

POEMS . . . in Praise of Practically Nothing!

'Tis the time of year when every-thing dormant all those long Winter months suddenly springs to life . . . yea, even Tri-Village poets are blooming! -Ed.

Uncle Bert

Last night as I lay sleeping, I had a dream so fair;
I dreamt I attended a meeting that is held four times a year.
My Supervisor, brave and strong, was there to do our bidding,
The people's man was who he was - the truth must not be hidden.
He stood up against the flood of nays - as he ne'er had in the past.
His stand was firm - he voted yea! (It could very well be his last!)

He renounced all inuendos and spoke so straight and true - I was proud to call him Uncle Bert and to have him our leader too.
I rushed to congratulate him, my happiness complete - But tripped over my pet elephant, which was lying at my feet.
With a jolt and a start I woke from my bed to realize the dream was in my head.
He voted "yea," that much was true - it can of course be said.
But for the rest, I'm afraid my friends, I had too many pickles before bed.

Progress!!!

Our sleepy town of Slingerlands Of late has been distressed,
For more, new, busy projects Are giving us no rest.
At first, it was the By-Pass, A little road designed
To slice our homes and yards apart
And leave our back yards lined
With miles of trucks and cars and such.
"The traffic will not lag!"
Our sons all cheered, their cars soon geared,
"Another road where we can drag!"
But now a new idea has come, A better one by far!
A shopping center right next door.
(To drive a mile's too far?)
A beauty shop, a liquor store,

Discussing the arrangements for the Hamagrael Barbeque are Mrs. John Pellettier, Publicity Chairman, John Falvey, Principal, and John DeMallie, Chairman of the event. The barbeque, catered by John Geurtze, is being arranged for June 4, at 6:30 P.M. on the school grounds. The committees have been busy making plans for a bountiful chicken barbeque along with musical entertainment.

MEMORIAL DAY PARADE FINALE: MONUMENT DEDICATION

The Bethlehem Memorial Day Parade will start at 10 A.M., Saturday, May 30.
The route of march will be

Each one step away.
A market, drug store, parking lot,
In which our kids can play.
Want more? Apartment houses, too.
And later more, ah, yes!
And this is going to save our town
From "ticky-tacky-ness."
Re-zoning laws don't stop this group,
Nor do the people's cries,
So watch that road or market go
Right up before your eyes!
And then, perhaps, five years from now,
Worse trouble then, because,
You'll find an office building, where Your living room once was!

from the Blanchard Post south on Elsmere Avenue to Kenwood Avenue, west on Kenwood Avenue to the Four Corners, then east on Delaware Avenue to the Veterans' Memorial Park near the underpass.

The new Veterans' Memorial, generously subscribed to Tri-Village residents and organizations, will be unveiled during the memorial services at the Park.

THREE NEW TRUSTEES ELECTED TO NURSERY BOARD

Three new trustees were elected to the board of Tri-Village Nursery School at a parents' meeting Monday evening, May 11. Mrs. Gerald Austin, The Rev. William Vigne, associate pastor of the Delmar Methodist Church, and Edward Jenick, Jr., all of Delmar, will begin three-year terms on the nine-member board July 1. In addition, Dr. Harold Bookbinder, guidance director at Bethlehem Central High School, has accepted a trustee invitation to fill the unexpired board term of Richard Barzin, who is leaving the area.

Also to assume office on July 1 are newly announced members of the 1964-65 executive committee: Mrs. Alvin Lierheimer, chairman; Mrs. Allan Kunsisto, co-chairman; Mrs. S. H. George Allen, secretary; and Mrs. John L. Moore, treasurer.

The nursery school is currently accepting applications for the 1964-65 school year. Registration will be limited to 42 pupils residing in the Bethlehem Central School District. Children who will be 3 or 4 years old by December 1, 1964 are eligible for enrollment.

Classes for 4-year-olds will meet five mornings a week, and a single class for 3-year-olds will meet four mornings a week. The new tuition rate for a 4-year-old child will be $55 per 8-week quarter if his mother participates in the classroom four sessions per quarter; or $70 if his mother does not participate. Tuition for a 3-year-old child will be 20% less. The cost of bus transportation will be included in the tuition.

Mrs. Hugh Flick of Slingerlands, director of the 17-year-old cooperative school, points out that the majority of mothers choose to participate. "They develop an increased understanding of their children through classroom experience with a trained teacher," she explains, "and their children thrive on this tangible sign of parental interest."

At a recent meeting of the Albany Chapter of the Financial Executives Institute, John C. Marsh, Delmar, Comptroller of the Associated Hospital Service of Capital District and Northeastern New York Medical Service, Inc., the Blue Cross-Blue Shield Plans serving Northeastern New York, was elected President for the coming year.

"The Defendant's behavior is mean, selfish, ignoble; but human - overwhelmingly, devastatingly human!" The miserable specimen at left is Bill Heenehan, playing the part of Trapp, the traveling salesman, trapped in a fatal web which is THE DEADLY GAME. A group of retired jurists in a Swiss mountain retreat spin out their morbid pastime of trying a stranger for murder in a mock trial. Sydney Turner directs this Slingerlands Players production Friday and Saturday evenings, May 22 and 23, at 8:40 at the Bethlehem Central Auditorium. Harlan Wilbert (who directed Slingerlands' "Philadelphia Story" and "The Lark" earlier this season) plays a key acting role this time as the prosecuting attorney. Others in the cast are Joanne Kimmey, Craig Smith, and Art Ploetz. Martin Barr (center, in the picture) and Douglas Marone, at right, are defense counsel and judge.

DIAPER RASH FALLACIES - -

C. Robert Gruver, Editor
All About Babies

Does diaper rash occur more often in tiny infants than in babies a year or more old? Is it more common during the hot summer months than during the winter?

Most mothers will answer that diaper rash occurs more often in infants and that it is more common in the summertime.

Both these answers are not so, according to studies reported in the American Medical Association Journal of Diseases of Children.

The studies show that not only is there a greater incidence of diaper rash in older babies but the most distressing cases occur in babies a year or more old. More cases also occur in the winter months. There are several reasons for this.

During baby's early months, a mother fusses more with her baby. She's fastidious and prompt in changing baby's diapers, almost the very moment they're wet or soiled. She's alert for diaper rash and the slightest skin blemish is a cause for alarm and prompt attention. She uses a diaper service, aware that professional diaper processing is done under strict laboratory control, thus providing protection against diaper rash.

As baby gets older, mother fusses less. Yet, in the older baby, the conditions that contribute to diaper rash are more acute. Baby's diet now, with its solid food and its protein, effects the composition of the urine increasing the amounts of diaper rash causing ammonia. The quantity of urine that is now passed at one time is enough to soak a diaper instead of merely making it damp. The danger of bacterial infection through skin damaged by diaper rash increases as baby wins freedom of the floor and the lawn.

As for the higher incidence of diaper rash in the winter, it's due to mother relaxing her standards because of the erroneous belief that the distressing skin irritation occurs only during the summer. Yet, during the winter, baby wets more. In the summer most of the fluids that leave baby's body, leave as perspiration. In the winter, baby is also bundled up more, thus encouraging a tendency not to change the diaper as often.

As long as diapers are worn, medical authorities warn that the possibility of diaper rash remains. The best preventive still remains good diaper hygiene. Even when baby reaches that stage when training pants are worn by day and diapers only for naps and at night, the diapers should be processed just as correctly as when baby was a tiny infant and a fastidious diapering routine should be followed just as carefully.

ANNE FEICHTNER CHOSEN COMMUNITY AMBASSADOR

It is with great pride and pleasure that the Bethlehem Community Ambassador Project announces the selection of Miss Anne Feichtner as Bethlehem's 1964 Community Ambassador to Yugoslavia. Anne is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Leo V. Feichtner of 37 Fernbank Ave., Delmar. Dr. Feichtner is Chief of the Bureau of Health Service in the State Education Department.

Born in S. Carolina, Anne has lived in Delmar since she was nine years old. She attended Delmar Elementary School, Bethlehem Central Jr. High School and was graduated from Bethlehem Senior High School. For the past four years, she has been a student at State University College at Plattsburgh on a year round basis. She will be graduated on June 7 with a BS degree, an RN, and certification for school nurse teaching.

At college, in addition to her studies, Anne has found time to serve on various committees and boards of student government. She has held various offices in her sorority. This year, on recommendation of the faculty, her name will appear in "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges," a publication recognizing campus leaders in universities and colleges all over the United States.

Two years of Anne's nurses' training were spent at Metropolitan Hospital in New York City. Here she was called on to help people of different races and nationalities, many of whom spoke no English.

The Community Ambassador program is a part of the Experiment in International Living, which last year arranged visits to 32 foreign countries for 1,879 Americans, and American visits for 2,088 people from other countries. The aim of the Experiment is to promote world friendship and understanding on a person to person basis.

Bethlehem's Ambassador, like every Experimenter, will spend five weeks living as a member of a family, adopting its customs, diet, and general pattern of living, insofar as this is possible. The success of the venture requires great tact, open mindedness, and a true desire to help promote better relations between people of different nations, all qualities which are considered in selecting the person who will represent the community.

What do you know about the village of Normansville? Very little, I imagine, except that you pass above it every time you travel over the Normanskill Bridge on Delaware Avenue on your way into Albany.

I chatted recently with the Rev. James R. McClenaghan, pastor of the Normansville Community Church, and was interested in much of what he had to say about this little-known section of the Town of Bethlehem.

It's an old, under-developed area. About 21 families make their homes there, along the Normanskill, and their living conditions are greatly hampered by the lack of an adequate water supply. Negotiations are being carried on with town water officials to remedy the unhealthy situation, but the estimated cost to the land-owners (between $12,000 and $15,000) is a discouraging factor. "Many of these people would have to mortgage their homes to pay their share," Mr. McClenaghan told me. (The average Normansville home is assessed at $1200).

But he had some brighter news to pass along, too. The Normansville Community Church, a one-room building that is more than 75 years old, is thriving now as never before. Mr. McClenaghan is its first full-time pastor, and he has just completed his first year in the job.

The building seats only 70 people, and nearly that many make a regular practice of attending Sunday morning services. In addition, an average of about 50 people congregate for weekly Sunday evening services — many of them from outside the village.

Mr. McClenaghan has been responsible for doubling attendance at Sunday School classes; about 70 children regularly attend them to receive instruction from 14 teachers.

The church also sponsors a Cub Scout Pack and a LTDW (Learn To Do Well) Club for children. Its bulletins are mimeographed on a machine donated to the church by the Delmar Women's Bible Club, and "The Crusader," a monthly publication, is edited by Mrs. McClenaghan.

Mr. McClenaghan, a graduate of Bob Jones University in Greenville, S.C., is a former counselor for the Salvation Army. He receives about half of his support from four other churches who donate individually and voluntarily.

The McClenaghan's have six children, the oldest of whom is nine, and they reside in an apartment at 10 Hallwood Rd. in Delmar.

"I took this job because it was a real challenge," the inter-denominational minister told me. "Normansville is a poor little village, and the needs of its people are many." Nevertheless, he believes "The Lord has been good to us," and he strives daily to help the residents of Normansville live a better, fuller life.

The village of Normansville is probably the oldest inhabited section of the Town of Bethlehem, and today it is surely the least prosperous. Nestled under a bridge dividing the capital of New York State and an upper-middleclass suburban area, it has been forgotten by many - but not by all.

CEDAR HILL LITTLE RED SCHOOL HOUSE TO BECOME HISTORICAL SITE; GIFT TO TOWN OF BETHLEHEM

The "little red schoolhouse" at Cedar Hill, the oldest continuously active school building in the Town of Bethlehem and certainly one of the oldest in Albany County, will still have a long and useful life even though it was officially closed by the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk Central School District as a place of instruction in June of 1962. The residents of former School District #1 voted on May 16th to give the building to the Town of Bethlehem, at no expense to the Town.

Present plans for the use of the building by the Town are not complete, but it is expected that this will form the nucleus of a proposed Bethlehem Historical Association.

Let us look back into the pages of history to see why this school building holds such historical significance for the residents of the Town of Bethlehem. During the period of colonial government in our country, education received very little attention. In the thinly settled neighborhoods away from the city, it was usually conducted in the family, with sometimes several families uniting to employ a teacher. As population and prosperity increased, a growing interest for the advancement of knowledge gave impulse for school buildings. The early schoolhouses in this town, like those in neighboring communities, were built in almost every instance of logs, and the teaching as well as the accommodations were primitive and unsatisfactory.

It was not until the beginning of the 19th Century that districts were arranged and schools organized by concentrating the children of particular areas. The first schoolhouse in the Town of Bethlehem was built about 1720 in the hamlet of Cedar Hill. At that time, this was the only school house from the Coeymans line to the city of Albany.

The little log schoolhouse was soon outgrown and by 1859 there was need for a new schoolhouse. The present Cedar Hill school house, was constructed in 1859 on 94/100 acre of land purchased from Barent S. Winnie and his wife, Anna, at a purchase price of $100. The schoolhouse built at that time was not as it stands today, but was a typical one-room school building, facing east on the River Road, now Rt. 144. Mr.

Van Guysling was the architect who designed the original Cedar Hill School building in 1859 and Marcus T. Reynolds was engaged as the architect to enlarge the building in 1907, at which time a second room was added to the rear of the existing building, and a new entrance vestibule was built on the south side. At that time, the present dome was placed on the roof. This addition was built by DeWitt Smith, father of the late contractor, Rensselaer Smith, of South Bethlehem. Philip A. Miller of Selkirk was the first teacher to be employed in the school. There were 24 pupils at that time and Mr. Miller's original register is today in the possession of his granddaughter, Mrs. John Babcock of Becker's Corners.

In 1883, there were 119 children of school age with 69 attending school in Cedar Hill. The total district expenses for the year were $520.

By 1902, there were nine grades being taught in the school. The pupils went to the Senate Chamber in Albany to take their final examinations. Cedar Hill was the richest of all the school districts at this time.

A 100th anniversary celebration was held in the school building on June 23, 1959 with approximately 200 guests present. The event was planned by the two teachers at the school, Mrs. Adaline Johnson and Miss Laurella Butler, having taught at the school for 22 and 18 years, respectively. The Town of Bethlehem is indeed fortunate to have acquired this lovely old building which is an exceptionally well designed example of the classical architecture of its period and which has such a proud heritage of service to this area.
