A Public Apology From Betty Norton & John Falvey Movie Co-Chairmen for the Community Ambassador Project Movie Program

Our apologies to the children unable to get into the movies last Friday evening. Our apologies also for the delay caused the parents who were "picking up." The over capacity attendance and late departure hour must be attributed to "opening night." Thank you for your patience. Hereafter movies will conclude by 9:00, barring any technical difficulties.

School for Republican Women

The Albany County Women's Republican Club is sponsoring a School of Politics on Saturday, October 26, at Jack's Oyster House, 42 State Street, Albany. Registration will begin at 9:30 A.M. and at 9:45 Miss Ruth Miner will extend a welcome to those attending.

Edward S. Conway, Chairman, Albany County Republican Committee, will participate in the panel discussions along with Mrs. Ethel Purdy, Mrs. William Evans and Mr. Charles Curlette.

Luncheon will be served at 12:00 noon and at 1:30 a Question and Answer period will be moderated by Mrs. Thomas Thornton. Mrs. Thornton will be assisted by Mrs. Dorothy Linton, Mr. John W. Tabner and Miss Victoria A. Keator.

Yes, Delaware Plaza is coming of age gracefully and importantly in a community that didn't quite know what to make of it all just 8 short years ago.

This year's sale starts today, Thursday, October 17 and runs through Saturday, October 19.

Here are a few of the things to look for: (and perhaps we'd better add that it's all "first come, first served," "while they last," etc.)

At Grover's, there's an excellent ballpoint liquid pencil or pen that ordinarily sells for 19¢; you can buy it for a dime!

Little Folks Shop has girls' stretch tights that are guaranteed not to run, three pairs for $5.

George George at Plaza Pharmacy is selling a 49¢ toothbrush for a quarter and 9-volt transistor radio batteries for 19¢.

Across-the-Board 15% on all those lovely gifts at the Village Shop.

Special Fall food prices at the Elsmirian.

20% off on Breck and Realistic Permanents at Mele's.

Five pounds of dry cleaning for $1 at United Cleaners.

And Toy Fair! 3 famous, hard cover books for 50¢; clothes for Barbie, Midge and Ken at 1/3 off.

Town and Tweed has a special to dazzle the fair sex: $12.98 skirts for just $8. Again, we remind you that the number is limited.

Steeffel's has specials on All-Weather Coats for men and boys: $19.99 and $15.99. Can you beat these?

This is only a small segment of more than 10,000 items being offered at special prices by the friendly Delaware Plaza Merchants today, tomorrow and Saturday.

PLAYERS SET CAST FOR FIRST PLAY: "THE LARK"

The cast for the Slingerlands Community Players' first production of the 1963-64 season, "The Lark," was announced today by Harlan Wilbert, director of the drama based on the life of Joan of Arc.

The drama by the contemporary French playwright Jean Anouilh, translated by Lillian Hellman, will be produced by The Players on Friday and Saturday, October 25 and 26, at 8:40 p.m. in the auditorium of Bethlehem Central High School on Delaware Avenue, Delmar.

Appearing with the Players for the first time in the lead role of Joan is Sue Bowlin of Schenectady. This is the role which established Julie Harris as one of the nation's leading actresses when the play was presented at the Longacre Theatre on Broadway, opening in November, 1955.

Other leading roles are those of Warwick, to be played by Richard Weeks, and Cauchon, with Martin Barr. In the Broadway production, these roles were played by Christopher Plummer and Boris Karloff, respectively.

The play subsequently was adapted as a television "special" with Miss Harris and Mr. Plummer in the roles of Joan and Warwick.

Others in the Slingerlands Players' cast, and the roles they will play, are:

William Heenehan, Joan's Father; Helen Cross, Joan's

BELL SYSTEM UNVEILS PLANS FOR NEW YORK WORLD'S FAIR BUILDING; SOUNDS LIKE OUTER SPACE FICTION

The New York World's Fair was "wired" for sight today (10/10) when a huge crane placed a one-ton horn antenna atop a 14-story high microwave tower at the Bell System exhibit.

The tower-antenna will transmit to the nation all television programs originating at the Fair. An antenna on the Pan Am Building in Manhattan will serve as the first relay point for cross-country broadcasts. The Fair tower also will handle incoming and outgoing closed circuit TV as well as data transmission.

A 200-foot crane dropped the cornucopia horn into a nest of eight steel beams like a key going into a key-hole. The horn carried an American flag to mark its being the highest point of the Bell System exhibit.

With the capping-off of the 140-foot tower, Bell System technicians will complete the installations of transmission equipment so that 30 circuits will be ready for use well in advance of the Fair's opening in April. Visitors will be able to see the equipment and monitors of programs being televised through the glass-enclosed base of the tower.

The pencil-shaped microwave structure also will serve as a World's Fair landmark for the Bell System exhibit site on the Pool of Industry. Heart of the exhibit is a 400-foot-long wing, suspended on only four supports and rising 87 feet high, where the story of communications will be presented.

All structural steel has been installed in the pavilion and it is now being sheathed in white fiberglass.

The huge wing, which appears to be floating in air, houses a ride that will transport fairgoers in moving armchairs through 50 different stage settings and film presentations showing high points in communications history.

How communications systems have developed, and the science and technology which have made them possible, will be explained in an exhibit hall in the lower section of the pavilion. Animated displays, audience-participation demonstrations, and games will take visitors up the scale from animal communications and primitive human efforts to a presentation on global telecommunications networks.

The Bell pavilion is located on a 2 1/2-acre plot location at the head of the Pool of Industry. This is on the main axis of the Fair opposite the Unisphere. It is estimated that some 23-25 million persons will visit the exhibit.

DOCTORS WANTED . . . - WOMEN PREFERRED

THE MEDICAL PROFESSION
OFFERS VAST OPPORTUNITIES

Lois Mattox Miller
Roving Editor,
The Reader's Digest

Keith McHugh, Commissioner, New York State Department of Commerce has said, "Too much woman power in our country is being wasted - and many young women train in the wrong fields and often enter job markets already flooded with applicants."

I wish to call your attention to a field for women which is wide open to cultivation - a field where the job market is badly in need of applicants. A field which offers the maximum satisfaction, community respect, and financial gain. A field where there are so many new vistas to challenge the superior mind that there is a place in its study for every well qualified student. A field which many young women have looked at longingly for years, but comparatively few have entered, often because of lack of information and some misinformation.

I am speaking of the medical field - careers in medicine for women.

That there is a great need for more well-trained doctors is a fact accepted by all responsible authorities. Yet, in the face of this need, *applications for medical schools have dropped consistently since 1950.

Two years ago the Bane Committee Report to the Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service stated: "We must graduate 3,600 more doctors a year to maintain the present ratio of 141 doctors to 100,000 population as a minimum health coverage.

This present ratio of physicians to the population has been maintained in recent years only by the immigration to the United States of foreign-trained physicians. In 1951 about 600 graduates of foreign schools were licensed to practice medicine in the United States. By 1960-61 there was another 1,753 foreign-trained doctors serving their internship in our hospitals and 8,182 serving their residency.

*The enrollment hasn't dropped but there are fewer applications for these places. Thus medical schools can't be quite as selective as in the past.

It is now estimated that 12,000 foreign-trained doctors are serving as staff physicians in the hospitals of the United States. It is also estimated that about half of the residents and interns in the municipal hospitals of New York City are foreign-trained.

Medical educators and health authorities are deeply concerned over this situation, for many of these doctors do not qualify for the jobs under the strict requirements made of our own medical students.

They are afraid that future medical care in the United States will suffer unless something is done quickly to stimulate the interest of our youth in medicine as a career.

It is estimated that we must graduate 50% more physicians each year by 1970 if we wish to maintain the present ratio of physicians to population.

What are the reasons for the falling off of applicants to our medical schools? There are several. Popular interest by male students in the other sciences undoubtedly plays a part. The cost of a medical education and the long years of study involved also contribute heavily to this falling off. Still another reason is the lack of sound information about the number of vacancies in the medical schools, the availability of scholarships, as well as the erroneous belief that only A students need apply.

"Tell me," I asked Mrs. Barbara Rau, "why everyone here at the Delmar Library is chanting "Rain, rain, go away . . . come to Delmar after next Sunday" "Because" . . . this lovely librarian answered . . . we're celebrating our 50th anniversary this weekend with an outdoor art exhibit . . . and a huge tea on Sunday to which EVERYONE interested in books is invited. (And in Delmar, it seems . . . everyone IS interested in books!)

Let's all back the Freedom Bond Drive. For your country, for yourself, put your dollars into United States Savings Bonds!

Fifty years ago, the women of the Progress Club decided Delmar needed a good public library. Once a woman gets an idea . . . it usually means action! Thus, the Progress Club gals took extension courses

The result, of course, was that they scraped up enough money to renovate a room in the Delmar grade school (now the Masonic Temple). Their husbands helped them install shelves, renovate furniture, and gather books. In May, 1913, Delmar had a library!

It seems logical to this writer that the Progress Club initiated the library . . . for progress has been the keynote of the library ever since! For proof . . . the very fact that in September of this year over 3,000 more books were loaned than in September of last year. (The circulation for the entire month ran well over 16,000 volumes.) I thought of this when I heard Quentin Reynolds blast the American public and downgrade the public's interest in reading. HE should visit the Delmar Public Library any night . . . but he'd be shocked out of his sad and disillusioned outlook if he visited on a Monday night! The Tri-Village area residents DO read. According to Mrs. Rau, about 90% of the reading is for pleasure. Approximately 60% of the books that are loaned are non-fiction . . . although there is a great demand for fiction . . . and particularly that which is new (Right now two favorites seem to be Cos-

tain's Last Love and Betty Smith's Joy in the Morning.)

"How do you ever select the newly written books" I asked Mrs. Rau. "Well, it's a tremendous task . . . and frankly I am never without a book catalogue in my pocket or review cards on my desk . . . both at home and at the library," she answered. Then she went on to say that her policy in choosing the books is to choose those with merit rather than to constantly follow the so-called "best seller" lists.

Additional room was added in 1954 . . . and two more additions have been made since. Today there is every indication that more space will soon be needed!

Yes . . . the library, just as the rest of the Tri-Village area, has grown like Topsy! The women of the Progress Club who staffed the library on a volunteer basis until 1931 finally had to face the fact that it really was more than they could handle. So, in that year they gave it to the town. The community voted to support the library as part of Bethlehem School District #6. It has since been entirely supported by the tax payers . . . and it is typical of the spirit of this community that the library has the interest and concern of the citizens who live here. There is a board of five trustees, their terms run for 5 years and each year a member is elected by popular vote. At present it is ably headed by Dr. Theodore C. Wenzl. Today there are over 25 persons on the library's payroll. This includes 16 teen-agers who are either employed as Pages or under the Work Study Program. Not only is their service invaluable to the regular staff, but it is an excellent opportunity for these high school students to form fine work habits. (If they do not fulfill the library's requirements, they are relieved of duty. There is always a waiting list with both boys and girls registered on it!) An extra plus (and when she tells of this, Mrs. Rau's face glows) . . . is the volunteer work of Mrs. Clover Mikol and Mrs. Evelyn Sanvidge. Mrs. Mikol arranges the art displays in the community room. Mrs. Sanvidge keeps those fascinating exhibits in the glass enclosed cases going!

There is excellent rapport and mutual respect between the librarians in the town's schools and those in the public library. After school . . . all of the 85 chairs in the children's room are filled. And . . . the popularity and tremendous demand for pre-school story hours has resulted in four such hours for the four year olds each week. Capable Jeanne Hermann (Mrs. Richard) uses her vast teaching experience to lead these tots into the wonderful world of books. Stories are enacted for them with the use of flannel boards and finger puppets, games and songs lead the way to curiosity about books . . . and to happy group learning.

This Friday, Saturday and Sunday there will be a children's art exhibit in the children's room . . . arranged for them by Mrs. Elizabeth Bradt. The outdoor art show to be seen on these days will include four classes: professional, adult amateur, junior class for 15 to 18 year olds, and one for ages ten through fourteen. Professional artists Alice Pauline Schaffer and Rudy Helmo will judge these Friday afternoon and the Delmar Rotary Club will present medals and awards in each group. Visitors to the library will see displays of early deeds, records etc. of the early library. In the Community Room the Delmar Camera Club will have a photographic display. Finally . . . President of the Progress Club, and Mrs. Eric Lake, the club's representative on the library committee, will preside at tea tables. Also, the following four women - who were among the club's members who held an auction in '54 and raised $1500 to furnish the Library's community room - Mrs. George C. Porter, Mrs. John D. Brown, Mrs. Joseph B. Lindsey, Jr., and Mrs. Edwin B. Piper.

No wonder those wonderful people at the library are praying for good weather this coming weekend! Fair weather or foul, this writer predicts a deluge of visitors to the community's favorite meeting place . . . the Delmar Public Library. It's had fifty fabulous years serving an inquisitive, intelligent populace that knows the value of investing in good, solid education for all ages! To quote Benjamin Franklin "An investment in knowledge pays the best interest!" Happy Birthday!
