefinitely last summer after injuries from falling rocks left a local woman paralyzed.

Nancy Ladd-Butz, the local hiker who was seriously injured by falling rocks as she walked the trail last July, has filed a lawsuit against the state.

The Indian Ladder Trail is expected to reopen once work is complete.

More than 300,000 people visit Thacher Park every year. Last May, the state opened a brand new $4.3 million park center. The 8,240 square-foot building was a signature project in the Governor’s NY Parks 2020 Plan. Open year-round, it serves as a launching point for visitors to explore the 2,500-acre park. The center was built in close proximity to the start of the Indian Ladder Trail because of its popularity.

Juice bar for rail trail

Bliss Juice Bar expected to open on rail trail this summer

By ALI HIBBS
hibbsa@spotlightnews.com

ELSMERE — The Bethlehem Planning Board has approved the application for a new juice bar and fitness center next to the Albany County Helderberg Hudson Rail Trail on Delaware Avenue.

Partners Jackie Slattery and Katie Dievendorf became friends when Slattery and her husband, Liam, opened O'Slattery's at 318 Delaware Ave. Dievendorf's husband, Jeremy, has worked as their accountant and Katie, a lawyer, helped them get their liquor license.

When Slattery learned that the Delmar Health Hut at 278 Delaware Ave. was closing almost a year ago, she said she mentioned the idea of opening a juice bar in the location to the couple and found that they had already discussed the same idea.

"It was just too funny that we all had the same idea," she said. "I thought about it all night and I texted Jeremy a few days later."

The first step was to secure funding, explained Slattery and Dievendorf, and so they went to the town and

"When you apply for that, you have to have a business plan in place," said Slattery. "So that kind of gave us an idea of what we all wanted. We had a lot of the same ideas and were really on the same page about a lot of things, which was really inspiring." She said the support they received from town officials was also encouraging.

Pair of advocacy organizations to hold community forum May 29

DELMAR — From impassioned conversations in Congress to conversations in everyday life, strong and passionate viewpoints have created an atmosphere of distrust, anger, and strife. How did we get here? What perpetuates this divisiveness? How can we improve the situation?

Join the League of Women Voters of Albany County and the Women's Press Club of New York State on Tuesday, May 29, for a free community forum titled "How to Talk. How to Listen: Fractured Conversations in a Polarized Society" at Bethlehem Town Hall, 445 Delaware Ave., in Delmar, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Casey Seiler, a columnist and editor with the Times Union, will open the event with a look at the state of our discourse.

Seiler's comments will be followed by a panel discussion and conversation with the audience that focuses on ways to restore civility in our everyday interactions and dialogues, such as finding and forging common ground, extending tolerance and respect for one another, and learning how we "listen" as well as talk. Susan Arbetter, host of the syndicated public radio program "The Capitol Pressroom" will moderate.

The panelists are:

Scott Fein, chair of the Government Law Center and a senior partner at the law firm of Whiteman Osterman & Hanna. Fein teaches civility and ethics to attorneys for the New York State Bar Association. Previously, he served as assistance counsel to former Governors Hugh Carey and Mario Cuomo

Linda McKenney, a senior wellness coach and motivational speaker. McKenney is a former group therapist for Focus Healthcare and Four Winds Psychiatric Hospital. She previously served as vice president of education and training at SEFCU.

Lara Whelan, dean of the School of Liberal Arts at Siena College. Whelan is the founder and chair of Siena's Civil Discourse Working Group, comprised of students, faculty and administrators. Her teaching background is in rhetoric with analysis of arguments and construction of logical premises.

The program, which is free to attend open to the public, is expected to run from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

For more information, call the League of Women Voters of Albany County at (518) 465-4162 or visit the organization's website at lwvalbany.org.

■ COUNTY GOVERNMENT

Public hearing set for next Tuesday

Opportunity for residents to comment on three pieces of proposed legislation

By ALI HIBBS
hibbsa@spotlightnews.com

ALBANY — County residents will have the opportunity to weigh in on two proposed laws and one resolution that are expected to go before the county Legislature as early as next month. A public hearing has been scheduled for Tuesday, May 29, at 7:15 p.m. at the Albany County Courthouse on Eagle Street in Albany to allow community members to share their thoughts on: county-wide mandated sick leave; a law that would require new residences to be equipped with fire sprinkler systems; and proposed modifications to local agricultural districts.

Sick Leave

According to legislators who introduced the law, 40 percent of workers in Albany County do not have access to paid sick leave at their jobs. Per the legislation, which was introduced at the legislative meeting on Monday, March 12, by Chairman Andrew Joyce and other Democratic members, paid sick leave can "diminish public and private health care costs and promote preventative health services in Albany County by enabling workers to seek early and routine medical care for themselves and their family members."

Under the law, all employees in Albany County would accrue one hour of sick time for every 30 hours worked. There are variations for annual limits based on the size of the business and any unused sick time would roll over to the following year, unless the employer opts to pay the employee for that unused time.

Employees would be entitled to use their time to care for themselves or their family (including "any individual related by blood or affinity whose close association with the employee is the equivalent of a family relationship") through sickness, injury, diagnosis, a health "condition" or while receiving preventative care. They could also use accrued sick leave when they or their family member's place of employment closes due to a public health emergency or when either has been the victim of domestic or sexual abuse or human trafficking, including time to meet with attorneys, relocate or file legal reports. Sick time can be used in the "smallest time increments that the employer's payroll system uses to account for absences or other time,"

Documentation may be required after three consecutive days of absence. Some employers may require advance notice while others may require confirmation that the employee used the time for their stated purposes.

Citing things such as job security, domestic violence, and public contagion, Local Law "C" for 2018 says passage of the law "is necessary to ensure that all workers in Albany County can address their own health and safety needs and the health and safety needs of their families by requiring employers to provide a

Legislators approve ban on tobacco products in stores with pharmacies

By ALI HIBBS
hibbsa@spotlightnews.com

ALBANY — On Monday, May 14, Albany County legislators approved a ban on the sale of tobacco and nicotine-based products in pharmacies and stores that have pharmacies by a vote of 26 to 11.

Advocates of the law say the sale of addictive and deadly products in stores that are supposed to make people well is counterproductive, if not outright hypocritical.

According to the legislation, studies show that tobacco sales decline "significantly" when pharmacies stop selling those products. "Also," reads the bill, "easy access to tobacco retailers makes it harder for smokers to quit particularly in low-income areas."

County Executive Daniel McCoy, who vetoed a similar bill in 2014, has to sign the law before it is filed with the state. If he does, it will take effect three months after the filing. McCoy opposed the 2014 bill due to the fact that it included no enforcement mechanism. Local Law "A" of 2018 would charge the county health commissioner with fining stores in violation up to $500 a day.

According to the Office of the County Executive, there will be a public hearing on the law on Thursday, May 31, at 10:30 a.m. in the ninth floor training room of the county office building at 112 State Street in Albany.

Republican legislators Paul Burgdorf, Todd Drake, Mark Grimm, Brian Hogan, Patrice Lockart, Frank Mauriello, Richard Mendick, Travis Stevens and Peter Tunny were joined by Democratic legislators Ralph Signoracci and Christopher Smith in opposing the law. Peter Crouse, the only Republican not to vote against the ban, abstained and Democrat Alison McLean Lane was absent that evening.

Dozens of Albany County retailers would be affected, including Price Chopper, Hannaford, ShopRite, Walgreens and Walmart.

There was a round of applause in the Legislative Chamber after the votes were tallied near the end of the May 14 meeting.

National EMS Week - "Stronger Together"

May 20-26, 2018

On the occasion of National Emergency Medical Services (EMS) Week, we thank the dozens of everyday heroes who provide emergency medical service in the Town of Bethlehem. It is our privilege to salute the Emergency Medical Technicians (EMTs), Advanced EMTs, Paramedics, and ambulance operators of Delmar-Bethlehem EMS and the Albany County Sheriff's Office EMS Unit, as well as our partner emergency responders at Sabic Innovative Plastics in Selkirk.

The residents of our community benefit every day from the skill and commitment of our volunteer and career EMS professionals who are dedicated to saving lives and providing compassionate medical care. They are selfless professionals who dedicate the time, day and night, 365 days a year, to respond to the emergency needs of our community.

This year we celebrate the five-year anniversary of the merger of Delmar EMS and Bethlehem EMS into Delmar-Bethlehem EMS. Working together as partners, the members of Delmar-Bethlehem EMS and the employees of the Albany County Sheriff's Office EMS Unit answered more than 3,500 calls for medical assistance, emergencies, and accidents in the Town of Bethlehem during 2017.

Our agencies have worked together with the Town of Bethlehem to build an efficient and high-quality EMS system. This includes more than $4 million in savings and 83,000 scheduled volunteer responder hours over the last five years. In addition, our EMS responders dedicate thousands of hours each year to practicing their skills, taking training classes, mentoring new responders, and maintaining equipment.

Our community is remarkably fortunate to have so many individuals that are committed to caring for their neighbors. Please join us in saluting our community's EMS professionals.

Sincerely,

The Directors and Officers of Delmar-Bethlehem EMS and the Albany County Sheriff's Office EMS Unit

EDUCATION

Excels at Expo

While it may have been chilly and damp outside Saturday, the competition was heated and intense inside a Colonie Central High School gymnasium during the Greater Capital Region STEAM Exposition. A total of 21 projects were presented by high school students from around the Capital District. This year's grand prize winner is Febronia Mansour of Guilderland Central High School, who received $650. Mansour used different mutations that have been confirmed to have correlations to Alzheimer's disease in humans and incorporated them into a large model of a microscopic worm. "... if we can't understand Alzheimer's at the human level, chances are we will probably be able to understand it in a smaller scale and that in turn informs our understanding of it in humans," she said. "We see these problems and we want to have great big, big breakthroughs but sometimes it takes going down to a simpler level to understand the problem or the situation in that smaller organism before we can understand it in a larger one."

Royalty for a Day

Fascinators, thrones and a green screen of Buckingham Palace provided the backdrop for a royal wedding themed senior prom held at Bethlehem Town Hall on Friday, May 19. Natalie McDonough, a librarian at Bethlehem Public Library, came up with the idea to hold a "prom" for town seniors who turned out to be more than happy to get dressed up to get down. "It's something we've been kicking around for a couple of years," she said. "So, I brought it over to Jane [Sanders] and the staff at Senior Services and they loved the idea and formed a committee and through a lot of people's hard work, we were able to put this together today. And it worked out wonderfully timing-wise, with tomorrow being the royal wedding. So it gave us our theme." In addition to live music and photo ops at Buckingham Palace, seniors enjoyed snacks, donned hand-made "fascinator" hats, and declared themselves "Team Bride" or "Team Groom." "It was a huge team effort," said McDonough. "Lots of help from the library as well as Bethlehem Senior Services and Bethlehem Senior Projects."

If passed on Monday, June 11, the law would take effect 180 days later.

Fire Sprinkler Law

Advocates of Local Law “I” for 2018 require fire sprinklers in new residential construction in Albany County have pointed to newer, lighter and more flammable construction materials as well as open floor plan designs as the reason for implementing the new standard, stating that studies have shown that new homes burn eight times faster than legacy homes built from different materials.

In 2012, the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) reported that sprinklers not only reduce civilian deaths by 83 percent and reduce property damage by 69 percent, but they also reduce the amount of water necessary to extinguish the fire by as much as 90 percent.

“Experience from the State of Maryland,” reads the bill, “which mandates home fire sprinklers, shows that there has not been a fatality from a home fire in a sprinklered home since they mandated their use.”

Under the law, the county would enact the requirements of the International Building Code, which was adopted by the state after removing the sprinkler requirement. Any new construction of one- or two-family homes and town homes would be required to have a sprinkler system that conforms to NFPA standards after January 1, 2019.

If passed, county municipalities would have 60 days to amend their local building codes or the county will assume enforcement and deduct the costs from sales tax receipts due to that municipality.

Agricultural Districts

According to The New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets, the purpose of agricultural districting is “to encourage and promote the continued use of farmland for agricultural production. The program is based on a combination of landowner incentives and protections, all of which are designed to forestall the conversion of farmland to non-agricultural uses. Benefits that properties in State-certified Agricultural Districts receive are partial real property tax relief (agricultural assessment and special benefit assessments), and protections against overly restrictive local laws, government funded acquisition or construction projects, and private nuisance suits involving agricultural practices.”

Each year, the county holds a 30-day review period, during which landowners can request to be included in an agricultural district. Seven parcels, a total of 264.5 acres, were submitted for consideration in February, six of which were recommended for inclusion by the Albany County Agricultural and Farmland Protection Board. Of the recommended parcels, six acres are in Knox, 120 acres are in Berne, 41.5 acres are in Rensselaerville and 97 acres are in Coeymans.

COUNTY GOVERNMENT

Modernization Task Force proposes online legislation tracking system

ALBANY — A Democrat and a Republican have proposed a sweeping modernization plan for the legislature that would not only make its proceedings more accessible to county residents, but dramatically reduce paper waste as well.

The resolution would allow any citizen or media member to track the status of any proposal from its inception to final disposition online. It would also allow immediate online access to members’ votes and attendance records. The modernization plan would also provide a searchable database so a constituent could put in a topic (i.e. redistricting) and find the list of votes on that particular topic, with links to the resolution description and voting histories.

It would also eliminate the use of thousands of sheets of paper used each month for committee and legislative meetings by creating electronic documents for all of them. The public and media would have unfettered access to all such documents.

Co-chairs of the Modernization Task Force, Lynne

Lekakis and Mark Grimm, are the resolution’s co-sponsors.

“It is amazing and difficult to calculate just how much time will be saved by staff and legislators, but what is easy to calculate is the impact on interested citizens,” said Deputy Majority Leader Lynne Lekakis (D-Albany). “Imagine being able to easily find information on a proposal that went out last year, or yesterday. It is time for us all to share in the positive technology of the 21st century.”

“Communication today is about transparency and engagement,” said Finance Committee Vice Chair Mark Grimm (R-Guilderland). “This comprehensive plan will make it much easier for citizens to understand and follow what we are doing and therefore more likely to become part of the discussion.”

The resolution was submitted on Thursday, May 3, and was referred to committee for review during the full legislature meeting on Monday, May 14.

It's a matter of common sense

There is a bill pending in the state Legislature that would require those mandated to report the abuse or neglect of the disabled to call 911 rather than the Vulnerable Persons Central Registry, which was established and maintained by the Justice Center for the Protection of Persons with Special Needs.

Calling 911 has been ingrained in our conscious since a young age and we, in turn, have told our own children to call those three numbers in the event of a crisis or emergency.

It's intuitive.

But, the way the current law reads, a mandated reporter — a long list of professions and employees working with or near the disabled and/or children — must call the vulnerable persons central registry. There is nothing preventing that same mandated reporter from calling 911 too, but he or she must call the Justice Center's registry.

It could be argued that the way things work now is similar to how mandated reporters report child abuse to the statewide Central Register of Child Abuse and Maltreatment, better known as the "hotline." But, when a mandated reporter notifies the hotline, that information is transferred to the local Department of Social Services or the equivalent of such agency in each county and they take appropriate action.

Not so when a disabled person is abused or neglected. Instead, that goes to Vulnerable Persons Central Registry. That is maintained by the Delmar-based Justice Center and they have the power and discretion to conduct their own investigations. A mandated reporter in Buffalo would have to call Delmar. Same goes for Long Island and New York City and Plattsburgh.

The Justice Center, on its website, states a mandated reporter — or anyone — should call 911 in the event of an immediate crisis or if the subject of the call is in immediate danger. But, if the Justice Center does receive the call, and there is no sense of immediacy attached, it may investigate the most serious cases of abuse and neglect without involving local law enforcement.

We are not criticizing Justice Center investigators but those investigations should be left to the local authorities who are in closer proximity to where any incident occurs — like in the same county — and can quickly conduct an investigation and, if need be, collect and secure evidence in a more timely fashion.

The 911 bill currently in the Senate and Assembly committees would make is not perfect by any means. How injuries or signs of neglect are defined, and what would force a phone call to authorities, are much too broad and if passed as written the bill could cause more confusion than is present now.

But, the basic premise is on point — local mandated reporters should call 911 any time there is a question about abuse or neglect.

There are those, like Michael Carey, a tireless advocate for the disabled, who claim it is a Civil Rights issue. We think it is more about common sense. If it were solely a civil rights issue, then every mandated reporter who calls the "hotline" to report child abuse has violated that child's civil rights?

Of course not.

The child abuse and/or neglect "hotline" has worked well for years. One reason it does is because investigations are handled at the local level rather than a disconnected state agency that has been under near constant fire since it opened its doors in 2013.

POINT OF VIEW

A young person's perspective on Memorial Day

By KELSEY WELLS
intern@spotlightnews.com

For years, I thought the only thing Memorial Day offered was a day off from school which a young me had cherished so deeply for the extra hours of sleep that it provided.

It held this same significance for most of my time growing up. I found it hard to relate to the holiday. Of course, I had known the premise of the day was to honor those who had died serving our country, but I didn't really know anyone close to me who had served, and for this reason I had never taken a particular interest in participating in the holiday.

But, as I sit here, a senior about to graduate high school, I realize Memorial Day has come to mean something completely different to me.

Unlike the past, where I felt I couldn't relate to the holiday, I've since found a reason. My best friend has enlisted in the Marines, set to ship out a mere three days after we graduate, and when I think about Memorial Day now, I think of her and the journey she's about to embark on.

It's scary to think about all she's signed up for. War is a dangerous front and people die, a lot. We have a whole federal holiday to prove it. Yet she looks right in the face of this danger and finds the bravery to fight for our country anyways.

It forces me to realize that we aren't kids anymore. After graduation we'll be thrown into adulthood where we'll be faced with all new experiences and situations, her's a lot more serious than my own. The idea of kids my age fighting in wars has become a reality and because of that Memorial Day has come to hold a lot more meaning to me.

It isn't about getting a day off from school or finding my voice anymore, it's about my brave best friend, the ones who came before, and the ones who will come after her.

LIBRARIES

Thank you, voters

The library would like to thank voters for approving the $3.9 million budget levy for 2018-19 on Tuesday, May 15, by a vote of 2,017 to 221 – a margin of about 85 percent. Your continued support allows us to remain agile and able to offer materials and services – traditional and innovative – that reach beyond the fixed constraints of our building’s physical footprint. Details of the budget are online at www.bethlehempubliclibrary.org.

Voters on Tuesday also re-elected trustees Mark Kissinger, Caroline Brancatella and Harmeet Narang.

Holiday hours and closings

Bethlehem Public Library will be closed Memorial Day weekend Saturday-Monday, May 26-28.

Please be aware that the library could also be closed for some of Thursday, May 24, and all of Friday, May 25, to accommodate the final phase of our HVAC construction project. No part of the library will be accessible at that time, including the book drops. Due dates on materials have been adjusted to prevent any overdue fees associated with a possible closing.

Our phone system, website and BCN-TV public access station may also be down during this time and possibly through the holiday weekend.

We thank you for your understanding as we wrap up this much-needed project to modernize our heating and cooling system to prepare our building for a comfortable and sustainable future.

meditation or to simply sit outside on a nice day. It will offer healthy juices and smoothies, as well as salads and simple grab-and-go sandwiches and wraps. There will also be yoga classes, meditation sessions throughout the day and a kiddie corner for children. "Katie and I are both entrepreneurs and health enthusiasts," said Slattery, "but, most importantly, we're first and foremost mothers and we know the importance of a good potty break."

There will be a walk-up window and picnic tables, as well as an exterior entrance directly to the restroom, for those who prefer to remain outdoors. There will be a bike rack for cyclists.

"There are really no other places to stop [along the rail trail]," said Dievendorf. "There's Stewart's. That's the only bathroom and place to get something that's right on the rail trail. You can stop and get off and head to Delaware Plaza, but you have to go through the woods, it's not really stroller friendly or handicap-accessible at all, so this would provide a place."

The business will be the first to get approval from the county to connect to the trail, at least legally. While it has received approval from the Albany County Planning Board, it still requires approval from the full legislature to install a pathway, with handrail, leading to the rail trail.

"So this is setting precedent," said Dievendorf, explaining that Bliss Juice Bar and Fitness is the first business to go through the proper channels to build a connection to the county-owned trail. "We're the first to, literally, pave the way for this." She said that connection will be "phase two" of the project, as they don't know when that approval will be forthcoming.

"We get to move ahead with the rest of it, though," she said.

According to Slattery and Dievendorf, construction is next. While they've found someone to help with the major renovations, family and friends are going to help with the bulk of the work.

While she hoped to open "last week," realistically, Slattery said the goal is to be open sometime in July.

After Slattery and Dievendorf received the approval to move forward during the Planning Board's meeting on Tuesday, May 15, board member Scott Lewendon praised the project, saying, "I think it's a great project and I thank you for all your consideration of making that connection to the rail trail and I wish you a lot of success."

"We want people to feel better when they leave than when they came in," said Dievendorf. "Whatever that means for them. If it's the meditation, if they need a break from their busy day or need to get some movement into their day or something healthy that they don't have to stress about. They can grab and then go back to what they were doing, whether they were on the trail or at work. We want to be a friendly place for them."

Local folk singer Zan Strumfeld serves a cold dish of folk music

By MICHAEL HALLISEY
halliseym@spotlightnews.com

The bottom of Zan Strumfeld's Bandcamp page says it all. She describes her music through hashtags — acoustic, fingerpicking, folk, indie. Familiar adjectives and verbs used to help draw fans in to her book of belonging; the last of which, however, is something that's less likely to be typed into any search box: winter folk.

quote of the week

"New Girl," ... is a true story about seeing two of my ex-partners with their new partners, all in the same evening. Oddly enough, I was playing some Gillian [Welch] tunes with my friend earlier. Then [we] headed to a bar right after and she was playing. It felt right to pay her the unbelievable respect she deserves."

In Cohoes, he has meaning

Cohoes Music Hall announces the legendary John Waite

COHOES — Music Hall Arts Alliance and the City of Cohoes will welcome John Waite to the Cohoes Music Hall on Friday, Oct. 19

Waite's talent for power ballads and driving arena rock made him a fixture of album-oriented rock radio stations during the '70s and '80. He will perform his catalogue of hits from his 40-year career as a solo artist, and as a member of The Babys and Bad English. His catalogue of hits features some of the most loved songs of the '80s and '90s. They include No. 1 Worldwide hit "Missing You," The Baby's "Isn't It Time," and Bad English's "When I See You Smile." Others hits include "Tears," "Change" and "These Times Are Hard for Lovers."

Waite's most recent recordings, "The Wooden Heart-Acoustic Anthology" features a stripped back format — vocals and acoustic guitar only — and highlights the core essence of the songs themselves. He threads newly-penned original compositions while reworking some of his favorite material alongside smartly chosen covers by the likes of Bob Dylan ("Girl From The North Country"), Donovan ("Catch The Wind") and Richard Thompson, into an authentic and soul stirring musical statement.

Tickets cost $29.50 and $39.50, and can be purchased at thecohoesmusicHall.org, by phone at (877) 987-6487 and in-person at the Music Hall Box Office two hours prior to any show.

Ottmar Liebert & Luna Negra

Ottmar Liebert & Luna Negra will also perform at Cohoes Music Hall on Thursday, Oct. 25.

Ottmar Liebert has become one of the most successful instrumental artists of the past few decades, entertaining audiences around the world and releasing a catalog of 33 classic albums including live recordings, an orchestral album for Sony Classical, a binaural surround sound recording, remix albums, a lullaby and a flamenco-reggae album. During his career, he has played more than 2,000 concerts worldwide. Ottmar Liebert and Luna Negra have played two concerts with the New Mexico Philharmonic featuring Liebert's music arranged by bassist, Jon Gagan. These two concerts, to date, have broken attendance records for the New Mexico Philharmonic. Liebert has been nominated for five Grammy awards.

John Waite

His global success can be attributed to a myriad of things — his creative vision, his determination, and a strong sense of melody. Born in Cologne, Germany, he began playing guitar at 11. After pursuing his dreams of playing rock music in Boston, he settled in Santa Fe, N.M. Santa Fe was a fresh start for Liebert in many ways and in addition to returning to the acoustic guitar, he remained open to letting the place define the music he made. It was this openness to the local landscape that defined what was to become his musical style, a mix of Spanish, Mexican and World elements, strong melodies tinged with a shade of melancholy, balanced with upbeat rhythms.

Tickets for Ottmar Liebert & Luna Negra cost $35 and $55. Tickets can be purchased at thecohoesmusicHall.org, by phone at (877) 987-6487 and in-person at the Music Hall Box Office two hours prior to any show.

Intimate night in Smallbany

518 Songfest at The Egg provides offered special moments shared between musicians and fans

By MICHAEL HALLISEY

halliseym@spotlightnews.com

ALBANY — 518 Songfest at The Egg proved to be an intimate experience between songwriters, performers and fans throughout the night on Friday, May 18. Some of the best stories, however, happened prior to the show.

Below, we've captured the evening through vignettes under each artist.

Sydney Worthley

Michael Worthley looks with a smile on his face as Rose Gabriel puts the finishing touches upon the merchandise table. It's two hours before 518 Songfest at The Egg, and everyone is getting ready. She just placed battery-operated tea light candles in each of several miniature lanterns.

"It's looking good," he said, with the sound of appreciation in his voice.

She looks up with a smile on her face and shares how someone already asked how much the lanterns were going for.

"Priceless," she said.

Rose and her husband Andrew Gabriel make it their jobs to make his daughter, Sydney, look good. The owners of Ambassador Music Group have been doing just that since Sydney dropped her debut album last September.

Michael shakes his head when asked how things are going. He and his wife, Shauna, are sports parents. They're accustomed to corralling the kids and traveling long hours on the road for their son's hockey games in Buffalo or in Plattsburgh. Sydney's burgeoning music career has added another wrinkle to that lifestyle. The two parents helped convince their son to put a hold on hockey. He's since transitioned to soccer. The family just recently returned from Ohio, where the Gabriels hoped to persuade one of the largest radio stations in the Midwest for more airplay by offering facetime and an interview. Michael shows off a few pictures from when the family stole away a few hours to visit the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in Cleveland.

The local music scene has looked at Sydney and asked two common questions;

The first is, "Who is this?," once asked in a disconcerting tone. Here was this local girl with a 14-track CD with a high-polish shine. It made no sense until you popped it into a player and listened.

Then, the following question, "Where'd she come from?" would follow with surprise.

"We thought Tulip Fest was big," said Michael, at which Sydney played only last May. Next month she'll be at Mountain Jam. She'll play at one of the largest festivals in the Northeast, on the same playbill as Grammy Award-winning artists Sturgill Simpson, The War on Drugs and Portugal. The Man.

Nonetheless, Michael said, she hasn't developed an ego. Her softball teammates have nicknamed her "Famous." But, he said, there's still plenty of her classmates who don't know who she is.

Lori Gold

Gold is from Pennsylvania and lives in New York City. In this one-day festival focused on showcasing music from the 518 area code, the commonality she shares with the region is her proximity to the Hudson River.

"I love this piano," she exclaimed during her own sound check. "I could play it forever, but The Egg would kick me out."

The river served as inspiration for her song, "Love Is Love Is Love." Later in the evening, while introducing the song to the Songfest crowd, she shared her fascination with the river.

Each morning, at 9 a.m., Gold would call and speak with her mother while walking along the banks of the Hudson River in New York. Gold's mother immigrated to America and processed at Liberty Island in 1930. She was a part of what she called the "great generation" of people who left their homeland for a better life for their children. As she watched the river roll past, Gold said she imagined that some of that same water helped bring her mother to America.

Gold fell in love with music while watching The Beatles on the Ed Sullivan Show when she was 8 years old. Her first

"Did you see her face?" Lori Friday asked the crowd. She confessed to having tears in her eyes as Lori Gold performed. It was a touching moment in which many in the room undoubtedly felt the same. Her husband, Kenny Hohman, confessed to the same. "That wasn't luck."

piece of music was a 45 of Petula Clark's "Downtown. Within its dust cover was the mystery behind finding who "T. Hatch" was. Gold approached her mother, only to learn that there was such a thing as a songwriter. "Before that moment, I thought songs were always there," she said. Tony Hatch, the songwriter behind the words to "Downtown," was "one of the lucky ones" to create them.

When it looked like music would be in Gold's life, her mother didn't stand in the way. She was open to all sorts of music. In their home, rock and roll was not the "Devil's Music," she said. When Gold introduced friends to her mother, with music ever-present in her life, she would always ask what instrument they played. On those morning phone calls — despite her clockwork-like frequency — Gold's mother would answer, "Oh, Jules! I was hoping it was you." Last year, on the last day of summer, Gold's mother died. She said it was the most appropriate time for who she called the "most beautiful of people."

"Everyday, for all those years, I had her in my life. Until just recently."

Super 400

After more than 20 years of establishing a reputation as a hard-rocking trio, Super 400 prepared itself for a rare acoustic set.

Guitarist Kenny Hohman said he didn't like playing acoustic guitar, and stayed away from it all together until he and his wife, the band's bassist Lori Friday, started the Troy Music Academy nearly seven years ago. The school was created out of necessity. Friday sustained serious injuries to her neck, back and kidney after a car accident. Hohman said he learned to appreciate playing acoustically while teaching people the guitar.

Hohman, Friday and the band's drummer Joe Daley sat inside the auditorium to talk about catching a quick dinner before the show when Lori Gold interrupted.

Gold was listening in on the sound check and wanted to compliment each of them on their musicianship. Before long, a genuine moment of musicians bonding over their craft ensued. Hohman immediately complimented Gold on her "radiating positivity" and the two hugged.

Musicians have a natural curiosity to learn how another started in music.

Shrimp on the barbi

Few cuisines are as beloved as barbecue. Barbecue aficionados will travel far and wide to try a new barbecue joint, but those who can handle a grill need not leave their properties to whip up a delicious meal. The following recipe for “Barbecued Shrimp” from Neal Corman’s “Virgil’s Barbecue Road Trip Cookbook” (St. Martin’s Press) is flavorful and simple, making it an ideal meal for barbecue fans who enjoy making their own meals.

Ingredients — Serves four to six

Garlic Barbecue Sauce

- 6 tablespoons unsalted butter, divided
- 1 teaspoon chopped garlic
- 1 cup mild barbecue sauce
- 2 tablespoons Virgil’s Dry Rub (see below)

Shrimp

- 8 6-inch bamboo skewers
- 2 pounds fresh jumbo shrimp
- 1/2 cup olive oil
- 4 tablespoons Virgil’s Dry Rub (see below)
- 2 lemons, cut into wedges

Directions

In a small pot over medium-high heat, combine 1 tablespoon of butter and the garlic for the garlic sauce. Sauté the garlic for 1 minute, add the mild barbecue sauce and Virgil’s Dry Rub, and heat to a boil. Remove from the heat, whisk in the remaining butter, and set aside to use as needed. Soak the skewers in water overnight. Peel and devein the shrimp, leaving the tails on. Lay 4 shrimp out on a flat surface. Align them so that they are coiled with the tails on the same side, facing in the same direction. Slide a skewer through the shrimp. Run another skewer through the shrimp, parallel to the first and about 1/2 inch apart. (This will prevent the shrimp from spinning on a skewer.) Repeat this process until all of the shrimp are skewered. Brush one side of the shrimp on the skewers with olive oil, then dust with the dry rub. Flip the skewers over the repeat the process. Place the seasoned skewered shrimp in a container, cover, and refrigerate overnight. Preheat the grill to high heat. Reduce to medium heat and position the skewers over direct heat. Grill for 2 minutes, then flip and grill for 1 to 2 minutes more. Remove the skewers from the grill and brush each with 2 tablespoons of the garlic sauce. Serve with lemon wedges.

Giving fat the cold shoulder

Fat-freezing tech 'heating' up

Fat freezing is billed as a treatment that can eliminate people's fat cells in predominately troublesome areas of the body to create a slim physique. Also known as cryolipolysis, this noninvasive procedure is attracting a growing number of people interested in reshaping areas of their bodies without the need for going under the knife.

Liposuction has traditionally been one of the more popular procedures for removing excess fat and helping to mold the body. WebMD says liposuction removes fat using suction. A small, thick, blunt-tipped cannula is inserted through tiny cuts in the skin. Fat is then vacuumed out through these tubes as the doctor moves the tubes around to target certain fat deposits. Although newer techniques, including using various anesthetics, have been introduced to make liposuction more comfortable, swelling, bruising and pain as well as fluid drainage from the incision sites may result.

Fat freezing, which is primarily known by the name CoolSculpting, is a Food and Drug Administration-cleared, nonsurgical procedure that helps to eliminate fat. The company states that it uses controlled cooling to eliminate fat that resists the effort of diet and exercise.

The concept of fat freezing actually started with a popular dessert. Scientists at Harvard University discovered that some children who ate popsicles ended up with dimples in their cheeks. Doctors Dieter Manstein and R. Rox Anderson later concluded that the popsicles froze and eliminated small pockets of fat cells without damaging skin or surrounding tissue. This was the science behind cryolipolysis.

The doctors developed a system to deliver precisely controlled cooling to target fat cells under the skin. The crystallized cells die and are naturally eliminated from the body through time.

Dermatologists and medical spas are increasingly offering fat-freezing services to their clients. Many people are attracted to CoolSculpting because it doesn't require surgery.

According to Zeltiq Aesthetics, the original parent company of the

It's like sharing the details about one's first love, there's a common denominator between every musician, but there story lies within everything else. Gold shared her story of seeing The Beatles and Ed Sullivan, and of how her mother encouraged her along the way. She asked Friday if her parents also played music, and that's where the common denominator was lost.

Friday was adopted. Since she was 18, she has tried to find out who her parents were. She only has a few tidbits of information. She knows that when she was born, her birth parents were 21 and 23 years old. Though Friday and her husband have continued searching, she said the information on her birth parents have remained confidential. However, when her adoptive parents finalized paperwork with the state, the judge told them to watch her; she's going to have an interest in music.

"You have the opportunity for the most amazing song," said Gold.

Later in the evening, Gold performed her Grammy Award-winning song, "From a Distance" as the other artists sat on stage. It was a song she wrote while working at the cable broadcasting company HBO. She often says the words came to her out of "luck." Friday, whose chair was closest to the grand piano, had the best seat in the house; watching as Gold sang the song just as well as Bette Midler did more than 25 years ago.

"Did you see her face?" Friday asked the crowd. She confessed to having tears in her eyes as Gold performed. It was a touching moment in which many in the room undoubtedly felt the same. Her husband, Kenny, confessed to the same. "That wasn't luck."

Moriah Formica

In conversation, Moriah Formica reveals she's missing out on her Senior Prom at North Colonie High School. When surrounding people express their sympathies, she quickly shakes it off.

"Oh, I don't care," she said. "I'm not paying $85 to go dance."

It makes sense. The Formica people know would look foreign in a ball gown.

Tonight's outfit is more fitting. Decked out head-to-toe in black; trucker's cap, tee-shirt, distressed jeans and boots. The bill of her cap is blinged-out with two earrings, but the ensemble is accented by the bottle of water she holds in her hand. As May brings in formal dances, it also ushers in allergy seasons. As Formica mingles with the small crowd that has gathered in the reception room, she casually complains about her allergies.

Formica says goodbye to Shaker High School next month, from which she is expected to graduate. But, that's a seldom used nut graph for this 17-year-old. Pick and choose how you want to describe her — opening act at Rockin' on the River, 4th of July artist at Empire State Plaza, performer from "The Voice" — it speaks of the manic times in which she now lives. She stands in the unusual situation of managing a career before crossing the high school stage.

People have been in awe of Formica. Standing at an unimposing five feet tall, she can still walk into a room almost unnoticed and surprise a crowd by standing amongst them minutes later. Michael Worthley, whose daughter's merchandise table stands next to her's, is apologetic as he describes his amazement to her oft-described booming voice coming from someone of her height. Formica nods as she's heard it before. Adam Levine called her a "pint-sized powerhouse" after her blind audition, and it's followed her since.

Despite the national television exposure, Formica can still get shy. Before high school, she said, she was extremely shy. She said she broke out of her shell while in high school, but in a crowd, she can often be quiet.

On stage, Formica sits next to Julie Gold, Sydney Worthley and Super 400's Lori Friday during a question-answer session with WEXT's Andy Gregory and Dave Michaels. When Michaels asks the crowd for any questions, Gold steps in with her own for Formica. "How'd you stand there and perform in front of millions of people?"

"I still get nervous," said Formica, the brim of her cap casting a dark shadow over her eyes. She said that while she was performing on The Voice her legs were "jelly."

"I'm nervous now."

Sandy McKnight's Pop-Clique

Sandy McKnight says he has lived in the "periphery" of the Capital District for 40 years, give or take the times spent in New York, the West Coast and overseas. With the night promising to showcase two young high schoolers with promisingly bright careers, he deftly turns our conversation back to Super 400 and Lori Gold, too. He's produced this show before, and continues to pitch the merits of it just hours before the doors open. Once the doors open, and the time comes to take the stage, Sandy McKnight's Pop-Clique is ready on stage. McKnight looks upon the sparse crowd. A theater employee shared earlier that less than half of the tickets were sold. McKnight glances back at the doorway, and quickly turns to the mic.

"There's going to be a flood of people coming in later, so let's get this started," he said.

The folk artists did well to keep the atmosphere jovial. Despite the talent promised that night, the Swyer Theater did not sell out. However, the night developed into an intimate experience.

McKnight shared with the crowd how he and the band decided to take "A Kid with a Gun" out of its play list, out of respect for the ten people killed at a Houston area high school earlier that day.

"Play it. Play it," begged one member of the crowd. Similar requests started to cascade onto the stage.

"I'll play it for you after the show," he said.

Let's Be Leonard to drop CD in July

Band launches Kickstarter campaign, new music video

By ALYSSA LADZINSKI
nysmusic.com

SARATOGA SPRINGS — Let's Be Leonard, the local jazz-jam fusion band, is in the middle of an ambitious Kickstarter campaign to fund the printing costs of its upcoming record "Static."

The album, due out in July, delves into ideas of self and relationships. It was recorded in fall 2016 at Salem Arts Works, in Salem.

The band then returned to Salem nearly a year later to shoot a film that runs parallel to the entirety of the album. Nicholas Wilsey stars in the film as the leading role and it was shot with vintage VHS Camcorders before being digitally transferred and edited.

Financial backers of the campaign will earn an exclusive viewing of "Most Days," the first song and video from the album, before the scheduled release to the general public this summer.

Fans may choose to receive "Static" on CD, cassette, vinyl or DVD, and have the option to purchase a variety of other merchandise such as hats, posters and t-shirts.

WANT A BUS?
The band's bus is up for grabs in Kickstart campaign.

The campaign also offers some higher priced rewards including personal house-shows, business sponsorships, and the VHS tapes filled with raw footage from the movie's filming.

The band is also offering its flagship pink school bus as a reward.

The album is scheduled to drop on Friday, July 27.

Virgil's Dry Rub

Directions — Makes 5 to 5 1/2 cups

- 2 1/2 cups sweet paprika
- 1 cup granulated sugar
- 1/2 cup Texas-style chili powder
- 1/2 cup minced onion
- 1/2 cup granulated garlic
- 1/4 cup dried parsley flakes
- 6 tablespoons kosher salt

Combine all of the ingredients in a medium bowl and whisk together until completely incorporated. Transfer to a covered bowl with a tight-fitting lid. Store in a cool, dry place.

Pairing

Oyster Bay Sauvignon Blanc 2017

Oyster Bay Winery — New Zealand

It would be irresponsible of us to drop mention of a phrase coined by famous Aussie actor Paul Hogan and not select a wine from the New World.

For this Memorial Day weekend, throw a curveball on your guests by offering shrimp along with the usual hamburger and hot dog fare. It's not too much of an effort.

And, when you do, you'll want to go with a sauvignon blanc. This one was once voted the best sauvignon blanc in the world, offering citrus notes and tropical flavors that will pair nicely with this barbecued meal.

Of course, with any pairing, it's left to you to decide what you like best. Let us know what you think by leaving us a comment online at TheSpot518.com.

From page B14 Freeze fat

CoolSculpting technology, the FDA found the procedures offered "clinically meaningful" changes in 60 patients after treatment for the reduction of love handles. Six months after treatment, ultrasound measurements found an average 19 percent reduction of the targeted fat layer.

During a roughly one-hour treatment session, a vacuum device pulls on fat bulges and exposes the fat to cold. It may take several treatments to achieve desired results, and decreases in fat do not immediately occur, but can be seen two to four months later, on average. Treatments are not covered by insurance and can range from $750 to $2,000 per area.

Currently, there are no safety concerns, but the technology is still very new and there are no long-term study results. Side effects can include temporary redness, swelling, blanching, bruising, firmness, tingling, stinging, tenderness, cramping, aching, itching, or skin sensitivity, offers CoolSculpting. According to the American Society for Dermatologic Surgery, CoolSculpting accounted for almost half of all body-sculpting treatments in 2016.

Freezing fat cells is another way that people may be able to rid themselves of stubborn, unwanted fat.

Winter folk

Her tags don't mislead you. Her 2017 release "Book of Belonging" is a string of soulful songs about heartbreak, loss, and often times tripping over the mistakes of falling back into the bed of an ex-lover.

"While all my songs are personal to me and often specific, I want people to walk away with feeling connected to them through their own experiences," said Strumfeld. "Which is usually the case for all music anyway."

Book of Belonging:

This is my book of belonging:
How I've never belonged to anyone, any place, any time.

This is my story of longing:
How I've longed for someone every day of my life.

And then I met you.
I'm lost from that,
And I hold onto that,
So this whole damn thing is for you.

Strumfeld's voice and acoustic guitar dominate in each recording, with a little bit of bluegrass and a smidge of Gillian Welch, whose name she drops on the second track "New Girl."

"I love Gillian. She's ballsy," said

Strumfeld. "[She] sings about beauty and darkness, all with this gorgeous voice that truly never gets old. And her musical chemistry with her guitarist Dave Rawlings is the kind of musical relationship I crave. It's flawless." Strumfeld said the song was inspired after a night of running into not one, but two ex-partners. Michael Jenkins, who plays upright bass on the CD, was listening to Welch with her that night. In addition to Welch, Strumfeld listens to mostly female songwriters — Joni Mitchell, Carly Simon, Laura Marling, June Carter.

This winter folk music lulls you in like a hot cup of coffee next to warm fire in February. But, like the cruelest of fates, the point of the year that promises love on Valentine's Day is also the month when most couples split. "Second Plate" wraps you into a false sense of security being alone, never minding you're stuck in the same routines of brewing coffee and fixing dinner for two.

Strumfeld is a writer. The metronome for her speech sways a little slower. With a pensive stare, she takes in her surroundings while fully engaged in conversation. Like the late Tom Wolfe, she is saturated into the moments that surround her so she can later write about it. When her stint with newspaper journalism ended at Spotlight News, she picked up and moved to Greenland to be a farm hand. She said, she wanted to know how it felt.

Strumfeld gets to writing only when she's inspired. That inspiration comes in spurts that maybe spans once every two years or so. Not by coincidence, that's about the same time interval between each of her broken relationships. The raw emotion from each romantic bond severed is poured into lyrics. She said, it's almost understood now that when a man comes into her life he is committed to one of two outcomes: a relationship, or a song.

Part of that emotional cycle includes what had been an on-again, off-again relationship with live performances. The songs would come, followed by the performances, and then it would stop until the inspiration came back again. Last year, Strumfeld deviated from that pattern. Last September, she was asked to perform at Sydney Worthley's CD-release party at Jupiter Hall. The band she had asked to perform on her own CD agreed to perform. A few more pieces were added to the band as a one-time fling for the live performance, but afterwards, they all wanted something more. Practices were scheduled and more gigs were planned. They fooled around and fell into a band.

Strumfeld and her band will play at Rare Form Brewing Company as part of Troy Night Out this Friday, May 25.
