Food Sale

In order to raise funds for activities, the Man and Science Class at BCHS is holding a Bake Sale at Woolworth's, Delaware Plaza, on Saturday, December 19.

Do you remember when a slice of bread was a treat and not just a surface for spreading peanut butter? At this Bake Sale, the items will be homemade, many with unbleached flour which is a good source of Vitamin B. In addition to the bread, there will be homemade muffins, gingerbread men, fruit squares, and many other items that you'll almost never find on sale.

On Trip

Rita Delapp, 32 Fernbank Avenue, Delmar, is winter vacationing in Barbados, the British Island off the coast of Venezuela.

Dear Sir:

My suggestion to your Tri-Village readers is to keep Christ in Christmas greetings: We all could forego the usual card exchange and make contributions to the needy instead. Everyone knows that millions are spent on Christmas Cards that find their way to the paper press. The money could find its way to the people in need, if used for food and clothing.

I think it would be an excellent idea to give care this Christmas

THE SLINGERLANDS COMMUNITY PLAYERS welcome Sandy Hallfors and Bill Hickman, above, to the cast of "The Cactus Flower," their next production. Sandy and Bill, members of Schenectady Civic Playhouse, are appearing with the Slingerlands group as part of a talent exchange program sponsored by the Tri-City Council of Community Theatres. Performances of The Cactus Flower, a riotous comedy, are scheduled for January 22 and 23 in the auditorium of the Bethlehem Senior High School. General admission tickets at $2.50 will go on sale in numerous Tri-Village outlets after January 1. In the meantime, blocks of twenty or more tickets at $2.00 each are available from Mrs. C. M. QUESTION: What training courses are available to our High School pupils who go directly into the job market after graduation from High School?

ANSWER: The Area Occupational Center of BOCES, (Board of Cooperative Educational Services) located at 431 New Karner Rd., offers 12 courses in vocational training. They include: Appliance Repair, Auto Mechanics, Auto Body, Automotive Services, (Small engine repairs) Building trades, Commercial Foods, Cosmetology, Data Processing, Graphic Arts, Home Economics, (multi-occupational) Industrial Electricity, and Machine Shop.

Enrolled in these vocational courses are pupils from the Albany County school districts of Bethlehem Central, Guilderland, South Colonie, Ravena - Coeymans - Selkirk, Shaker and Voorheesville.

At present, there are 47 pupils from Bethlehem Central enrolled in these courses. They attend the Occupational Center halfdays and take state-required courses, such as Social Studies and English, during the rest of each school day at the High School.

In addition to the BOCES occupational training program, the Business Department at the High School prepares pupils to go directly into secretarial and general office jobs.

walls to get them ready to paint. To Pat Courtright, Trudy Jackson and Shirley Hoffman who washed dishes and scrubbed everything else in sight. To Florence Van Wie and Pat Cebry who took carloads of clothes to the laundramat. To Roger Smith who drove from Delmar to give paint advice and to bring paint. To Ruth Kreidler for her shoulder to cry on, and believe me, I used it. To the Van Wie Farm crew who came with wagons to take everything that burned. To Dot Udell who came to bring gifts of Avon Products to ease a little the heartache of loosing everything so dear to two teenage girls. To Grandpa and Pauline who opened their home in the middle of the night. To the two strangers who stopped and offered help and a blanket to keep us warm. To those who offered food, clothing, and money. To our son, Gary, who came to patch the room and any holes that might let in the cold and insisted we come to his home for Thanksgiving Dinner so Mom wouldn't have too much time to think. Last, but not least, our heartfelt thanks to the Onesquethaw Volunteer Firemen, whose chief said he was sorry about the water damage. To the fireman who apologized for having to break a window which they couldn't open and then bought the glass and offered to replace it. To the many people from Clarksville, Onesquethaw, Unionville, Feura Bush, and Delmar who contributed money which is now in excess of $400.00.

I have always believed this community was something special, but now I truly believe it is God's dwelling place. There are so many wonderful neighbors and friends in it.

Willard, who is so-willing to give but finds it so hard to accept, joins me in saying, "Thank you for everything." God love each and every one of you!"

It's Christmas

More than 240-feet of Christmas murals have been painted on the glass windows of Prudential Center by 50 students from four leading art schools. Young artists from the Art Institute of Boston, Butera School of Art, New England School of Art, and Vesper George participated in decorating the 14-foot glass walls that line the North and South Plazas of the Center.

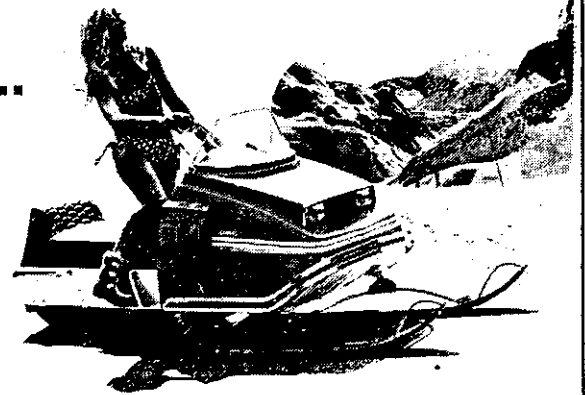

"Caravan," the Art Institute of Boston's 84-foot mural, portrays ten camels in different stances illustrating the rhythm of their movement. Each camel is ornately saddled, the fine-line details of which were done by scratching paint off the glass.

At the far right side of the mural, the figures of Mary and Joseph and the three Wise Men await the camels' arrival. The figures are clothed in robes of deep purple, blue and green, detailed using the same paint removal technique.

The Butera's School of Art's "The Twelve Days of Christmas," uses a panel to illustrate each verse of the traditional carol. Each participating student was assigned to paint two 7-foot by 14 foot panels. A wide range of colors and extensive use of intricate patterns are dominant in the mural.

Students found this project particularly applicable to their studies, as Butera is known as the only school in the East specializing in mural and sign paint-ti poem of the same name which expresses the search for the real meanings of Christmas.

The New England School of Art's mural portrays the world encircled by the peace symbol. Christ and Mother Earth are shown in bright reds, yellows and greens. The students accented their figures by drawing fine lines of black paint over large areas of color.

An abstract interpretation of Christmas was painted by three students from Vesper George. "Prelude," the title of their mural, illustrates winter as being the prelude to spring. The contemplation theme is described as motion in anticipation of reincarnation.

The 56-foot long mural is an interlacing running stripe painted in soft pink and yellow. The entire mural was sketched using masking tape and then painted entirely with rollers.

The murals are part of Prudential Center's "Christmas Pageant '70," which features daily organ concerts by John Kiley, appearing through the courtesy of Hammond Organ of Boston, at 11:30 A.M. and 4:30 P.M.; and Frosty The Snowman. Seven daily concerts by the New England Conservatory of Music began yesterday and will highlight the Christmas activities. The concerts will be held in the Tower Lobby at 6:00 P.M. on weekdays and 3:00 P.M. on weekends.

New Look

When the citizens of the town of Bethlehem enjoy the Bethlehem scene at the Town Hall Parking Lot this year, they will undoubtedly note that the figures have a fresh new look. This will be due to the efforts of students at Bethlehem Central High School.

Early in November the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce directed Richard Haverly, Robert Sager, and William Weber to arrange for the refurbishing job. Many of the figures were re-cut and new base stands were made in the industrial arts classes of Lorenzo Benati and Robert Peters. The industrial arts students who worked on the project were: Anthony Scott, Randy Conger, Robert Deming, John Gammel, Anthony DiLorenzo, Glenn Hammond, Glenn Hotaling, Donald Webster, Timothy McCaffery and Mary Ellen Murphy.

When this was completed, the figures were turned over to the Distributive Education classes of Robert A. Pierson. Diane Hobbs has served as the chairman of the committee to paint and decorate the figures. She was assisted by Susan Bradley, Carol Dottino, Cathy Parks, Vickie

The emergency dime. It's everything a lost kid needs to get home.

It's also something a worried parent needs to relax.
It's a folder that has a space for a dime on one side.
And space for your child's name, address, and phone number on the other side.

So just in case he's late, gets lost, or needs a dime to phone you in an emergency, he can. Or somebody can get in touch with you for him.

And we've made it easy for your child to have one.

Because we're supplying it free of charge.

To get one for each of your children, all you do is call your local telephone business office. Or write:
Child Return Kit, New York Telephone, 140 West Street, Room 1375, New York, N.Y. 10007.

We'll supply the folder. And you supply the dime.

But don't forget to remind your child not to spend his emergency dime on an emergency like soda.

Do-it-Yourself

Addressing the Board of Directors and the staff of the Albany Area Chapter of the American Red Cross at its mid-year meeting on December 2nd, Reverend Howard Hubbard, Executive Director of Providence House, stated, "that too often citizens and communities are leaving the solution of common problems either to the experts or doing nothing at all." He pointed out that the "do-it-yourself" philosophy of the Red Cross is well adapted to overcome this problem.

Father Hubbard, a Red Cross disaster volunteer and board member himself, cited, the Disaster, Water Safety, First Aid, Blood and Friendly Visitor programs of the Red Cross as activities that invite neighborhood citizen participating. He urged that youth be involved, indicating that many young people turn to drugs and other "cop-outs" because they do not feel related or useful. He praised last summer Lincoln Pool swimming program because it was inter-racial and "total community" as to neighborhoods and participants. He advocated that the Red Cross work harder to increase the number of persons involved in its services.

At the same meeting J. Spencer Standish, Chapter Chairman, gave a mid-year report on the progress of all Red Cross programs.

He also, awarded a Certificate of Appreciation to William L. Pfeiffer for the "Outstanding Leadership and Achievement in the 1971 United Fund-Red Cross Joint Appeal." Mr. Pfeiffer, President of the Albany Savings Bank and member of the board of directors of the Albany Area Chapter, headed the campaign which raised $2,187,899 for the United Fund-Red Cross Joint Appeal.

Use Sign Language

Shoplifters are looking forward to Christmas almost as much as children, in anticipation of a record holiday haul this year. Based on best information available, Pinkerton's, Inc. estimates nearly $600 million in merchandise will be taken from counters and displays during the traditional pre-Christmas buying spree.

"Unfortunately, merchants feel it is their obligation to display great quantities of every item in the store," said Edward A. Williams, manager of the company's Albany office. "That attitude creates the ideal situation for shoplifters whom we estimate as one of every 10 customers who jam stores during the Christmas rush."

To combat shoplifting, which has risen an alarming 174 per cent in the past decade, Pinkerton's today urged retailers in the Albany area to take advantage of "Sign Language" to protect important profits. "It's merely a combination of common sense and pre-planning in readying for the Christmas season," Williams said.

The security executive explained the primary emphasis of the firm's "Sign Language" is the conspicuous posting of signs throughout stores stating that shoplifters will be prosecuted. "We have found that these signs are often sufficient deterrents for would be shoplifters," Williams said.

The signs should state management's right to inspect all packages, and list the penalties for shoplifting offenses. "The signs indicate that not only is the store willing to prosecute, but that there are probably undercover security personnel on duty to detect offenders," he said.

Williams said another type of "sign" vital to the prevention of shoplifting is the pre-arranged signal between employees and security personnel concerning suspicious customers. "Sales personnel, whether full-time or seasonal, must be made aware of the urgency of the shoplifting problem," he advised. "Their cooperation can assist greatly in the detection and apprehension of shoplifters."

Pinkerton's recommends that sales people be instructed to watch for the "signs" of a shoplifter; the "intoxicated" man who "accidentally" pockets small items; the unseasonably-dressed woman whose maxicoat or umbrella may contain items lifted from displays; the teen-age boy who engages a clerk in conversation while his companion browses; the girl who takes numerous articles of clothing into the dressing room - she may leave the store wearing more than one outfit.

According to the security firm, some "signs" of an alert retailer are:

- He keeps counters at a reasonable height (not exceeding five feet) so they do not obstruct employees' view of the store;
- He does not stack merchandise above eye level;
- He requires all bags to be sealed if customer purchases are made in several locations;
- He displays high-cost, easily pilfered items in view of sales counters;
- He uses one-way or convex mirrors to observe the sales floor.

To aid retailers in establishing a good preventative program against all types of thievery, including bad checks, fraudulent charging, false claims and collusion, Pinkerton's has compiled a new checklist of precautions that can be used year-round to prevent profit losses. Copies of the checklist, which includes recommendations to prevent shoplifting, are available free from Pinkerton's, Inc., 100 Church Street, New York, New York 10007.

Post Office Helps

The fight to defeat muscular dystrophy is receiving valuable assistance from the United States Post Office Department. Mr. Paul O'Keefe, campaign chairman of "The March Against Muscular Dystrophy" in Albany, announced recently that the Department has for the 17th consecutive year, authorized the public to use the simple address, "MDAA, Inc., c/o Local Postmaster," in sending contributions to Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America.

"We consider the privilege of using this brief address form vitally important," Mr. O'Keefe said, "because we've learned from experienced that it adds substantially to the funds we collect from our door-to-door campaign."

Mr. O'Keefe noted that the Association's annual appeal is now taking place locally. "No matter how hard we try," he said, "it's just impossible for our volunteers to visit every home in our community. Therefore, we hope that anyone who hasn't been reached personally will take advantage of the privilege accorded us by the Post Office to send to his contribution.

"MDAA is profoundly grateful to the Department's employees," Mr. O'Keefe said. "In 1953, just three years after MDAA came into existence, it was the Letter Carriers who conducted the first nationwide campaign on our behalf.

Not only did they raise urgently-needed funds, but they helped alert the American people to the problem imposed by dystrophy and related neuromuscular disease."

MDAA and the National Association of Letter Carriers have developed a solid relationship over the years. NALC President James H. Rademacher serves as an MDAA Board Member, while Mrs. Robert Burrows, President of the Letter Carriers' Ladies Auxiliary, holds the post of MDAA Vice President.

Following a meeting recently of the Board of Directors of National Commercial Bank and Trust Company, Lester W. Herzog, Jr., President, announced that the Board has declared a dividend of 55¢ per share payable on January 15 to shareholders of record on December 24, 1970. This represents an increase in the regular quarterly dividend of 5¢.

The Board also recommended, Mr. Herzog said, a 10% stock dividend, payment of which is subject to the approval of the Comptroller of the Currency and of the Bank's shareholders, who will be asked to vote their approval at the next annual meeting of shareholders, on February 19, 1971.

Good Samaritan

All of us have read the Biblical parable of the good Samaritan who found a man who had been robbed, beaten and left by the side of the road. Several people saw him lying there, but they "passed by on the other side." But the Samaritan, a good neighbor, "brought him to an inn, and took care of him."

Today there are good Samaritans — in big cities as well as small towns — who will be a neighbor to a stranger. Some of them wear Salvation Army uniforms.

THE SPOTLIGHT

A young man from the South had finished his Job Corps training and stopped off in a large city on his way home to visit relatives. He didn't know their exact address. A taxi took him to the section of town where his relatives lived. It was a rough neighborhood with a large population of drug addicts. Several of them robbed him of the money he had saved - $200 - and even took his shoes.

A policeman found him, and although it was very late at night, took him to the Salvation Army. The woman officer opened the door to them. She let the young man place a long distance call to his home; he got the address and phone number of his relatives. They lived just a few block away, and came and got him and took him in for the night. The following day the officer helped to arrange bus transportation home for the young man who had fallen among thieves.

New Bus Route

Albany Medical Center Hospital is the stopping place for a new bus route - its own.

Dr. Thomas L. Hawkins, Jr., Executive Vice President and Director of the Hospital, has announced the purchase of two used school buses which, beginning next week, will shuttle between the hospital and a new 340-car employee parking lot on Notre Dame Dr., west of the State Health Dept. building on Holland Ave.

The new lot was opened this week to offset the loss of parking space caused by construction work in progress at the Medical Center. The lot is located about 100 yards from the main entrance to the hospital.

With these shuttle buses, we believe our new lot will be more convenient for employee parking, opening up our adjacent lots for parking by patients and their visitors," said Dr. Hawkins.

The Medical Center's parking lots are most congested in the afternoon until about 4 P.M. Dr. Hawkins suggested that visitors wait until after that hour to call on patients.

Construction projects costing some $60,000,000 are now in progress at Albany Medical Center. These projects - additions to the hospital and Albany Medical College plus a new state psychiatric center - have temporarily eliminated a substantial number of parking spaces at the Medical Center, and led the hospital to build a new lot for employee use.

Looking ahead to future parking needs, a multi-level parking facility will be built near the Medical Center in the near future.

Youth Camp

Nestled amid a lofty plantation of red pine stands the Edward R. Cass Youth Camp, a residential treatment center for troubled youths. The camp is located on approximately 8,000 acres of state land three miles west of the village of Rensselaerville about 25 miles from the tri-village area.

When it was opened in March, 1962, the first of its kind in the state, it was described as "a new and imaginative approach to the problem of youth delinquency which would give troubled youngsters a chance to live and work in a wholesome environment, to learn useful skills, and to readjust their outlook on life."

The youth camp provides a supervised residential setting for 60 boys from the ages of 15 to 17 who evidenced a need for placement in an outdoor setting stressing group living, counseling and the development of productive work habits. Considerable trust is placed in each youth and they are all treated as worthwhile individuals. The absence of walls, fences, guards and other restrictive measures provides a permissive open setting and emphasizes each boy's responsibility for himself and his actions. Here, contrary to many other juvenile in-

The youths are admitted to the camp upon referral by the courts as a condition of probation, or voluntarily, upon referral by duly authorized public or private agencies with the consent of their parents. Youths come from many upstate areas as well as metropolitan New York City.

The program consists of group and individual counseling, a supervised program in forestry work, academic and vocational instruction, religious guidance and recreational activities. Each boy is assigned to one of five crews and most of his time is spent with the members of this crew. The boys are encouraged and the program is structured toward development of intense crew spirit stressing the positives of the group process. A counselor and a work supervisor are assigned to each crew.

The boys participate in group counseling sessions. These sessions take the form of small dis-discussion groups and are conducted under the skillful guidance of the counselor to develop insight and wholesome attitudes and behavior and to aid youths in coping with problems and seeking constructive solutions. Youths offer criticism to help each other achieve a better adjustment. No member is allowed to isolate himself with his problems. The counseling sessions also help the boys learn to accept and live harmoniously with others. The counselor is available for individual coun-

In rustic outdoor surroundings the youths perform vigorous forestry work projects under the supervision of the New York State Conservation Department improving forest lands. They are involved in thinning, pruning and planting trees, cutting fire trails, and working on game projects which is evident to many area hunters. Presently a group of youths are working at the New York State campus site helping to maintain and improve the site. Other youths perform kitchen duties or work around the camp helping to maintain the buildings and grounds.

The camp offers a woodworking shop where special vocational instruction in industrial woodworking, painting and maintenance is given. At present the camp is involved in an experimental program of vocational education in cooperation with the Board of Cooperative Educational Services' Vocational School in Albany. The youths are learning auto mechanics repair, auto body repair, small appliance repair and food services.

The principle behind the open rehabilitation process is the concept of convincing youths that they possess worth and potential taking the form of integrating them as often as possible with the general public rather than isolating them. This has been implemented through community-camp athletic leagues with the village of Rensselaerville, attending movies in the village of Middleburgh, bowling in Delmar, local shopping trips to the Tri-Village areas, and attending community functions, such as, the Slingerlands Community Players presentations.

The Community Church of Voorheesville has sponsored a voluntary program for the youths in the past several years. With the cooperation of Reverend Taylor, a group of volunteers work with the youths one evening a week instructing them in art, drama, guitar, etc.

The Camp Cass youths have recently formed a drum corps and hope to be able to participate in more community activities. They will be performing for the first time Monday evening, December 15th, at the Colonie Shopping Center. They will again display their talents before the staff, their families and friends, and the other youths at the Christmas dinner for the youths at the camp this year.

The superintendent of Camp Cass, M. Robert Rivenburgh, takes great pride in the accomplishments of these youths. "You can see a tremendous change in

Cast Chosen

The Albany Civic Theater announced the selection of a cast for its upcoming production of the Woody Allen Broadway hit, "Don't Drink the Water."

The situation comedy will star Arthur Ginsberg as Walter Hollander, a caterer from Newark, New Jersey, who along with his wife and daughter (to be played by Maggie Nolan and Susan Arnold) are forced to take refuge in the U.S. embassy in a Communist Country.

The Hollanders are the consummate American tourists who have seen taking photographs in front of a top secret military installation and are thought to be spies.

Also in the embassy is Axel Magee, played by David Childs, the incompetent foreign service officer son of the present ambassador, and who is in charge of the embassy while his father is in Washington.

Other key members of the cast are Gary Aldrich, who is cast as Kilroy, a coolly efficient and possibly haughty embassy first secretary; Wayne Miller as Father Drobney, a priest who has had asylum in the building for six years and has a yen for magic tricks; Mike Steese as the embassy's high-strung continental chef; and Nick Toscano as Krojack, the head of the Communist secret police.

Others selected for supporting roles in the play were Joe Gagen, Nancy Eliot, John Kearney, Tom Roland, Dick Ostrander, and Nancy Benson.

The three-act play will be directed by Mrs. Mimi Scott and will open January 25 and close February 7. Tickets are available by calling the Albany Civic Theater at 462-1297.

NEW LOOK in electric substations is provided by Niagara Mohawk Power Corporation's Pine Bush station on Karner Road, just off Western Avenue, a few miles west of Albany. Painted a light green, and screened by dozens of tree plantings, the "low-profile" structure was designed to blend into the surrounding areas. The new station, completed this fall, will help supply the rapidly growing residential area along State Farm Road, Western Avenue, and the newly opened Pine Bush section. It also provides a backup power supply to the New York Power Pool Control Center in Guilderland. The station is served by 115,000-volt transmission lines strung on esthetically designed towers.

Safety Certificates by passing the course required for solo operation by members of their age group. This was an increase of 80% over the previous year and is the greatest number of certificates earned any year since the safety course was inaugurated under the NYS Navigation Law in 1959.

The effectiveness of this program of instruction is attested by the fact that not one of the first 100,000 youngsters to earn their certificates has been involved in a boating accident which resulted in serious injury or a fatality.

Classes for the young boatmen were conducted in every country by 1,853 volunteer instructors. The materials for the course, student's manual and work book and all instructors material are provided without charge by Parks and Recreation.

Almost Ready

With the first snow of the season on 4,867 foot Whiteface Mountain in the Wilmington - Lake Placid region, snowmaking equipment has been removed from the mothballs and tested, ready to build up a skiing base as soon as weather conditions permit. Packing and conditioning equipment is also dusted off, ready for action.

Even if more natural snow doesn't come soon, the big Adirondack mountain ski center is zeroing in on December 12 or 19 for its 1970-71 ski season opening date.

At North Creek, Gore Mountain Ski Center's eight lifts, including the only gondola in the state, are painted and polished for the coming season. Notably new at Gore this season is the initiation of the Head Way method of ski instruction, sometimes known as GLM. In co-operation with the Head Ski Company, the Head Way method will be available in the Gore Ski School, directed by Ray Allard. Starting beginners on three-foot skis, the Head Way method moves them up to easy stages to full length skis in a five-day program. Parallel skiing is the key-note all the way, eliminating the snowplow and stem-christie steps

Work at Belleayre, high in the Catskills west of Kingston, is proceeding rapidly on installation of snow making equipment. One reservoir has been constructed, pipelines have been laid, and electrical service installed. Initial phase of the snowmaking will be ten "airless" guns on the novice T-bar area this season. Expansion of the system to the lower novice area is planned for the 1971-72 season. The whole ski industry will be watching the performance of the "airless" guns, which could reduce the cost of snowmaking considerably.

Winter Feeding

Wildlife biologists are often accused of being rather callous because they don't believe in winter feeding of wildlife. In spite of our public stand against winter feeding, however, many of us will operate our own small-scale private feeding programs. In these cases most biologists recognize that the animal getting the most benefit is probably the operator, rather than the wildlife. This value comes largely from the satisfaction of seeing wildlife close at hand.

However, a statewide feeding program to save hungry wildlife is something else again. Because of the staggering cost of suitable food, and the impossible logistics of getting food to the scattered wildlife populations, a philosophy of discouraging feeding and encouraging self-sustaining forms of wildlife has developed. In short, if it can't survive New York winters, it has no place among our wildlife.

Winter feeding can backfire, causing more loss of wildlife than it prevents. The prime example of this is deer. When deer are starving in their winter yards, it is because of the lack of natural browse for food. If feeding these deer one winter does save some deer, it means that next winter there will be more deer in the yard where there is already a shortage of food. Feeding them simply postpones the starvation crisis till another year.

It is impossible to get food to just starving animals, the stronger ones must be fed first. "Mother-love" demonstrated by defense of their young does not carry into winter competition for food. It then becomes a matter of survival of the fittest.

There are two common hazards to wildlife from poorly operated feeding programs. Of protective cover in the vicinity of the feeder is not adequate to furnish escape cover for all birds and animals attracted, it becomes an attractive feeding station for predators. Any concentration of wildlife such as this is bound to attract the attention of predators in the neighborhood.

Often feeders will concentrate more wildlife in an area than natural food supplies would normally maintain. If feeding is stopped, even temporarily, additional travel and exposure caused by the short food supply can be dangerous.

The time that the public shows greatest concern is during emergency conditions, following heavy snow or ice storms. By the time winter has set in, wildlife has already settled down in an area that they think will provide food and cover to carry them through winter. Generally, they will sweat it out, and if you are going to feed them, you must carry the food to them, for they have no way of knowing your good intentions. Emergency feeding then must be pinpointed to known concentration areas or it will not be utilized.

Healthy animals have an amazing reserve to fall back on during these times of deep snow and ice. Following such storms they may stay holed up for several days in thick cover where they went to get away from the storm. Ring-necked pheasants can go for 10 days without food with no ill effects, and some have been found under snowbanks on game farms where they have been buried over two weeks.

If you want to enjoy the benefits of feeding small animals or birds, adhere to four simple rules:

1. A feeding station should be close to good escape and winter cover.
2. Several small feeders are better than one large one.
3. Start feeding before the need arises. Wildlife establish feeding patterns that they are slow to change. They should be given ample time to locate feeding stations so that they will know where to go in search of food after severe storms.
4. Once started, a feeding station should be continued until there is no further need for it.
