SABIC leak resembles Ohio incident in which 'catastrophic explosion' avoided

By MICHAEL HALLISEY
halliseym@spotlightnews.com

SELKIRK — The railcar responsible for leaking styrene gas, forcing authorities to issue evacuation orders and scramble several state and federal agencies into action, had sat at the SABIC plastics plant for more than three months.

When compared to the details surrounding a 2005 incident in Cincinnati, Ohio, that time may have played a factor in the accident.

According to the state Department of Conservation's ongoing investigation, the railcar arrived at SABIC on May 26. The railcar containing approximately 180,000 gallons of liquid styrene monomer had remained at the plastics plant since its arrival.

Styrene monomer is transported by tanker car where temperatures are monitored to prevent spontaneous polymerization. It is flammable and highly volatile, so an inhibitor is used to prevent a reaction from occurring. High temperatures and the passage of time, however, will reduce the effect of the inhibitor as it breaks down.

The DEC continues to investigate the cause of the accident. Falling short of attributing cause, a spokesperson proceeded to describe an "exothermic reaction" and its "potential to result in an explosion" when asked to recount the Sept. 1 incident.

Ring the bells for Selkirk Fire

Selkirk Fire District pitches new station with no tax increase

By KAITLIN LEMBO
lembok@spotlightnews.com

SELKIRK — The Fire District is proposing a new station across from Lasher Road on Route 9W and renovations to the existing Station 2 in Glenmont, a project that is projected to cost $11.8 million.

The presented plan includes no tax increase for Selkirk Fire District residents and is aimed at increasing safety and efficiency for the volunteer firefighters that cover the area.

The vote for the station will take place on Oct. 6, from 1 to 9 p.m., at any three of the Selkirk Fire District stations. For more information on the plan, visit selkirkfire2020.org.

“The ability to pay for this new station was built into the budget in the last five years by the commissioners, who knew a new station was imminent,” Daniel Wagoner, captain of Station 1 in Selkirk, said. “We are using the

— David DeCancio, local advocate for new fire station most conservative financial estimates possible. There is absolutely no tax increase for residents.”

Station 3 Captain Rob Messenger showed the proposal to about 40 people last Tuesday. The plan for the new station, which would be located adjacent to A.W. Becker Elementary School, includes a 23,573 square foot building with six drive-through bays. Messenger cited the need for drive-through bays after reading that several Modern equipment barely fits inside fire stations built generations ago.

firefighters across the nation have been killed in accidents where drivers do not see the spotters helping to back the trucks in and hits them. Bays will also be taller, allowing for the evolution of firetruck designs and more space for modern equipment. The proposed headquarters scrapped the bunk rooms and museum mentioned in the failed 2018 plan, which residents voted down an $18 million project with an average tax increase of $100 per resident. The 2020 proposal also scaled down the remaining plans.

Station 2's upgrades include two new, taller, drive-through bays and a re-work of the existing building to allow for more space for decontamination, including walling off the existing bays. The renovation measures 3,276 square feet. Pierce Communications president Jonathan Pierce said none of Selkirk's three stations currently have a decontamination zone, or a place where firefighters coming back from a call can strip down from polluted gear and keep it away from common spaces or their homes.

“There is an increased risk of cancer for firefighters due to the number of toxins they are exposed to,” Messenger said. “It is imperative we provide areas for dirty turnout gear so we don't stay in it any longer than we have to.”

Bob Mitchell, architect for Mitchell Associates Architects in Voorheesville, said move-in day for the new station, if approved, would be around April 2022. If the plan is approved in October, it will take five months for preliminary drawings to be done. After that, the project will go to bid in March. Bidding takes one month, which would put the beginning of construction in April 2021, starting a 12- to 14-month build. From completion, it would take about a year for everything to fall into place.

“This is the time to do this,” Messenger said. “We know a lot is going on right now in the world, but this upgrade and new station is for the safety of our team.”

David DeCancio, a member of a resident committee to help create the proposal, said not approving the plan is “kicking the can down the road,” adding recruitment and retaining existing membership will be hard without upgraded equipment.

Highway czar sorry for $150K overdraft

A $296K pavement bill pushes budget off balance for Feura Bush Road compost facility

By MICHAEL HALLISEY
halliseym@spotlightnews.com

BETHLEHEM — Marc Dorsey will ask the Town Board if he can take $150,000 from capital reserve funds when it meets again on Wednesday, Sept. 23. The first-term superintendent of highways exceeded his budget by that amount and extended his apologies while providing board members with an explanation in his memorandum to them.

The overdraft stems from a $295,722 paving bill Dorsey's department received in August for work done on the town's compost facility on Feura Bush Road. The amount exceeded his budget for the project which was based on a three-year-old estimate.

Town purchasing policy requires unbudgeted projects that are to exceed $20,000 be first approved by the board.

"I sincerely apologize if my understanding of the rules and requirements in this process was incorrect, and if I therefore inadvertently violated town purchasing policy or other rules or laws," Dorsey stated. "I also sincerely apologize for this unexpected, significant expense at this time when the town's budget is already severely stressed."

Shortly after both the town supervisor and comptroller received the nearly $296,000 acquisition order, Supervisor David VanLuven ordered Dorsey to provide an explanation. The explanation provided in

"I sincerely apologize if my understanding of the rules and requirements in this process was incorrect, and if I therefore inadvertently violated town purchasing policy or other rules or laws. I also sincerely apologize for this unexpected, significant expense at this time when the town's budget is already severely stressed."

— Marc Dorsey,
Bethlehem Superintendent of Highways

his Sept. 16 memorandum uploaded to the town's website Friday evening lists several of his reasons, including the highway foreman's "substantially" low estimate of three years ago, an underestimated need for detailed "hand work," and his predecessors' overall neglect of the project.

The highway czar also surmised that costs associated with a stormwater pollution plan may not have been included with the dated estimate.

According to town records, the highway department has a $7.1 million expenditure budget, but it already includes expected costs associated with highway repairs, snow removal, brush pickup and more.

Dorsey expressed a need to act under concern the project would fail to qualify for up to $238,000 in matching funds from the state Department of Environmental Conservation. The town had previously received a one-year extension following the end of last year.

"Which was necessary due to inaction by my predecessors," Dorsey stated.

Dorsey also explained that, because the town previously awarded New Castle Paving to be its in-place contractor, he thought costs were already approved. The highway department employed the paving company because it possessed the tools the town did not have to complete the job. Dorsey also said, had he anticipated the job would exceed the project's budget, he would have sought the board's approval first.

This is not the first instance in which Dorsey has struggled with town finance regulations since taking leadership of the highway department in January. In July, he struck the town's ire after it was revealed he sold equipment prior to the board's approval. When the board approved him to sell off $1,800 of surplus equipment, the check was already in hand.

County Leg lays boom down on fireworks

Law banning ground-based fireworks in Albany County awaits Executive's sign off

By MICHAEL HALLISEY
halliseym@spotlightnews.com

ALBANY — The crash and boom of fireworks that were ever-present in Albany County this summer may not repeat itself next year.

County Legislators voted 33-5 to adopt Local Law H of 2020 prohibiting the use and sale of sparkling devices defined as ground-based fireworks. It includes cylindrical or cone fountains and wooden sparkler/dipped sticks.

The local law repeals a local law adopted in 2016 following the legalization of fireworks in New York State.

"When we adopted the local law in 2016 we were under the impression that sparkling devices would be the small hand-held sparklers, but what we got was much worse. There are fireworks exploding in the street, creating sounds that remind me of the mortar rounds that kept me awake while I served in Iraq. It's unacceptable," Chairman Andrew Joyce said. "I admit that I made a mistake voting for legal sparklers in 2016 and opting out of the legislation is a good first start in keeping our communities quiet and safe."

Co-sponsors Sean Ward and Bill Ricard listed child safety and PTSD as reasons behind the about-face. Ward cited from two recent reports from the NYS Division of Homeland Security and Emergency Services, and the Consumer Product Safety Commission that found 31 percent of firework injuries come from sparklers. What Ward found to be "unacceptable" was the 7 percent of those injured being under 5 years old.

"Albany County

*"When we adopted the local law in 2016 we were under the impression that sparkling devices would be the small hand-held sparklers, but what we got was much worse. residents will be given another tool in the shed that will hopefully keep our neighborhoods quiet and safe," Ricard said. "While at the same time it will help to alleviate the safety hazards associated with the use of these fireworks upon children, along with the PTSD side effects inflicted upon pets and veterans."

The City of Albany and Albany Police Department received 895 calls for fireworks this year, an increase of over 300 percent compared to last year. In addition, APD has had to respond to calls from residents who have mistaken sparkling devices and fireworks for gunshots.

"Since 2016, the notable rise in the use of illegal fireworks and misuse of legal sparkler devices across the county has devalued the quality of life for residents in populated areas subjected throughout the summer months by their use. As fireworks laws differ from the state down to local municipalities, and with law enforcement finding it more difficult to differentiate legal from illegal devices, the crackdown on the use of illegal fireworks starts with a ban of all for safer and healthier neighborhoods for our residents," Co-Sponsor Raymond Joyce said.

Any person who uses a sparkling device can be issued a fine up to $500 and any individual who sells or furnishes a sparkling device to another person can be charged with a misdemeanor, punishable with a fine of $1,000 and 15 days in jail.

Following the vote, the legislation moves to the County Executive for review and approval.

"I am thankful that the legislature has acted swiftly in responding to concerns from local leaders, law enforcement, neighborhood groups and those who suffer from PTSD by making all fireworks illegal in Albany County," Sponsor Matthew Peter said. "While this won't solve all problems or concerns with fireworks in Albany County, it is an important first step. I'm grateful for the support of Chairman Joyce, my fellow co-sponsors and colleagues in the County Legislature for supporting Local Law H."

Red card for fall

BCSD Super firm on moving moderate-risk sports to Fall 2 format in spring

DELMAR — Bethlehem Central will uphold its decision to limit fall competition to low-risk varsity level sports, but it suggested there will be opportunities next spring for those frozen out from playing this autumn.

“Our obligation is to ensure the safety of students and staff and to make sure we don’t jeopardize the successful reopening of our schools,” said Superintendent Jody Monroe. “I think that given the number of schools that have moved to the Fall 2 season, a spring start for these moderate-risk sports would be safer for everyone and would provide a more viable option for a season that could be planned well in advance without the uncertainty we are faced with during this most important transition back to the classroom.”

The announcement was

— Jody Monroe, Bethlehem Central School District Superintendent

made following a public discussion at the Board of Education meeting on Wednesday, Sept. 16. The decision on the return to sports was made by district administrators and did not require the approval of the Board of Education.

To preserve opportunities for student participation in soccer and field hockey – sports classified as moderate-risk by the state — Monroe suggested that the teams will be allowed to play next spring as part of the Fall Season 2 that begins next March.

Fall 2 Season was established by the New York State Public High School Athletic Association to accommodate rescheduling of competition for high-risk sports, such as football and volleyball, and to give school districts and regions postponing moderate- or low-risk fall sports an alternative to a season that would have started in September.

Supporters of the boys’ soccer team, the girls’ soccer team and the field hockey team were invited to speak at the Board of Education meeting.

Barring COVID-related restrictions, Bethlehem will join many school districts across the state that have announced their soccer and field hockey teams will play in the Fall Season 2.

Online computer use is not yet available at the library, but did you know we offer wireless and mobile printing from home? Print jobs can be retrieved during in-person browsing hours or through curbside pickup.

Printing from home is easy and secure, and it can be done from your own computer and most mobile devices – no apps to download and no software to install.

If you are printing from a computer, upload your document to our print portal and follow the onscreen directions. Each print job is given a unique release code, which will be displayed on your screen and emailed to you if you provide an optional email address. For detailed directions and to access the print portal, visit bethlehempubliclibrary.org/services/tech-tools/

To print an email message or attachment, forward your email to bpplinfodesk@printspots.com. You will be sent a release code for the email message and each attachment.

To get your document during in-person browsing hours (currently weekdays from 9:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.), enter the release code on the keypad located next to the printer. You can also use curbside pickup to retrieve your printed items by emailing or calling the Information Desk. A librarian will use your code to print your documents and let you know when they are ready to pick up.

Please note that the release code is only good for 24 hours, and documents left unprinted for more than 24 hours are automatically deleted. If you would like to use the color printer/copier during in-person browsing hours, you can print documents in pdf form from a USB flash drive. Printers are currently located in our entrance hallway.

We know how challenging this school year is shaping up to be. That's why our librarians are working closely with the school district to help families navigating the complexities of full- or part-time remote learning get connected to the online resources that will help them be successful.

There's no need to track down all of these great online learning tools yourself – we've compiled the information you need on our Virtual Learning Resources webpage: bethlehempubliclibrary.org/virtual-learning-resources-for-students. There, you can link to our robust collection of online research tools, or find out how to get homework help and live tutoring through the library's subscription to Brainfuse Help Now. Reference help from one of our librarians is also just a click away, as well as information about requesting library materials for curbside pickup and downloading e-books.

From page 1 ... SABIC

Early photographs from Albany County Sheriffs showed the railcar hitched to several more tankers as firefighters doused it with water in their effort to cool it down. The DEC would neither confirm how high the temperature reached inside the car nor would it say how many more cars contained the monomer.

After the incident, Bethlehem Town Supervisor David VanLuven shared over social media a picture from inside the emergency response room. The picture appears to show representatives from various agencies observing a thermal image, depicting pockets of yellow and orange spots against a field of purple. A label affixed to a crosshair hovering over the brightest spot on the railcar indicated an apparent temperature of 132.7 degrees. Temperatures above the monomer's flashpoint of 88 degrees cause the liquid to form an explosive vapor.

"Exothermic reactions in a closed system have the potential to result in an explosion unless temperature and pressure are properly managed," said Kevin Frazier, a spokesperson for the DEC. "The design purpose of pressure relief valves is to release elevated heat or pressure."

The early morning gas leak prompted authorities to issue evacuation orders to non-essential businesses within a half-mile of the facility and shelter-in-place notices to residents living within an additional mile of the plant.

Representatives from more than a dozen different agencies responded to the accident. They included members of the state DEC, Homeland Security and Emergency Services, New York National Guard Civil Support Team and the governor's office. As firefighters tended to the tanker at the plant, another fleet of emergency vehicles stood at the ready a mile away at Elm Avenue Park.

The heat from a railcar carrying volatile styrene monomer appears to read 132.7 degrees. The liquid material starts to form a combustible gas at 88 degrees. The above image was captured and enhanced from another photo showing authorities monitoring the Sept. 1 gas leak at SABIC.

David VanLuven

The situation was stabilized overnight, allowing authorities to open roadblocks and to let businesses return the following morning. A representative from SABIC later apologized at a press conference but offered no additional information.

In addition to the DEC, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration is conducting a separate investigation.

In recent years, the DEC has fined SABIC for various violations. In 2015, the plant was slapped with a $30,000 fine after open chemical valves were observed to bypass the plant's pollution control system, allowing the release of styrene, xylene, methanol and toluene. That incident followed a series of previous violations in 2011, 2013 and 2014 in which the company was fined a total of $257,000.

SABIC's most recent incident resembles another accident that occurred in Cincinnati in 2005.

In August 2005, authorities closed an airport and evacuated residents within a one-mile radius of a railcar that was observed to be leaking styrene gas.

AristaTek, a hazardous material handling specialist in Wyoming, reviewed the case and determined time played a factor in that accident. After investigating the details of the Cincinnati incident, it determined handlers of the railcar had erred by allowing it to sit for nine months.

In the specialist's report, the inhibitor likely depleted after just three months.

"The safety valve did the job it was designed to do, to release excessive pressure buildup slowly avoiding a catastrophic explosion," stated the AristaTek report. "The error was that the rail car was allowed to sit there for nine months, during which time the inhibitor became depleted."

OBITUARY

Cassidy, Marion

DELMAR — Marion Cassidy, 91, passed into eternal life on September 11, at home surrounded by her loving family.

Marion was the daughter of John and Theresa Hogan. She was a 1948 graduate of St. Peter's Hospital School of Nursing. She met Jack, the love of her life, by flirting on a city bus – in April they celebrated 70 years of marriage.

Marion loved her work as an RN in St. Peter's Emergency Dept. and outpatient clinics, but her greatest joy was the beautiful family life she and Jack created. During their thirty years of retirement, they enjoyed traveling, especially to Australia to visit daughter Jane and her family. The deep and meaningful relationships she cultivated with her grandchildren are a special gift that will live on.

Marion was pre-deceased by her sister Jane. She is survived by her beloved husband Jack, daughters Joanne (Richard) and Jane (John), sons Jack, Mike and Dan (Debbie), 15 grandchildren and 12 great grandchildren.

A private service will be held for the family at St. Thomas the Apostle Church.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, 501 St. Jude Place, Memphis, TN 38105.

Online condolences may be offered to the family at www.danielkeenanfuneralhome.com.

have to go out and pack down snow or ice to make sure the trucks can clear the shorter bays.

"Firefighters cannot currently get in the truck while it's in the bay because it's too narrow and the exhaust from the truck fills the bay relatively quickly," Pierce said. "It's an unsafe practice, but they will get hurt if they get in before it moves outside."

Wagoner said construction and the firehouse will have a limited effect on traffic, citing the average of one call per day between all three stations.

"We are not married to the design shown here and we are happy to make changes to it if that's what residents want," Messenger said. "We can absolutely move things around."

Messenger also addressed questions about a fire department being so close to a school, answering Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk School District officials are on board with the project and hope it will be a good place for kids to triage if there is a problem at A.W. Becker and parents need to pick up their children.

Wagoner concluded it is time for the district to move into the 21st century, asking what future members will think if it's not done now. Selkirk is responsible for the majority of Bethlehem's fire districts, including the Port of Albany and the industrial complex on Creble Road. Panelists cited the recent chemical leak at SABIC as an example of why modern equipment is needed. As development in Bethlehem continues to prosper, the majority of the open land available is located in South Bethlehem.

"This is for my kids, my grandkids and everyone who will be walking through those doors in the future," DeCancio said. "A band aid approach will not solve the problem here. This plan will meet the needs of this district going forward."

If you apologize, you must own it

Marc Dorsey earned his job as Bethlehem's Superintendent of Highways through a vote of confidence from us residents. It's an unusual way compared to how the rest of us interviewed and demonstrated our qualifications. Especially difficult for him was that he never worked for the Town let alone its highway department. But, he had practical experience. More than practical experience, he had leadership qualities honed through a career with the military. This was impressive enough for the public to vote him in over a popular incumbent who was getting the job done.

The 2019 race between Dorsey and Tiger Anastasi is not one you could describe as political. In the case between Dorsey and Tiger, there wasn't much to say. Tiger was an Independent, though he ran on the Republican line, too. Dorsey garnered the Democrats endorsement, and so he appeared on the ballot.

We've heard from many who have run on the Republican line how difficult it is to be Republican today. Whether you agree or not, you must agree that once you identify yourself as Red or Blue you often welcome yourself to a debate. It's just how it is. But, in recent years, Bethlehem has run with Democrats like they once did with Republicans for a near century. As Mel Brooks might say, "It's good to be Blue."

Dorsey has made mistakes since taking office. He sold off equipment before getting the board's approval. When it went to vote, the board didn't know $1,800 of machinery was already sold. Now, he's spent more than what was budgeted for our compost facility. Where he's supposed to ask for approval for anything over $20,000, he blew past that figure and already spent the money.

It's hard to recognize those moments in which you need to ask a question when you feel confident you already have the answer. That happens.

The measure of a man who makes a mistake and sparks the condemnation of those around him is how he responds in the heat of that moment. That's where we read Dorsey's apology and start asking our own questions.

In our book, leaders are individuals who share the accolades with the whole team and take sole responsibility for the mistakes made by it. Harry S Truman said "The buck stops here." He wasn't talking about money. He was talking about responsibility. All the decisions, and the ramifications that come from them, fell upon his shoulders. Read the words of Dorsey's apology and subsequent explanation to the Town Board.

He's passing the buck.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

COVID tests need to be more available

Dear Editor,

I've been in and out of the hospital eight times over the last week for my chronic health condition. Each time I go to the emergency room, I am offered an HIV test. However, when I ask for a COVID-19 test, I am told I am not eligible since I'm not symptomatic. The only way to beat this virus is universal mandatory testing. I was able to get tested at the VA but waited over two hours to get out of the emergency room. This disease is perfect for neurotic New Yorkers. I also think there should be a medical exemption for masking in businesses, but there does not seem to be at this time.

The waning days of summer are often used as literary symbolism for a transition. John Knowles and John Cheever come to mind, writers whose work was introduced to me during my studies in college. Though, in literature fall often forewarns the readers of something ominous, these transitional days in the Capital District welcome opportunities to change, and the promise of an apple cider doughnut.

A sad goodbye to popular drummer

Josh Bloomfield, drummer of Soul Sky, dies at 41

By MICHAEL HALLISEY
halliseym@spotlightnews.com

TROY — Josh Bloomfield was a man of various interests, but the local music scene knew him best as a fine drummer. He was often found behind the drum kit, keeping the beat in check for Soul Sky. In some cosmic sense, he kept true to his timing; he left this world on the same day of the month he came into it — on his birthday, Sept. 15.

He was 41.

Bloomfield was a smaller guy. His obituary pointed to that fact by describing him as “small in stature.” That didn’t stop him from playing football and, later, boxing. His first love, however, was music. And the Troy kid could play.

When news of Bloomfield’s passing spread, there were plenty of names sharing their memories of him. The Staynz’ Brain Goodman remembered how he allowed him an impromptu chance to see his band play from the crowd during a gig at Troy’s Positively Fourth Street.

“Mid song Josh comes over to the drums and grabs some sticks and starts playing with me,” Goodman said. “We get a grove going, so I stand up and he sits down. I walk off stage and go to the front to watch my band.

“Buck Malen looks up, sees me and gives the best look ever,” Goodman said. “He turns around and Josh is in the driver’s seat.”

Close confidants choose to remember Bloomfield for his quick wit, salty demeanor and generous heart. He was “a prolific comedian and master of bantering.” He was also described as someone who was always concerned about the well-being of others.

“Helluva guy and a salty SOB like myself,” Scotty Mac said. “We always got along...helluva drummer, too with the best blues shuffle in town.

“I’m not alone when I say this killed me inside,” he said.

Bloomfield was a graduate of School 14, Troy High School, and some might say Siena College since he spent so much time there with his lifelong friend, Eric Rouleau. He had several jobs over the years. His most recent gig was serving with distinction as a New York State civil servant for the last 15 years.

Family and friends were invited to McLoughlin & Mason Funeral Home and a burial service was held at Eagle Mills Cemetery a few days later.

In lieu of flowers, Bloomfield’s family asked people to donate to the cholangiocarcinoma fund.

Bloomfield is survived by his parents Daniel and Susan Bloomfield, his grandmother Emily Hebert, several aunts, uncles, cousins, beloved pet Hank and the love of his life Tiana.

“The most wonderful son, friend, and forever partner in crime,” said his father, Daniel. “I can’t say enough about the best guy in the whole world. I love you so much. My heart is broken beyond repair. I love you son, you’ll be with many friends in heaven. I’ll never forget you pal. Mom and I will love you for eternity. Goodbye for now. Rest easy Bud.”

Bloomfield played for several more bands throughout the years. In his last show, he played drums for for Soul Serenade at Powers Park last month. Sitting down, he snapped a picture from behind the drum kit. Symbols and tom drums shining under the lights. The Lansingburgh crowd hidden from view under a dark, summer night. It’s one of the last photos on his Facebook page.

From page 1B ... Welcome to apple season

This time of year reminds me of weekend drives up north with a car stuffed with the life essentials a 20-something needs for college life in the dorms. The two-plus hour drive was marked by apple trees. Just as we grew tired of the mountains, we'd be greeted by hundreds of apple trees after descending from the Adirondacks. It was always the harbinger of a new year, new experiences. When the north wind breaks through the last of the summer heat, these are the days I remember. The next best thing is spending time on one of our local apple orchards.

Pittsburgh babies are born with a Steelers' "Terrible Towel." New Yorkers are born with an apple. Our Hudson Valley is ripe for apple lovers. When Johnny Appleseed went walking through the valleys, as evident by the abundance of orchards in our neighborhood, he spent most of his time here. Only Washington produces more apples. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, New York produces nearly 30 million bushels each year, grown on 55,000 acres across the Empire State.

The Capital District is blessed with a healthy balance between the urban and rural that allows us all to take a short drive to reconnect with the country. That means, we're never too far from a good place to pick apples. But, there's more to it than just walking through the rows of trees with a bag in hand. Many of these places feature plenty of other activities in which families can partake.

Hayrides, corn mazes, petting zoos, hard cider bars and live music — have become staple activities to expect at any one of these locations. However, with the world still in the grip of a pandemic, some of these activities are either limited or postponed. Nonetheless, if you can exhibit safe social distancing and follow the respective rules of these establishments, I'm certain they would welcome your business and support.

As one of the owners of this family-run orchard told me, this place was built from love.

Jim Abbruzzese's mother, Ellen, gave his father, Joe, an ultimatum more than 50 years ago. If he didn't sell his bar, she wouldn't marry him. It wasn't just a bar, it had the first television in town. It was making money.

"She wasn't going to marry a drunk — or a guy who served drunks," he said with a laugh. And, as it turns out, his father sold the bar and married his mother. "That's love," he said.

The history of this land, located at the base of the Helderberg Escarpment outside of Altamont, goes back to Stephen Van Rensselaer in the 1700s. An ambitious doctor named Daniel Cook turned it into an apple orchard a hundred years ago. Now it's a place for banquets, golfing, marketing and apple picking.

Golden Harvest is a required stop for antique pickers driving south on Route 9 to Hudson. On any given day, you're likely to see a balloon tethered to the farm, marking its place along your journey long before you realize what you see.

The roadstand has been around since 1957. It's a place apple lovers can stop to pick up a quick bushel before returning home from the road. The bakery has been popping out cider doughnuts since 1988. Douglas Grout started doing that with just one machine and a mixer. Today, John Henry has the bakery humming to the tune of five doughnut making machines. There's also five convection ovens kicking out muffins, cookies and pies.

Come November, the bakery takes advance pie orders for Thanksgiving, when it traditionally dishes out hundreds of pies.

Just a note, there is no pick your own apples available this year, according to the farm's website.

The Helderberg Escarpment is just as much a part of the Albany skyline as the Corning Tower. Growing up here, you also recognize it as the direction to go to visit Indian Ladder Farms.

It's a family tradition to make this trip. There are trails and various animals for kids to feed. Rosie, the farm's beloved Scottish Highland cow, had been a welcome sight for families. Sadly, she passed away, but the farm continues to remember her by offering a plush toy at their market. The farm allows visitors to pick apples, berries and pumpkins, too.

Indian Ladder Farms has been around for a century, but it's been hip to recent trends over the years. WEQX had often broadcast radio shows from the barn. It's been hosting a bit of the nightlife with live music and hard cider beverages from the Indian Ladder Farms Cidery & Brewery tasting room.

So, this was going to be a Top 5 list, but I'm consumed by cravings for apple pie. I just can't anymore.

The market is front-and-center once you park the car. It's where you're going to find all the goods you don't dare try to bake yourself — if you're like me. You can pick up your fresh fruits and vegetables here, but I'm talking about the baked goods. The pies. Or — if you're not like me — you can get out into the fields and pick up the ingredients to make your own pie. OK. Can we change the subject now, please?

Picking season starts in June at Kristy's Barn, where visitors can walk away with their choice of strawberries. The season transitions from strawberries to raspberries in July, then to peaches before September brings apples, tomatoes and pumpkins. On a nice day, you're bound to enjoy a pleasant hayride or start up a conversation with one of their goats. Live music can often be had from just outside the market, too. So, there's more to the experience than what was parodied by Saturday Night Live last year. Disregard what they did.

But, that skit's funny, though, right?

about 25 minutes.

Brush the grilled side of the pizza crust with the remaining olive oil. Dust with the parmesan and sprinkle with the mozzarella. Spoon the boursin on top, without spreading it. Pile the roasted vegetables over the pizza.

The grill should still be hot from grilling the crust. Cook the pizza over medium heat or indirect heat for around 5 to 8 minutes. Check it after 1 minute by gently lifting up an edge of the crust with tongs or a spatula. If it is turning dark quickly, your fire is too hot. Move the pizza around the grill to get away from the heat. When the pizza is done, the crust will be crispy.

Before serving, garnish with the fennel tops.

Basic Grilled Pizza Dough

Ingredients: two 12-inch crusts

- 3/4 cup warm water
- 1 packet active dry yeast (about 2 1/4 teaspoons)
- 1/2 teaspoon sugar
- 1 1/2 cups unbleached flour
- 1/4 cup whole wheat flour
- 1 teaspoon kosher salt
- 2 tablespoons cornmeal, preferably white, plus additional for the pan
- 2 tablespoons extra virgin olive oil, plus 1/4 teaspoon for the bowl

Instructions

Pour the warm water into a small bowl or measuring cup. Add the yeast and sugar and stir until the yeast dissolves into a smooth beige color. Let it stand on your counter for about 5 minutes to prove that the yeasted water is active. A thin layer of foam will appear at the top, indicating the batch is good.

Measure the flours, salt and cornmeal into a large bowl. Add the yeasted water and the 2 tablespoons of olive oil. Mix well, stirring with a strong spoon. Lightly flour a clean, dry countertop. Form a ball of dough, place it on the counter, and press down with the palm of your hand. Fold the dough over itself and press again. Continue to roll and press the dough for about 8 minutes until the dough is smooth. Add only enough flour to prevent it from sticking.

Put the remaining 1/4 teaspoon of olive oil in a medium bowl. The dough will be sticky, so flour your hands before picking it up, and place it in the bowl. Turn over several times until it is coated in oil. This prevents a crust from forming on its surface.

Cover with plastic wrap, and place in a draft-free, warm place, for 2 hours, until it rises to almost double in appearance.

Chill the dough in the refrigerator overnight, or for 1 hour to firm up. Since this dough is slightly sticky, chilling the dough makes it easier to roll out.

Roll half of the dough out to about 12 x 12 inches. (This recipe makes two crusts)

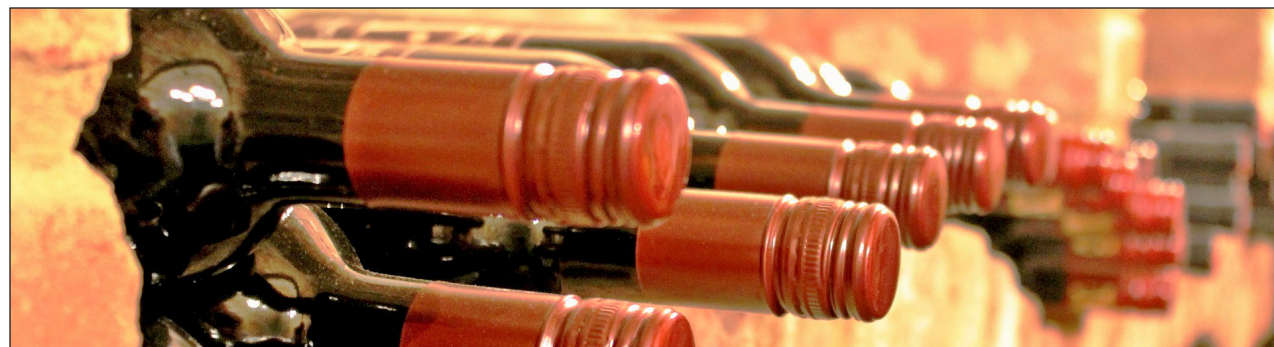

Grill the dough on an inside or outside grill that has reached around 400° F. The dough should take about 3 minutes to cook. Watch for bubbles. To check whether your crust is done, lift the underside. It should be an even light brown with brown grill marks. A charred crust adds to the flavor.

Pick up the crust from the middle, using tongs, and place it on a cookie sheet. Flip it over so the grilled side is face up. This browned side becomes the top of your pizza.
