

SUNDAY MAIL COLLECTION STARTS IN SLINGERLANDS

Arrangements have been made with the Post Office Department to have a collection of mail made from the box in front of the Post Office in Slingerlands on Sundays at 12 noon.

This Sunday dispatch of mail will assure the next day delivery of first class mail, mailed to post offices in the Capital District and many outside communities.

The Post Office Department is continually striving to improve the postal service. They have established a Metro Scheme, of which this Sunday dispatch is a part, facilitating faster handling of mail between all points.

LIVELY LETTERS LAMBASTE STAR; PRAISE AND PROBE SCHOOL TAX ISSUE

To The Spotlight:

As a comparative newcomer and owner of a new home in our community, I am fully aware of and appreciate its attractions and advantages. One of these, most certainly is the fine school system we have.

However, at this time with an impending vote before us concerning the approval of an addition to the Senior High School, I strongly feel the need for voicing an opinion in behalf of the many new-property owners.

A serious injustice is being dealt this group of citizens by expecting them to pay taxes on current property values whereas a great many older homes have never been reassessed and their taxes are consequently based on an assessment far below current values.

If an addition to our High School is necessary, let's reassess all taxable property in the township and have everyone pay his fair share of the expenses incurred. The cost of such a program would be nominal compared with the increased revenue. Most communities have seen the wisdom of such action long ago. Until the burden is equalized, how can any new-property owners be expected to approve any additional tax proposals?

Mrs. Newcomer

To The Spotlight:

Concerning the proposed addition to the Senior High School I have made up my mind to vote YES for the following reasons:

1. The kids exist. We don't have to speculate whether the BCHS will or won't have a student body of 1000-1100, because practically all these children are already in the grade schools. Right now there are 890 pupils in the first three grades of the district schools. These children, plus those from St. Thomas and members of new families who will move into our district during the next ten years will total 1040 in the senior high school grades by 1968.

2. The building cost has little effect on operating costs. Even if the addition isn't built, the rising enrollment will raise expenses for teachers, heat, light, maintenance and transportation. We'll have these to pay for whether the school is on one session or two.

3. There is no good reason to delay. After seeing the steady rise in costs for the last 20 years, how can we suppose that it will ever be less expensive to build later? If it is to be done eventually, why deprive the kids for the next five or six years by

Sleepy Landscape Encloses Scene of Hartley Poem

A few weeks ago we commented that Dean Hartley's Hudson-Champlain prize-winning essay — a remarkable achievement by a high school junior — deserved wide reprinting. Let our linotype and press begin by reprinting part of Dean's work from our treasured copy of the Lion Club's Bethlehem Chronicle, September 12, 1959:

THE GLADE: A RESTING PLACE
A sylvan glade,

A cool sequestered spot set apart by nature for herself. Sheltered by a giant oak, In whose cooling shade is welcomed the Spirit, bruised and beaten by a harsh world. A spirit lacking beautie's healing unguent and the touch of grace. Brief respite! To you I fly, as others have flown, when the cheap, the vulgar, the dull monotone of life bears me down. This sun-drenched cloister has been wrought for me alone; it is condemning them to education in overcrowded conditions or on double sessions? In other words I think that delay may mean more expense with more wear and tear on the building, the teachers, the kids, and the families.

Lowell H. Gypson Jr.

To The Spotlight:

Having been asked, as a reader, for my reaction to the project of raising a "several thousand dollar star" above Bethlehem, I submit it with very little hope it will be shared by many.

First, this is no new idea. I know of several cities and towns in this country, also bearing the name Bethlehem, where they have for many years burned a "Christmas star."

Secondly, one constantly hears outcries against the commercialism of Christmas. This strikes me as another instance of what is deplorable about the Holiday. If the Chamber of Commerce wants to invest several thousand dollars in a "star advertisement" I might consider it in poor taste but would not be overly concerned. I do resent their wish to raise any part of the cost of their advertising from among the citizens of the Town.

Third — and most relevant I believe — I think of Jesus' parable of the man who withdrew into his closet to pray and His own example of seeking privacy when he prayed. As a member of a Christian church I object to the crass ostentation of a mechanical star raised above this or any town to symbolize the birth of Christ.

If there are several thousand dollars available for such, a needless and vulgar extravagance, there are many ways in

THE SPOTLIGHT which they might better be spent. I list only two:

Community Chest Scholarships — to spread true light

Let our light so shine before men in our manner of living not in "a 20-foot mass of porcelain and stainless steel with aluminum backing," to say nothing of "hundreds of feet of high-intensity neon tubing." Perhaps in that way we can capture some of the real meaning of Christmas.

With very great sincerity,
A Reader

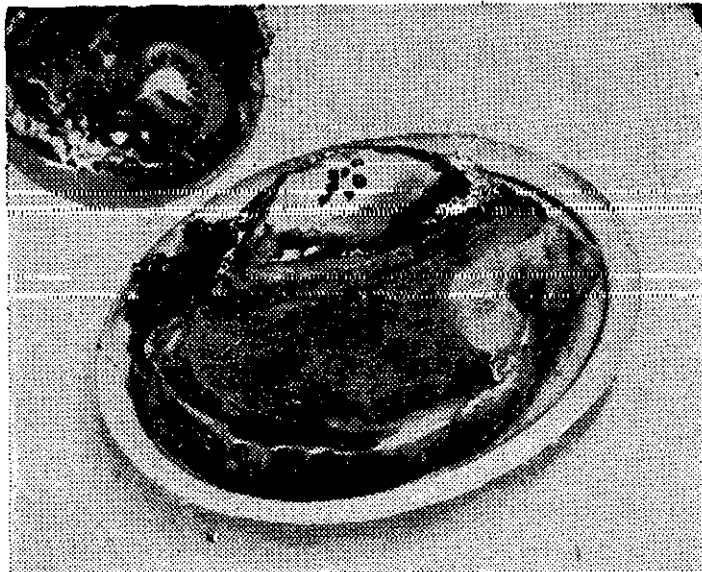

P.S. I am puzzled — why the need for focusing national attention on our community, and in what way would the erection of a star accomplish this?

Nothing could have been achieved by this committee without the wonderful help we have received from hundreds of our fellow citizens through the many organizations, businesses,

(THE GLADE)
 my seclusion in a hectic world,
 my brief sanctuary.
 Listen; a lark sings in the meadow;
 His song streams forth unhesitant,
 free, unhampered by life.
 It rests lightly; a benediction to a soul.

Here will I think my thoughts and dream my dreams.
 On a lush bed of grass and fern, trod by moccasin-clad feet.
 Head pillowed by a giant root from the gnarled oak,
 That has seen Indians pass beneath its

THE SPOTLIGHT
 young limbs . . .

And later the white man, come to admire the glade,
 and have His ear soothed by the music of a stone-muffled brook nearby.
 The rippling brassy gold of summer wheat is now within my view.
 I sleep . . .

First came Johannis Appell to settle this new land;
 Glade: he has seen you in all your moods — as now do I:

In the purity that comes with the first snow,
 you are stripped of beauty; tree, you bide a short-lived death — snow-clad and sombre.

Spring comes, gentle, tender with a woman's whim;
 the timid budding of the old oak, and then, not to be outdone or left behind, the ferns come forth — and then a mist of green — which furs the ground.

Summer holds no great sway here, no tempestuous moods;
 There prevails but a lazy, lush and opulent bloom.

Autumn: a study in russet and gold, flaming scarlet and mellow brown;
 a challenge flung in the face of softer beauties.
 This too will fade in the cool embrace of mist.

Here will I rest, as others have rested; untouched by the world outside, which, jealous of a brief, withdrawn moment, will seek to claim me back.
 Back to that infernal realm of building, wrecking and rebuilding the petty empires of man.

When I am gone in death's dark way, and see this place no longer; these times shall stand out in my consciousness — vivid, alive — a legacy from history!

How is a new kind of telephone born?

New telephone models don't just happen. They're developed to meet specific needs. Your needs.

To find out what these needs are, we talk to telephone customers. Observe how they use present equipment. And just plain ask them what they'd like.

Then when we've developed a new phone, we ask a representative number of people to try it out and suggest further improvements. Final result: a phone that best satisfies the greatest number of people.

It might be an ultracompact phone. Or a dial night light. Or a new kind of business telephone like the Call Director pictured above. The Call Director can be set up to let a busy executive — just by pushing a button — answer several outside lines, signal and talk with associates, arrange for conference calls or transfer calls.

A lot of research and development goes into a new telephone instrument like the Call Director. (Or a new kind of service like Direct Distance Dialing.) But so long as this is the kind of phone service you want and need, this is the kind we'll do our best to provide.

TO THE VOTERS OF BETHLEHEM CENTRAL SCHOOL DISTRICT

Are YOU wondering if there will EVER be an END to the rising of your school district?

Are YOU squeezed by YOUR CONSTANTLY INCREASING SCHOOL TAXES?

Have YOU BEEN TOLD that "the State is going to do SOMETHING" about "relieving" rising real estate TAXES?

Do YOU realize that WHAT the "State" proposes for "relief" is:

1. A SALES TAX which will be a CONSUMER TAX and which will collect from YOU an ADDITIONAL 3% on about 75% OF ALL YOU MAKE.
2. A SURTAX, to be ADDED ON TO YOUR INCOME TAX, which will be ear-marked for "schools"?

Were you TOLD that EITHER ONE OR BOTH OF THESE NEW TAXES WILL BE IN ADDITION TO YOUR REAL ESTATE TAXES? THAT YOUR REAL ESTATE TAXES WILL CONTINUE TO RISE EVERY YEAR - though perhaps not quite as rapidly as they WILL without YOUR PAYING these ADDITIONAL NUISANCE TAXES out of YOUR "OTHER POCKET"?

Do YOU realize that if you vote for the proposed bond issue, your school district WILL ADD AT LEAST 25 ADDITIONAL "professionally educated personnel" TO ITS PAYROLL AT AN AVERAGE BEGINNING SALARY OF $6800! That this $6800. PLUS FRINGE BENEFITS OF OVER 17%, means EACH ONE of these NEW EMPLOYEES WILL COST AN ADDITIONAL $44.20 PER DAY? (A school year has 180 days)

IF YOU THINK THE TIME HAS COME FOR A REALISTIC EXAMINATION OF WHAT YOU ARE RECEIVING FOR THE MONEY YOUR SCHOOL DISTRICT IS ALREADY TAKING AWAY FROM YOU IN TAXES,

Well, this past week has been quite busy and exciting with the elections over and the shouting all over — we hope everybody is pleased and satisfied. We note that the Tri-Village Council of Church Women are off these next two days on a community trip to the United Nations headquarters in New York City. Many will go down for just one day, while others plan to make the most of this brief, but worthwhile two-day tour and a personal interview with an African delegate on Friday, after the General Assembly morning session concludes.

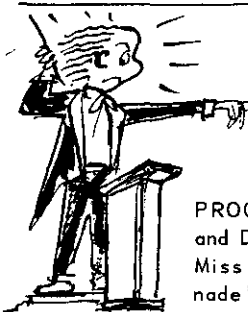

The Junior High School Steering Committee in our

Bethlehem Central district has been having a number of pre-planning sessions before the special program scheduled for November 18 at 8 p.m. This is first of a series which has been designed to broaden our understanding of our adolescent children. Let's come out for this evening and really concern ourselves about the vital communications between parent and child. See you in the school cafeteria at 8 sharp.

This follows on top of American Education Week with its theme, "Praise and Appraise Your Schools," observed the week of November 8 with a series of school-sponsored events assisted by community publicity provided through cooperating local organizations and merchants. Participating school departments: Industrial Arts, Arts, Language, English, Science, Mathematics, Business Education, Homemaking, and Citizenship Education featuring displays of representative materials and student papers in the windows of Tad's Men's Wear Shop, Adams' Hardware Store, and the Spotlight office. Of course you all know we've numerous nursery schools in the area, but we've been quite excited over a Playtime group which was created this Fall by two local gals who felt the need of keeping in touch with the small fry of the village.

These two ambitious people are Mrs. E. T. Hutchins of Elsmere, mother of two sons, the one in the 5th grade and the other a 9th grader; and Mrs. Gilbert Drake of Delmar, mother of three; a son in the 2nd grade, a daughter in the 4th and an 8th grade son. Evie Drake has had this idea since Tommy was in kindergarten, and last year did the trick, with all three children gone all day. Evie got lonesome. So she interested her good friend Mary Hutchins in the idea of the Playtime and together they wrote letters at random to families with children in the two-five age group. Well, within three weeks they had plenty to work with and some others on a waiting list.

The children come three days a week from 9:30 to 12:30, thus affording the lucky mothers three whole hours of freedom, relaxation, enjoyment, errands, shopping, house-cleaning, or just change of routine. On the other hand the eight girls and seven boys are enjoying every minute of their new, shared playtime and friends. The average age is three and the play activity is taken up with all spontaneous participation, some on a quieter scale with a story time, and music with games, and outside fun. They also have juice and crackers and develop better manners and group sharing.

All in all, the children are really happy-at-play and learning to get along with others. We congratulate Mary and Evelyn for their important contribution to the future generation . . . this is a pleasure to them, we know.

How Our Rivers Got Their Names

There is infinite variety in the names of our rivers. Some trace back to the old Spanish and French explorers, some to exploits of the early English, some to adventurous wanderings of American backwoodsmen.

The greatest number, however, reveal the influence of the American Indian. From Indian words stemmed such tongue-twisters as Georgia's Ocmulgee, Maine's Aroostook, and New Hampshire's Pemigewasset.

From other Indian origins came soft-flowing names like Louisiana's Atchafalaya and Florida's Suwannee; and stubborn-sounding names like Indiana's Kankakee and Tippecanoe.

A strange custom of an Indian tribe—flattening the heads of children by tying boards to them—was responsible for naming Montana's Flathead River.

Illustrating the early English influence are the Delaware River, named for Lord De La Warr, English colonial governor of Virginia; New York's Hudson, for the explorer Henry Hudson; Kentucky's Cumberland, which honored the English Duke of Cumberland; and Connecticut's Thames, name-sake of England's most famous river.

The St. John's in Florida was originally called San Juan Bautista by fierce Indian battle.

There is a difference of opinion as to whether the Savannah River traces its name to the Sawana or Shawnee Indians, or to the Spanish word, sabana, meaning "flat country."

In Idaho, the Boise River received its name from the French word for "woody." The Platte is another river with a French derivation name. Its meaning is "flat or shallow."

No need to explain that the following were named by Americans... The Frying Pan River in Colorado traces back to prospectors who used frying pans to wash its sands for gold... The Eel River in California was so-named because of its crookedness... The Big-horn River in Montana was named for Rocky Mountain sheep... A river in West Virginia was dubbed the Cheat because of its widely varying volume of water... A stream in Kentucky is called Licking River because animals once fed on its salt deposits.

Ohio's Ashtabula River comes from an Indian word meaning "fish river"... The Red River was so-named because of the red-colored sediment it carries... New Hampshire's Merrimack derives from an Indian word meaning "swift water."

Out in the Pacific Northwest, the Columbia River was named by Captain Gray after the vessel in which he discovered the river's mouth... Virginia's Dan River supposedly pays tribute to Daniel Boone... In Maine, the Kennebec was named for an Indian chief... And because mariposas grew in profusion alongside a river in California, it was named the Mariposa.

Idaho's Salmon River is called "River of No Return"—it can be navigated only downstream.

The names, Mississippi, meaning "great water," Missouri meaning "muddy water" and Ohio, which translates as "beautiful river," are still others boasting an Indian ancestry.

Authorities don't always agree on which Indian words our modern names derived from. The Connecticut, for example, has been attributed to "Quinatucquet," "Quinnehtukquet" and "Quonoktacut," all of which refer to "the long river."
