Bethlehem CSD earns an A+

Bethlehem Central School District was recognized by Niche, an online national ranking resource, for being a “top-rated, public school district” with 4,580 K-12 students and a student-teacher ratio of 15 to 1. It also noted that state test scores revealed that 74 percent and 69 percent of students are adept in mathematics and reading respectively.

BCSD superintendent says there’s still room to improve

By DIEGO CAGARA
cagarad@spotlightnews.com

BETHLEHEM — The Bethlehem Central School District was recently awarded an A+ grade on Niche, an online source of reviews and rankings of national K-12 schools, universities, workplaces and neighborhoods.

Other rankings include:

- 1st out of 28 Capital District school districts in terms of being the best and safest
- 13th out of 692 most safest school districts in the state
- 42nd out of 675 best state school districts
- 58th out of 689 state school districts with the best teachers
- 84th most safest school district in the country

“I think it’s great that we received that A+ grade and it’s always great to be recognized with having great students and a great community,” BCSD Superintendent Jody Monroe said.

“While it’s one rating and we certainly know there’s things we do well and things we need to improve on, it’s still nice to be recognized for our hard work.”

Within its overall A+ grade, BCSD has an average 12th-grader graduation rate of 93 percent.

BCSD also scored A+ in the categories for academics, teachers, clubs and activities, health and safety, food, and college prep; A for resources and facilities, and sports; and B+ for administration.

However, it scored a C in diversity.

Monroe noted that it does reflect on how the district does not have a lot of diversity concerning race and culture, saying that the majority of students are white.

According to Niche, 87 percent of students are white, 6.5 percent are Asian, 2.9 percent are Hispanic, 2.5 percent are African American, and the remaining 0.9 percent are multiracial.

Also, 49 percent of students are female while 51 percent are male.

“We obviously can’t control who’s living the district but it’s still always great to have diversity, which is a topic addressed in our recent school climate survey,” she said. “Our obligation is to use more diverse instruction materials so that our students are aware of how diverse the outside world is after they leave our doors.”

She further brought up that BCSD has an Equity Committee — this was created last year and comprises of around 30 staff members, including teachers, supervisors and administrators — which aims to teach other staff and students about being aware that each person has their own unconscious biases, regardless of background, gender, and other socioeconomic factors.

“It’s important to be aware that we all have our own biases at least. For example, when hiring people, you may lean towards people who are more like you but you should also have an open mindset,” she said. “It shows how bias impacts your decision-making and then we bring such topics in class for the students.”

Recognizing the Equity Committee as one way the district is addressing the topic of diversity, Monroe expressed gratitude to the local community and parents for supporting the district and the students. “Students come in and work hard, and we’re very fortunate for that and for the support we do have,” she said. “I’d like to thank them and also our staff for all the hard work.”

RCS informs parents of upcoming tests

By DIEGO CAGARA
cagarad@spotlightnews.com

RAVENA — Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Central School District’s third through eighth grade students will have a chance to demonstrate their academic skills and knowledge on the New York State Assessments in English Language Arts and Math in April and May, according to a mass emailed letter to parents from C. Fred Engelhardt Jr., the assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction.

The state assessment information would inform the district on how to better support their students, regardless of if they’re struggling or excelling academically.

It would also help the district reflect on what to teach its students and how to improve instruction. However, it will not be used to penalize students or evaluate teachers.

These statewide assessments are a part of the state’s plan to complement the Every Student Succeeds Acts (ESSA) which details mandatory requirements for the states to follow so that they can attain federal education funding — New York state alone would receive around $1.6 billion for schools.

ESSA instructs that students in third through eighth grades need to be assessed in English Language Arts and Math at least once annually — under ESSA, the state would ideally need 95 percent of such students to participate in state testing.

The mass email also noted that students would eventually face more examinations and assessments with regards to their education and future potential careers, including the Regents Exams, PSATs, SATs, college and professional assessments.

It believed that the state assessment would help students grow academically and feel more comfortable with further assessments in the future.

Parents who have any questions or concerns are encouraged the contact their student’s building principal, including if they would like to refuse their child to take the statewide assessment.

Local initiative to support seniors who want to stay living at their own homes

By DIEGO CAGARA
cagarad@spotlightnews.com

BETHLEHEM — Local non-profit, grassroots organization Bethlehem Neighbors seeks to empower senior citizens to feel comfortable aging in their own homes, instead of having to live out their final days in retirement homes. It is also looking for volunteers to help out such seniors like with home maintenance, friendly visits, technology issues and driving them around town if needed.

Laura Jonas, its interim president, said that she recognizes and commends the town's Senior Services department for already providing various similar resources though like transporting local seniors, offering help with Medicaid, and having informational programs. "But they can't do certain things like go to your house and help change a lightbulb or care for your pet while you're away or help put your Christmas decorations away," she said. "We're not competing with or duplicating Senior Services, we just want to work with everyone and give more options for seniors to enjoy too."

Jonas offered several reasons why senior citizens may prefer living in their own homes, as opposed to retirement homes, and how they can benefit from becoming a Bethlehem Neighbors member.

"We and volunteers can help network to connect residents to resources to help them. It would help seniors to go or be transported around town to attend more events, take up classes if interested, or ask for help with getting groceries," she said. "It would really help reduce social isolation in people and encourage them to get out of their houses and make new friends, instead of staying in all the time." Other resources would include a selective monthly calendar of events based on member interests, regular updates via email, newsletter or Facebook, and receiving referrals to relevant vetted service providers.

Over 40 people attended the Bethlehem Neighbors' Feb. 14 relaunch event where they could fill out surveys to indicate what type of resources and volunteer opportunities they would like, including dinner or movie outings, regular check-in calls to ensure the senior is doing okay at home, and help with housekeeping.

She also brought up how a senior may feel more comfortable being in a home filled with memories and familiar surroundings, as opposed to a retirement home — "It's better than picking up and moving to a pristine location that does not have those comfort feelings."

While giving seniors more freedom of choice in their later years, it also helps to maintain social connections among seniors, who sometimes may feel isolated. "Maybe it can even just be somebody giving you a phone call to check in if you're okay, since you may have caught a flu and no one knows about it, for example," she added. "Checking in with people alone would help a lot."

Jonas added that Bethlehem Neighbors follows the so-called "village movement" which started in the historic Boston neighborhood of Beacon Hill around 20 years ago where seniors began recognizing that they're nearing that age where they require more help but do not want to go into nursing or retirement homes. They eventually decided to work together to form a neighborhood-based organization that involves volunteers and a few paid staff to help provide services and resources like helping in the house or getting groceries for them; seniors usually pay an annual fee in return for these services. This "village movement" model has proven successful and expanded nationally, causing "villages" to develop where seniors feel more connected and empowered, while aging in the comfort of their homes. According to the Village to Village Network, an online resource about the village movement, there are over 300 senior villages in the country now.

Jonas said that Bethlehem Neighbors is one such example, its roots originally starting back in 2014 in the Colonial Acres development off Feura Bush Road and only catering to senior residents there; such residents then realized in 2017 that senior citizens across the whole town could also benefit from that model, hence it grew. It was not until early 2019 that Bethlehem Neighbors would start pushing to raise awareness so that it could attract volunteers and seniors to learn more about it.

Looking ahead, Bethlehem Neighbors plans to have an informational meeting at the end of March where people can learn more or volunteer. Jonas mentioned plans to reach out to and partner with local businesses in town and provide discounts to Bethlehem Neighbors members too, as another incentive.

"Bethlehem Neighbors is a great model for anyone who wants to consider living in their homes as long as possible," she concluded. "It's also another way people can stay active in the community and help your neighbors out."

Bethlehem Chamber to honor local business

At last year's Annual Business and Community Awards, the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce honored former Bethlehem Central School District's Board of Education member Lynne Lenhardt, left, with the Citizen of the Year. She was recognized for being a public education advocate and being involved in many local community organizations.

BETHLEHEM — The Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce has revealed the winners of the upcoming 34th Annual Business and Community Awards Dinner, to be held on Thursday, April 11 at Normanside in Delmar.

Normanside is located on 150 Salisbury Road in Delmar. The event will start at 5 p.m. with cocktails and opportunities to network, followed by dinner at 6:15 p.m., and then presenting the awards an hour later.

The Business of the Year Award will go to TACS Autobody Service, an automotive body shop in Glenmont, which the chamber recognized for having a positive impact on the community. BCC President Maureen McGuinness said that this family business shows how family businesses can still thrive today and it treats its customers well.

"Nobody wants to have their car worked on but if you go to a place where you're treated well, it turns an unpleasant experience to a pleasant experience," she said. "There's also a lot of different big companies that do the same type of services and while there's nothing wrong with that, I personally like family businesses and they set up a great example." The business is located on 525 Route 9W in Glenmont.

The Citizen of the Year Award will be accepted by Quality PM, Inc. president and founder Gregg Biche, who has led the Delmar business since 2003, which handles large-scale home remodeling, and residential and commercial construction.

Biche's contributions to the local community as well as his longtime volunteerism also helped earned him this recognition.

"He does run a business and that's a part of who he is. But when you hear all of his volunteer activities, that's impressive," said McGuinness. "He's coached the Bethlehem Tomboys Girls Softball League, donated labor and materials to Eagle Elementary School's playground effort, and volunteered with the Tri-Village Little League, Best Buddies Friendship Week, Schenectady Ring of Hope, Lake George Association, and First Night in Bethlehem." Quality PM, Inc. is located on 199 Delaware Ave. in Delmar.

McCarroll's The Village Butcher will receive the Lifetime Achievement Award, having been in business since 1921.

"Among the things I find interesting is that it's a five-generations business and that shows their power and influence in the community, as well as how there's always been nice enthusiasm about them," said McGuinness. "It's also neat to be in the center of town and it's a place everybody pretty much knows."

Brianna Price, a Bethlehem Central High School senior, will attain the Youth Award.

McGuinness said the chamber initially found it challenging to pick one winner since there were "many" nominations for this award. But Price's sheer community contributions and personal accomplishments at such a young age were recognized in the end. "She's very much involved in the Crohn's and Colitis Foundation; she's a member of the Bethlehem girls soccer team, also involved in the Bethlehem soccer club, is a lifeguard and camp counselor, an honor student, and just an all-round really nice person who's a role model for other people," said McGuinness.

Besides the awards presentation, the dinner will feature a desserts table presented by CDPHP, a cocktail room and hour sponsored by Sunmark

Federal Credit Union, selfie sticks sponsored by Kinderhook Bank which encourages attendees to take photos and share on Instagram, and a raffle.

To attend the event, dinner tickets are at $75 and one must register by RSVPing to 518-439-0512 or online at business.bethlehemchamber.com/events/details/bethlehem-chamber-34th-annual-awards-dinner-5928.

"It's a wonderful slate of people to recognize this year and the room is going to be overflowing with gratitude and positivity," McGuinness concluded, encouraging people to register in advance before the roughly 200 seats get filled. "These aren't necessarily people who get recognition every day so it's nice to just take an evening and say thank you. It's a real honor for us."

BCHS moves up to national Science Bowl

By DIEGO CAGARA
cagarad@spotlightnews.com

BETHLEHEM — Two Bethlehem Central High School teams placed first and third while the Middle School team placed second respectively at the Science Bowl Regional Qualifying Tournament at GE's Research Center in Niskayuna on Saturday, March 2.

The Regional Science Bowl attracted over 150 students from 25 schools throughout the Capital District and winning teams will advance to the National Science Bowl Finals in Washington D.C. on April 25 to 29.

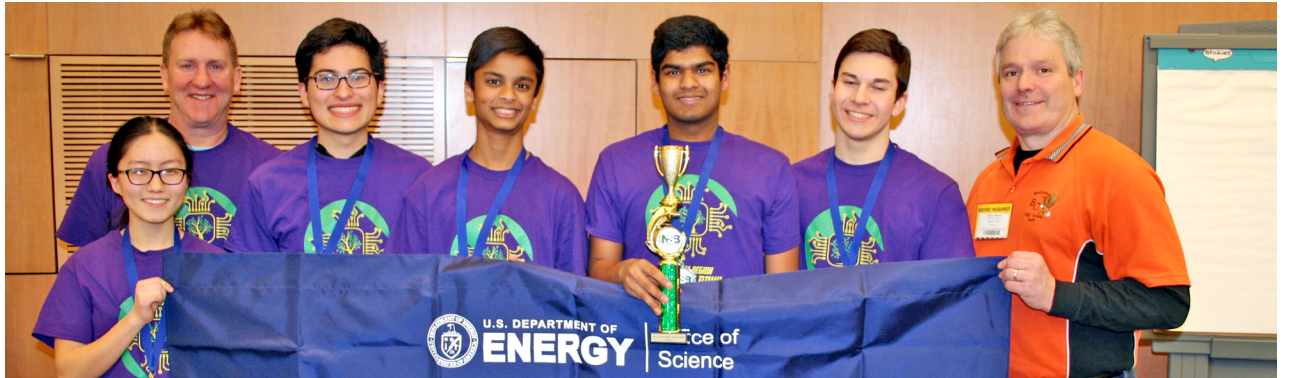

Developed in 1991, the Science Bowl was developed by the U.S. Department of Energy as a "highly competitive science education and academic event among teams of high school and middle school students who compete in a fast-paced verbal forum to solve technical problems and answer questions in all branches of science and math," according to its press release. Teams have four students, one alternate student, and at least one coach. The event also aims to promote mathematical and science activities among young students.

One BCBS team, who won against teams from Shenendehowa High School, another BCBS one which placed third, and Shaker High School, will compete in the finals.

The middle school team was beaten by Iroquois Middle School but did place ahead of Van Antwerp and Acadia middle schools.

There was also a Middle School Car Race where the Bethlehem Middle School team placed second, behind just Schenectady's Brown School and ahead of Van Antwerp and Acadia middle schools.

The Eagles fall in the finals

By JIM FRANCO

francoj@spotlightnews.com

GLENS FALLS

— The Bethlehem boys exceptional basketball season came to an end a game shy of winning the Section II title.

The No. 2 seed Saratoga got the better of the Eagles, the No. 1 seed heading into the tournament, on Saturday, March 2, at the Cool Insuring Arena by a final of 69 to 58.

Bethlehem finishes the season with a 15-1 record in the Suburban Council — losing only the last game of the regular season to CBA — and 21-2 overall.

The game was closer than the final score, but Saratoga did lead at the end of each quarter, and answered every time Bethlehem put together a run. Still, Bethlehem was only down four points at halftime and five points at the end of three so heading into the last quarter it was very much anybody's game.

“Our shooting percentage was terrible, our free throws were not great. There was some play calling that took place we didn't follow through on. When we freelance we are not as good as when we are doing what we are supposed to be doing,” said Coach A.G. Irons.

Bethlehem squared off against Saratoga on Jan. 15 as the two remaining undefeated teams in the Suburban Council. Bethlehem came out on top 75-65.

Saturday, though, it was a different story.

“I thought we did a good job getting to the basket and I thought we got a good job of getting them in foul trouble in the first half but that didn't continue into the second half so that was difficult for us. When you get there and think you are going to get hit and you think you are going to get a call and it wasn't happening,” Irons said. “And we worked hard on getting some charges and I don't think we got some calls we could have gotten.”

Saratoga won its first Section II title since 1988.

Michael Ortale, Jake Laclair and Erik Salo had 12 points each for Bethlehem while Saratoga's Aidan Holmes led all scorers with 23.

“I'm so proud of the way they worked and we had some seniors who had some loft goals for us early on and they are feeling pretty good right now,” said Saratoga coach Matt Usher on News Channel 13.

Irons mentioned “freelancing,” and part of his philosophy is to have his team work together. That was exemplified by standout, Michael Ortale, not wanting to know when he was approaching 1,000 points in the Feb. 26 semi-final game against CBA.

“Not that he would not have done it if he wasn't part of this program, but playing as a team is something we stress and it was nothing I made up, it was something he wanted,” Irons said. “It was a classy move, not just for CBA but our guys who were not worried about that, but worried about team play and winning the game.”

Irons sent out a Tweet after the game, announcing Ortale scored 13 points putting him across the coveted threshold by four. The Iona-bound senior had 12 against Saratoga in the finals, so he finishes his high school career with 1,016 points. And he missed his junior year to injury.

To get to the finals, Bethlehem got some revenge against CBA in the semis after losing to the Brothers in the final game of the year to blemish an otherwise perfect season.

In all, Irons said, going 21-2 overall and 15-1 in conference play was something his team should be proud of.

“Today is a tough time to talk about it with the loss, and obviously you want to win it all, but overall a fantastic season,” he said.

TOWN GOVERNMENT

Potential intergenerational community

Town to look into $22 million community project again

By DIEGO CAGARA
cagarad@spotlightnews.com

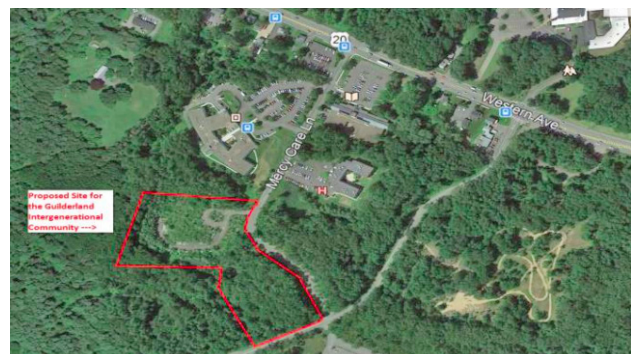

GUILDERLAND — The town will continue looking into the possible rise of an 18-building intergenerational community development on Mercy Care Lane off Route 20 near the public library, after its planning board agreed to table the project discussion in their Feb. 27 meeting.

The $22 million project was proposed by Boston-based Beacon Communities LLC in partnership with Northern Rivers Family of Services and Center for Disability Services. According to town documents, the 10.7-acre development would contain 65 rental homes, including 52 senior living units and 13 multi-generational units — there will be two driveways from Mercy Care Lane to access the community. It would also feature two housing styles: single-story cottage homes and two-story townhomes.

Its purpose is unique in crafting a community for senior citizens, families who are adopting foster children, and young adults who are intellectually and developmentally disabled. Among the amenities it hopes to offer include intergenerational socializing events, a library, community gardening, a clubhouse, a playground, a commercial kitchen, laundry facilities and a computer lab. Senior citizens, who do not require assistance, would be able to engage with the foster children and their families in various social activities, which, in turn, helps the seniors themselves who may be craving a connection since they may feel alone or live far from their own families. The community would also include some housing for young adults with disabilities who can live mostly independently, albeit with some support.

Beacon Communities development president Duncan Barrett, who appeared before the planning board, said that his firm already operates a similar development called the Treehouse in Easthampton Meadows, Massachusetts for 13 years now “and the outcomes for the children who were formerly in foster care have been extraordinary as compared to the outcomes for most children in foster care in this state.” Adding that the Massachusetts project has been “successful,” he explained that his firm undertook this proposed Guilderland project after the New York State Office of Children and Family Services requested it to try to set an example of an intergenerational community in this state.

During the planning board meeting, numerous residents came up to voice their concerns of the project, often saying that the project would invite too much vehicular traffic, be physically too close to existing residential property, and hurt the local natural environment. While they generally supported the project’s intergenerational community purpose, they requested for the developer to at least edit the project’s site plan or heed their comments.

The project application was then tabled by the planning board until the developer can return again with potential adjustments to their site plan. Also, Guilderland is not the only one though to make any final decision-making as the project will be reviewed by the Albany County Planning Board, Army Corps of Engineers, and New York State Office of Parks, Recreation and Historic Preservation in the near future too.

Classes to support K-8 students with trauma history and gradual emotional development

By JIM FRANCO
francoj@spotlightnews.com

COLONIE — BOCES wants to build a new two-story, 41,712-square-foot “Pathways to Learning” school to support students with “intensive needs that are not met in their home school district.”

The building, located on 3.25 acres on Airline Drive, was presented to the Planning Board on Tuesday, Feb. 26.

The school will provide education to K-8 students according to the narrative submitted to the Planning Board, and it will provide a “full continuum of services in a structured environment that supports the physical and social-emotional needs of students within a strong educational program.”

It will consist of two models:

- The Ready to Learn program emphasizes class sizes of up to four students with a focus of helping them “get back on track for lost learning due to prior placement that did not provide supports allowing students to access educational opportunities.”
- The Pathways to Learning program also serves K-8 students who also need significant support but in a less intense environment. Classrooms will give up to six students per classroom with a history of trauma and delayed emotional development access to equational curriculum and school based learning opportunities while helping build and maintain relationships.

Students in both settings are working towards a Regents diploma or career development and occupational studies credentials.

According to the sketch plan presented to the Planning Board by BBL Construction Services, the site is vacant with scattered trees along the street side of the property.

There are wetlands on the site and there is a stream on the southern property line. However, they will not be disturbed during construction.

The project includes 78 parking spaces. An easement is in place to allow access by an existing access drive of the adjacent property.

It is in an Office Residential zone and a school is listed as a permitted use.

Developers are requesting the town waive the minimum number of off-street parking spots, the required number of landscaped islands within the parking lot and it is requesting Open Development Area, which is required since access is through an adjacent property.

The sketch plan review did not yield any action by the Planning Board. It will now move to concept acceptance and, after more review and potential modification, to final approval.

If approved, the building would back up to the state Department of Agriculture and Markets building and be between the Associated General Contractors building and Christian Brothers Academy.

It would share an access road off Airline Drive with the Agriculture and Markets building.

Resolution #2019-09 February 27, 2019 Resolution of Findings and Determinations Relative to Acquisition and Condemnation of Selkirk Wellfield Property

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that, pursuant to Section 204(A) of the Eminent Domain Procedure Law, the Town of Bethlehem in a resolution adopted February 27, 2019, made the following findings and determinations relative to the proposed acquisition of certain real property located in the Town of Bethlehem:

- That the acquisition by the Town of Bethlehem of the real property described herein for use by the Department of Public Works as a public water supply will achieve the following public purposes: to protect a vital resource, and to provide permanent access to the facilities for operation and maintenance.
- That the subject property, located adjacent to the Hudson River on land formerly known as Poplar Island, has contained five of the Town's drinking water wells since 2005, along with associated piping and electrical equipment, and no other structures are located on this property.
- That the Town would like to permanently acquire 7.654 acres of the former Poplar Island (which is 16.08 acres in total) for operation and maintenance of the existing drinking water infrastructure.
- That the property is part of a permanent conservation easement created in 2011 that restricts future development on the land.
- That the drinking water wells have been in operation since 2005, therefore there is no construction work associated with this acquisition; as such, there will be no adverse effects from the aforesaid land acquisition on the environment or residents adjacent and in close proximity to the subject property.

LEGALS

6. That the 7.654 acres proposed to be acquired for public purpose and use are part of the parcel identified on the Albany County Tax Map as #134.00-2-22.

7. Copies of all documentation concerning the above acquisition and condemnation are on file at the offices of the Bethlehem Town Clerk at 445 Delaware Avenue, Delmar, NY, which include the transcript of public hearing held on December 12, 2018, an acquisition map, the environmental assessment form prepared by the Bethlehem Department of Public Works, all documentation submitted to the Town concerning said acquisition, and copies of all resolutions pertaining to same.

COPIES OF THE RESOLUTION CONTAINING THE DETERMINATION AND FINDINGS OF THE BETHLEHEM TOWN BOARD RELATIVE TO THE ABOVE REFERRED TO ACQUISITION AND CONDEMNATION WILL BE FORWARDED UPON WRITTEN REQUEST WITHOUT COST.

A motion to adopt the resolution was offered by Councilwoman Becker, seconded by Councilwoman Cunningham and approved with the following vote:

AYES: Supervisor VanLoven, Councilwoman Becker, Councilman Coffey, Councilwoman Cunningham, Councilman Foster

Reader: I respectfully disagree

Dear Mr. Hallisey:

I was surprised to see a letter by Barbara Collura in the Jan. 30th edition of The Spotlight that I believe was filled with misunderstandings and I hope thoughts from another perspective will provide some corrections and benefit everyone including the letter's author.

First, the statement that residents aren't being heard in the Comprehensive Plan Update process seemed concerning to me, as the process has only started. Four community forums have been held in the last nine weeks, and three more are scheduled in the next two months. And, more are planned after that. I have attended each of these four forums to date and found that transparency and open communication are hallmarks of the process, not weaknesses. Community participation is present and encouraged. I also plan to attend the others, to continue to be part of and to understand the process as fully and be as participative as possible, and to provide feedback. I have also read our current Comprehensive Plan. I am deeply concerned about the development issues and retaining the town's character as well as looking at important and necessary sustainability issues.

Second, the claim that "there is nothing the town can do about development and they must allow landowners to do what they want" couldn't be further from the truth. For more than three years, I have been following these issues, attending town meetings and have found Supervisor VanLuven, as the Town Supervisor and previously as a Town Board member, asserting exactly the opposite, I quote the following; "that the town not only has the authority to guide development, it has an obligation to." One must be aware that the development we see at this time has been in the planning stages for years and was started before the current Supervisor and this Town Board's terms.

As I see it, Supervisor VanLuven is leading our town in a comprehensive planning effort because he wants us to move past unproductive bickering and into practical, effective, and legal solutions. He has us on a positive path. Let's all support and participate in this effort by attending the community forums, or reaching out to talk to him, and Town Board members directly. I've always found his and the Board member's "doors" to be open, and I know you will too. Our Supervisor and Board members minds are not made up. I have experienced working on issues with them where the law and codes supported such, plans were changed for the betterment of this wonderful town we love so much.

I would like to end complimenting Ms. Collura's stated action items that are a positive reflection of this town's administration and current goals; make your voice heard, get involved, advocate for smart planning and for the preservation of open space (and agricultural lands.)

Can we stop a moving train?

While there were public meetings on the narrowing of Delaware Avenue, to some degree it always felt like the decision to narrow it was already made by town government and the informational meetings were merely to convince residents that the right decision had been made. Many people I speak to do not like the proposal, but believed there were no options or that the vocal minority unreasonably impacted the decision.

The current plan for Delaware Avenue is to reduce it to two lanes at its busiest point, install bike lanes and reduce speed, with the prevailing theory that this will not increase time of travel in any significant way and will make it easier to turn into and out of the Avenue, despite a number of new large apartment buildings along the road. The Capital Region Bike Coalition came out to Bethlehem in full force in support. Every time I mention this to anyone who is a frequent user or a business owner, they usually express some disbelief that traffic won't be affected or that this is even a good idea. Bicycle access should be improved along this stretch, but most importantly, we should be improving safety and access for children, the elderly, and the disabled. We also need to minimize disruption for residents who drive this daily and businesses who should have easy access to their businesses. I'm not understanding how adding bike lanes and reducing Delaware Avenue to two lanes helps the majority of users or children, the elderly and the disabled. Let's work together on a plan that all residents will appreciate.

It's up to the residents of Bethlehem to have our elected officials work harder, think outside the box, and make out town unique by working together to come up with creative solutions. I do believe that we can come up with a solution which makes it easier to bike Delaware Avenue while helping those who need the most help and making Delmar an inviting community for children, the elderly and the disabled, while supporting local businesses and auto commuters.

LIBRARIES

Guilderland Public Library wants you

Guilderland Public Library is currently seeking candidates to fill three anticipated vacancies on our Board of Trustees. Information packets may be obtained at our Circulation Desk. The deadline for bios and photos to be included in our bi-monthly newsletter is Wednesday, April 10. Petitions for nomination with signatures of at least 39 qualified voters residing within the school district must be returned to Guilderland Central School District by Monday, April 22, in advance of the election and budget vote to be held Tuesday May 21. We appreciate your interest in partnering with us to help expand our impact as a valuable and trusted community resource.

Book sale

There are certain constants you can count on in life. One of them is our Better Books Sale the second Saturday of each month. Tempting deep discounts on books, CDs and DVDs will be offered Saturday, March 9, from 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. to benefit both you and the library. We dare you to leave empty-handed!

Irish Music

Time to get our Irish on! Toss the Feathers will delight us with their lively traditional tunes Sunday, March 10 at 2 p.m. This trio's engaging music, incorporating several instruments, is sure to bring enjoyment and perhaps awaken a long-dormant desire to get jig-gy with it...dancing shoes recommended!

Bleed for the Throne

The American Red Cross and HBO are teaming up to mark the final season of "Game of Thrones", challenging series fans and blood donors alike to "Bleed for the Throne." Call 1.800.REDCROSS to schedule your appointment to donate blood or platelets here at the library Tuesday, March 12, 10 a.m.- 3 p.m. By donating, you'll be entered to win one of five trips to the Season 8 World Premier of "Game of Thrones" (age 18 and up). Includes travel for two and accommodations for two nights, plus $250 for expenses. Every donor will receive an exclusive Game of Thrones t-shirt and sticker with a unique Snapchat filter. Visit <https://www.redcrossblood.org/donate-blood/dlp/hbgameofthrones.html> to learn more.

Pickling 101

Unlike cooking, pickling preserves all the vitamins and antioxidants found in raw vegetables and keeps them fresh for weeks, making it a great way to cut down on food waste. Ever wanted to try your hand at pickling? Plan to be here Tuesday, March 12, at 7 p.m. You'll make and take a jar of pickled Kirby cucumbers and learn a quick and easy technique for pickling vegetables at home. The yield is long-lasting and delicious! Please pre-register online, by phone or in person.

Better Sleep

Sleep is becoming a precious commodity in our driven society. At least 35 percent of Americans routinely don't get the recommended seven hours of sleep each night. Explore ways to encourage revitalizing rest at "Get a Great Night's Sleep: A CDPHP Program" on Wednesday, March 13, at 6 p.m. Pre-registration online, by phone or in person is appreciated.

LIBRARIES

Seeds of potential at Bethlehem library

It's time to get growing at Bethlehem Public Library! This spring, we are starting our very own seed library featuring a variety of open-pollinated vegetables and some herbs. Seed libraries like ours support sustainability and food security by allowing the community free access to the means of growing their own food.

Our seed library, located at the back of the Information Desk, will be self-serve with some limits on quantities. To get the seed library up and running, we've scheduled some great gardening programs for both new and experienced gardeners of all ages.

Join us Saturday, March 9, at 3 p.m. as we launch the seed library with a screening of "Seed: The Untold Story," a documentary film about the importance of heirloom seeds (PG, 94 min., Seneca Falls Picture Company).

Later in the month, Eric de Long of Foxtail Community Farm will share some tips and tricks for starting seedlings at home, including low-cost options for light, water and heat requirements. Join us Sunday, March 31, from 2-3 p.m. and find out how to get a head start on the growing season.

In April, farmer and author Gary Kleppel makes a return visit to the library to talk about the ways that agriculture can improve environmental quality, public health and the economy. His program, "Eden 2.0: How Farming with Nature Can Save the Food System and the Planet," will take place Tuesday, April 16, from 7-8 p.m.

Little gardeners are invited to join us Monday,

April 22, at 2 p.m. for a special "Get Growing for Earth Day" event where they'll hear stories and learn how seeds germinate before planting some to take home. Sign up for this program online, or call 518-439-9314.

You can expect even more exciting programs and additions to this new service in the coming months.

Sunday Music

A Little Sunday Music wraps up the 2018-19 series on Sunday, March 10, at 2 p.m. with a vocal recital by Irina Tikhonenko, who will perform British and Russian classical art songs. Concerts are free and open to the public. All ages are welcome. We would like to thank the Friends of Bethlehem Public Library for generously sponsoring another wonderful season of this ever-popular concert series!

An impromptu Uno game broke out at Bethlehem library on a recent Sunday, courtesy of the new collection of board games to borrow.

Board candidate information

Nominating petition forms and informational packets are available at the library for candidates interested in serving on the Bethlehem Public Library Board of Trustees.

There is one seat on the 2019 ballot, currently held by incumbent Joyce Becker, who will not be seeking re-election.

Petitions must contain at least 49 signatures of voters residing in Central School District No. 6 of the towns of Bethlehem and New Scotland. Petitions must be filed with the District Clerk, Bethlehem Central High School, 700 Delaware Ave., Delmar by 5 p.m. on April 22.

The election and budget vote will be held on Tuesday, May 21, from 7 a.m.-9 p.m. at Bethlehem Central High School.

quote of the week

"It's true of every band. I have tapes of Van Halen playing in the clubs of L.A. And, it's almost the same setlist as Talas, oddly enough [...] And, of course, The Beatles are legendary for playing cover tunes at the clubs in Hamburg, Germany. [...] When you're in it, you think: Boy, this is terrible. This will never end. But, after you're done with it, and you move on — if that's lucky enough to have happen in your life — you look back and realize: Man, everything I learned back then is golden."

Making Memories of Cohoes

Cohoes Music Hall to welcome Grammy-winner Rodney Crowell in April

COHOES — Guthrie Bell Productions and The Cohoes Music Hall will present Grammy Award-winner Rodney Crowell on Friday, April 5, at 8 p.m.

Crowell, the singer and songwriter, was born in Houston in 1950. He has released twenty albums in four decades, with five consecutive number-one hits, and has also worked widely as a songwriter and a producer. His honors include two Grammys for his hit single "After All This Time" and an album "Old Yellow Moon," an ASCAP lifetime achievement award, and membership in the Songwriters Hall of Fame.

Crowell has written the hits "Making Memories of Us" for Keith Urban, "Please Remember Me" for Tim McGraw and many others. He currently lives in Nashville. His memoir, "Chinaberry Sidewalks, was critically acclaimed.

Opening for Crowell is Joe Robinson. Robinson is considered to be uniquely gifted as a virtuoso guitarist and as a singer and songwriter. He walks a tightrope between the instrumental music that has put him in the spotlight and a unique fusion of vocally based rock, blues, jazz, and R&B that is entirely his own.

Tickets for reserved seating on the floor can be purchased at $62, reserved seating for the parquet at $52, and reserved seating for the balcony at $42.

The Garcia Project to return April 13

COHOES — The Garcia Project's return to the Cohoes Music Hall on Saturday, April 13, at 8 p.m.

The Garcia Project's performances are based on actual set lists performed by The Jerry Garcia Band. They are the only nationally touring Jerry Garcia Band tribute band. All of their shows are classic recreations of a Jerry Garcia Band set list from the 1976 to 1995. For anyone that never had a chance to experience the Jerry Garcia Band or for fans that want to relive a classic show, The Garcia Project delivers.

With precise arrangements and the proper instrumentation and feel for any and all given eras, The Garcia Project faithfully channels and projects the feelings, emotions and music that propelled the Jerry Garcia Band and the fans through many years of musical bliss. It's about family, soul searching, rejoicing, contemplating, celebrating, seeking truth and loving one another.

Tickets are priced at $27.

'The Rocky Horror Picture Show' returns in May

FASHION & LIFESTYLE

Magnetizing look

Should you get stuck on the magnetic eyelash trend?

Women have long relied on false eyelashes to intensify their natural lashes with thickness and length. False eyelashes have come in many varieties through the years, from the classic adhesives to lash extensions individually woven onto lashes in specialty salons.

A new contender in the lash market, magnetic lashes are the latest trend to make news. But do magnetic lashes have staying power? And what are the health concerns, if any, with magnetic lashes?

Instead of fussing with glues and lashes, which often requires a delicate touch and lots of practice to master, falsies not lining up, or painful tearing out of natural lashes when it comes time for removal, magnetic lashes offer a new twist. These products work by sandwiching natural lashes between a false lash set that adheres with small magnets. To apply, one simply places the top lash and the bottom lash on the lash line with her natural lashes in between. The false lashes, which are reusable, click into place and are designed to be easily removed by sliding the magnetic strips apart.

As more people embrace magnetic lashes, some may begin to wonder if there are any potential health concerns associated with them. Magnetic lashes seem to present some of the same concerns of other false lashes and eyelash extensions. False eyelashes and eyelash extensions can cause various issues, advises Consumer Reports. Eyelash extensions have reportedly caused irritation to the conjunctiva (conjunctivitis) or cornea (keratitis). The irritation may be caused by direct contact from the lashes themselves or hypersensitivity to the substances used to attach them. Also, the College of Optometrists in England has warned that "repeated use of eyelash extensions or false lashes can cause traction alopecia, a condition where the hair falls out due to excessive tension placed on the hair shaft."

False lashes have been associated with other problems as well. According to a study from Guillermo Amador, a Ph.D. candidate at the Georgia Institute of Technology, changing the proportion of eyelash (which ideally is one-third the width of the eye in length) can increase airflow around the eye and lead to more dust hitting the surface of the eye. Consequently, this air and dust can dry out the eyes quickly.

While many proponents of magnetic lashes say they are easy to use, less messy and more convenient than glue varieties that may cause allergic reactions, there are those who lament that the magnetic lash strips, which need to be straight, do not bend with the curvature of the eye. This results in a less-than-natural appearance. There's also the risk of a disruption in the lay of the natural lashes because they're anchoring the magnetic sets. Exercise caution to reduce yanking on natural lashes during application and removal. False eyelashes should be cleaned and only be applied after freshly washing your hands.

Women interested in trying magnetic lashes should first speak with an eye doctor to gauge their safety prior to use, and with any false lashes, give the eyes a chance to rest between uses.

Music community to gather and kick off sixth annual Dustin Mele Memorial Concert

By KAITLIN LEMBO
lembok@spotlightnews.com

TROY — The sixth annual Dustin Mele Memorial Concert will take place at Brown’s Revolution Hall on Saturday, March 9 at 6 p.m.

According to a press release, the benefit will feature some of the area’s finest bands (including a special, one-time-only reunion of the Bob Etoll Group), a 50/50 raffle and an auction — all to benefit suicide prevention and mental health intervention services. Area favorite bands — including Emerald City, Soul Sky and Super 400 — will also make an appearance.

The Meles lost their son, Dustin, to suicide in 2013. His father, a veteran of more than 40 years on the local music circuit, rallied the area’s elite musicians to raise awareness of the growing suicide problem.

“Like so many people struggling with a mental health crisis, Dustin was a fully functioning, warm, bright person; a delight to be around,” Mele’s father and stepmother, Joe and Jenn Mele, said. “He had a job, an apartment with his beloved sister Lindsay, and a large group of close family and friends who loved and supported him. In the months leading up to his suicide, when he began showing signs of internal struggle, we scoured every resource available at the time to help.

“The help was almost non-existent and severely lacking, not to the fault of those who were trying,” his parents continued. “The needed programs did not exist, there was very little focus, funding or understanding for those struggling with a mental health crisis.”

Proceeds from this year’s Memorial Concert will support three organizations, the American Foundation for Suicide Prevention (AFSP); National Alliance on Mental Illness (NAMI), and Rensselaer County mental health and emergency assistance programs through Catholic Charities CONSERNS-U program. All donations will be made in memory of Dustin. Past annual concerts have raised over $50,000 for Capital District not-for-profits, and have drawn more than 2,700 people in all, including Congressman Paul Tonko and many Troy city officials.

“It’s a blessing to be able to raise awareness and help to reduce the stigma surrounding mental health, yet it is so difficult to bring the focus of our days back to that horrible time and loss,” Mele’s family said. “It’s more difficult than anyone can imagine, but we look around us and think how can we not do the benefit? How can we not gather hundreds of people and support in Dustin’s name and help the community?”

Rev. Sekou

The Linda — Friday, March 8

ALBANY — Rev. Sekou will perform at The Linda on Friday, March 8 from 8 to 10:30 p.m.

Rev. Osagyefo (oh-sah-GG-fo) Uhuru (ooh-WHO-roo) Sekou (SAY-koo). Noted activist, theologian, author, documentary filmmaker, and musician, Reverend Osagyefo Sekou was born in St. Louis, Missouri and raised in the rural Arkansas Delta. Rev. Sekou’s music is an unique combination of North Mississippi Hill Country Music, Arkansas Delta Blues, Memphis Soul and Pentecostal steel guitar. In May 2017, he released “In Times Like These” produced the six-time Grammy nominated North Mississippi Allstars. Afropunk heralded the “deep bone-marrow-level conviction” of his first album, “The Revolution Has Come”. The single, “We Comin’” --was named the new anthem for the modern Civil Rights movement by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. A consummate entertainer, Paste Studio celebrated his barn-burning performance saying: “Rev. Sekou delivers the spiritual performance we need now.”

The Tossers w/ Murderer's Row
Putnam Place — Saturday, March 9

SARATOGA SPRINGS — The Tossers and Murderer's Row will perform at Putnam Place on Saturday, March 9, at 9 p.m.

Blown in from the South side of the Windy City, The Tossers have been undisputed champions of Irish drinking anthems for well over a decade. Their whiskey-drenched melodies will have you filling up your glass and dancing in the aisles. Formed in 1993, the six-piece Celtic punk band of Chicago, IL has been proudly spreading their Irish gospel across the globe, with no plans of slowing down.

Opening the night will be drunk rock marauders from Troy, Murderer's Row.

Tickets can be purchased at www.ticketbud.com

Putnam Place is located at 63a Putnam Street, Saratoga Springs.

■ PICK OF THE WEEK

Can we get an Encore?

Busy March has Hartley's Encore dropping new single, playing shows up and down Hudson

By MICHAEL HALLISEY
halliseym@spotlightnews.com

Since dropping its debut album last April, Hartley's Encore has gained traction in the Capital District the band grows into its sound.

"I feel like we're heading towards Hartley's Encore 3.0," said Luke Malamood, the band's lead vocalist, keyboardist and co-founder.

Self-described as the "house band at your dance party for the apocalypse," Hartley's Encore is an energetic funk ensemble with a soulful horn section. Its sound is anchored by rock-solid songwriting flowing from Malamood (lead vocals/keyboards) and co-founder Chris Oliver (lead guitar and backing vocals). The band also includes Jeff Nania on saxophones with regular contributions from Phil Chow on trumpet and Suren Kyaruns on saxophones. Josh Gordon (bass), Mike Gilet (drums), Erik Pravel (drums), Brad Monkell (bass) and Alex Gonzales (percussion) are also a part of the band's lineup.

March is proving to be a busy month. The boys started this month by dropping a new single "Feels So Good on Spotify. It's a different approach from last year. Instead of raising money to produce a CD, singles like this will be released in a piecemeal strategy, said Oliver.

It's in the matter people choose to consume their music today. In a Billboard magazine article published last September, CD sales continue to decline. Industry experts fall short of calling for the death of the physical format. A harbinger of this movement can be seen in the automobile industry, where car manufacturers replace CD players with Apple Play or other streaming options. CDs are heading towards a select niche market.

"Feels So Good" was recorded and mixed by Alan Evans at Iron Wax Studios, somewhere between Amherst, Massachusetts and Brattleboro, Vermont. This first track, since the band's self-titled release, reveals progression.

"It's a whole freaking notch above our record," said Malamood. "A complete song. The more you listen to that, the more that will be revealed. I promise. There's a lot packed in there." He added that the band was able to apply more of what they learned from recording the CD with Evans. "This time we really nailed 'the sound.' His mix is pretty epic," he said.

Hartley's Encore plays at Putnam Place on Friday, March 8 opening for Krewe Orleans at 8 p.m.

Krewe Orleans is a live big band Mardi Gras Experience. The mission of this band is to help keep the tradition of New Orleans Music alive and well. With a hand picked lineup, Krewe Orleans showcases some of the Northeast's finest musicians that have including members of the Trey Anastasio Band, Pink Talking Fish, moe., Turkuaz, The Giant Country Horns and more.

Hartley's Encore follows that show with its Brooklyn debut at the Knitting Factory on Saturday, March 16, and close out the month with a show at Savoy Taproom on Friday, March 29.

Tickets can be purchased at www.eventbrite.com.

Putnam Place is located at 63a Putnam St.

 Gallery Hours: Weekdays, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; please call ahead. Albany Barn, 56 Second Ave. Albany. 518-935-4858 or albanybarn.org

Albany Institute of History and Art
Continuing: "Bejeweled and Bedazzled: Jewelry and Personal Adornment." More than 100 works of jewelry and personal adornment dating across four centuries will sparkle and shine in this exhibition. Drawn from the collections of the Albany Institute, these personal effects will tell stories about the individuals who owned them, where and why they were purchased, and what they reveal as works of art and embellishment. Through Sunday, July 28. Also, "Shape and Shadow: The Sculpture of Larry Kagan." A retrospective exhibition that will feature 50 works from three distinctive phases of the Troy sculptor's career: the 1970s cast acrylic sculptures that reflect and refract light; the found steel works from the 1980s and 90s that play with texture, pattern, and shape; and, more recently, the shadow pieces that rely on strategically positioned steel rods to sculpt light. Through Sunday, June 9. Also, "Heavy Metal: Cast Iron Stoves of the Capital Region." During the 19th century, Albany and Troy, New York, manufacturers were considered to be among the largest producers of cast-iron stoves in the world. Stoves made in these cities were renowned for their fine-quality castings and innovations in technology and design. This exhibit showcases 25 of these utilitarian objects as both works of art and technological innovations that made the home more comfortable as well as beautiful. On display through, Sunday, Aug. 18.

The Hyde Collection

Continuing: "From the Vault: Staff Selections." Members of The Hyde team each picks their favorites from among the Museum's 4,000-work collection. Spanning five centuries, the exhibition includes paintings, drawings, prints, and sculpture. With choices as eclectic as their backgrounds, Museum staff members give insight into who they are and reveals what inspires them. On view in the Hoopes and Whitney-Renz Galleries through Sunday, March 31. Also, "Colorama." For more than four decades, enormous advertisements displayed in New York City's Grand Central Station affirmed a picturesque notion of everyday American life. The 18-foot-by-60-foot images depicted an idyllic nation: beautiful landscapes, holiday celebrations, world-changing historical events, family road trips, and patriotism. This exhibition examines the captivating advertisements, offering insight into America, and the histories of advertising, photography, and technology. Thirty-six reproduced images from the George Eastman Museum depict an idealized past for a new generation, and a welcome reintroduction for those who lived through the decades that helped shape photography. Organized by the George Eastman Museum. On view through Sunday, April 14. Also permanent collections. Museum hours: Daily, Tuesday-Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Sunday, noon to 5 p.m., Closed Monday. Admission: adults, $12; seniors (60+), $10; Children, students (w/ID)/active military members and their families, free. 161 Warren St., Glens Falls. 518-792-1761 or www.hydecollection.org

Mabee Farm Historic Site

Continuing: "A Dishonorable Trade: Human Trafficking in the Dutch Atlantic World." This traveling exhibit curated by the NYS Department of Parks and Recreation not only examines the role that slavery played in the creation and maintenance of the Dutch trading empire, but also delves into the lives and stories of people affected by the trade. On display indefinitely. Also, ongoing and permanent exhibitions. Winter hours: Friday and Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. 1100 Main St. (NY Route 55), Rotterdam Junction. reflect the diversity of those who came to Woodstock, including Birge Harrison, Konrad Cramer, George Bellows, Eugene Speicher, Peggy Bacon, Rolph Scarlett, and Yasuo Kuniyoshi, among many others. This exhibition introduces to the public for the first time just a sample of the highlights of this extraordinary collection, which represents a body of work that together shaped art and culture in New York and forms a history of national and international significance. On display in the West Gallery through Tuesday, Dec. 31. Also, "a small fort, which our people call Fort Orange." This exhibition examines the momentous discovery of Fort Orange and the lasting impact of events occurring there 400 years ago that shaped the character of the region, state, and the nation. Select artifacts, film footage from the excavation preceding the construction of I-190, and four decades of historical and archaeological research are highlighted. In Adirondack Hall through May 5, 2020. Also, "Enterprising Waters: New York's Erie Canal (Phase Two):" A continuation of the Erie Canal's story with components on the canal's growth, politics, industries, social reform, and the Canal's legacy. Through Sunday, Oct. 20. Also, "Model of Statue Honoring Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Susan B. Anthony." In celebration of New York State History Month and in commemoration of the 101st anniversary of women's suffrage in New York State, the Museum is proud to display a model of a statue honoring Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Susan B. Anthony. The statue will be unveiled in New York City's Central Park in 2020—the first statue in the park to honor a woman. On view in the West Corridor through Sunday, March 31. Plus perma-

"The Second Buddha: Master of Time" presents the story of the legendary Indian Buddhist master Padmasambhava, who is widely credited with bringing Buddhism to the Tibetan lands. The exhibit explores the visual and material world centered on Padmasambhava through sculpture, thangkas (Tibetan scroll paintings), textiles and manuscripts from the 13th through 19th centuries. On display in the Wachenheim Gallery through Sunday, May 19. Also, "Like Sugar," which explores both the problematic and joyful aspects of sugar, complicating our view of how this multi-layered substance affects us through artwork by contemporary artists. On display in the Malloy Wing through Sunday, June 9.

Continuing: "The Shelf." Exhibition presents work from the museum that spans place, time, material, style and subject. Displayed together on a single shelf, the selected objects confuse distinctions between "high" and "low" art, between "decorative" and "fine," or between work made for function and beauty. Union College Galleries

Continuing: "A Decolonial Atlas: Strategies in Contemporary Art of the Americas." Drawing from the hemispheric context of the Americas, and broad questions of civilization and culture, this exhibition presents recent works by artists from the United States and Latin America who are grappling with continued questions of colonialism and postcolonialism in an effort to locate "place" in contemporary society. The exhibition highlights the medium of video as a critical tool for expanded narratives and immersive imagery, in addition to painting, photography, sculpture and works on paper. Structured around four thematic constellations, the artworks in this exhibition consider an alternative mapping of the region, charting new courses for the present and future. Works presented in the section Recasting Indigeneity subvert the exoticized view of indigenous cultures in the imperial gaze, by reasserting native identity formations, beliefs and practices situated in the contemporary moment. Rupturing a linear notion of time, works within Dislodging Time maneuver the viewer out of an ordered Gregorian clock into abstract cycles. In the section Countering Extractivism, featured works intercede the anonymity of state and private extractive economic practices to bear witness to the depletion of natural resources and methods of social control. Lastly, works within Intervening the Archive disrupt the official narratives of specific places and events, broadening the confines of the archive, from the contemporary, to the colonial, to the origins of conquest. Organized by the Vincent Price Art Museum, California, and curated by Pilar Tompkins Rivas. On view in the Mandeville Gallery, second floor of the Nott Memorial, through Sunday, June 16. Also, "Fragmented Memories: Thomas Aung." The artist, a native of Yangon, Myanmar, and a junior at the college, paints bold, vibrant portraits that exude thoughtfulness and reflection of both their subjects and their portraitist, through the use of a somewhat discordant combination of brilliant hues and loose brushstrokes with somber and meditative poses and expressions. On view in the Wickoff Student Gallery, third floor of the Nott Memorial, through Sunday, March 17. "Mark Bradford Installation."

FOOD & VINO

During Lent, a 40-day period serving as a reminder of Jesus' profound sacrifice and ultimate resurrection on Easter Sunday, Christians across the globe focus on their faith and cut out the excesses of life, with many fasting and abstaining from indulgent behaviors.

Many Christians do not eat meat each Friday during Lent, also abstaining on Ash Wednesday and other holy days of obligation. That makes Lent an ideal opportunity to incorporate new meatless recipes, including seafood, into one's culinary repertoire. The following recipe for "Roasted Black Bean Cod" from "Low Fat for Life" (DK Books) by Sue Kreitzman can certainly fit the bill.

Roasted Black Bean Cod

Ingredients: Makes 2 servings

- 1 large garlic clove
- 1/2 inch piece fresh ginger, peeled
- 2 teaspoons teriyaki sauce
- 1 teaspoon rice wine vinegar
- 1 cod fillet, about 3/4 lb
- Freshly ground black pepper
- Spray made of water-diluted oil
- 1 quantity of Black Bean Tomato Sauce (see below)
- Salsa of choice

Black Bean Tomato Sauce

- 4 cloves garlic, peeled
- 1 inch fresh ginger
- 6 to 7 scallions, chopped
- 1 1/4 cups stock
- 1/4 cup dry sherry
- 1 teaspoon oyster sauce
- 1 teaspoon Chinese chili sauce
- 2 teaspoons Chinese black bean sauce
- 1/2 cup passata

Juice of 1 lime

2 tablespoons fresh cilantro

Instructions:

Make the black bean sauce and set aside:

Crush together the garlic and ginger and put in a wok with the chopped scallions, stock and sherry. Simmer briskly until the liquid has almost evaporated.

Stir in the oyster, chili and black bean sauces and bring to a boil. Continue to boil, stirring for a few seconds.

Stir in the passata, and then simmer briskly for 30 seconds. Stir in the lime juice and chopped cilantro and simmer for a few seconds longer.

Make the cod:

Crush together the garlic and ginger and put in a bowl with the teriyaki sauce and vinegar.

Put the cod on a plate and cover with the ginger-garlic mixture. Grind over some pepper. Marinate at room temperature for approximately 20 minutes.

Mist a baking sheet with the oil-water spray. Put the cod on the sheet, scraping all of the marinade over the fish. Spray with oil and oven-roast for 9 to 10 minutes per one-inch thickness of fish.

Spoon the heated Black Bean Tomato Sauce onto a plate. Set the roasted fish on top, then surround with salsa as garnish.

Pairing:

Kim Crawford Sauvignon Blanc
Kim Crawford — New Zealand

With cod, you want to go with a Sauvignon Blanc. Kim Crawford's Sauvignon Blanc appears often on Wine Spectator's Top 100 list. This popular wine exhibits intense tropical fruit aromas and notes of freshly cut grass. Flavors of passionfruit, citrus and stonefruit makes this a wonderful pairing to this dish.

HEALTH & FITNESS

A hit to the body

How to handle setbacks in your workout routine

Few things frustrate athletes more than injuries. Sudden muscle pulls or the reemergence of nagging injuries can interrupt workout regimens and put athletes on the shelf until their injuries heal.

Some athletes may be tempted to fight through injuries and continue exercising, but doing so can make injuries worse and lead to even more time spent on the sidelines. Athletes who suspect they might have suffered more than minor aches and pains should consider the following approach when dealing with sudden setbacks in their workout routines.

- Visit a doctor. Medical websites like WebMD are valuable resources, but athletes should not assume that perusing such sites takes the place of visiting doctors. Self-diagnosing an injury, whether it's with the help of a website or simply going on your own intuition, is not safe, as many fitness-related injuries share similar symptoms that make it easy for men and women without medical degrees to misdiagnose. Doctors can determine exactly what your injury is and help get you on the path to recovery by prescribing medications or developing treatment plans. Such treatments can be the difference between a speedy recovery and one that lasts months on end.

- Recognize the importance of patience. No two people heal the same, but patience with an injury is a part of every athlete's healing process. If you don't allow time for an injury to heal or if you try to accelerate your healing process, the existing injury can worsen and you may even injure another part of your body while overcompensating for your initial injury. Go into the healing process knowing it takes time, and be as patient as possible during your recovery.

- Be careful about the rest of your body. One of the problems many athletes encounter when dealing with an injury is the effect that injury has on other areas of your body. Athletes who perform strength training may be able to continue part of their regimen even after suffering an injury, but they should make note of their form to make sure their body is not overcompensating for the area that is injured. Doing so can lead to new injuries or even exacerbate the existing injury. When visiting a doctor, get a specific list of which exercises, if any, you can still perform while recovering. If you plan to weight train during your recovery, reduce the amount of weight you lift, which can help ensure your form remains correct.

- Report any new setbacks immediately. Some athletes suffer setbacks during their recoveries, and while setbacks can be expected, they should not just be accepted as another hurdle to clear. Report any setbacks to your physician immediately so he or she can advise you on the next steps to take.

- Return slowly. Once your injury has healed, keep in mind that you can't just dive back in to your workout routine at full steam. Gradually increase the intensity of your workouts as your body once again acclimates itself to exercise.

Injury is a reality of life for many athletes. But how athletes handle their recoveries can affect how quickly they get back in the swing of things.

HOROSCOPES

March 2019
Week 1

ARIES - MAR 21/APR 20

Aries, there's always ample opportunity to learn from past mistakes. You can make amends for previous miscues this week when you're reunited with someone from the past.

TAURUS - APR 21/MAY 21

Others seem to be feeding you information on a need-to-know basis. This may be frustrating, Taurus. But a little extra patience is required for the time being.

GEMINI - MAY 22/JUN 21

Gemini, the need to delegate will present itself throughout the week. Don't take on more than you can handle. Trust that those around you are up to the task.

CANCER - JUN 22/JUL 22

The image that you project can be much more important than the work you actually do, Cancer. Have a good public relations team in your corner.

LEO - JUL 23/AUG 23

The good will you demonstrate will come around in time, Leo. Continue to be generous and help others whenever possible. Karma is on your side.

VIRGO - AUG 24/SEPT 22

It is not easy to admit when you are wrong, Virgo. When the need to do so arises, be gracious and offer your apologies in a heartfelt way that will resonate with others.

LIBRA - SEPT 23/OCT 23

Libra, support is a two-way street. If you boost the confidence of a friend or loved one, in return he or she may help you in big ways. Work as a team to foster communication.

SCORPIO - OCT 24/NOV 22

Take a step back from the rush and pressure that has surrounded you lately, Scorpio. You can use the rest to clear your mind. This break will help you tackle new things.

SAGITTARIUS - NOV 23/DEC 21

Sagittarius, you may be eager to step into a new job right when another is finished. While this can be good for productivity, make sure you avoid burnout.

CAPRICORN - DEC 22/JAN 20

Capricorn, sometimes you are acutely aware of details that others readily miss. This trait comes in handy when you are asked to advise others.

AQUARIUS - JAN 21/FEB 18

It is important to be self-aware of the way you communicate with others, Aquarius. Pushing too hard might shut some people off. Adjust your approach accordingly.

PISCES - FEB 19/MAR 20

Psychic feelings are pronounced this week, Pisces. Try to hone in on what these sensations are attempting to tell you.

Consider the Source's sixth studio release, "You Are Literally a Metaphor" is a creative picaresque, flushed with cultural influences, brought together in a thrilling narrative of layered instrumentation. The title, not to mention the playing, invites a literary reading and the expansive territory it explores, invokes the realms traveled by a surreal "hero" in an epic tall-tale of love, loss and weird trips around the sun. The real-ish universe stages a synergy of sketchy archetypes, faceless figures with obscure motives whose actions we recognize. "You are Literally a Metaphor" is a totem of the band's figurative playing, evocative songwriting, and exacting range. It is musical treasure trove too rich for a non-musician's explication, that journeys expressively through numerous genres, wistfully transitioning from prog rock to jazz-fusion, Middle Eastern sci-fi and blues over the course of nine tracks.

"Sketches from a Blind Man" opens the album with painterly, cinematic playing, provoking listeners to see scenes from this cryptic odyssey as they unfold. The sound is atmospheric and spacey, imbued with foreboding and a breakneck beat. The chase is on, as guitarist Gabriel Marin, bassist John Ferrara, and drummer Jeff Mann, compete in a frenetic dance of ecstatic playing, weaving intricate lines into complex progressions.

"The One Who Knocks" is a song akin to the work of Primus, and Bela Fleck the Flecktones, that spins folksy guitar lines and lean bass leads into a dark, heavy march, eventually escalating into a turbulent guitar section, before turning gracefully toward a triumphant, soaring conclusion. "It is Known" is a wild cruise. It begins as a red-eyed, breezy ballad with a hint of the blues, reminiscent of The Flaming Lips, but it lurches into a moody groove, la Eddie Hazel, before finally shapeshifting into a speed rock meltdown that recedes into blissful contemplation. The dignity with which CTS so casually blends these traditional elements with their own math rock sensibility, daredevil technicality, and genuine style, all while connecting each track purposefully with the others, is proof that Metaphor represents a peak for the band.

Playing Twister with genres and influences seems to be CTS's way of taming the art of songcraft. These tracks sound like stories: rooted in place, with a beginning, middle, and end, repeated themes and motifs, and the hint of emotional development. Taking advantage of the familiar rituals inherent in a given genre provides CTS with the canvas on which they sketch their impossibly skillful illustrations. "When You've Loved and Lost Like Frankie Has" is a refreshing take on the blues. Mournful leads linger over an alluring pocket and hip-hop beat, as the tune's bluesy restraint coolly displays the profound sadness portrayed in Marin's playing. "Enemies of magicK" is a fitting finale to Metaphor, as it highlights CTS's prog rock prowess, bringing the album to an anthemic close, while also recapitulating many themes, changes, and elements developed over the course of the album.

"You are Literally a Metaphor" is a project articulated in full, an album seemingly without misstep or omission, on which the playing is peerless and without arrogance. The songs are delicately arranged and wisely executed. It draws on influences ranging from Mars to the Middle East, from Mississippi to Mahavishnu, from Dixie Dregs to King Crimson, and from ELP to epic psychedelia, but over the course of the album, it is CTS's originality and intrepid style that ultimately shines with the highest definition.

■ MUSIC REVIEW

Bruiser and Bicycle's 'Come Find Me'

In like a lion, out like a lamb

By DAVE OSTROFF

nysmusic.com

This is Bruiser and Bicycle's second stab at an album and they have found something worth sticking to. Nick Whittemore and Keegan Graziane decided to make a change of tone and left their first albums, post-punk basement-core group with dark undertones and synesthetic lyrics, as they described it on their Promo Juke Box page. Now, they are pursuing an indie, psychedelic and eccentric writing style that keeps the album spicy and plain fun to listen to.

They burst out of the gates with a quintessential indie and energetic tone in "The Train," which is broken up by odd vocals choices. As for an intro goes, it's definitely exciting but feels like a big tease. A huge build up, and then drop off. No big jumps or launches. But listen on and you'll see it's not their style.

"Casper" moves into their straightforward, folksy roots and we begin to realize how their vocal style and tone separates this group from others. It's not too deep in terms of production — we hear straightforward instrumentation, but also an omnidirectional and engaging sound. The duo showcases their lead guitar skills with a call and response from two very different voices. Static and distortion precedes a clean and spacious sound but both work over just the a-persistent, folksy guitar riff. It's brilliant!

"Woods" is about as mainstream as the group gets. Without the electronic and quirky touches, we can see how well tuned into the music industry these two are. They know what works and they can recreate popular sounds but make it their own. That's not a skills everyone has. However, we find ourselves on the other side of the spectrum with "Yonder" — it's an acid trip compared to "Woods." We get very trippy and lazy vocals, omnidirectional and experimental instrumentation and some guitar licks that are plain discomfoting. Lets just say the chorus isn't something you'll be whistling along to at work.

"See Saw" is one of the best things about the album, how much fun it is to listen from beginning to end. It's a roller coaster of ups and down, sudden turns and unexpected sounds. You'll find yourself at the end of this song saying: how did it get here? There's so many mood swings throughout each song and the entirety of the album for that matter. Their direction choices are intentional, not just changes for the sake of interest and keeping your attention. And that is no easy feat to accomplish seamlessly.

Their blend of psychedelic lyrics and relentless instrumentation is this band's party trick with "Horns." They leave little hints of this sound laced throughout the album as they do at the beginning of "Horns". They trail off into a cooky march with more haphazard vocal progressions and push into a huge build up with a pulsing beat, layer after layer of instruments and another sudden drop into nothing. Not a trace of resolution nor a sense of closure.

As said before, this is just fun to listen to... even if the ending of the last track can be unsatisfying to some. This group should be admired for what two people during humbling beginnings can do. Not to mention that this groups prior album, which was released a year ago, sounds like it was released in 2010 by four completely different people. Indie music has been vastly popularized in the last decade and this group goes against the grain making unique album billowing with character and passion without making things to avant-garde. Bravo, Nick and Keegan.

FILM REVIEW

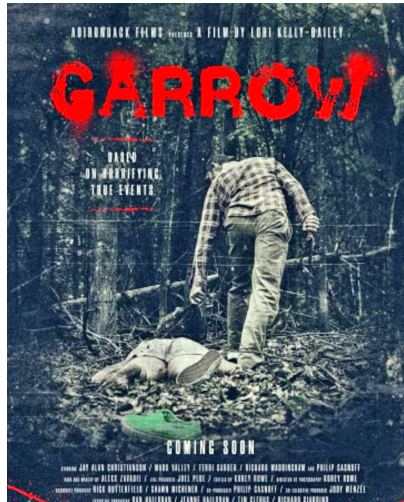

Film 'respectable' to victims

'Garrow' avoids gore and applies focus to story

By DIEGO CAGARA
cagarad@spotlightnews.com

Robert Gallow. A man whose terrifying acts haunted upstate New York in the 1960s and 1970s has seen a resurgence in public interest as an independent movie bearing his last name has been screened at numerous state theaters since late last year. Capital District residents, including those who lived through those fateful years, were finally able to witness the "Garrow" film at The Egg on Saturday, March 2 at 8 p.m.

Directed by Lori Kelly-Bailey, the film works to visually streamline his criminal acts and death, by offering staccato flashbacks which are interspersed between scenes of him being questioned at the Hamilton County Court in 1964. Made on a modest $30,000 budget, the director made the wise choice to film it on location across the Adirondacks region, taking advantage of the natural scenery with impressive wide shots and capturing the small-towns' atmospheres. Vintage TV sets, police uniforms and cars all helped to recreate that time period too.

Kelly-Bailey also was able to cast numerous real-life individuals who interacted with Garrow then to portray themselves here, including former corrections officer Dominic Arena whom Garrow shot but survived. Given all these facts, "Garrow" triumphed in coming across as a genuine community-driven effort that attempted to cover Garrow's life.

Speaking of Garrow, leading actor Jay Alan Christianson portrays the spree killer, albeit appearing a bit more slender than Garrow himself. The film uses Garrow's time on trial at the aforementioned 1964 Hamilton County Court as the backbone of storytelling, where an interrogated Garrow recounts many disturbing episodes via flashbacks in his lifetime, including rape, murder, bestiality and kidnapping.

Appearing somewhat slumped in his wheelchair to feign partial paralysis, Kelly-Bailey's camera offered multiple close-up shots of Garrow — Christianson succeeded in depicting his restless facial expressions, quivering mouth, pronounced frown lines, and notably, a few tears pooling in his trembling eyes whenever he felt uncomfortable or accused by the questioning lawyer. The bordering-on-invasive camera intriguingly also picks up on the sounds of Garrow's tense breathing, throat closing up, and occasional sniffing, which could make the moviegoer feel uncomfortable in being that close to him. There is a sense of relief during his courtroom scenes as the lawyers continually badger him with queries and Garrow is unable to escape them, a welcome change from how Garrow's victims mostly couldn't flee from him prior.

During flashbacks, Kelly-Bailey did not seem afraid to showcase some of his violent acts, with the camera capturing Garrow's father abusing him as a child and striking him in the face, shots of a bloodied Garrow in anguish, and Garrow kidnapping some of his victims. Intelligent decision-making was evident with this film since the camera sometimes cuts into black or fades just as Garrow is about to stab someone or when he grabs a young schoolgirl in the night, leaving the audience to imagine for themselves what happened next.

The film does contain two faults though. The background music sometimes grows too melodramatic which somewhat cheapened a few scenes and almost overpowered the actors' dialogue. The final action sequence which features officers shooting and killing Garrow in the woods — who had escaped prison four days prior — could have been more dynamic and it did not offer much of a satisfying concluding catharsis as one would hope, since the film had been building Garrow up to be a terrifying, remorseless man. The film does end with an eerie shot, no pun intended, of Garrow lying dead on the ground though, with a notable bullet hole to his head, which all fades to black and white before the credits roll.

Nevertheless, "Garrow" is a respectable independent film which gives viewers a front-row seat into the types of horrific acts he committed in upstate New York. It also should be commended for incorporating actual photographs, court documents, crime photos and transcripts from when Garrow was alive, which helps to remind viewers that his crimes chillingly happened just a few hours away from the Capital District.

Prepare before you face repairs

Develop a maintenance schedule for your family vehicle

The oft-sudden expense of vehicle repairs can throw monthly budgets into disarray. Maintaining a routine service schedule is one way for drivers to keep repair costs down.

The online automotive resources Edmunds.com says many car owners do not adequately prepare for scheduled maintenance, and may not give maintenance a thought until it's too late. The first step drivers take upon purchasing a new or preowned vehicle should be to familiarize themselves with the vehicle's owner's manual, which is filled with valuable information and likely includes maintenance interval recommendations.

Next, drivers should learn about their vehicle, which is particularly relevant when buying a preowned vehicle. Getting to know how the car or truck rides, as well as any sounds it may make, can provide drivers with a solid foundation they can then use to keep their cars running strong.

Routine service typically includes tire rotation, oil changes and topping off of fluids. So just how long between service appointments can a car go? Here are some generalized estimates.

- Oil change: Oil chemistry and engine technology have improved so much that most cars can go well beyond the once-recommended 3,000 mile interval between oil changes. Now many vehicle manufacturers recommend between 5,000 and 10,000 miles between changes, advises Edmunds. Drivers should err on the side of caution if they do a lot of stop-and-go driving and short trips. Other drivers may want to invest in vehicles that have oil change maintenance minders built in. A light or countdown will come on the dashboard, indicating when the oil has reached the end of its usefulness.

- Tire rotation: Rotating tires helps prolong the life of the tires and alleviates uneven tread and wear. During the rotation, each tire is removed and relocated to a different position to ensure that all the tires will wear evenly. Michelin Tires states that tires should be rotated around every six months, or between 6,000 and 8,000 miles.

- Vehicle fluids: Your best bet is to see what the manufacturer recommends in regard to fluids such as transmission fluid, differential oil, brake fluids, coolant, etc. Some transmissions need regular maintenance, while others can go 150,000 miles between changes, according to the vehicle information site The Drive. Coolant typically can last 100,000 miles. For these types of changes, it may be best to go to a mechanic or service center familiar with your make and model rather than a quick-lube center, as knowing when to drain and refill can be more complicated.

Service schedules can be designed to adhere to manufacturers' recommendations and drivers' personal preferences.

Bass travels

Sheehan developed a love for the bass guitar as a kid growing up in Buffalo. While kids daydream of being rockstars, they typically imagine themselves as the lead singer, perhaps show off their prowess at shredding a mean air guitar, or wow playground girlfriends with an imaginary drum solo. However, Sheehan's first memory is that of the bass guitar's sound.

Sheehan recalls how he could hear his neighbor rehearsing with his band at night. His neighbor was a bass player.

"I could hear the bass at night," Sheehan remembers, "because, bass travels. I was a little kid, so I would have to go to bed but I could hear the songs out in the distance." He compared the experience to the concussive thump from a car stereo subwoofer. "I just loved the sound." It was the sound that "moved things around" as you played it. The shake and rattle in the room. "You'd really move the whole building," he said.

When he visited his neighbor, he learned why. He came across the instruments and picked up the bass guitar. It was "big, fat and giant" with thick chords. He then compared it to the guitar in the room.

Sheehan, far right, on stage with Talas after a recent show.

"The guitar was this tiny, little thing with thin strings like a Velveeta cheese cutter," said Sheehan. "And, the guitar amp was this tiny, little thing [while] the bass amp was this giant Fender Dual Showman. It just impressed me."

Sheehan recognizes why bassists are often under-appreciated. It's the ease in which his instrument can be learned. A player can go without learning chord shapes, or the difference between major and minor scales. Because some bassists have often learned to survive by learning a few notes, the whole has earned a reputation of being the least competent musician in the band. But, he owns a different reputation.

Sheehan's story began soon after starting out with Talas. The power trio initially earned its name while performing gigs in the Buffalo and Rochester scenes playing covers from The Who. Through time, the original songs were introduced to the setlist. Sheehan had since modified his instrument and developed innovative techniques. He was two-handed tapping, three-finger picking and chording like a lead guitarist. He was playing bass solos.

In the years since Guitar Player magazine first published in 1967, Sheehan has earned the readers' choice as "Best Rock Bass Player" five times. It's an easy instrument, he said. But, he also said it has limitless potential.

"Bass players sometimes have the reputation of being the least competent musician in the band," said Sheehan. "It's not always true. In fact, some of the greatest and most successful players are [Paul] McCartney, Sting, Lemmy [Kilmister], Geddy Lee, Steve Harris. They're bass players, and it just shows that the instrument really is unlimited in its potential."

The bass travels

The blue and white thruway signs that dot across the Empire State show a jagged line cutting across New York's profile. When President Dwight Eisenhower conceived the idea of superhighways across the country, it was to better prepare the union for a potential war. What the retired general failed to envision was that the network later served as a great conduit between music scenes. After a decade of playing, Talas' reputation grew throughout the communities chain linked across the New York state Thruway.

By the late 70s, Talas was the go-to band in Buffalo. With the help of a young Harvey Weinstein as its manager, the band opened for UFO, Blue Oyster Cult, Triumph Aerosmith and Iron Maiden. A young Irish band named after a spy plane once opened for them, a story Sheehan often shared but was never believed to be true. In 1980, Weinstein arranged a connection that later allowed Talas to open 30 shows on a tour with Van Halen. It established a relationship that would later lead Sheehan to connect with Van Halen frontman David Lee Roth after his storied departure following the release of "1984."

Despite the national attention, Talas fizzled after the 1980 tour. The band remained unsigned by a major record label and couldn't seem to escape Buffalo. By 1983, the band's lineup changed. The band consisted of Rochester natives, vocalist Phil Naro, drummer "Machine Gun" Mark Miller, guitarist Johnny Angel and Sheehan at bass. Just before Talas was to launch a nationwide tour with Yngwie Malmsteen, Sheehan received a phone call beckoning him to Los Angeles.

Michael Normandin of Stormin Productions remembers that tour as it stopped in Albany. When Normandin learned Talas was scheduling shows around the region for 2019, he reached out and convinced the band to play at Jupiter Hall next Wednesday, March 13.

"It's going to be historic," said Normandin.

A fan of Sheehan, Normandin talks of how he attended Talas' last show in Albany. He remembered it as being a pivotal moment, recalling how the legendary bassist would leave the band to play in a new band with David Lee Roth. At that time, Sheehan said, his impending pairing with Roth was a "state secret." When Sheehan traveled to Los Angeles before the tour, it was to meet with Roth, who had just left Van Halen.

"It was tough keeping that secret, but I managed it somehow," said Sheehan. The band was going to record an album through Gold Mountain/A&M, but once the tour ended, Sheehan broke the news that he would join Roth. "And, of course, they were very happy for me," he said.

Over the years, Sheehan would be associated with UFO, Mr. Big, The Winery Dogs and Sons of Apollo. In the Summer of 2017, Sheehan reunited with Naro and Miller. With guitarist Kire Najdovski on guitar, Talas was together again. It was intended to be for just one night. It's now the lineup that's touring today. Sheehan recalls that last tour nearly 35 years ago.

"A lot of people in the country saw the Talas and Yngwie tour," he said. "It was extremely successful all throughout the USA with that. To this day, I still get emails about it. We had a really wonderful time together."

Sheehan said it's been "a blast" since Talas reunited. The band has tentative plans to record an album with new material. Sheehan is also working on several other projects, one of which involves Michael Portnoy and The Winery Dogs. UFO announced last week it will go on one last tour before frontman Phil Mogg is to leave the band. Sheehan won't be joining the band, but he hasn't ruled out reuniting with Roth again.

"It's up to [Roth]," said Sheehan. "He has our phone numbers. If he decides to do something, myself, Steve and Greg are ready to join him anytime. That would be a blast, I'm sure."

Local favorite Kristen Capolino is a fireball in motion everytime she performs on stage. She is scheduled to perform at Bethel Woods at its Woodstock Anniversary festival in August. However, she will open for Talas on Wednesday, March 13 at Jupiter Hall.
