A Bill talks about a bill

"Control the energy you use and you control the cost!"

Reggie McKenzie is a Niagara Mohawk customer. He's also a member of the Buffalo Bills' "electric company" offensive line. O.J. calls this big NFL footballer "my main man."

Reggie lives here year 'round and knows the problems of winter. Here he shows some of the steps which can be taken to help keep energy costs under control... steps you too can take that will result in money-saving benefits at your home.

Winter follows football. In Niagara Mohawk country winter means mean weather. And when we live here, we have to face up to the high costs of winter.

We can do something to control costs. Good insulation keeps cold out and heat in. Have sidewall and attic insulation checked by reputable professionals.

Gaps next to doors and alongside windows often need recaulking. Weatherstripping which is old and worn may need replacing. Both steps are worth the cost and the effort.

Have your heating system examined and cleaned. Clean or replace the filters. Keep your furnace from working too hard and you'll save money!

Set your thermostat as low as comfort permits. Try 68° days and 65° nights. Not too low or the furnace will have to work harder in the morning.

Fireplace dampers should be closed when not needed to keep heat from escaping. But... be sure you open the damper when you start your next fire.

Make certain lamps, TV sets, and major appliances are turned off when not needed. It's amazing what's wasted just by neglecting to flick a switch to "off."

Good storm windows and storm doors help keep heat in and cold out. I help a friend get ready for winter. Saving juice is always a good idea. I do it all the time.

Good advice about controlling energy costs is available free at any Niagara Mohawk office. Or write.* Follow advice on energy saving and help keep your bill under control.

*Write for free "The Meter Minder's Guidebook" to Reggie McKenzie, Niagara Mohawk Power Corporation, 300 Erie Blvd. W., Syracuse, NY 13202.

Glenmont neighbors meeting: Mrs. Betty Van Oostenbrugge, Supervisor Sheaffer, William B. Strong at Selkirk.

GLENMONT

A roasting at the fire house

In many respects the two meetings were similar: articulate speakers, thoughtful audiences listening intently and asking questions, an orderly discussion of public issues, and a strong political thread one week to the day before election day. But beyond that they were poles — and seven miles — apart.

In the community room of the Bethlehem Library some 35 people concentrated on a Candidates Night forum sponsored by the local chapter of the League of Women Voters. All the candidates but one in Tuesday's major contests took their turn at the microphone at the informational session.

On the same evening in the southeast corner of town, some 75 Bethlehem residents sat in another "information meeting" this one at the Selkirk fire hall. This session was sponsored by the Committee of Concerned Citizens and the subject was the impending establishment of a federal Job Corps youth rehabilitation facility in the unoccupied seminary at Cedar Hill, a project the neighbors have fought for five months.

The meetings were a prelude to an eleventh-hour political tug-of-war between Congressman Samuel S. Stratton and an aroused group of citizens from Bethlehem's river communities along Rt. 144. Speakers at the Selkirk gathering spent most of their time verbally lambasting the actions and words of Stratton and the Albany Knickerbocker News. Stratton claimed responsibility for bringing about the Job Corps decision to establish the center at Our Lady of Angels seminary. The Knickerbocker News has campaigned editorially in favor of the project. Property owners in the neighboring communities, who had vigorously and vainly fought the proposal, roasted Stratton and the Knick and publicly called for a protest vote on election day against the Amsterdam legislator whose popularity elsewhere in the 28th congressional district is virtually unchallenged.

Bethlehem Supervisor Harry H. Sheaffer reassured the fire hall audience that the town government "will do everything in our power to make this injunction stick" and declared town hall "will cooperate in any way we can" with the citizens group. On Stratton he said: "This is an example of how our elected representatives have allowed themselves to be stepped on and used by government agencies and have not represented the people."

Across town in the library the audience missed what might have been a lively debate 20 minutes later when Sheaffer arrived to find the doors locked. The library closes at 9 p.m., but the candidates' meeting lasted until 10:30. Unable to attract the attention of a custodian after his quick trip from the Selkirk session, Sheaffer went home. He would have been in time to hear Stratton's presentation, which included a point-by-point defense of his actions in the Job Corps controversy. It was as if Stratton had been in the fire hall and was making his rebuttal. Ironically, James Hohman, Knickerbocker News's Bethlehem reporter, was in the library audience and missed the tirades against his paper in Selkirk.

The Stratton-Glenmont feud heated up in the final week before election and took on all the aspects of a mini-campaign. The congressman spoke before the Kiwanis Club of Delmar in Glenmont Monday night and repeated his Job Corps stand, devoted more time to it at the library meeting the following night, issued a press release to Albany and Delmar reporters Tuesday, and mailed a two-page single-space letter to voters in the Selkirk-Van Weis Pt. election districts on Wednesday. The letter landed in the mailboxes of Bethlehem's 6th and 19th voting districts simultaneously with a two-page letter from the Concerned Citizens' steering committee urging a demonstrative vote against Stratton.

In his letter explaining his stand, Stratton added that "the story recently in the press about Oneonta fighting to take the Job Corps away from Glenmont and being prevented by 'congressional politics' is a total fabrication." An article in the Knickerbocker News on Oct. 25 had quoted Oneonta Mayor James Lettis as saying the battle over the final site for the upstate center "got into congressional politics and Sam Stratton came out ahead."

In all his final-week communications Stratton has insisted that if his one-year trial run proposal for the training center is not successful, he will take the responsibility for seeing that the center is closed. "If it damages the community, out it goes" he said in a press statement. "I intend to make sure the Corps lives up to its promises," he wrote the Glenmont voters. "If it doesn't I will be the first to order them out."

JOB CORPS

Where to turn for news stories?

Few things are as quickly perishable as news stories. In the coverage of the Job Corps controversy in Glenmont since the lease, signed in secret, came to light last July 1, Albany's two daily newspapers have depended largely on public announcements and meetings for their stories, which has produced a varied pattern. Witness:

- On Sept. 23, the Spotlight reported "the U.S. Dept. of Labor has decided to proceed with plans to establish a Job Corps youth rehabilitation center . . . in Glenmont."

- On Sept. 24 Albany Times Union and Knickerbocker News reported that Dept. of Labor officials had denied that a decision had been made on the Glenmont site.

- On Sept. 30 the Spotlight reported that "official confirmation will come on or about Oct. 8 in the form of an announcement of the award of a $1.75-million contract to Singer, ITT or American Technical Assistance Corp."

- On Oct. 6 Dept. of Labor officials held a press conference in a downtown Albany motel to announce that a Job Corps training center would be established at the Glenmont site on a one-year trial basis.

On the contract

- On Sept. 23, the Spotlight reported that the management contract to be awarded to a private contractor for the administration of the Glenmont center would be "approximately $1,750,000," and that the three bidders were the Singer Company, American Technical Assistance Corp. and International Telephone & Telegraph Co. (ITT). Labor Dept. officials would not confirm the story, and it was not picked up by the city dailies.

- On Oct. 7, the same day Albany dailies were carrying stories of the Oct. 6 press conference, the Spotlight reported that Singer was the low bidder for the management contract and was expected to get the job.

- On Oct. 14 the Job Corps regional administrator telephoned the Spotlight to ask how the story on the contract had been obtained. He said no information on the contract award was available because "details are still being worked out."

- On Oct. 29 the U.S. Labor Dept. issued a news release announcing that the Singer Corporation had been chosen to operate the Glenmont center. The announcement gave the amount of the contract as $1,743,600.

campaign mailings by candidates pouring brochures and promotional pieces into the postal system.

"This is a heavy mailing period normally," observed Henry Betke, Delmar postmaster, "primarily because of business advertising and charitable organization appeals. We average 140,000 to 170,000 pieces of mail a day at this time of year even without the holiday or the election."

The influx came when the postal service was already glutted with the effects of the United Parcel Service strike,

Mail glut eases after parcel peak

A near-record volume of mail and packages that hit a peak right after the three-day semi-holiday last month has abated in local postoffices and deliveries now are back to normal.

A federal holiday on Oct. 25 (the new official Veterans' Day) that was observed by some banks, most schools and a scattering of businesses was mainly responsible for the big pileup on Tuesday the 26th. It took several days for U.S. Postal Service workers to catch up with parcels that choked postoffices and loading platforms, and with second and third-class mail.

The semi-holiday also coincided with the peak of election now in its fourth month. In a small postoffice like Voorheesville the volume is heavy because of several local industries that formerly depended on UPS for both incoming cartons as well as shipments. "It's been hectic," says Nancy D'Arpino, Voorheesville postmaster, "but we've been able to hold our own."

Edna R. Falkner, postmaster at Glenmont, said her crew had been "staying with it until the holiday weekend" despite a volume more than double the norm. Now the volume has stabilized once more. A Slingerlands postoffice worker remarked: "You can say there is literally a mountain of mail in Slingerlands." She called it the heaviest since Christmas. In Selkirk Edna Keim, officer in charge, said the postoffice there handled a heavy volume with only a few delays, but added: "We weren't geared for this sort of thing."

League music competition

Guidelines and application forms for the 1977 Albany League of Arts music competition program are now available. Students enrolled in grades 9-12 who live within a 50-mile radius of Albany or who study with teachers whose studios are within the same area are eligible to compete. Semi-final and final competitions will be held at the SUNYA Performing Arts Center Feb. 5-6. Winners will be given the opportunity to perform as soloists with the Albany Symphony Chamber Orchestra in a concert at the State University Feb. 27.

Junior Grange to install

Bethlehem Subordinate Grange will hold installation of officers at 7 p.m. Saturday. Mrs. Helen Raynor, who attended State Grange, will speak on Junior Grange activities. Parents and friends will be invited to the open meeting. A bake sale is scheduled for Nov. 16.

BETHLEHEM

Judge grants town show cause order

U.S. Dept. of Labor officials are expected to seek a court delay on a show cause order obtained by the town of Bethlehem in a legal action to block establishment of a federal Job Corps youth training center in Glenmont.

Chief Judge James T. Foley of United States District Court sitting in Albany last Thursday approved a petition brought by the town seeking an injunction against establishing the center at the vacant Our Lady of Angels seminary on Rt. 144. The order is returnable Nov. 15 at 10 a.m. in the main courtroom in the Federal Building in Albany.

Named in the petition were the U.S. Dept. of Labor, Undersecretary of Labor William Kolberg, Pierce A. Quinlan, administrator of the department's Office of Comprehensive Employment Development, and Lawrence W. Rogers, regional administrator of the department's Manpower Administration.

"We are going to fight this in every legal way we can," Bethlehem Supervisor Harry H. Sheaffer said. His strong stand raised the possibility of a delay in the Job Corps timetable to open the center around March 1 to the first 25-member cadres of enrollees scheduled to arrive in Glenmont at two-week intervals until the full complement of 275 is reached along about July.

May delay contract

If the town's petition for an injunction against establishing the center is upheld in federal court or if the litigation drags through several appeals, it is almost certain to delay implementation of the $1.7-million management contract awarded the Singer Corp. to set up and administer the seminary facility. Labor Dept. officials announced last Friday that Singer had been selected as the contractor, thus confirming a report in the Oct. 7 Spotlight. The amount of the contract was announced as $1,743,600, which is effective as of Nov. 1 and includes a four-month startup period that makes the contract's duration 16 months to Feb. 28, 1978.

Singer officials could not be reached before this issue of the Spotlight went to press to comment on whether the company would set up a temporary office at the Glenmont site or hold off until the litigation is resolved. Currently two regional Job Corps officials from New York City are staffing an office at the seminary. They were joined this week by a clerk-typist who will also answer the telephone.

Inaccuracies claimed

In the petition for a court stay filed by Town Attorney Harry B. Rezzimini before Judge Foley, the town contended that "there is no parallel between occupancy of the premises by 110 studious and serious-minded young men and 275 male and female high school dropouts." The petition held that the Labor Dept. notice in the Oct. 8 Federal Register "contains untruths and half-truths and gives a completely false impression as to actual facts involved."

The petition also contended that:

- No environmental impact statement has been filed.
- The seminary facilities were designed to accommodate 250 seminarians and staff members rather than "in excess of 350 people as proposed by the Labor Dept."
- The seminary has limited recreation facilities, thus enrollees will have to seek recreation off the campus.
- Labor Dept. officials have "failed to fully answer questions" from local residents pertaining to the Job Corps.
- The seminary's water supply and sewage facilities are inadequate to meet the volume requirements and standards of federal, state and county regulations.

PLANNING BOARD

Developer tackles drainage problems

Developers of a proposed 35-lot single-family subdivision in Glenmont will get help from town and state engineers in working out solutions to basic drainage problems — the only item that appears to stand between them and final approval by the Bethlehem planning board.

At a public hearing on the Glen Manor development planned by A. T. Zautner & Son, Inc., there was no opposition. The project is located on the south side of Feura Bush Rd. immediately west of the Bicentennial Woods housing development. Paul Hite, land surveyor, said the site plan meets the requirements of the town's Single-A residential zone, which specifies a minimum of 8,500 square feet per lot. The developer also has approval for sewer and water connections and for an access intersection on Rt. 32.

The site plan calls for a street (Manor Dr.) from Feura Bush Rd., a cross-street (Penn Lane) connecting with a street in the Bicentennial Woods subdivision, and a cul-de-sac (Talar Ct.).

The planning board this week took election night off, marking only the second time in 1976 it had not held its weekly meeting. A new subdivision project, an eight-lot development planned for a two-acre tract on the south side of Beacon Rd. in Glenmont a short distance from the Rt. 9W intersection, is on the agenda for preliminary approval. The board set Nov. 16 for a public hearing. The project has been named Michaels' Estates by the developer, Walter Michaels.

The board is expected to give final approval next week to plans for the nine-building 36-apartment Equinox cluster development on Kenwood Ave. just east of Cherry Ave. Extension.

Asprion Rd. zone shift is approved

Bethlehem town board has adopted a rezoning amendment for an area of Glenmont, approved a $60,000 land purchase enlarging the riverfront park, and has given a tentative green light to a major Wemple Rd. town house development.

That was last week. This week the board was scheduled to sit for its annual public hearing on the town budget.

Last Wednesday's public hearing on the Glenmont rezoning proposal drew 15 persons, four of whom spoke in favor of the change from light industrial to residential classification. The area involved is in the Asprion Rd. neighborhood, and is largely undeveloped.

Unless a citizens' petition asking for a referendum appears in the next two weeks, the purchase of slightly more than an acre of Hudson Riverfront property for the estate of Edward M. Smith for $60,000 will be executed. The property adjoins the Henry Hudson park at Cedar Hill. The funds for the purchase will come from the town's reserve fund.

In a routine procedure, the board sent the planning board a recommendation to hold a public hearing on the proposed Chadwick Square housing project, Section One, on the west side of Wemple Rd. between Beacon Rd. and Feura Bush Rd. The town's seven-member planning board is expected to set an early date for the hearing.

In other actions, the board appointed Daniel R. Santola of Delmar as attorney for the board of assessors at a salary of $500 a year, and reappointed Donald M. Gillespie of Selkirk, and Mrs. Janet Matthews of Delmar to the town Council for Conservation of the Environment. Gillespie is chairman of the panel.

NEW SCOTLAND Hearing slated on annexation

The village of Voorheesville will be some 21 acres larger if the village board and the New Scotland town board both approve a land acquisition petition submitted by two landowners.

Peter Baltis and Claude Rodrigue have asked the village to annex their properties at the junction of Rts. 155 and 85A. Baltis owns nearly 20 acres that front on both highways, Rodrigue about an acre and a half on the intersection itself that contains a three-apartment dwelling.

Baltis told the Spotlight he plans to develop his property as a residential subdivision accommodating 18 building lots, and wants to have the homesites hooked into the village water system. The town does not have a water district. The proposed residences would be built on the east side of Rt. 155 between the Rodrigue property and the Delaware & Hudson right-of-way.

2 BC girls' teams gain Sectionals

Two Bethlehem Central girls' varsities have earned berths in the Section 2 post-season championship tournaments. Led by Pat McSherry, high scorer with 14 goals, the BC field hockey team finished second in the Suburban Council behind Burnt Hills and ahead of third-place Scotia. The soccer team finished 10-2 and knocked off Guilderland in a playoff for second place in the league.

Lisa Stokoe was the hockey team's next highest scorer with three goals, Mary Jean Lortie and Joyce Van Heest had two each.

Linda Allaway, Jenni Gunnel and Mandy Mason booted the goals that beat Guilderland for the soccer varsity. The freshman team was undefeated with one tie in nine games, and the junior varsity finished at 5-7.

Football Eagles endangered specie

Suburban Council football schedule-makers have done Bethlehem Central's battered Eagles no favors by sending them on the road two weeks in a row against the league's strongest teams. Humiliated by perennial champion Shenendehowa, 38-8, at Clifton Park last Saturday, BC travels to Colonie this Saturday to face a team that not only is tied with the Shens but has beaten them this season. Colonie has won five out of six in the Council, Bethlehem two of six.

The defense gave up 401 yards to the Plainsmen, which didn't give the offense much time with the ball. The Eagles will be facing another top-flight quarterback in Blythe Woodward at Colonie. Woodward's skill on roll-out options will put extra pressure on the Bethlehem ends and outside linebackers.

BC booters hot for Sectionals

Barring a letdown in the regular season finale, a makeup game at Burnt Hills this past Monday, Bethlehem Central's well-drilling soccer team will carry strong momentum into the Sectionals next week.

The Eagles are enjoying one of their best seasons, and could be the team to beat in the post-season playoffs. They won only one and tied one in their first four games, but then started to click and have since reeled off 10 wins in 11 games. They won all three games last week, gaining revenge on Columbia, 3-2, and whitewashing Niskayuna, 2-0, and Mohonasen, 3-0, and clinched second place behind Guilderland in the Suburban Council.

As of Monday morning, the Council race was still too scrambled to produce a clear lineup for the Sectionals. Four teams were fighting for the remaining two slots behind Guilderland and Bethlehem. Burnt Hills was facing a "must" game against BC Monday while Columbia was playing a showdown match against Shenendehowa, and Colonie was still in the running.

Bruce Morgan hit the strings twice in the home finale against Mohonasen, both on feeds from Lorren Elkins. Halfback Dan Weinberg, a junior, set up the other goal on a pass to Rick Mereu.

Coach Dale Walts feels the team is ready to hit the peak in the tourney. "They've really come along very well. They're getting better every week," he said.

Welcome for Job Corps

The Human Concerns committee of the Church of St.

Thomas the Apostle, Delmar, has expressed a welcome to the staff of the proposed Job Corps youth training center at Our Lady of Angels seminary in Glenmont. In a letter to John Stetson, national director of the Job Corps signed by M. E. Reagan, committee chairman, the group said: "Our welcome includes a promise of whatever expertise and assistance we can offer to encourage the residents and the program in reaching desired goals. Please be assured our offer of assistance and good will is not perfunctory."

Restaurant sold at Four Corners

The Corner Store, popular breakfast and lunch cafe at Delmar Four Corners, has a new owner this week. Albert and Irmgard Tarwerdi, who have owned the restaurant for the past four and a half years, served their last ham-and-cheese-on-a-roll with coffee Sunday, and plan to retire. Mrs. Tarwerdi will make a visit to her native Austria next month.

The new owner is Newell Cross, 40 Royal Blvd., Delmar, a local resident since 1945. Cross, 56, managed the Corner Store evenings and weekends for longtime owner Clyde Hawley for a while, then went into sales. He plans "a more diversified menu" as a result of putting in some new equipment, including a charcoal gas broiler and a microwave oven. He also is doing some painting and renovations and hopes to open this weekend.

Cross is married, has two children, two stepchildren and two grandchildren. "We also have two cats, two dogs, a horse, two parakeets and three wetpets," he said, explaining that by wetpets he means fish. The Tarwerdis came to Delmar from Utica, where they had operated a larger restaurant for nine years in the upper Oneida St. section in a building owned by Edward E. Hanna, now the controversial mayor of Utica. They purchased the Delmar business from Hawley in April, 1972.

Albert Tarwerdi, a mason by trade, is a native of Azerbaijan, a small country near the Black Sea in Asia Minor that is now part of the Soviet Union. They came to the United States in 1951. They have two children, Mrs. Ingrid Landers of Stamford, Conn., an executive secretary, and Albert, 19, a Bethlehem Central High School graduate who has been working in the family restaurant. They also have a grandson.

Letter to adults

Editor, The Spotlight:

We are, in this letter, attempting to bring to light a problem which most adults we're sure don't (or won't) think about. The problem is what to do with our town's second-class citizens, its youth. In a school system that is sought by people moving into the area, why is there no place for our young people to go after school and on weekends? We have been stopped and searched by Bethlehem's Finest for such horrid crimes as walking down the street. We have been evicted from assorted street corners, woods, parking lots and stores without causing any trouble.

"Well, why are you on the street corners in the first place?" you may ask. The simple answer is that we have no place else to go. You can't expect us to sit and watch TV on weekends — we'll become zombies.

What did you do on weekends when you were young? Were you wearing a mohair coat, drinking from a hip-flask and doing the Charleston? Or maybe you were standing on a corner flipping a nickel and swinging a watch chain. Possibly you were wearing a black leather jacket and greasing your hair. Or you had bobby sox and a pleated dress. On weekends you would go to the drive-ins and . . . well.

We know that these are unfair generalizations, but what can you expect from people who have been classified as delinquent drug-dealing derelicts?

We would like to ask the town's leaders to make a place where we can go to talk and engage in some form of entertaining activity. We would be willing to work and fix the place up. It could be almost any vacant house, store or elementary school. It may cost our taxpayers a few extra dollars (heaven forbid!) but it would be money well spent (if you are willing to spend it). After all, if the adults in our community ARE concerned about us and where we hang around, here is their chance to prove it.

We are ready to meet with the leaders of this town if they will meet with us. By the way, if you have any trouble finding us we'll be on the street corner nearest you until the town responds to this letter.

This letter was signed by nine persons. They asked their names be withheld.

lehem Central High DECA Club and the Bethlehem Police Benevolent Assn. co-sponsored a Battle of the Bands dance in the high school gymnasium. There were approximately 1,200 young people in attendance at this function.

We, the undersigned, would like to publicly express our appreciation for their excellent conduct. At times adults express disdain for the conduct of youth. However, if the proper type of activity is provided and supervision is adequate, young people appreciate any adult effort in their behalf.

Congratulations young people! Let's have the same cooperation in future activities.

Slingerlands in transition

Editor, The Spotlight:

This letter is in regard to the proposed housing project, Barnfield, in Slingerlands. I lived on Bridge St. in Slingerlands for 13 years and have seen many dramatic changes in the area. New houses and roads have been built throughout the Tri-Village area at a very rapid rate in the past few years.

For those people who are native to Slingerlands, another new development would be devastating. Slingerlands is no longer a small community made up of nicely kept older homes. It is turning into a major "look-alike" housing project.

Where are the open spaces that were once visible in Slingerlands? They are under homes and roads. There were once many wooded areas in Slingerlands where one could be alone and just walk. There were open fields where the kids used to play baseball, launch model rockets and fly kites. Where are these woods and fields? The woods are no longer there. There are new homes there — already occupied.

One field remaining is the proposed site of Barnfield. I don't feel that it's right to destroy all open land for an unnecessary housing project. I hope that this plan does not pass with the Town of Bethlehem.

Harrisburg, Pa. Laura Engel

As the book says . . .

Editor, The Spotlight:

Our merry men in Albany are said to be the highest paid legislators in the nation? Should our merry men in Albany be the highest paid legislators in the nation? Article 3, Section 6 of the Constitution of the State of New York does say the definite words that state, "Each member of the Legislature shall receive for his services an annual salary of two thousand five hundred dollars. The members of either house shall also receive the sum of one dollar for every ten miles they shall travel in going to and from their place of meeting, once in each session, on the most usual route. Senators, when the Senate alone is convened in extraordinary session, or when serving as members of the Court for the Trial of Impeachment, and such members of the Assembly, not exceeding nine members, as shall be appointed managers of an impeachment, shall receive an additional allowance of ten dollars a day." And there is a note appended to Article 3, Section 6 of our Constitution and that note does say the lay-it-on-the-line words that say "(See Legislative Law 5, restricting members from receiving $1,200 before final adjournment.)" How about that! How do our merry men in Albany come to be the highest paid legislators in the nation? Do they merely vote an increase in appropriation in the supplemental budget over the appropriation in the main budget — with the help of an opinion from some attorney general that a trick does not necessarily violate any prohibition under such-and-such a section? Hmmm?

Rome, N.Y. Mary Wrege

SPOTLIGHT on community corner

Happy Reading

It won't be long before "Old Man Winter" comes howling about your door, and it will be ideal to curl up in front of a toasty fire to read a book. But what happens if "Old Man Winter" has also dumped a pile of snow in front of your door and in your driveway? Will you be stuck with a toasty fire, but nothing to read?

No you won't. The Bethlehem Public Library is coming to your rescue with a fantastic clearance sale of discarded and donated books. To help you fill your bookshelves with plenty of reading material before the snow starts to fly, the Library has been selling all of its sale materials (books, records, and puzzles) at the remarkable low price of 10 cents. The sale will run through Dec. 31.

That's plenty of time for you to find a lot of bargains for the winter months. Happy reading!
