Justice Koreman

Not in our memory have we seen a candidate for public office who has been held in such universal high esteem as Supreme Court Justice Harold E. Koreman. He is running for reelection as a Democrat but the tributes to his past 20 years service on the bench come from members of both political parties, from independents and from his peers both on the bench and in the legal profession.

Typical of the tributes being paid Justice Koreman in support of his bid for reelection, we note the late Dean Ralph Semerad of Albany Law School has said Justice Koreman's service as surrogate judge, Supreme Court Justice and Presiding Justice of the Appellate Division, 3rd Judicial District, "make it superfluous to provide any further testimonials to his merit, capacity and stature."

Justice Koreman had a rounded experience in civil and criminal law before he was first elected to the Supreme Court in 1964. Since then he had progressed from a trial justice to positions of responsibility as administrative judge in the 3rd District, associate justice of the Appellate Division, Presiding Justice, 3rd Judicial Department, and a member of the administrative Board of the Judicial Conference. As presiding judge he has directed Supreme Court operations throughout the area and it is his work in that position which has won him such strong, bipartisan support. Retired Chief Judge Charles Desmond of the Court of Appeals describes Justice Koreman as a judge "notable for honesty, ability, learning, courtesy and hard work."

Speaking of Justice Koreman, the late Dean Semerad said last month "We are fortunate we are able to select judges like Harold Koreman. It is imperative we keep him on the job as long as we can." The Times Record heartily endorses that view and urges its readers to make certain they vote for Justice Koreman on November 8.

Democrat - Yes Independent - ? STOP KIDDING US

Democrats have their problems.

The crowd was three-deep at the bar midway through the "social hour" preceding the Bethlehem Democratic committee's annual Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner at Michael's in Latham. A man in a brown suit on the edge of the crowd turned to a passerby and remarked: "Say, isn't there anybody here from Delmar?"

Later, in the banquet hall that resembles a Hollywood movie set of Monte Carlo done in a Latham motif, Bethlehem patrons were hard to find. The crowd was predominantly Albany, heavily flavored with O'Connell machine regulars, reinforced by some Colonie and New Scotland faithful.

"It's because it's a fundraiser," explained one of the regulars. "These people buy tickets to help us in our campaign."

If town chairman Ken Thacker and vice chairman Bill Burkhard were embarrassed by the slim turnout from Bethlehem, they were happy with the results: some 270 tickets at $15 a copy for a prime rib dinner provided a welcome transfusion for the party's coffers. This is the critical year, as Thacker reminded the diners, that will put a Democrat in the supervisor's office in Delmar.

The occasion also revealed the Bethlehem committee's close tie to Albany County's notorious Democratic organization, an association that could provide Republicans with a built-in campaign rallying cry: do Bethlehem recognized for its diligence in assessment procedures, purchasing practices and fundraising techniques? Even the 10-percent jump in local Democratic enrollment might not offset the stigma of being linked to the last arch prototype of the fabled boss-dominated U.S. political machine of the 19th and early 20th centuries.

The ties were amplified at last Wednesday's festive affair by (1) a standing moment of silent prayer for Dan O'Connell, who died earlier in March at 94, and (2) the seat of honor given his No. 1 protege, Albany's venerable Mayor Erastus Corning, currently the titular leader of O'Connell Democrats.

Corning not only was seated in the first row of the speaker's dais, but was given a spot on the program with Thacker and John S. Dyson, state commerce commissioner who was the featured speaker. At a table with the general multitude was State Sen. Howard Nolan, who technically has a higher job than the mayor but not the seniority. Nolan has broken with the O'Connell bastion by challenging Corning and setting up a Democratic primary contest for mayor in September.

"Corning was seated on the dais because he is county vice chairman," explained a committee officer. "There's no more significance than that."

CAMPAIGN WRAPUP

Parties woo 'swing vote' as election key

If political leaders had a way to read the minds of sizeable segments of local voters who cross party lines for one or more reasons, they would know whether to ease up on the last weekend of the contest or double their campaigning. As it is, candidates battling for control of the town halls in Bethlehem and New Scotland can predict victory on Tuesday with crossed fingers.

In Bethlehem the political picture has changed so drastically in just two years that close observers are hesitant to forecast Tuesday's outcome. A Democratic slate headed by Edward B. Stringham, 49-year-old Delmar engineer, has waged an all-out campaign for the town's notoriously fickle electorate, by far the most aggressive drive the party has mounted in a decade. The Republicans, fighting to maintain their longtime grip on 393 Delaware Ave., have reshaped their organization under a new town chairman, revitalized their ticket with new faces and for the first time in some years have presented the image of party unity.

In New Scotland the race could be considerably closer. The Democrats got off to an early start and had momentum by the time the Republicans took to the hustings. New Scotland's GOP organization lost both council races two years ago, and with a slim 3-2 margin must win at least one council seat to retain control. Sideline pundits are watching to see if the Democrats' failure to put up a candidate for supervisor will lull the town's normal Republican constituency into further lethargy that could be costly to the pivotal board races.

Campaign issues have been easier to come by in Bethlehem than in New Scotland. Bethlehem Democrats quickly latched onto the Republicans' established custom of discussing agenda items behind closed doors in advance of the open town board meetings, the board's reluctance to publicize such matters as Job Corps negotiations and the state's plan to widen Rt. 85 in Slingerlands, and the controversial appointment of a commissioner of public safety to oversee the town's law enforcement agencies. Midway through the campaign they raised the question of an adequate water supply. The incumbent GOP cautioned against increased spending and pointed to a steady record of managing municipal services under strict cost control.

Republicans in both Bethlehem and New Scotland also were quick to elaborate on what they termed the dangers of permitting two of the county's remaining four Republican town halls to fall into the web of the Albany County political machine headed by Mayor Erastus Corning since the death earlier this year of Democratic boss Dan O'Connell.

In New Scotland the issues otherwise were basic: the Republicans pointed to their record, the Democrats pumped away on the theme that "the party's over, it's time for a change."

Shortly after 9 p.m. Tuesday the votes will be in and the electorate can go back to daily living the way it was before doorbell-pushing, campaign handouts, posters, bumper stickers, sound trucks and yard signs....for another two years, that is.

To Our Readers

Because of printing deadlines, next week's issue of The Spotlight will be on the press before Tuesday's election results are known. Consequently, there will be no election news in the Nov. 10 issue. The Nov. 17 issue will carry a full analysis and photos. Please be sure to vote.

Democratic Congressman Sam Stratton reportedly has given Democrat Ed Stringham a rare endorsement.

Budget hearing to be Wednesday

Bethlehem's town board has set next Wednesday, Nov. 9, as the date for the annual public hearing on the town budget. The board last week fixed the time of the hearing as 8 p.m. to coincide with its regular semi-monthly meeting.

The board last week adopted the 1978 tentative budget as the preliminary budget, on which the public hearing will be held. The budget includes general fund appropriations of $2.4 million, up slightly from the 1977 operating budget of $2.2 million. Supervisor Harry H. Sheaffer said the tentative budget was adopted "with substantially no changes."

Town law requires that the annual budget hearing be held on or before the Thursday following the general election, and that the final budget be adopted by Nov. 20.

The board also will hold a public hearing on sewer assessment rolls at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Water issue makes a splash

Of the half dozen issues, real or political, that Bethlehem candidates have been hanging their hats on during the 1977 campaign, the one that has made the most waves in the ebbing weeks of the race is town water.

The biggest splash was made by Edward B. Stringham, 49-year-old Delmar engineer running for supervisor on the Democratic ticket, when he introduced the issue two weeks ago. Stringham, who has based much of his campaign on his experience as a municipal engineering consultant in sewers, water systems and waste treatment, held a press conference at the water tower on Kenwood Ave. in which he charged that the town's Republican administration had permitted its water supply to reach sub-standard levels of pressure and storage capacity. He cited the water situation as an example of "our need for better planning, leadership and openness with the citizens."

The exposure Stringham got in the newspapers and on TV riled the chiefs of the town's five volunteer fire companies. In a statement, they declared, in effect, that Stringham was all wet, that there never had been a problem with water pressure in any fire emergency, and that the town's high rating in statewide fire department measurements could not have been achieved without a dependable water system. But Stringham continued to pump away on the issue, to the dismay of volunteer fire organizations that traditionally avoid any involvement in politics. Rank-and-file firemen were uncomfortable in the campaign arena, and weren't sure which party to blame - the Democrats for introducing the issue or the Republicans for appearing to capitalize on the chief's statement two weeks before the election.

This week the water issue got deeper with the release of an Oct. 17 letter from the town board to the Albany County Dept. of Health. The letter declared the board was proceeding on the installation of a 3-million-gallon standpipe, one of three alternatives recommended by an engineering consulting firm to upgrade the town's water system to accommodate the area's growth. In the letter, the board said it was taking the necessary legal and engineering steps to obtain land and financing for the project, a cylindrical storage tank 60 feet in diameter and 130 feet tall. Thomas V. Corrigan, a town councilman and Stringham's Republican opponent in the supervisor race, said the facility could be in place in as short a time as one year and "certainly within two years" depending on site acquisition and other factors.

The engineering report by J. Kenneth Fraser and Associates was commissioned by the town board in 1975 and received in September of this year. The standpipe was offered as one of three options suggested to alleviate the possibility of water pressure problems in the future.

Paul Wagner, director of operations for the town water department, said the system maintains pressure of 70 pounds per square inch regularly, but that for one period of less than one day during a protracted dry spell last year combined with a ruptured pipe in the Bicentennial Woods residential subdivision in Glenmont, the pressure dropped to the 35-40-pound range. The state minimum is 20 pounds.

Last November the town board commissioned the Myrick and Chevalier firm to proceed on Phase 2 of an engineering study to locate potential sources of additional water for the town system. Last month Supervisor Harry H. Sheaffer notified the county health department that the town board intended to draft regulations for restricting "the abusive practice of some who indiscriminately water their lawns to excess." This week Stringham warned that Bethlehem residents face periods of water use restrictions next spring.

Stringham also indicated that water pressure problems would put a crimp in construction plans for industrial plants and housing developments. Town officials said the county health department had approved the Union Ave. South subdivision, a small development in Slingerlands, on Sept. 29, the 36-unit Equinox apartment complex project at Kenwood Ave. and Cherry Ave. on Oct. 17 and an extension of Westchester Park in Delmar on Oct. 20.

BETHLEHEM
The play is on despite protest

Members of the Empire State Youth Theatre Institute are in Delmar this week, staging a controversial musical play and conducting workshops for Bethlehem Central Middle School students, but up until the middle of last week their appearance on Kenwood Ave. was in doubt.

Protests by members of the Albany area's black community that the play, based on Mark Twain's "The Story of Pudd'nhead Wilson," had strong racial overtones caused cancellation of the theatrical workshops in a number of New York State school districts, leaving Bethlehem as the only remaining forum in the state for the institute project. When a formal protest was filed in the Bethlehem district, the board of education implemented its regular procedure in such matters and set up a review committee of three teachers, the building principal and assistant principal. Several members of the board and school administration privately attended showings of the production at Empire State Plaza over the weekend.

The review panel recommended the play be presented in Bethlehem and the workshops proceed on schedule. When the school board convened in a special session on the Delmar school purchase last Wednesday, the Pudd'nhead case was added to the agenda for quick action, but the matter took nearly an hour and a half. Harry Hamilton of Elsmere, president of the Albany area chapter of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), told the board that the play contains "a lot of negative stereotypes about blacks" but added that the NAACP has not taken an official position. "We were stunned that the Empire State Youth Theatre would take this play to the schools," he said. "Somebody was not aware of Robert Zick, a board member, said he came away from the South Mall performance with "a firm feeling that this is not a racist play." He conceded that the play revolved on the theme of man's inhumanity to man. Mrs. Ann Patton, president of the board, said the decision was a difficult and unusual one for the board, but she spoke in favor of having the play come to Bethlehem. The board agreed: when the motion came it was 7-0 for putting it on.

A public performance of the play, which will conclude three days of workshops and a performance for the pupils, is scheduled for Friday, Nov. 4, at 7 p.m. at the Middle School. Tickets at $2 will be available at the door, with students half price. Proceeds will be used to support the Bethlehem Middle School student theater program.

New Scotland: a working gals' race

New Scotland's town elections were still two weeks away when the local chapter of the Business and Professional Women's Club entertained several of the women who are running for town offices. From the genial atmosphere, you'd never know there was a hard-fought campaign in progress.

"After the dinner we sat around and chatted about our families," remarked Corinne Cossac of Voorheesville, town clerk who faces a strong challenge from Sharon Boehlke of Unionville. "I didn't know Sharon that well, but I enjoyed visiting with her, and with Eileen Farley, who was my opponent last year."

Both Corinne and Sharon are working girls campaigning hard in the spread-out farmland and woodlots of rural New Scotland. Corinne, 46-year-old mother of four daughters, is the incumbent town clerk in a Republican administration clinging desperately to a 3-2 margin on the town board. Sharon is a vivacious 31-year-old Democrat who has two children, two stepchildren, a viable trash-collection business she developed on her own, and designs on Corinne's job. Both are foot-wear from long evenings of house-to-house canvassing and attending all kinds of meetings and gatherings.

For Corinne the doorbell-pushing phase isn't new: she won a special election last November after being appointed town clerk in January, 1976 following the death of Betty Feldman, but for Sharon it's a new and exciting life. "I think even if I lost I'll stay involved in this kind of thing," Sharon said over the weekend. "It's really been fun as well as work, and I really like it."

Sharon got feature headlines in the Albany and Schenectady dailies last year when she bought a 20-cubic-yard Loadmaster compactor and opened a route in Colonie for private pickups of trash and garbage. "Sassy Sharon, Garbage Lady," read the headline in the Schenectady Gazette. "Petite Mother Invades Man's World." Carol DeMare's feature in the Times Union was headlined: "The Garbage Lady...I Used to be a Secretary...I Wouldn't Go Back."

When the town committee persuaded her to run on the 1977 ticket, she had to make a tough decision: "I fought hard for my business, but now I have a part-time employee in addition to my full-time driver, and he'll be full-time if I win."

Sharon's husband, Chet, was formerly in the trash business, now works for a mason in Voorheesville. She has a son, 11, a daughter 6, and Chet's children, 15 and 13.

The eldest of Corinne's four daughters is a 20-year-old junior at SUNY-Binghamton who aspires to law school and a legal career, the youngest is 15. Corinne herself is a Syracuse University graduate, majoring in political science. If community involvement is new to Sharon, it's old-hat to Corinne, who has been active in a list of organizations as long as her arm. In addition to raising her daughters, Corinne was manager of the Bethlehem Middle School cafeteria for eight years. She also comes by her talent for government naturally—her father was a town assessor in the 1940s and her brother, Mike Ricci, is a member of the Albany County Legislature.

Next week these two working girls will know which one will be keeping the records at the little white Colonial town hall on Rt. 85. Meanwhile there's another weekend of doorbell-pushing ahead. "It's a big town," says Corinne, "you'd be surprised how much territory we have to cover."

goes to voters

Residents of the Bethlehem Central School District will go to the polls in a special referendum Dec. 13 on the proposed sale of the Delmar Elementary School to the town of Bethlehem.

It was 10:40 p.m. last Wednesday when the board of education ratified the last revision of language in the formal agreement, more than two hours after convening a special session to coincide with the regular meeting of the town board a block away. Ratification of the document was delayed while attorneys for the two boards hammered out language changes in a series of telephone conversations as board members and three newspaper reporters waited.

The agreement, negotiated behind the scenes by representatives of the two boards, spells out the transfer of the vacant two-story school building for $65,000, effective Jan. 1 pending approval by district voters. The 51-year-old structure, unoccupied since June, 1976, was appraised last spring at $96,000, and costs the school district approximately $15,000 a year to maintain.

There was no indication of the town board's plan for the property, and presumably no action will be taken prior to Jan. 1 when a new supervisor and two new councilmen take office. The town board is known to have considered renovating the structure as a town hall or community center. Under the agreement ratified last week, the playground area will be retained for that purpose, and will be available to town of New Scotland residents living within the school district.

He was the board's chairman in 1971.

The former director of the Bureau of Water Quality Management in the State Dept. of Environmental Conservation, Stevens was an officer in the U.S. Public Health Service for eight years before joining the New York State Health Dept. ## O-C to expand Delmar plant

Owens-Corning Fiberglas will start construction this month on a new insulation production line in a major expansion at the Delmar plant. Walter B. Reed, plant manager, said last week that construction will be accelerated for a targeted July start-up. Company officials emphasized that the stepped-up schedule depends on the prompt issuance of appropriate environmental and other necessary permits. The addition will double the present capacity of the plant for batt, roll and loose fill type insulations.

Delmar was selected because of reliable energy sources and optimum conditions for rapid expansion, Reed said. Because Owens-Corning allowed for the possibility of future expansion when the plant was constructed in 1974, all major building activity, with the exception of some additional warehousing, will take place under existing roof. Company officials indicated that the new line will duplicate the existing manufacturing line, including the electric melt furnace which reduced emissions from the glass melting process and a water reuse system which eliminates waste water discharges.

The project, along with the concurrent expansion of an Owens-Corning facility in Texas, is in response to the increased demand for insulation materials.

Vote No on Proposition 1

PROTECT THE QUALITY OF LIFE

Ed Stringham is strongly opposed to any action which would cause the deterioration of the quality of life here in Bethlehem such as unnecessary highway development, poor planning and pollution. Yet, worthwhile projects which would improve Bethlehem never seem to get done. Stringham will take action on such matters as sewage problems, conversion of the Delmar School, traffic planning, bicycle paths, mini-parks and other community projects which benefit all of us. To accomplish these goals within a livable tax structure, we need management, not politics. Stringham will be a full-time Town Supervisor 12 months a year, not just a few weeks before election.

Hire him
on November 8th.

BETHLEHEM—NEW SCOTLAND

This Week in Television

Note to Our Readers:

For the first time ever, The Spotlight is offering TV program listings for our area's stations from Thursday through Wednesday.

This is an experiment for ONE WEEK ONLY. We want to know whether our readers will find this capsule version, listing only those stations available to Bethlehem and New Scotland residents, more convenient than the Saturday "TV Dial" listings that are "cluttered" with other TV programming not available in these towns. We plan to add cable listing when the service becomes available to Bethlehem.

If you like this new Spotlight service, please mail in the coupon on this page, or telephone our office, 439-4949, between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. weekdays and tell us whether you feel this service is useful to you or redundant. We want to know...If there is sufficient demand, we will start the service on Dec. 1.

Mail coupon to:

The Spotlight,
PO Box 152,
Delmar, N.Y. 12054. There is no need to sign your name.

SPOTLIGHT OFFERS T. V. LISTINGS

Yes, our family would like to count on these listings each week!

No, we find the daily or other weekly listings adequate.

- (Q) My husband and I receive a monthly Social Security check payable to both of us. When either of us passes away what should the survivor do about endorsing and cashing the check?
- (A) At one time a check payable to two people had to be returned to the Social Security Administration if either payee was deceased. This frequently resulted in a financial hardship to the survivor. Under present regulations the survivor payee may take the check when it is received to the local Social Security office where it will be superendorsed and then may be cashed for its full face value.

The amount included in the check for the deceased spouse is paid to the survivor under this procedure. The next check the survivor receives will be his or her monthly entitlement less the overpayment made in the previous check. All subsequent checks will be the same each month based upon the earnings record of the deceased Social Security worker. The lump sum death benefit will be added into one of the monthly checks when the survivor is an eligible husband or wife.

Youth, 17, caught in burglary try

A 17-year-old youth who returned to a Glenmont truck repair garage where he had tried to break in 40 minutes earlier was picked up by Bethlehem police who sped to the scene in response to a call.

Officers Fred Holligan and Leonard Ryan drove to the Jubrey Trucking Co. on Rt. 144 at 8:30 p.m. in response to a call from Mrs. Gaynell A. Jubrey, who reported that a car had stopped outside the Sutcliffe garage nearby and that a youth was trying to gain entry through a rear door. When the youth fled, police broadcast a description of the youth and the car.

Forty minutes later the same patrol car answered a second call to the scene, where they apprehended Mark Clyde Sutcliffe of Nassau, son of the owner of the garage. The youth was released when his father said he would not press charges.

Bethlehem police are searching for a vandal or vandals who pried open the vent window of a locked pickup truck and stole a portable radio and a car clock. Charles L. Smith, owner of the vehicle, said the truck was parked at his home, 11 Douglas Rd., when the break-in occurred about 11 a.m. Wednesday.

MODERN PHARMACY

Michael Krugman

The Russians may have not invented the airplane or the hot dog, but they were definitely first on the scene with "electro-sleep."...Since 1948, Soviet scientists have been experimenting with a machine that sends mild currents through electrodes taped to a patient's eyelids and neck...The process, according to Soviet reports, reduces anxiety and tension and relieves insomnia...Why is not certain...One theory is that the device changes the electric "fields" in the brain...U.S. researchers have been experimenting with this device with much success on patients who are depressed and have insomnia also.....

Cabot's BARN BOARD STAIN

Here is a stain that simulates the weatherbeaten "old barn" look on new wood. Provides that rustic gray tone for the exterior or interior of the home. Easy to apply with brush or cloth. Ideal for paneling, beams, woodwork. Barn Board Stain is transparent, accenting the grain and texture of the wood... especially effective on rough-sawn lumber.

Seniors' 'Carnival' cast in rehearsals

Bethlehem Central seniors have chosen "Carnival," a recent Broadway musical hit, for their gala 1977-78 state production, the cast has been selected, rehearsals have started and the auditorium has been booked for the usual capacity crowds the nights of Dec. 1, 2 and 3.

This year's Senior Play will have one of the youngest directors in many years. He is Allan Grosman, 22, of Albany, a 1977 graduate of the State University at Albany with a degree in the theater and English. Grosman has worked in community theaters in the area as an actor and director. Musical director is Bill Bauer, a SUNYA undergraduate whose musical credits include scores and lyrics of two original compositions. Grosman and Bauer were selected from several applicants who responded to the seniors' plea for assistance from the community.

"Carnival" is based on the motion picture, "Lili," that starred Mel Ferrer and Leslie Caron, a musical about life and loves in a traveling carnival. Cheryl Hurwitz will play the lead role of Lili, with Mitch Strominger as Paul, the puppeteer. Tim Fitzgerald plays Mario, the magician. Other singing roles will be played by Dan Berkowitz, Wade Komisar and Irene Radzyminski.

Grosman is doubling as the play's choreographer, with seniors Wendy Huzsar and Cynthia Waggoner as assistants.

Speaker at luncheon

Inspector Herbert W. Devlin, who retired from the Albany police department after 45 years service, will be the speaker at the Retired Men's Fraternity luncheon Thursday, Nov. 3, at 12 noon at the Holiday Inn, Rt. 5, Albany. Devlin is a Coast Guard veteran of World War 2, former commanding officer of the U. S. Naval Sea Cadets and a member of the Naval Reserve for 31 years.

A nationally known kidney authority who is the senior full time member of the Albany Medical College faculty has accepted a new position in Mississippi. Dr. John E. Kiley of Slingerlands, who was summoned to emergency duty during the salt-formula crisis in Binghamton 15 years ago in which six newborn babies died, will take up his new duties as a professor of medicine at the School of Medicine of the University of Mississippi in Jackson, Miss., during the present academic year.

Dr. Kiley joined the faculty of the Albany Medical College in 1952 and has been a professor of medicine since 1962. He established the artificial kidney unit at the Albany Medical Center in 1949, at the time only the third such facility in the United States.

In March, 1962 a tragic error in the maternity section of the Binghamton General Hospital catapulted the quiet, shy doctor onto the front pages of the nation's newspapers. An attendant had mistaken a container of salt for sugar in mixing a quantity of babies' formulas for newborn infants. The error caused critical illness among many of the babies, and was fatal to six.

Within minutes of discovery of the error, on a Sunday morning, hospital officials telephoned Dr. Kiley in Albany. Within a few hours he was on the scene in Binghamton directing the hospital staff during the crisis, overseeing the treatment by dialysis. Dr. Kiley was on the scene for three days, and was able to get only one hour's sleep in the first 36 hours. Subsequently his report was published in the Journal of the American Medical Assn. that has since become the authoritative report on severe sodium intoxication used by doctors throughout the world. The Binghamton incident also was widely publicized in national news magazines at the time.

Dr. Kiley earned a BS degree from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in 1942 and was graduated from Harvard Medical School in 1945. He was a special student at the Institute of Pathological Anatomy at the University of Vienna in 1947 and a research fellow in medicine of the American College of Physicians at the Albany Medical College in 1951-52.

In addition to his teaching he is head of the Division of Kidney Diseases and dispensary physician for the Albany Medical Center Hospital and director of its Hemodialysis Laboratory. He is the author or co-author of 42 published reports.

Dr. Kiley married the former Catherine Walsh in 1945. They have five children. In Jackson he will join the staff of the University of Mississippi Medical Center as well as the medical school faculty.

Public pensions on 1977 ballot

A proposed amendment to the state constitution that would increase public pension benefits is No. 5 on the ballot next Thursday.

The following is the text of the third in a series of informational columns by Assemblyman C.D. "Larry" Lane to provide information on issues that will be on the Nov. 8 ballot:

Among the court-related constitutional amendments is one which is designed to restructure the system for disciplining judges in New York State. The existing Court on the Judiciary would be abolished with an 11-member Commission on Judicial Conduct established. This board would be appointed by the governor, the chief judge of the Court of Appeals and by the four legislative leaders--the temporary president and the minority leader of the State Senate and the Assembly speaker and the Assembly minority leader.

Supporters of this amendment say that abolition of the Court on the Judiciary and its cumbersome disciplining procedures is an essential element of any court reform effort. Opponents claim that the proposed Commission on Judicial Conduct would act as both investigator, prosecutor and jury. This, they say, raises questions about violations of the rights of due process.

The fourth proposed amendment is designed to remove the provision which allows only the Legislature to exercise the authority to prescribe monetary jurisdictions of town, village and city courts outside of New York City. Proponents of this proposal think that limiting the monetary jurisdiction level of the district courts to $6,000 does not allow the Legislature adequate discretion to meet the needs of individual courts. Those who are opposed, however, feel that removal of this restriction could result in raising monetary jurisdiction at the local level to an amount which could be greater than the higher courts.

The fifth proposed amendment would allow the Legislature to provide increased pension benefits to surviving spouses of retired state or municipal employees. Those who are opposed say that the state already provides among the best pension benefits in the nation and that approval of this measure would ultimately cost New York taxpayers several million dollars a year in additional taxes.

Blackbirds numb but not down

It's a new week for Coach Tom Buckley's plucky Blackbirds as Voorheesville Central points for a non-league meeting at Scotia Saturday. The team lost a game, a quarterback and a chance to scramble the Southern Conference football race last Saturday when unbeaten Rensselaer came from behind to win, 28-19.

"It was a heartbreaker," said Buckley. "When we lost Greg (Hawkins) in the first half, we couldn't put together a consistent drive in the second half and had to give up the ball a lot, and that's something we didn't want to do against a team as strong as Rensselaer."

The Blackbirds started like a whirlwind, scored the first two times they had the ball, then had two bad breaks. One was when Jim Cillis intercepted an enemy pass on the goal line only to slip on the 2. This led to safety, a free kick from the 20 and a Rensselaer touchdown from good field position. Moments later Hawkins hobbled off the field with a severe ankle sprain and may be finished for the year.

Cillis hit Rich Fenwick in the corner of the end zone for a 19-8 lead after a blocked punt moments before halftime, but the second half was all Rensselaer with a powerful running and passing game.

Voorheesville now is 5-2 with a chance for a second-place tie by knocking off Tamarac in the finale if Tamarac loses to Rensselaer in the league's championship game next week. Both are 6-0.

Tom George had his third straight 100-yard game with 158 on 23 expeditions. On the defense Alex Kernozek had a busy day at linebacker and Dave Condon had a good game in the forward wall.

Bethlehem tuned up for the countdown with a workman-like 16-12 win over Scotia in a non-league scrap in Delmar Saturday. Steve Nowak pitched two TD strikes to Jim Giacone and then played it safe. The Eagles had plenty of chances to open up with passes, but elected to stay with their consistent running game. Nowak had 8 for 13 in the air, good for 139 yards and both touchdowns.

division team entertains Ravena at 2.

The Midget division Falcons edged Troy, 13-12, last week as Steve Radzynski flipped a short pass to Robbie Burke who sprinted 70 yards for a touchdown, and later hit Dom Castaldo for a 30-yard scoring play. The Vultures lost to Rensselaer Raiders, 20-7, despite an 80-yard runback with an interception by David Youngs that set up a 15-yard TD by Patrick Davis. The Junior Midgets dropped a 6-0 decision to Schenectady.

Historical calendar has local sketches

The Town of Bethlehem Historical Assn. has come up with a bright idea for the Christmas season. A medium-sized calendar, available for wall use at home or in the office, is now available at several town locations.

Featuring line sketches by Jeanne Brown, Diane Pompa and Gabbard Tucker, the calendar has a different scene for each month. The drawings are taken from old photographs in the town's history and show houses and buildings of interest.

Available for $2.50, the calendars may be purchased at the Bethlehem Town Hall, the Bethlehem Historical Museum at Cedar Hill or by calling 439-1876 or 767-9919.

Elks sale planned

The event will be held on Sunday, Nov. 13, from 1 to 5 p.m. at the lodge on Rt. 144, Selkirk. There will be baked goods, a white elephant table, book table and craft items. Admission is free.

 in retrospect

Oct. 31, 1957

Mrs. Sydney Smith is general chairman of the 16th annual Bethlehem Community Christmas Festival. Roland Truitt, music supervisor for the Bethlehem Central school district, will handle the musical arrangements for the three performances. Aides are Mrs. Russell Freeman, Morris Schaefer, Mr. Arthur McHugh, Mrs. Donald Fiefield and Richard Haverly.

Nov. 1, 1962

Mrs. Mary Conner of Delmar has been elected president of Nathaniel Adams Blanchard American Legion Post Auxiliary. Other officers are Mrs. Arthur Quinn, first vice president; Mrs. Viola Knapp, second vice president; Mrs. Thomas Spinosa, recording secretary; Mrs. Patrick Igoe, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Herbert Hafley, treasurer.

Plans are being made to rededicate the Memorial Park in Delmar on Sunday, Nov. 11, by the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars, just 20 years after Pearl Harbor. The park was established in 1942 by a committee who approached Arthur M. Main, president of Main Bros. Oil Co., who graciously permitted the patriotic groups to use a small piece of property he owned on Delaware Ave. near the underpass. The designer of the plaque was Walter J. Hotaling, who built it at no charge. The committee was composed of Dr. Thomas M. Holmes, Otto D. deHeus and John M. Oliver.

November 2, 1967

Bethlehem voters will choose from these candidates on Election Day 1967: Republicans — Bertram E. Kohinke for supervisor, George J. Butman and William S. Segur for councilmen, Margaret Kneff for town clerk, Harry B. Rezzemini for justice, Martin J. Cross for superintendent of highways and Kenneth P. Hahn for receiver of taxes; Democrats — Robert P. Connolly for supervisor, William R. Ridgeway and James Carter for councilmen, Evelyn Crosscup for town clerk, Jay S. Caplan for justice, Augustus H. Mattick Jr. for superintendent of highways and Dorothy Steffens for receiver of taxes.

William L. Pfeiffer of Slingerlands, former Republican state chairman, has been elected president of the Albany Savings Bank, succeeding Harold E. Deuel, also of Slingerlands, a former Albany stockbroker who has headed the bank for the past five years.

Chester Hawley, president of Main Bros. Oil Co., has announced several promotions to meet the continuing growth of the company. W. Alfred Baker, vice president, will head the purchasing control department, Joseph Rooney will head the service department and James Busick will head the shipping and receiving department.

Church of Christ, Scientist, at 551 Delaware Ave., Delmar, has been announced by T. R. Loeschner, chairman of the board of trustees.

A Balsam bonanza

In the 101 years since Major Wingdale created the game we now know as tennis, the cornerstone of the pastime has been the tournament structure. Match play in tennis is as old as 30-love, seemingly as perpetual as anything can be in sports in these days of artificial surfaces, spaghetti racquets, overexposure and non-white clothing, hence it is noteworthy that Delmar's Dick Balsam has come up with a new wrinkle.

The second annual Southwood Invitational tennis championships not only will be the most prestigious tournament in the Capital District this season, but will offer an unusual format that can't help draw a crowd. It also will dispense some $2,000 to a flock of winners in three draws, men's singles, men's doubles and mixed doubles. It's in the doubles that Dick's fertile cerebellum has blossomed.

Pipe this format for a 20-team tournament, which Richard has invited and collared, including virtually every Class A player in the six-county territory and every professional player in the region's indoor clubs:

Seed four teams for the two-weekend tournament. Give those four teams the first weekend off and put them in the quarter finals automatically for the second weekend. Take the remaining 16 teams, deal them into four brackets of four teams each, and dispatch them into a round-robin with the other three teams in each bracket. Put the four winning teams into the quarter finals with the elite and then let the chips fall where they may. Intriguing? You bet, and a sure formula for excitement.

For a grasp of the quality of this shootout, witness the seeds: in men's doubles, Inderjit Singh and Barry Negri No. 1, and the Gould brothers, Gene and Tom, No. 2; in the mixed doubles, Larry Nealon-Louise Halle No. 1, Lou Gwinner-Barbara Steger No. 2.

The men's singles will be comparatively orthodox for the 36 receiving invitations to capital gain. Inderjit Singh will be seeded No. 1, as expected;

Paul Feldman of Albany State No. 2, Larry Linett No. 3 and Peter Boyd, who recently played first singles on the Cornell varsity, No. 4.

This means steady action for spectators Friday night and all day Saturday and Sunday at Southwood for the next two weekends, Nov. 4-5-6 and Nov. 11-12-13. It will also be the first tournament in our area to employ the 12-point "lingering death" tiebreaker used at Forest Hills and other bigtime tourneys.

The effervescent Dr. Balsam also will stage his patented "target tennis" for the entertainment of onlookers and enrichment of the combatants. This year it will be a serving contest into a designated color-coded area, with prizes donated by Dave Corbin of Courtside Tennis Shop. There will be free admission, so drop in and see how close you can come to getting a seat or a peek through the window from the gallery. With all these potatoes ready for the masher, there'll be plenty of action for everybody.

New Scotland Rd.

Editor, the Spotlight:

Regarding the widening of New Scotland Rd.: Because no official communication was received by either the Town of Bethlehem or the Slingerlands Home Owners Assn., all we know is what we read in the newspapers and what we see and hear on TV.

Thus, it would appear that we should thank DOT for listening to our pleas. The one section of New Scotland Rd. is to be resurfaced and nothing else is to be done to it. The tone of the announcement on TV implied that, if that was all that we wanted then that was what we would get. We agree - that was all that we wanted for that highway.

Then, one newspaper article, headlined that saving 20 trees would cost the state $350,000.
The other newspaper was more factual, and stated that the actual increased cost to the state for resurfacing, without federal aid, would be about $50,000. Of course, we residents along New Scotland
Rd. know that more than 20 trees would be involved, once they had to relocate utility poles, and possibly a couple of hydrants.

As president of the Slingerlands Home Owners Assn., I wish to thank the Spotlight for its presentation of this problem, the residents of Slingerlands and New Scotland for their interest and active support, Mr. Dominick DeCecco, our vice president, who spearheaded this project and did the work in my absence, and three very

Defeat bond issue

Editor, the Spotlight:

On election day New York voters will be asked to approve a $750-million economic development bond issue which by the time it is repaid could cost taxpayers $1.5 billion. We are plaintiffs in a legal action to remove the bond issue from the ballot, and are writing to explain our opposition to it.

The state constitution requires that all bond issues be for a "single work or purpose." As outlined by the governor, bond monies will fund over 700 different projects in four separate areas. There are just too many diverse projects to enable the voter to make a reasonable decision or, we believe, for this bond issue to fit within the legal meaning of "a single work or purpose."

This constitutional provision is not without historical necessity. During the 1830's, New York State was pushed to the brink of bankruptcy by excessive bonding. The state's credit was ruined. At one point, all capital construction was halted and oppressive taxes were levied to pay back the debt. Soon after, the constitution was revised and power was reserved to the people alone to incur long-term, bonded indebtedness.

When the people go to the polls they should know what they are voting for; what "single purpose" the bond will finance. They should not have to vote for a hodge-podge of projects on a take-it-all or leave-it-all basis.

Planning boards

Editor, The Spotlight:

The recent article on the Port of Albany and town planning quoting Planning Board member Mr. Edward Mocker needs some correction. The General Municipal Law, Section 239-M, gives county planning boards the right ONLY to consult, advise or recommend to town planning boards. Similarly, Capital District Regional Planning Commission cannot tell towns (or counties in the region) what to do. It can ONLY recommend on planning matters.

It ought to be understood that final responsibility for town planning lies with the town board. Therefore, any plans for Bethlehem's port area would have to be approved by our town board.

In June, the League of Women Voters and Cooperative Extension jointly sponsored three workshops on town planning, function of planning boards and planning law. The relationship between the County Planning Board, the Regional Planning Commission and the town's planning responsibilities were outlined. Mr. Mocker was present at the workshop when these relationships were discussed.

When the Albany County Planning Board presents its county-wide plan, the League of Women Voters hopes the town officials and citizens will review the plan and incorporate those parts which are beneficial to the town of Bethlehem.
