DID YOU KNOW? WE HAVE A NEW PRESCRIPTION SYSTEM!

Each family has a card like this one for the entire year.

When a Prescription is filled for a member of the family, this card is pulled and data recorded.

We, in this way, are preparing a complete record of all medication dispensed during each year.

This is convenient to:

DOCTORS

- Immediate review of all medicine

PATIENT

- Insurance or Tax verification
- Refilling a number you've lost

This service is more time-consuming for our pharmacists, but we think you will appreciate the extra effort.

If you would like an official receipt of your prescription purchases with us in 1965, leave your name and address and we will have it compiled for you.

Old Church

The oldest Anglican Church in the Western Hemisphere stands in Bermuda, a tiny vacation resort island far out in the Atlantic Ocean.

St. Peter's Church is in Bermuda's first settlement, St. George's Towne, founded in 1612 by settlers from England and the struggling Virginia Colony in America.

Gov. Richard Moore and 60 colonists framed the original building shortly after they arrived in Bermuda. A more substantial church was built in 1618, and it is from these early wooden structures that St. Peter's has grown, with parts of the early framing remaining in each later alteration of masonry and wood.

St. Peter's is now in the shape of a cross, but until 1715 it was a simple oblong building with the door at one end and the altar at the other. The pulpit, an unusual three-decked affair, stood at the side of the church about halfway down the aisle. It stands there still, although since 1715 it has been at the end of the main aisle. This happened when a new south transept was built, providing a new entrance and a new aisle. The altar, too, was left as it was, so today most of the congregation has only a side view of the chancel while some can't see the altar at all.

The church contains many treasures, not the least of which is its pulpit. Its lowest deck is the seat of the Parish Clerk, who reads notices and leads the congregation in its responses. The second level is a desk for the parson, from which he reads most of the Morning Prayer service. And the most lofty level is for the preaching of sermons. The pulpit is canopied with a wooden sounding board, found in 1954 to be hanging by one rusty bolt, ready to drop on an unwisely enthusiastic preacher — an event gleefully awaited by all the small boys in the parish!

But St. Peter's greatest treasurers are its silver communion pieces. The oldest chalice is a simple cup dated 1625 and bearing the arms of the Bermuda Company of Adventurers, who colonized Bermuda. It is used today on special occasions and on Christmas, Easter and Whitsunday. The chalice has inestimable collector's value, owing to the rarity of Charles I silver.

The church's "other" communion service is equally valuable. It was given by King William III in 1697 and consists of two massive silver flagons, a large covered chalice, a paten, and alms basin. Engraved with the royal arms and cypher, it is one of a very few complete sets of the many sent out as royal gifts during the reigns of William and Mary and later of William alone.

The old font, made of English ironstone, was brought to Bermuda by the first settlers, but dates — some say — from the mid-1400's. It now holds a silver christening bowl presented by William Browne of Salem, Massachusetts. He was governor of Bermuda between 1782 and 1788.

The same Governor Moore who framed the first church was a skilled shipwright. Legend has it that he made the simple Jacobean altar of St. Peter's, certainly the oldest piece of furniture in Bermuda today. This ancient altar was removed in Victorian times to make way for something more fashionable. Fortunately it turned up in an outbuilding and was restored to grace in 1922 by the late Canon Arthur Tucker.

The story of St. Peter's Church is a story of continuity. The same fittings in use across the centuries; the same families worshipping there generation after generation; even the same rectors in the pulpit for decades at a time. Indeed, since 1706 only seven have ministered there — and of those, three were descended from Rev. Alexander Richardson, rector from 1775 to 1805.

The congregation of St. Peter's takes its long history pretty much for granted. After all, it is the church in which they worship every Sunday.

But visitors thrill to the story that has unfolded beneath its roof and around its walls through 353 years.

The Work of the Coast Guard

In one of the biggest lifesaving years of its 175-year history, the U. S. Coast Guard during 1965 saved or rescued from peril more than 15,000 persons, Admiral E. J. Roland, Coast Guard Commandant, revealed today in reviewing service activity for the past year. The value of property saved was nearly 1.9 billion dollars, or more than four times the Coast Guard's appropriation for the year.

Contributing to the high total were the Cuban small boat exodus, Hurricane Betsy, and the springtime Mississippi floods, Admiral Roland said.

CUBAN EXODUS—In the fall of 1965, Coast Guard air and surface units patrolling the Straits of Florida were confronted with a major emergency created by a heavy small boat exodus from Cuba. It began shortly after Cuban Premier Fidel Castro in September, 1965, announced a relaxation of his government's policy on migration from Cuba. Hundreds of small craft of all types undertook the hazardous journey from the U. S. mainland to the small Cuban fishing port of Camarioca to pick up relatives. Most of them were unsuited to operation in the treacherous Florida Straits. Coast Guard aircraft in cooperation with surface units kept close watch over these waters, alert for any emergency. This was in addition to normal search and rescue activity in the much frequented waters of southern Florida.

Working around the clock, the Coast Guard assisted approximately 3,000 persons in an operation reminiscent of the "matchbox fleet" which pulled nearly 1,700 allied soldiers out of the English Channel during the Normandy invasion of World War II. The fleet of wooden 83-footers had been sent at President Roosevelt's request to assist in search and rescue operations during the invasion of Europe.

HURRICANE BETSY—Coast Guard rescue facilities were put to a stern test in September of 1965, when Hurricane Betsy slammed viciously into the southeast, centering her fury upon New Orleans, La. area. By the time the storm had spent itself, 11 Coast Guard helicopters had evacuated 1,144 persons, transported 22 medicos, and flown 140 sorties. They were assisted by units of the Navy, National Guard, Red Cross and local groups.

By small boats and vehicles, men of Coast Guard Base, New Orleans, evacuated 3,600 persons and transported approximately 100 tons of food, water and medical supplies. At its supply depot in New Orleans, the Coast Guard helped to bring more than 8,000 persons from flooded areas to high ground.

One of the many human dramas of Hurricane Betsy concerned a party of blind persons stranded on a roof top. To reach them, a Coast Guard helicopter pilot had to make a dangerous roof top landing. The operation was carried out without a hitch due largely to the courage and cooperation of the blind men and women. Said the pilot later: "The courage of this group struck me because of the sharp contrast in the orderliness and patience as we lifted these blind individuals by basket into the helicopter. They were the easiest load that we picked up that entire day. It is difficult for me to place myself in their position, having been exposed to terrifying elements for about 24 hours, and then to have the thunderous noise of a helicopter descend on them for a rescue. It is a rescue that I will never forget."

MISSISSIPPI FLOODS—Approximately 800 rescues took place during the disastrous floods in the spring of 1965 when the swollen Mississippi and its tributaries rampaged over the adjacent countryside, causing havoc in America's heartland. Coast Guard helicopters and small boats labored tirelessly to bring stranded men, women and children to safety. In one instance, Coast Guardsmen herded buffalo to safety, evacuated flood victims, transported workers, medicine and food, and helped parents salvage their children's Easter basket.

AUTOMATED MERCHANT VESSEL REPORTING PROGRAM (AMVER)—The Coast Guard through AMVER program saved additional scores of persons in 1965. Utilizing this computerized search and rescue operation, centered in New York City, the Coast Guard brought assistance to many distressed ships and persons. In the summer of 1965, AMVER was extended to the Pacific Ocean area. Headquarters for the western phase of AMVER are in San Francisco, California.

VIETNAM—At the other side of the world, in war-torn Vietnam, 17 of the Coast Guard's 82-foot patrol boats were on duty helping to choke off the flow of supplies by water from North Vietnam to Viet Cong units in the south. They gave a good account of themselves in action against the enemy, sinking several Viet Cong junks and supporting ground action by South Vietnamese and U. S. troops.

OCEANOGRAPHY—As part of its expanding oceanographic program, the Coast Guard Cutter NORTHWIND carried out a five-month study of the little known Kara and Barents Seas north of the Soviet Union. The cutter carried marine scientists of the Coast Guard's Oceanographic Unit in Washington, D. C. Data obtained during the cruise will be made available to marine research centers of the world. For the first time, scientists had an opportunity to secure important information on the nature, structure and history of this remote part of the world. The study could shed new light on the origin of the earth itself.

ICEBREAKER TRANSFER— Under an agreement between the U. S. Navy and Treasury Departments, five Navy icebreakers will be transferred to the U. S. Coast Guard. Effect of the transfer will be to make the Coast Guard the chief ice-breaking agency for the Federal government. The agreement will be carried out over a 16-month period having begun with the transfer of EDISTO in October and to conclude with the transfer of the Navy icebreaker USS BURTON ISLAND in November 1966.

FLEET MODERNIZATION— Plans to modernize the Coast Guard's surface fleet went briskly ahead with the launching of the 210-foot medium endurance cutter ACTIVE, three new 157-foot buoy tenders, RED WOOD, RED BIRCH and RED BEECH. In December, 1965, the Coast Guard launched its first new "Secretary" class cutter, the 378-foot HAMILTON. She will be a high endurance cutter, incorporating many advanced features.

Altogether, 1965 was a memorable year for this small service of 32,000 men whose motto is "Semper Paratus" (Always Ready). It has certainly lived up to its motto.

For millions of men (and women) the James Bond image means adventure and excitement. A symbol of masculinity, 007, personified onscreen by Sean Connery, is probably today's most idolized hero. This isn't an episode from a James Bond adventure, but it could be. It's the stuff that dreams are made of — the daydreams of millions of men (and women). Will the dream hero shoot the intruder? It won't be necessary — because his male magnetism, a much more reliable deadly weapon than the automatic — already gives him "the license to kill . . . women."

charm of the 007 type hero? For the countless men who would give a year's salary to know, there's a good word; you're probably closer to his image right now than you may think.

After all James Bond is a man like other men — only much, much more so. Your inasculine traits are essentially the same ones he has — in spades. To achieve his kind of "super-male" image, with whatever rewards it may bring, follow these tips from some experts who have obviously been spying on James Bond:

001-Know what you want and go after it. Bond isn't supposed to be a "nice guy" after all, he's a Secret Agent who's licensed to kill. Without drawing a bead on anyone, you too may find that you'll get what you want if you refuse to let others take advantage of your good nature.

002-Show decisiveness in all situations. According to the screen's Sean Connery who is James Bond to millions of women, "I think one of the appeals Bond has for women is that he is decisive — cruel, even. By their nature women aren't decisive — 'Shall I wear this? Shall I wear that?' — and along comes a man who is absolutely sure of everything, and he's a godsend."

003-Work hard on your well-groomed image. Bond is in great shape, and he dresses to kill; so should you, within the limits of your budget. Don't forget that for anyone as sophisticated as 007, good grooming includes the selection of after shaves and cologne and other scent-sible grooming aids. In fact, a new line of men's toiletries, with the type of subtle masculine aroma that a man like Bond would favor, has been dubbed 007 and tagged with such slogans as "007 makes any man dangerous" and "When you use 007, be kind." The new scent is also said to give the "license to kill . . . women." Today the "scent" as well as the "suit" makes the man.

004-A smile can work wonders. This is especially true if you know when not to smile — which is most of the time! Bond is the quiet, almost somber type; his humor, when it flashes, is the dry, sardonic kind. When you smile seldom, acting as if you are preoccupied with weighty matters, a girl can't help wondering if you really are pleased with her. Then you flash your rare smile. Using these tactics, you may soon find that you have more to smile about!

005-Be adventurous — but with the right kind of caution. Bond loves the fight, but even more he loves winning. He knows the differences between daring and recklessness, and so should you. Don't be afraid to take risks to advance your goals, but be sure they're calculated risks.

006-Remember that style makes the man. Agent 007 treats himself well. Good hotels, gourmet foods and wines, important cars, are his way of life — his trademark. Why not cultivate your tastes too? Dare to have habits; a certain wine always at your table; an offbeat brand of cigaretts, the aroma of a special cologne. Always remember women prefer a man of taste. And people too take you at your face value. If you act as though you're entitled to the best, its more than likely that's what you will get.

007-Always be cool. This is really the "ABC" of the 007 hero. James Bond is above all, self-possessed. Keep your temper at all times — Secret Agent Bond may indulge in a flying tackle, but he never flies off the handle. You can also avoid the temptation to boast — let your actions speak for you. They'll say flattering things, if you've learned the secrets of Bond's appeal.

With a little practice, in fact, you may find it easier than you think to establish a firm "bond" between yourself and the 007 hero image.

Camp, deputy registrar of vital statistics; Harry H. Sheaffer, comptroller; William L. Murphy, member of the board of appeals, and Harold H. Geurtze Jr., member of the planning board.

In a statement kicking off the new year, Supervisor Kohinke said, "It has been a real thrill and honor for me to work for and with the people of Bethlehem . . . There is no question in my mind that in this new year, we will continue to grow as a community."

The supervisor praised the elective and appointive officers of the town for the "way we have worked as a team." Attending the meeting were board members Edward Tallmadge II, Donald H. Burton, Harold L. Williams and George J. Butman.

SLOWPOKE: HIGHWAY MENACE

The driver who creeps along as if he were going to a funeral may be doing just that, the Catholic Digest states. Drivers traveling 20 mph below the average speed have twice as many accidents as drivers going 20 mph above it. Safety experts now rate the slowpoke more deadly than the drinker or the speeder.

Electronic timers set up to measure average traffic speed show that motorists driving the average speed have an accident rate slightly less than 100 crashes per 100 million miles of driving measured. At 20 mph below the average speed, the accident rate shoots up to 1,050. At 20 mph above the average speed, the accident rate is about 500 — less than half that of slow drivers.

As speed decreases, number of accidents increases. At 30 mph below average speed, the accident rate soars to 8,000.

The theory now is that it is not the speed but the variance of speeds on a highway that matters. If all cars traveled at about the same speed, they would never overtake and pass one another and there would be far fewer mishaps.

Statistics are difficult to gather on the slow driver because he often goads others into impatience — and accidents. The slowpoke may go merrily on his way and never be counted.

The good driver always keeps the cars around him in mind. He helps traffic flow smoothly, never obstructs it. He does what other drivers expect him to do. The bad driver acts as if he has the only car on the road. He pokes along too slow for the traffic tempo or clogs a fast lane. He hesitates at turns or intersections, so you can't tell who should go first. He gets in the way and sets up accidents.

The slow driver can literally wreck progression through a signal system. Traffic lights may be synchronized to move traffic steadily, but the too-slow driver delays enough to meet a red light at every intersection. But the slowpoke is at his worst on superhighways.

Nearly all states have laws making slow speed a punishable offense. But little action has been taken against the dawdlers. No traffic expert condones speeding, but all are against the slowpoke.

BACH PARADOX

It took almost 200 years for the reputation of Johann Sebastian Bach to become firmly established, the Catholic Digest claims. After the beginning of the 20th century, one paradox became evident.

The celebrated Berlin performance of The St. Matthew Passion in 1829, which set the Bach revival afire, was instigated by Felix Mendelssohn, a Jew, with the eager assistance of Franz Liszt, a Catholic, and Robert Schumann, a Protestant.

But this was only an apparent paradox, for Johann Sebastian Bach's music was, and is, a universal act of worship.
