But it has changed the price of your home. For example, if you bought a $20,000 home in 1968—today it's worth about $27,000. Don't be left with a costly pile of ashes. New Displays

Acrylics is the medium used by Mary Agnes Schaefer of Selkirk for the art work presently on display in the corridors of the Bethlehem Public Library in Delmar. According to Mrs. Schaefer, these colorful paintings are "non-representational acrylic collages."

and has also attended Northwestern College, Russell Sage, and is presently a student at Empire State College in Albany. She has taught privately and in the continuing adult education program in South Colton and in the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk School Districts.

Mrs. Schaefer's work will be on display through the 27th of July.

Also on exhibit at the Bethlehem Public Library during July is a collection of 26 pieces of carnival glass owned by Mary Bilancia of Coeymans Hollow. These pieces are examples of all kinds of different patterns, base colors, and finish types. They are a dazzling array of iridescence. There are bowls and dishes, vases and baskets, a candlestick and even a lovely bronze iridescent bead necklace. Many of the pieces in the collection are quite scarce.

So, stop in the Library this month — see the displays (in cool comfort!) and get a book or two for summer reading.

On the Green

The Village Volunteer Fire and Drum Corps played last summer for a Bethlehem Public Library Evening on the Green program and everyone loved them, so, by popular demand they are returning for another appearance. The corps will march out of the pages of history onto the "green" behind the Library at 7:30 on Tuesday evening, July 17. (Should the heavens pour down, a movie, Treasure Island, will be shown in the Large Community Room.)

Bearing colors which are a replica of the revolutionary war flag with 13 stars arranged in a circle to represent the 13 states, the corps marches with a slow dignified step reminiscent of early-marching military units. The spontoon carried was used as a side arm by officers of the colonial period to direct troops in action and to serve as a weapon for close combat.

The award winning group, formed in 1956, is one of the original members of the Na-

Owens-Corning Speaks Out by Polly McIntyre

"We feel this Owens-Corning plant is needed by the county and will be an asset to the Town of Bethlehem," concluded Charles "Ted" Peck, group vice-president in charge of the construction group for Owens-Corning, at a press conference last Thursday at Schrafft's Restaurant in Glenmont. Stressing the need for insulation, the plant's primary product, in meeting the national energy crisis,

Peck explained what considerations had gone into planning the plant to "continue its history of responsible citizenship."

Bethlehem was selected as a plant site to meet the fiberglass needs for the next 20 to 40 years of the northeastern United States, presently serviced by Owens-Corning plants in New Jersey and Ohio. The site offers a good supply of power, water, and transportation. Rt. 32 is currently not carrying nearly its limit in traffic. The Thruway services the northeast. The Penn Central is adjacent. The 205-acre site makes possible a greenbelt and building without taking down a single tree.

The company hopes to have the preliminaries cleared up and the building under roof before snowfall in November of this year, beginning production in the spring of 1974. The plant will house one production line with space for another at a later date, serving upper New York and 6 New England states. It will employ 250 workers, plus staff, increasing to 400 plus 90 staff when the second production line is put into operation. The buildings' appearance will be similar to the Owens-Corning Georgia plant, with large green area, low profile, in earth tones. One production line will make enough insulation for 480 to 500 homes per day.

Niagara Mohawk Power Corporation has told Owens-Corning that it has enough power for present and future needs. In the event of a shortage, homes and hospitals would take priority over the plant. The end product of insulating homes and buildings in the northeast will result in overall energy savings, according to Peck.

While air pollution control will not be complete, it will meet all legal standards. Air pollution research by the company is continuing. A new all-electric manufacturing process will be in use in this plant which can be most accurately compared to the new Georgia plant. The older New Jersey plant was built in 1956, before environmental concerns were prominent. The state of New Jersey has taken action against the plant. Plans for improvement are now being effected including conversion to all electric furnaces. 90% of the company's fine to the state of New Jersey will be rebated upon completion of the improvements. Thorough plans have been made for manufacturing process water disposal. An on-site treatment plant will handle human waste. A 4% increase in demand on Bethlehem water supply will leave entirely adequate water. The company will pay for all water installations. A 5% traffic increase will occur on Rt. 32, which will handle 80% of the traffic including all the trucks, and some employee cars. All deliveries will be by train. Trucks and trains will take out the manufactured products. The company will build extra traffic turn lanes, etc. to handle this. The plant will be built so that no trees will be cut. An existing area of trees will screen the plant from Walden-maier Rd. The plant will be in earth tones, with all ugly piles of raw materials enclosed. Continuing, and probably stricter, state and federal regulations will apply to the plant.

In reply to questions, Peck replied that Owens-Corning will emit small quantities of phenol. The company has submitted phenol emission levels to the Department of Environmental Conservation. Small quantities of boron will be emitted. This site was chosen over a location in the Bethlehem industrial park because it had rail transportation, size and terrain suitable to this plant, and the land was already zoned light industrial. There was already heavy industry in the area. The Wilton site was not used because a test well showed no water. Owens-Corning has not been contacted on the possible effects of the large Dowerskill housing development in the area. The plant does however meet all current legal requirements. Purchase of land has been completed at "a million two." The cost to build will be mostly in machinery, in the "multi-million dollar" range. Odors are hard to measure, but in this area "we believe we will be good neighbors." Fiberglas particle emission will "not go off the property line," with the aim to contain it within the processing. Fiberglas particulate is fine, but not microscopic. Asked if they planned further meetings with the public, Peck replied that they had held two public meetings and felt that was enough. He had no comment on published accounts that the company had not attended a recent meeting of citizens at the Bethlehem Public Library.

Attending the conference, and assisting in answering questions, were Dick Grant, manufacturing vice-president for the construction group; Bob Logan of the legal department; Sam Thomas in charge of environmental control; Dick Webb manager of the facility; and Stan Collins, in charge of public relations.

If you happen to dig up one of our telephone cables by mistake, it could be a costly mistake.

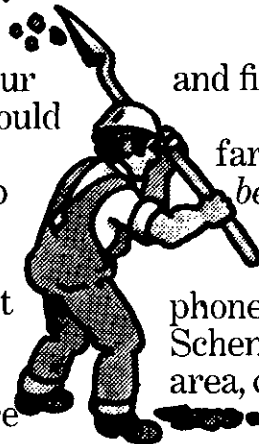

It means you'd have to stop work and call us. That's bad enough.

What's even worse is that it also means a lot of people could have their phone service disrupted, including hospitals, police

National Jamboree

On August 1, Troop 262, sponsored by the Bethlehem Lutheran Church, will leave to join more than 70,000 other Scouts and leaders at the world's largest Scout jamboree. Seventeen Scouts and two leaders will arrive at jamboree East at Moraine State Park in Pennsylvania on August 1, and will return on August 10. The Scoutmaster for the jamboree is Robert Myers, Feura Bush Road, Delmar.

At the jamboree, the Scouts will live in a huge tent city and cook their own meals, including mountain trout and steak.

For activities, there's a lot to do, including swimming, boating, canoeing, fishing, several miles of scenic hiking trails, and many areas of sports competition for individuals and troops.

Extensive ecology experiments and demonstrations will be available, plus the big new Arts and Science Expo, where Scouts will enter original artwork, musical compositions, and science projects.

Candlesticks?

Niagara Mohawk Power Corporation is switching to "candlesticks" — newly designed electric distribution poles without the familiar crossarms on top:

Ralph P. Van Woert local manager for the power firm, said the new poles improve appearance and provide increased strength.

"We are eliminating cross-arms wherever possible, so that there is less bulky equipment in the air and the wires are spaced in a tight configuration," Mr. Van Woert said.

He also noted that without crossarms, wires are held closer to the poles, eliminating a "fulcrum effect" sometimes created on the crossarms during storms, which can strain wires and cause power interruptions.

The new design utilizes fiberglass and epoxy materials and is referred to as "candlestick" in the electrical equipment trade.

"It's much better from an environmental standpoint because the narrower, vertical placing of the wires cuts down the amount of tree trimming necessary for line clearance," Mr. Van Woert said.

He pointed out, however, that in rural areas, where longer spans are needed between poles, crossarms are still utilized. "With armless construction, poles have to be spaced closer together," he added.

It's less expensive for a utility to originally install a line using crossarms. But the average life of a power pole is 40 years, and for a crossarm about 20 years. "Therefore, the final cost is the same since crossarms never installed never need to be replaced," Mr. Van Woert said.

Question:

Should cemetery lots be purchased in advance of needs?

Answer:

The selection of a burial plot should be a family decision made unhurriedly in advance of need. Cemetery property is usually chosen with the same care and frugality exercised in any major purchase.

Buyers should take the time to seek out a reliable cemetery with a sound endowment care fund. It would be prudent to talk this over with us as well as your clergyman and your friends before making a final decision — perhaps we can help.

Delaware Avenue, Elsmere, will present a "Be Our Guest" certificate to all those who register their bicycles with the Town of Bethlehem. Also, Mr. Brodeur will be on hand to help assist the Bethlehem Police with refreshments for all citizens who participate in the program.

About the Cover Pictures

Plans for the construction of an estimated $1.8-million recreational facility at Siena College were announced today by the Rev. Matthew T. Conlin, OFM, President of the College.

"If all goes well, construction will begin around July 15," the Franciscan Priest commented. "Completion is set for next June."

The multi-purpose building will serve as a 35,000 square foot all-purpose intramural sport and leisure-time recreational facility for Siena's 2,000 day and evening students. When seats are expanded, the center will have a seating capacity of 4,500 for varsity sports and special events such as commencements, lectures, concerts, and activities promoted by off-campus groups.

Contractors will be Bunkoff Construction Co., Inc., Albany. Architects are Finnegan, Lyon and Colburn, Syracuse.

The center will be located on the lower campus parallel to the left field foul line of the baseball field.

Regarding the new recreational facility, Fr. Conlin said: "It has been increasingly obvious in the past several years that our recreational, social and athletic facilities must be expanded as the student population increases and the ratio of coeds to male students is enlarged. Gibbons Hall, which houses our present gymnasium, is no longer adequate."

Movable mesh netting lowered from the ceiling and an artificial surface will allow flexibility for a variety of sports including indoor track, handball, tennis, and volleyball.

The remaining area — approximately 19,000 square feet — will be used for exercise rooms, offices, lockers, shower rooms and storage.

Father Conlin said the site which has been chosen for the new facility is ideal since it is easily accessible to all campus buildings, and the athletic fields.

The new building is part of an extensive program of rehabilitation and construction recently approved by Siena's Board of Trustees. The recommendations followed an intensive 27-month study by the College's Development Committee composed of a cross-section of trustees, faculty, students, alumni, and administrators.

Currently underway is the renovation of a part of Siena Hall and the Friary to accommodate more faculty offices, and the remodeling of the basement of Dawson Library.

Father Conlin said that conversion of old Gibbons Hall gym into a campus center will begin in about a year.

Family Fishing and Fish Management

Cottages along lakes and public campsites at our parks and in the Forest Preserve are filled with families who are trying to get away from the tensions of job or school. There will be swimming, hiking, boating and many other things to keep them busy, not the least of which will be fishing. Families that can get out together like this are giving their youngsters something that will be of long term benefit to them, and which will also be a boost to society.

Time and again it has been demonstrated that boys who have cultivated an interest in outdoor activities are less apt to become entangled with the law. They have also learned one of the secrets of relaxing from the stress of modern day life so that they can return to their routine with restored enthusiasm and vigor.

Many everyday family activities, such as little league baseball, still keep everyone going in high gear. Father and son fishing expeditions offer something to do together without the tension and competition — where man and boy can get to know each other better. Introducing a child, either boy or girl, to the wonders of a fish pond can be a most satisfying experience.

There is no age limit on fishing, in fact it is an ideal three generation sport. When a youngster is along, the trip should be geared to his level; you should accompany him on his trip instead of him accompanying you on your trip. His interest span is more or less directly related to his height, so for the youngster there should be plenty of action. Even the older novice needs action, for he hasn't built up a store of anticipation from earlier successful expeditions.

Action means panfishing — sunfish, perch and bullheads. This is where family fishing can be good fish management, for too many fishermen concentrate on the big fish, and in this way are sometimes their own worst enemies. A good fish pond must have the proper balance between large predatory fish, bass, pike, etc., and the small forage species like perch and bluegills.

Mother Nature gave the small fish a very high reproductive rate so that they could produce enough young to feed the big fish and still have enough left over to maintain their numbers in the pond. If too many of the large fish are removed, the panfish can quickly become overpopulated. This is a double-edged sword, for not only are there too many panfish for the amount of food available, but they will also eat young of the predatory fish, further reducing their numbers.

Panfishing no longer has to be a sit-and-wait proposition, for with modern spinning tackle it can be made a lively sport. Adjust the drag on the reel way down and even medium-sized perch or sunfish can put up a fight which will excite a youngster. While casting small lures for perch and sunfish he is actually learning how to properly handle the equipment, so that when he graduates to game fish he won't spend all his time disengaging lily pads.

Even panfish can be uncooperative at times, but every fisherman must learn that fishing isn't just pulling in fish. This is the ideal time to show that there is a lot more to fishing than just catching fish. By opening the youngster's eyes to the many activities of the other inhabitants of the pond, you can show him how to bring home memories that will make it possible to come home empty-handed, but refreshed. Some of these memories may long outlive the memories of even the better fish.

Cleaned in the usual manner, you end up cooking a lot of fish skeletons and very little fish. Skin, and then fillet them. You won't end up with big chunks of meat, but a reasonable mess of fish will give you a neat panful of tasty little morsels all ready to fry and eat.

right to make as much noise as they wish consonant with the bounds of accuracy and fair play.

However, when a public official such as Dr. John Lyons projects himself into the controversy and starts making noises like a conservationist, I think it's time to call a halt. For years conservation groups headquartered in Albany County have been complaining about industrial pollution of our waterways, flagrant disregard of the health regulations and general inaction on the part of the County Health Department in the enforcement field. People such as myself, private citizens residing in the Town of Bethlehem, have complained about sewage emissions in certain areas. The response has generally been, "There is nothing we can do. Talk to the State Health Department." or "We'll look into it."

Suddenly there's a change in posture. The Owens-Corning plant and the GE plant, which have received so much publicity in the newspapers lately, just happen to be located in the same general area in which Dr. Lyons maintains his estate. One cannot help but wonder how much interest would be generated in the Health Department if these plants were in Colonie or Cohoes. This blatant use of the media as a forum by public officials who are personally involved in the problem must cease. In view of the fact that Mrs. Lyons is so active in this dispute with industry, it would seem to me that the commissioner would be better serving the interests of the community as a whole by totally disassociating himself from this problem and leaving the resolution of it in the hands of others with a more objective viewpoint.

The writer has been active in sportsmen's groups and conservation groups in Albany County for a number of years and holds no brief with industrial polluters and if such be the case, it should be stopped. However, how much credence can be placed in the cries of people who have a vested interest in retaining the "rural atmosphere" of their community? I also wonder just how much attention any ordinary group of concerned citizens would receive were they not led by the wife of a public official.

The area in question is immediately adjacent to the Penn Central Railroad and in no way can be compared to the beauty of the Catskill or Helderberg Mountains. It is a flat piece of farm land exactly like thousands of others in Albany County and has about as much natural beauty as Patroon Creek. Using popular issues such as "pollution, green belts and preserving our natural heritage" are becoming catch-alls for people with a drum that they would like to be heard. I suspect that when you tear away all of the emotionalism and charges it all comes down to — "whose ox is being gored."

GE has probably already contributed more to the welfare of Bethlehem than this bunch of "concerned citizens" has in their entire lives. Hopefully, Owens-Corning will do also.

Very truly yours,
John F. Bidell
