An exhibit of archaeology from the Quackenbush House

In the summer of 1972, salvage work began at the "oldest extant structure in Albany, one of the few Dutch urban buildings in America" . . . the Quackenbush House, at the corner of Clinton Avenue and Broadway. Since then, hundreds of artifacts have been unearthed at the site. Among these are clay pipes dating from 1800-1860, pieces of plates, pitchers, and serving dishes made of Delft, Creamware, Red Slipware and White Salt-Glazed Stoneware, bottles, an axe head, flint arrowheads.

Some of these artifacts are now displayed in the lobby of National Savings Bank's downtown Albany office at 90 State Street. Color prints of paintings by De Hooch and Vermeer show ceramic items — similar material has been found at Quackenbush House — in use in Holland. There's a replica of a colonial land development map of the Albany-Rensselaer area, and a display of clay pipes and other artifacts.

Come in and spend a little time reliving Albany's beginnings.

Exhibit courtesy of Bureau of Cultural Affairs, R. W. Arnold III, Director, Department of Human Resources, John J. McEneny, Commissioner, City of Albany.

GUEST EDITORIAL

No more than we should relegate the moral education of our children solely to schools and religious institutions, should we leave the study of our national heritage solely to our educational institutions. Love of country and dedication to its principles are not learned in the twelfth grade government class, but in the sights and sounds of growing up in a family that cares about flying the flag, watching the Memorial Day parade, enjoying the trips to the Old Stone Fort, Saratoga Battlefield, Shelburne Museum, the Altamont Fair.

Those principles upon which our country was founded were considered radical by the rest of the world at the time of their declaration. At that time in history only radical thinkers would have stated that "All men are created equal, and they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness."

Read the Declaration of Independence again — it is only three paragraphs long. Think of the tortuous path and inner struggles of the Founding Fathers that led to that decision.

Tell your children about their great grandparents and great-great grandparents; what lands they came from, why they came to this country and under what conditions. If you do not know, ask older members of the family.

Talk to your teenagers about our Viet Nam War casualties in Canada. Let them know how you feel. Find out what their opinions are.

Buy an American Heritage book about our country's history. If your children are not old enough to read, they can look at the pictures.

A perfect opportunity to think especially about our country is during Constitution Week. How long has it been since most of us have read the Constitution?

September 17 through 23 is Constitution Week, so designated by Public Law #915 in 1956. This year we will be celebrating the 187th birthday of the adoption of our Constitution. On September 17, 1787, 39 delegates from 12 of the original states, meeting in Philadelphia, signed the Constitution of the United States, making it now the oldest Constitution still in active use in the world. This Magnum Opus replaced the weak Articles of Confederation which governed the states from independence in 1781 to 1789 when the new government was convened.

Celebrate Constitution Week by getting a copy of the Constitution in the library or in an old history book and start reading. There are only seven Articles and twenty-six amendments but what a wealth of insight and foresight they harbor. Read again the rights, privileges, and duties guaranteed to us under the Constitution.

George Washington, in his "Farewell Address" said,

"This government, the offspring of our own choice, uninfluenced and unawed, adopted upon full investigation and mature deliberation completely free in its principles, in the distribution of its powers uniting security with energy, and containing within itself a provision for its own amendment, has a just claim to your confidence and support."

We can only feel love of country by knowing and understanding its principles and history. Let's foster that knowledge in our children!

LIBRARY NOTES

Riddle Exhibit

To isolate the important and to convey to the viewer what he sees as interesting and beautiful is the purpose of the photographs of Paul Riddle which are on display at the Bethlehem Public Library through the month of September.

Mr. Riddle, a resident of Delmar is studying Photography at Ohio University.

This exhibit consists of photographs, black and white and color, taken in the area surrounding Athens and south-eastern Ohio.

Also on exhibit in the Bethlehem Public Library during September are Apothecary Memorabilia from the collection of Dr. Lawrence M. Gifford. These are in the display case near the Circulation Desk.

Now that school is back in session, it is time to think about homework and research assignments. The Bethlehem Public Library has a new reference tool to help all you downtrodden students. The Library has the brand new 15th edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica. This encyclopedia is a new concept and a complete revolution in encyclopedia making. It is more than a reference work, it is an educational instrument also.

For research, or merely curiosity about a new concept in encyclopedias, stop in the Bethlehem Public Library to see the new Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Delmar Dolphins Victorious

A major victory for the Dolphins at the outstanding area AAU Swim Meet of the year! The 1974 Adirondack District A.A.U. Long Course Championship Meet was hosted by the Delmar Dolphin Swim Club and the Town of Bethlehem Parks and Recreation Department at the Elm Avenue Park 50 meter championship pool on August 23-25.

Winning the "Boys Team Trophy" were the Delmar Dolphin Senior Boys who scored decisively in their age group. These boys also scored a major portion of the 489 boys team points which enabled the Dolphins to win the overall boys team trophy with the highest team score ever attained at this annual championship meet. This victory is impressive as more than 20 swim teams from the Northeastern part of New York State were represented.

The outstanding individual senior swimmer for the Dolphins was Malcolm Cooper who scored 67-1/2 points with a perfect record — winning 9 gold medals.

Nearly 1000 swimmers, coaches, officials and spectators participated in this major meet on a beautiful weekend at the Town Park. A note of thanks to our Town officials for making this meet possible is certainly in keeping with Mr. Kohinke's most cordial welcome to our swimmers and guests who enjoyed the use of our town's outstanding recreation complex for the meet.

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE TOWN OF BETHLEHEM:

A huge measure of thanks is in order for the District voters, from our new adult voters to our senior citizens, for overwhelmingly returning interscholastic sports to Bethlehem Central Schools.

A special vote of thanks to the over 3,000 people who signed enabling petitions, the hundreds of people who got out to the voters to explain the issues involved, all the students who were so eager to help in any way, and to all the concerned people who made the effort to vote.

Your combined endeavors will be fully appreciated by the entire student body. Thank you.

First Male to Join

Sheepishly admitting his chauvinistic membership in the Young Men's Christian Association, James M. Stewart of Albany, today became the first male to gain membership in the Women's Press Club of New York State.

The Women's Press Club which draws its 75 members from the electronic and print media, public relations and advertising, revised its constitution last May, allowing men to join for the first time.

Mr. Stewart, assistant headmaster of Saint Agnes School in Loudonville, was presented a letter of acceptance and welcomed to the club by President Grace Amodeo, public relations director, St. Peter's Hospital, Albany.

Stewart, assistant headmaster for seven years, is a graduate of State University of New York at Albany and currently enrolled in graduate courses. He is a member of the Education Committee of the New York branch, American Civil Liberties Union, the First Unitarian Church of Albany and Citizens for a County Executive.

He and his wife, Martie, reside at 40 Maple Avenue, Albany.

Cooper at Swim Meet

Now what could 17-year-old Malcolm Cooper of Delmar and 14-year-old Mary Beth Pechloff of Kingston have in common?

This weekend, Cooper won all six individual events he entered, just like Mary Beth.

He set four meet records, and led the Delmar Dolfin boys to the team championship.

The performance of these and other local youngsters made it a successful day for the Metroland contingent.

Chicken Barbeque a Success

Selkirk Fire Co. #3 held their annual Chicken Bar-B-Que on Sunday at South Bethlehem Firehouse. The affair was well attended. A great time was had by all.

We wish to thank all those who so nicely contributed to our prizes etc. and also to those who worked so hard to make this occasion a success.

New Scotland Town Park

Residents of the Town of New Scotland may soon be enjoying the benefits of their own town park facilities if the plans of Town Supervisor Steve Wallace become a reality.

According to Mr. Wallace, the town has an option to purchase a tract of approximately 60 acres facing on Swift Road and backing up on the Salem Hills section of Voorheesville which is being considered for this purpose.

The development of this area, which would extend over a period of 7-8 years, is planned eventually to include picnic areas, two ball fields, tennis courts, a swimming pool, bicycle trails and outdoor ice-skating facilities during the winter months.

First priorities will be given to the development of the picnic areas and one of the two proposed ball fields, with an eye towards having these ready for use by the summer of 1975.

Monies for the land acquisition are presently available and consideration of the overall project is being advanced by permissive referendum. The actual park development will be financed by revenue-sharing funds which the town receives from the federal government.

According to Mr. Wallace, with the development spread over a period of time and the availability of the federal revenue-sharing funds, which by law must be assigned to a specific local project, the effect on the town's tax rate would be minimal, if any.

"The way these revenue-sharing funds work, if we don't utilize them for the benefit of our township, we could eventually lose out on time altogether," Mr. Wallace stated.

If the plan to purchase the land is successful, the Town of New Scotland would be on its way to joining its neighboring Towns of Bethlehem and Guilderland in providing park and recreational accommodations for their respective residents. At this point, the town would then engage the services of a professional engineer to work on a one-shot, consulting basis in conjunction with the Town Board and the town recreation committee to obtain the maximum utility from the proposed park acreage.

Mr. Wallace commented that while the Swift Road park project will receive the attention at the present time, "hamlet" parks are being considered for other parts of the township to provide basketball and ice-skating facilities for residents in those areas. He also stressed the fact that the New Scotland landfill on Flat Rock Road could eventually be developed for park purposes when its use as a landfill has been exhausted. "We'd be one leg up on that one," he said, "as the town already owns the land."

Commenting upon the total project, Mr. Wallace said that the idea of a park and recreational area for the enjoyment of Town of New Scotland residents had long been in his mind, and the possibility of accomplishing it without increasing the tax burden to the town's residents — the elderly who are living on fixed incomes and the younger people who are struggling to make ends meet in the face of present-day infla-

NEWS OF TRAVEL

THE QUESTION OF YOUR VACATION

Q. In the interests of the national economy, should I cancel my 1974 vacation?

A. Not at all. It could actually hurt the economy to curtail your travel plans now. The $61 billion travel industry is a vital branch of American business and if tourism is cut off, the repercussions could effect employment all across the country.

Q. Will the energy crisis make it too difficult for me to make travel plans now?

A. You can still have fun if you make your plans with care—and expert advice. Your travel agent can be a tremendous help. If you're up in the air about transportation, it might put you on cloud nine to know that there are still plenty of airline seats available, and your travel agent is the one who can help you into one of them. He'll also show you which countries are the most economical to see these days, and just how much it will cost. Check to see if the agent is a member of the American Society of Travel Agents (ASTA), the largest professional travel trade organization in the world. A travel agent will have up-to-the-minute news of planes, prices, schedules, tariffs, surcharges, and practically every aspect of today's complicated travel world where circumstances can vary from week to week and place to place. He handles information about an armful of travel-connected items, too—hotels, airport conditions, climate, sightseeing, ground transportation, fuel availability, even theater tickets.

Your ASTA travel agent can help you to a terrific trip that won't hurt the economy.

MEET A NEIGHBOR

Starting this fall instruction in ART will be available at the studio of TOM McDOWELL, 490 Kenwood Ave., Delmar. Joining with him is PHIL SMELTZER, also of Kenwood Ave. Both men are life-long professional artists.

Mr. McDowell started with a Fine Arts Degree from Syracuse University and was a poster artist with Buckley RKO Theatres in Albany. After about 10 years with the G.E. Co. Advertising Dept. as an artist, he had his own studio in New York City and returned to this area in 1952.

Mr. Smeltzer, originally from Buffalo, has been a recognized artist in this area for many years. Besides his commercial work he has placed in many juried shows and has won prizes not only locally but statewide.

A small Saturday morning class is now forming. Whether you are very young, a Senior Citizen, beginner or advanced, you are invited to apply for instruction in your favorite medium, oil, watercolor, pastel, acrylic. Mr. McDowell's phone no. is 439-1758; Mr. Smeltzer's no. is 439-5319.

JOTTINGS

Joni

Such a great satisfaction is that of making your Christmas gifts. If you haven't started yet, you had better get started soon. There are only approximately 14 weeks left.

One thing I enjoy making is candy. It is so much fun to make and not as hard as you may think. The only problem is finding a store that sells candy making supplies such as molds, flavorings and lollipop sticks. If anyone knows of such a store, won't you please let me know. I'm sure there are others who would also like to know.

Get busy and have fun making those gifts.

Marine News

Marine PFC C.K. Stinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Stinson of Route 1, Delmar, participated in "Express Charger," a training exercise near the Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, N.C. He joined with Marines from the Pacific and Atlantic commands, taking part in maneuvers designed to test the operational readiness and coordination of Marine air and ground support units. Stinson serves with the 8th Marine Regiment at Camp Lejeune.

Marine Sgt. William T. Pelletier, son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Pelletier of 49 Thatcher St., Selkirk, has reported for duty at Marine Corps Air Station at Beaufort, S.C.

Marine Cpl. Jerry J. Fiscoaletti, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Fiscoaletti of 1309 New Scotland Road, Slingerlands, was promoted to his present rank while serving with Force Troops at the Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, N.C.

BRING OUT THE BUBBLY!

Where you find stars, you'll probably find champagne. Celebrity celebrations are usually afloat with the sparkling stuff. And discriminating luminaries—who can afford to drink anything—often chose Moët & Chandon, the royal family of winedom—in many cases just about all the time!

For her dinner party, given by Raoul Griffenwald at Santa Monica's exclusive Le Cellier restaurant, guest of honor Cloris Leachman requested Dom Ruinat. This superb, hard-to-get vintage has long been the famous actress' favorite. An Academy Award winner ought to have good taste, and Cloris certainly has!

It seems that saloonkeepers in Oroville, California (pop. 8,000) are busily stocking up on Dom Perignon, 1969 and other rare years, prior to the filming of The Clansman. The movie stars Lee Marvin and Richard Burton, whose Elizabeth is never far behind. Liz drinks only Dom P.—on the rocks. Guess that's one privilege of being a B.P.

But everybody can feel like a Beautiful Person by stocking up on champagne, that wine of wines, and indulging in it whenever a moment of levity strikes!

Dorsey Attending FBI Academy

Detective Sergeant Leo E. Dorsey of the Town of Bethlehem, Delmar, who is assigned to the Youth Division said he was never quite sure what the FBI National Academy (NA) in Quantico, Virginia, was all about, but now he knows — work.

Dorsey, 34, a 12-year veteran of the department, is among 247 policemen midway through the exhaustive 12-week course of study and he is convinced that he is a better man for the work.

"The instruction is great because the instructors (all seasoned FBI Agents) take a lot of time with you. I'm going to take a lot back to my department, there is no question about that," Dorsey said.

Organized in 1935, the NA provides in-depth training in a wide range of law enforcement related subjects. More than 8,000 of the finest policemen in this country and nations throughout the free world have successfully completed training at the NA, which is now housed in a spacious and modern complex about 40 miles south of Washington.

Assistant Director Joe David Jamieson, head of the FBI Training Division, points out that FBI Director C.M. Kelley stresses that the underlying positions and principles of the NA are to enhance a man's progress and prepare him for a role of leadership in law enforcement.

Each of the men attending the NA is exposed to courses in the management sciences, behavioral sciences, and forensic sciences as well as classwork in law, education communications arts, and law enforcement arts. A total of from 14 to 16 hrs. of undergraduate credit can be obtained through the University of Virginia by those completing the course work. Physical fitness is emphasized and attendees participate in a rigorous physical training program.

"Just as important as the classroom work, though, is the affiliation with the other policemen," Dorsey explained. "The friendships I am making will last a lifetime and I am learning about law enforcement problems and solutions that are hard to measure in degrees of importance to my career."

When Detective Sergeant Dorsey graduates in September he will return to his department, but the learning process will not end. After graduation he will become a member of the National Academy Associates, an organization of NA graduates, nearly 5,000 of whom are still active in law enforcement. The members meet at regular intervals to exchange views and information and to rekindle friendships.

THE LATEST IN AUDIO-VISUAL EQUIPMENT is utilized at the FBI Academy by officers attending the National Academy. Here, Sergeant Leo E. Dorsey, listens to a taped lecture on one of many topics offered to the attendees.
