

Community Ambassador Report

Marjory Reid is spending the summer in Peru as the Bethlehem Community Ambassador. This is her first report to the community.

Dear Neighbors:

It seems unbelievable but at last I am here in Peru. After two weeks of intensive language training at Putney, Vermont, our group flew to Miami, Florida, for several days of orientation and then on to Lima, Peru. I set foot on Peruvian ground at 9:00 July 1. One member of our group is employed by International Business Machines in Endicott, New York. The IBM representative in Lima had been informed of our arrival. We were met by customs by a large welcoming committee.

From Lima we were driven directly to Huampani, a resort about thirty minutes outside the city. The Experiment planned a three-day stay here to acquaint us more fully with Peruvian customs. We were immediately introduced to the Peruvians' habit of eating four and sometimes five times a day. This custom, of course, had our immediate approval. Peruvians generally have a light continental breakfast of coffee leche and rolls with butter or jam. Coffee leche is made by adding boiled milk to a little less than half a cup of strong coffee. It's very popular here, as in Europe.

The most important meal of the day is served at noon and is referred to as almuerzo. Generally, a salad is served first, followed by soup, the main course of rice and meat, and then dessert. Lunch is served at 5:00 p.m. This meal is equivalent to our snack, or the Englishman's custom of tea in the late afternoon with cookies or jam and bread. A dinner called the comida is served about 8:00 or 9:00 p.m. It is somewhat lighter than the noon meal. It appears as though our group will be heavier when we return to the United States.

In Huampani it was necessary to accustom ourselves to a change in weather. When we left Miami, the thermometer read in the 80's. When we stepped off the plane in Lima, the reading was in the 40's or 50's. It is midwinter in Peru now. The temperature at Lima is usually about 55 degrees and varies little due to the cooling effect of the Humboldt Current. Peruvian homes are not heated. Consequently, suits and heavy clothing are a necessity. The nights are very cool although mid-day can be hot. We are in the tropical zone and the sun's rays are intense. The outdoor swimming pool at Huampani was in frequent use during the afternoon. I understand that much of Huampani's popularity is due to the fog which hangs over Lima continually during the winter months.

Huampani's sun is a refreshing change for many. We think of Peru as a country with just two social classes. However, there is an emerging middle class. It may be small at this time but it is growing. The resort at Huampani caters to this latter group.

Huampani and Lima lie on the western coast of Peru, which is desert. The few cities along the coast are oases, made by diverting rivers which normally flow east from the Andes.

Recently, we took a bus trip from Lima to Trujillo, via the Pan American highway. Trujillo lies approximately 375 miles north on the coast. It is the fourth largest city in Peru, with a population of 100,000. The bus trip takes ten hours through the desert. At points we travelled close enough to the ocean's edge to see the white caps made by the waves below. By moonlight, it is a beautiful sight. There are steep precipices at points along the highway, and it can be dangerous. We often passed a cross erected beside the road to mark the scene of a tragic accident.

Upon arrival, we met our families. The Experiment was unable to find enough homes for everyone, so two of us in our group are living with Senor and Senora Ganoza. I will probably move to a new family in a day or two. Actually, I'm quite lucky. Now I will have two families in Peru. The Ganozas have five children, ranging in age from 6 years to 8 months. Two servants also live in the household. Together, we form a sizable group. Senor and Senora Ganoza are very warm

Dr. Tullio Mereu has begun a private practice of pediatrics at 785 Delaware Avenue in Delmar.

For the past year Dr. Mereu has been a full-time member of the pediatrics faculty at Albany Medical College. He has also been involved in the patient care and research activities of the phenylketonuria (PKU) clinic at Albany Medical Center.

Dr. Mereu is the author or co-author of more than a score of published scientific papers, most of them dealing with childhood metabolic disorders that lead to mental retardation.

A native of Verona, Italy, Dr. Mereu earned his medical degree, cum laude, from the University of Bologna Medical School, and began his pediatric training at children's hospitals and pediatric centers in Switzerland and Italy. He completed his pediatric training at Albany Medical Center Hospital in 1964-66.

and understanding people, as I have found to be characteristic of the Peruvians. They are particularly patient with our sparse knowledge of Spanish. I've been busy the last day or two making new friends and visiting new places.

Charlatans' Last

As its final production of the season, Charlatan's Arena Summer Theatre presents two one-act plays on the same evening. "The Lesson" by Eugene Ionesco, a striking play, investigates the pupil-teacher relationship symbolically and emotionally. The director, Lila Geer, who also directed "J.B." for last weekend, takes a role in the play with Lila Geer just can't seem to keep her mind on "The Lesson" as Sydney Turner attempts to teach in rehearsal for tomorrow night's performance.

Sydney Turner and Judy Flaudreau.

The second play is "The Zoo Story" by the ingenious young author of the Pulitzer Prize winner, "A Delicate Balance" which is playing on Broadway now. "The Zoo Story" deals with the attempted communication of two entirely opposite personalities which leads to a shocking ending. Ron Eddo, whom we saw perform so well in "J.B." last week will be on stage with Tom Lunsford in this one act directed by Sydney Turner.

Tickets are $1.00 and are available from any member of the company or at the door performance night (Friday or Saturday). The first play begins at 8:15 p.m.

3rd Evening

Remember we promised the teens a surprise at the third and last Teen Time on the Green concert? We did promise and we can produce. In addition to the talented Flandreau sisters (Judy and Suzy) whose folk singing is charmingly provocative and professional, we will present Bill Little. Bill is something of a folk song connoisseur and in addition to his own numbers will invite the audience to participate. (We noted at the highly successful Jug Band evening that a lot of the young people were more than anxious to join in the fun.)

In addition we will proudly present the Madras. For those in the know, no explanation of the popularity of this group is necessary. The boys have been playing together for some time and are well known throughout the area.

Already inquiries are pouring in regarding this program. See you Tuesday, August 22, at eight-thirty on the Green at the Delmar Public Library.

GARDENING

with JIM HOWARD

What Is GOOD Lawn Seed?

If you are about to buy lawn seed for the first time - or even, if you're planning to buy more this Fall, but have never understood the economics of grass seed - here are some simple points to keep in mind when you stop at your favorite garden shop and stand face-to-face with the displays of bags, cartons, cans - large and small.

One thing you'll notice is the wide variation in prices, ranging from $1.89 (or less) for 5 lbs. to $1.89 (or more) for ONE POUND. Assuming that you are one of the skeptics not easily lured by colorful packaging or by the equally colorful adjectives on the containers, still you may be wondering: "Is the expensive seed that good? Can the inexpensive seed be any good at all? How does a poor stiff like me tell what he's buying?"

Obviously you can - or should - expect to receive just about what you pay for, but most of us want more than a dollar sign as a means of measuring value. So let's compare it with mixed nuts. No matter how much we like peanuts, usually when we buy a mixture, we want the other kinds - almonds, cashews, filberts, pecans, Brazil nuts. Most of us know that the less expensive mixtures contain peanuts - the lower the price, the more peanuts, and maybe not the best grade of peanuts at that! In short, we judge

Use PLUS 2 but don't pay— unless weeds fade away!

TURF BUILDER PLUS 2 clears out most every non-grass weed including dandelion, plantain and chickweed. At the same time it full-fertilizes your lawn. Saves both time and effort. But the real beauty of PLUS 2 is in the results. As weeds curl up and gradually disappear, the fertilized grass fills in where the weeds were. Result? A greener, thicker, handsomer lawn.

Won't you be our guest?

Get TURF BUILDER PLUS 2 and pay nothing. Use it on your lawn. If, in 30 days, you are not completely satisfied, don't pay us - not even one penny!

Bring in and exchange for PLUS 2

Yes, I'd like to try TURF BUILDER PLUS 2 for 30 days. If I am not satisfied with results, I am under no obligation to pay.

the quality of the mixture by the kinds of nuts in it, and by the quality of the nuts themselves — their fullness, size and freshness.

So it is with grass seed. By law, each package must state plainly what's inside, and this is the message to look for when you buy grass seed.

True, names like ryegrass, bentgrass, fescue, bluegrass, etc., are less familiar to most of us than, say, almonds, cashews, and peanuts, but here is a simple classification of the kinds of grass seed commonly found in mixtures. It will help you choose the right blend for your lawn. Most of us know the relative difference between fine texture and coarse texture, and it is in these terms that we classify here the different kinds:

Fine Textured

Bentgrass

Kentucky Bluegrass

Merion Kent Bluegrass

Poa Trivialis

Red Fescue

Course Textured

Alta Tall Fescue

K-31 Fescue
Meadow Fescue
Annual Ryegrass
Perennial Ryegrass
Red Top

Generally, the fine textured grasses make the best lawns — dense, uniform, long-lasting turf — but they may take longer getting started. The coarse-textured grasses often start quickly but are not suited for regular or close mowing and seldom survive for more than two or three years in a lawn — some even less!

From Deca

Donna George, a June graduate of Bethlehem Central Senior High School, and State Historian for the New York State Association of Distributive Education Clubs of America, reports on the association's activities during July.

July 2-8 Miss George attended a training conference at Oswegatchie Camp, owned and run by the Future Farmers of America. Thirteen officers of DECA, together with the State Future Farmers of America officers from New York and Rhode Island, met in training sessions designed to help them carry out their duties during the coming academic year. Sessions were conducted in parlimentary procedures, public speaking, officer conduct and history and philosophy of the organization.

During the Week of July 24-28, Miss George and four other New York State DECA officers attended the annual Officers' Donor Tour in New York City and Long Island. This tour was designed to give the DECA officers an opportunity to acknowledge the contributions of the various companies which have supported DECA during the past year. The companies may have contributed financial aid for contest prizes, sent judges for contests or employed distributive education students. The companies visited during the tour were: Barton's Inc.; Abraham & Straus; Sears Roebuck & Company; J.J. Newberry; The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company; Avon Cosmetics; J.C. Penny; Grand Union

Beers Festival

by Bill Little

Starting August 17 and running through August 20, the Beers Family will present the 2nd annual area folk festival at Fox Hollow, their estate, which is located one-half mile west of Petersburg on Route 2 east of Troy.

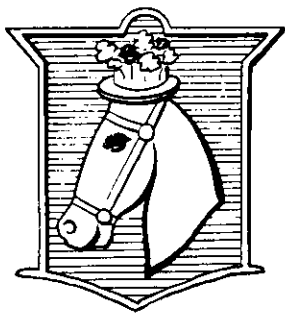

The Beers Family Festival of Traditional Music and Arts, as it is formally called, will begin with a program Thursday, August 17, dedicated to the children. A folk opera, "The Princess Who Wouldn't Laugh," followed by songs and stories by adults for children, old fashioned "Punch & Judy" shows with the Horton Puppets, the Dildine Marionettes, & the Cubby Whitehead Puppets.

There will be three programs each day: 10 A.M., 1:30 P.M., and 7:30 P.M. 'til midnight, bringing many nationally-known folk figures as well as many lesser-known personalities into the spotlight.

Jean Ritchie, Rosalie Sorrels, The Pennywhistlers, Roger Sprung, Paul Cadwell, Sandy & Caroline Paton, and the Beers Family are just a few of the more than 125 performers, artists, and craftsmen who will be at the festival.

Coming soon:

A clever new way to make more phone calls at a lower cost per call.

Home Econ-O-Call

Starting September 1, residence customers will be able to take advantage of a new bargain telephone offering—Home Econ-O-Call service. This optional plan provides added telephone value and can save you money on calls within New York State.

You'll be hearing more about this bargain calling plan with your next telephone bill.

We're trying hard to make your telephone service the biggest bargain in your home. Since 1940, while the cost of living has increased 137%, overall long distance rates have actually decreased.

And while the costs have gone down, the service has improved substantially. You can dial your calls to just about anywhere, and they are completed faster than ever before.

Lower rates, better service...and now, another new way to save money.

With Home Econ-O-Call your telephone dollar is worth more than ever before. Use your phone for all it's worth.

Miss Arlene N. Superko, an employee of the Bethlehem Central School District since 1956, has accepted a position as Director of Guidance in the Altmar-Parish-Williamstown School District, Parish, New York.

Her resignation as Bethlehem Central Senior High Guidance Coordinator will be effective August 31, 1967.

ENGAGED — Mr. and Mrs. William J. Nash, Jr., announce the engagement of their daughter, Sharon Ann, 8 Mag-ee Road, Glenmont, to John Edward Cole, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Cole, Canada Street, Lake George. Miss Nash is a graduate of Bethlehem Central High School, Albany Business College and is presently employed as secretary to Dr. Glasier, Denton, Holden and Otto in Albany. Mr. Cole is a graduate of Lake George High School, served 3 years in the U.S. Navy, attended Hudson Valley Community College, and is presently employed by IBM in Albany. A September 16 wedding is planned.

FRIDAY

The tire industry has finally

Michelin invented them 19 years ago

They scoffed when Michelin introduced the radial ply tire in 1948. Just another gimmick, they said. Couldn't possibly last.

But now, most of the tire industry is burning the midnight oil to come up with new radial designs. The reason is that automobiles have advanced much faster than the tires that support them. The ever-more-powerful engines, power steering and brakes, and high-speed freeway driving are harder on tires than ever before. Which is why you're probably not getting the tire mileage you did 10 years ago. Here's why.

Under today's driving conditions, the tread on an ordinary tire squirms and squiggles on the road and grinds the rubber off faster. This is because the relatively stiff sidewalls won't flex and let the tread stay in contact with the road.

But a Michelin tire has radial plies — that is the plies are perpendicular to the ground. This makes the sidewalls extremely flexible and keeps a larger area of tread on the road. Without squiggling or squirming. And each Michelin tire has a tough layer of steel cord that circles the tire between the tread and the radial casing. This reinforces the tread and prevents it from distorting. It's the combination of radial construction and the layers of steel cord that makes Michelins so long-lasting. In fact, a set of Michelin X tires can easily last as long as your car. Many Michelin tire owners get 60 to 70 thousand miles from a single set. That's why we can guarantee that you'll still have tread left after 40,000 miles. That's also why Michelins are offered as optional equipment on two of Detroit's finest high-performance cars.

Well, we're glad we stuck to our guns. Because it's given us 18 years to make Michelin X radials the safest, most economical tire you can buy. Michelin whitewall tires are available in sizes to fit any car.

So before all the shouting starts about "new" radial tires, discover Michelin X — the original radial tire.

Guaranteed for 40,000 miles of tread wear*.
Compact size costs less than $40

Auditions

The Capitol Hill Choral Society will hold auditions for the four solo parts (Soprano, Alto, Tenor and Bass) in Mozart's "Coronation Mass" and "Solemn Vespers" at 7:30 P.M. Friday, August 18, in the meeting hall of Emmanuel Baptist Church, 275 State Street, Albany. Judson Rand, conductor of the Society, suggests that the auditioners either prepare in advance the solos from the two works or be able to read them from sight, both individual solos and quartette sections.

The performance of the two works will take place in the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception, Albany, on Friday, November 3. For information, Mr. Rand may be contacted by writing c/o Capitol Hill Choral Society, P.O. Box 64, Albany.

into the Indiana University chapter of Phi Delta Kappa, the national honorary fraternity for men in education.

The students, all studying for advanced degrees, were nominated for membership by active members of Phi Delta Kappa, and were required to pass oral and written tests.

Car Wash

The Albany Jaycees will hold a car wash on Sunday, August 20, from 9 A.M. to 5 P.M. at the New Minit-Man Car Wash, 590 Central Avenue, Albany.

President Walter J. Marvin of Huron Road, Delmar, announced that proceeds from the car wash will help defray the expense of the Jaycees' youth projects.

Donation for the car wash is $2.00.

Jim Willette is Jaycee Director and Ray Saba is Jaycee Chairman for the car wash project.

Rusty Nails?

Delmar golfer Richard P. Dalton may win $1,000 and a trip to Scotland for two as a result of scoring a hole in one recently at the Ponderosa Country Club.

Mr. Dalton of 54 Nathaniel Blvd. was entered in the annual Rusty Nail Sweepstakes.

The winner will be announced early next year.
