EXHIBITS TO INCLUDE EVERYTHING FROM OIL PAINTINGS TO ANTIQUES, WATER COLORS, GLASS, LINEN & CURIOS

Thursday, March 27, the Senior Citizens of the Bethlehem District will present their Hobby Show in the cafeteria of Bethlehem Central High School. The exhibit is entirely of things made or collected by members of the group. It includes oil and water color paintings, curios, handicrafts and antiques. In this latter group are china, glass, linen, old quilts and many more. Among the paintings will be some by Miss Katherine Van Allen, whose recent one-man show at the Delmar Public Library brought such enthusiastic comment. It is also hoped that some of Mrs. Katherina Voorhaar's paintings will be there for she began her painting in an art class of Senior Citizens when the group was starting. The Hobby Show is from 7:15 to 9 p. m. Everyone is cordially invited.

Organized in 1955

This group of elder citizens started its activities in the Fall of 1955 as part of the Bethlehem Central School District Adult Education program with sponsorship of the Lion's Club. They have met in the cafeteria of the Senior High School each Thursday during the school year for social activities, planning and projects. Ralph Hoag, Adult Education Director, has given an able hand and Mrs. Richard Bennett, Coordinator, has helped to keep things humming. Until recently, transportation has been furnished by volunteer Lions members, but the group has grown to such an extent that the Lions now provide a bus each Thursday evening.

Group Activities

Primarily a social group, the members have organized checker, domino and card tournaments.

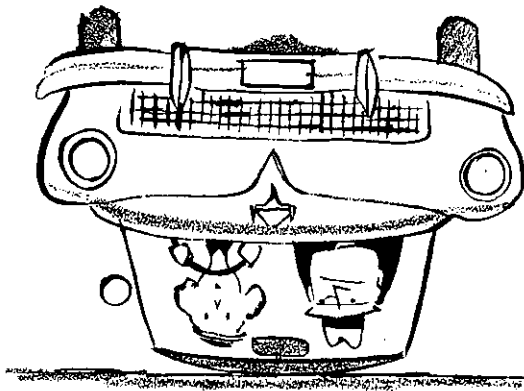

Once or twice a month they have a planned program. This may be a square dance or slides on a diverse number of subjects or a musical evening. Lectures are out, as most of them feel they have listened to enough lectures in their lifetime. Every holiday is observed with a party and annual outings include a picnic in the summer and a dinner in the fall, given by the Lion's Club. Each year the group gives itself a short trip and a luncheon with its own funds.

Community Service

Two truckloads of refurbished toys distributed to needy children throughout the Bethlehem area was the Christmas present of the Senior Citizens this year. So the fall period brings an added activity in the bustle of preparing their "present." The dressing of dolls, the repair of toys and freshening up with a can of paint, all play their part in the preparation which is done at home as well as at the school. All through the months prior to Christmas, toys brought to the Town Hall by individuals, scout groups and 4-H Club members are taken over by the Senior Citizens and brought back to nearly new by their nimble fingers. These are contributed to the Community Christmas Festival Committee and distributed by them. In addition to the toys, clothes are repaired for the Clothing Cupboard, also part of the Christmas Festival group.

Membership

The Senior Citizens are always eager to add new members to their group and anyone who has moved to the area lately or who has not yet had a chance to join, should call Mrs. Richard Bennett or Ralph Hoag.

FLUORIDATION DEFEATED - OPPONENTS ROLL UP BIG VOTE IN INFORMAL POLL

Of the 2488 Water District residents who went to the polls to settle the fluoridation issue last Saturday, March 22, 63 1/2% voted "No," while 36 1/2% were in favor. Final tally in the eleven-hour voting was: Against fluoridation, 1571; for fluoridation, 915, with 2 void votes. This was the unofficial result; this week auditors are going over the individual votes to insure their validity.

From the opposing Pure Water Association came this statement: "The Pure Water Association is very grateful so many votes were cast against fluoridation. When we ask our government to do our thinking for us, they can only give us what is best for the majority, but not necessarily what is best for the individual.

"Our Association feels that the result of this poll is a vote of confidence in our local dentists and physicians.

"We wish to extend our sincere appreciation to our Town Board for putting fluoridation squarely before the people and letting them decide the issue; also, our thanks to the workers at the polls who did such a magnificent job."

The proponent group, the Bethlehem Community Association, had this statement: "The people of the Water District have indicated that they do not want fluoridation at this time. We regret, however, that in making this decision the people have turned their backs upon an important scientific discovery which has the almost unanimous backing of physicians, dentists and scientists and have listened, instead, to isolated voices of doubt and fear.

"We do not feel that our efforts have been in vain, however. People have been alerted to this important scientific advance. In the future, when they discover the absurdity of many of the statements made by the opponents of fluoridation during the past few weeks, they may wish to change their minds.

"Fluoridation gives such large returns for so little money that it will eventually be universal. It is unfortunate that the Bethlehem poll will serve to delay its adoption here, to the detriment of all the children growing up in our community in the intervening years."

WOODEN COINS ON DISPLAY AT PUBLIC LIBRARY

Money that grew from trees is now on exhibit at the Delmar Library. Wooden nickels, wooden quarters and wooden tender from 47 states make up part of the collection of Laurance Clough which is on display until the middle of April.

For 20 years Mr. Clough has searched out wooden nickels. He has found them throughout the United States, in Canada, China and Austria. (The only state not in his collection is Rhode Island, which to his knowledge, has never issued them.) With no duplications, he now owns 3200 of these wooden souvenirs.

To become a collector's item the terms "wooden nickel" or "wooden money" must be indicated on the wood. These pieces are of many shapes: some are round, triangular and rectangular. Most of them were issued in connection with anniversaries, centennial and sesquicentennial celebrations. Others were issued by firms, individuals or organizations for publicity or "money-making" purposes.

Some of the pieces from Washington and Oregon were used as actual (though not legal) tender. As an example: during the depression and the closing of the banks, the Chamber of Commerce of Tenino, Washington, issued wooden certificates which read in part: "This certificate is good only during the process of liquidation or within 6 months after reorganization of Citizen's Bank of Tenino."

Mr. Clough, who lives in Delmar, started his collection when someone gave him some wooden nickels from the Lake George historical pageant in 1938. These fascinated him and he decided to look for further wooden souvenirs. Already a coin collector, he had a good background for ferreting out pieces for his new-found hobby. To date he has the fourth largest collection in the United States.

Mr. Clough says that the jokes over his hobby do not vary much, and are all along the line of "taking wooden nickels," and of the wife, who has just gone through her husband's pockets, complaining of the splinters.

However, he recommends wood nickels to any who wants an inexpensive and informative hobby, for aside from being absorbing, and a lot of fun, it has taught him a great deal of geography.

Florence Hallenbeck One-Man Show at Delmar Public Library

A story or underlying meaning is behind each of Florence Hallenbeck's paintings. In her one man show at the Delmar Public Library, each landscape and still life has a special theme. To appreciate them, it is not necessary to know the theme, but to paint them, it was.

In her picture called "Grandma's Sugar Bowl," she sees it as three generations, for each object is of a different era. In "Early American," she has placed carved utensils upon linen of her grandmother's, with a strong light glorifying it. She feels that in the strength of our forefathers who hewed out the utensils and who hewed out their life here, stands our strength.

Observation and watching artists who paint in the Lake George area was Mrs. Hallenbeck's introduction to her art. Though she had done well in art in school she had not carried it on until she watched others paint and felt she must try it herself. She worked entirely in pastel during the early years of her painting. At Lake George, she painted with Mrs. Louise Fisher of Schenectady, who helped with comments and suggestions on technique. Then followed study with Betty Lancaster, where she continued with pastels. Her introduction to oils came when she began to work with Rudy Helmo, well known Albany artist and teacher.

Her paintings have been seen at the Side Walk exhibit, where she won popular award, in the Coughtry's Exhibit by the Artists Group and in the Albany Institute of History and Art.

Recently she has used her training in a different field: that of designs on metal. Using old American designs, she has redone a milk pan, trays, an old scale and boxes in a most effective way.

Mrs. Hallenbeck, who lives on Kenwood Avenue in Delmar, will have her paintings in the Library until the middle of April.

The Besalou Elephants, starring Baby Opal, have a fast new routine. Since their debut as baby elephants in 1954 these animals have been noted for their intricate maneuvers and the foot-balancing feats of their star performer, Baby Opal, who balances her entire weight on one front foot. The Besalou elephants have been handled by Mac and Peggy MacDonald since the animals arrived from Indo-China in 1953. The MacDonalds' white French poodle, Kippy, also plays a part in the act.

Comedy relief is furnished by the Original Gutis and a new corps of clowns, including the Bizarro Brothers from Italy.

Tickets generously provided by individuals and organizations will make it possible for thousands of underprivileged children to see the circus who otherwise would not be able to do so. Tickets for all performances are now being sold by members of Cyprus Shrine.
