SENIOR CITIZENS WOULD LIKE SURPLUS TOYS

One part of the work of the Community Christmas Celebration Committee is the reconditioning of toys, dolls, books, and similar articles by members of the Senior Citizens and interested members of the different churches. These are then distributed to children of the area who can make good use of them.

This year, the repair work has already been started and each Friday afternoon and Saturday morning from now until Christmas, a grant of workers will be at the Masonic Temple Building in Delmar for this purpose.

The people in the Tri-Village community in the past have been very generous in contributive surplus toys. More can be used at this time.

If any person has such toys that can be donated, they will be appreciated. Bring them on any Friday afternoon or Saturday morning to the rear door of the Masonic Temple Buildings or leave them at any convenient time at the Police Station; or if you cannot bring them yourself, call Mr. Weaver, telephone 439-4087, and arrangements will be made to pick them up.

"HEY, MOM, WAS HE A BAD OR A GOOD GUY?!"

"Hey, Mom. Was Socrates a good guy or a bad guy?"

The boy, well up on television westerns but having for the first time seen a GB show on the Greek philosophers, was accurately stating a question that has been debated for the 2,000 years since Socrates was charged with corrupting the youth by prodding them with questions.

"Was Socrates guilty or not guilty?" is still being discussed today. It and other questions concerning the nature of man as raised by such authors as Aristotle, Shakespeare, Freud are being discussed in Delmar.

The discussion groups are sponsored by the Delmar Public Library in cooperation with the Great Books Foundation. Participants come from all walks of life; doctors, lawyers, students, teachers, housewives, plumbers, businessmen.

Registration is open now at the Public Library for first-year Great Books groups, according to Barbara Rau, librarian. Two discussion groups are now in session.

Many thousands of adults throughout the country have found that learning to think for themselves by reading and discussing Great Books can be fun, as well as stimulating.

Since 1947, when the Great Books Foundation was incorporated in Chicago as a non-profit organization, groups of 15 to 25 persons in communities from coast to coast have been meeting to discuss books written by Plato, Shakespeare, Thoreau, books as old as the Bible, as new as Freud.

They have found that the books deal with basic problems as current and important as when they were written: the problems of justice, happiness, morality, government, the nature of man.

All persons interested in joining a Great Books group may register at the Delmar Public Library until November 9.

A COLORFUL AND BREEZY "H. M. S. PINAFORE" WILL PLAY AT THE PALACE THEATER ON NOVEMBER 23

It is no small coincidence that the three major architects of Tyrone Guthrie's production of "H.M.S. Pinafore" - William Gilbert, Arthur Sullivan, and Tyrone Guthrie - were granted knighthood by their respective queens.

Queen Victoria, who knighted Gilbert and Sullivan, and Victoria's great, great grand-daughter, Queen Elizabeth, who knighted Dr. Guthrie, were recognizing the enormous contributions made to the theater by these men.

Gilbert and Sullivan opposed the traditions of the Victorian theater. They declared war on the incoherent plots, offensive dialogue, and banality of the musical theater of their day. Their attacks on the traditions and pomposity of life and institutions of Victorian Britain were made with such wit and imagination that the great success and popularity of their works has continued to the present day.

It is interesting to note that in the years since their deaths, the anti-traditionalist plays of Gilbert and Sullivan have been staged in a rather stiffly traditional manner - much as they were when they were first performed.

Tyrone Guthrie's staging of "H.M.S. Pinafore" has ignored the traditional style and replaced it with a bright, breezy new approach which is very much modern musical comedy, yet which has accented the wit and style of Gilbert and Sullivan.

The Tyrone Guthrie production of "H.M.S. Pinafore" will be presented at the Palace Theater

Tyrone Guthrie represents almost four decades of contribution to the theater. From 1933, when he became producer and then administrator of the celebrated Old Vic/Sadler's Wells in London, not a year has passed without a Guthrie creation being staged somewhere in the world. The Metropolitan Opera, the Edinburgh Festival, the Phoenix Theater, and Broadway ("The Matchmaker," "Gideon," "The Tenth Man," etc.) have all felt the imaginative Guthrie touch. It was during his spectacular tenure as artistic director of the Stratford Festival of Canada that he staged the fresh and provocative productions of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pirates of Penzance" and "H.M.S. Pinafore." He is currently director of the Tyrone Guthrie Repertory Theater in Minneapolis.

ALL ABOUT BABIES

A Public Service of the National Baby Care Council

By Dr. Marvin D. Steinberg
Research Podiatrist
New York, N.Y.

At birth, there are no completely formed bones in the human foot. The twenty-six bones-to-be exist in the form of cartilage and growth centers. This accounts for the softness and pliability of baby's bones and their susceptibility to pressure alterations.

The little fat pad under baby's feet sometimes gives an appearance of flat footedness. This is entirely normal and as weight bearing begins and exercise increases, the fat pad is absorbed and the normal arch forms.

The time to first take care of the feet is in babyhood when the bones are forming and the muscles are developing. Baby's feet must be carefully watched and guarded during this period when the bone structures, soft and incomplete as they are, can be bent, warped and misshaped and the feet deformed and weakened.

Foot pains in the young child usually are of passing significance, often due to normal growth and muscular development. However, a pain that persists for more than a few days should be called to the attention of a podiatrist or a physician. There are some illnesses that affect the feet and some apparent foot conditions that are not foot problems at all.

The following ten pointers for baby foot care are listed with the knowledge that many foot troubles seen in later life are preventable when properly treated in childhood.

1. Inequality in the size, shape or movement of the limbs should be checked by a podiatrist or a physician.
2. Tight booties, socks or shoes should be avoided.
3. A noticeable limp or swelling should be brought to the immediate attention of the family podiatrist or physician.
4. Pulling a child by a leg or spanking a child over the hips may injure sensitive growth centers.
5. Shoes that lace up to or above the ankle may prevent normal bending of the foot. If high shoes are worn, do not lace the upper three eyelets as they restrict normal function.
6. Baby's shoes should not be fitted by x-ray or fluoroscope.
7. Walking aids encourage bowlegs and other deformities.
8. Use a bland soap for bathing baby's feet. Dry between toes carefully and apply corn starch or bland powder.
9. Permit the normal baby to

An Editorial on Little League

Reprinted from New England Journal of Medicine

There is perhaps no greater joy than that of the baseball fan when he hears the first crack of the bat . . . or the plunk of the ball in the glove. In recent years this baseball-philia has become evident in a unique American phenomenon - the Little League.

Eager parents are cheering their heirs around the bases, and little boys in uniform are collecting money on house-to-house and car-to-car campaigns to pay for the outfits. Certainly in no other country, with the possible exception of Russia, is there such an effort to organize sport for children.

The devotion of some adults to the provision of adequate and safe facilities for games for boys is remarkable and to be commended. It is also true, however, that the organization may become a means of parental competition, with their sons being pawns in the game. Bleacher comments that may be acceptable and even appropriate at Fenway Park are not without harm to the little boys on the local ball field.

One sometimes wonders whether parents should bow out after they have provided adequate play area and facilities for the children. The talent required in managing a team of boys of varying ability, with all the physiologic and psychologic problems this entails, is beyond that of many parents, even with the best of intentions. On the other hand, it is remarkable how well children take care of their own interpersonal affairs when left alone.

For many centuries, boys have been known to have their own games without adult assistance, and it may be more satisfying and even healthier for them to play in their own way without teams, without uniforms, without adults and without a formal competitive schedule. Although any sportsman will admit it's fun to win, the more important discovery . . . is that games are for enjoyment and it's fun to play.

One can only hope that as the season goes on the little leaguers will not feel a little beleaguered.

animals are included in this collection, the largest of its kind ever to be shown in the area.

The sculptures range from a miniature blue heron to the Bron-tosaurus, reputed to be the largest creature ever to roam the earth. From the prehistoric eras to the present time, the models are representative of every continent in the world.

The exhibit was announced by Frederick W. Stolz, bank president, and can be seen at the bank's Downtown Office at 100 State Street, Albany, weekdays from 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. and, in addition, Thursdays until 8:00 p.m. through November 30. The public is cordially invited.

The Elementary and Secondary Education Study Group of the Albany AAUW (American Association of University Women) will present a program for the entire Albany branch on "Promising Innovations in Education" at 8 p.m. on Nov. 17 at the College of St. Rose Library.

Mrs. Melvin D. Carey of 17 Park Pl. in Elsmere is chairman of the group, which also includes four other active Tri-Village members. They are Miss Eloise Paddock, Mrs. Henry Patterson, Mrs. Donald Sauntry, and Mrs. Albert Mossin.

This year's theme for the Albany AAUW is "The American Family in a Changing World," and each of the study groups will be putting on programs that relate to the theme.

The education study group's program will include discussion with visual aids, of a variety of new educational ideas and methods, including team teaching, ungraded schools, and Modern Math.

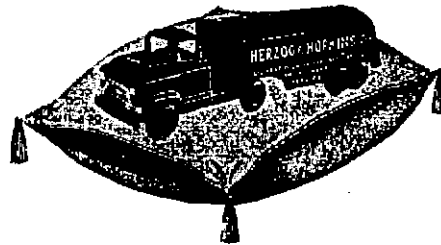

New members are always welcome to AAUW, and to its study groups. The Elementary and Secondary Education Group meet once a month, at the members' homes. At present there are less than 10 women who regularly get together, so the meetings are informal and - I understand - quite stimulating. If you're interested in joining the group, why not give Mrs. Carey a call?

Mrs. John Zitko of 17 Bartlet Lane in Elsmere reported to me that two local 4-H girls are among this year's winners in the Wool Contest sponsored annually by the Woman's Auxiliary of the National Woolgrowers Association and the American Wool Council.

The contestants enter outfit made of wool which they have sewn during the past year. Mrs. Zitko, whose daughter has been a winner in the contest in past years, is director of District 4, which includes Albany, Rensselaer and Greene Counties.

Miss Christina Henderson of Delmar was one of three runners-up in the Junior Division.

and Miss Carol Dushek of Ravena won a sewing kit for winning highest honors in the sub-deb Division.

The two top winners in the Junior Division are Patricia Paladino and Lorraine Bell, both of Valley Falls, N.Y., and they will compete in the state contest, to be held this Saturday, Nov. 7, in the Fabric Department of John G. Meyers Department Store in Albany.

Mrs. Edward X. Mikol, who lives at 38 Fernbank Ave. and is a prominent local artist, entertained about 25 neighbors and relatives at a buffet supper one night last week, as a farewell party for her sister, Mrs. Bernice Von Zedlitz of Long Beach, California.

Mrs. Von Zedlitz is a nurse and currently is president of the American Businesswomen's Association of the Long Beach area. When she came to Delmar to visit, she brought her mother, Mrs. Della Powers, back home. Mrs. Powers lives with her daughter, Mrs. Mikol, but frequently travels around the country - at age 78, mind you - to visit her other children.

This comes a little late, I'm afraid - my deadline being a week ahead of publication - but I wanted to mention what a grand job I thought the Slingerlands Community Players did with their production of "Rashomon" the weekend before last.

It was a play that would have taxed any professional group's talents, but our local thespians put on a flawless production that was both enjoyable and inspiring. The behind-the-scenes work was equally outstanding, particularly the set designing and the lighting effects.

I saw the play on Saturday night and the Bethlehem Central Senior High School auditorium was filled to capacity, so I'm sure many of you were there to share in the exciting dramatic experience.

The Slingerlands group will present two more plays this season, "Five Finger Exercise" in January, and "Rhinoceros" in April. If you missed this first production, don't be a loser next time - get your tickets early. You'll be glad you did.
