To the Moon!

Members of the Rocket Read er's Club have landed safely back in the children's room at the Bethlehem Public Library. Since July 6, well over one hundred youngsters in grades one thru 6 have been in the space race. Those reading at least ten books made the journey to the moon and back. Furthermore, the traveling was so splendid that 73 made the trip and 14 more whize zed back and fourth several times. (That means they read at least, ten more books for their trip ticket.) Praise goes to the three librarians at the controls. It isn't easy to keep such a large project moving along yet the club gained rather than lost members as the

Stenotype Graduates Well-Paid

The Stenotype School of Albany, located in the Home Savings Bank Building, 11 N. Pearl St., offers a five-month course that prepares students for civil service stenotype examinations. Those failing to pass the exam the first time may take it monthly thereafter until passing.

A five-month intermediate course develops the student's skill and prepares the student for jobs in law offices and private enterprises and for employment. requiring legal and technical stenographic skills.

In ten months students are prepared for jobs as hearing stenographer, which pays about $157 a week. A diploma from the Stenotype School of Albany qualifies the graduate for these posi-

Monthly payments allow students to drop out any time they wish. In the last year, however, less than ten per cent of the student body has left school.

Prospective students may visit the school any day to see if they meet the minimum qualifications for acceptance. These are a desire to learn and to increase earning capacity, and the ability to attend class twice a week for one and three-quarters hours a night.

The Stenotype School of Albany has trained and placed in the Albany City court system alone five court stenographers. Others trained by the school are working or have worked as grand jury stenographers. In district attorneys offices in Troy and Schenectady, and as court stenographers in Hudson and Ticonderoga.

Many students trained by the Albany school are working in private law offices and in such state offices as the Law Department. Executive Office, Department of Agriculture, and Markets, Teachers Retirement System, Office of General Services and Motor Vehicle Bureau.

Graduates have worked for the Civil Service Employees Association and on special assignments for area newspapers, including work at political press conferences.

A great deal of graduates' success is due to the encouragement of the Albany City court system and area corporations, and acceptance by private businesses.

Federal and state civic service examinations are given continuously at the Stenotype School of Albany. Prospective students may phone 465-1716 for additional information.

Classes are small and intimate, with about ten students in each class. New students are being accepted, and immediate registration is desired for summer or fall classes.

Classes will be kept small and preference will be given early registrants.

Fall Registration

The Spencer Business Institute, 404 Union Street, Schenectady, has now opened personal registration for the new Fall Term which will begin for the 77th year on September 14.

M. A. Donofrio, president, pointed out that Spencer will take pride in remaining a small business institute in an age where "being large" appears to be the order of the day for colleges. He said that by purposely keeping enrollment limited, Spencer's can assure the individual student of small classes and individual assistance, thereby maintaining a friendly atmosphere with close corporation between members of the student body and faculty.

Another advantage arising from this philosophy is the fact that the school's free lifetime Placement Bureau may assure Spencer graduates of 100 per cent placement into only the best positions.

Very important to area residents desiring business education is the fact that Spencer's training allows students to meet course objectives within 9 to 11 months, enabling the graduate to obtain employment within a short period of time. The State Department of Education has authorized Spencer's to issue a diploma that is the equivalent of two-year degree programs at other colleges.

Registration is in progress now and personal application should be made either at the Registrar's office or by telephone: Course openings are as follows:

Court Reporting Course — The student receives a complete backgroup for the specialized field of courtroom reporting and stenography.

The court reporting profession is in great need of young men and women through the country. Graduates receive as much as $7,800 in starting positions, some even higher. Applicants may make personal arrangements to discuss their eligibility into this field with Mr. Donogrio on any weekday.

Executive-Secretarial Courses — Either manuel or machine shorthand may be elected under this course, which trains for private secretarial, legal or medical secretary careers. The greatest percentage of Spencer graduates have been prepared under this program and are situated in some of the finest positions in the area with private industry or with government agencies.

Stenographic Course — This course is the school's short, intensified program for secretarial preparation. Many students with or without some previous shorthand background find that an accelerated course of this type more appropriately fits their needs when time is a limiting factor in training time.

Clerical-Typist with IBM Key-Punch — The heavy demand for this graduate has prompted the Institute's authorities to include concentrated study in record keeping, typewriting, and the latest machines for data process-

Business Management counting Course - It is from this course of study that business executive assistants are chosen, as the program trains students in office management careers with emphasis upon complete mastery of accounting principles.

Established in 1893, Spencer ranks as one of the oldest schools in the country with the highest recognition awarded business colleges as being evidenced by the following accreditations: It is registered as an accredited business institute by the University of the State of New York Department of Education; approved by the State Department of Vocational Rehabilitation for disabled students and by the Federal Department of Justice for foreign students.

The Institute is also recognized by the Veterans Administration under the GI BILL and the War Orphan Bill.

Spencer Business Institute also is the only school in upper New York State that has been approved by the national approving agency, the National Shorthand Reporters Association, as well as the New York State Board of Regents, to teach for the court reporting profession.

Interviews and counseling may be arranged for the Fall term by calling 374-7619 or by stopping in the registrar's office between 8:30 A.M. and 3 P.M.

New Glámour Service

Area girls who desire a selfimprovement program, or who wish to pursue one of the glamour careers, now have their chance! Martin Norell, Inc. is a new, strictly 1970 type of finishing school which offers several selfimprovement programs plus private or tailor-made training to girls and women to desire to make the most of their physical and personality attributes.

The school's directors, Elizabeth Martin and Inge Norell, who hail from Virginia and Holland respectively, are well-qualified. They have both been active leading finishing school, and have a wide range of experience in the modeling field. The two young women have done national and international commercial photography, as well as fashion and runway modeling.

"There is a tremendous amount of undeveloped potential in this area" maintains Miss Norell "and we believe that this area is ready for New York City standards." "Every woman needs a little glamour in her life" adds Miss Martin, "and you don't have to be a model to look like one."

In addition to the finishing school, Martin Norell, Inc. offers a fashion coordination service, which secures jobs for professional and aspiring models. This service is ably staffed by two very professional models, Nicole Knight, from New York City, and Victoria Shea, of Neward, N.J. The school is located at 1537 Central Avenue, Albany and operates Monday through Thursday evenings. The fashion service is a full-time operation and information about it may be obtained by calling the school.

Free checking account for June graduates.

Think of it as a graduation gift. From The Bank to The Graduate.

If you're one of this year's high school or college graduates, we'd like you to have 1 year of Convenient Checking Account service at no charge. And that's a pretty good deal.

We don't intend to skimp on it either. You'll get your name imprinted on every check. And you'll get your choice of a wallet-style checkbook or a folding one.

And by the way. Congratulations.

tinuing goal, says Prentiss Carnell, president of Albany Business College. Nearly all of the June 1970 graduates have been placed in accounting, data processing, retailing and secretarial positions through the school's employment office. New York State, General Electric, IBM, Traveler's Insurance and Albany Medical Center are among firms listed.

The Albany school has served the other employment needs of the Capital District and the eastern New York State area since 1857. Early courses included penmanship and telegraphy. Modern demands of business dictate modern computer equipment, updated courses like retailing and computer programming and current teaching methods.

Graduates of both the business administration and secretarial departments qualify for college transfer credit. Four-year colleges in seven states have granted full credit toward teaching, secretarial and business administration degrees. Thirty men and women graduates will be attending the College of St. Rose, Albany, this fall. The first group of transfers there graduate in June 1971.

Dormitories for resident students are available. Five buildings with 150 beds provide housing for men and women. Food service is available at the main school building.

Activities play an important part in school life. Four fraternities and sororities, intercollegiate athletics, yearbook and weekly student newspaper are included. Students have been active in the Big Brother-Big Sister program in the past three years.

New financial programs aid students with education costs. New York State guaranteed loans, Scholar Incentive Awards and Federal Work Study program grants are all utilized. Over one half of the students work part time during the school year. Nearby State or private offices provide convenient opportunities.

Fall registration for over 450 full-time students takes place September 14. Freshman and seniors will be entering from 200 high schools in New York, Vermont and Massachusetts as well as from China, Indonesia, Thailand, Liberia, Pakistan and Ghana. June graduation will mark the 114th year of the school's history.

FISH

A mother must take her son to the doctor. Who will watch the other two children? Another woman has just learned her husband's business trip has been extended two more days. How can she get the supermarket for the family's groceries? A man taking care of his children while his wife is hospitalized is unable to get home to feed the children. An elderly, lonely man would like to play cards with someone for a few hours a week. A distraught mother discovers she can no longer communicate with her teenage daughter. Competent, professional advice is needed, but where and how? In another household the washing machine is broken and the family car is in Buffalo on a business trip. How does one solve this problem?

Presently, there is no one answer, but in the near future all of these emergencies can be met through FISH. The Tri-Village unit of FISH is currently in the development stage, but it is hoped will be fully operational very shortly. A community-wide meeting is planned for September. The exact date and place will be announced soon.

At that time the function and mechanics of FISH will be explained in detail. In brief, FISH is a group of individuals who wish to help others who are in need of assistance. The name, "FISH" refers to a symbol used by the early Christians, however this is the total extent of any religious conotation. Those providing volunteer assistance do so because of a genuine desire to help others, whereas those asking for and receiving their aid are under no obligation of any sort. Furthermore a religious affiliation is not even a prerequisite for help, nor is there a charge for any service. It is hoped that the minor administrative expenses will be borne by local church and service groups.

Two Plays

The Methodist Youth Players will present two one-act plays on Monday evening, August 31, at the First Methodist Church in Delmar. They will do A.A. Milne's delightful fairy tale, "The Ugly Duckling," and Lucille Fletcher's chilling murder play, "Sorry, Wrong Number." Curtain time is 8:00 P.M. and admission is free. At 6:30 P.M. there will be a "dime-a-dip" supper sponsored by the youth group to which the public is also invited. Proceeds from this dinner will be used to defray expenses of the youth group.

Donna Collier and Paul Van Ryan will portray the Princess and the Prince, who pretent to be servants because they fear they are such Ugly Ducklings that they wouldn't like each other. Zeina Azzam and Scott Robertson are the servants who pretent to be the Princess and Prince. Jeff Seckondorf and Priscilla MacDonald are the King and Queen who fear that their daughter is too ugly to attract a husband without a trick. John Lane is the Chancellor who has the difficult job of bringing it all off to provide a happy ending.

Nancy Mulleneaux will portray the terrified woman in "Sorry, Wrong Number," who overhears, because of a crossed wire, her own murder being planned, and who desperately tries to save herself, but without success.

Carolyn Herr, Melissa Kull-

man and Charlene Hawkins have designed the sets and prepared the scenery, serve as prompters, and fill out the cast.

Larry Macomber is in charge of the "dime-a-dip" supper and is assisted by David Gazzetta and Douglas Vail.

"The Ugly Duckling" is presented by special arrangement with Samuel French Inc. and Drive defensively

- even if, or particularly if, the driver is young.

This advice, stated over the years, remains sensible, according to the annual booklet of highway accident statistics published by The Travelers Insurance Companies.

One-fifth of the drivers in America today are less than 25 years of age. But they are involved in one-third of all fatal auto accidents.

Defensive driving, according to The Travelers booklet, is difficult because a driver is so often unable to identify irresponsible kids (or drinkers or seniles) in Die never had an accident time to avoid them. The driver must assume that no one else is responsible and alert.

In 1969, more than 56,500 deaths were recorded on the country's highways. The number of injured topped 4,700,000. Both figures were the highest in history.

As in past years, excessive speed was the chief cause of deaths and injuries. High speed, however, is not necessarily the big killer. Driving too fast for conditions is lethal, too. Ten miles an hour can be too fast on glare ice or in a 'peasoup' fog.

Actually, the annual survey shows, more fatal accidents occur in clear, dry weather. Poor driving conditions make the driver more alert to what's ahead or around him. Only 1.8 percent of last year's automobile fatalities occurred in fog, and only 2.1 percent in snow.

The answer to the highway problem lies in more and better driver education, tighter laws and law enforcement.

Banking Department of the merger of Greenwich Savings and Loan Association into Home Savings Bank. Approval by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation is expected to follow shortly.

Mr. John E. Vroman, President of Home Savings and William J. Lyttle Jr., President of Greenwich S & L, both expressed elation over the approval which has been under consideration since April 27, 1970. Home Savings has assets of approximately $120 million and Greenwich the second largest of three mutuals in Washington County had assets of slightly under $3 million at the end of 1969.

Under the merger plans Lyttle becomes a vice president of Home Savings and a member of its Board of Trustees. No changes are planned in the personnel of the Greenwich bank which will continue to operate under the supervision of Mr. Lyttle. Home Savings has two offices in the City of Albany, the main office at 11 North Pearl Street the uptown office at 163 Central Avenue and, one office in Colonie at 34 Wolf Road. The Greenwich S & L service area includes portions of Washington and Sara- | toga Counties.

The major benefits to the public in the Greenwich area as a result of this merger include higher rates on savings deposits, more liberal mortgage lending policies and additional services. Home compounds interest Savings quarterly (Greenwich S & L does so semi-annually) and provides more generous "grace days".

Home Savings' more liberal mortgage lending policies will be made available in the Greenwich area. Moreover, Home Savings offers high loan-value ratios, longer maturities and larger size loans. The merger will also result in additional services which Greenwich S & L does not now offer. These include FHA and VA loans, more extensive lending on commercial properties, 5% day-ofdeposit to day-of-withdrawal accounts, 5 1/4-6% certificates of deposit, vacation and Christmas Club accounts, Student and home improvement loans, school savings facilities, savings bank life insurance and "on-line" depositor services. Most of these services are not available anywhere in Greenwich S & L's primary service area, and some are not available in its secondary service area either.

Mr. Vroman said the consummation date will be announced following approval by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Iron Deficiency in Plants

Although considered a minor element, iron is a very necessary soil element. When it is absent, the leaves of plants will take on a condition called chlorosis. The parts of the leaves between the veins will become yellow or white while the veins remain green. The plants will grow poorly, and in severe cases, flowers or fruit may not develop. The plans may even die.

Iron chlorosis is caused by the non-availability of iron to the plants. Sometimes the iron is just lacking in the soil, but often other conditions prevent iron that is present from entering the plants' systems. The condition that is most often responsible for this is a low level of acidity. This occurs mainly in soils with a high lime or phosphate content. Overwatering and poor drainage can also create a deficiency of iron.

Iron chlorosis affects most trees, shrubs, vines, field crops, flowers, grasses and some vegetables. Different species vary in susceptibility.

Two types of chemists can be applied to control iron deficiency. The first is an iron chelate. This material is an organic compound which contains iron, and keeps it in a form available to plants. The second material is ferrous sulfate. The iron in this compound, however, is not as available to plants as is the iron chelate, so repeated applications may be necessary.

Chelates and furous sulfate come in several forms. They can be applied as a foliar spray to the leaves or they can be mixed into the soil around the plants.

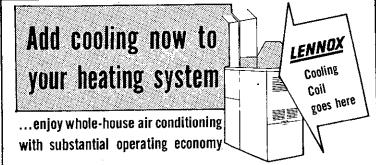

For more information on iron deficiency and other plants problems, contact the Cooperative Extension Association of Albany County, Agriculture Division, Room 209 Federal Building, 441 Broadway, Albany, N.Y. 12207.

Controlling Bats

Bats are obnoxious pests that have been plaguing older houses and summer cabins in the area. Contrary to many old beliefs, bats are not harmful to humans, nor do they tangle themselves in people's hair.

There are several methods of controlling bats. Naphthalene flakes sprinkled liberally over the area occupied by these creatures will act as a repellent. Three to five pounds of the flakes are usually enough to treat an average attic. The bats are repelled by the odor and will vacate the area. Since these flakes evaporate with exposure to the air, they must be replenished occassionally.

Once the bats are out of the area, care must be taken to see that they do not come back. Check for unprotected vents, louvers, broken windows, or other open spaces. Bats can crawl through spaces as small as 3/8 an inch. Plug any openings with oakum, tow, or similar packing material and seal with caulking compound. Or, seal these openings with 1/4 inch hardware cloth or screen.

Poisoning bats is not a practical solution as they feed on insects. Fumigating with calcium cyanide is effective, but dangerous. This should only be done by a commercial pest control operation.

Bats are not birds, as some people believe. They are true flying mammals with thin membranes stretching between their forearms and hind limbs to form "wings." They are the only mammals which have this ability to fly.

Unlike many night creatures, bats have very small eyes. Yet they can fly swiftly and unerringly through the darkest night by use of "radar." This radar is really their high pitched cries which reflect from solid objects, warning them of any obstruction in their paths. Their great speed and mobility enables bats to feed on night flying insects which make up most of their diet.

More information on bats is available from the Cooperative Extension Association of Albany County, Agriculture Division, room 209 Federal Bldg. 441 Broadway, Albany, New York 12207.

New Fishing Place

Tomhannock Reservoir in Rensselaer County, formerly off-limits to fishermen, has become a mecca for anglers looking for fast action and quiet waters according to a report issued recently by the State Department of Environmental Conservation.

Tomhannock, source of water supply for the City of Troy and several surrounding communities was opened to public fishing last' year when the City of Troy Bureau of Water and Sewers placed the reservoir under a Fish and Wildlife Management Act (FW-MA) Cooperative Agreement. It is the first large public water supply reservoir in eastern New York State to be opened under an FWMA Agreement to public fishing.

The reservoir contains a plentiful supply of sporty smallmouth bass, largemouth bass, chain pickeral and a wide variety of panfish.

Fishermen aren't the only ones happy with this recreational resource which is less than a halfhour drive from the State Capitol. John P. Buckley, Commissioner of the Troy Department of Public Utilities, says that over 4,700 free special fishing permits have been issued by his office so far. Buckey said, "We've done something to help provide recreation - the people have helped us clean up the area around the reservoir." He added, "we've had people from as far away as Rochester sign up for a fishing permit."

John D. Gould, Regional Supervisor of the Department of Environmental Conservation said, "The success of the entire program at Tomhannock is good news and is a credit to the sportsmen, the City of Troy and Department of Environmental Conservation personnel who have helped make it work."

Under the terms of the FWMA Cooperator Agreement, a Special Conservation Officer has been assigned to patrol the reservoir with regular Conservation Officers making periodic patrols through the cooperative area to ensure that rules and regulations are being adhered to and that littering does not occur.

Commissioner Buckley's comments on the success experienced with the opening of the reservoir to fishing came as he was making preparations for an "open house" at the Troy Water Treatment Plant on Sunday, August 9 to celebrate Better Waters for Americans Week which is observed nationally. Visitors will be taken on tours of the modern plant, equipment will be on display and the Department of Environmental Conservation will

More Help Needed

Response has been slow to date to a public appeal for contributions to help the Albany Area Chapter, American Red Cross obtain its $13.013 share of the nationwide appeal for $6 million to aid the thousands of Hurricane Celia disaster victims, according to J. Spencer Standish, chapter chairman.

A total of $280 has been raised to date in the appeal which got underway last week.

Mr. Standish incicated he was confident that the Albany Area Chapter would meet its share of the nationwide appeal and that the public would respond to this urgent need for the victims of Hurricane Celia who reside in and around the Corpus Christi Gulf Coast region of Texas.

President Richard M. Nixon, in commenting on the disaster. said "The tragic consequences of Hurricane Celia have once again called forth the skills and the resources of the American Red Cross, The Red Cross response to the victims of this disaster must open the hands and the hearts of all Americans to the injured, the hungry and the homeless. The immense task of assisting the thousands who are suffering today demands the help of

By contributing to the Red Cross appeal we can all join together once again to assist those whose lives and families have been disrupted and whose dwellings and means of livelihood are wrecked or damaged.

Red Cross chapters have, for an unprecedented two years in a row, gone to the American public with an emergency appeal for funds to aid the victims of a hurricane disaster. Last year's appeal involved the victims of Hurricane Camille, which also struck the Gulf Coast region and causing the highest property losses ever known.

Because of Hurricane Celia, more than 100,000 persons in the Corpus Christi area have received Red Cross emergency mass care since it slammed across the Central Texas Gulf Coast on August 3. Over 200 national staff members are assisted to the disaster area and are assisting the victims in recovery and rehabilitation.

The American Red Cross indicated Celia may become the third most costly hurricane, in terms of disaster relief expenditures, in the history of the country.

Last week the Red Cross embarked on the nationwide appeal for a minimum of $6 million in order to provide relief and recovery assistance for the storm victims. The $6 million projected figure is topped only by Hurricane Camille (1969), in which Red Cross disaster relief expenditures exceeded $21 million, and Betsy (1965) with costs of $17.5 million.

Under ordinary circumstances the Red Cross budget of $10 million a year for disaster relief is sufficient to meet the emergency and recovery needs resulting from an average year's catastrophes. But ARC disaster expenditures during the past five years have totaled $88 million, far above the annual average.

This was due to a series of major natural calamities such as Hurricanes Betsy, Beulah, Camille and numerous large flood and tornado relief operations. These excessive costs not only wiped out the annual disaster budgets and the ARC disaster reserve funds, but also cut deeply into the national organization's general operating funds. This fund drain, plus the greatly increased cost of serving members of the armed forces during the past six years, made it necessary for the organization to initiate a special nationwide fund campaign for Hurricane Celia victims.

Contributions to the Albany appeal should be forwarded to the Albany Area Chapter, American Red Cross; Hackett Blvd. at Clara Barton Dr.; Albany, New York 12208 and marked for "American Red Cross Disaster Relief."

Last of the Bell-Ringers

It was 17 1/2 minutes before post-time for the first race the other day at the 108-year old Saratoga track now in the midst of another flourishing meeting.

Jimmy McTague, one-time jockey and brother of three other riders, solemnly took up his post at a big, gleaming bell hanging from a venerable black iron frame on the clubhouse lawn near the finish line. It's called a saddling bell and is the only one left at a New York track. And McTague is the last of the New York bellringers, a dedicated, straightbacked Quasimodo; a swinger on a horse's chin strap instead of a bell rope.

McTague, bespectacled and dignified, consulted his wrist watch. At exactly 17 minutes to posttime, he took hold of the chin strap, which is attached to the bell's clapper, and, with measured stroke began ringing the bell, once...twice...precisely seven times in all.

The tolling of the bell, a sound of gentle, almost pleasant, melancholy, was of a pastoral piece with the ancient track. No more fitting background than Saratoga could be found for the retention of an ancient tradition like the saddling bell.

Having rung the bell seven times starting at 17 minutes to post — a job he fulfills nine times a day during the Saratoga meeting — McTague smiled uncertainly at the fans nearest him on the lawn and turned to go back to a paddock office to await the next carillon call to duty. He knew he'd never make the trip back to the paddock without a question or two from the fans.

Typical was the one put to him by a lady: "Why do you ring that bell?"

"It's my job," McTague said. "The bell is an old race track tradition to notify trainers that it's getting close to post-time.

"Why do you ring the bell seven times?" another observant fan

"I was told to ring it seven times when I took this job," was the patient reply. "But I wasn't told why it has to be exactly seven times."

A reporter asked McTague why he rings the bell at precisely 17 minutes to post. He said, "that's what the schedule calls for. I wait for the vibrations to die out each time I ring so I get equal pauses between the rings. When it's raining, I speed up the action."

Most fans, like McTague himself, take the validity of the seven rings for granted and become uneasy if there are less. One day, a distinguished old gentleman sitting close to the bell appeared startled when McTague began his ministrations. After wo resounding bongs, he demanded that the last of the uell-ringers cease and desist.

He seemed so authoritative that McTague stopped, in spite of his devotion to the number 7. This brought a spate of queries and protests from members of the bell claque who were waiting for the other five shoes to drop, so

"What h ppened?" one asked. "Did the bell break?" Another sidled up to McTague and wanted to know the significance of only two peals, inquiring delicately if it might be a mysterious code number. McTague disillusioned Research has failed to determine why the saddling bell is rung seven times at 17 minutes before post-time. However, it's well-established that the saddling bell was a useful instrument in olden times to notify trainers that their race was coming up.

In those days, horses were scattered in barns in an area around an old track without stabling of its own and were saddled where they were stabled. The big saddling bell told the trainers it was time to get going.

Perhaps the bell is rung seven times because 7 is a lucky number, as some horse folks argue. At any rate, no matter how many times the saddling bell is rung, you can get an argument.

Steward Francis P. Dunne of the N.Y. State Racing Commission was once braced by a numerology student under the Saratoga paddock trees of a morning and asked why the saddling bell is rung seven times.

"If you don't like that number," Dunne said affably, "we'll ring it six times."

"Why ring it six times?" was the truculent rejoinder.

McTague, who rode in the 1920's and 1930's, comes from

His three brothers - J.J. (Jo-Jo). Charles. and Frank - were also jockeys. Charles, in his early 50's, still exercises horses at the New Jersey tracks.

The last of the bell-ringers is supervisor of the receiving barns at Aqueduct and Belmont Park, and was asked to take over the saddling bell at Saratoga in 1963 along with his work in the Horse Identification office.

The saddling bell was a nostalgic feature at old Belmont Park, where it was located on the roof and tolled by the late Jack Costigan until the track was demolished after the 1962 season. Old Aqueduct had its saddling bell, but its use was discontinued after a short while when the Big A opened in 1959.

The selection this year of jockey Frank Coltiletti Saratoga's Racing Hall of Fame recalls to McTague a race in which he rode Princess Doreen against Mars, who was ridden by Coltiletti.

"Old Miller Henderson trained the mare and he was very stern," McTague said. "You had to follow riding orders to the letter or you were in trouble. He told me that under no circumstances was I to go to the front with the mare, but to take back and let Mars make the pace.

"Well, the Princess was full of run at the start — it was a walk-up — while Mars, outside of us, almost went to the outside fence and did a U-turn before Coltiletti could straighten him out. Me, I like to strangled the Princess to follow my orders. Coltiletti knew what I was trying to do and laughed at me while taking his time with Mars.

"The way my mare was fighting to run, I just wasn't able to take her back of Mars, and so we came to the stretch turn in front. At the eighth pole, Coltiletti turned Mars loose and it was all over. Henderson was fit to be tied when I got back to the scale and threatened to boot me all the way back to the barn for not following orders.

"I explained why I couldn't, but that didn't stop the old man. He screamed at me, 'Why didn't you make her TROT?"

New Stamp

Members of the League of Women Voters have a special interest in the new six cent stamp that will go on sale for the first time in Adams, Massachusetts on August 26, 1970, commemorating the 50th anniversary of the ratification of the 19th (woman suffrage) amendment. The stamp will be available locally August 27th. Designed by Ward Brackett of Westport, Connecticut, it is a horizontal stamp printed in blue showing a modern woman at a voting machine with suffragists in the background.

In announcing the stamp, Postmaster General Winton H. Blount stated "Women have responded magnificently to their political responsibilities. Ours is a better nation because they have marked ballots."

Adams, Massachusetts was selected for the First Day of Issue of the Woman Suffrage Stamp because it is the birthplace of Susan B. Anthony, pioneer crusader for women's rights. Miss Anthony was founder and President of the National American Woman Suffrage Association which became the League of Women Voters in 1920.

The president of the Albany County League, Mrs. Dwight Wallace, and the vice-president for public relations, Mrs. David Price, plan to attend the First Day of Issue ceremonies in Adams. August 26th. The League of Women Voters of the United States is the official sponsor of the stamp ceremonies which mark the 50th anniversary of the League as well as the commemoration of woman suffrage. In noting that NOW (National Organization for Women) is holding their Women's Strike for Equality Day also on the 26th, Mrs. Wallace said, "The fact that the League of Women Voters has no position on the Equal Rights Amendment doesn't put us in an adversary position with the women's liberation movement. The fact is that although the League is the direct inheritor of the original woman's rights movement, the fight for suffrage, our members have chosen to work on governmental issues which affect both men and women."

Since its founding in 1920, the League of Women Voters has been concerned with emphasizing the importance of the vote in our society. In launching the League's 50th anniversary celebration! President Richard M. Nixon delcared: "For fifty years the League of Women Voters has provided Americans in every state with information on candidates and issues, and it has furnished a non-partisan platform on candidates and issues, and it has furnished a non-partisan platform from which all candidates may be seen and heard. These activities have strengthened government and have helped to sustain the public weal."

To mark its 50th year the League designated 1970 as the "Year of the Voter" in which they are spearheading a campaign to emphasize the vote as the basis of American democracy, to remove the remaining inequities in the nation's electoral system and to encourage full participation in the political process.

Mrs. Lucy Benson, national League President said, "There is more interest in issues and in voting than ever before. 1970 could witness the largest voter turnout in history in a non-Presidential hear." If this prediction comes true, there could be no more fitting tribute to the men and women who fought for extension of the suffrage in the belief that the vote — not violence — is the basic instrument of change in this country.

LIGHT makes a difference

by Nancy Evans

Residential Lighting Specialist General Electric, Nela Park

Floor model of BLBS study lamp permits student to place lamp out of the way, yet still have the light source in the correct position for illuminating work.

It has been claimed that about 80 percent of a person's knowledge is brought to him through his vision. Thus, school work makes exceptional demands upon students' eyes during their academic careers.

Well-planned lighting, therefore, can make a significant contribution to education.

School systems a regiving increased attention to improving the quality and quantity of lighting in classrooms. It also behooves parents to provide their school-age children with a well-lighted study center in the home.

Students in your family need their own work surface which is always ready for the one to five hours of daily studying which may be required throughout the school year. Basic equipment for the home study center is a flat-topped desk or table, and a chair which brings the student's eye level at least 14 inches above the work surface.

The desk should be placed against a wall, never in front of a window. The desk top and wall should be light in color to reduce uncomfortable contrast between school work and the surrounding area. A blotter on the desk and pegboard on the wall can correct deficiencies in this area.

You should have about 70 footcandles, (lighting level available from a 200-watt light bulb) on the work surface. Portable lamps should be placed 12 inches back from the front edge of the desk and 15 inches to one side. This placement assures adequate light on the desk without reflection back into the student's eyes.

One type of portable lamp is superior to others for the home study center. It comes in both table and floor models, and is identified by a Better Light Better Sight (BLBS) tag. These lamps have been found by the Electrical Testing Laboratories, Inc., to comply with the specifications of the BLBS Bureau. They also meet the lighting recommendations of the Illuminating Engineering Society. Styles include portable table lamps (also available in kit form), swing-arm versions of table lamps, floor lamps, and wall - mounted Fluorescent fixtures offer you another way of illuminating the study desk. These should contain at least one, and preferably two, 40-watt fluorescent lamps. The bottom edge of the unit's shield should be 15 to 18 inches above the desk top, and the light source about 12 inches back from the front edge of the desk.

Want to know more about lighting a home study center? Write for "Learning With Light," a new, well-illustrated booklet. Single copies are available from the Inquiry Bureau, Dept. TPC-10, General Electric Company, Nela Park, Cleveland, Ohio 44112.

Fashion Note For Youngsters

Toys Are Being Worn This Year

If your young son asks his buddy, "what are you wearing to-day?" — don't be surprised. He's not turning into a junior fashion plate. He's just deciding which of his toy cars he should wear out to play.

Wearable toys are the newest play idea from Tonka Toys, the well-known makers of steel toy vehicles. Called Tonka-Totes, these accurately-detail-ed, fast-moving little cars are equipped with individual carrying clips so Junior can "tote" his favorite racing cars or trucks wherever he goes.

Well-dressed young automotive fans can wear a veritable fleet of toy cars, clipped to pockets and belts or attached to specially-designed hard hats and racing helmets. Easily removed from the clips, the cars are ready for action on the nearest sidewalk or playroom drag strip.

Low friction tires and axles for high - speed performance are combined with highstrength stainless steel and polycarbonate construction for durability. A two-car launcher and turn-around ramp are also available in sets.

HOT WATER ANGLING

Being in hot water usually means being in trouble, but this isn't necessarily so when it comes to fishing.

In many areas of the country there are "hot water" lakes where fishing is excellent both summer and winter. These bodies of water are adjacent to electrical generating plants which use the lake's water as part of their steam generation process. Cool water is taken into the plant and warm water is returned to the supply reservoir.

In many places this warm water creates a year around primary food source — plants and animals which are forage for desirable species of fish. In some lakes, the area near the water discharge becomes rich with food; in turn, the fish become fat and sassy.

Species of fish found in these discharge water reservoirs are varied, according to information received by the fishing department at Mercury out boards. In western Wyoming, for example, a coalfired steam generation plant returns water to a lake where trout fishing is excellent. There, rainbows of three and four pounds are taken by deep trolling along the fringe area of the hot water discharge.

Other examples can be found in Missouri, where coal-fired generation plants at two locations offer good bass and crappie fishing the year 'round.

Not all the facts are known about hot water discharge into rivers and lakes. In some areas, anglers are opposing proposed nuclear-powered electrical generation plants for fear hot water discharge will seriously damage local fishing. Research into the problem is continuing, and while the story isn't complete yet there are some benefits for anglers in some reservoirs where a water re-cycling process is being used. The fishing gang at Mercury suggests you check nearby power lakes and learn what is happening in this "hot water" fishing.

BEAUTY AND THE BLAZE

Where there's smoke, there's often a blaze, but the odds go

The indefatigable Jerry Lewis never rests! The moment his annual Muscular Dystrophy Labor Day Telethon is ended, he starts lining up talent for the next year's show. And Jerry's show business friends, once they make a promise to appear on the fundraising program, never break it, even if they have to fly across an ocean. Last year Peter Lawford flew in from London to appear on the telethon. This year's 20-hour marathon all-star show will be seen over station WRGB, Channel 6, Schenectady, starting at 10:30 P.M., September 6th.

Trim-A-way the inches... the pounds take care of themselves (Guaranteed!)*

What are we talking about? The truth, that's what. 'Trim-A-way's exclusive techniques are designed to take off a minimum of two inches overall on your first session, and at least five inches overall by your fifth session... or you pay nothing.

How's that for an unconditional guarantee: no double-talk, no strings, no persuasion for "make-good sessions." If Trim-A-way can't take off inches as we promise, you simply get all your money back for those five sessions. Who else makes that kind of claim?

Trim-A-way is pretty confident because we've seen it work in our salons from Montreal to Rio and points in between. You lose unwanted inches without a rigid diet, without strenuous exercises, with no steaming or pills to worry about. Read, relax, dream slim dreams while we work our magic.

When we're finished, you'll just be getting started on a whole new outlook.

NOW WORKING IN DELMAR 163 LARK ST. ALBANY, N.Y. 12210

down rapidly when draperies are bought with an eye to fire safety as well as beauty,

Dr. Irmagene Holloway, recently with the Consumer Education Office Of Product Safety of the U.S. Department of Health, Education & Welfare, and now a safety consultant for Owens-Corning Fiberglas, thinks that the American homemaker will do just that, if she is acquainted with facts. Dr. Holloway was the first woman to be granted a doctor's degree in Safety Education; she has been interested in accident prevention ever since she had to spend quite a lot of time in the hospital as a result of one.

PRECAUTIONS TO TAKE TO PREVENT FIRE

1. Hang fire safe Fiberglas curtains and draperies. This naturally fire safe, easy care fiber is an ideal home safety element. Fiberglas curtains or draperies can be safely hung over or near ranges, radiators or open fire places.

2. Keep large, noncombustible ashtrays handy and use them. Never use plastic containers.

3. Never smoke in bed! You might fall asleep and drop your cigarette.

4. Unless qualified, don't try to repair your TV set. Fire or severe shock could result. Call, a TV repairman.

5. In selecting clothing for children, avoid flimsy fastburning fabrics.

HOW TO HAVE A HULL OF A GOOD TIME

Whether old salt or new-vou can log in more pleasure from your craft by following these simple boating safety rules:

1. Do not overload a small

2. Learn the peculiarities of your boat, its steering system and equipment.

Do not unbalance a small boat when boarding. Accidents related to boarding are usually the result of carelessness.

4. Get a free Courtesy Examination of your boat from the Coast Guard Auxiliary. This will determine whether you have the necessary safety equipment. (There is no penalty if your craft is not up to Coast Guard standards).

5. Follow the lead of the Pepsi-Cola people who suggest you save all soft drink empties for proper disposal. Floating debris can foul up your motor and your marine scene.

Jerry Lewis' wardrobe for his Muscular Dystrophy Labor Day Telethon to be seen on Station WRGB, Channel 6, Schenectady, September 6th and 7th reportedly fills 12 steamer trunks and 30 pieces of smaller luggage.

On the 20-hour super-spectacular Jerry changes his tuxedo or sports jacket and contrasting slacks every half-hour, and undergoes a complete change of shirt, socks, and underwear not to mention shoës, every time he goes off stage, approximately every 10 or 15 minutes.

His backstage dressing quarters at the Americana Hotel in New York City, from where the telethon originates, contains a full-size steam pressing machine and an electric dryer. On hand will be a presser and Jerry's valet.
