Aren't You Fed Up Yet?

In the last two years there have been less than 1% of dissenting votes on resolutions before the Town Board.

Is our town government so good that over 99% of what is proposed is unanimously adopted. We don't think so!

Historically the American system of checks and balances has depended upon one party keeping the other honest and responsive. For over 40 years Republican decisions have dominated our town government. We need balanced representation.

He is also an active member of the Onesquethaw Vol. Fire Co., the Clarksville Community Church, Cub Scout Pack 89, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and a former school board candidate.

"I am running for Town Supervisor" Mr. Paquin said "because I feel strongly that our present town government needs new direction andfresh talent. We have been under one party domination for so long in New Scotland that our town board has grown aloof and arbitrary.

Paquin stated "I intend to run an aggressive campaign addressed to public issues affecting our town and will not engage in personal attacks. I believe the situation has reached the stage that it is imperative that we have

The pool was also used by the Boy Scouts Canoe group, and the Town sponsored class in beginning canoeing.

Mr. Robert L. Carr, Administrator for Recreation announced that this summer was the most successful year since the opening of the pool in 1974, in terms of attendance and program growth, Mr. Carr attributed the success of the program to the efforts of the outstanding staff employed by the Town this year.

People Getting Supplemental Security Income Should Report Income Changes

People getting supplemental security income payments should promptly report changes in their other income and resources to social security, according to social security officials here.

The supplemental security income program makes monthly payments to people with little or no income and limited resources who are 65 or over or blind or disabled.

'Increases or decreases in income may affect the amount of monthly supplemental security income payments," a spokesman said. "People getting supplemental security income checks should report changes or expected changes in their wages, self-employment earnings, pension payments, and other income from any source except general increases in social security benefits."

Changes can be reported by contacting any social security office.

People getting supplemental security income checks should also promptly report increases in earnings and any property they may own as well as change of address, marriage, separation, and any other circumstance that might affect their payments, the spokesman said.

The Federal supplemental security income program is run by the Social Security Administration, an agency of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

questions and answers

Q. According to my Medicare handbook, hospital insurance can help pay for skilled nursing facility care or home health care only if I've been in a hospital for 3 days in a row. Is the day I'm discharged from the hospital counted as one of these 3 days?

A. No. In figuring a 3-day hospital stay, Medicare counts the day you are admitted to the hospital, but does not count the day you are discharged from the hospital. For example, suppose you are admitted to a hospital on Monday and are discharged on Wednesday. The day of admission, Monday, would be counted; so would Tuesday. But the day of discharge, Wednesday, would not count. So, your stay would not be considered a 3-day stay. Even if you are discharged late in the day, the day of discharge does not count.

Q. My father just had an operation, and his doctor is transferring him to a skilled nursing facility. I've heard that Medicare pays for skilled nursing facility care only under certain conditions. Is that true?

A. Yes. Medicare's hospital insurance can help pay for care in a skilled nursing facility only if these conditions are met: (1) the patient has been in a hospital at least 3 days in a row before his transfer to the skilled nursing facility, (2) he is transferred to the facility because he requires care for a condition which was treated in the hospital, (3) he is admitted to the facility within a short time (generally 14 days) after he leaves the hospital, (4) a doctor certifies that he needs, and he actually receives, skilled nursing or rehabilitation services on a daily basis, and (5) the facility's Utilization Review Committee does not disapprove his stay.

You can retire and get social security checks as early as age 62.

Social security benefits are not subject to Federal income

The social security contribution taken out of your earnings today means financial protection for you and your family tomorrow.

If you lose your social security card, contact any social security office. The people there will help you get a new card.

Be sure to apply for Medicare protection 2 or 3 months before you reach 65.

More than 95 percent of the population over 65 have medical insurance protection under Medicare.

Vitamins: Essential Nutrients

Vitamins play an essential role in a person's mental and physical well-being. In fact, without vitamins, the body cannot function.

According to scientists at Hoffmann-La Roche Inc., a leading producer of vitamins, the amount of vitamins needed varies from person to person and can change duringdifferent times of life. For example, a woman's requirements can increase during pregnancy. And, through the rapid growing years of children, during illness, or during rigorous dieting, vitamin needs increase.

To help measure the levels of nutrients essential for your health, the Federal Food and

"Understanding Your Child"

DON'T TELL HIM IT'S GOOD FOR HIM

Getting a kid to take medication is the same as getting him to eat spinach. If you tell him it's good for him-forget it!

This is good advice to remember the next time you have to give your child medicine. Especially timely in view of the growing parental interest in aspirin substitutes for children, stemming from increasing medical evidence that aspirin and aspirin-based analgesics may have harmful side effects in some instances.

It's known that there are many aspirin-sensitive persons. People with allergies, sensitive stomachs and anemia are particularly prone, and that obviously includes many children.

Doctors, too, are becoming increasingly concerned over the aspirin-sensitivity of their patients, adults as well as children, and are now widely recommending a non-aspirin alternative, Tylenol, which offers the same effective pain relief but without aspirin's side effects.

Equally important to parents, says Dr. John C. Maerz, medical director of McNeil Laboratories, Inc., is the fact that many doctors believe these non-aspirin analgesics are safer for the control of fever in infants and young children because they do not produce a potentially serious condition called "therapeutic toxicity" which has been observed frequently when small children are given even small, repeated doses of aspirin. The risk is present when aspirin is given to feverish young children, who experience a loss of body fluids through excessive sweating, diarrhea or vomiting.

Since youngsters won't usually take the regular tablets, good-tasting chewable tablets, drops and elixir have been developed them. If you tell a kid it tastes good, he may be skeptical, but he'll usually take a chance. If he likes it, you're home free.

Pediatric pain-relievers are often formulated in different strengths for different age levels and come in a variety of flavors. The liquid forms of Tylenol may be administered with milk or formula, juices or carbonated beverages.

That may be a sneaky way to get a kid to take his medicine, but it saves much wear and tear on exasperated parents at home and on nurses in hospital pediatric wards.

Drug Administration developed guidelines called the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowances (U.S. RDA). These guidelines suggest the daily intake of vitamins and minerals needed to maintain a positive state of health.

The U.S RDA list includes 12 essential vitamins: A, D, E, C, B₆, B₁₂, folic acid, thiamine (B₁), riboflavin (B₂), niacin (B3), H (biotin) and pantothenic acid.

Bicentennial Award

Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, author of 19 books including the famous "The Power of Positive Thinking," was presented a "Spirit of America" award by David L. Gibson, president of Sarah Coventry, Înc., world-leading sellers of costume jewelry. The Newark, New York State-based firm chose Dr. Peale as recipient of this special Bicentennial award for his outstanding contributions to the moral and religious spirit of the American people. The Company feels that Dr. Peale's philosophy for living has done much to enrich the quality of American life.

Dr. Peale has been minister of Marble Collegiate Church for 43 years. He has written 19 books, including the famous "The Power of Positive Thinking," which has been translated into 33 languages. Accepting the "Spirit of America" award, from Dave Gibson, Dr. Peale remarked, "Companies such as yours, in my judgement, will save not only the American economy but the Spirit of America. Positive thinking, the idea of sharing, enthusiasm and a sound faith in God are needed by our country during these times of hardship and faltering hopes. We must renew, constantly, the vitality, strength, courage and belief that have been passed down to us from our heritage, to face the crises we are going through today.'

MAKING FAMILY LIFE MORE FUN

ARE YOU A FIRST-RATE MATE?

Do you have a perfect heart with you. memory? Are you absolutely consistent? Proud of being well-adjusted?"

If you've answered "yes" to all these questions, beware! These are three of the six "deadly virtues" that can mar your marriage. To find out about these deadly virtues and how you rate, try this quiz.

If you get six right, you're a first-rate mate. Two to five right means that you can probably find ways to make your marriage a little more exciting. One or none? Back up and make a fresh beginning!

Choose either (a) or (b), whichever you think applies to you:

1. Have you (a) a perfect memory, (b) do you forget certain things said during a quarrel?

Answer: (b) The best mates are often shockingly weak in the memory department. Last night's tiff - when certain wounding remarks were shouted on both sides - is somehow, for these mates, almost impossible to recall even the next morning! And a really first-rate mate might suggest a weekend trip away from home that can say "Even if I don't remember, I'm sorry," "Let's make up" and "I love you," rolled into one. Staying at a Holiday Inn for a few days is a beautiful way to erase arguments and create a second honeymoon atmosphere to carry a marriage triumphantly through a potential crisis. All the comforts of life are there; you bring the things of the

2. Are you (a) "well-adjusted" (b) are you still fighting the great battle to get ahead, realize your talents, and make the most of your opportunities?

Answers: (b) If you and your mate are working in harmony to get the things you want out of life, your marriage is not in danger of surrendering to the boredom of the "well-adjusted couple" - too often simply another name for the couple which has fallen into a rut.

3. Are you (a) very consistent in your habits, appearance, likes and dislikes (b) full of surprises and an occasional contradiction?

Answer: (b) If you suspect your mate can tell what you're going to say before you say it, what you'll serve or who you'll bring home for dinner, then you should develop a new enthusiasm, meet new friends, learn new recipes. If your husband makes you feel "invisible" — a complaint often heard by marriage counselors - he may need not a new viewpoint but a new view.

4. Are you (a) completely objective (b) are you inclined to brag a little in public about your husband or your wife?

Answer: (b) Marriage is not the witness stand. When you tell anecdotes to others, make sure it's you - not your mate who is the butt of the joke. When your spouse looks especially nice on a gala evening, tell him or her so in front of your friends.

5. Are you (a) a perfectionist (b) are you sometimes ridiculously easy to please?

Answer: (b) Perhaps the most neglected, overlooked, or misunderstood miracle in early married life is your mate's intense desire to please you. A private language expressed in gestures of affection (such as favorite dishes, certain kinds of flowers, coffee in bed) naturally wants to grow. But you shouldn't insist that this 'private language" be too complicated to learn or too easy to be misunderstood because of your overly high expectations. What if the coffee served in bed is a little weak? This is no time for a lecture on how to make good coffee.

6. Are you (a) emotionally mature (b) still romantically minded about your mate?

Answer: (b) You can be a stable individual - holding your job, paying your bills, bringing up the children, and contributing to the community - and still preserve many romantic gestures in your marriage. For couples who work to keep romance alive, something of youth will always remain in their marriages, even through their golden wedding anniversary.

BETHLEHEM TO KICK-OFF BICENTENNIAL FESTIVITIES

The Bicentennial to most Americans signifies 200 vears of freedom and history. However, on Friday, September 19, 1975, residents in the Town of Bethlehem will celebrate 366 years of history through "Henry Hudson Day." It was on September 19, 1609 that Henry Hudson landed in the area which later became known as the Town of Bethlehem. To emphasize the importance of the day, the Bethlehem Bicentennial Commission proudly announces the following program for the day: At 2 P.M. at Town Hall Mr. Neal Moylan, a member of the New York State Bicentennial Commission will present Town Supervisor, Harry Sheaffer with an American Revolution Bicentennial flag and scroll which officially designates Bethlehem a Bicentennial community. This honor has been bestowed on us by the National Bicentennial Administration. Town Hall will be open all day and refreshments will be served from 2 P.M. to 4 P.M. that day. You will see many of the men and women at Town Hall dressed in co-Ionial attire. The public is cordially invited to attend.

At 6 P.M. on Sept. 19, the ceremonies will move down to the town park in Cedar Hill (located off Route 144, Cedar Hill in Selkirk). The program for the evening includes the unveiling of a marker officially naming the area "Henry Hudson Park." Remarks will be delivered by Harry Sheaffer, Town Supervisor and Mrs. Ruth Bickel, general chairman of the Bethlehem Bicentennial Commission. Music will be provided by the Village

To help promote an interest in the day, several banks in the town will be distributing buttons to the residents. The button is a commemorative souvenir honoring Hudson's landing in this area. They will be available to the public on Monday, Sept. 15, 1975 at the following banks: Community State Bank, Manufacturer's Hanover, Nationa Commercial Bank and Trus Co., Banker's Trust Co., Cit and County Savings Bank Union National Bank, Stat Bank of Albany, and Nationa Savings Bank. There is limited supply so hurry to ge a souvenir of the occasion.

In closing, the Bethleher Bicentennial Commission wishes to publicly express it appreciation to the abovementioned banks for their sponsoring these buttons an also thank the merchants in the Town who are sponsoring add and programs to help make "Henry Hudson Day" huge success. September 19 1975 promises to be a day that residents in the Town of Bethlehem will not forget.

Photography Aids Learning

Would you like to help your child become a better student? One way to do just that, according to a panel of distinguished educators and psychologists, is to encourage your elementary school to use simple photography as a teaching aid for learning in general and reading specifically.

Meeting at the national "Photography As A Fourth R" symposium, sponsored by Popular Photography magazine, educational experts concluded that photography was a "powerful tool" which could make significant contributions to the learning and personality development of children.

"As an educational tool, photography can have an incalculable impact on learning," asserted educator Dr. Renee Queen, who is convinced that few teaching aids provide more of learning's basic building blocks. "On the intellectual level, photography helps the young child develop critical skills in perception, conceptualiza-tion, verbalization, and decision-making."

Sidney Holtz, publisher of Popular Photography and a former teacher, believes "a major reason many youngsters don't approach their full potential in school is because of a poor self-image." This opinion is shared by Dr. Lewis R. Wolberg, the eminent psychiatrist. Photography provides children with a unique means for developing the "assertiveness, the independence and a sense of identity so crucial to a positive self-image," stated the founder of the Postgraduate Center for Mental Health.

Educators and psychologists participating in the symposium advocated the inclusion of photography in the elementary school curriculum. The magazine has been working on a national "Photography As A Fourth R" program to bring this about.

Hobby Popularity Boom . . .

Ancient Craft of Ceramics

FRESNO, CA -- Ceramics, a craft nearly as old as civilization, is mushrooming in popularity. Molding objects in soft clay and firing them to stonelike hardness provided early man with basic implements. such as vessels for food and drink and an ait form to pay homage to his gods

Today the urge to create useful and money-saving objects through ceramics captures the imagination of both young and old. And hobby ceramics is much simpler than the techniques used in the centuriesold craft. Instead of handforming objects in clay, hobbyists pour liquid clay into molds, available at hobby shops, or simply skip the mold stage by purchasing preformed objects ready for decorating.

A wide range of finishes and colors in both stains and glazes and decorating techniques allow hobbyists to individually personalize their work. And the lack of a kiln, to transform glazes into brilliant flows of color and the clay into a protective hardness, is no barrier to beginning hobbyists. Kilns are available for use at local hobby shops.

An indication of the hobby's popularity, Duncan Ceramics (Fresno, Calif.), the leading manufacturer of hobby ceramic supplies, conducts a ceramics instruction program to train and certify ceramic teachers. Since 1944 the company has trained more than 11,000 teachers. Most of these teachers run local ceramic studios and are willing to pass on their knowledge free of charge in return for the beginner purchasing supplies from the studio.

For those wishing to train themselves and keep aware of evolving decorating techniques, Duncan publishes monthly a "how-to-do-it" magazine. It contains illustrations and easy step-by-step instructions for making ceramic objects. Though only three years old the monthly publications subscription list totals more than 83.000.

Many people are attracted to ceramics by the desire to economically hand-make gifts that convey a personal expression of the hobbyist. To keep apace with hobbyists' almost insatiable appetite for new objects hundreds of new molds are introduced yearly, ranging from utility pieces to beautiful objects d'art.

If you are interested in investigating hobby ceramics. check the yellow pages in your phone book under "Ceramic Equipment and Supplies." There's probably a studio in your locality.

AMERICA'S HERITAGE

HIGHLIGHTS OF AMERICAN HISTORY

MRS, MURRAY DELAYING THE BRITISH OFFICERS

Did Mrs. Murray's social tactics delay the British officers and allow General Washington and his troops to flee the hot-pursuing Red Coats?

Not so, modern historians conclude. They doubt that the British generals could be easily diverted from their duty by accepting Mrs. Murray's gracious invitation.

The question in debate focuses on the retreat of about 10,000 Continental soldiers from Brooklyn Heights to Manhattan on the night of August 29, 1776, beneath dark and dense fog and tense enemy pursuit. General Washington opted to concentrate his forces along the Harlem River up to Kingsbridge, leaving General Israel Putnam and his 3,500-man force to guard the city.

Two weeks of idleness had passed before British and Hessian troops launched a surprise attack on the Island of Manhattan in a bold venture to occupy New York City. General Sir William Howe spearheaded the charge on September 15th, landing at Kip's Bay, and surprising General Washington.

Howe's army tracked Washington and his troops into the wilderness, but did not follow through in cornering the trapped American soldiers.

F.C. Yohn's painting, "Delaying the British Officers," represents the theory that the British generals didn't follow up their advance because Mrs. Robert Murray of Murray Hills, N.Y., a staunch revolutionary supporter, had invited the officers to her home for refreshments. The painting is part of a collection owned by The Continental Insurance Companies.

The inference is that Mrs. Murray tried to occupy the enemy leaders in order to give the Americans a chance to escape from the British. Some believe, however, that the generals may have accepted Mrs. Murray's invitation only after attaining their immediate objective—to clear the rebels out of New York City.
