

Harry Simeone Chorale

The uniquely gifted Harry Simeone Chorale will open its initial concert tour on Monday evening, October 30, in the auditorium of the RCS Junior-Senior High School, Ravena, under the sponsorship of the RCS Community Cultural Council. The Chorale has had many hit records, the most famous of which is "The Little Drummer Boy." Other hit records, "Anyone Can Build A Mountain," "Illya Darling," "Days of My Youth," and "Do You Hear What I Hear." Soon to be released is an album entitled, "The Harry Simeone Chorale On Tour."

Harry Simeone, the brilliant musical head and conductor of the Chorale, has been active in every branch of the music business. He was Choral Director for the award-winning television program, "The Bell Telephone Hour" as well as serving in the same capacity for the Kate Smith TV Show. With his Chorale, the eminent conductor has appeared on the Ed Sullivan Show. He was Fred Waring's chief arranger for many years, and was Choral Director and assistant conductor for Frank Black on the International Harvester Radio Series. His background also includes many years experience as staff arranger and conductor at CBS in New York and Hollywood, for such films as "Here Come the Waves," "Blue Dahlia," "Out of This World" and others.

The voices of his Chorale thunder, whisper, soar, swing, rock, trumpet, exult and lament. The voices seem to become vocal extensions of the instruments themselves. They display dazzling changes of pace in their repertoire, including such diversity of mood and taste as music ranging from Bach to Gershwin.

The background and taste of

Harry Simeone

Harry Simeone reaches the pinnacle of creativity and sound with the Harry Simeone Chorale and Orchestra in Concert.

The Chorale will mark the first in a series of three programs to be presented by the RCS Community Cultural Council. Following the October 30th program, will appear the Talbot Brothers on December 2, and the Don Shirley Trio on February 27, 1968. Season tickets for the three programs at $6.00 each are still available at the Delmar Pharmacy, Grover's Stationery Store and Van Culer Music Store, Albany. Tickets for only the Chorale program may also be purchased at $3.00 each.

"The Play's The Thing"

What happens to a girl when her current boy friend overhears a former admirer making love to her?

Well, if the girl is a noted actress, surrounded by friends who are theatre people, it can all be explained away with a play — maybe.

That's the situation involved in the Slingerlands Community Players' upcoming production of "The Play's The Thing," a three-act comedy by Ferenc Molnar, to be performed Friday and Saturday nights in the auditorium of Bethlehem Central High School on Delaware Avenue, Delmar. Curtain time in 8:40 p.m.

The play is a fast-paced exercise in merriment, with broad, farce overtones. The English adaption of the play is by the famed humorist, P.G. Wodehouse, noted for his unflappable butler, "Jeeves." Indeed, a Jeeves-type character graces "The Play's the Thing" in the person of an imperturbable footman.

Sylvia Knee and Douglas Marone appear in leading roles as Ilona Szabo, a prima donna of the operetta stage, and Sandor Turai, a worldly playwright whose talents get Ilona out of a touchy situation involving an actor who is her ex-lover. Ralph Smith plays the actor, Almady, an egotist who is old enough to know better than to attempt the woman-chasing act, but doesn't.

Rick Kelsey appears as Albert Adam, a young composer in love with Ilona, and Gino Farinacci portrays Mansky, the collaborator of the playwright Turai. Art Ploetz plays the knowing footman, Dwornitschek, and Neal Rew is cast as Mell, a nervous wreck of a secretary.

The show is being directed by Dick Rosenberg, assisted by Gail Gilbert. Coordinator is Mrs. Nicholas DeLuca. Set design is by John Moore and set construction by Al Basch and William Heenehan.

Season tickets for the Slingerlands Players' 16th consecutive season now are being sold at: Douglas Marone, optician, and Grover Stationery, both at Delaware Plaza; Mullen's Pharmacy, Elsmere, and the Delmar Public Library. The price, $5, provides three shows for the price of two — individual admissions are "The Play's the Thing" is no newcomer to the stage. An evergreen comedy, it has been widely produced both in the United States and abroad. But the wit of the Hungarian playwright Molnar is as sharp and apt in the 1960's as it was when the play was first produced in the 1920's.

It was first produced on Broadway in 1926, then revived in 1948, with Louis Calhern and Faye Emerson in leading roles. The characters involved in the play are just as fresh — and ridiculous — today as they were four decades ago. Molnar exploits human foibles, and turns them into not-unkind portraits on stage of human beings who manage to make their own problems worse by trying to improve their lot.

The result is pure fun — and "The Play's the Thing" has only this for its justification — just good fun for the audience. And the fun begins at 8:40 p.m. Friday and Saturday nights.

Library Award

The new library at the Clayton A. Bouton High School in the Voorheesville Central School District has been chosen for the award for the outstanding library design of the year given by the New York Library Association.

Albert Hartheimer of the firm Hartheimer Associates was presented the citation at the recent conference of the association held in Rochester, New York.

The Voorheesville Library was chosen from among many applicants mainly because its design emphasizes paracticality. It is the result of cooperative planning involving Mr. Hartheimer, Mrs. Jane Salvatore, librarian, Werner Berglas, high school principal; and William C. Brayden, supervising principal.

The library is the center of learning, built at an angle between the Junior and Senior High wings. Its windows open onto an interior court. Its design is a reverse L shape, allowing full view of all library activities, simultaneously, from the workroom, which is located behind the charging desk.

The library contains a reading room, two adjoining conference rooms which can be made into one large group instruction area, an AV center for individual listening and viewing, and a workroom. All of these areas are glass enclosed from the waist up. The library can accommodate 100 students. The charging desk is rectangular and fits well in front of the oddly-shaped workroom. A light color scheme throughout, including the furniture, makes the library suite seem larger than it is.

School officials report that student use of the library facilities is very high with an ever-increasing circulation of books.

Conference

Sixty teachers and department chairmen representing seventeen area schools participated in a conference on the experimental social studies curriculum Wednesday evening, October 4th, at R-C-S Junior-Senior High School. The conference was sponsored by the R-C-S Social Studies Department under the direction of Harvey Durham.

LOOKING AHEAD toward improved community development occupies most of this quintet's time. Seen here prior to taking part in panel discussions concerning 'Planning: The Builder and the Community,' (l-r) are Joseph Rose, Planning Board Chairman, Town of Guilderland; William Pagano, Realtor and member of the Planning Board, Town of Bethlehem; Lindsay Boutelle, President of the New York State Land Surveyors Association; James Crighton, Director of Planning, Town of Colonie and Gerald Goldie, 1st Vice President Albany Area Builders Association. Much of the evening's discussion centered around modern planning concepts that preserve open space and utilize Planned Unit Development in community design. The group appeared at a regular meeting of the membership of the Albany Area Builders Association attended by 125 builders and their associates.

The purpose of the meeting which was sponsored by the R-C-S social studies Department was to share experiences gained by a year of teaching the new social studies courses in selected classes from grades 7 through 12. R-C-S is one of 100 official tryout schools in New York State that are testing the new program. The new social studies courses, which are expected to become the standard program in the state within two or three years, emphasize concepts and understandings with less stress on large quantities of facts. A principal aim is to make the student an independent investigator or thinker able and willing to think for himself.

The conference was held from five to nine o'clock with a buffet supper served in the cafeteria at six. The three sessions of the evening included a taped discussion of the objectives of social studies instruction by Dr. Edwin Fenton, co-director of the Curriculum Development Center at Carnegie University, Pittsburgh, Pa.; a panel discussion by four teachers, and small meetings of teachers grouped by the subjects they teach.

Some people may not care...but we care.

 were baked with juicy, wild berries,
 not with today's pulpier, cultivated ones.

So, we're stubborn.

Only wild berries get into our Jane Parker Blueberry Pies.

In fact, we care so much about such things,
 we've made just one big change in the classic recipe:
 We bake only wild berries that are U.S. Grade A!

We've been in the baking business for 50 years.
 And that's the way we are about all our baking.

To celebrate our golden anniversary as bakers, this week, we're featuring Jane Parker Blueberry Pie

Air Medal

Army Maj. John S. Stycos, son of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer J. Stycos of Albany, has been awarded the Air Medal for heroism in Vietnam.

Major Stycos earned the Air Medal, his fourth, directing air strikes which destroyed a wide-spread enemy munitions and supply storage area — in spite of great personal danger involved — while serving as an airborne forward artillery observer.

According to the major's citation he was "directing artillery fire on a Viet Cong supply area and tunnel complex when he observed several secondary explosions indicating large concentrations of enemy munitions."

"After calling for saturation fire on the area," the citation continues, the major "made several low passes over the camp in his unarmed aircraft, pinpointing further targets. In spite of the intense enemy ground fire directed against his aircraft, he continued directing the attack until darkness."

Major John S. Stycos

Major Stycos is an operations and training plans advisor with the Vietnamese Army's Third Corps. He has been in Vietnam since August 1966. His wife, Pam, lives in Delmar.

was elected to the Board of Governors of the New York District Chapter of the American Institute of Interior Designers at the fall conference of the organization held recently in Ottawa, Canada. This chapter includes members from all of New York State, exclusive of New York City, and the Province of Ontario. Mr. Vunck, who resides on New Scotland Road, Slingerlands, was also appointed chairman for coordination of A.I.D. activities in the Albany area. He has been associated with Mayfair, Inc. for more than ten years.

PFAC Open House

The Parent-Faculty Advisory Committee of the Bethlehem Central Senior High School will conduct its annual Open House program in the high school auditorium the evening of Wednesday, October 25, beginning at 8:30 P.M.

Following a brief orientation program in the auditorium, parents of students will have the opportunity of following their student's daily program, meeting their instructors and receiving an outline of the content of the subject being taught.

Refreshments will be served in the gymnasium following the program. All parents of high school students are cordially invited and urged to attend.

New Display

Photographs on view at the Delmar Public Library featuring landscapes, portraits, flowers and other interesting subject matter have been loaned by members of the Delmar Camera Club. Several of the photographs have won nationwide recognition in contests and many have placed high in competition in nearby cities. All of the photographs have been done by amateurs who started out with quite simple equipment and through association and exchange of ideas with fellow-members of the Camera Club have perfected their techniques.

Photographers represented in the present show include: Dr. Monica Bishop, Jerry Gaige, Alice Porter, C. W. Terko and Florence Becker.

The Delmar Camera Club meets every second and fourth Tuesday of the month at 8 P.M. at St. Stephen's Church in Elsmere.

New Program

Bookworms came to the Delmar Public Library at 3:30 on Wednesday, October 18. Mrs. Ann Parrott greeted 4th, 5th and 6th graders to get the group started on their fall program of fun-time reading and reporting. Then the next week on Wednesday, October 25, grades 1 through 3 are invited to be at the library at 3:30 for a story hour.

All elementary school children are invited to join whichever of the groups they belong in.

Movies

Now the announcement you have all been expecting: The hour-long film, "Circus", will be shown at the library on Saturday, October 21. Again there will be two showings — the first at 9:30 A.M. and the second at 11:00 A.M.

Film

The residents of Albany County will see the needs and demands of transportation in New York State when a narrated film clip presentation is made on Tuesday October 24, by the Albany County Women's Republican Club.

"GOING PLACES" is a film made especially to illustrate the background on the state's proposed Transportation Bond Issue; and what the issue really means to the communities and to the individuals in the state.

Appearing on the November ballot as PROPOSITION #1, the Transportation Bond Issue is of vital concern and interest to all citizens. "No single measure means so much to the state, and nothing will have a wider influence on our day-to-day lives; no matter where we live" stated Mrs. Robert Rudisill, A.C.W.R.C. President, of Niskayuna, when asked about the film.

"In 13 minutes, a man or woman has an opportunity to be briefed on the true picture and the facts of our statewide transportation situation today; and the potential of the Proposition No. 1 Bonds. We must meet the demands of living in a modern state."

'GOING PLACES' will be shown at 103 Washington Ave., Albany, New York at 9:00 P.M. October 24. The public and press are invited.

Blood Needed

Red Cross advises there is a special critical need for donors at the fixed center. The Blood Center is located in the Bender Lab. Building, 136 South Lake Avenue, Albany, where collections have been "extremely poor" lately.

"We are hopeful for the future," said William G. Fraser, blood program chairman, "but desperately concerned for the present."

The Blood Center collections,

combined with the amounts collected by bloodmobiles visiting throughout the area, are expected to serve all the blood needs of more than one million persons in 10 area counties covered by the Northeastern New York Red Cross Regional Blood Program.

Chapter's Volunteer Motor Service, whose regular services to the area have been compounded by numerous blood delivery responsibilities under the Northeastern New York Red Cross Regional Blood Program.

Drivers are needed to assist the operation of the Blood Center, 136 South Lake Avenue, Albany, as well as to fill the motoring needs of various other units of the Red Cross and a score of community agencies. Volunteers are also needed to serve as Officers of the Day, who dispatch the fleet of eight chapter and three Blood Center vehicles.

When the various community agencies attest to the need, the Red Cross chapter provides its vehicles to transport groups such as handicapped children, the elderly and the infirm. Approximately a dozen agencies are served regularly by the Red Cross

Leaves

Now that we've enjoyed the beauty of the fall foliage, it's time to do something about the no longer beautiful leaves on the ground. What will you do with your leaves? You probably are no longer permitted to burn them, though you may live in an area where the garbage collectors will take the leaves. But, doesn't it seem foolish to discard leaves and then next year buy peat moss or some other type of organic matter for your garden?

It's not difficult to make good use of leaves. The easiest way to use them is use them for a winter mulch around trees and shrubs. Dry leaves piled about 8 inches deep will help to moderate soil temperatures and prevent heaving due to alternate freezing and thawing. The leaves can be left next year to provide a summer mulch that will help conserve moisture.

Another way to use leaves is to spread them over a vegetable or annual flower garden. Then the leaves can be plowed or spaded under where they will decay and provide organic matter. They may be plowed under now or next spring, but won't decay much until the soil warms up next spring.

Another way to use leaves is to build a compost pile. The purpose of a compost pile is to provide a place where leaves and other material can be reduced to a form that can easily be handled and will not be unsightly when used in the garden. Since bacteria and fungi are the agents that reduce the material, we must feed and water them.

A compost pile is made in layers, and should be at least four part of the leaves in a layer about six inches deep. Spread a commercial fertilizer such as 10-10-10 or 10-6-4 over the layers at a rate of one cup to each ten square feet. This feeds the bacteria now, but will be released for plants when the compost is used. A few shovelful of soil spread over each layer will make sure the bacteria and fungi are present. Continue building the pile with successive layers of leaves, fertilizer and a little soil until the leaves are gone. Be sure to water each layer as it is completed. Turning the pile over next summer will hasten the composting process and you should have usable compost by next fall.

Leaves can be a problem this time of year, but they also provide an opportunity to maintain the organic matter in the soil.

Squirrels

What animal makes the second largest contribution to the small game hunting bag of New York's hunters?

Since the Conservation Department started conducting its animal small-game-take survey in 1956, the gray squirrel has been second-place contender with no competition. During this period, the squirrel population sagged to a low at the same time that the ruffed grouse, third-place contender, was reaching its population peak. Even at this time, the squirrel-take exceeded the grouse-take by over 40 percent. Most of the time it was double or almost triple the grouse-take. The cottontail rabbit, of course, is the most popular small game species in terms of total take.

During the ten-year period between 1956 and the close of the season in 1965, the hunter harvest of gray squirrels varied from 1,250,000 to 750,000.

When one considers that when New York hunters state a preference, most claim to be pheasant hunters, grouse hunters, rabbit hunters, or waterfowl hunters — and very few claim to be squirrel hunters. The importance of the squirrel, when one considers its place in the hunter's bag, takes on a new look. Like the deer hunter who suddenly becomes a bear hunter when a bear appears, it seems as though most of the squirrel hunters become squirrel hunters when they see a squirrel. This is further confirmed by the fact that only 20 percent of the 150,000 successful squirrel hunters during the 1964-65 season took over five squirrels.

The range of the gray squirrel leaves it vulnerable to this type of hunting, for it is both a woodland animal and a woodlot animal. The grouse hunter searching extensive beech forestland of the hilltop Southern Tier, and the pheasant hunter who hits the farm woodlot next to the corn field, both are apt to find squirrels while after their primary game.

Squirrel hunting is probably the nearest thing to traditional American hunting we have. The beaver is said to have opened the West by attracting trappers, but the squirrel has been credited with winning the Revolutionary War by giving the Revolutionary War volunteers their sharp marksmanship from years of squirrel hunting.

Squirrels taken incidental to grouse or pheasant hunting are obviously taken with a shotgun. The true squirrel hunter normally uses a rifle, counting on a clean kill with a minimum of damage to the carcass. With the lighter rifles available today this can be accomplished effectively. The frontiersmen with their heavy muzzle-loading rifles traditionally are said to have "barked" the squirrel; that to have hit the limb under the squirrel's head so that the animal was killed instantly by the concussion of the ball striking the wood. This left no visible wound.

The woodland squirrel is a far cry from the tame creature of the park. They are extremely wary, and it is only the excellent stalker who can move through the woods and consistently find squirrels unaware of his presence.

An alerted squirrel will circle around a tree keeping it very effectively between itself and the hunter. Where two hunters are working together, one moving and the other remaining motionless, the hunter circling around the tree can usually decoy the squirrel into a good position for his silent partner to get a shot.

Most squirrel hunting, however, is probably the watchful, waiting type where the hunter takes a good stand in an area known to have busy tails. Early morning and late afternoon are the times when squirrel are most apt to be up and about. With patience, a hunter may be able to take his limit from one stand in a good oak woods, along the fenceline leading to a cornfield, or some similar spot with a high squirrel activity rating.

We never thought much about that, though.

just call us "the bank."

We've been washing Agnes Lee's dishes for three years and she hardly knows we're alive.

Why should she? We make sure each time Mrs. Lee turns her dishwasher to "wash," the power's there to make the washer perform.

Same thing with her clothes washer and dryer, and her vacuum cleaner and TVset, and everything else that Niagara Mohawk powers. Whenever Mrs. Lee orders electricity by turning a knob or flipping a switch, we deliver.

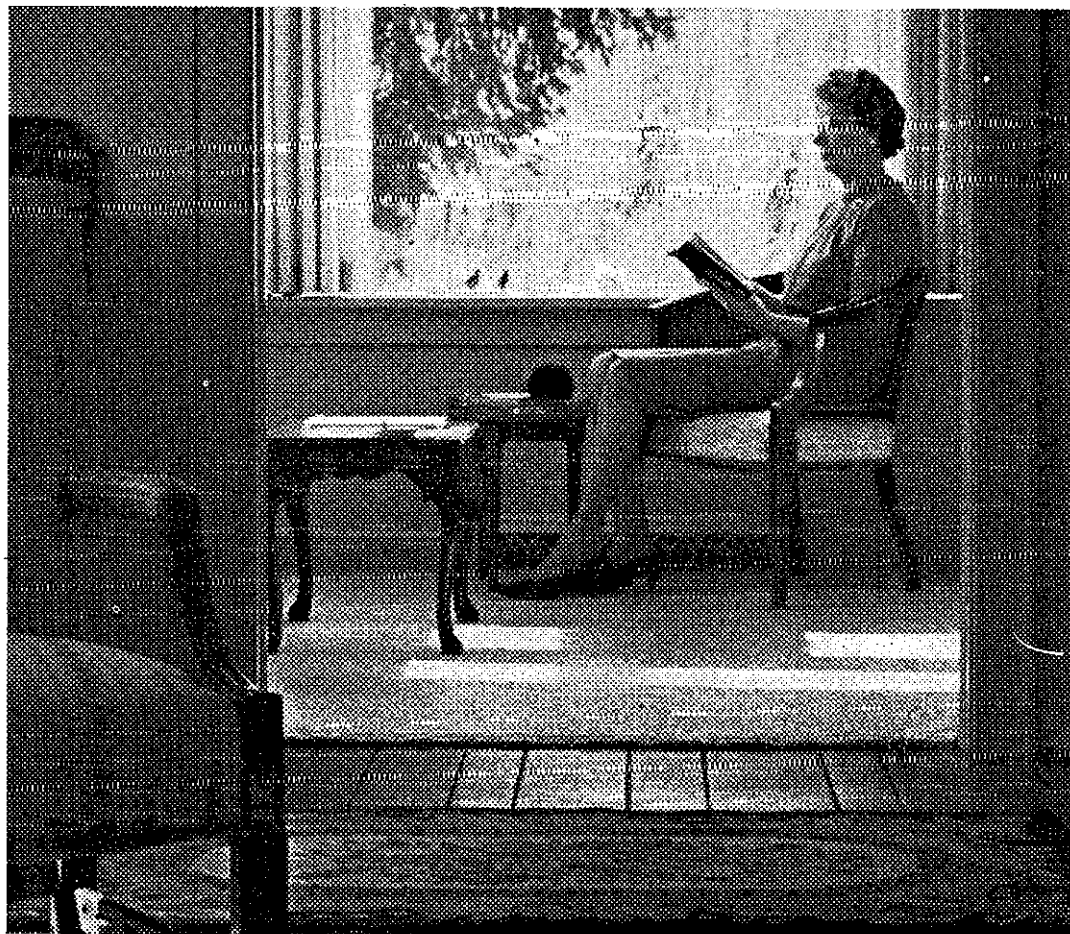

When snow, rain or high wind temporarily interrupts service, our men are on the spot and on the job day, night and Sunday, to make the interruption as temporary as possible.

That's why we hardly ever get a call from Mrs. Lee. In fact, Mrs. Lee hardly ever even thinks about us. This pleases us very much. Because we take it as a compliment when you take us for granted.

Are you willing to go as low as $1,695*
for a new VW?

We don't sell status.

Just a car. One that gets about 29 mpg, averages 40,000 miles on a set of tires, and hardly uses oil between changes.

Of course, the fact that it's practical is no secret.

And everybody is going to know that you're saving money. But that's the price you pay for Volkswagen.
