New 'Parent'

Mrs. Francis C. Snyder, 462 Kenwood Avenue, has financially "adopted" Martha Estela Santos, a 6-year-old Colombian girl, through Foster Parents' Plan, Inc., 352 Park Avenue South, New York, N.Y. 10010.

The "adoption" is financial not legal and costs $15 a month for a minimum of one year. Foster Parents often continue supporting the same child until he graduates from school or reaches sixteen. If at any time the Foster Parent cannot continue the child is assigned to another Foster Parent. Once enrolled a child is assured of continuous care until he is capable of caring for himself. As soon as a Foster Parent makes the first payment he receives a photograph and case history of his child. Soon the child's first letter (original and translation) arrives. Every month Foster Parents and child exchange letters. After awhile the exchange of information develops a warm personal relationship that often lasts long after the child has become an adult.

Semifinalists scored the highest in each state on the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test given last February. They constitute less than one per cent of the graduation secondary school seniors in the nation.

Red Cross Aid

Texas Gulf Coast was hit by the full fury of Hurricane Beulah which has been termed by the weather bureau as "one of the worst Gulf hurricanes of the century." The American Red Cross mobilized quickly and dispatched workers and 31 pieces of mobile disaster equipment to cities along the Gulf Coast. They are manned by 48 American Red Rross volunteers.

This was the biggest movement of equipment in the Red Cross disaster history. It included canteen and catering units, panel trucks, and station wagons. The vehicles were well stocked with supplies, including paradomes — portable plastic shelters to serve as field offices first aid equipment, cots, blankets and medical supplies. Most were equipped with two-way radios.

Five of the vehicles were sent to Harlingen; six to Corpus Christi; five to Victoria; six to Wharton; two to Houston, and one to Beaumont. The others were assigned to points in the interior of Texas to which refugees are expected to come in large numbers.

The vans came from Amarillo, Waco, Fort Worth, Dallas, Houston, and Galveston, in Texas; Oklahoma City and Tulsa, Okla; Lincoln, Neb.; Wichita, Kans.; Kansas City, Mo.; St. Louis, Mo.; Des Moines, Iowa; and Moline and Springfield, Ill. The Brownsville, Texas, Chapter's disaster vehicle was retained there for emergency use as necessary.

cluding nursing supervisors, supply officers, shelter specialists and case workers were sent to points in Texas by the Midwestern Area office in St. Louis, to assist the scores of volunteers already on the scene.

On Monday, the Red Cross had 300 shelters open for occupancy in school buildings, city halls, gymnasiums, and fair buildings. The number since then has increased. Thousands of private homes have also been thrown open to refugees from the bigblow.

The last big hurricane to strike the Texas Gulf Coast was Carla, just six years ago this month. It sparked the evacuation of approximately a million refugees to the Texas interior. The Red Cross operated 687 shelters which housed 206,103 persons and fed 227,034 in the shelters, cafeterias, restaurants and through mobile canteens.

Hurricane Beulah posed its threat to the Texas coast just three days after the Red Cross aided some 3,000 persons on the Atlantic Coast from New Jersey to southern Virginia, who were forced to flee their homes as Hurricane Doria brushed the coast Friday night and Saturday.

Meanwhile, almost half-way around the world, 600 dependents of U.S. government and industrial workers were given assistance by the Hawaii Red Cross Chapter after their evacuation from Wake Island because of Typhoon Sarah which struck the island Friday.

New Program

A special recreational program for the Geriatric and Home Nursing Unit patients at the Albany Veterans Hospital is being organized and Red Cross volunteers are urgently needed to carry out this most important work, according to Mrs. David A. Weir, Deputy Director for the Red Cross at the Veterans Hospital. Mrs. Weir said this program concerns patients who for the most part have outlived their families and are in need of something to occupy their time.

The duties of the volunteer will be to read to the patients, play games, write letters and engage them in conversation in a friendly manner, thus giving them a feeling of continued interest from the community in which they are living.

Volunteers are asked to give two to four hours a week, preferably once a week as the patients look forward to regularly scheduled visits.

Each volunteer is required to take a Red Cross and Veterans Hospital orientation course. The Albany Area Red Cross Chapter will present its course the first part of October and the VA Hospital orientation is scheduled for October 18th.

Mrs. Weir said interested persons will find this voluntary experience to be very rewarding and that it provides an excellent opportunity to help others to help themselves.

Joint Appeal

The Albany Area Joint Appeal Campaign, in addition to supplying vital human services to the community, is actively supporting a wide variety of services to men and women in our own armed forces stationed in Vietnam, and many more to refugees and civilians in this war-torn country. Allen D. Bishop, Câmpaign Chairman for the 1968 Albany Joint Appeal Campaign, said three Joint Appeal agencies are carrying American human care service programs to Vietnam during this critical period. Bishop identified them as the American Red Cross, The Salvation Army and the U.S.O.

With 45 field stations now open throughout Vietnam, the American Red Cross is helping nearly 17,000 individual servicemen each month. Services include personalized help in verifying family problems involving emergency family crisis, providing financial assistance in an emergency, and counseling on family problems and related matters. Emergency communications by the Red Cross involving serious personal or family problems of servicemen are now averaging 555 per day.

Clubmobile units and recreation centers set up by the Red Cross offer off-duty recreation and other programs to servicemen in isolated areas. Services to patients in military hospitals and on hospital ships include snacks, books and friendly tasks for those who cannot act for themselves.

To the families of servicemen

the Red Cross offers personal and family counseling, referral services, reporting and communications and emergency financial assistance.

For Vietnam children Red Cross youth provide friendship boxes and kits, first aid kits, school chests, condensed milk. More than $500,000 worth of this material has already been sent. In addition, the Red Cross is managing 26 refugee-camp areas in Vietnam, distributing medicine, and financing self help construction projects of new homes for the settlement of refugees. *

The Salvation Army

The United States Salvation Army contributes to Salvation Army's International Headquarters in London, in support of programs in Vietnam. Salvation Army units from Korea and Australia are currently serving. Plans are underway for an extension of the Salvation Army program from the U.S. Several teams to work with refugees in the areas of nursing and health education, child care and social welfare, and vocational training are projected.

The USO

Since it was chartered February 4, 1941, the USO and the Joint Appeal campaigns have worked in partnership to raise the financial support necessary to sustain a program of social activity dedicated exclusively to the morale and welfare of our Armed Forces around the globe. A total of $12,200 will be directly allocated to the USO by the Albany Joint Appeal for the coming vear.

Now, with 16 service clubs in Vietnam, USO continues to be a kev human factor in our nation's defense. At its clubs servicemen from every community in the nation can take advantage of the long established "home away from home" atmosphere, snack bars, gift shops, barber shops, hot showers, photo clubs, gardens, beach fronts, post office facilities and dozens of other things that American G.I.'s are used to.

USO shows sent 637 entertainers, 91 units, overseas last year, giving 3.300 performances reach-

General Emmet O'Donnell, Jr., USAF (Ret.) as president of the USO typifies the spirit of the 85,000 volunteers who help the small staffs at USO clubs and installations in the United States and 14 other countries to provide home-like programs for our servicemen.

Buy A Lawnmower

EDITOR'S NOTE: There may be more advantageous times - like the Spring?! - for buying a power mower, but let's not forget that right now prices are LOWER; there are leaves to be used for mulch; and maybe you have a bit more money now than will be available in the Spring!

Did you realize that more than 25 million power lawn mowers are used in this country? This means that there are 25 million accidents waiting to happen. Fortunately most people use reasonable care with their mowers and the accidents don't happen. Are you careful enough? Read through the ten safety tips outlined by the Outdoor Power Equipment Institute and keep your accident from happening.

1. When you buy a new mower, look for the triangular seal that certifies that this machine meets the safety standards developed with the American Standards Association.

2. Read the owner's manual and master the machine's controls.

3. Clear children, adults and pets from the area before mowing. If you have to mow along a roadside, take extra precautions not to discharge objects toward cars.

4. Remove all loose "ammunition" from the area before mowing. Keep in mind that objects are shot through the discharge chute at tremendous speeds.

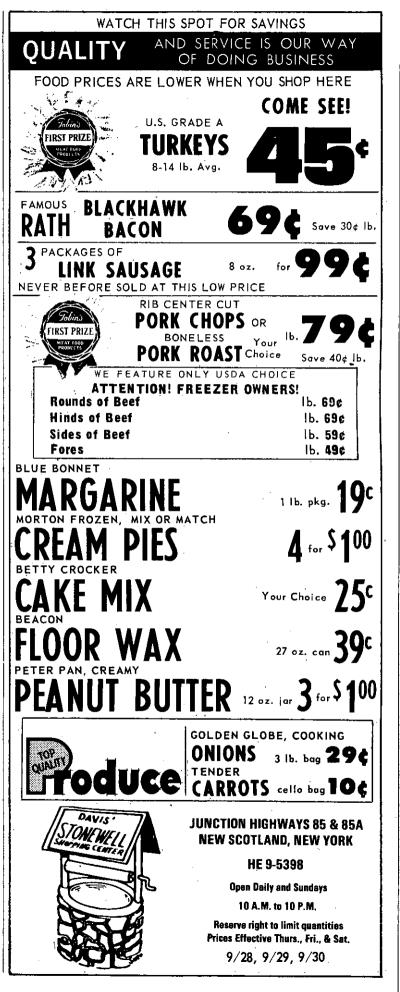

5. A mowing blade whirls 2,500 times a minute. Avoid any contact with the blade and keep away from the mower's discharge.

6. Always push, never pull a mower. Your aim is to cut the grass, not your toes.

7. Never leave the engine running when you are not present or you may tempt a child into investigating the apparatus.

8. Mow slopes sideways, not up and down. If you mow down, the mower may run away from you. Mow upward and it can back down on you.

9. Wear close fitting clothes that can't get caught in the mow-

These ten guides, and your own good judgement, will help keep accidents from happening.

Hunting Season

Dates for New York's 1967-68 small game hunting seasons were announced today by the State Conservation Department.

Squirrel, ruffed grouse, raccoon, snipe and woodcock seasons open Oct. 2 in all upstate counties. Cottentail and pheasant seasons also open Oct. 2 in the eastern half of the State, but on Oct. 16 in central and western counties.

Hungarian partridges may be hunted Oct. 2-21 in Clinton, Franklin and St. Lawrence Counties, and Oct. 16-Nov. 4 in Jefferson County. There is no open season on "huns" elsewhere in the State.

Oct. 2 also marks the opening of the seven-day wild turkey season in the Catskills. Hunters who obtain a special permit may search for elusive gobblers and hens in Delaware, Greene, Otsego and Schoharie Counties Oct. 2-8. Permits may be obtained by mailing a stamped self-addressed legal-size envelop to Regional Game Manager, New York State Conservation Department, Stamford, N.Y. 12167. In six western Counties - Allegany, Cattaraugus, Chautauqua, Chemung, Steuben and part of Erie - the season runs Nov. 6-18. This will be the first open season on turkeys in Southern Erie County.

Quail may be hunted Oct. 2-21 in three upstate Counties: Orange, Putnam and Westchester.

On Long Island, the quail, squirrel, ruffed grouse and pheasant seasons all run Nov. 1-Dec. 31. The cottontail rabbit season is Nov. 1 - Jan. 31 and the raccoon season is Nov. 1-Feb. 29.

Among several major changes in seasons and related regulations are a switch in gunning hours from 7:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., as in past years to "sunrise to sunset."

Other changes from last year's seasonal patterns include:

- Closing the ruffed grouse (partridge) season on Dec. 31 instead of Jan. 31.

- Increasing the daily bag limit on Hungarian partridges in St. Lawrence and Jefferson Counties from 3 to 5.

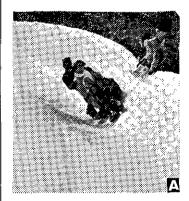

- Adding, by 1967 legislative amendment, Columbia, Fulton and Rensselaer to the list of counties in which pheasants may be hunted on Sunday.

- Opening Warren and Washington Counties to the shooting of hen pheasants for the first time.

 Adding Steuben to the southern tier Counties with open seasons on varying hare.

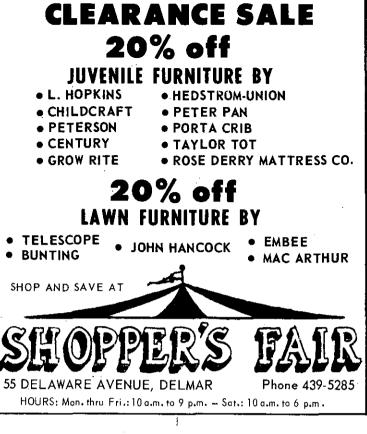

- Removing Cortland and Onondaga from the list of Counties with open seasons on varying hare.

Other adjustments in seasonal patterns have also been made. Sportsmen should carefully check the 1967-68 edition of the "Hunting-Trapping-Fishing Guide" for a complete list of seasons, bag limits, and other details.

TWO GARDEN TIPS from Jim Howard

Buying Mums - No doubt you will be purchasing chrysanthemums soon. A few helpful hints! When planting your mums. choose well-drained areas and plant them with bonemeal. About every 10 days, use a liquid fertilizer, such as Rapid-Gro. Those who are transplanting mums in their gardens, should follow the same procedure. When adding to your present mums, choose these long-lasting, named varieties:

Orchid Helen, Bronze, Pompenett, Yellow Pompenette, Chapel Bells or Purple Pirate.

Early Spring Flowers: This is the time to take inventory of your flowers, especially of the bulbs which flower so beautifully early in the spring. Garden shops throughout the area soon will be stocked with a wide variety of these spring flowering bulbs that must be planted this fall for next spring's enjoyment.

Br'er Possum

Br'er Possum has been a figure in southern folk literature for years. It is only since World War II that he has invaded Upstate New York in sufficient numbers to become a realty for New Yorkers.

The oppossum is an interesting, if not always a welcome addition to our fauna. It is North America's only representative of the marsupials, and has changed little down through the ages. Its early contemporaries are all gone, but the possum goes on forever. The marsupials are the pouched animals which give birth to their young long before they are fully developed. The young complete development in the pouch.

At birth, after a gestation period of only thirteen days, the young opossums are only the size of a honeybee. Their forelegs are well developed, but the rest of their bodies is in the undeveloped stage you might expect. Using their well-developed front legs and claws, they pull themselves to the pouch and attach to one of the thirteen teats where they remain. More than thirteen may be born, so latecomers to the pouch are out of luck.

It is about three months before these little "bumblebees" are big enough to climb out on their mother's back, and still several more before they are on their own. Normally they will raise two litters each year.

During the daylight hours the oppossum spends its time curled up in an abandoned woodchuck den, under the barn floor, in a brushpile, or in some other similar secluded spot. Its nest will be lined with dried leaves and grass which it has carried in curled up in its tail.

Its nightly rambles don't take it very far from its home base as it searches for food. To listen to the talk around a gun club you would think that it ate nothing but young rabbits and pheasant eggs, but actually it has an extremely broad choice. What it eats depends mainly on what is most common and what it happens to stumble on. Opossums are noted as carrion eaters, as evidenced by the number killed on the highway when feeding on other highway kills.

Over a period of years while Dr. W. J. Hamilton, Jr., was

you talkalot?

Most people do, you know. Talk a lot. Especially on the telephone. 600 calls a year, on the average. But you can't really blame them. At today's rates, a telephone call is one of the biggest bargains you can buy.

Anywhere in the continental United States (except Alaska) for a dollar or less.* Anywhere in New York State for 50¢ or less.* And that's not all. There has been an overall reduction in long distance rates since 1940. And more than 40% of the calls you paid long distance charges for ten years ago are now local calls.

At rates like these, you can afford to talk to your heart's content. Which is the way we want it. If talk is cheap, blame it on the phone company.

teaching mammalogy at Cornell, he found that their principal foods occurred with the following frequency: insects 42.9%; mammals 42.1%; grasses, etc., 38.6%; fruits; 33.4%; worms 23.6%; frogs and toads 23.2% birds, 18.9%; snails, slugs, 15.6%; reptiles 10.9%; carrion 7.8%; grain, nuts 3.7%.

Insects and mammals, primarily mice, seem to be two of their most staple items, each occurring in over 40% of the stomachs examined. The insects were particularly prominent during summer and fall when grasshoppers and crickets were abundant. Like the raccoon, they are very fond of fruit and in season it plays an important part in their diet.

Looking over the food shown above, it is obvious that possums eat what they can get. There is no indication that they are a serious predator on any species of game. On the other hand, there is no disagreement with those who claim they raid pheasant or rabbit nests, for if they find one in their rambling they certainly will utilize it. By the same token they will destroy chipmunks and young snapping turtles, which are also destroyers of nests and young ducklings.

Just where does that leave the possum? It leaves it in a pretty neutral position, for though it does little serious damage, neither does it make any contribution beyond being a garbage collector. There was a day when the prime pelt was worth a little. Nowadays with good long-haired fur nearly valueless, the possum can't even be marketed in quantities to justify skinning those a trapper accidentally catches.

MAN'S BEST FRIEND In Need Indeed

Man's best friend is his dog. But, is dog's best friend his master? "Yes, if he merits it," answer the sponsors of National Dog Week (September 24-30) which has as its slogan, "Deserve to be Your Dog's Best Friend."

There are many ways to earn the title of dog's best friend. For one thing, a dog owner can see to it that the pet is free of fleas. Although the flea menace is more prevalent in the summertime, a dog can pick up a few fleas anytime and anywhere. Sergeant's, a leading maker of dog care products, has developed an effective and unique weapon to do battle against the dog's biggest nuisance.

Called Sentry Collar, it is a clear plastic collar impregnated with a special insecticide that kills fleas for at least three months. The formula permits a slow and continued release of an odorless vapor from the insecticide embedded in the plastic. The collar is adjustable to fit most dogs and its transparent composition blends with the dog's natural coloring.

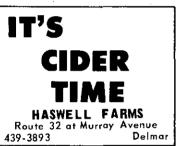

On the market for around two years, Sentry Collar is reported to be the most popular dog care product ever to make the scene. The product has received the Good Housekeeping Seal of Approval and is registered with the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

No 'Bugs' in '68 'Beetle,' VW Dealer Says

LATHAM, N.Y. - Whoever said Volkswagen would never change its internationally famous "beetle" should take a long, hard look at the luxurious-looking 1968 version of the "bug" now on display at Academy Motors.

While A.W. Anzelon, President of the local VW agency on Troy-Schenectady Rd., Latham, N.Y., will readily admit that the new "beetles" look pretty much like their predecessors, he is also quick to point out that they are "far and away the best and most improved 'bugs' we've ever offered." He noted that in addition to incorporating all the federally required safety features, the "beetles" also offer many other features and little luxuries designed to provide easier handling and greater comfort and convenience than ever before.

The easiest way to identify a 1968 model of Volkswagen's "brot und butter" passenger car is to check its new higher and stronger front and rear bumpers - which makes it an inch and a half shorter than previous models and, therefore, an inch and a half easier to park - and its new frontseat headrests, designed to give occupants more comfort and, at the same time, greater protection from whiplash when stopping short or getting bumped from behind. Since the new bumpers are now at the same height as other automobiles, they also provide better protection to the "beetle's" body.

New among the convenience features engineered into the "beetle" line for 1968 are a fresh air ventilation system; a short, straight and easy-to-reach gearshift lever; a more accessible gas tank which can be filled without opening the front hood; improved and enlarged windshield wipers and a redesigned washer system; an electrically operated gasoline gauge which, as part of the speedometer housing, puts all dashboard "guidance" indicators in a single, easily seen location; a larger outside side view mirror which provides greater visibility; and exterior door handles with pull-type triggers that permit them to be opened easier.

Safety features include a collapsible steering column; a warning device for the dual-circuit brake system; a padded dashboard and heavily padded armrests; built-in backup lights; front and rear seat belts; a new windshield with a double-thick plastic interlayer; and safety rim wheels designed to help hold tires on their rims in the event of blowouts.

Each of the 53-horsepower passenger cars comprising the 1968 "beetle" line - they're available with or without sunroofs and as convertibles - have been equipped with officially approved engine exhaust emission control systems.
