Annual water quality report released

Elevated levels of trihalomethanes found; DPW working to remedy issue

By ALI HIBBS
hibbsa@spotlightnews.com

BETHLEHEM — In order to ensure that tap water is safe to drink, the state and the Environmental Protection Agency prescribe regulations which limit the amount of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems. To comply with state regulations, the town Department of Public Works issues an annual report describing the quality of drinking water consumed by town residents.

Last year, DPW conducted tests for more than 80 contaminants. While 27 of those contaminants were detected, only one was found at a higher level than regulations allow. Bethlehem's water exceeded the drinking water standard for total trihalomethanes (TTHMs), which are chemicals, including chloroform, that are created when chlorine used to control microbial contaminants in drinking water react with naturally occurring organic matter in water systems.

According to the 2017 Water Quality Report issued by the town, DPW is working to rectify the problem by performing increased levels of distribution system flushing and designing improvements to one of the water treatment plants that should result in a reduced amount of the TTHMs being formed in the distribution system.

"We are working closely with the EPA and NYS and Albany County Departments of Health to correct this violation," reads the report. "We are currently designing improvements at the Clapper Road Water Treatment Plant that will allow us to remove more natural organic matter from the water and relocate the point of chlorine addition to the end of the drinking water treatment process. This will result in a significant reduction in the formation of trihalomethanes in the distribution system and get us into compliance with the state regulation."

While some contaminants, such as barium, chloride and copper, were found at lower levels, the only sampling found to exceed state-mandated levels has been trihalomethanes found at the sampling site at Wemple Road. Disinfection by-product (such as TTHMs) samples are taken quarterly at four sampling stations throughout the town, said Commissioner of Public Works George Kansas, and the Wemple Road station is the only one to be found noncompliant.

Through an agreement with nearby Air Products and Chemicals Inc. on River Road in Glenmont, a dead end pipe at that location will be extended. According to Kansas, stagnant water can also result in higher levels of trihalomethanes and the extension should also help to reduce those levels.

The EPA provides the following health effects information on trihalomethanes: "Some people who drink water

"We are working closely with the EPA and NYS and Albany County Departments of Health to correct this violation. We are currently designing improvements at the Clapper Road WTP that will... result in a significant reduction in the formation of trihalomethanes in the distribution system and get us into compliance with the state regulation."

containing trihalomethanes in excess of the MCL over many years may experience problems with their liver, kidneys, or central nervous systems, and may have an increased risk of getting cancer."

Water Quality Reports going back as far as 2008 can be found on the town's website at www.townofbethlehem.org, by clicking on the Water Quality link on the left side of the page. Additional information regarding contaminant levels and the dangers posed by those contaminants, as well as tips for conserving water, can also be found within the reports.

The Bethlehem Water District serves approximately 35,000 people through 11,582 service connections. The system has over 220 miles of water mains and approximately 1,670 hydrants for fire protection. It also includes several water storage tanks with a combined capacity of 15.2 million gallons.

Secure drug disposal now available at Four Corners Pharmacy

DELMAR — The Bethlehem Police Department has announced a partnership with the Four Corners Pharmacy on a new initiative in the fight against the current opioid epidemic.

The Four Corners Pharmacy, located at 360 Delaware Ave. in Delmar, has installed a secure drug disposal box. This box allows people to dispose of unwanted and unneeded prescriptions and controlled substances in a manner that is both anonymous and safe for the environment. It is as simple as walking into the pharmacy and placing the pill bottles in the disposal bin.

"No community is immune to the plague of the opioid epidemic," said Bethlehem Police Commander Adam Hornick, "however, working with our business partners and community, we can work on all angles of this crisis. Giving the community a safe and free method to dispose of prescriptions and controlled substances is yet another avenue to getting these substances off the streets. Prompt and proper disposal reduces the risk of theft or improper use of these substances.

"The efforts of the Four Corners Pharmacy are paramount to the success of community involvement in dealing with this issue that is straining many aspects of our society," he added. "We thank them for their dedication, and resources during this time."

Everyone may participate in the program, which is free and anonymous. While it is not required, individuals disposing of prescriptions in their original containers are encouraged to remove identifying information from the label. Both controlled and non-controlled substances will be accepted.

The pharmacy is open Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m., and on Saturday and Sunday, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

For more information, please contact the Bethlehem Police Department at (518) 439-9973 (non-emergency line).

POLICE, COURTS AND EMERGENCY CALLS

Man arrested for DWI

SELKIRK — Bethlehem Police arrested Thomas Andrew Moore Jr., 30, of Clarksville on Saturday, June 30, on two counts of misdemeanor DWI.

Moore was reportedly responsible for reckless driving on Route 9W, Church Road and Clapper Road.

According to reports, the vehicle was stopped in the area of 217 Clapper Road, after reaching speeds of approximately 55 mph in a 30 mph zone. Police say they not only noticed an odor of alcoholic beverage on Moore's breath but that his eyes were also watery and bloodshot. Following the administration of standard field sobriety tests, Moore was found to have a BAC of 0.15 percent.

Moore admitted to consuming three to four Twisted Teas earlier that evening.

He was placed in custody and charged with two counts of misdemeanor DWI, in addition to a misdemeanor charge of unlawfully fleeing from a law enforcement official, and the traffic infractions of failing to use designated lane, refusing to take breath screen, and speeding.

His arraignment for all of the charges was scheduled to take place on Tuesday, July 17.

Woman charged with fraud

DELMAR — Bethlehem Police arrested Brianna Thornton, 19, of Corinth on Tuesday, June 26, for felony criminal possession of a forged instrument in the second degree.

Thornton allegedly cashed a fraudulent check at the Hannaford Supermarket in Delmar on Monday, April 16.

According to reports, Thornton was identified through video footage and police conducted an interview at her place of residence.

She was taken into custody and charged with the felony as well as misdemeanor petit larceny.

Thornton was arraigned and released under supervised probation. She was scheduled to appear in court on Tuesday, July 17.

Man faces multiple charges

GUILDERLAND — Shortly after 3 a.m. on July 11, state troopers stopped Zachary J. Tanzman for traveling almost 40 mph over the speed limit on Western Avenue in the.

Subsequent to standard field sobriety tests, he was arrested for DWI and taken to SP Guilderland where he was determined to have a BAC of 0.16 percent

Tanzman was charged with misdemeanor DWI, resisting arrest, unlawful possession of marijuana, disorderly conduct and aggravated unlicensed operation of a vehicle. He was arraigned in the Town of Guilderland Court and remanded to Albany County jail.

Man charged with DWI

GUILDERLAND — State troopers reportedly stopped Blake Saunders early Sunday morning for multiple traffic violations on Western Avenue.

During an interview, officers say he displayed signs of intoxication and, subsequent to standard field sobriety tests, was arrested for DWI. He was taken to the state police station in Guilderland, where he was reportedly determined to have a BAC of 0.08 percent. He was charged with misdemeanor DWI and released on tickets made returnable to the Guilderland Town Court at a later date.

Gravy trail

Standing in front of dedicated benches and several pieces of equipment on which trail users can now do various types of exercises, McCoy said, "We have to encourage people to live a healthier lifestyle." He commented specifically on the cultural attachment to technology that often hinders youth and adults from getting outside and walking, running or biking, and emphasized the success of the rail trail, which saw more than 200,000 users last year.

The county, in cooperation with the Town of Bethlehem and the Mohawk Hudson Land Conservancy, has been looking at ways to improve the trail for more users, the last section of which was paved this summer. Both bike repair stations and sunscreen are available along the trail, and CDTA Cycle! bikes are available to rent on the south end of Pearl Street in Albany.

Now, there are also three workout stations between Bethlehem and Voorheesville, outfitted with simple equipment such as pull-up bars, stepping stairs and a slanted "body curl" station.

MHLC has also implemented a bench program, selling cedar benches that can be dedicated to a loved one for $500 that will be placed along the rail trail for users to take a break, relax and enjoy their surroundings. Details can be found on the MHLC website, under the Rail Trail tab.

"The sky is the limit," said County Legislator Joanne Cunningham, who represents central Delmar, where one of the fitness stations is located (behind the Bethlehem Veterans Memorial Park). According to Legislator Lucille McKnight, who represents the district in Albany where the rail trail begins, there has been talk of adding little free libraries along the trail so users can have a seat and read a book on a nice day.

The county legislature is also working to allow trail connections to local businesses, beginning with Bliss Juice Bar in Delmar, which is expected to open later this summer.

"We're working to expand our view of the rail trail from being a corridor through town to being an integral part of town," said Bethlehem Town Supervisor David VanLuven. "For example, {we} want maps or signs or apps that showcase the great restaurants and shops near the rail trail so more users visit our businesses. And we want more connections between the rail trail and surrounding streets to make it easier for people to get on to the trail – and also off from it."

Calling the rail trail a "tremendous resource in the community and a great way for people to get out and enjoy nature and connect with other people," MHLC Director Mark King said, "It's a place where people can really enjoy the great environment that we live in."

"This has exceeded every expectation in terms of use, in terms of increased property values, in terms of economic development," said state Assemblymember Patricia Fahy. Noting that the success of the Albany County rail trail has helped to spur other similar trails around the state, including the Empire State Trail, Fahy said she hopes to see those trails increasingly connected to each other. She said she has already secured grant money to connect the trail to the Hudson River.

"This really is a regional asset," said Legislator Bill Reinhardt of Bethlehem, talking about possibly connecting the rail trail to trails in Rensselaer and Guilderland. Reinhardt also made a special point to thank the MHLC volunteers who work to keep the trail safe and clean.

McCoy commended the county departments of Public Works and Parks and Recreation for the work they have done, thanked Fahy for securing funding that helped build the trail, and thanked the county legislature for supporting the project as well. He thanked VanLuven and the Bethlehem Town Board, as well as ART, the group that is working to bring art to the rail trail.

"We're trying to enhance it for everyone," said McCoy. "People that just want to take a stroll; someone that wants to take their little kids and get them tired so they take a better nap; people that want to ride their bikes or roller blade."

During the 20-minute press conference, trail users went by on foot, pushing strollers, riding bikes and, in one case, on a motorized scooter with giant tires.

'Conversion therapy' for minors banned

By ALI HIBBS

hibbsa@spotlightnews.com

ALBANY — The Albany County Legislature voted on Monday, July 9, to prohibit the use of “conversion therapy,” the practice of using modification therapy to attempt to influence an individual’s sexual orientation, on minors.

The legislation, Local Law E for 2018, prohibits anyone from offering or providing “conversion therapy” services—regardless of whether they are spiritual or psychological—to anyone under the age of 18 in Albany County.

“Passing this Local Law sends an important message to LGBTQ youth in Albany County,” said Bryan Clenahan, the Guilderland Democrat who introduced the legislation. “You are valued for who you are, no matter how you identify or who you choose to love, and so-called therapies that teach otherwise are abusive and have no place here.”

According to the American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry, there is “no evidence to support the application of any ‘therapeutic intervention’ operating under the premise that a specific sexual orientation, gender identity, and/or gender expression is pathological. Furthermore, based on the scientific evidence, the AACAP asserts that such ‘conversion therapies’ (or other interventions imposed with the intent of promoting a particular sexual orientation and/or gender as a preferred outcome) lack scientific credibility and clinical utility. Additionally, there is evidence that such interventions are harmful.”

The American Psychological Association, the American Psychiatric Association and the American Medical Association have also denounced the practice as ineffective and potentially harmful. Local Law E states that shame, rejection and psychological abuse are often employed in the attempt to influence the sexual orientation or gender identity of those undergoing “conversion therapy.”

Backed by advocates and fellow legislators, Bryan Clenahan speaks in advance of the vote on the “conversion therapy” ban.

All but two legislators voted in favor of the law. Dan Hogan (R-Latham) was absent and Ralph Signoracci (D-Cohoes) voted against it.

“I applaud the sponsor and all those who voted for it,” said Signoracci. “And I’m certainly not in favor of those kinds of practices. But it’s something I think should be done on a state level.” He said that one could simply cross the county line, adding that he also feels that issues such as paid sick leave should be done statewide and do not fall under the county’s purview.

In 2016, New York state banned insurers from covering the practice and prohibited mental health facilities from subjecting minors to it. In a statement, Gov. Andrew Cuomo called “conversion therapy,” “a hateful and fundamentally flawed practice that is counter to everything this state stands for... We will not allow the misguided and the intolerant to punish LGBT young people for simply being who they are.”

McCoy elected president of national association

ALBANY — County Executive Dan McCoy was elected to serve as president of the County Executives of America (CEA) at its annual conference in Nashville, Tenn., which coincided with the National Association of Counties conference, on Sunday, July 15.

“Dan McCoy becomes president of County Executives of America when our Association and the American people truly need the kind of dedicated service and leadership that he brings to the organization,” said County Executives of America Executive Director Michael Griffin. “His vision and energy exemplify what is necessary for the success and sustained growth of this country and will continue our collective endeavor to represent the people in a fair and just effort to bring to America the society it deserves.”

“The purpose of the CEA is to help local governments do the people’s business and exchange policy ideas that are proven to work,” said McCoy, who has served as first vice president for the last two years. “I am proud of the programs we are implementing in Albany County that are keeping our neighborhoods safe, creating jobs, tackling the opioid crisis and creating better opportunities for those who need it most. As president, I look forward to sharing our successes with and learning from our many distinguished members across the country.”

County Exec earns praise for licensing program

ALBANY—Albany County Executive Dan McCoy accepted the National Association of Counties (NACo) 2018 Achievement Award for the “innovative and effective” Probation Driver’s Licensing Program during the association’s annual conference in Nashville, Tenn. this past weekend.

The award was presented in the category of Human Services for helping those serving probation to find employment by enabling them to obtain driver’s licenses.

“The Probation Driver’s Licensing Program gives those who only want to get back to work a second chance by helping them secure long-term employment,” said McCoy. “Albany County was the first municipality in the state to implement an educational program like this and I am so proud that we are being recognized today as a national leader that other localities can emulate.”

Residents ordered by the court to serve terms of probation may find it hard to obtain employment for a variety of reasons, not the least of which is not having a driver’s license. The five-hour pre-licensing course is available to probationers of all ages and ethnicities who did not previously have the opportunity to obtain a driver’s license.

“Probationers are far more likely to reoffend and wind up back in the criminal justice system if they do not have adequate job prospects,” said Albany County Department of Probation Director William Connors. “Not only does this important program break that cycle of recidivism, but those with a license are often able to find better paying jobs than those without one so I commend County Executive McCoy for spearheading this effort.”

Since its implementation, the program has seen 31 individuals take the course. Ten have received a New York State Driver’s License and 19 have found employment.

A shake up in Albany County IDA

New IDA appointments signal shift in approach to economic development in Albany County, says legislative chair

By ALI HIBBS
hibbsa@spotlightnews.com

ALBANY — County legislators approved a series of appointments to various committees, most of which were uncontested, during their monthly meeting on Monday, July 9.

The replacement of Legislator Gary Domalewicz, D-Albany, who chaired the county's Industrial Development Agency for 12 years, however, caused some conversation and was opposed by three members, including Domalewicz himself.

According to Chairman Andrew Joyce, D-Albany, the decision for the change was a desire to approach economic development differently.

"There's been a distinct lack of effort and imagination on economic development and sustainability in Albany County," he said. "I've been hearing the word 'can't' frequently in regards to what's possible."

Four newly appointed members, including Legislator Joe O'Brien, D-Colonie, will be joining three existing members as Domalewicz and outgoing IDA member Gene Messercola leave.

"It's my hope," said Joyce, "that he and the rest of the board, both old and new, can help us rethink the IDA's role."

The Albany County IDA is a not-for-profit public benefit corporation of New York state. Its primary goal is to encourage economic growth and expansion through financial incentives, thus advancing the job opportunities, general prosperity and economic welfare of county residents. This is accomplished by offering businesses financial incentives in the form of tax-exempt and taxable bonds to cover the cost of construction, rehabilitation, and equipping for a wide range of commercial and industrial projects.

IDA-approved projects are exempt from sales and mortgage recording taxes, and real property tax abatement can also be offered. These exemptions enable the IDA to lower the cost of undertaking and financing a project.

"The Albany County IDA needs to be as open and transparent as possible," said

O'Brien. "Other IDAs in the area provide much more information to the public. And not just regarding the activities the board takes. They also share information about the investment opportunities that exist in Albany County. So should we."

"That's the most ridiculous thing I've ever heard," said Domalewicz, calling O'Brien "inexperienced."

"We have everything on our website," Domalewicz said. "Everything. We are more open than any IDA in the state. We have never gotten a letter from the [Authorities Budget Office] in the state comptroller's office; we've always filed everything on time; and we have everything online."

Legislator Alison McLean Lane, D-Colonie, said she would tend to agree. "After Colonie had a bad audit from the ABO," she said, "I took a very close look at our IDA and it has never received a single negative audit from ABO/OSC. It has filed all the state-required reporting and publishes all their documents on the website."

"These IDAs are under significant state scrutiny now because they deal with significant public funds," she said.

According to the Office of the State Comptroller, provisions of the General Municipal Law require each IDA to establish a uniform tax exemption policy with input from affected tax jurisdictions and to provide guidelines for claiming real property tax, mortgage recording tax and sales tax exemptions.

Domalewicz said current leadership in the Legislature wants to spend the $2.7 million in reserved funds on projects that the state comptroller does not allow, and his replacement is an attempt to sidestep existing obstacles.

"They're thinking they want to spend it on different projects to promote themselves around the county," he said. "Which you can't do. The way the IDA funds are spent are dictated by the ABO."

Domalewicz said that the funds have accumulated over the years through fees on projects the IDA has undertaken but were never spent because of state regulations.

"Every time we went to spend something, I would get an opinion from my counsel and he would contact the ABO to see if we could do it and there were a couple of times that we couldn't do it and had to say no—and that upset a few people. That's what this is all about."

He lamented failed state legislation that would have enabled the IDA to offer loans and grants to business projects, which he said would have made it easier to spend the accrued funds.

"The Albany County IDA needs to work harder and smarter to identify investment opportunities in areas where no local IDA exists," said O'Brien. "We should not be looking to duplicate the effort of any of the seven local IDAs in Albany County. But we should be working very hard to identify investment and development opportunities outside those seven areas. Finally, we need to work with the county executive on moving the county forward on business development."

According to Joyce, the other three members that were appointed represent areas that have no local IDA. The new members are: Marlene McTigue of Coeymans Hollow, a multi-media consultant for Columbia-Greene Media; Douglas Roether of East Berne, a "semi-retired" electrician who currently serves as an associate director at a private venture capital group and manages and invests in real estate; and Anton Dreslin of Voorheesville, an IT director for the state and vice-president of Bank of America.

"Excuse making, political games have held us back from our full potential for far too long," said Joyce. "It's time for a new approach."

Domalewicz said he was opposing the appointments because there was no labor representation. "On the IDA we've always had a member for labor on that board," he said prior to the vote. "I don't see anybody from labor on this board tonight. Labor will not have a voice at that table for the first time that I can remember."

Joyce responded that he had asked Legislator Doug Bullock, D-Albany, who co-chairs the Labor Task Force, to reach out to the labor community for input regarding the changes the IDA is undergoing. He also noted that IDA member and Legislator William Clay, D-Albany, has a background in labor.

A number of members thanked Domalewicz for his service on the IDA before the body voted to approve the appointments. McLean Lane and Joanne Cunningham (D-Delmar) joined Domalewicz in opposing the appointments.

"I wanted there to be a labor representative on the IDA," said McLean Lane.

Domalewicz still serves as chair of the Albany County Capital Resource Corporation, which works solely with non-profits and has $1.5 million in reserve funds. "When I first got there they had $5,000," he said of the CRC and IDA. "I turned it into $4.2 million."

Records on the IDA website are only available as far back as 2012, but show that the public benefit corporation had $802,369 in net assets at the end of that year.

Long-term care can help you plan for the unexpected

By LISA CLIFFORD,
Senior Vice President,
Key Private Bank

This time of year, with the Fourth of July having just passed, wealth management professionals often talk about financial independence—reducing debt, saving more and investing smarter. The idea is we want our clients to have thriving financial futures. We want them to feel empowered to grow their wealth.

However, according to a recent Key Private Bank advisors poll, one thing we don't spend enough time talking about and prioritizing is preserving wealth, particularly when it comes to navigating the unexpected post-retirement.

An aging, growing population

The average American man can expect to live until age 84. The American women can expect to live, on average, until age 86.

The Social Security Administration is quick to point out that these are just averages. One out of every four 65-year olds today will live past age 90, and one out of 10 will live past age 95.

It's no surprise then to learn that since 1980 the global population has doubled. Or that by 2050 it is expected to double again, to more than 2 billion people.

Yet we're still not talking about long-term care. In fact, fewer than 25 percent of private bank clients have a long-term care plan in place despite the fact that 70 percent of those over age 65 will have a need for it.

Lisa Clifford

Also, when surveyed, people have a very strong preference for their long-term care needs. Nearly all—96 percent—would prefer to stay at home and remain independent.

The good news is that most advisors believe the majority of their clients who wish to remain at home for long-term care are likely able to so...with planning.

How to talk about long-term care

Long-term care is a bit like estate and succession planning. No one likes to talk about our own mortality or becoming incapacitated, but taking the necessary steps now can help you navigate future health challenges and preserve wealth.

If you're not sure where to start, here's a checklist of long-term care planning topics you can use with your family and advisor.

Understand long-term care. There is more to long-term care than the cost of living. Long-term care refers to any resources that support and aid a person's physical and emotional needs over a short or long period of time. These services help people enjoy a better quality of life when they can no longer perform everyday functions on their own. Also, avoiding long-term care conversations can be costly.

Define your needs. For starters, work with an advisor to identify the events that may trigger the need for long-term care. Then determine your life preferences for that period of time. Keep in mind that each option—in-home care, co-habitation with a relative, assisted living facility—all have varying price points. For example, the median annual cost of a home health aide is $49,192. The median annual cost of a private room in an assisted living facility is $97,455. Make your wishes clear to your family.

Determine roles and address the need for a caregiver. Your family members can play supportive roles in your long-term care. Have a family conversation about the simple—filling prescriptions—to the complex—healthcare decisions. Should you desire that a family member be your caregiver, consider the financial and emotional complexities of doing so, as it can present challenges to their own wealth, health and stress. The important thing is that everyone should be aware of your expectations and desires.

Prioritize your health. There is no substitute for being active. Healthcare costs are on the rise, the future of healthcare is uncertain and, often, Medicare may not be enough. By being physically active, you will reduce your risk of heart disease, prevent osteoporosis, improve sleep and remain more mentally acute. All of these can help reduce your needs for long-term care and the costs associated with it.

Develop your legacy and estate plan. As a complement to your long-term care plan, consider preparing for your family's financial future through legacy and estate planning. From wills, trusts and deeds, to bank accounts, retirement plans and tax information, legacy and estate planning helps guide your family through your long-term care and protect family finances in the event of diminished capacity. There are portions of your long-term care plan and legacy and estate plan that overlap, such as financial and healthcare power of attorney.

Update your plan. Nearly half of advisors say you should start preparing for long-term care costs between the ages of 40 and 50. And once you start, don't stop. Long-term care planning should be ongoing—and change as your life changes. Create regular touchpoints with your advisor and family to keep everyone up-to-date with your plan and desires.

For more information about long-term care planning, talk with a financial advisor. Sufficient and effective long-term care cannot be accomplished by guessing—it requires a thoughtful approach. An advisor can guide you through this process, helping you take the necessary planning steps today so that you and your family can preserve wealth tomorrow.

Long-term care preferences and cost planning

By 2027, the median annual cost of a home health aide is expected to grow to $66,110, and the median price of a private room in a nursing home will be $130,971 per year, according to Genworth Financial. Regardless of living preferences, and most prefer to stay at home, planning is critical to meeting the costs of long-term care while preserving family finances.

The following are three tips for planning for long-term-care preferences:

1. Start planning early. 52 percent of advisors say convincing clients to plan in advance for long-term care is the most complex component of planning. Consider working with an advisor to determine what you can do now to plan for the long term.
2. Communicate your wishes. 55 percent of advisors say only some clients are communicating long-term care plans with their families, and 22 percent say hardly any are doing so. Establish a family financial conversation to discuss your long-term care plans and wishes. And know this: avoiding the long-term care conversation can be costly.

3. Consider the costs. 72 percent of advisors say the best way to plan for long-term care cost is purchasing hybrid life insurance with long-term care riders, yet 55 percent of advisors say clients prefer to self-insure. Preserve your family wealth by taking steps now to plan for the costs of your long-term care.

According to advisors, you should start preparing for long-term costs between the ages of 40 and 50. The reason most people do not is they are not convinced they have the need for a long-term care plan. They are also concerned about how investing in long-term care will affect other financial goals, such as retirement, children's education, etc.

For more resources on long-term care planning, contact your financial advisor.

Indian Ladder to host Farming Man Fest Aug. 18

ALTAMONT — On Saturday August 18, Indian Ladder Farms will host a day full of great local music, good food and farm fresh beer. Since adding a brewery and cidery to the farm several years ago, Indian Ladder has made a name for itself in the farm brewing community, and its employees have invited friends from over a dozen other breweries that will be bringing their own products for attendees to enjoy. This will be a great opportunity for beer and cider enthusiasts to not only try a wide range of new brews, but to also be able to meet and talk with the producers themselves. Taking that idea further, the farm is offering an educational aspect to the event with a hop picking demonstration earlier in the day at 11 a.m. Indian Ladder Cidery and Brewery makes its products with hops, barley and apples grown on site.

While most people who visit Indian Ladder Farms are familiar with its orchards, the farm market, the brewery and its beer garden, the festival itself will take place a few fields back in a beautiful setting nestled near the Helderberg escarpment. Gates will open at 2 p.m. with live music from 3 until 11 p.m. Food will be available for purchase.

Scheduled music performances include the Grassroots Rebels from 3 to 4:30 p.m.; College Farm from 5 to 6:30 p.m.; Rattling Baddies from 7 to 8:30 p.m. and the Stone Revival Band from 9 until 11 a.m. Music Schedule:

Advance tickets, which cost $25, are now on sale. The ticket price will increase to $35 at the gate.

All ages are welcome, this is a family friendly event. There are limited tickets for this event, purchasing in advance is recommended.

For more information or to purchase tickets, visit www.facebook.com/events/520328091819921/.

Gordon, William 'Bill' Carlton

May 15, 1933 – July 9, 2018

CHESHIRE, Conn. — William Carlton Gordon passed away suddenly on July 9, 2018 at the age of 85.

A native of Delmar, N.Y., Bill was a star running back and track athlete for Bethlehem Central High School before attending Wesleyan University in Middletown, Conn., where he graduated with a bachelor's degree in Economics. He worked briefly at General Electric in Schenectady, N.Y., before being drafted into the Army and serving in post-war Korea. He excelled at Army football, long jump, and sprints and returned to the U.S. early to participate in the All Army Meet.

Bill began his career at Traveler's Insurance in Hartford, Conn., in 1958. He graduated with an MBA from the University of Connecticut in 1970 and eventually moved on to Colonial Bank before joining and leading Eastern Management Services, a personnel consulting firm.

Bill was an active member of the community, serving on numerous church committees and library and town boards, and was an active member and past president of the Cheshire Rotary Club and First Congregational Church on the Green in Cheshire, Conn. He had a rich tenor voice and sang in many church and community choirs and, since moving to Elim Park, had been a member of the "Harmonizers," a men's choral group.

Bill was a devoted family man and Huskies fan. He loved sports and being active. He was a lover of birds and nature. Nothing brought him more joy than throwing a football and engaging in lively conversation with family, friends, or complete strangers alike.

He is survived by his beloved wife of almost 60 years, Marilyn Sue (Wenner), son David (Pamela Skripak), two grandchildren, Hallie and Braden Skripak Gordon, sister Margaret Barber, many nieces and nephews, and a large extended family. He is predeceased by daughter Linda Louise Gordon and parents Carlton C. and Helen Stowe Gordon.

Friends had the opportunity to greet Bill's family at the Alderson-Ford Funeral Home of Cheshire, 615 So. Main Street, Cheshire, CT 06410 on Friday, July 13, 2018 from 5 p.m. until 7 p.m. A celebration of Bill's life was held at 11 a.m., on Saturday, July 14, at the First Congregational Church on the Green, 111 Church Drive, Cheshire, Conn. Interment will be at the Gordon family plot in Hazardville, Conn., at the convenience of the family.

Memorial donations may be made to The First Congregational Church or the Elim Park Benevolent Fund, 150 Cook Hill Road, Cheshire, CT 06410. To leave condolences online for his family, please visit www.fordfh.com.

Babe Ruth tournaments

Bethlehem 13-year-olds play for a shot at regionals

NISKAYUNA — The Bethlehem 13-year-old Babe Ruth team played for a chance to make it to regional action in Somers Point, New Jersey on Monday, July 16.

On Friday, July 13, the team lost to Southern Rensselaer County on at Jeff Blatnick Park.

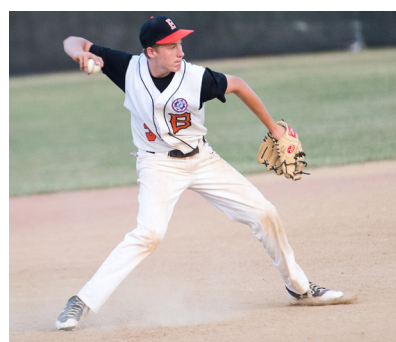

It was 5-5 heading into the seventh and final inning when Southern Rensselaer scored seven runs. Bethlehem made a game of it by scoring three of their own, but fell short and lost 12-8.

Bethlehem came back and beat Clifton Park 8-0 on Saturday, July 14, and then beat Niskayuna on Sunday, July 15, to advance to the finals in a re-match against Southern Rensselaer County on Monday after this paper went to print.

The winner of that game will play in the regionals beginning on July 24.

Check out our website for more photos of the game against Southern Rensselaer County.

Bethlehem 15-year-olds fall to Albany

COLONIE — The Bethlehem 15-year-old Babe Ruth squad lost to Albany on Saturday, July 14, 8-0.

The squad beat Southern Rensselaer County in the opening game and then lost to Albany a second time 8-6 on Sunday, July 15, in the semi-finals.

See our website for more photos of the Albany game.

COMMUNITY

Summer Festival and Helderberg Hike-a-thon

ALTAMONT—On Saturday, July 21, the Mohawk Hudson Land Conservancy, Indian Ladder Farms and Indian Ladder Farms Cidery and Brewery are inviting the public to a Summer Festival and Helderberg Hike-a-thon.

“Our annual Summer Festival and Hike-a-thon is an open invitation to our community to get outside and enjoy the beautiful land that surrounds us in the Capital Region,” says MHLHC Executive Director Mark King.

Beginning at 9 a.m., MHLHC is offering a series of free outdoor activities across the Helderbergs.

Free activities include a plein air painting workshop, mountain biking, outdoor yoga, a family-friendly nature treasure hunt, a wilderness survival skills workshop, a bike-hike on the entire length of the Albany County Helderberg-Hudson Rail Trail, a cave tour of the Clarksville cave, an accessible history tour of Indian Ladder Farms and more.

The hikes are designed to celebrate the unique features and landscapes that characterize the Helderbergs.

All Hike-a-thon outings are free, but spaces are limited. To learn more and to register for a morning adventure, visit www.mohawkhudson.org. Online registrations close today, but there will be a registration table at Indian Ladder Farms on the morning of Saturday, July 21, for the public to come and sign up for a hike that day.

From noon to 4 p.m., stop by Indian Ladder Farms for MHLHC's Summer Festival. Walk throughout the property and enjoy craft beer specials, local food, performances by a live band and the Bethlehem Traditional Irish Dancers, free face-painting, story time with the Albany Tulip Queen and her court and more.

Path to prosperity

When is a stretch of pavement worth more than just the blacktop and labor used to install it?

For those who use the Albany County Helderberg Hudson Rail Trail, it has become another means by which to live a healthier lifestyle. More than 200,000 people walk, job or bicycle down all or a portion of its nine-mile length each year. Community leaders and the business owners whose storefronts neighbor the trail see well aware of that kind of traffic, and they want to tap into it more.

It's almost ironic. The rail trail corridor is once again seen as a means to attract residents and consumers to the towns in which it runs through. More than 100 years ago, this same potential was seen by similar parties and railroad tycoons breaking ground to access port cities and centers of commerce across the country. The old Delaware and Hudson line connected farming towns with Albany. It helped our towns grow, and helped some of our earliest suburbanites (before it was such a thing) commute back and forth to jobs in the city. Most people remember it, though, as the freight line that it was. Some of us can still feel the earth shake as the train traveled through.

Longtime residents of Bethlehem recall using the "waterline" as a means to bike through town. Technically, those who did so were trespassing, but the commonality of this pathway to local residents could be witnessed by the footpaths etched through the green grass around the chain linked gates at each threshold. Initial talk of against motorists, people see the rail trail runs from Voorheesville to Albany, from behind Delaware Plaza to Four Corners and Slingerlands. Let's not forget that the path is properly paved for smooth rides, and you're no longer breaking the law.

In May, we reported on the burgeoning Bliss Juice

Both Albany County and Town of Bethlehem officials should be commended for embracing the potential this trail would have on our local economy. This trail not only helps local businesses thrive, but gives our residents a cherished amenity that makes our hometown a wonderful place to live. But, those same officials need to look at how it will impact future development, and adversely affect our neighborhoods, too. The perspective on properties once thought undesirable because of its close proximity to freight train traffic has been flipped on its end. There are historical homes in Slingerlands to consider, and greenspace throughout town worth preserving. That, we believe, would be the best way to help keep this asset as a way to allow towns people to enjoy the great environment we live in.

the rail trail back memories of that pathway, used by kids looking for a safe way to hit Fay's Drugs, McBoogles or KayBee Toy Store. But, the amount by which the surrounding community would benefit by this trail was sometimes in doubt.

In the few years since the rail trail has been paved, it has evolved from a topic of curiosity to a tangible stream of income.

Just as kids once went used the waterline to go from Point A to Point B by means that didn't compete Bar opening along the rail trail. Business owners like Jackie Slattery and Katie Dievendorf could already see the potential for customers walking into a store front with its back facing Delaware Avenue — a foreign concept that only now starts to make sense. A health-conscious demographic is more likely to be coming from the rail trail by means of foot or bicycle than by an automobile.

County Executive Dan McCoy said there has to be an effort made to coax people to lead healthier lifestyles, and that point can't be argued enough as the average American continues to grow more obese as the years progress. Residents of our town, however, can see more than their fair share of dedicated bicyclists and joggers on our roadways. We have more than 1,000 people at a time participating at our various foot races from the old railroad line. No longer are homeowners annoyed by the sounds and tremors as trains click-clack through town. Any green space that is available along this path is valuable, sought after property for new construction.

each season. Bethlehem knows cross training better than Bo Jackson, which is perhaps why we're seeing so many people on the rail trail at any given time.

Of course, this potential was first witnessed by local developers. In the past four years, we've seen developers propose or complete plans for residential properties at close proximity to the rail trail. Townhouses constructed off of Delaware Avenue and a few developments proposed off Kenwood Avenue are just yards away

Music to your ears at the library

Get ready to kick up your heels and dance a jig at the next performance in the Evenings on the Green concert series this Wednesday, July 18. The band Craic Agus Ceol, whose name means “fun and music” in Gaelic, will play Irish folk with some popular tunes thrown into the mix beginning at 7 p.m.

The following Wednesday, July 25, the accordions are the stars of the show as the Squeeze Play Accordion Band performs from a variety of musical genres.

Bring a blanket or lawn chair, pick a spot on the Green, and get ready to listen to some great music. Concerts are always free, appropriate for all ages, and they take place every Wednesday through Aug. 8. Pick up a flyer or visit our website at bethlehempubliclibrary.org for times and details. Concerts will move indoors if it rains.

New ‘Things’

Host your own backyard movie under the stars using one of the library’s new portable wireless digital projectors, which are now available to borrow from our Library of Things. Turn a blank wall or a bedsheet into your movie screen, pop some popcorn and enjoy the show. Each projector comes with a power adapter, HDMI and AV cords, as well as a remote control and user’s manual. They can be used indoors too!

Switch things up

Attention, gamers! We’ve just added Nintendo Switch games to our collection, and there are tons of new titles for you to try out. Go on a “Super Mario Odyssey” or immerse yourself in the land of Hyrule in “The Legend of Zelda:

Breath of the Wild.” We’ve got racing games, Lego games, sports games and more. And coming soon, we’ll be loaning out the Switch consoles themselves.

Share your expertise

We are still looking for people willing to share their special skills at our How-To Festival on Saturday, Aug. 4. From noon to 2 p.m., artisans and instructors will demonstrate their trades — from blacksmithing to yoga — to members of the community.

If you are interested in sharing your knowledge on a topic, we’d love to have you join us! Contact Natalie McDonough at (518) 439-9314, ext. 3023 or by email at natalie@bethpl.org.

Photography contest

Celebrate the Town of Bethlehem’s 225th anniversary by entering your best shot of the town in our photography contest. Photos must be submitted framed (maximum size is 11-by-14 inches) and ready to hang between July 30-Aug. 31. Entries will be on display in September with winners in four age groups awarded Friday, Sept. 21.

See bethlehempubliclibrary.org for entry form and details. Prizes will be provided by the Friends of Bethlehem Public Library.

Enjoy your library Wi-Fi out and about

You can connect to “Free Library WiFi” when you’re out and about at Five Rivers picnicking, hiking or exploring the nature center. This network is in addition to “Free Library WiFi” at the town park and pool, as well as inside and outside the library building. Whenever you see “Free Library WiFi” show up on your device, you’ll know you’ve tapped into the library’s growing digital network that provides Internet access all over town.

Other upcoming events

All events are free and take place at Bethlehem Public Library, 451 Delaware Ave., Delmar. For more information, call (518) 439-9314 or visit bethlehempubliclibrary.org.

Documentary sheds light on the quest to reach all 46 of Adirondacks' high peaks

By JIM FRANCO
francoj@spotlightnews.com

On Aug. 1, 1918, two brothers, Bob and George Marshall, and their guide, Herb Clark, climbed Whiteface Mountain, a high peak in the Adirondack Mountains.

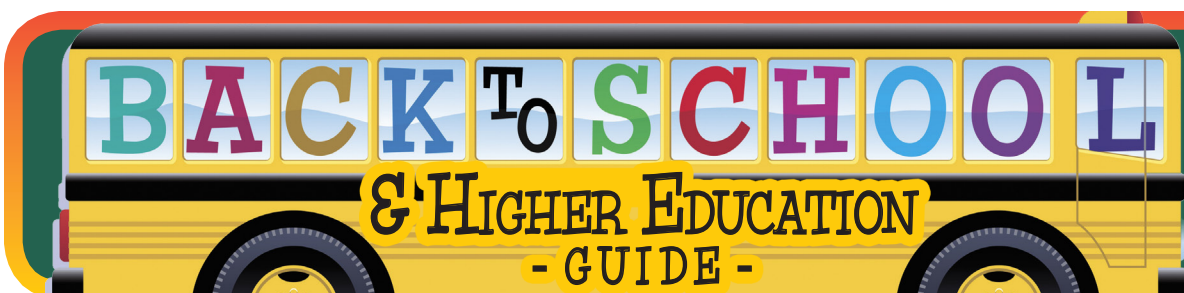

When they finished climbing Emmons Mountain seven years later, Clark became ADK 46er No. 1, Bob Marshall No. 2 and George Marshall No. 3.

Earlier this year, ADK 46er No. 10,871 was given a certificate and welcomed into the group of hikers who navigated all 46 Adirondack peaks that stand more than 4,000 feet above sea level.

Reporter Jim Franco, a 46er, enjoys the view from Grace Peak in Essex County.

RECENT NEWS

The Punisher in Albany?

Production's name ties in with Netflix show based on Marvel Comic's vigilante anti-hero

ALBANY — Watch out. Frank Castle may be in town.

That's the news on the streets, anyway.

Albany announced the closure of several of its streets for this week for the filming of a television show.

The City of Albany announced roads would be closed as early as Monday, July 16 and run through to Saturday, July 21.

Central Avenue Business Improvement District tied the production to an ABC Studios television show labeled "Crime" in an announcement it posted onto Facebook on Tuesday, July 12.

"Crime" is the oft-used working title for the ABC Studios production Netflix television series "The Punisher," according to IMDB.com.

The popular series is based on Marvel Comic's book series of the same name. The television series debuted last November as spin off of "Daredevil."

"The Punisher" follows the storyline of Frank Castle, a vigilante who uses his exceptional military training to fight crime without limits. Castle story begins as he exacts revenge on the people responsible for the death of his family.

The series, starting Jon Bernthal in the title role, was renewed for a second season last December.

North Albany, the Warehouse District and portions of downtown Albany will be impacted by the closures and detours.

For more information on road closures, visit albany.ny.gov.

To be a 46er

(Actually, there are only 42 above the storied 4,000-foot threshold. The other four's true stature was discovered when surveying equipment became more sophisticated. But the 46ers are steeped in tradition, and you can almost hear the old timers: "If I had to go up Cooch, that young fella has to, too." Cooch, formally known as Couchsachraga, is the most remote, the muddiest and one of the most despised tree-lined peaks of the 46 and perhaps the entire world.)

There is a party planned for Friday, Aug. 3 through Sunday, Aug. 5 to commemorate those three ground-breaking gentlemen and to celebrate the nearly 11,000 who survived the thick, sticky mud, the miles of unmarked trails, the mud, the black flies, the mud, the unpredictable, erratic weather, the mud, the long, long days, the mud, some pretty hairy rock scrambles and otherwise rugged terrain — and the mud.

It can get pretty sloppy, but as any conscientious hiker worth his boots will say — "you go through it not around it." Going around it will just make the bog bigger, the trails wider and accelerate erosion.

So, you get a good pair of boots and go through it.

The reasons people go through it, though, are as varied as the trails.

"We all have different reasons for it, and people who don't hike can appreciate it, but they don't really understand it," said Blake Cortright, who interviewed dozens of hikers for "The 46ers," a documentary he filmed and directed.

For some it's a healing thing. Nature does wonders to mend a broken heart, or a broken life, and sitting on top of Gothics eating a PB&J has a way of putting things in perspective. For others, it's more spiritual. Others may just like walking in the woods.

For others, No. 46 might represent a checkmark on a bucket list. Or a healthy activity to share with friends or family or as a way to meet new people. Or maybe just the quest for a decent selfie to post on social media. And there are those with motivation driven by ego and "peak-bagging."

Or, maybe, simply to satisfy a sense of adventure. "Because they were there" is trite, but it very well could, and probably does, apply to some of the nearly 11,000 46ers.

Of course, there are the views. Some are just spectacular, and words cannot do them justice. But it can't be just that either. After walking hours and hours over miles and miles, some summits offer nothing more than a gold and brown sign tacked onto a tree designating the spot as somehow more special than the spot before.

The 46ers

Outside of a one-on-one chat with a 46er, why someone does all 46 is a trivial discussion. What the 46ers stand for is not.

"The club is dedicated to protection of the Adirondack environment, to education in Adirondack wilderness ethics, and to participation in work projects in cooperation with the state Department of Environmental Conservation to meet these objectives," according to its mission statement.

The Adirondack Park encompass six-million acres. It is the largest publically protected park in the lower 48 states by a long shot. It is bigger than Yellowstone, The Everglades and Grand Canyon National Park combined. But it's the high peaks that are the big draw and the core of those — Marcy and the Great Range — are the biggest draw of all.

Whatever the reasons, more people are flocking to the high peaks than ever before. And more people are doing all 46. In 2017, 735 were admitted into the 46ers club, breaking the previous record set in 2016.

Unfortunately, of the thousands and thousands who don't have any intention of completing all 46 but still hike the Adirondacks, there are some who just don't know how to treat what is a national treasure right in our backyards.

Leave No Trace — a responsible hiker's mantra — by an abundance of ego and/or lack of anything remotely civil, is routinely ignored by many.

Conservation efforts, like whether to allow access to the 20,758-acre Boreas Pond Tract with public roads, are being debated rather than classified preserved.

The 46ers are growing at a time when stewardship is needed most.

But, as the saying goes, "It's easier to become a 46er than to be one."

Trail maintenance, especially the unmarked trails that are cared for by the DEC, lean-to construction, repair and maintenance, trailhead stewards to inform people of what they are getting into and to answer questions and general advocacy and education are all part of being a 46er. Countless hours are volunteered by members for the lofty goal of preserving the Adirondack experience.

Ballet returns to SPAC

The New York City Ballet readies for its annual summer residency

By JAMES SULLIVAN
nysmusic.com

SARATOGA SPRINGS — The Annual tradition of the New York City Ballet taking up its summer residency in the Spa City at the Saratoga Performing Arts Center is upon us.

This year's run began Tuesday, July 17 with a production of "All Balanchine."

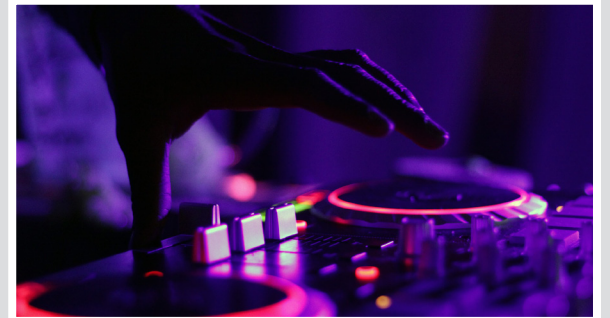

George Balanchine was a world renown choreographer, who also had a hand in designing SPAC's stage and acoustics. There will also be performances of "Romeo + Juliet," and "21st Century Choreographers."

The closing performance will be on Saturday, July 21 with the 2018 Gala featuring a celebration of Jerome Robbins and Leonard Bernstein.

Earlier this week seven tractor trailers began arriving carrying costumes, shoes, lights, sets, and anything else a world class ballet company would require on tour. Crews are working hard to ready the stage for the dancers including hanging the beautiful backdrops, and running over three miles of cable. Dancer's have an entire truck load of costumes for this year's one week run of performances along with over 1000 pairs of toe shoes.

Proctors — Saturday, July 21

SCHENECTADY — YouTube stars Daniel Howell and Phil Lester stop here on their tour to visit Proctors on Saturday, July 21, at 8 p.m.

They are two of the world’s biggest YouTube stars. From producing their own comedy videos, they have gone on to present a Radio Academy Award winning show for BBC Radio 1, host international coverage of the BRIT Awards, release an app game “The 7 Second Challenge” which reached No. 1 on the iTunes store, and in 2017 the hit board game “Truth Bombs.”

In March 2015, Howell and Lester launched their debut book, “The Amazing Book Is Not On Fire” and accompanying 75-date International tour “The Amazing Tour Is Not On Fire.” The book went to #1 on The Sunday Times and New York Times Bestseller lists and the tour became the biggest world tour ever undertaken by YouTube creators.

Ticket costs range from $34 to $99. For tickets and information, visit proctors.org.

Proctors is located at 432 State St. in Schenectady.

GE Theatre at Proctors — Friday, July 20

SCHENECTADY — It Came from Schenectady presents a showing of “Face/Off” at the GE Theatre at Proctors on Friday, July 20, at 7 p.m.

Director John Woo is a visual master in action films. His artistic approach to breathing life into cliché action summer film is best showcased in 1997’s “Face/Off,” starring John Travolta and Nicholas Cage.

The 138-minute movie is Rated R for strong language and violence.

General admission tickets cost $9. For tickets and information, visit proctors.org.

GE Theatre at Proctors is located at 432 State St. in Schenectady.

FILM

'Hearts Beat Loud'

In Red Hook, Brooklyn, a father and daughter (a "revelatory" Nick Offerman and "radiant" Kiersey Clemons) become an unlikely songwriting team during the summer before the girl leaves for college. Also starring Ted Danson, Toni Collette and Blythe Danner. Rated PG-13 for some drug references and brief language. 97 minutes. Wed., July 18, and Thurs., July 19 at 7 p.m. The Addy, Proctors, 432 State St., Schenectady. Adults, $9 for evening shows; $6 for matinees; all tickets for seniors, students and children, $6. (518) 346-6204 or tickets.proctors.org.

'American Animals'

Incorporating interviews with the actual students, their teachers, parents and others, this film provides a fascinating look at how four young friends came to believe it a good idea to attempt to steal the rarest and most valuable portfolios and books (originals by John James Audubon and Charles Darwin!) from a locked room inside a local university library. 116 minutes. Rated R for language throughout, some drug use and brief crude/sexual material. Fri., July 20, at 7 p.m.; Sat., July 21, at 2, 4:30 and 7 p.m., and Mon., July 23 through Thurs., July 26 at 7 p.m. daily. The Addy, Proctors, 432 State St., Schenectady. $6. Union College Galleries
Continuing: "Wherever the Mushrooms Grow: Natalya Brill." Senior presents a harmony of discord in her solo exhibition. Using incongruous phrases combined with digitally altered drawings, she creates a curious, ambiguous ether for viewers to meander through. Brill encourages viewers to disassemble the pairings, and consider both what they see initially, and what can be extracted by separating the written and visual elements. Through Sun., Sept. 16, in the Wikoff Student Gallery. Also, "Concinnitas Portfolio," ten fine art aquatint prints featuring equations, expressions or formulas transcribed by ten notable mathematicians and physicists in response to the prompt to record their "most beautiful mathematic expression." In the Castrucci Gallery, inside the Nott Memorial through Summer 2018. Hours (all galleries): Daily, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. 807 Union St., Schenectady. Free. (518) 388-6004 or muse.union.edu/mandeville/home

University Art Museum
Continuing: "Younger Than Today: Photographs of Children (and sometimes their mothers) by Andy Warhol," features more than 60 Polaroids and photographs culled from the shared holdings of the Warhol x 5 collaborating institutions on display in the Main Gallery on the first floor. Taken between 1974 and 1985, all are related to childhood, sibling relationships, and the Maternal. Also, "Mickey Mouse has grown up a Cow," a collection of videos by artists including Kalup Linzy, Yoshie Sakai, Frances Stark, and Abbey Williams that present differing points of view in addressing the representation of children and parenting and engage in dialogues often attributed to the work of Andy Warhol. Also "Triple: Alex Bradley Cohen, Louis Fratino, and Tschabalala Self," brings together emotionally resonant and highly charged new works by three artists who are redefining the contemporary portrait. All on view through Sat., Sept. 15. Plus items from the permanent collection which reflect more than 30 years of contemporary art. Uptown Campus, University at Albany, 1400 Washington Ave., Albany. Summer Museum Hours (through Tues., Aug. 29): Tuesday through Saturday, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Free admission. (518) 442-4035 or www.albany.edu/museum

WHAT'S HAPPENING

Crafters wanted

SCHOHARIE — Additional artisans are sought for the second annual Heritage Craft Show on Saturday, July 28, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Lasell Hall, 268 Main Street in Schoharie.

Crafters will show and sell their wares on the hall's lawn throughout the course of the day. The event is sponsored by Schoharie Colonial Heritage Association, the Schoharie Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Friends of Lasell Hall.

The theme of this year's show is necessities colonists had to produce daily to sustain life in the 18th century. Some of the artisans currently participating in this year's show are a broom maker, a blacksmith, a tin maker, a candle maker, a bee keeper, a silversmith, a potter, weavers and spinners, quilters, a decoy carver, an herbalist, and a folk artist.

FOOD & VINO

Stir-fry is a dish many people, adults and kids alike, seem to love. That popularity is perhaps because no two stir-fry dishes ever seem to be the same or because stir-fry dishes encourage cooks to take chances with ingredients.

Those who want to experiment with a tried and true stir-fry success might want to try Michelle Dudash's recipe for "Orange Peel Beef & Broccoli Stir-Fry With Brown Rice" from her book, "Clean Eating for Busy Families" (Fair Winds Press).

Orange Peel Beef & Broccoli Stir-Fry with Brown Rice

Ingredients — Serves 4

For Sauce:

- 2 tablespoons reduced sodium soy sauce
- 1 tablespoon plus 2 teaspoons rice vinegar
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 2 teaspoons honey
- 1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon Chinese 5-spice powder (or 1/8 teaspoon cinnamon and 1/8 teaspoon each ground fennel and cloves)
- 1 tablespoon dark sesame oil

For Stir-Fry:

- 5/2 cups bite-size broccoli florets
- 1 tablespoon minced garlic
- 1 tablespoon minced ginger (or 1/2 teaspoon ground ginger)
- 1/8 teaspoon salt
- 1 pound flank or flat iron steak, or top sirloin, thinly sliced against the grain in 1/2-inch pieces
- 1 tablespoon expeller-pressed grapeseed or canola oil
- 1 orange, 2 teaspoons grated zest, inner segments sliced

- 2 teaspoons sesame seeds
- 3 cups cooked brown rice

Directions

To make the sauce: Stir together all of the sauce ingredients in a small bowl and set aside.

To make the stir-fry: Heat a large frying pan or wok over high heat, add 1 cup of water and bring to a boil. Add broccoli, reduce heat to a low boil and cover with a lid or piece of foil, leaving a gap for steam to escape. Steam for 5 minutes until almost fork-tender. Move broccoli to a plate, reserving cooking water in another container.

In a medium bowl, sprinkle garlic, ginger and salt evenly over the beef. Scrape the pan clean, place it on high heat and add the oil. When the oil is shimmering, add the beef in an even layer and cook for 2 minutes undisturbed until brown. Toss with a wooden spoon to break up the pieces, reducing heat to medium-high as needed. Add orange zest and sesame seeds and cook until beef is done, another 2 minutes. Swirl in the sauce, add broccoli and stir-fry to reheat. Add a splash of reserved broccoli water if mixture seems too dry. Serve hot and garnish with orange segments.

Pairing

HEALTH & FITNESS

Breathe easy

Clean indoor air can help reduce asthma attacks

Did you know that, according to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, more than 25 million Americans, including roughly seven million children, have asthma? It's true, and those numbers have steadily risen in recent years.

Asthma is more than occasional wheezing or feeling out of breath during physical activity. Asthma is chronic and can lead to coughing, wheezing, shortness of breath, fast breathing, and chest tightness, states the Asthma and Allergy Foundation of America. In the 21st century, people spend significant time indoors at home, school or work, and indoor air environments could be triggers for asthma. Improving indoor air quality can help people breathe clearly. The AAFA notes that the following agents can adversely affect indoor air quality, potentially triggering asthma attacks.

Allergens

Allergens such as mold, dust mites, pet dander and fur, and waste from insects or rodents thrive in many homes. Ensuring indoor air quality is high can cut back on the amount of allergens in the air. People with asthma can invest in an air purifier and vacuum regularly, being sure to use a HEPA-equipped appliance. Routinely replacing HVAC system filters can help prevent allergens from blowing around the house. Also, frequent maintenance of HVAC systems will ensure they are operating safely and not contributing to poor indoor air quality.

Mold can be mitigated by reducing moisture in a home. Moist environments in the kitchen and bathroom may promote mold growth. Ventilation is key to keep mold at bay.

Tobacco smoke

Thirdhand smoke, or THS, may be unfamiliar to many people. A 2011 report published in Environmental Health Perspectives says THS is an invisible combination of gases and particles that can cling to clothing, cushions, carpeting, and other materials long after secondhand smoke has cleared from a room. Studies have indicated that residual nicotine levels can be found in house dust where people smoke or once smoked. Studies have indicated that smoke compounds can adsorb onto surfaces and then desorb back into air over time.

Keeping tobacco smoke out of a home can improve indoor air quality and personal health.

VOCs

Volatile organic compounds, or VOCs, are gases released from commonly used products. These can include paints and varnishes, cleaning supplies, air fresheners, new furniture, and new carpet. People with asthma may find that VOCs can trigger attacks. Airing out items, reducing usage of products that are heavily scented and choosing low- or no-VOC products can help. Making cleaning products from baking soda, vinegar and liquid oil soap also can keep indoor air quality high.

Homeowners who plan to renovate their homes can consider using the appropriate specifications for HVAC systems to promote good indoor air, as well as address any other potential problems that may be compromising indoor air quality.

MUSIC REVIEW

Florence And The Machine's 'High As Hope'

'High as Hope' takes Florence and the Machine back to its classic sound

By NORA HONES
nysmusic.com

Florence and the Machine released its newest album "High as Hope" on June 29 and it feels like a blast from the past, still holding that classic Florence and the Machine sound known and loved by fans. This fourth studio album by the them was released by Republic Records and Virgin EMI Records. Being a big Florence and the Machine fan, like many others, I waited to see what this new album would hold with a slightly skeptical eye. Not having been as impressed with its 2015 album "How Big, How Blue, How Beautiful" as much as I would have hoped, I wasn't sure how the new album would sound, but to my delight it didn't disappoint in the slightest.

The ten song album, which was produced by Welch herself along with Emile Haynie, had a very minimalistic feel to it that grounded it. The album started with the song, "June" which has these lines that say, "And you're so high, you're so high, you had to be an angel/ And I'm so high, I'm so high, I can see an angel" which immediately tells the listener what this album is about. It's about struggle, it's about belief or lack thereof, it's about love, it's about drugs. The song then moves on to one of its singles, "Hunger," which focuses on all these points. It talks about Welch's struggle with an eating disorder and has the lines saying, "We all have a hunger" over and over, showing that every person has some struggle in their life. For her, it was an eating disorder but it could be something different for someone else.

Her voice leaves the listener with this aching feeling of knowing that's what pain suffered in solitude feels like. It's a pain we all know but seldom talk about.

I could talk about each song in this much detail but then you would be left with a very long article so I'll just talk about two more songs. The first song is "Big God" which was the other single off of the album and has the iconic lines, "You need a big god/ Big enough to hold your love/

You need a big god/ Big enough to fill you up." This song really pulls into this minimal feeling of the album, having the bass notes of a piano following it for half of the song before the rest of the ensemble comes in. But even this ensemble is a minimal one. This song, just like the others, has this continued theme of struggle and belief or lack thereof.

The other song which needs to given some proper attention is "No Choir" which is the last song on the album. It starts by saying, "And it's hard to write about being happy/ 'Cause the older I get/ I find that happiness is an extremely uneventful subject/ And there will be no grand choirs to sing/ No chorus will come in/ About two people sitting doing nothing," which really stuck out to me as a listener. The song has this very melancholy emptiness to it which I believe is this acceptance that the whole album rounds back on. It's an understanding that happiness doesn't feel as great as sadness feels awful. That struggle, belief or lack thereof, love, drugs – they all make an impact on us and it's what we do with that impact that matters.

Overall, I thought this was the best album Florence and the Machine has had since Between Two Lungs. It manages to keep an authentic Florence and the Machine sound with a more grown up set of topics. And it does this well, keeping itself well rounded between upbeat and mellow songs. The minimalist tracks throughout builds on this authenticity of the lyrics. It doesn't need to be big and flashy to get it's point across. In fact, being flashy would most likely only distract the listener from the main messages. You can listen to the entire album on Spotify.

MUSIC REVIEW

Harsh Armadillo's 'Bite'

'Bite,' the first in a two-part EP, was recorded at Iron Wax Studios with Alan Evans

By CHUCK DEFILIPPO
nysmusic.com

The first 'Bite' sinks raw into your gums, perking your ears with sound. Harsh Armadillo's latest four-track EP release is uninviting to the easy-listener. Regardless, you delve in for seconds and it becomes clear- there is no turning back. It's "quick, punchy and powerful," said vocalist Andrea Belaidi.

Bite hooks your lip and reels you deep into the 24-minute storyline of Harsh Armadillo on the rise.

Since their inception in 2013, the New Hampshire-based ensemble is out for blood. Harsh Armadillo debuted their first full-length album Thayer It Is in 2014 and quickly began to draw crowds of 700 or more. Harsh Armadillo was named New England Music Awards' Best Band in NH (2017) and has shared the stage with bands like The Nth Power, Kung Fu, Twiddle, After Funk and Kat Wright.

The seven-piece is equipped with keyboards, synth and organs, saxophone, trumpet, guitars and drums making their soundscape endless. R&B, funk and soul roots create a whirlwind of driving dance grooves that are paired with slow feel-good vocals and melodic leads throughout the EP.

Bite was recorded at Iron Wax Studio in Erving, Mass. with Alan Evans of Soulive. "Working in Alan's studio was like getting catapulted through a black hole and emerging with no pants or conception of time," said Max Harris (saxophone, vocals). Harsh Armadillo looks up to artists like Evans which made the four day recording endeavor energetic and natural for the band. "It was just wild seeing how Alan did his thing," said bassist Thomas Forbes.

"The EP all works together in sequence. These songs are comprised of bits and pieces that make it different," said Max. The band recorded the album together - all in one room, whereas it is typical for bands to record each part layered independently. "The intention was for it to be a cohesive unit. There's something about proximity," that makes it all flow, said Max. "We learned that it was okay to have bleed into the drum parts."

"Gravy" starts the EP off smooth, building in volume, before the drums and horns crash in unison. The groove is sharp and interrupts with syncopated off-the-beat phrases. Male and female vocals, funky guitar licks and changing drum and bass grooves drag your head from left to right with your feet. The feel livens up in the bridge with syncopated snare, contrasting horn pads and rolling bass fills. Soon you timehop, fired-up for the hot saxophone solo in "Two Wishes and a Truth." When playing these songs "we want someone like 'Sput' from Ghost Note (one of our idols) to turn around and say: What was that?," added Forbes.

The new songs are all about pushing the envelope.

Album art

BITE.

Spoken-word rap in "Animal" contrasted by Dmitry's synth leads expand your mind. When the band digs through the bridge they become unstoppable, in full break dancing force. Songs like "Live Action" are amped up and refreshing from the laid back push-and-pull of the rhythm section. It drives hard, so you better hang on.

Guitarist Camden Riley felt that the EP is "one tiny seed planted; It is a landmark of how we are as a unit [at this moment in time]." According to the band's press release, "The EP is about biting hard into life and being the most unapologetic version of yourself possible. A lot of the songs have this swaggy feel that everyone's frothing over these days. I think Questlove calls it drunk drums. Either way it's an addiction. It takes a team to get this feel."

Harsh Armadillo is cueing up for the second EP release of the series within the next few weeks. Evolving with the changing times of the music industry Max Harris felt "You can't put an album out every two years and still be relevant." Harsh Armadillo's second release "Blame Bad Habits" was exactly that - two years in the making, which became boring by the time it was ready to drop. Thus, the ensemble is 'keeping it loose' as they move forward not only as a band, but moreover as a tight-knit collaboration of friends.

For those wondering about the 'moldy basement' - it's Dmitry's, the bands keyboard player. "It [actually] is moldy," added Dan [the band laughs]. To this day, Harsh Armadillo continues to practice in the same stinky rehearsal space where they were founded. "That's where the fun comes in." It allows Harsh Armadillo to sound raw, capturing a live feel effortlessly on Bite. "An idea sparks the song...and then we start arguing in the most exciting sense of the word. The idea is growth - to push the bar one-hundred percent."

"Gravy" is one thick serving of horns, backed by '2' and '4' on the snare. It cuts right to the groove and sucks you into the song. Tight melodic hits occur when you least expect it and the drums continue to push and pull you in time. Andrea's smooth vocals, add the right amount of soul, half way through the track.

The EP would not be complete without "Live Action." As their press release describes, "It tracks the speed of the missile and shoots just enough in front of it to hit it." With lightning speed it is too energetic to soak up the funk from each instrument. Guitars take the spotlight early on with hot, up-beat rhythm and a blazing guitar solo within the first minute of listening. It is ever-changing. "Live Action," is all Harsh's best ideas morphed into one; from funk to a jam band with heavy synth-lead, to soulful vocals and back around again.

To be a 46er

The movie

For Cortright, love for the Adirondacks started in 2012 with a father and son hike up Marcy, the state's tallest mountain at 5,343 feet above sea level. For good measure, they tacked on Phelps and Tabletop too.

Like so many, the stunning view from the top captured the imagination of the then Shaker High School student and aspiring filmmaker who two years prior, while in the 10th grade, produced a documentary about the first Boy Scout encampment in the U.S.

"I've never seen it done justice on film. I've seen incredible photographs but never film or video," he said during an interview. "And then I began wondering why people do all 46 of these because we were pretty worn out after three. So it all started with being inspired by how beautiful it is and a question: What draws people to the Adirondack High Peaks and then what changes them from casual day hikers to a 46er? This kind of willingness to go through these crazy things."

He said he interviewed one woman who would leave Ontario on Friday, drive eight hours and sleep in her car or stay with friends, hike all weekend and drive back Sunday night.

"She had been doing it for a year and a half and she doesn't know why she does it.

She said she loves it there and "it feels like home," he said. "One way to describe the film is a love story between the mountains and the people who climb them."

The film features stunning videography and interviews with long time advocates, long time hikers and includes footage of the 46er's matriarch Grace Hudowalski, who became 46er No. 9 in 1937.

"Leaving the superb job Blake did with filming aside, it was more substance than style," said John Sasso, a long time 46er who does hours of volunteer work with the group. "That is, I think many of us were concerned that the 46ers film would come off as something flashy, that would hype up the 46ers and make it testosterone-driven with little if any content in regards to what the organization and its founders really stood for and promoted — not just tackling such a challenge, but embracing the environment and gaining a sense of stewardship of it."

"The 46ers" is a documentary that took 100 hours of footage, a number of interviews and a shoe-string budget. It took Cortright and company two years to shoot and another year to write and edit.

Cortright pitched the idea to Dan Swinton, who headed up production at Mountain Lake PBS in Plattsburgh, and he became the executive producer. PBS has since aired the documentary on 26 stations in 15 states.

In 2015, the film started showing in theaters "and we were selling out and people were calling the theaters and asking for extra screenings or were trying to get a hold of the film. We didn't realize what we had until all that started."

He wanted to make two points: We are all stewards of the mountains, and climbing the high peaks is not a typical walk in the park.

One New York City couple he featured were travelling around the world and decided to do some hiking. The weather changed, the man got hypothermia and died.

"I wanted to bring some gravity to it. It's one thing to hear 'cotton kills' but it's another to hear a true story about it. This is not the place to wear jeans and a hoodie," he said.

He does acknowledge the increased number of people hiking the high peaks, and understands his film may contribute to that. But, he would like people to come away with sense of stewardship and respect for the mountains too.

"What I hope, what will be awesome, is that people will see the reverence the 46ers have historically, and continue to hold, for the mountains and the great lengths and the decades of effort that have gone into stewarding them," he said. "So in a sense it might increase the number of people that are coming, but people who do come because they saw the 46ers film, will have an understanding or even a love for the mountains and the care that goes into it."
