

Autumn

Come little leaves said the wind one day,
Come over the meadow with me and play.
Put on your dresses of red and gold
For Summer has gone, and the days are cold.
Dancing and flying the little leaves went,
Winter had called them: they were content.
Soon fast asleep in thin earthy beds,
The snow laid a white blanket over their heads.

Don't be bamboozled

Sears reveals 6 danger signals to look out for next time you shop

Sears

Sears, Roebuck and Co. doesn't believe you create value by playing with words. For instance, the Sears management refuses to establish artificially high "list" prices to allow so-called "discount" prices. Some stores love this kind of hanky-panky. Do you?

CAVEAT EMPTOR the Romans said - let the buyer beware. There's nothing at all new about bamboozlement. Only the words have changed.

Here's the up-to-date Sears guide to words to be wary of when you go shopping:

1. List price. This is the "value" the manufacturer or retailer puts upon the product. It's easy to abuse. Too often, they put a high list price on the product so it can be marked down to look like a bargain.

2. Discount price! It's supposed to be a bargain. Is it? Remember how easy it is to set a phony list price and then cross it out.

3. Comparable value. Hardest of all to pin down. Are the items being "compared" identical? Very seldom. Usually the comparison, even if it's honest, is loose guesswork.

4. Recommended price. Set by the manufacturer, another name for list price. Too easy to make it high so the store can mark it down.

5. Seconds or Irregulars. Sears policy has been, and will always be, to sell only first quality, fully guaranteed merchandise in order to insure complete customer satisfaction. Sears will never lower or jeopardize its standards in order to offer false values with inferior quality.

6. Manufacturer's suggested price. Words again. Same as list price and recommended price. May be legitimate, but subject to the same kind of hanky-panky. Note: Don't look for these words at Sears. You won't find them. Sears believes in some other old-fashioned words - like honesty, and integrity, and reputation. That's why you won't find Sears playing word games with prices.

Bethlehem House — A Link With The Past

by
Allison Bennett, Bethlehem
Historian

South of Albany about seven miles, on the west bank of the Hudson River stands Bethlehem House, an old Dutch home that typified life in the valley during post-Revolutionary times. Here centered the social life of Bethlehem for over one hundred years in the Nicoll-Sill family, and the story of the rise and fall of the family as it is unfolded in the house and its environs is an interesting chapter in the life of the Town. With typical Dutch solidity, the old house still stands amid a grove of locust trees, with thick walls of solid brick, and even in its modern condition, a step through the door and a look around gives that feeling of permanence and tradition. The story of the Van Rensselaer family in America is well known and of course, this house and its build-

THE TOWN OF BETHLEHEM has this year acquired the home pictured above — Bethlehem House, located at Cedar Hill, and built in 1730-36. It is expected that the house will be gradually restored over a period of years for the use and enjoyment of the citizens of Bethlehem.

The present house was built in 1730-36 by Rensselaer Nicoll, a nephew of the Fourth Patroon, Killian Van Rensselaer. Records show, however, that there was a settlement here at least a hundred years before, so we are dealing with an area settled about the same time as Albany itself. Undoubtedly the reason for this early settlement was the power available at the falls of the Vlauman's Kill (creek), and the Van Rensselaer records show that a saw mill was erected here directly after the one at the Norman's Kill was built in 1632.

Rensselaer Nicoll, youngest son of Anna, sister of the Patroon, received in inheritance the farm at Bethlehem from his uncle when he was 13 years of age. When he reached maturity, Rensselaer Nicoll courted and married Elizabeth Salisbury, daughter of a prominent Dutch settler at Catskill. He built for his bride the original north part of Bethlehem House and so it has always been called right up to the present day. One of the slaves received as a wedding present by the newly married couple gave birth in 1737, to a little Negro child who spent his entire life in the service of the family at Bethlehem House, and was buried in the family graveyard. The story of "Old Caesar" is a tale in itself and we will print that in a later issue.

When Rensselaer Nicoll died he passed his estate on to his son, Francis Nicoll. Francis had married his second cousin, Margaret Van Rensselaer of Claverack, a well educated and gracious lady. She started the Nicoll-Sill family Bible, which is now in the Albany Institute of History and Art and contributed much of the Albany Institute of History and prestige to the home. Francis Nicoll lived through the Revolutionary years and served as a Deputy to the Provincial Congress in 1775 and 1776. He later served as a member of the State Assembly during the 1790 period. The family income was more than sufficient and aside from the war agitation, things went along pleasantly. Social ventures took up a lot of the time, with visiting relatives up and down the river valley, and entertaining in return. Bethlehem House was the center of culture for quite a community. The girls of the neighborhood learned to weave in the great South basement room and the support for what education and religion the community had came directly from Francis Nicoll. The first school house in Bethlehem was located on Nicoll-Sill property. Francis was one of the founders of the First Reformed Church of Bethlehem and acted as a Deacon for the rest of his life. A profitable farming and trading enterprise was carried on which filled the money boxes of this thrifty Dutch descended settler. The couple had three children, but only one daughter, Elizabeth, lived to maturity and she turned out to be quite a marrying lady. By 1796 she was twice a widow with two sons of her own and seven step children. She returned from Staten Island to the Bounty of her father's home. This sudden increase in the family necessitated more room and Francis Nicoll thereupon extended to the south of the original home and remodeled the whole mansion from top to bottom. The third story was added at this time, and the pitched roof was replaced by a gambrel roof.

Elizabeth Nicoll Sill married for a third time, but her father then ensconced her in a home of her own near the Cedar Hill schoolhouse (the present Town of Bethlehem Historical Center) and supported her until his death in 1817, whereupon he left his entire estate to his two grandsons (Elizabeth's two sons by Capt. Richard Sill, her first husband). John Sill received the southern half of the estate and the northern half with the home and graveyard went to William Nicoll Sill.

William Sill was a quiet man, content to stay at home on his acres. He did venture to Connecticut however, to marry Margaret Mather of that place. He and Margaret had many children and therein lies the story of the disintegration of the family estate. The eldest son, Rensselaer Nicoll Sill, entered into a partnership with a young man from Brooklyn to conduct a merchandise and shipping enterprise. The fathers of the two young men agreed verbally to finance the affair and Mr. Sill soon found himself endorser for many obligations without the elder Mr. Thorne's guarantee and when these notes became due he was unable to take care of them, his assets being entirely in land. William Sill was humiliated by this cloud upon his reputation and he sold all his outside property and even some of the home estate. He died two years later in broken health. His wife tried throughout the remainder of her twenty-two years of life to clear up the debts. In 1864 one of her other sons, John Sill moved permanently into the old house at Bethlehem and she lived with him until she passed away in 1866. John lived there until 1875 when family occupancy of the home ended. They continued to own the property until 1883, although there were many struggles to keep it in the family. They sold off the house and remaining acres at this time and many of the deeds given after this period are of interest.

Such names appear as Myers, Schoonmaker, Vanderzee, Vanderpoel, Westervelt, Joslin, Baker and Learned, all now familiar in the neighborhood. The graveyard was deeded by Margaret M. Sill to the Bethlehem Reformed Church in 1852 with a perpetual right of way. All the family is buried here from Rensselaer Nicoll through William Nicoll Sill. There are eight Revolutionary War veterans buried here, as well as "Old Caesar," the family retainer.

During the generations of family ownership, we see the original estate of 1300 acres completely broken up, leaving only the old house to show the history of the happy families born here, living their entire lives under its roof, and being buried in the graveyard in its shadow.

(This article is taken from a history of Bethlehem House compiled by Harry C. Dinmore, Jr. of Andover, Mass. Much of the information is from recollections of Dunkin H. Sill, one of the last of the family to live in the old home, from Miss Margaret Sill of Northampton, Mass. and from records in the Albany County Clerk's Office and the Surrogate's Office.)

Scouts Go Nuts

Be on the look-out come November 14 for Brownies and Girl Scouts in Clarksville, Delmar and Slingerlands who will be out selling peanuts and peanut crunch.

Don't let the package of Girl Scout dry roasted peanuts fool you — it may look like a small box, but it is vacuum packed and as soon as it's opened, the package expands. The real old-fashioned peanut crunch is also vacuum packed in an attractive can with plastic lid for re-closing. Both the peanuts and candy are priced at $1 with the proceeds going to the Hudson Valley Council Camp Construction Fund.

Here is an excellent opportunity to stock up on nuts and candy for both Thanksgiving and Christmas. They would also make excellent gift items. Besides enjoying some delicious peanuts or candy, you would be helping the local scouting camp fund.

Guys and Dolls

On November 19, 20 and 21, the senior class of Bethlehem Central High School will recreate David Runyon's unusual characters as they present the musical "Guys and Dolls."

There is Nathan Detroit (played by Scott Wolfe), who must have one thousand dollars in order to rent a place in which to hold his floating crap game. Being a gambler, he can, of course, find no better way to get the money than by making a bet. He places his bet with another big-time gambler, Sky Masterson (Larry Eddo); if Sky cannot get a date with the sergeant of a Salvation Army mission, he must pay one thousand dollars to Nathan.

To get a date with the mission leader, Miss Sarah (Linda Illingworth), Sky poses as a repentant sinner, and he even promises to fill the mission's next prayer meeting with sinners. Sergeant Sarah's grandfather (Cliff Hender) considers this a great opportunity. The mission had been failing and was on the verge of being closed down. The General of the mission — prim, stern Gatilda B. Cartwright (Polly Clayton) was to be present at the meeting and if only Sarah would accept the date with Sky, the mission could be saved. Because certainly a roomful of sinners would prove that the mission is accomplishing its goals — saving souls.

In the meantime the crap game goes on — much to the dismay of Nathan's fiancée of fourteen years, Miss Adelaide (played by Rachel Follett). Adelaide's plans for marriage have been constantly thwarted by Nathan's crap games and she attributes a nasal condition to her disappointing romantic life. However, she would never think of leaving Nathan.

The case is being directed by Mr. Sydney Turner, Mr. Joseph Farrell and Mr. Richard Feldman, in acting, singing and dancing, respectively. They are also being aided by the three stage managers: Becky Hewitt, Janet Primomo and Krista Lane, members of the senior class.

Curtain time for the three performances is 8:15 P.M. Tickets are available at Grover's and Mullen's for the price of $1.00 for students, $1.50 for adults and $2.00 for reserved seats.

At Brown

Brown University, the seventh oldest college in the country, has accepted 804 freshman for the coming year.

The class of 1974 was selected from 6,858 applicants and represents 48 states, the District of Columbia, and 13 foreign countries.

The new students at Brown include: Steven Francis Wojtal, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Joseph Wojtal of 19 Harding Avenue, Delmar. A graduate of Bethlehem Central High School, he is a candidate for a Sc. B. degree in Biology.

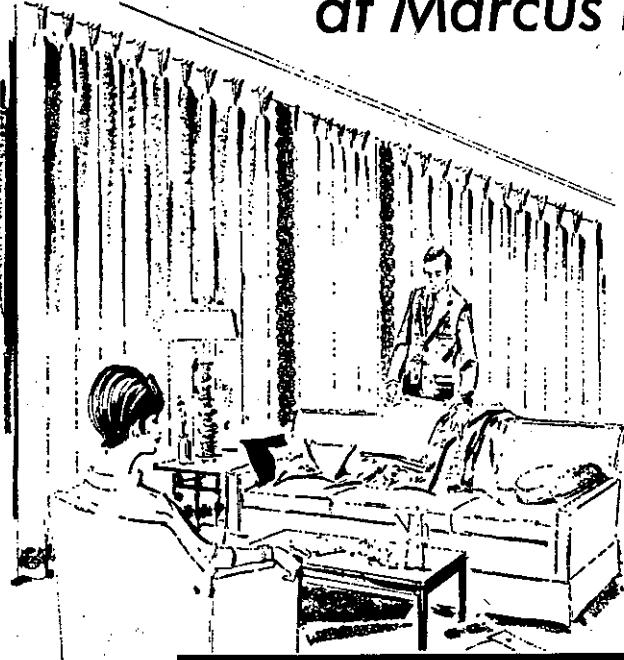

Meeting

William J. Morris showing slides on Japan will be the entertainment after the meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Elsmere Fire Co. A. The meeting will get underway at 8 P.M., Thursday, November 12, at the firehall with Mrs. Paul Kleinke presiding.

New Here

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Jensen of 19 St. Clair Drive, Delmar, announce the birth of their second child, a son, Steven Frederick, born September 21, at Albany Medical Center, Albany. Steven is the brother of Jeffrey Paul.

Know Your Soil

Color slides showing land and water misuse and abuse aroused feelings of concern, frustration, and anger in the people attending the Bethlehem Environmental Improvement Association meeting on October 28. The land and water problems covered by the slides ranged from those of the individual home owner and builder and of the land developer to those of highway departments and shopping mail developers. Slides of how property owners utilized the natural features of the land to their fullest advantage were also shown.

Rarely is the misuse or abuse of land and water deliberate. Most often it results from lack of information about soil and terrain prior to development.

Distributing information on the nature of the soil and advising people on prevention or correction of land problems is the job of our guest lecturer, Frank Leavitt of Delmar, Soil Conservationist with the U.S. Soil Conservation Service working with the Albany County Soil and water conservation District. The color slides and aerial photographs supplemented Mr. Leavitt's lecture.

Mr. Leavitt made some specific suggestions to stop land and water abuse. Chemical fertilizer eventually pollutes our water. However, it is necessary for the farmer to fertilize in order to produce the crop yields which our increasing population demands for food. Alternatives to chemical fertilizers for the farmer for large acreage application are not immediately seen. Due to the economics, the farmer rarely over-fertilizes. However, the homeowner also fertilizes in order to obtain a lush, green lawn. And, unfortunately, in many cases, he does over-fertilize, thereby unnecessarily increasing water pollution. An average acre, either grass farmland or lawn, requires about 300 pounds of fertilizer. About 8-10 average-size suburban lawns equal an acre.

Bethlehem is surrounded by a soil identified as Hudson-Rhinebeck which presents building hazards, as evidenced by occasional landslides. Knowledge of this soil and its limitations is important. Get information and advice about your soil and terrain before building. Besides technical guidance, the soil conservation service offers many pamphlets; one in particular is entitled KNOW THE SOIL YOU BUILD ON.

The Soil Conservation Service in cooperation with the soil and water conservation district welcomes inquiries from individuals, groups, town committees, and commercial developers seeking knowledge and help with land usage problems. The office is at 337 Delaware Avenue, Delmar, and is located over Sam Solfe's Auto Parts.

Aerial photos of Bethlehem taken in 1940, 1952 and 1960, attracted much attention. Members of the Association tried to spot their own home or apartment building and were amazed at the increased population density over the 20-year period.

An enthusiastic exchange of views and inquiries followed Mr. Leavitt's presentation.

Five questions for community thought and discussion were raised: Should agricultural land be sold for home or commercial development? What is the cumulative result of soil washing into area streams? How can the eroding of pasture land be stopped? What will hillsides be used for when they are no longer pasture land? As each year goes by our open land changes. Which change will be most beneficial to our area: brushland, young woods or forest?

These are questions with no fast, easy answers. Nor will the answer remain the same each time the same question is raised. But these are questions which will remain with us as Bethlehem develops.

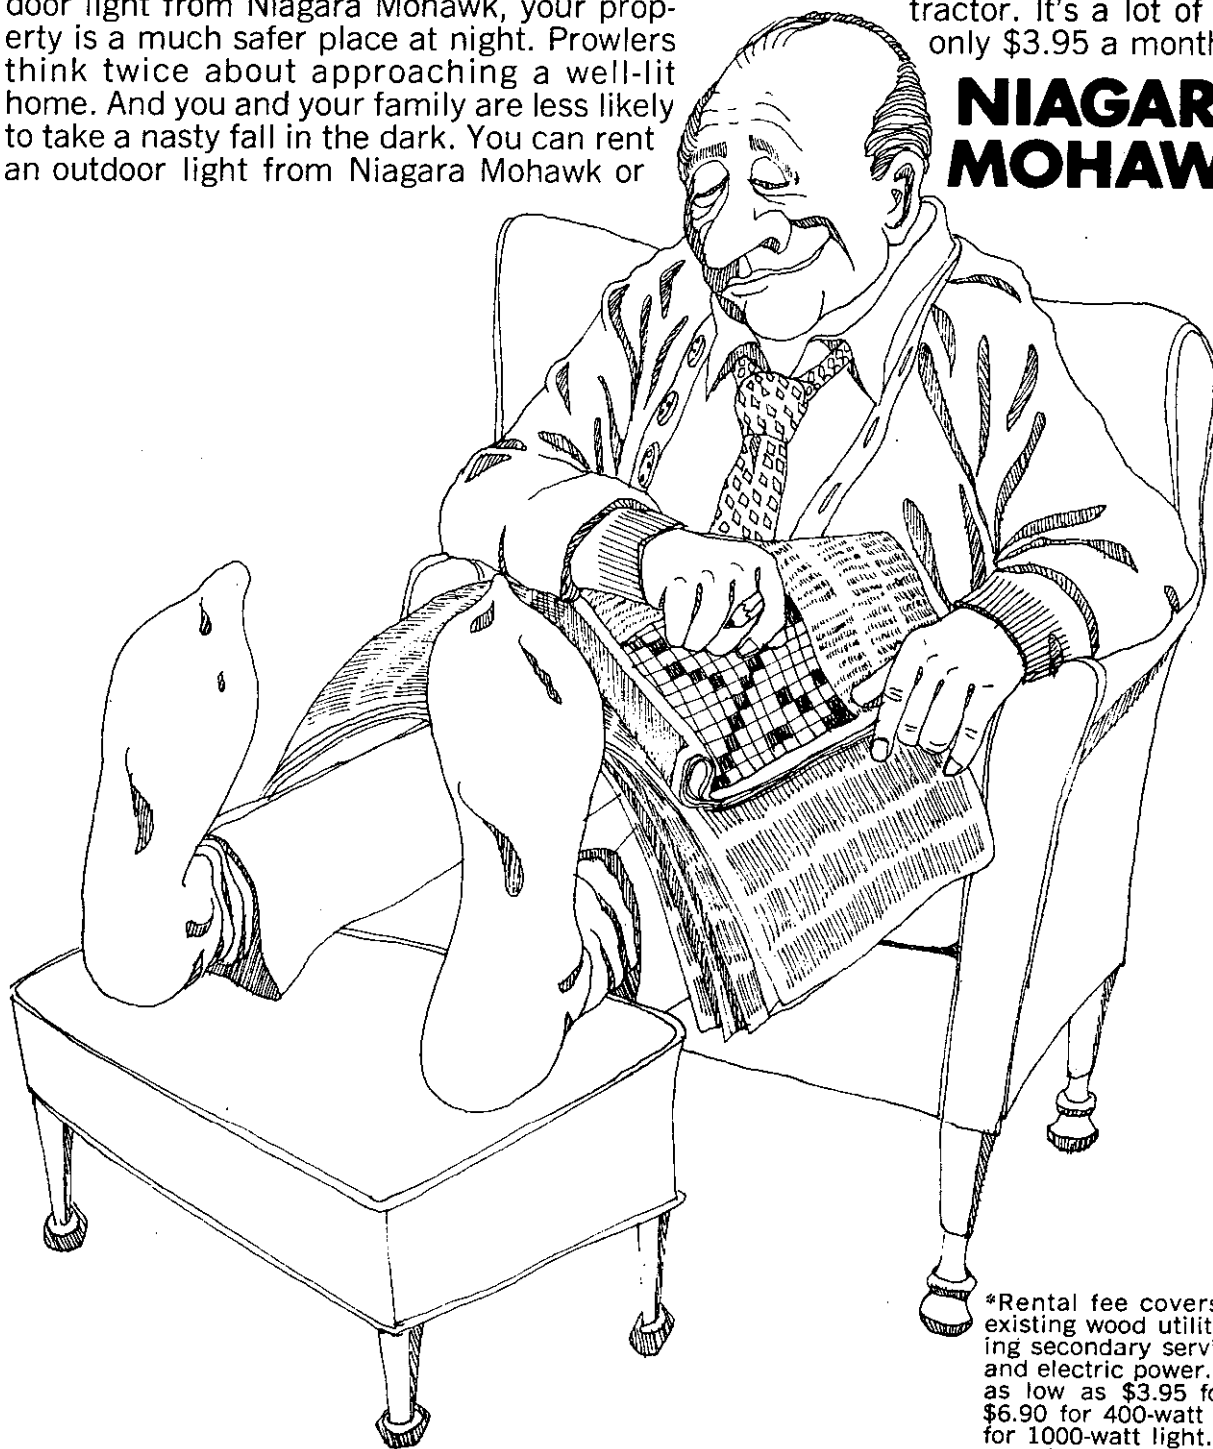

Russell Miller, President of BEIA, was pleased to present the 1970 Community Beautification

Camera Club News

Dr. Edgar M. Reilly, Jr., Curator of Zoology, at the New York State Museum will present the program at the Nov. 10 meeting of Delmar Camera Club to be held 8 P.M. at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Elsmere.

In 1967 Dr. Reilly was co-leader of a group who travelled to Asia to study nature. However, he has side-tracked from his vocational work to bring us a color slide program covering Moscow, Siberia, India, Ceylon, Thailand and Japan.

As might be expected of a man so engrossed in nature and conservation Dr. Reilly lists among his hobbies art, camping, hunting, travelling and photography.

His college years were interrupted by the war. He served in the U.S. Air Force first as an enlisted man in Intelligence and then as an Intelligence Officer and Jungle Survival Officer in Latin America. In 1946 he returned to Cornell where he obtained his B.S. and later his Ph.D. in Ornithology, Ichthyology, Stratigraphy and Paleontology.

Recently McGraw-Hill published Dr. Reilly's "Audubon Illustrated Handbook of American Birds." He has also written many articles on wildlife and conservation in the N.Y. Conservationist magazine, and has been consulting editor for a number of books on nature and science.

The sometimes belittled "Instamatic" was the camera used by Dr. Reilly for the slides he will show. It will be interesting to see the results at the hands of an expert.

The meeting is open to the public and everyone is welcome.

Members of Delmar Camera Club are reminded to bring with them prints and slides for the Hudson Mohawk Competition. Closing data for entries is November 10.

FISH Made It!

Sunday, November 1, Tri-Village residents gave themselves a new service. According to the latest count two hundred and forty-nine service volunteers guided by a steering committee numbering thirty brought four months of planning to fruition by starting the FISH Program. The Ghosts and Goblins along with the witches and Trick or Treaters were leaving the scene at midnight as the FISH volunteers went into action. The Telephone volunteer of the day now called TVD was ready to receive calls at the FISH number: 439-3587. On the alert to serve the calls received by the TVD were food, sitting for all ages and transportation volunteers. The next issue of the Spotlight will report the accomplishments of the volunteers among whom are included one mother and son team and nineteen husband and wife teams.

Mrs. Nancy Vail and Miss Marion M. Carey, Co-Chairmen for the FISH Project, say Thank you to each and everyone of the many Tri-Village residents who by their labor, their encouragement, their financial support and their future service have insured this project for the Tri-Villages.

Unit Pricing

The Executive Committee of the New York State Food Merchants Association has endorsed the principle of unit pricing in an effort to help create a state-wide law that will "make sense to everyone."

The Committee's resolution was followed by letters to State officials offering the "experience and expertise" of NYSFMA members in drafting a law that will provide the fullest benefits of unit pricing at the lowest possible cost commensurate with practical retailing operations.

Referring to the food industry's opposition to previous "unrealistic" unit pricing proposals at the local community level, the resolution stated that "recent studies have shown that consumers like it — and our members are in the business of satisfying custo-

The Committee urged a state-wide law to provide uniformity for both consumers and retailers throughout the State, eliminating the confusion that would result from numerous local ordinances.

It further recommended consideration of exceptions for independent store operators (conceivably those without computers) and for products sold in standard-sized packages.

In letters to Governor Rockefeller, Consumer Protection Chairman Betty Furness, Agriculture and Markets Commissioner Donald J. Wickham and legislative leaders, William G. Hildebrand, executive director of NYS-FMA said:

The high volume, low margin super market business depends upon satisfied customers on a day-in, day-out basis, 52 weeks a year. If our customers want unit pricing, we want to find a way to give it to them."

Mr. Hildebrand also said that the Ohio study was made in a large chain operating very high volume stores — conditions that are not typical of many New York food store operations. "The low costs reported in Ohio will increase in at least direct proportion in smaller chains and lower volume stores," Hildebrand declared.

"This means that a store doing only $600,000 volume per year with an electronic computer available - might well face costs equal to nearly half its new profit," he continued.

Stressing the need for special consideration of small store problems, Hildebrand cited the new Massachusetts law which exempts "Mom and Pop" operations.

"Any store without a computer will be unable to keep up with ordinary price changes," he concluded.

Significant conclusions drawn from the Ohio study included:

Despite the four month offering, less than half the people were aware of the new service; those who were aware were mainly young, better educated and white;

Unit pricing caused no significant changes in buying habits. Customers were likely to "trade up" to better products as often as they "traded down";

Shoppers were grateful for the retailer's willingness to provide the additional information; it reduced confusion.

NYSMA members will have opportunities to discuss the subject fully at the annual membership meeting Sunday afternoon, October 25 and the Consumer Education business session, Wednesday morning, October 28. Both sessions will come during the 70th Annual Convention of the State Association, October 25 through 29, at the Grossinger Hotel and Country Club.

Answers about.....

BETHLEHEM CENTRAL Schools

By Ann Treadway
Director of Public Information
Bethlehem Central Schools

(Do you have a question about some policy or procedure — or future plan — of the Bethlehem Central Schools? Perhaps you have a complaint that can be cleared up. Please call Mrs. Treadway weekday mornings at 439-4921, Ext. 261 or 267, or address written queries to her at the High School.)

QUESTION: Why does the Bethlehem Central district spend more money on transportation than other area school districts?

ANSWER: This is not a known fact. Actually, it is impossible at this time to compare accurately the expenditures of area school districts, because they all classify expenditures in different ways. (For example, purchase of new buses would be a cash outlay in some districts and a bond note in others.)

The Bethlehem Board of Education is encouraging BOCES (Board of Cooperative Educational Services) to make a study of the financial classifications used in the school district it incorporates, so that some valid comparisons might be possible.

Also, four doctoral students at the State University in Albany are conducting a study of the operations of our school district during this school year. Their study will include an analysis of our financial structure, and the board expects to gain some insight from their findings.

QUESTION: Why haven't children at the Clarksville School been allowed to use the playground equipment this fall?

ANSWER: The swings, slides, jungle gyms etc. have been unsafe for use because this year's severe winter caused them to heave up from the ground. The school maintenance crew has now dismantled all the equipment, and is in the process of recementing it. Bill Hermance, school district facilities director, expects the job to be done within the next few weeks.

QUESTION: Is school enrollment increasing at a fast rate?

ANSWER: The Population Forecase sub-committee of the Citizens' Advisory Committee predicted we would have 100 additional pupils in district schools this fall. Instead, we have only 42. The enrollment increase was also less than predicted for last year.

Another claim to male superiority is on shakey ground.

Results of a nationwide test show that men may not be better drivers than women after all.

In fact the study showed girls reacted slightly better in four simulated traffic emergencies than their male counterparts.

The teenagers, members of driver education classes using the Aetna Life & Casualty Drivotrainer system, had to cope with an impending head-on collision, a near sideswipe, brake failure and a tire blowout.

Students using the Drivotrainer system sit in small model cars fully equipped like real automobiles. The "drivers" respond to changing traffic conditions seen in full-color, sound film.

Shown the Aetna Drivotrainer's emergency driving film for the first time, the girls grappled with the crises better than the boys in two out of four situations and tied them in a third.

The percentages of correct responses were:

Tire blowout — girls, 26%; boys, 19%. Sideswipe — girls, 17%; boys, 11%. Head-on — girls, 26%; boys, 27%. Brake failure — girls, 57%; boys, 66%

Although the girls did somewhat better than the boys, neither group scored highly. Overall, more than two out of three reacted incorrectly in the four emergencies.

These statistics emphasize the desperate need to train individuals to handle driving emergencies.

Simulation offers the best way of bringing the highway into the classroom and safety exposing beginning drivers to dangerous but common road situations.

Devices such as the Drivotrainer system give students an opportunity to practice emergency driving maneuvers over and over until they learn the correct responses that will help avoid accidents on real highways. In real life, of course, drivers may never get a "second chance" to handle an impending head-on.

The Drivotrainer's effectiveness in teaching emergency driving techniques was illustrated when the students were exposed to a second blowout later in the film. On the first blowout emergency, 78% of the students handled it wrong. The second time around, 23% — only a third as many — responded incorrectly.

ed for disease control and have been properly nourished are more likely to escape severe winter injury than plants that have lost their leaves due to disease and nutrient deficiency. In any case, all roses, bush, climbers and tree types — should be winter protected.

BUSH ROSES: Now that we have had killing frosts, and while the soil is still pliable, hill your roses now by piling soil 8 to 10 inches high around the canes.

Be sure to take soil from a different spot rather than in the rose bed itself so that roots of the rose plants won't be injured. The Agriculture Division of the Cooperative Extension Association of Albany County states that after mounding the soil around the canes, tie the canes together to keep them from being blown about and loosening the root system.

Inspect the plants frequently to be sure the soil is not washed away before the ground freezes, so that the bush will not be injured. The mounding method is usually effective if the temperature does not go below zero. With colder weather it is necessary to pile hay, straw, or similar material over the mounded canes; held in place by a few shovelfuls of soil. Remove covering materials in spring as soon as danger of severe frost has passed. Remove the soil mound carefully to avoid breaking off any shoots that may have started to grow beneath it.

CLIMBING ROSES: Climbing roses need protection in areas which the temperature regularly drops below zero.

Dave Reville, Albany Extension Agent, advises to lay the canes on the ground, hold them down with wire pins or notched steaks, and cover them with several inches of soil. Remove the soil in spring after danger of severe frost is past.

TREE ROSES: If you are successful enough to be growing tree roses in Albany County, protect them by covering them with soil. Do this by digging carefully under the roots on one side of the plants until the plants can be pulled over on the ground without breaking all root connections with the soil. Cover the entire plant with several inches of soil. In spring, after the soil thaws and danger of frost is past remove the soil and set the plants upright.

For further information contact the Albany County Cooperative Extension Association, Agricultural Division, Room 209, Federal Building, 441 Broadway, Albany, New York 12207.

Commissioner Diamond said, "These findings are another result of our statewide DDT and mercury monitoring programs. These tests are continuing."

Recently the province of New Brunswick, Canada, announced it had closed the woodcock season there because high concentrations of DDT had been found in birds taken in New Brunswick. It had been feared that birds taken in New York might also have high DDT levels.

This is not the case however. DDT levels in all woodcock analyzed in the New York tests averaged less than 0.27 parts per million (ppm). The tolerance level for DDT in meat set by the FDA is 7 ppm.

Mercury was not detectable in over one-third of the woodcock tested. The mercury levels in the others was below the recommended maximum for food.

"What has happened to the woodcock in New Brunswick," Commissioner Diamond said, "serves to point up the importance of the controls established by this Department — the strictest in the nation — banning ten pesticides, including DDT, and imposing stringent restrictions on the purchase, sale and use of about 60 others."

When in 1963 it was discovered that DDT was causing harm to lake trout reproduction, the Conservation Department abandoned use of DDT and prohibited its use on lands under its jurisdiction in watersheds draining into lake trout waters. The State-wide ban on DDT and certain other pesticides goes into effect on January 1, 1971.

The woodcock season in New York State remains open until November 24.

Fall Fishing

Now that hunting season is in full swing, most New York sportsmen have put away their fishing tackle and taken up gun or bow instead. For those who haven't hung up their tackle, this trend is probably fine, for it means more solitude on their favorite fishing spot. As weather cools in fall, fishing, which may get pretty slow during the heat of summer when the typical vacationer is on the water, begins to pick up.

Improved fishing as the water cools appears to be a paradox, for one would expect reduced feeding as water cools and fish metabolism rate goes down. It may be that as the water cools fish which were in the deeper, harder to fish water move into the shallow water where they are more available to anglers. In some cases there may be considerable movement of fish causing concentrations which offer more productive fishing than when the population is more dispersed.

One example of movement of fish is demonstrated by improved walleye fishing in some rivers in southern New York during frosty fall days when they tend to concentrate below dams. Walleyes marked at this time of year by fishery biologists in southern-tier counties have returned from as far south as mid-Pennsylvania.

 Another example is in Cayuga Lake where smallmouth bass spend the winter down in cracks between rocks in underwater ledges off Flat Rock, south of Taughannock Falls State Park. Before the icy water temperatures send them to bed, the concentration of fish in that area results in good fishing.

Fall trout fishing has not had time to build fishing tradition, for it was only about a dozen years ago that the first extended season was held in Skaneateles Lake, with Cayuga and Seneca subsequently added. The extended Finger Lake season has been changed from time to time, finally permitting fishing for trout in Canadice, Canadagua, Cayuga, Hemlock, Keuka, Owasco, Seneca and Skaneateles Lakes until December 31, except that in Owasco and Skaneateles Lakes the lake trout season closes on October 31.

The reason for the difference in the lake trout season is the marked difference in spawning habits. The Cayuga and Seneca lakers spawn in deepwater during the first three weeks in October. Owasco and Skaneateles trout spawn in shallow water during November and are therefore much more vulnerable to fishing.

The Division of Fish and Wildlife is currently studying the importance of this spawning in maintaining lake trout populations. If it is found that, as in Cayuga, fishing depends on stocked fish with natural spawning making little or no contribution, there would be no need for closing the season during the spawning period.

During warm weather rainbow trout are scattered through the deep cool water at difficult

The Light Touch

By Bob Jackson

The turn of the century was probably made by a teenage driver.

Best reducing exercise: move the head slowly from side to side when offered second helpings.

We've always thought children should be seen and not heard — but the way they look today, we're not so sure . . .

TV announcer: "Before we bring you tonight's news, we'll give you a moment to take a tranquilizer."

Detour: something that lengthens your mileage, diminishes your gas, and strengthens your vocabulary.

Don't detour! Head straight to Delmar Lumber for the latest thing in insulation.

INSULATE before you panel!

Stop in now and pick up new lightweight PANELFOAM polystyrene insulation. Simply lay this 3/4-inch insulating board between your standard furring strips, then panel. You'll stay warm when it's cool, cool when it's hot. Many other uses, too — complete, easy instructions with each package.
