Estate Planning To-Dos

By ANDREW ALESSI,
CFP® Senior Vice President and Capital Region Market Leader,
Key Private Bank

Andrew Alessi

The biggest misconception people have about estate planning is that “they are not that old and can do it later,” say almost half (49%) of advisors in a recent Key Private Bank Advisor Poll on estate planning. Yet, the majority (73%) of advisors say the ideal age to start putting an estate plan in place is before 40—earlier than many people think.

Estate planning can be a sensitive and complex topic for families to address. Poll results confirmed this fact, with 39% of advisors saying adult children stress over a parent’s reaction in raising the topic, and one-quarter (24%) saying families are concerned about not knowing where to start from a tactical standpoint.

With potentially significant changes coming to estate and gift tax rules under the Biden administration, now may be a perfect time to enact—or update—your estate plan. Failing to do so could lead to a costly missed opportunity.

If you are unsure where to begin, here are some financial planning to-dos that high-net-worth individuals and their families must tackle for their estate plans. Each of these to-dos were ranked in order of priority by advisors experienced with estate planning.

Meet with a financial advisor and an estate planning attorney to discuss your wishes

The biggest estate planning mistake is having no plan at all, say four in ten advisors (43%), pointing to an urgent need to proactively start estate planning discussions.

Yet, the top triggers for estate planning conversations are financial advisors raising the topic (29%) and life-altering events, such as a car accident or health crisis.

If you already have a plan in place, remember to regularly connect with your advisor and attorney to keep it up to date with the changes in your life—60% of advisors say half or fewer than half of their clients have reviewed their plans in the last five years.

Designate a financial and healthcare power of attorney

Estate plans contain multiple components that may overlap, including long-term care plans and powers of attorney, which define who has decision-making power in the event of a medical emergency.

Decide on and draft healthcare directives

According to Key Private Bank’s previous Advisor Poll on long-term care planning, six in ten advisors (58%) say fewer than 25% of their clients have a long-term care plan—which could potentially be used to address the client’s healthcare directives.

With the cost of care expected to continue to increase, it is important to make your healthcare and long-term care wishes clear now. Work with your advisor to create a financial plan that incorporates your wishes and factors them into your estate plan.

Create a will

A will can be considered one of the foundational aspects of estate planning, but often, it is the only step that people take. More than one-third (35%) of advisors say the biggest misconception about estate planning is that a will can oversee the distribution of all assets. While a will remains a necessity, it is critical to think about estate plans holistically—as more than just a will.

One modern aspect of financial planning that can be overlooked in wills and estate plans is digital assets. As more of our personal and financial information goes online, high-net-worth individuals should be taking inventory of digital assets.

Determine and regularly update beneficiary designations

As part of estate planning, an advisor can help high-net worth individuals designate beneficiaries for assets, like retirement plans. Contrary to what some may believe, an estate plan—including beneficiaries—can be changed after the plan is initially put in place. In fact, a regular review of estate plans is highly-recommended—35% of advisors say the biggest estate planning mistake is not updating documents.

To further that point, 9% of advisors say the biggest estate planning mistake is having outdated beneficiaries, underscoring the need to review estate plans and designated beneficiaries with advisors and attorneys on a regular basis.

Determine whether to create a trust

A trust is another foundational, yet optional, component of estate planning. Determining whether a trust is appropriate could be a matter of understanding and exploring your wishes for the next generation.

Four in ten (39%) advisors say half or fewer than half of estate plans capture their clients’ values in transferring their wealth to the next generation. Additionally, 60% of advisors recommend clients devote more attention to informing younger generations about caregiving or legacy preferences, according to Key Private Bank’s previous Advisor Poll on generational wealth.

Plan asset ownership

Most advisors (77%) say the hardest part of estate planning is navigating interfamily dynamics. These issues can become even more complicated when dealing with elaborate family structures, like multiple marriages and blended families. Divvying assets along family lines in these instances can often suggest that “equal” does not mean “fair.”

Still, asset ownership is core to estate planning, and advisors are well positioned to help high-net-worth individuals and their families steer the dynamics of doing so.

Communicate with heirs

A majority of advisors say that communicating wishes openly and honestly with family members is one of the most difficult parts of estate planning, at 57%. Additionally, most advisors say only some or hardly any clients are having open conversations about estate plans with children and family members, and only some or hardly any are doing so with their advisors present (81% and 83%, respectively).

Remember, advisors play an essential role in not just estate planning, but also guiding high-net-worth families through challenging financial conversations.

'You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown' to be performed by BCMS students

DELMAR — Students from the Bethlehem Central Middle School will take the stage for an outdoor musical production of "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown."

When the student actors take the stage on Friday, May 28, it will be the first time students have returned to the BCMS stage since January of 2020.

"It was over a year ago that we saw the lights go out on Broadway, as well as theaters — large and small — across the country due to the pandemic. And I think one of the many lessons we learned over the last year is how important arts educational experiences are to students academically, socially and emotionally," said Director and Choreographer Lindsay Dashew. "I am very proud of this group of students — we worked together to find a safe way to return to the stage and put on a show that is very relatable to so many of their classmates."

With wit, charm and heart, "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown" explores life through the eyes of Charlie Brown and his friends in the Peanuts gang, who reflect on life's great questions as they play baseball, struggle with homework, sing songs, swoon over their crushes and celebrate the joy of friendship. The performance, based on the comic strip Peanuts by Charles M. Schulz, was later adapted into a book before ultimately a musical by Clark Gesner. Michael Mayer is credited with providing additional

Sometime between the Tuesday night and early Wednesday morning, May 11 and 12, a 400-foot swath of Normanskill clay broke loose behind the neighborhood. No houses were damaged, but the slope that used to roll 40 feet down to a small creek feeding into the Normanskill is now a cliff.

“We were going to put a platform in our backyard so we could enjoy the beautiful view back there,” a homeowner, who didn’t want their name used, said. “Now I am glad we didn’t.”

Town engineers are assessing the landscape to determine the stability of the cliffside that now remains.

“We were going to put a platform in our backyard so we could enjoy the beautiful view back there. Now I am glad we didn’t.”

— Groesbeck resident

National Grid crews worked past midnight on Wednesday, severing power lines running along the cliffside to temporary poles erected in front of neighborhood homes. According to the power company, none of the approximate 12 households lost power, but the position of the utility poles was a concern.

“Right now, we’re okay,”

said Patrick Stella, public information officer for National Grid. The power company may have to redesign how it runs its power lines through the neighborhood, he said. “We’re just going to have to wait and see.”

The cul-de-sac neighborhood has already experienced congestion from curious visitors. With crews working within the neighborhood, the town has asked the public to stay away.

The area around the Normanskill and the streams that feed into it are susceptible to landslides. One of considerable note impacted the community after more than 100,000 cubic feet of hillside crumbled into the ravine in 2000 and closed a portion of Delaware Avenue.

State engineers attributed that landslide’s cause to “a massive soil failure.” It forced commuters to take alternative routes as the four-lane stretch of Delaware Avenue was reduced to two lanes. It took six months to stabilize and clean up the area at a cost of more than $25 million.

Asbestos removal at Town Hall

DELMAR — Bethlehem Town Hall’s front door will be closed for a few weeks, but that doesn’t mean you can’t use the side door.

Professional asbestos abatement from a crawlspace deep in the Town Hall basement started last Monday and is expected to last as long as three weeks.

Town officials have asked visitors to use the side entrance toward the back of Town Hall, across from the picnic tables at the pocket park. Several of the parking spaces immediately beside Town Hall will be unavailable during this time.

Motorist walks away after allegedly driving in front of tractor trailer

GLENMONT — No one was hurt after, what Bethlehem Police said, a motorist pulled out in front of an oncoming tractor trailer on Route 9W on Friday, May 14.

Bethlehem Police Commander James Rexford

stated a car driven by a 78-year-old motorist from Selkirk pulled out of the parking lot at 1155 Route 9W to head north. But, as the driver pulled out, the car crossed in the path of a tractor trailer that was travelling southbound.

The driver was evaluated by emergency crews and released after being issued a ticket for failing to yield the right of way. The driver of the tractor trailer was uninjured and no citations were issued.

TOWN GOVERNMENT

Petition to drive Road Diet bond to vote

Group collects nearly 1,500 signatures on petition

By MICHAEL HALLISEY
halliseym@spotlightnews.com

DELMAR —

Residents pushing to drive the Delaware Avenue Complete Streets and Road Diet referendum to a public vote submitted petitions to Town Hall last week.

The Petition for Town Vote Coalition said it submitted a 186-page packet to Town Hall on Wednesday, May 12. The packet included nearly 1,500 signatures, enough to drive the referendum to a public vote.

Steve Peterson, a town resident helping with the coalition, said the process was “witnessed by a few of our citizen volunteers, [and] it was properly and officially delivered and received.”

The town has yet to decide how to reline the highway. One option is to convert the existing four-lane road to two, opposing traffic lanes with a middle two-way left-turn lane. Another is to continue allowing two lanes for inbound traffic from Albany while reducing outbound traffic to one. There is a third option — leave the roadway as is.

Proponents laud the road diet as a means of converting the 1.3-mile stretch of roadway between Elsmere Avenue and the Albany City Line as a pedestrian-friendly community street. Opponents, including business owners dependent on that traffic, are concerned motorists will be deterred from visiting their storefronts.

The town first had to pass a $5.2 million bond resolution to fund the project. The money promised by the state and federal levels — all but $728,000 of the proposed cost — are paid later to reimburse the town.

The Town Board approved the bond resolution for the project by a 4-1 vote at its meeting last month. However, under finance law, the resolution is subject to permissive referendum, meaning it could go before town residents for a vote, but only if the Town Board received enough petitioned signatures.

According to Section 91 of Bethlehem Town Code, residents had 30 days from April 14 to file a petition with the town clerk and force the issue to a vote.

The petition required 5 per centum of the total vote cast in town for governor in 2018. Based on records from the Albany County Board of Elections, 17,309 residents had cast a vote in the 2018 gubernatorial race. The petition required approximately 866 signatures.

ENVIRONMENT

Normal temps warmer

ALBANY — A new report released last week by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration shows that the United States is getting warmer and parts of it are getting wetter.

NOAA’s “new normals” set of data tracks changes in the U.S. climate over a 30-year period. The latest report is based on data from 1991 to 2020 and replaces the 1981 to 2010 report. It shows a small, but noticeable warming trend across much of the country, which is consistent with the majority of NOAA’s previous reports over the last 100 years.

“The changes in NOAA’s new report are only a degree or less but can still have a big impact, especially when much of the past century has seen steadily increasing temperatures, with the most pronounced changes occurring in the past several decades,” said Nick Bassill, a meteorologist at the University at Albany.

Bassill is the director of UAlbany’s Center of Excellence in Weather & Climate Analytics. He also works closely with the NYS Mesonet, which is headquartered on campus and includes a network of 126 standard weather observation stations across the state.

“The unfortunate thing is that this does not make a bigger splash, even though it’s almost universally accepted that the new climate normals were going to come in warmer than the last report,” Bassill said. “While some may dispute the exact amount the change is related to climate change vs. natural variability, it’s likely that this trend is driven in large part by climate change on a global scale.”

This new report will have a direct impact on New York’s weather and climate projections, according to Bassill.

“It’s likely that our NYS Mesonet stations will see a subtle, yet consistent, increase in expected average temperatures. Warmer temperatures, along with precipitation increases, are generally expected for the northeast U.S.”

The mission of the New York State Mesonet is to serve the state of New York by providing the best meteorological data, the best products, and the best services possible with the goal of saving lives and property while building a smart weather economy. At its core, the NYSM is a highly dedicated, cross-disciplinary team aspiring to set the worldwide standard of excellence for data quality. With its unique focus on research to operations, preventive maintenance, and state-of-the-art quality control efforts, the NYSM utilizes these high quality weather data to create end products designed to improve forecast accuracy, reduce uncertainty, and mitigate harm. In collaboration with government, academic, and commercial partners, the NYSM is solving real-world problems in agriculture, emergency management, energy, public health, and transportation, improving the well being and livelihood of all.

DEC campaign urges phosphorus-free fertilizer

ALBANY — New York State Department of Environmental Conservation Commissioner Basil Seggos recently announced the launch of the annual “Look for the Zero” public awareness campaign to encourage homeowners to go phosphorus-free when using lawn fertilizer. DEC is encouraging consumers to review bag labels for phosphorus content when shopping for fertilizer. Fertilizer labels have three numbers and the number in the middle is the percentage of phosphorus in the product, such as: 22-0-15. More than 100 water bodies in New York State cannot be used or enjoyed because of phosphorus overuse.

“Despite some recent winter-like weather, spring is here and property owners are outside working to make sure their lawns look good,” said Commissioner Seggos. “But there’s more to it than just green grass. We want New Yorkers to look for the zero on the fertilizer bag before bringing it home. Excess phosphorus is a threat to many New York waterbodies, triggering algae blooms and sometimes rendering waters un-swimmable and un-fishable. If New Yorkers implement sustainable lawn care methods, we can help dramatically reduce phosphorus and pesticide use on lawns, which will protect water quality and public health while maintaining healthy backyards.”

DEC introduced the Look for the Zero campaign in 2017, with a public service announcement (leaves DEC website) that shows the effects of fertilizer runoff on New York’s waterbodies.

New York’s nutrient runoff law prohibits the use of phosphorus lawn fertilizers unless a new lawn is being established or a soil test shows the lawn does not have enough phosphorus. Generally, only newly established lawns or those with poor soil need phosphorus.

Town Board hears an emphatic 'No'

Residents fear affordable housing plan won't succeed at its proposed Selkirk location

By MICHAEL HALLISEY
halliseym@spotlightnews.com

DELMAR — The overwhelming response against a proposed affordable housing project leaves to question its future, let alone the amendment its developers was hoping for in order to proceed.

That amendment, however, is all but scrapped.

"Honestly, I agree with many of the comments tonight," said Town Board member Maureen Cunningham, adding that she wanted to hear from residents before acting upon her own reservations to the proposed amendment. "I'm just going to come out and say it, I'm a no-vote on this."

The Town Board will vote on the proposed amendment on Wednesday, June 9.

Town Board members spent nearly 90 minutes listening to comments from residents deliberating over a proposed amendment to the town's 12-month development moratorium. The amendment was drafted last month to address a 72-unit affordable housing plan proposed off of Route 9W in Selkirk, within the RCS school district.

Those who spoke out at the Town Board meeting on Wednesday, May 12, often prefaced their opposition to the project by acknowledging the need for affordable housing in town. However, they all pointed to several factors to which they felt the particular proposal appeared inadequate — lack of public transportation, no walkability, and its distance away from grocery stores.

CDTA has provided a "shopping bus" between Ravena and points throughout Albany County. Route 813 is a shuttle that takes customers to Colonie Center and Crossgates Mall each Tuesday. However, as of Monday, May 17, the service is not available.

The development, proposed for 939 Route 9W in Selkirk, is on a stretch of road without sidewalks. Even if sidewalks were to be installed, from its location just south of the Jericho Drive In, it would be nearly 3 miles away from the nearest grocery store in Bethlehem Center.

Opposition to the development was profound, both in the meeting and from the letter Town Board members received during the week. Town Board member Dan Coffey said he remained "conflicted" after hearing from the residents. Though he understood the need for affordable housing, "100 percent" of the letters he received before the meeting opposed the idea.

One of those voices asking the Town Board to vote no on the proposed amendment was County Legislator Matthew Miller (D-Selkirk).

Miller, who in addition to representing Selkirk on the Legislature is a teacher at RCS High School, seemed almost critical of comments made by Town Planning Board Chairman Brian Gyory, who said it did not matter which school district the plan fell under. The legislator, however, said considerations "really need to be thought about much more deeply."

NRP Group's site plan and subdivision application was under the Planning Board's review when the Town passed the moratorium last December, halting the developer's plans for a full year. Without the prospect of its plan earning approval, the developer stands to lose tax credit financing that can't be extended beyond December.

NRP Group plans to build 72 affordable housing units at 939 Route 9W, south of Jericho Drive-In and across the street from Elmwood Cemetery in Selkirk. The project is to provide housing for households earning incomes in the range of $20,000 to $56,000. Rents will range from $500 to $1,400 per month for apartments that vary between one and three bedrooms.

The need for affordable housing was identified in a report the town commissioned in 2019. In the report, the Capital District Regional Planning Commission stated how the average county resident would find it difficult to purchase or rent property in Bethlehem.

The town was identified as a housing opportunity area by New York State Office of Homes and Community Renewal due to its high-performing school districts and as an area experiencing economic growth, which attracted the project to locate in the town.

According to Realtor.com, the median list price of homes in Bethlehem was approximately $336,000 in April, and the price is going up. The real estate website states year-over-year trends have asking prices going up 11.4 percent.

The price for an average home in Bethlehem is high compared to neighboring communities. Asking prices for the average home in Guilderland, Colonie, and Coeymans are $294,000, $260,000 and $150,000. For all of Albany County, a single-family home is on the market for $249,000.

But, RCS may not be considered among the "high performing" schools described by the state. In a recent U.S. News and World Report ranking, RCS High School was ranked considerably lower than the other two high schools that serve the town.

In the magazine's scoring system — which includes college preparedness, math and reading performance, and graduation rates — RCS scored 27.34 out of a possible 100. Bethlehem Central and Guilderland scored 94.95 and 80.8, respectively.

The RCS school district covers nearly half of the Memorial Day plans don't include parade

DELMAR — Though there will be no Memorial Day parade running through Bethlehem this year, there will still be events for Monday, May 31.

The American Legion Post 1040 Blanchard-Currey Post and Delmar Veterans and Foreign Wars Post 3185 have a tentative schedule that includes honoring the late Francis Currey, recipient of the U.S. Congressional Medal of Honor.

Events start at 9:30 a.m. at the South Bethlehem Cemetery, Currey's final resting place. Another such visit is to follow at 10:30 a.m. at the Bethlehem Cemetery to visit the grave of Nathaniel Adams Blanchard, after whom the American Legion Post is named.

The day concludes with a ceremony commemorating the raising of a new American flag over the Bethlehem Veterans Park off Delaware Avenue in Delmar, at 11:30 a.m.

Reverend Mark Muller, from Bethlehem Lutheran Church, will preside at each of the three ceremonies.

Legion Hall will be open for an open house after each of the three Memorial Day events, including food and beverages.

FCC launches Emergency Broadband Benefit program

ALBANY — The emergence of the COVID-19 pandemic, and the shutdowns that followed, revealed a glaring need for bolstering broadband internet access community-wide.

The program launched on May 12 to allow eligible households to enroll in the Emergency Broadband Benefit Program to receive a monthly discount off the cost of broadband service from an approved provider.

Eligible households can enroll through an approved provider or by visiting <https://getemergencybroadband.org>.

The Emergency Broadband Benefit Program will provide eligible households with discounts of up to $50 a month for broadband service, and up to $75 a month if the household is on Tribal lands. It also will provide a one-time discount of up to $100 on a computer or tablet for eligible households.

free lunch and special education programs as a result.

"There are many aspects to discuss about the project itself," Miller said, "but for the moratorium... I would ask that you not support this amendment."

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Pioneer in cancer therapy to address Albany Med's Class of 2021

ALBANY — Dr. Carl June, M.D., widely regarded as a pioneer in the field of cancer cell therapy, will deliver the keynote address at Albany Medical College's virtual commencement ceremonies Thursday, May 27.

June currently serves as the Richard W. Vague Professor in Immunotherapy in the Department of Pathology and Laboratory Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania's Perelman School of Medicine, director of the Center for Cellular Immunotherapies at the Abramson Cancer Center and director of the Parker Institute for Cancer Immunotherapy at Penn.

June, a recipient of the 2018 Albany Medical Center Prize in Medicine and Biomedical Research, will also receive an honorary degree in absentia.

June's lab conducted the first clinical evaluation of gene-modified T cells, initially in people with HIV/AIDS and then in patients with advanced leukemia, using chimeric antigen receptor T cell therapy. This cellular therapy, which retrains a patient's own immune cells to attack cancer, was awarded "Breakthrough Therapy" status by the FDA for acute leukemia in children and adults in 2014 and was approved as the first personalized cellular therapy for cancer in 2017. It is now in use for the treatment of pediatric and adult blood cancer patients worldwide.

June is a graduate of the Naval Academy in Annapolis and Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. He completed graduate training in immunology and malaria at the World Health Organization in Geneva, Switzerland, and post-doctoral training in transplantation biology at the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center in Seattle.

Also addressing the graduates will be Vincent Verdile, M.D., The Lynne and Mark Groban, M.D., Distinguished Dean at Albany Medical College, and Maggie Gillis, vice chair of Albany Med's Board of Directors, and student representatives from the class of 2021.

Albany Medical College expects to award more than 200 degrees, including medical degrees, Master of Science degrees in Physician Assistant Studies, Nurse Anesthesiology and Bioethics, and Master of Science and doctoral degrees in Biomedical Science and Bioethics.

American National announces First Quarter results

GALVESTON, Texas — American National Group, Inc. and subsidiaries announced net income for the first quarter of 2021 of $170.2 million or $6.33 per diluted share, compared to a net loss of $220.4 million or $8.20 loss per diluted share for the same period in 2020.

The increase in net income for the first quarter of 2021 was primarily attributable to an increase in the value of the company's equity security portfolio during the first quarter of 2021 which generated after-tax net gains of $75.8 million or $2.82 per diluted share, compared to a loss on equity securities of $262.7 million or $9.77 loss per diluted share for the same period in 2020. The after-tax net loss on equity securities in the first quarter of 2020 was driven by the negative impact in financial markets associated with COVID-19.

In addition, net income for the first quarter of 2021 included after-tax net realized investment earnings of $17.1 million or $0.64 per diluted share, compared to net realized investment losses of $26.5 million or $0.99 per diluted share for the same period in 2020. In the first quarter of 2020, the net realized investment losses were caused by the company's estimated credit loss of $38.2 million or $1.42 per diluted share primarily attributable to commercial mortgage loans.

After-tax adjusted net operating income for the first quarter of 2021 was $77.3 million or $2.87 per diluted share compared to $68.8 million or $2.56 per diluted share for the same period in 2020. The increase in adjusted net operating income reflects an improvement in our annuity and health segment earnings partially offset by higher mortality in our life segment and increased catastrophe claims in our property and casualty segment. For the first quarter of 2021, total life insurance in force increased by $2.2 billion to $130.4 billion, and book value per share increased $1.73 to $241.93.

Owens Corning delivered $1.9B net sales

TOLEDO, Ohio — Owens Corning reported consolidated net sales of $1.9 billion in its first quarter report to shareholders recently, an increase of 20 percent compared with 2020.

First-quarter 2021 net earnings attributable to Owens Corning were $210 million, or $1.98 per diluted share, compared with net loss attributable to Owens Corning of $917 million, or $8.43 per diluted share, in first-quarter 2020. The company's first-quarter 2020 results included non-cash pre-tax impairment charges of $987 million driven by the economic uncertainties associated with the COVID-19 pandemic.

Charging across U.S.

National Grid leads effort to ensure EV drivers can access fast charging along major highways

WALTHAM, Mass. — National Grid has just joined seven major utilities in the Electric Highway Coalition, which will enable more electric vehicle charging stations near highways across the United States. With more charging stations, more drivers may adopt EVs and existing EV drivers can travel longer distances without range anxiety.

Each utility within the Coalition is taking steps to provide charging solutions in their service territories and collaborating to ensure accessibility, reliability, and a positive customer experience. This effort will support a network of fast charging stations along major highways from the Atlantic Coast, through the Midwest and South and into the Gulf and Plains regions.

Other participating utilities in the Coalition include American Electric Power, Dominion Energy, Duke Energy, Entergy Corporation, Eversource, Southern Co., and the Tennessee Valley Authority.

“In the Northeast, only 2-3 percent of all new vehicle sales are electric today. We need 100 percent of vehicle sales to be electric in the states we serve by 2035 if we are going to reach our ambition of net zero,” said Badar Khan, US President of National Grid. “That means millions of EVs and the buildout of thousands of chargers. It’s an understatement to say we have a lot of work to do. Over the next decade, we will work with other utilities, charging stations providers, automakers, policymakers, regulators, and our customers to put more EVs and charging stations on our streets.”

National Grid is providing charging ports for the stations across its territories (MA, NY, and RI), which is the necessary infrastructure needed to connect the station to the grid. National Grid has already deployed 1,400 charging ports with 16,000 on the way, one of the largest EV charging programs outside of California. Many of these ports are in environmental justice communities, so that all customers of varying incomes have access.

Approximately 40 percent of the Northeast’s GHG emissions are from transportation, making it a larger source of emissions than any other sector. National Grid has committed to electrifying their entire light duty fleet by 2030 and exploring zero carbon alternatives for medium and heavy-duty vehicles. The Company is also helping put electric city and school buses on the road and are one of two companies in the US to adopt electric backhoes.

The Electric Highway Coalition will provide DC fast chargers that will allow drivers to charge and be back behind the wheel in up to 30 minutes. It is designed to coordinate EV charging station planning, so EV drivers will have the tools they need to drive electric with convenience.

Gas prices hit $3 Per Gallon

BOSTON, Mass. — The national average price of gasoline today has passed the $3 per gallon mark, according to GasBuddy, the travel and navigation app used by more North American drivers to save money on gas. This is a milestone not seen since David Letterman still hosted Late Night, Pharell’s hat was introduced to the world, and Kim and Kanye got hitched.

GasBuddy previously prognosticated that gas prices may escalate past the key barrier in its 2021 Fuel Outlook released in January of this year. While many Americans are pointing fingers, they should be pointing at the same factor GasBuddy mentioned months ago: COVID-19 related recovery is pushing things back to normal and leading to rising gasoline demand.

“While this is not a milestone anyone wants to celebrate, it’s a sign that things are slowly returning to normal,” said Patrick De Haan, head of petroleum analysis at GasBuddy. “In this case, rising gas prices are a sign Americans are getting back out into the world — attending baseball games, going to concerts, taking a road trip — basically staying anywhere but at home. This summer may see some blockbuster demand for fuel as well, as Americans find it very challenging to travel internationally, leading many to stay in the confines of U.S. borders, boosting some weeks to potentially record gasoline demand.”

GasBuddy expects summer gas prices not to set records, but settle down to levels more similar to 2018: the national average briefly rising above $3/gallon but eventually falling back under and remaining in the upper $2 to low $3 per gallon range. Should any major refinery issues develop in the midst of the summer travel season, gas prices could become impacted in a large way, especially if the economy continues to see solid recovery and demand for fuels increases.

Previous yearly peaks in gas prices and date:

- Jan 9, 2020 = $2.60
- May 5, 2019 = $2.89
- May 27, 2018 = $2.97

Bethlehem falls to the Brothers

DELMAR — CBA exploded with eight runs in the final two innings to beat Bethlehem 9-2 on Tuesday, May 11.

The home team, playing its inaugural season on the brand new varsity baseball field, had a 2-1 lead after five but the Brothers scored twice in the sixth and then six batters drove in six runs in the final inning.

Seven different Brothers had hits with Luke Szepek going 2 for 3 and three runs scored and AJ Hicks going 2 for 4 with a double and two runs scored.

CJ Franchini went 3 for 5 to lead Bethlehem at the plate while Caden Bernardo went 2 for 3 with a double and a triple.

On the mound, Noah Anderson started for CBA, going three and a third, giving up one run on four hits while walking two and striking out three. Four relievers gave up one run on five hits while walking three and striking out five.

Steve Shaw went five innings for Bethlehem, giving up a run on three hits while walking one and striking out four. Three relievers gave up eight runs on six hits while walking five and striking out one.

Bethlehem has a four game home stand starting today, Wednesday, May 19, against Ballston Spa, Saratoga on Friday then a double header against Shen on Saturday.

CBA will play at Averill Park today and play at Ballston Spa on Friday, May 21, then host Saratoga and Colonie on Saturday.

Check out our website for more photos of the game.

My hat's off to you, Frank

The author is the managing editor of Spotlight Newspapers and current editor-at-large for Family Now magazine, where he was previously its editor under its Senior Spotlight flag. He writes about the recent passing of Frank DeSorbo. DeSorbo was a contributing columnist for Senior Spotlight, and would frequent the Spotlight office to pick up a copy of the magazine, and start up conversations about baseball and life in general. He was always up to talk about his favorite team, the Brooklyn Dodgers. However, most recently, he was most excited for Opening Day at Albany's Twilight League, under which he served many years as an umpire.

By MICHAEL HALLISEY
halliseym@spotlightnews.com

Death, taxes, and baseball debates without true resolutions — these are life's absolute constants.

My Saturday morning started by engaging in one of those impossible arguments. Someone posed the question, had Ted Williams not lost five in a half seasons to serving in World War II and the Korean War, would he be considered the best that ever was? Frank DeSorbo would have loved it.

Frank would have tackled the debate from two angles; the first of which may not have solved anything other than satisfying his own passion for sharing stories of war veterans. He shared those stories on the pages of our Senior Spotlight magazine.

Frank's monthly column would often place personal stories of local veterans within proper, historical context. They were often brief anecdotes, but always poignant. Though he never served in the military, he earned the respect of many veterans — talking and listening to their stories on many Patriot Flight events to which he'd lead the charge as president of the organization. He wrote like he spoke, too. He'd often throw two or three veterans into each of his columns, running over the amount of copy space we had set aside for his column.

Despite the years that separated us, I spent more time than I could afford talking with him about his days umpiring in the Twilight League, or trying to trump one another on baseball trivia. When he moved on from Patriot Flight, we worked on changing his column to mirror our conversations. His memories of the games he played while growing up in Albany, how they built character and later helped develop his life in sports, provided a few lessons in life but more insight into a man who I learned to respect.

As I write this, Frank died just a few days ago. Before learning of the news, I observed a few quirky occurrences in my own behavior. I picked up our Baseball Guide, in which Frank submitted a piece about locals who went on to play Major League Baseball. He was behind the plate for some of those kids, and he was excited about the research that led to the article — which is why I couldn't tell him we'd already passed the deadline. I made room for him. I always did. I went from our book, to David Halberstam's "Summer of '49," and then to my baseball cards. It was the most baseball I consumed in one morning since I could last remember. In retrospect, I think Frank had a hand in it.

Frank rooted for the wrong team, but over time, I found myself developing into a Brooklyn Dodgers fan, too. I confessed that point in our last conversation together. I emailed a few of my most recent acquisitions to my baseball card collection. A few beat up cards of Roy Campanella and Sandy Koufax. He picked up the phone and I told him I would have had a Duke Snider, too, had I not missed out on a recent auction. "I know someone who may have a few Sniders lying around," he said. Once the pandemic settled down, he said he'd introduce me to a few more old-time baseball friends of his in Schenectady.

I didn't get a chance to tell him I finally grabbed a Snider for myself, though I'd trade it away to have Frank back.

Frank A. "Jig" DeSorbo, passed away suddenly and peacefully on Thursday, May 6, 2021 in his home. Born in Albany on October 9, 1947. He was the son of Joseph and Rose (Garufi) DeSorbo. Frank graduated from Vincentian High School and received his Master Degree in Business Administration from SUNY Albany.

He is survived by his wife of 51 years, Dawn (Jones) DeSorbo, children Michael (Sharon Fischer) and Stephanie (Michael Paonessa), grandchildren Michael DeSorbo, Michaella, Alex, Nicholas, and Ryan Paonessa; and siblings Joseph, John, Rose, and Mary Catherine DeSorbo.

He worked for the Albany City School District and later, became Assistant Superintendent for business at Catskill Central School District for many years. Although Frank was not a military veteran himself he was very supportive of all U.S. military personnel past and present. Frank founded and was President of the D-Day Revisited Organization and was the past-President of the Capital District Patriot Flight Inc. Frank was also a long time member of the International Association of Approved Basketball Officials and Capital District Baseball Umpires Association. He wrote monthly articles for the Senior Spotlight magazine.

Frank greatly enjoyed all sports, watching horse races, card games with friends and family, boating and fishing with his grandchildren, and handing out Christmas IOUs. He enjoyed over 20 years of traveling to Aruba with his Wife and Family. His sense of humor will be greatly missed.

Relatives and friends were invited to visit with his family at Daniel Keenan Funeral Home in Albany.

In lieu of flowers please make donations to Melodies Center for Childhood Cancer and Blood Disorders at Albany Medical Center, 43 New Scotland Ave. MC 119, Albany, NY 12208 in honor of Ryan Paonessa.

LIBRARIES

Avoid those late fees

Now is the time to start rounding up those library books and other borrowed materials that may have gotten tucked away in a forgotten corner of your home as we prepare to restart fines for overdue items. The library has extended the moratorium on fines through June 30, after which we will resume charging late fees.

At the beginning of the pandemic and during the library's unexpected closure, a decision was made to waive fines until there was a safe and reliable way to return materials. With so many things to worry about in those early days, being charged for an overdue book didn't need to be among them.

Our automatic due date reminders have been going out since fall, but now that our doors are once again open seven days a week with book returns accepted 24/7, we will be charging for late items returned after June 30.

What does this mean for you?

This extension of the fine moratorium gives you a little time to get back into the habit of returning library items when they are due.

In the coming weeks, please check your account for any overdue materials that you might have forgotten about and bring them in.

Remember to always renew or return your items by the due date to avoid late charges after June 30.

For more information about our loan periods and fines for different materials, visit www.bethlehempubliclibrary.org.

and the entire Delmar Progress Club for the amazing work they do to make our library grounds so colorful and inviting. Their tireless planning and planting in partnership with our maintenance crew is the driving force behind the park-like serenity of our outdoor spaces.

Fees for lost or damaged items are not being waived.

Still have questions? Give us a call at 518-439-9314 or email us at information@bethpl.org.

Your library today

We continue to expand library services based on current pandemic guidelines. Our doors are now open seven days a week, and we've added multiple computer/printing stations that can be used for 30 minutes per day.

Large gatherings and meeting room requests are still on hold, but we are expanding outdoor seating to make use of on nice days.

National EMS Week - May 16-22, 2021

"THIS IS EMS: Caring for Our Communities"

This week is National Emergency Medical Services (EMS) Week and we thank the dozens of everyday heroes who provide emergency medical service in the Town of Bethlehem. We salute the Emergency Medical Technicians (EMTs), Paramedics, and other responders of Delmar-Bethlehem EMS and the Albany County Sheriff's Office EMS Unit.

The residents of our community benefit every day from the skill and commitment of our volunteer and career EMS professionals, who are dedicated to saving lives and providing compassionate medical care. They are selfless professionals who dedicate the time, day and night, 365 days a year, to respond to the emergency needs of our community. The COVID-19 pandemic has changed so much in our lives, included the responsibilities of EMTs and Paramedics. Many hours of preparation and training led to new procedures to maximize the safety of our patients and providers. We share in the collective sense of loss in our community and our EMS responders continue to do everything they can to provide comfort and care and help our community through this tragic pandemic. That includes assisting with the vaccination of community members.

Working together as partners, the members of Delmar-Bethlehem EMS and the employees of the Albany County Sheriff's Office EMS Unit respond to more than 3,600 calls for medical assistance, emergencies, and accidents in the Town of Bethlehem every year. Our agencies have worked together with the Town to build an efficient and high-quality EMS system. This includes more than $5 million in savings and 100,000 scheduled volunteer responder hours over the last seven years. In addition, our EMS responders dedicate thousands of hours each year to practicing their skills, taking training classes, mentoring new responders, and maintaining equipment.

We would also like to salute the many emergency medical service professionals working in hospital emergency rooms who live in our community. They work with our EMS responders to provide lifesaving care around the clock and are vital responders to COVID-19.

Our community is remarkably fortunate to have so many individuals who are committed to caring for their neighbors. Please join us in saluting our community's EMS professionals.

Sincerely,

The Directors and Officers of Delmar-Bethlehem EMS and the Albany County Sheriff's Office EMS Unit

Bad Mothers signs with Shooter Jennings' Black Country Rock

By KAITLIN LEMBO

lembok@spotlightnews.com

ALBANY — When you think hard rockers and tight instrumentals in the 518, Bad Mothers comes to mind.

The four-piece group, which features Matt Dalton, Patrick Flores, Kevin Bohlen and Brian Chiapinnelli, has been a fixture in the Capital District music scene since its formation a little over four years ago. To many, it's no surprise that Shooter Jennings, the son of Waylon Jennings and the owner of Black Country Rock record label, signed the group earlier this month.

Podcast talks diversity

SUNY Schenectady debuts new podcast focusing on diversity, equity and inclusion

SCHENECTADY — More than 200 listeners have tuned into the first episode of SUNY Schenectady's new podcast, Many Voices, One Call @ SUNY Schenectady, launched recently on Buzzsprout.com.

The podcast is designed to publish and promote diversity, equity and inclusion programs happening at the College, bring together the many voices that are engaged in this effort, amplify the perspectives and visions of students, and promote SUNY Schenectady's diverse activities as part of a cohesive brand within the local community and the SUNY system.

In the inaugural episode, "ReaCH at SUNY Schenectady," co-hosts Jennifer Malave (Human Services major/president of the Student Government Association - SGA) and Dr. Babette Faehmel (associate professor in the Division of Liberal Arts/coordinator of the Student Mentoring Program) speak with guests Destany Jackson (Human Services major/SGA senator), Adam Montross (Teacher Education Transfer major/SGA senator), Dr. Imari

Shaw (instructor in the Division of Math, Science, Technology and Health), and RaeEllen Doyle (associate professor in the Division of Liberal Arts) about "One Year of Pandemic Learning." They each bring their own perspectives about classes during the past year, their lives and what comes next.

The podcast aligns with the College's new Strategic Plan, Many Voices, One Call 2021-2026, that will guide the College's collective work for the next five years and has Four Pillars of Success: Promoting Diversity, Equity and Inclusion; Delivering a Meaningful Student Experience; Building Organizational Effectiveness; and Ensuring Financial Sustainability and Self-Sufficiency.

Dr. Steady Moono, president of SUNY Schenectady, applauded the team that developed the podcast. "This is an excellent, new addition to our campus dialogue," Dr. Moono said. "I listened to the first episode and really enjoyed hearing the interactions among students and faculty. Every time we listen to a different perspective it only enriches us and contributes to the College learning environment. I'm looking forward to listening to the next episode."

Each episode of the podcast will be co-hosted by a student and a member of the faculty and staff. The team will produce two podcasts each month. Jennifer Malave shared her thoughts as co-host of the first episode.

"I am so excited to be part of the Many Voices One Call podcast! I love how it creates a space for real conversations among students and faculty," Jennifer said. "As a student leader, I know just how valuable it is to develop and encourage this open dialog. The podcast provides a safe space to do just that."

Pam McCall is the director of College and High School Partnerships and tri-chair with the ReaCH Initiative. She was on the team that developed the podcast.

"The Many Voices, One Call podcast is a game-changer for our institution," she said. "Our goal is to create a forum for students, faculty, staff and community members to share what is most important to them and how the College has helped to shape who they are. This has been a truly collaborative effort within our community and we are excited to see it grow and become a true avenue to share all of our stories."

The new podcast has been launched and maintained under the leadership of a coalition of campus groups and organizations.

The podcast is available at buzzsprout.com.

Death Cafe is a global movement where strangers sit down together, whether in person or virtually, eat cake, drink tea and talk about death. No filler, no dancing around the subject; they just talk about their experiences and ponder questions about the next phase of life's cycle.

The objective of Death Cafe is "to increase awareness of death with a view to helping people make the most of their (finite) lives." We only have so many years on this planet, so why waste those fearing something that will happen, but nobody is sure when?

"The biggest thing about Death Cafe is it's not a support group or bereavement group," said Kate Murray, one of the Albany hosts of the local movement, said. "This is a place for people to talk about their experiences and be able to voice things without an agenda, objective or theme."

Death Cafes are simple. Crowds of between 12 and 30 people typically attend, where hosts will have attendees break into smaller subgroups, each hosting at least one

Murray's parents both died when she was a teenager and she said their deaths are forever a part of her journey. Joining the group allows her to talk about the topic, one that her siblings would prefer to not discuss.

Kate Murray

experienced cafe member. From there, attendees are free to discuss for the majority of the session. For the last 15 minutes, the group reconvenes as a whole and members recap what the group talked about. Sometimes it's more broad topics, while others, people will recap their own experiences with death. For now, the group has been virtual due to COVID-19 restrictions, but the group's format is normally in-person meetings.

Murray has been hosting Death Cafes for three years. As a hospice volunteer for over 20 years, she's intimately familiar with all things death and the end of life processes people often embark on. She first found out about the groups through her volunteer spot and it immediately peaked her interest.

Murray's parents died when she was a teenager. Because of her close experiences with death, she's always been one to talk about it and ponder. While her siblings aren't necessarily as forthcoming about it as she is, she soon realized going to these gatherings was allowing her to broach topics that she couldn't with other people in her life.

"I had been to a couple when the host of the one I was attending announced she was moving away and needed someone to take over the cafe," Murray said. "The host knew me because we both traveled in similar circles in the hospice world."

"She basically cornered me and another member and asked us to keep it going," Murray continued. "Come to find out, the other member was a friend of Lizzy Miles, who was the first person to host a Death Cafe in the United States."

Murray and her friend met with Miles via video chat, where Miles walked them through the process of holding a Death Cafe. What makes Death Cafe so special is despite its very open-ended structure, the guidelines to host a gathering are strict. Hosts cannot charge for admission, there cannot be any themes and there cannot be any money collected. Also, only official Death Cafe events can be advertised on the Death Cafe website; Murray said she once had a speaker coming whose topics were pretty close to the group's purpose, but because having the speaker was not compliant with the rules, the post on the website was removed.

"We always hear about how positive of an experience people have when they attend," Murray said. "One of our hosts is an anthropology major and had her students attend for class. She said their finals all came back with emphasis on how much they enjoyed the experience. Some even hosted their own cafes, which was really cool to see."

Murray said her time involved with Death Cafe has helped her become more of who she is, especially since her parents' deaths shaped so much of her life.

"These conversations remind me that we only have so many moments in our lives," Murray concluded, "and I try to live each moment as hard as I can because today could be it."

"Bad Mothers' sound is gritty, dangerous but still approachable, and it doesn't surprise me at all that Shooter Jennings signed Many of these artists, who compete for a chance to open shows before they ever get to this point, put in years of work and it's so important that we continue to support smaller artists so they have the platform and ability to grow nationally."

— Jason Keller, WEQX

"We here at EQX are confident that Bad Mothers will get the attention they deserve now," EQX's Jeff Morad, who serves as the station's program director, operations manager and the host of some EQX programming, said. Bad Mothers and EQX have worked together closely over the years. "Black Country represents artists from Billy Ray Cyrus to Lucas Nelson, even Ron Jeremy ... We look forward to continuing to support them and look forward to watching their career grow."

EQX's "Afternoon Drive" host, Jason Keller, added he's always so excited when bands are signed because he knows the hard work that's put into these careers.

"Bad Mothers' sound is gritty, dangerous but still approachable, and it doesn't surprise me at all that Shooter Jennings signed them because of the legacy he's been able to maintain," Keller said. "Many of these artists, who compete for a chance to open shows before they ever get to this point, put in years of work and it's so important that we continue to support smaller artists so they have the platform and ability to grow nationally."

The band is feeling the love, with the reality of its accomplishment still pretty fresh.

"It feels awesome to get support from people," Flores said. "We've been working so hard all of our careers for this. I still don't think it's fully hit me."

The stroke of good fortune actually came from an innocent direct message, something Chiapinnelli uses to hook up the acts he manages with opportunities.

The drummer was scrolling through social media one night when he came across a project from Loma Vista Recordings. Upon some searching, he realized Loma Vista worked with artists similar to his own band. As he dug deeper, he discovered some big players in the industry, eventually landing on Adam Barnes.

Barnes worked with Jennings, a Grammy-winning member of the country outlaws and one of the people who is behind acts like Marilyn Manson; Last Daze, another

HOROSCOPES

May 2021
Week 3

ARIES – MAR 21/APR 20

Aries, altruism is a noble trait, but remember to also devote some time to your own interests. There is a way to find a balance between all of your actions.

TAURUS – APR 21/MAY 21

Travel plans may be on your mind, Taurus. Weigh all of the pros and cons of traveling before purchasing your plane ticket or booking that hotel.

GEMINI – MAY 22/JUN 21

Gemini, when opportunities spring up sometime this week, you may need to grab that golden ring quickly or it is bound to pass you by in a flash. Then regrets may sink in.

CANCER – JUN 22/JUL 22

It is easy to miss the forest for the trees, Cancer. Making decisions based on one detail will not do you justice. You have to look at the bigger picture before making a decision.

LEO – JUL 23/AUG 23

Leo, after a few amendments to your plan, you will have some good options to go on. Scorpio can give a look as well and offer some advice on how to proceed this week.

VIRGO – AUG 24/SEPT 22

Virgo, if each day seems like a mental marathon, then you definitely need to find some "me" time to unwind and disconnect. Schedule time each day to devote to yourself.

LIBRA – SEPT 23/OCT 23

It may seem productive to look at the world through rose-colored glasses, Libra. However, repeatedly guarding others from anything unpleasant can be a disservice.

SCORPIO – OCT 24/NOV 22

Continue to stay on top of all the nuts and bolts of your daily life, Scorpio. You have been a champ at managing schedules and deadlines for yourself and others.

SAGITTARIUS – NOV 23/DEC 21

Health news may bring a scare, Sagittarius. If anyone can whittle down the facts and get on a solid course, it is you. You'll get through this challenge.

CAPRICORN – DEC 22/JAN 20

Capricorn, it is time to start looking for new hobbies to pass the time, especially if you've been spending a lot of time at home. You could transition into a new career.

AQUARIUS – JAN 21/FEB 18

Big changes are in store for you this week, Aquarius. You could get the news that you have been waiting for. This may mean you will have to quickly rise to action.

PISCES – FEB 19/MAR 20

Pisces, while others are taking in the scenery this week, you are getting down to business. This can set you on a productive path.

518 act, signed with the label a few years ago, and Katy Cole, the singer, was the teacher of "The Voice" winner and Fultonville native Sawyer Fredericks.

Chiapinnelli sent some demos from the next album to Barnes, hoping for a reply but not prepared for anything to come of it. What came next was beyond Bad Mothers' wildest dreams.

Jennings, Barnes and the team loved Bad Mothers. Soon, the ink was final.

"I'm excited to see what we can do with different resources," Chiapinnelli said. "Black Country Rock has way more in the tool box than we do, so it's a rewarding feeling to hear that people who are so established in the industry are willing to work with us."

Chiapinnelli added Black Country Rock doesn't work with a ton of artists, making the partnership even more incredible.

"Social media has been such a big part of Bad Mothers' ability to grow," Chiapinnelli said. "When we first started a little over four years ago, we grew our Facebook page and knew that was how we were going to key the crowds up and get our name out there. This shot in the dark ended up being one of the first big connections for Bad Mothers."

Chiapinnelli is being humble; his work on social media is apparent with one of his acts, Freedom Stratton. Chiapinnelli's chops secured Stratton a deal with Substream Records earlier this year. The use of social media in the music industry to key up fans, particularly with hashtags and show photography, is often what can ultimately turn a show from one night to something that lasts beyond the date on the ticket.

"I'm so excited to get to work and make some connections," Bohlen said. "We just want to get our music out to as many people as possible."

Bad Mothers is working on a new album with a release date to be finalized. As of right now, the project is looking to need another three to six months before it fully hits the airwaves. Before the album, promotional singles, media tours and rolling out the final touches must take place.

Bad is only in the name. The four-piece band has garnered a local following on hard rock, tight musicianship and an engaging stage presence with each live show.

Michael Hallisey / The Spot 518

"I think what makes this partnership work so well is Shooter and his crew showed genuine interest in our music and had actually listened to it before they came back to us," Flores said. "The meetings we had with them were friendly and collaborative, which really helped us feel like it was a good fit."

Chiapinnelli added of all the deals he has facilitated, this is "by far the smoothest" one has ever gone.

"Not once have they come back to us with anything other than making sure we are comfortable and ensuring this partnership is mutually beneficial," Chiapinnelli said. "They're incredibly responsive and when we have questions, they are happy to jump on a call with us and explain it. There are no timelines. The transparency is what really made me feel like this was going to work so well."

As pandemic restrictions continue to loosen and the possibility of having live shows becomes more inevitable, Bad Mothers is ready to take the stage and use its new platform and support squad to its benefit.

"I really have to shout out Brian's ability to get these things going," Flores said. "It's good to have a homie so knowledgeable about it. It's been amazing watching how this works through his moves and experience."

Don't let the sun strip your color away

How to prevent damaged, brassy summer hair

A new haircut or a color change can align perfectly with the carefree spirit of summer. Summer may be an opportunity to experiment with lighter hues or highlights to complement the natural changes to hair that come with exposure to the sun and surf.

Hair care routines after changing colors may require a few additional steps, as weather or styling conditions can contribute to less-than-desireable results, including brassy tones.

According to the hair experts at The Matrix, everyone's hair has warm colors within. Whenever hair is lightened, underlying gold or red tones become more visible. Hair also may turn brassy because the follicles are porous and can soak up everything from minerals in shower water to pollution or chlorine.

Exposure to chlorine and summer sun can contribute to brassiness, making hair more vulnerable to damage and breakage.

Many people may not know that some hair care products also can contribute to brassiness or bland color. The beauty product review source Beauty Mag warns that shampoos that contain silicones, sulfates, parabens, and coloring can contribute to the problem.

Avoiding hair damage and unwanted color changes comes down to prevention and correction. These tips can make a difference in hair health.

- Wear a swim cap before going into the pool or the ocean to protect against chlorine or salt water, which may leach into hair shafts and cause brittleness and brassy hues. Specialty hair masks to coat tresses also can be effective.

- Stick to the shade when outdoors to avoid having hair fried by exposure to the sun's UV rays. If that's not possible, wear a hat or hair products that contain UV protection.

- Determine if the water in your home is "hard," which means it has high levels of chlorine, metals and minerals in it. Water-softening systems and filters can help mitigate hard water issues. Also, there's no need to wash hair multiple times a week, which can cause hair dye to fade more quickly.

- Consider highlights over all-over hair lightening/coloring. With highlights, there will be fewer colored portions of your hair and less opportunity for lightened hair to turn brassy. Stylists can add enough highlights to make the total effect appear much brighter.

- Use a toner or correctional "purple" shampoo. Toning products rely on color wheel technology. Opposite colors on the wheel cancel each other out. Orange and yellow (brassy) hues are opposite blue and purple. Therefore, using special shampoos that contain blue and purple pigments will offset brassy hues. Don't worry, your hair won't turn violet with recommended use.

Summer hair can retain its vitality and color with some easy steps. Speak with a local stylist about other ways to maintain beautiful hair color all summer long.

Slay that interview, virtually

Tips to master a video job interview

The adage “there’s a first time for everything” has certainly rang true throughout the COVID-19 pandemic. Life as the world knew it changed during the pandemic, and as a result many people found themselves in unfamiliar positions and settings.

One unfamiliar position that job seekers had to grow accustomed to during the pandemic was interviewing via video conferencing apps like Zoom. Interviewing for a new job has long been considered a nerve-racking experience, even for seasoned professionals. That anxiety did not necessarily disappear during the pandemic, but it may have taken on a new form as applicants were forced to present the best, albeit virtual, version of themselves when interviewing.

Video interviews may become integral parts of the interviewing process in the future, as companies recognize how efficient video interviews can be. As a result, it can benefit professionals to polish up on their video interviewing skills.

- Dress the part. Dressing for success still matters. Though in person interviews may not be in job seekers’ immediate futures, appropriate attire still sends the right message. Dress the part from head to toe, even if you expect to only be seen from the waist up. This saves you the embarrassment of being seen in sweat pants or other inappropriate attire should you unexpectedly need to stand up during the interview.

- Beware of the background. Make sure the background behind you during the interview is clean and appropriate. Zoom offers a curated list of virtual backgrounds that can help job seekers make a strong first impression. If an existing space is fine serving as a background, clean the area prior to the interview. This creates the impression that you are organized and attentive to detail.

- Use a laptop or computer. Smartphones have video conferencing capabilities, but it’s best to use a laptop or desktop computer when interviewing via video. Laptops and desktops are heavier and less likely to move during the interview and their screens are larger, giving job seekers a better view of the person they’re speaking with. If you must use a smartphone, keep the phone still throughout the interview.

- Sit in a brightly lit, quiet room. A dark room may make it hard for interviewers to see applicants, and that can create a bad first impression. Find a well-lit, quiet room, ideally one that is away from the hustle and bustle of the household.

- Use the mute button. One of the more common issues to arise from the Zoom boom has been some users’ failure to realize their microphones are not muted. When interviewing for a job via video, remember to mute your microphone when you are not speaking. This ensures that no ambient noise from your home will affect the interview. Such noise could adversely affect an interviewer’s opinion of you.

Interviewing via video conferencing apps is uncharted territory for many professionals. But a few tricks of the trade can help job seekers create strong first impressions.

FOOD and VINO

There's no denying the appeal of dairy in home cooking. Dairy helps make foods silky, creamy and more satisfying. Cheeses in particular can make meals more rich and more flavorful, so much so that they can be truly addictive.

Layering cheesy goodness can set any meal apart. That's just what happens with "Cheesy Chicken Tortellini Bake" from "The Pampered Chef® Stoneware Inspirations" (The Pampered Chef® Ltd.) by The Pampered Chef® Test Kitchens. Freshly cooked chicken and homemade tortellini can be used for this comforting casserole, but cubed, pre-cooked chicken and refrigerated tortellini also works.

Cheesy Chicken Tortellini Bake

INGREDIENTS: Serves 6

Pasta mixture

- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1 teaspoon olive oil
- 1 garlic clove, pressed
- 1 jar (16 ounces) white Alfredo pasta sauce
- 2 packages (9 ounces each) refrigerated cheese-filled regular or spinach tortellini
- 1 1/2 cups cubed cooked chicken
- 1 cup milk
- 1 cup water
- 1 cup frozen peas
- 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 2 tablespoons snipped fresh basil leaves or 1 teaspoon dried basil leaves

Crumb topping

- 1 ounce grated fresh Parmesan cheese
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
- 1 cup fresh bread crumbs

INSTRUCTIONS

Preheat oven to 400 F. For pasta mixture, chop onion. In a 4-quart casserole, heat oil over medium-high heat; add onion and garlic pressed with a garlic press. Cook and stir 2 to 3 minutes or until onion is tender. Stir in pasta sauce, tortellini, chicken, milk, water, peas, and black pepper. Heat until mixture just comes to a boil; remove from heat. Stir basil into pasta mixture.

Meanwhile, for crumb topping, grate Parmesan cheese. Place butter in a small microwave-safe dish, microwave on high 30-45 seconds or until melted. Stir in bread crumbs and cheese; mix well.

Spoon pasta mixture into a baking dish; sprinkle with crumb topping. Bake 15-20 minutes or until edges are bubbly and topping is golden brown.

Tip: Alfredo sauce in a jar can be found in the pasta sauce section of the supermarket. Do not substitute refrigerated Alfredo sauce; it may separate and curdle during baking.

■ IN BRIEF

WAMC's 'A New York Minute In History' earns Murrow Award for Best Podcast

ALBANY — WAMC recently earned a Regional Edward R. Murrow Award for Best Podcast.

The award honors "A New York Minute In History," about the history of New York and the unique tales of New Yorkers. It is hosted by State Historian Devin Lander, Saratoga County Historian Lauren Roberts and Don Wildman. Jesse King and Jim Levulis of WAMC produce the podcast.

"A New York Minute In History" is a production of the New York State Museum, WAMC Northeast Public Radio and Archivist Media.

"We are thrilled to be recognized with this award, which once again demonstrates WAMC's history of community partnership and commitment to high-quality educational programming," says WAMC President and CEO Alan Chartock.

Support for the project comes from The William G. Pomeroy Foundation. Original funding came from the National Endowment for the Humanities and a Humanities New York Action Grant.

Production on a new batch of podcast episodes is currently underway.

"I am completely honored to have all of the hard work of our podcast team recognized with this prestigious award," Lander says. "I, along with my co-host Lauren Roberts and our producers at WAMC Jim Levulis and Jesse King, knew that New York's rich and vibrant history would provide for excellent podcast material. I congratulate our team, our funders, and our listeners for making our little podcast an award-winner!"

Regional winners automatically move on to the national round of consideration, which also includes digital news organization, network and student competitors. WAMC won in Region 11's radio division.

Among the most prestigious awards in news, the Murrow Awards recognize local and national news stories that uphold the RTDNA Code of Ethics, demonstrate technical expertise and exemplify the importance and impact of journalism as a service to the community. Murrow Award winning work demonstrates the excellence that Edward R. Murrow made a standard for the broadcast news profession.

MUSIC SCENE

Hanzolo grooves Lark Hall

By MICHAEL HALLISEY
halliseym@spotlightnews.com

ALBANY — Hanzolo is no stranger.

The funk band out of Cooperstown would often make the 90-minute trip to the Capital City to play before 518 crowds. Prior to the pandemic, the seven-piece band made a name for itself by earning the opening set for Pearlpalooza.

That was 2019. The band's show at Lark Hall on Saturday night, May 15, marked its first return to the Cradle of the Union since virus-related shutdowns started last March.

The grand hall on the corner of Lark Street and Hudson Avenue is a holy place, literally. Icons of Christianity are still visible on the pews Jennifer and Justin Miller salvaged from a Watervliet church. The hall's bar, too, is made of wood reclaimed from the house of worship. Some of those attending the show spoke of a higher energy verberating through the room, recognizing the return of live music.

It wasn't the first show to play the stage. The Miller's hosted a series of shows labeled "Practice Sessions" that were live-streamed on social media in recent months. It was, however, the first show for many of those masked up and dancing — socially distanced — on the wood floor.

Saturday night's show featured only six players, but it was still boasting its ever-present percussion and horn sections that have made them stand out. It was the band's first live show "in awhile," according to its social media page, but the performance didn't give up the ghost. A 20-minute delay from its scheduled 8 p.m. didn't hurt things any, either. Horns and bass drove a danceable beat that filled the expansive room, prompting many in the crowd to get up on their feet to dance. Frontman Carl Loewenguth came out sporting rose-colored spectacles and a classic, gold Casio digital watch — an apt harbinger of brighter, groovier times ahead.
