The Spotlight CALENDAR

ABOUT THE CALENDAR

The information printed in this column is a FREE service to Spotlight readers. We neither charge nor receive any fee for publicizing these events. It is for this reason that we ask those who send in information to make sure that it is complete; we cannot (repeat: CANNOT) make weekly changes in running announcements.

Because the Calendar condenses the coming event in capsule form, it has become one of the most widely-read weekly Spotlight features. It was so designed to allow for more space for additional features. Therefore, organizations should not expect to find a duplication of facts in another place. If we were to run all of the events twice, we'd be cutting down on our available space and thereby defeat the whole concept.

Put some money in The Bank.

If you've read this far, you probably would like to be putting some money in the bank. But somehow, you don't do it.

So here's what we do to make it easy for you to put some money in The Bank:

1. We offer our savings accounts right alongside all our other banking services: checking accounts, instalment loans, all of them. So you don't have to go out of your way to save.
2. We offer Automatic Savings. All you need to take advantage of it is a checking account at The Bank. Just tell us how much money you want to save, and every month we'll transfer that amount from your checking account to your savings account.

3. We offer save-by-mail service. We pay the postage both ways. And you never even have to leave the house.

And if there's anything we haven't thought of, we're open to suggestions.

CATTLEMEN MEET

ON SATURDAY, September 16, about 80 capital District beef cattlemen met and toured the S. J. Huse and Sons' "Stonebroke Farms" in Warnerville. Members of the Huse family were tour guides who showed the cattlemen around the farm.

The Huse's maintain both Angus and Hereford herds and also cross the two breeds. Their philosophy is to produce different types of cattle to satisfy as many buyers as possible. The cattle are sold as breeding stock, finished beef and feeder calves.

Huse's have made many things to make handling cattle easier. This includes chutes and head gates in both barns, a portable loading ramp and a corral with a working chute in the pasture.

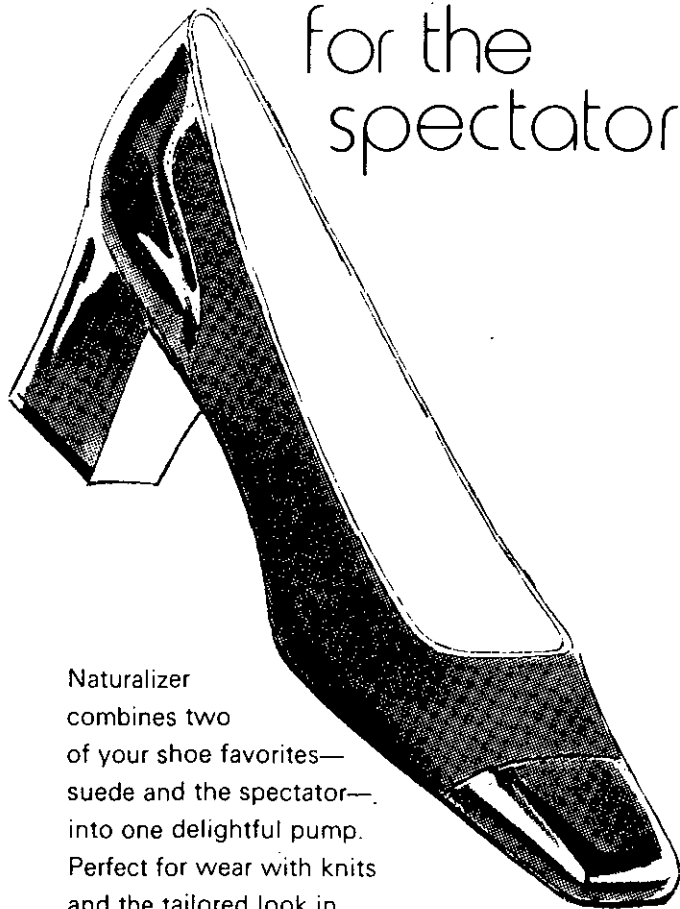

After a lunch break a second stop was made at the State University at Cobleskill. Here, Walt Clark, Head of the Animal Husbandry Department, told about the beef herd and program at the college. The herd was originally Angus, but only Charolais bulls have been used for several years.

Bob McGuire, Professor of Animal Husbandry and a member of the Regional Extension Beef Program Committee, demonstrated the Scanogram. This electronic devise, measures the back fat and rib eye of live cattle and can be used as a tool to select breeding stock.

THE QUESTOR GROUP, upstate New York's largest developer of condominium communities, has announced the opening of Woodgate--the first such community to be built in Delmar.

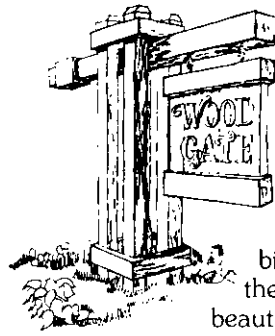

Architecturally, Woodgate is a community of early American coach houses, set in a wooded area painstakingly preserved by the builder. Floor plans range from a rambling one story ranch to sophisticated two story townhouse with up to 4 bedrooms. Each unit has a private patio and garage, and features total electric convenience.

As with all Questor communities, Woodgate provides recreation features for residents. Over an acre is set aside for this purpose--with swimming pools for adults and children, a bath house, picnic areas in the woods, and lawns ideal for badminton and croquet. Areas are connected by meandering pathways winding through the trees.

As a condominium community, Woodgate offers unique advantages to people choosing to live in Delmar. Residents buy their homes, rather than rent, and share ownership of the grounds with will comprise their twenty-first consecutive season of community theatre in the Capitol District. For the first time, the Players will present two of their major productions at their own intimate theatre, The Playhouse, in Unionville. The Playhouse is located on Delaware Turnpike (Rt.443) about two and one-half miles southwest of Bethlehem Central Senior High School. The Playhouse was inaugurated last season with an experimental theatre production. Now outfitted with seats removed from the old Granada Theatre in Buffalo before it was razed, The Playhouse has become the newest addition to the area's growing list of community-owned theatres.

Tom Rowland of Delmar, business manager for the Slingerlands group, has announced that season tickets for the three major productions are available. Tickets at eight dollars each provide admission to each production.

For their opener, the Players have selected "Ten Nights In A Barroom," a nineteenth century melodrama, originally performed to point out the evils of demon rum. Ten performances are scheduled for October 25 through 29 and November 1 through 5.

THEY'RE PLANNING AND PLANNING for the Third Annual Bethlehem Museum Festival (Formerly: Tailgate Sale) which will be held at the Museum on Route 144, October 14, starting at 9 A.M. Complete with a nostalgic musical score of gay nineties favorites, yesterday's melodrama becomes today's camp comedy. Graham Zeh, director, hopes that the audience will cheer the hero and hiss the villain as these forces of good and evil meet in deadly combat.

In January, the Players return to Bethlehem Central High School for the second production of the season. There they will present "Oklahoma!" on January 18, 19 and 20. The Players will conclude the season at The Playhouse in May with "The Effect of Gamma Rays On Man-In-The-Moon Marigolds" or another vehicle to be announced. Performances are scheduled for May 2 through 6 and May 9 through 13.

Season tickets can be ordered from Tom Rowland, 29 Murray Avenue, Delmar. See the Players' advertisement in this issue. Use the coupon there to order your season tickets.

IF YOU HAVE BEEN smoking too much, a bit overweight and feeling the effects of lack of exercise, you will certainly be interested in a program which is about to start.

The Bethlehem Central School District Continuing Education Program, recognizing the high incidence of heart diseases, will be repeating its highly successful program on heart diseases starting Monday, October 2.

John Falvey, in making this announcement, said the program is being held under the joint sponsorship of the Bethlehem Central School District, County and State Health Departments, Heart Association, and the State Education Department.

Dr. Nicholas Alexiou, Acting Director, Heart Disease Control Bureau, New York State Health Department, is heading the planning committee. The course will run for ten weeks with two-hour sessions three nights each week. A portion of the program will be in lecture form concerned with general health and results of good nutrition, use of alcohol, tobacco, and other products, plus the effects of tension and pressure.

About an hour of gradually increasing physical exercise will be included each night. Husband and wife enrollments are encouraged since research information has found that women in this age group are also subject to heart problems. Further, it was pointed out, wives will be interested in learning of diets which will lessen the possibility of heart problems in their husbands. Registration may be made by mail to:

John Falvey, Hamagrael Elementary School, McGuffey Lane, Delmar, N.Y. 12054, or in person at the Bethlehem High School, 700 Delaware Avenue, Monday, October 2 at 7:30 P.M. Registration fee will be determined by the number in the class. The number of participants will be limited.

Union College in Schenectady, and Mr. Minshell spent about nine hours on both days driving his 1932 Chevrolet convertible for the cameras.

The movie, starring Barbra Streisand and Robert Redford, has a 1937 college setting, so Mr. Minshell responded to a local call for cars of that vintage. He is a member of the Upper Hudson Valley Antique Car Club, and owns two other old cars, another 1932 Chevrolet and a 1930 roadster, which aren't yet restored. It took him about five years to restore the car used in the movie.

LEROY MINSHELL of Selkirk, a Bethlehem Central school bus driver for the past 19 years, took two days off from his job last week to help make a movie.

A portion of the movie, "The Way We Were," is being filmed at

Mr. Minshell, who in "real life" drives a Glenmont route for Bethlehem pupils, found his movie-making experience "very interesting." He said he was usually in the midst of about 700 people, but did get close enough to Miss Streisand and Redford to observe them as "very pleasant people."

He believes the movie is scheduled for release next summer, so perhaps, come next fall, Mr. Minshell's youthful riders will find themselves the privileged passengers of a bona fide movie star.

ANOTHER BETHLEHEM Central bus driver, William McGarry, was recently commended for his actions during an emergency situation which occurred when he was working his second job as a truck driver for the Atlantic-Richfield Oil Co.

While driving his truck on the Northway near Saratoga, Mr. McGarry came across a car which was on fire, and he immediately stopped to assist the occupants, tried unsuccessfully to put out the blaze with his truck's fire extinguisher, and then directed traffic around the car until it could be removed.

He was commended by the driver of the car, an employee of the American Automobile Association, who wrote to the Oil Company to express his appreciation. The letter stated, in part: "It is our sincere opinion that Mr. McGarry's efforts and actions are a great credit to Atlantic-Richfield, and that your company should be very proud to have a man of such high quality and character in your employ."

The Bethlehem Central School District, which also employs Mr. McGarry, is equally proud of him for proving his willingness and ability to help others in time of need.

QUESTION: Where do things stand now on re-introduction of the Mental Health Strand III curriculum in Bethlehem schools, which was approved by the Board of Education in July of 1971?

ANSWER: The entire strand was taught in Health classes at the Middle School and High School during the school year of 1971-72, with parents having the option to have their children dismissed from this instruction if they wished. (Instruction on human sexuality is being introduced at the seventh-grade level.

Two parts of the strand, personality development and family life, were taught on the elementary level last year, after Mrs. Ruthann Cons, school psychologist, has rewritten and revised the State-supplied curriculum during the summer of 1971.

Mrs. Cons has this past summer rewritten the third part of the curriculum strand, on human sexuality, for elementary level teaching, and she and Ray Sliter are now holding in-service training sessions with elementary teachers throughout the district, so it can be implemented during this school year.

The curriculum guide on the human sexuality portion of Strand III, as prepared by Mrs. Cons, will be available by the middle of October for parents to read and review it. Parents who wish to do so may ask for it at the Educational Services Center, 90 Adams Pl., Delmar.

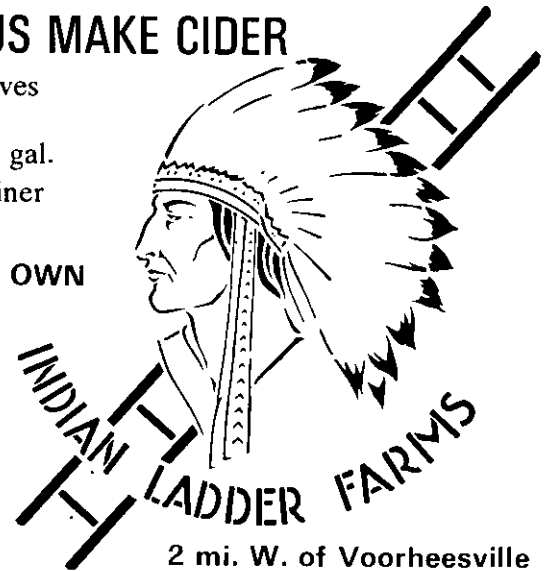

As was suggested by the citizens' committee which studied Strand 3 curriculum materials two years ago, and approved by the Board of Education when the curriculum was re-instituted, any teacher who feels uncomfortable or unqualified to teach the material is not being required to do so. Parental requests that their elementary-age children not receive this instruction will also be honored.

THE JUDGE TALKS TO NEW CITIZENS

ON THIS PAST Tuesday, Naturalization Ceremonies were held at the Albany County Courthouse, The Honorable John L. Larkin from Kingston presiding.

Mrs. Dorothy Kraus of 30 Scotch Pine Drive, Voorheesville, became an American and renounced her Canadian citizenship to join her husband and children as a United States Citizen.

The 116 people (rich, poor, brown, white, old, young) were called up to sign the papers and be congratulated one by one by this judge. First names like Umberto, Ludwig, Spiro, Assunta, Assunta, Chen, Eileen, Du Hoc, Mohammed, along with Bob and Richard were there. The exhortation the judge gave them was one each native-born American should ponder also. Here is what he said:

We are assembled here today for an important and noble purpose — the naturalization of new citizens.

It is for me a great honor to bestow upon you the most precious gift that this country has to offer — citizenship in the United States of America.

The place of one's birth is an accident. The very act of transferring one's loyalties and destinies to this country demands a faith in this country and its way of life which few native born Americans are ever called upon to feel.

You have taken an oath of allegiance to a great ideal. To a great principle, to a great hope of the human race.

Our American ideal should be expressed not in terms of a melting pot, with its somewhat mournful implication of uniformity but rather in terms of an orchestra in which each group, like an orchestral choir, contributes its special different tone to the rich ensemble as a whole.

Each citizen must do his part to make democracy work for all, instead of expecting it to work for him alone. You must understand that there is no true liberty for you unless there is liberty for all.

For every liberty there is a corresponding loyalty; for every right an accompanying duty; for every privilege a related responsibility.

For now it is time for you to not only accept, but eagerly grasp, the responsibilities of citizenship in this great nation. Many of you are now eligible to exercise that precious right — the right to vote and be heard in the manner and method of control of our government. American citizenship today is more than an opportunity for life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. It is a tremendous responsibility too, obligating each individual to work for a restoration of justice and peace in a broken world. If it is to be done, all our citizens, new and old, must reaffirm their faith in the fundamentals of American citizenship and remain deeply conscious of the necessity for their preservation.

People complain of bad government, yet neglect the golden opportunity to better conditions by exercising their right to vote. Even if they do vote, many of them cast their vote in abject ignorance of the qualifications of the candidates and of the issues at stake.

Be informed citizens — read, talk, discuss, learn what is happening and remember that the life blood of the democratic system is the ballot. Vote for those who would continue to build this country — vote against those whose only concern is to burn and destroy.

In these crucial times when our country is torn by internal ravages; by those who would destroy it; by bomb throwers; by burners; when we need builders; by those who preach, under the guise of freedom, academic or otherwise, the destruction of this country and the ideals that made it great; when religion and religious principles are openly flaunted; when they would tear down the schools that taught them and the courthouses that protect them, we need the help of every citizen, and especially the strength and courage and resolve of all new citizens; for our nation is not stronger than the combined strength of the men and women who make it up — and I say to you, ladies and gentlemen — you are the strength of this country.

And your strength should be marshalled to honor and defend the great principles on which this country is built. You should stand for true democracy.

Democracy is equal rights — equal privileges — and equal responsibility for everyone.

It is not enough that one shall merely enjoy the privilege of democracy, one must also accept the responsibility of citizenship.

Whether or not you enter private business or enter public service, take your rightful place in helping to control our national destiny.

To say that people in private business have nothing to do with government is to say that private men have nothing to do with their own happiness or misery; that people should not concern themselves with whether they are naked or clothed; fed or starved; deceived or instructed; protected or destroyed.

the constant problems of our society is that people do not want to get "involved." How long ago, we may ask, did "involved" become a dark and anxious word? When the poet John Donne wrote:

"No man is an island" and
 "Any man's death diminishes me, for I am involved in mankind" they were cries of compassion, of inextricable oneness with all mankind. Yet how commonplace it is today for us to sidestep the sufferings and needs of others in fear of that nebulous trap — involvement.

Let us remember then, today and every day hereafter, that in its original sense, before being colored by the fears of men, "to involve" meant to wrap up in, to enfold, to embrace.

Yet much remains to be done to achieve the ideals set by those who have gone before. Many inadequacies still exist in our American way of life — inadequacies that can be removed in a legal and orderly way.

Let us recognize that we are living in a time of ordeal and challenge. We cannot do business as usual. We must persuade, when many no longer listen; we must act, when many have lost faith in our actions. But we must do so within the framework of our laws; for we a society of law, and the only alternative to law and order is anarchy, and anarchy ever has, and ever will, produce despotism.

Because our flag does not fly over a perfect country, our sovereign citizens must be ever mindful of their trust to hand on to the next generation, a greater and better America than they themselves found.

And so as you go from here out into all walks of life, to all parts of this country, and as we pass to you the reigns and responsibility of citizenship, I charge you that your sacred trust is to pass on to the future citizens a truly greater and better America.

As one looks out on this vast group of new citizens, one cannot help but consider the school system in this great country of ours that mandates and guarantees each child an education, and I charge you that your children will have the same opportunities of education as any other child in this land. Take each and every opportunity to learn; to educate yourselves; to improve your lot in life.

For education is not a luxury but a necessity; all who have meditated on the art of governing mankind have been convinced that the fate of empires depends on the education of its youth.

Education makes people easy to lead, but difficult to drive; easy to govern, but impossible to enslave.

Go forth from here today secure in the knowledge that you live and learn and work in the greatest country in the world, under the greatest form of government yet devised by mortal man.

Go forth from here today mindful of your debt to those who have gone before. Be mindful of your obligation to all those future citizens that will follow you, an obligation to protect and enhance and enrich this American way of life that guarantees all of us an education, equality of opportunity, the pursuit of happiness and liberty for all.

Remember too, that there is no such thing as achieved liberty; like electricity, there can be no substantial storage and it must be generated as it is enjoyed; or the lights go out.

Go forth from here confident and hopeful that your dreams and aspirations will come true, and, though life is a perpetual compromise between the ideal and the possible, always keep ever before you your dreams and hopes for the future.

You have come into this great nation voluntarily, seeking something that we have to give, and all we have to give is this:

We cannot exempt you from work. No man is exempt from work anywhere in this world.

We cannot exempt you from the strife and the heartbreaking burdens of the struggle of the day — that is common to man everywhere.

We cannot exempt you from the loads in life that you must carry. We can only make them lighter by the spirit in which they are carried. That is the spirit of hope, the spirit of liberty, the spirit of justice, in a country which recognizes a lesson taught mankind over 2,000 years ago — that there is a greater kingdom where the least shall be heard and considered side by side with the greatest.

MEDAL.

If you have a safe driving record, we'll reward you with savings on your auto insurance.

Having a good driving record should be worth more to you than simply a warm glow of self-satisfaction.

Now it is. Because Aetna has recently introduced the Auto-Rite policy in this area — a policy especially designed for safe drivers. If you have a good driving record you're eligible for our lowest rate.

Auto-Rite saves you money. But it's not a trimmed-down, minimum-coverage policy. Far from it. You can get a full range of coverages, including liability, collision, fire, theft and comprehensive, medical payments, bail bond and emergency road service. Liability limits are available up to $500,000.

Auto-Rite brings you something else. We mean Aetna's countrywide claim service, and its reputation for fast action and fair play. And we'll back that up with our agency's personal service and attention.

Come in and tell us about your good driving record. You'll like what we tell you about Aetna's Auto-Rite policy for safe drivers.

With Betty Faxon* at the XX Olympiad

THE MOST BEAUTIFUL MAN-MADE sight at the summer Olympics was without doubt the huge lighted rainbow that floated high over the stadium toward the end of the closing ceremonies. We saw it as we drove into Munich. Scared out of our wits by the terrorist bomb threats preceding the closing of the XX Olympiad, we were even more terrified when they mounted machine guns around the top edge of the 80,000-capacity stadium and it was then that we decided not to go. Tickets for that last night had sold for fabulous prices on the black-market — but as the threats mounted, it was almost difficult to give them away. And we must repeat — no matter where you were, that huge rainbow was just about the most beautiful, yet overwhelming, thing we ever witnessed. In complete awe, yet thrilled, we could see why it symbolized friendship, peace and love.

While we're on the subject of love — it must be said that the German people spent every single dollar of the 600 million which it took to present this XX Olympiad with love. They wanted more than anything else to prove to the world that they do love their fellow man, that the Jewish people are important to them and they also wanted the games to be a symbol of peace. We will never forget the friendliness of the people of Munich and their very special welcome to every foreign guest. Almost every restaurant had three menus (English, French and German); if you couldn't speak German and you asked a question of a German who knew no English, he would quickly call one who could speak both languages. We simply did not meet a rude German; everyone was courteous beyond belief. It was a never-to-be forgotten experience.

Guess everyone here must have heard about the ticket blackmarket. We went to the section of town where the tickets were being sold and tried to buy one to the US-Russia basketball game and would you believe, the cheapest price was $70! No, we didn't see the game; we watched it on TV. Some of the sellers on the blackmarket had stacks of tickets, some for just about every event — and some of them must have made a large sum of money.

You'd probably like an eyewitness description of the "black" day, but we can't tell you very much because no one could get near the Village. We did see one of the volleyball games which was held during the time the hostages were being held — and we later found out that the news cameras were on the roof of the volleyball stadium. We saw the demonstrations that were staged in protest against the terrorists. At one point, a group found lumber out of which they made a huge cross which they then carried to the Village fence and where they chanted a demand for the Israelis' release. On the following day and each day until the end, a group of Jewish people placed large wreaths of flowers on the Village fence near building 31. In another tribute, many of the flags along Munich streets were flown at half-mast.

We did get inside Olympic Village one day as the guest of Dr. Nell Jackson who was the head track coach of both the men and women on our track and field team. The Village was unbelievable. The athletes from every country received ROYAL treatment. Each one had a private room. In the Village, there were two restaurants, a cafeteria, laundromat, chapel, recreation area, life-size chess sets, ping pong tables and all kinds of equipment for almost any activity one could name. There was a dance every night with a different band, folk concerts, all types of evening entertainment. There was free coke, milk, tea and free health foods. On our Village visit we met many of the athletes. One last note: each building had its own lounge where there were 4 or 5 TV sets carrying each event as it took place.

We had a room in a pension in the village of Unterammergau, a Munich suburb, but 55 miles from the games — a 1½-hour drive each way because of the heavy traffic. The guests in our village were almost entirely Americans, with 25 of us staying in our pension, which is very similar to an American rooming- or boarding-house. We were right at the foot of the Alps in what has to be one of the most beautiful spots in the world.

Maybe you'd like to know that besides being a very handsome and personable young man, our seven gold medals winner is like a precision-made delicate machine in the water. From start to finish in the 300-meter butterfly (we saw that one), Mark Spitz never made one superfluous move — even his fingers seemed to be programmed to give him that little extra push that makes a champion. We saw some of the soccer games; the individual gymnastics (and Olga Korbut is really an even sweeter doll than she appeared on your television!); the final game of volleyball between Russia and Japan; more swimming; and much, much track and field. Yes, we saw the two black men who refused to honor flag and country; we were there when our two fastest 100-meter runners missed their trial event; we saw Jim Ryun try to run out of a boxed-in situation, trip and fall; we saw Maldine Manning, our 800-meter hope, slow down and almost stop just short of the finish line in her trial, thereby eliminating herself. Some of our athletes and coaches, along with some of the officials world-wide, certainly provided a tragi-comedy of errors, both by commission and omission. Perhaps it's all a part of the panorama of the Olympics — we're not sure; this is the first one we've had the good fortune to be able to attend.

The end came — but the scary part wasn't yet over. We were booked on a 747 for the flight back — and by gosh, the terrorists picked on ours and one other plane for bomb threats. Our flight was scheduled to leave from Munich, fly to Cologne, France, and then across the Atlantic to the JFK Airport. After the bomb threats, it took 2½ hours and three frisks before we left. First, they hand frisked, then they ran an electric metal-finder over us (that was when a few coins in my pocket sounded the alarm); then, they made us take every item out of every piece of luggage. When they were satisfied that there were no arms or bombs, they let you throw (literally) it back in! There were 300 to be searched so they didn't allow anyone time to fold and pack each individual piece of clothing. It was all done very efficiently, rapidly and all of the police and customs men were sympathetic and courteous. They'd had one very big tragedy — and they were doing their best to prevent a second!

When we landed in Cologne, no one was allowed to leave the plane because it would have meant another frisk. The men who brought the food to us from the Airport were all thoroughly searched and every piece of food was inspected. There were no bomb attempts and after an hour we were in the air over the Atlantic. Some 7½ hours later we were once again on home soil at Kennedy Airport.

The XX Olympiad is over; the experience was the greatest; it will be the subject of much talk during the long winter!

*Betty Faxon is a phys-ed teacher and coach of girls' sports at R-C-S Senior High School. We thank her for giving up a full hour of her class-free time to talk with us.

Report on Delmar Pond Draining

THIS REPORT HAS BEEN PREPARED specifically for the purpose of explaining the recent accident at the Five Rivers Environmental Education Center, which resulted in fish kill. Please be assured that the Department of Environmental Conservation, though responsible for the management and improvement of this area, did not deliberately or wantonly kill the fish as readers of assorted news columns and viewers of TV reports have been led to believe.

The initial newspaper reports of the accident claimed that "thousands of 4-6 pound bass" were killed was grossly incorrect. Further reports of irreparable damage to the Vroman Kill downstream of the pond are untrue and apparently were taken out of the context of an untrained observer's report.

The accident resulting in the draining of the pond occurred when a faulty flow control gate valve was to be repaired. To repair the valve, the water in the pond had to be lowered approximately three feet. The condition of the old valve indicated that it had not been used in years. After considerable difficulty, the 36 inch valve was opened 1/4 of the way. An immediate rush of water swept debris and beaver cuttings from the pond bottom into the partly opened valve preventing it from being closed immediately. In approximately 3-1/2 hours (and while attempts were being made to clear the valve) the pond had nearly drained. Fish died on the pond bottom and others were swept downstream and subsequently died.

It is important to note that a team of fish biologists employed by the Department of Environmental Conservation conducted a survey on the ponds during July for the purposes of measuring the fish population (quantitatively and qualitatively); dissolved oxygen content; bottom composition; depth profile; vegetation (floating, emergent and submerged); fertility; invertebrate food supply and other biological values. The fish collected (by the boat electric shocker method) included brown bullhead, bluegill, pumpkin seed, freshwater eel, largemouth bass, suckers and golden shiners.

Director, Bureau of Education

(Part of the Division of Educational Services)

The ratio of game to non-game species was measured at 1:4. Twenty-seven largemouth bass were netted during the survey. Only five of those bass ranged from 3-5 pounds in weight. The total weight for the 27 bass collected was 33 lbs. 15 oz. There were no bass seen or collected of a larger size.

The above data certainly refutes the claim that "thousands of 4-6 pound bass" (as well as some larger) were killed.

Due to many years of use by transient and resident waterfowl, the pond bottom is covered by several inches to several feet of fecal material and is biologically classified at 100% muck. This means that the pond is presently in poor to very poor condition.

Studies of the Vroman Kill which feeds the ponds, indicate that "the stream is unfortunately pollution stressed, due to some type of cultural nutrient upstream. The pollution is limiting the species diversity of invertebrates and probably fishes."

These excerpts are from detailed biological reports produced during the pond and stream studies in July of this year. Should you be interested in reading the complete report, it will be made available upon request.

The studies mentioned above were conducted for the purpose of determining the best management and reconditioning plan for the ponds. It was agreed that the most feasible plan would involve pond draining and bottom improvement.

Unfortunately, the premature draining of the pond due to the faulty valve and inaccuracies in media reporting have, at best, delayed efforts to recondition the pond and make it more productive for wildlife and conducive for study. Efforts will be made once again to repair the valve as a prerequisite to the implementation of a pond reconditioning plan.

Wandering & Wondering . . .

A SHORT POLITICAL DISCOURSE — We don't always agree with columnist Stewart Alsop but when he says that politicians are guilty of doing things that are endangering the whole democratic process, we certainly agree. It has been our contention for many years that the acts of members of both political parties have helped to open the doors to a Communist take-over more than any acts of the Communists themselves. We're not stupid enough to think that this country stands on the brink of disaster — but there are those in elective political offices as well as office-seekers whose actions disgust a great many Americans because their misguided intentions are spelled out in letters ten feet tall. And when Mr. Alsop says that the reason Americans don't get overly excited about irregularities in government may be because they believe that all politicians are crooks anyway.

Not true. But why do so many flaunt their crookedness; smile at their own piratical acts; lie in a way they're sure to get caught; and openly seem to approve similar behavior all around them?

Perhaps honesty is no more out of style today than it was in 1776 — but with today's wonder of electronics and the speed of media reporting, dishonesty is certainly a major item of news almost every day. The difference in the world population, the complexities of modern government — everything — all seem to promote dishonesty on a huge scale.

We have no answer.

WHEN WE'RE WRONG, WE'RE VERY WRONG — and when we're wrong, we like to make corrections. To start off, we promised you a release from Five Rivers Environmental Education Center — you'll find it elsewhere in this issue. To further rectify the misconceptions printed previously in this column, we spent all of last Thursday morning at the Center. We went for a tour of the entire facility. Then we sat in the office and talked with Jerry Passer and four of the young people who are doing so much there.

We had been told that chemical toilets had been installed. "Installed" was a wrong word; there are a few chemical toilets which will only be there until a permanent waste disposal facility can be built.

Someone had asked us: "Why are they planning to build dormitories? for what?" A dormitory is planned for sometime in the future so that visiting students and their teachers can spend more than a single day at the Center and not have to make additional bus trips. We will have a more complete outline of the educational facilities in this column next week.

When many people (including Barney Fowler and us), got upset over the number of fish killed by the draining of the pond, we didn't bother to find out that the water was so polluted that the fish weren't any good for eating; parasites on some of the species are really bad. We didn't bother to discover that there is another pond, entirely divorced from the one that was drained, that would have satisfied the needs of the waterfowl. In our Center travels with Jerry, we learned that it is planned to drain the big pond again, remove the 3' of fecal material from the ducks and geese, seed the bottom and restock it. If and when this is done, nothing of value will be lost — the Center will have gained a pond with clear, healthy water and healthy fish. And as long as there is an alternate pond for the ducks, etc., how can we quarrel with this? It is also planned to enlarge the "alternate" pond in a way that its area will be about equal to the present big pond.

Another charge we made was about the lack of wildlife present. It had to be the day or time of day — because last Thursday we saw many kinds of birds, chipmunks, grey squirrels, about 50 ducks and 75 geese. The wildlife is still there. Although we didn't happen to see them, many deer still make it their home. Today, visitors can't look into cages — but they can enjoy a wide variety of wildlife if they are patient, quiet and observe.

When present plans are completed, it is estimated that 1/2 million people of all ages will visit the Center each year — and this will be accomplished in such a way that the wildlife will remain there. Strung out in words, this seems an impossibility, but it isn't — at least we (and we hope you, too) will give these enthusiastic, hard-working people an opportunity to prove their theories are right.

Jerry Passer had been a little upset, not only with what we had written, but also Barney Fowler. His fear was that our unfavorable publicity might turn our readers against the project. We don't agree. We think that the Center needed an added shot of publicity — and perhaps more of our readers will go out and see for themselves just because it was made a controversial issue. If you do go out, let someone there show you around, explain what is being done, etc. Then tell us what you think.

And while we're on the subject: this Saturday, September 30, starting at 8:00 A.M., there will be a Sportsman's Workshop at the Center. At 8, Hunter Safety Training Course. Call 457-6096 for a reservation. At 9:30, the workshop will feature: riflery, tracking, hunter safety, bow hunting, waterfowl identification, big game hunting, rabbit hunting and wildlife pathology. Exhibits will include: white-tail deer, buckskin and leather goods, and preparation of game food. Best plan: pack a lunch and spend all day. It'll be an education, whether you are a hunter or not.

Next week we'll tell you what your child may learn if his class is one of those visiting Five Rivers this fall or winter.
