AN ODE TO "PLANNING THINGS RIGHT," or SLINGERLANDS TOMORROW

In that former old creek by the Slingerlands firehouse
Not a creature was stirring, not even a titmouse;
'Cause somebody plamed a center with such care
And town fathers granted down-zoning that laid the place bare.

At first the little stores were "attractive and neat":
'A place to relax, your neighbors to meet."
'Course we all with our neighbors used to commune
In our pleasant homes - not a saloon.)

Then came new store-owners who hadn't been figured on.
Now, we've jazzy lights with big signs to shine upon:
'Ticky-tacky"insides and landscaping died out.
Now all we have is hot black-top and a pout.

From bartenders and carhops who just want to cater
To Thatcher Park picnickers and those who come later.
Hamburgs and fish fries, hard drinks and beer -
'The devil with Slingerlands," they say with a leer.

Now there's a moral to this story, my friend Darb;
Planning things your way our village will not guard.
Zoning is not something always to be broken,
For if we down-zone now, it will just be a token;

More pleas for business will soon be put forth
And Slingerlands' home atmosphere will be put to the torch.
Honky-tonky, "ticky-tacky," call it what you will,
Our pleasant little hamlet will have been led to the kill.
- Ticky Tacky

Photocopying Machine Added At Delmar Public Library

Now it can be told: the Delmar Public Library admits that it "copies." The newly installed photocopying machine makes full-size copies of all sorts of material, turning out a facsimile in seconds.

Mrs. Barbara R. Rau, Librarian, expects the vico-matic copying machine will be especially useful to students and businessmen. "Students can now make copies of non-circulating reference works and periodicals without the help of the library staff," Mrs. Rau explained.

The Vico-Matic delivers copies up to 8½x14 inches, but even the larger reference book pages can be copied in sections. The material being copied cannot be damaged by the machine. The original is placed face down on the machine and never passes through it. A 25-cent piece is dropped into the slot, a button is pressed and the machine makes a ready-to-use, legible copy in seconds. No copy or negative is left in the machine and the operation is completely private. Only the operator knows what is being copied.

The public is invited to use the machine to copy such non-library items as birth certificates, deeds, wills and similar documents. Copies can be made at any time during regular library hours.

NOW, HERE'S A BABY --
By C. Robert Gruver
Editor
All About Babies

A famous obstetrician is endeared in the hearts of hundreds of mothers, not so much because of his professional skill but because of these four little words spoken as he hands a newborn baby to his mother: "Now, here's a baby."

These four little words commit the doctor to no opinion of baby's physical attributes. Yet they are enough to conjure up in every mother's mind a very special meaning all their own. For to every mother's eyes, her baby is the most beautiful baby in all the world.

As far as actual looks go, there's little about a newborn baby to qualify him for a beauty contest. His head is by the series of muscular contractions that started him on his way. Only she knows how his little body stiffened and how his small back arched as he was pushed through the birth canal.

Little wonder that the newborn baby appears disturbed and so mad at the world that he could yell and does. But great-wonder is the skill with which engineered his little body to prepare it for birth. For example, the skull is made up of separate sections which do not meet. Thus, during the birth, they can be pressed together, even overlap to ease its passage through the birth canal. It is for the same reason that the buttocks are small and the shoulders narrow.

In time the head resumes its normal shape. The sections of the skull fuse and the easilyseen spot, where they didn't meet, closes. The skin becomes smooth and pink and the little arms and legs that were flexed and bent by baby's prenatal position straighten. Soon everyone notices that baby really is beautiful but never as beautiful as during the moment when mother looked on baby with love for the first time.

Mrs. Violet W. Newton of Albany Savings Bank who resides at 55 Orchard St., Slingerlands, is shown receiving the second-place award at the Editors Cup Competition of the Savings Banks Editors Forum held recently at the Hotel Sagamore, Lake George.

Presenting the bronze plaque is Mr. Fred H. Morris, a past president of the Savings Banks Public Relations Forum, assisted by Mr. Samuel E. Blythe (far right of pix), president of the 17-year-old organization.

Judging the competition were two members of the New York Association of Industrial Communicators, both of whom are company publication editors, together with a savings banker.

The publications were judged on editorial style, content and layout. It is the first time an area bank has won an award in this competition.

Albany Savings Bank's publication, ASB Herald, under the editorship of Mrs. Newton, is a quarterly publication designed to communicate between employees and employees; and management and employees.

A worried mother finds her GI son... because two helpful people wouldn't give up the search

THEY ANSWERED THE CALL FOR HELP -
Service Representative Greta Wharton (top) and Supervisor Eileen Beasley.

Are there still people in today's fast-paced world who will take the time to be helpful? And do it willingly and cheerfully? Ask Mrs. Ruth Lewis of New York City.

Mrs. Lewis was terribly worried when she called her local telephone office and talked with Service Representative Greta Wharton. Mrs. Lewis' son had told her he was on his way home from an Army assignment in the Panama Canal Zone. But days had passed, and no further word had come. Mrs. Lewis was sure something had happened to her son. She wanted to telephone him, but she had no idea where to reach him. Could Miss Wharton help?

Immediately, Miss Wharton and her supervisor, Miss Eileen Beasley, started a telephone search. They called an Army information center, a replacement center and a transfer point. Finally, after many calls, they located an officer in Fort Jackson, South Carolina, who told them Mrs. Lewis' son was safe. The officer promised to have him call his mother.

Moments later, Miss Wharton phoned Mrs. Lewis. It was a grateful and relieved mother who received the good news.

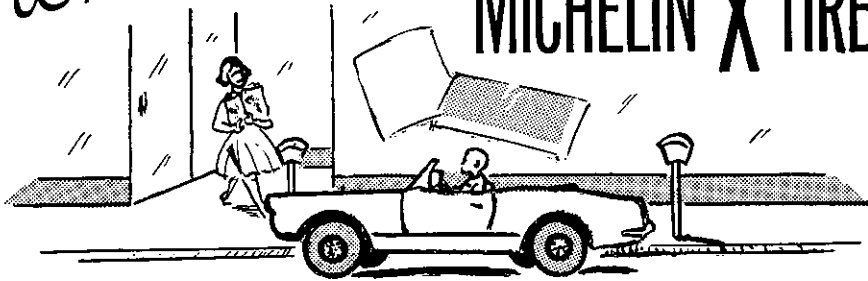

Do busy people still make it part of their business to be helpful? Yes. Lots of people do. Telephone people do. We're glad when they do.

cents for children and 50 cents for adults. Season tickets are also valid for these swims.

Co-Ed Swims, held on Friday evenings at the Jr. High Pool, will also be held between 7:30-9:30 P.M.

TEEN DANCES

The first of eight outdoor dances, was held last Wednesday on the Jr. High Parking Circle. Over 350 teen-agers attended and danced to the music provided by John Mason. The dances are started at dusk and end at 11:00 P.M. Admission is 15 cents for students with Canteen Cards and 25 cents for those not having the cards. In case of bad weather, the dances will be held in the Youth Center.

PLAYGROUNDS

The 95 degree temperature during the first few days of last week had little effect on the attendance at the eight Playgrounds. A total of 427 youngsters registered the first day, an additional 80 registered throughout the week.

The following Playgrounds will be closed on rainy days: Delmar, Elsmere, Selkirk and South Bethlehem. The other areas, Clarksville, Glenmont, Hamagrael and Slingerlands, will be open on bad weather days.

TENNIS

90 Jr. High boys & girls have registered and are participating in the Summer Tennis Clinic. Donald Camp, high school tennis coach, is instructing the group on Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays. At the conclusion of the program, a district-wide tournament will be held for all participants.

Summer Reading Is Fun!

Summer comes to Delmar and the many reading citizens of the area flock to the Delmar Public Library and leave laden with books, recordings and magazines. It is a matter of pride when the staff notes the large number of materials circulating each day; it is a matter of excitement when the count continues to rise each day. The staff will remain willing and able to help the borrower choose the "right" book whether it is part of a research project or for pure lazy reading fun.
