

Count 'em!

Third, fourth, and fifth graders at Elsmere School in Bethlehem are racing to school each morning to stare at six dozen eggs now incubating in their classrooms. Each child wants to be the first to report that the baby chickens have pecked their way out of the shells.

The children are studying the embryology of the developing chicks in connection with the new Health Science study course implemented by Bethlehem schools this year. Slides, films, posters and other visual aids are used by the teachers to show students the daily changes taking place inside the eggs. The children view unfertilized eggs, fertilized eggs, living embryos, and each stage leading up to final hatching of the baby chick.

This project was made possible for Elsmere students through the cooperative team efforts of several state agencies, school principal Richard Herrmann, teachers and the Bethlehem School Volunteer Organization. A project guide for incubation and embryology study was furnished by the 4-H Div. of the N.Y. State Cooperative Extension Agency, and this agency also conducted workshops to prepare teachers for use of the materials. Richard Langenbach, of the N.Y. State Department Div. of Laboratories and Research, will make a special field visit to each classroom to talk with the children about the scientific miracle of the developing chick. And, Mrs. Anne Anzola, a member of the School Volunteer group and a

Doll Exhibit

Abigail Posman, young daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harry Posman of Delmar, has loaned part of her doll collection to the Bethlehem Public Library for an exhibit in the lounge. Although Abbie certainly didn't know it at the time, she started her collection at the ripe old age of five days. Through the generosity of traveling friends and doting relatives, the collection includes dolls from all over the world.

An antique baby, an Arab from Morocco wearing native attire and riding a camel, a colorful Greek family and a gay Macedonian are but a few of the interesting little visitors.

New Methods

Two new techniques for teaching music to elementary students were demonstrated for Bethlehem teachers at a special music workshop on March 10.

Mrs. Jane Coffey and Mrs. Rita Drew, both music teachers at Burnt-Hills-Ballston Lake Central School, made a presentation of the Carl Orff and Kodaly methods for teaching music to the younger age child. The guest speakers pointed out that both of these methods are designed to stimulate a physical and emotional response to music. Each method encourages free expression through animation and body movement to develop the child's sense of rhythm and timing which are so vital for other forms of musical training.

In the Orff method, the child makes use of simple musical instruments in responding to music, while in the Kodaly method the child must rely solely on his physical resources — such as clapping of hands, stamping feet, etc.

Samuel Bozzella, Music Supervisor for Bethlehem Schools, organized the presentation after seeing these new methods demonstrated at a recent Suburban Council workshop in the area. Encouragement for use of these methods in Bethlehem schools has also come from Dr. Harold Bookbinder, Program Director, who also attended the Suburban workshop. Dr. Bookbinder is especially interested in the opportunity these methods provide for free expression and the release of pent-up energy and tension in the elementary age child.

LETTER

Dear Editor:

By now most of your readers are aware of the governor's budget cut in state aid to schools. It has been presented thus: The governor's budget calls for a 5% cut in all programs, including a 5% cut in state aid to schools effective April 1 and a 10% cut in state aid next year. These words are misleading.

What the governor's budget called for was actually a new increase of 16% for state programs, but a 5% cut in state aid monies which had already been allocated to school districts and upon which they depended to pay their bills during the last quarter of their fiscal year, with a further 10% cut next year!

In order to arrive at a "5% cut for all programs," he first gave the general state programs an approximate 22% increase, then subjected that increased figure to the 5% cut! Not so for the schools - their 5% cut was immediately operative on their last quarter's state aid!

The public came quickly to the aid of the school people and pointed out in a large volume of mail to legislators in just what kind of fiscal squeeze the governor's 5% cut would place the school districts of New York State. Recently both Republican and Democratic members of the legislature have been outspoken against such a cut for the schools.

What about the projected further decrease in school aid?

A few years ago every research study, every magazine article, every government official, everyone having anything to do with employing the products of our schools was pointing a finger at the schools and saying:

"Up-date your curriculum, modernize your methods of teaching, utilize new tools of teaching, teach more and more in less and less time, educate for the space age, give the students maximum educational and employment skills, lower your school dropout rate, individualize pupil instruction, focus on special pupil needs, attack the ghetto problems through improved educational facilities and teaching, attract and keep excellent teachers, etc., etc."

Now, at this crucial point in our educational program when every school district is attempting to meet these educational goals and the Educational Conference Board has set a school state aid figure that is well within the state's ability to pay, we MUST let our legislators know that we support an INCREASE in state aid to schools, and not a decrease that will curtail every program or increase the local property owners' tax burden.

New York State ranks second in the nation in per capita personal income. Yet, New York State ranks 23rd in the nation in the per cent of personal income which goes for public school revenues.

Local school tax monies are now primarily raised through the real property tax. But the State has many revenue sources from which to pay state aid, including the personal income tax, the sales tax, and business taxes.

The per cent of the schools' "approved operating expense" going to teachers' salaries has been decreasing; other operating expenses have been increasing

Planning Ahead

Sunny Acres Day Camp on Elm Avenue at the edge of Delmar will open on June 30 and close August 22 this year. For further information, parents are invited to call.

This will be the 23rd season for this day camp which, over almost a quarter of a century, has become widely known as THE place for boys and girls during the summer vacation. Bee Alger, Camp Director, has taken pride over the years in her ability to have counselors who will love every child as an individual, teach every child who seeks to learn, play with every child to the full extent of his or her energy for play. Mrs. Alger has always believed that this formula makes for happy campers.

And while the world and its peoples change — and the seasons change — and we all grow older — Sunny Acres never changes: "Love reigns supreme!"

Film

James Cobb of the Albany County Chapter of the American Cancer Society will present a film, "The Other City," and answer questions concerning cancer at 1 P.M. Tuesday, March 25, at The Bank, 343 Delaware Avenue, Delmar.

The presentation is sponsored by the Health Committee of the Delmar Progress Club, chaired by Mrs. Russell Miller.

The public is cordially invited.

Program

Alden T. Doolittle, administrative resident at Ellis Hospital in Schenectady, recently spent a week at the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Offices in Albany studying the various departments of Blue Cross and how they relate to the administration of health care.

Mr. Doolittle is enrolled in the Program in Medical and Hospital Administration in the Graduate School of Public Health at the University of Pittsburgh. One requirement of the program, leading to a master's degree in hospital administration, is a twelve-month hospital residency aimed at providing students with a broader experience and understanding of the many factors that affect the administration of health care.

At the request of area hospitals, Blue Cross is providing an indoctrination program for administrative residents to acquaint them with the function of Blue Cross as part of the hospital system. Administrative residents from Albany Medical Center Hospital will also be visiting Blue Cross and Blue Shield offices.

Mr. Doolittle, who received his B.A. degree from Colgate University, is a graduate of Colonie High School and resides in Colonie with his wife, the former Gay Simmons of Albany, and their son. He will receive his master's degree in June.

Next Play

Good comedy never grows old. Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman proved this when they wrote their Pulitzer prize winning play, "You Can't Take It with You." Written over thirty years ago, it is still entertaining audiences today.

Sweet young Alice Sycamore has invited her betrothed and his well-to-do parents for dinner with her family. She warns Tony that the Sycamores are a bit 'odd,' but he laughs it off. Little does he suspect the inadequacy of the word 'odd' in describing the Sycamores. Grandpa bides his time attending college commencement exercises — he gave

Workshop

Blue Cross of Northeastern New York recently held a two-day workshop for 75 hospital comptrollers and office managers representing 24 hospitals in the 13 counties served by the Plan.

The purpose of the workshop was to introduce new uniform financial reporting forms for use by hospitals, which heretofore have used three different sets of forms to meet the financial reporting requirements of the federal Medicare program, the New York State Medical program and Blue Cross.

The new forms, which were developed by Blue Cross, are part of a cooperative effort to reduce hospital costs by the elimination of duplication in financial reporting and require only one audit. Financial data will be key punched and processed through a central computer in New York City, which will eventually produce three cost allocations to meet the requirements of the three agencies. All seven Blue Cross Plans in New York State are participating in the program.

The workshop was conducted by members of Provider Reimbursement, the Blue Cross department concerned with payments to hospitals and other providers of health care for services to its subscribers.

John Zampier, Manager of Provider Reimbursement, described the program as "a significant demonstration of three large hospital reimbursement agencies working together to reduce hospital costs. For a number of years hospitals have felt the need for such a uniform reporting method and hospital personnel attending the workshop expressed enthusiastic support of their program initiated by Blue Cross."

grass — U.S. Department of Agriculture experts suggest — needs to know something about this process. Ranges, pastures, lawns, other grass crops can flourish and conserve soil only as the individual plants have an opportunity to make food for their own growth.

Plant food is manufactured in the leaves, and not, as many people suppose, drawn from the roots or the soil. The plant gets the "raw materials" to make food from the soil and the air. Because the plant's "food factory" is above the ground, grazing, mowing, or clipping promptly stops production to the extent that green foliage is removed.

Water, entering the soil, forms a film around each soil particle and dissolves some of the minerals present. Tiny root hairs come in contact with these films of water and absorb the mineral solution. A network of small roots carries this mineral solution to the main roots. The roots transport it to the stems; stems carry it to the leaves.

Plants use phosphorous, nitrogen, potash, calcium, magnesium, and sulfur in large quantities to manufacture their food. They use other minerals such as iron, manganese, molybdenum, copper, boron, and zinc in only small quantities but must have them for good plant growth. All these minerals are in the solution the roots carry in the "plant food factory" inside the leaves.

Minerals from the soil make up about 5 percent of the solid material in plant roots, stems, seeds, and leaves. Carbon, hydrogen, and oxygen from the air and water make up most of the other 95 percent.

The leaves take in carbon dioxide from the air through tiny pores. Using energy from the sun, the leaves recombine the carbon with oxygen and hydrogen to make sugars, starches, and fiber. The sugars then combine with the mineral elements from the soil to make proteins, plant oils, and fats. Unused oxygen and water vapor escape through the leaf pores.

The plant uses sugars, starches, proteins, oils, and fats to grow and reproduce itself. Animals get these foods when they eat the foliage or seeds.

A perennial grass stores food in its roots after it has made the season's main growth. It uses these reserves to live on while the plant is dormant, to make the first growth next season, and to start new growth after its green leaves and stems are closely grazed or cut.

The ability of perennial grass-

WHAT'S IN A NAME!

HOME! There's magic in that word.

An abode; a place of rest and security. One's own dwelling place.

These are the thoughts inspired by the word HOME.

And these are the imperatives that guide the management of HOME SAVINGS BANK: to give help and security to the home buyers to a greater degree than any other savings bank in the area.

Recently a couple from Long Island opened a substantial savings account at our Colonie office and when asked why they chose our bank they said: "We just liked the name."

Proof that our founding fathers were superlatively wise when they chose the name HOME.

A place to save and earn the highest dividend in the state; a place to secure an improvement loan — and best of all, a place to secure a mortgage for your new abode.

These are the simple songs of HOME.

es to recover quickly after grazing or mowing makes these plants especially valuable. This same ability often deceives the user of grass into thinking he can repeatedly remove any amount of leaves without injury.

What happens to grass plants that repeatedly lose their green leaves during the growing season? Since no "food factories" are left to receive and combine the raw materials from the soil and air, the plant keeps drawing on food stored in the roots to grow new leaves.

U.S. Department of Agriculture research shows that many grasses will not reach their maximum vigor and growth when more than half their leaf surface is removed by frequent grazing or mowing.

Repeated removal of green foliage causes a corresponding reduction in the plant root system. Top growth that is kept small cannot feed a large root system; neither can a stunted root system supply enough raw materials to support a large growth of stems and leaves.

A dense cover of grass protects the soil from the battering, splashing action of rain. The leaves break up the raindrops and allow more water to soak into the soil, thus preventing erosion, conserving moisture for plant growth, and restoring underground water supplies. The higher and denser the grass, the better it shades the soil and keeps it cool. This reduces loss of water by evaporation and enables grass to grow better in hot weather.

For every pound of growth above ground, most grasses produce a pound or more of roots. Some lawn grasses may penetrate as deep as 3 to 4 feet.

Finals

Advanced schooling for Northern and Eastern New York dentists enrolled in the continuing education courses will go into seasonal finals at Albany on March 19 and 20.

The lecturer for the fifth and final courses of the winter schedule will be Dr. Miles R. Markley of Denver, Colorado. His topic: "Newer Concepts in General Dentistry." In excess of 200 dentists affiliated with the Third and Fourth District Dental Societies will hear him at State University in Albany.

President of the Third District is Dr. Paul D. Englert of Catskill while the head of the Fourth District organization is Dr. Harmon T. LaMar of Keeseville. Both men described the Denver practitioner as one of the finest teachers in the field of restorative dentistry. The course chairman, Dr. Robert C. King of Delmar, said the large enrollment is "due to Dr. Markley's widely known contributions."

Census

Questions aimed at developing new information about the Nation's households and families will be asked in this area as part of the Census Bureau's monthly Current Population Survey the week of March 16, Director James W. Turbitt of the Bureau's regional office in Boston announced today.

The March survey contains inquiries on the number of persons in families and in households, employment and unemployment and annual income from various sources. Information will also be obtained on the number of persons who moved during the last year. Answers to survey questions update information obtained by the Bureau at the time of the decennial census.

The monthly surveys are taken in scientifically selected samples of the U.S. population, and the same questions will be asked of all sample households.

The identity of households to be questioned is kept confidential and the facts obtained will be used only for statistical purposes.

Census Bureau interviewers who will visit households in this area during March 17-22 are: Barbara DeRusso, Loudonville; Irene McLander, Ballston Spa; Maureen Collins, Slingerlands.

Spurred on by their century-old motto, "Charity never faileth," the members of the Women's Relief Society have set new records of achievement in 1968, the organization's annual report shows.

Concert

Elaine Bonazzi, one of the most accomplished singers of the rising generation of American trained artists, will perform with the Albany Symphony Orchestra on Tuesday, March 25, at 8:30 P.M. at the Palace Theatre.

Miss Bonazzi has been described as "one of the top mezzo-sopranos of present day operation." She will sing Mahler's KINDER-TOTENLIEDER. Born in Endicott, New York, Miss Bonazzi studied piano and singing, and graduated from the Eastman School of Music in Rochester. She made her debut with the New York City Opera Company after appearances with the NBC Opera, Dallas Civic Opera, Opera Society of Washington and the Santa Fe Opera. She has appeared in Europe, and South America numerous times. Miss Bonazzi is not only an opera star, but is in great demand as soloist with orchestra. She was recently chosen by Leopold Stokowski to appear as soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra at the opening concert of Robin Hood Dell and was invited by Stravinsky to sing the mezzo solos in the first performance of the Requiem Canticles. Rauscher wrote his opera, Joan of Arc at Rheims, especially for Miss Bonazzi.

Skiing, Anyone?

When winter wanes, spring skiing's not far behind. New York State's three major ski areas operated by the Conservation Department are still going strong with the end of the best ski season in years not yet in sight.

Whiteface in the Adirondacks and Belleayre in the Catskills, each receiving minor but important accumulations of snow during the past two weeks, have had the best skiing, equal to the powder-surface conditions usually prevalent in mid-winter.

Whiteface, shooting for a record of 120 days of skiing, set ten years ago, had reached 103 by mid-week, with 77,420 visitors using the big mountain's facilities.

Belleayre though its current total of 82 skiing days does not approach a record, has had the largest number of skiing visitors, 103,072. Belleayre's base elevation of over 2,400 feet, second highest in the East, regularly results in unusual annual snowfall, a good proportion of the accumulation coming late in the sea-

Gore Mountain at North Creek is breaking records with every day of skiing. At mid-week, 86,700 skiers had used Gore's big complex of lifts and trails in 108 skiing days. Longest previous season for Gore was 98 days last year.

Prospects for all three are that skiing will continue for at least another couple of weeks even if warm days and cool nights bring on "spring conditions" within the next few days.
