If your bank doesn't provide Personal Banker service...

you may be using the wrong bank!

You may have had a checking account, or a mortgage account in the bank you have used for years, and in the course of making deposits, or payments, become at least fairly well acquainted with the personnel in those departments. But when you apply for a new service—say a personal loan—all of a sudden you are confronted by a sea of new faces, total strangers, and you feel like you're starting all over at the beginning.

With our Personal Banker program all that impersonality is out the window. You deal with one person—your personal banker—for all your banking needs. Highly trained, and highly motivated, your personal banker works with you...advising, recommending, and getting things done, as you develop a valued relationship based on mutual respect and confidentiality.

Every Union National customer has a Personal Banker. Is there a Personal Banker in your future?

BETHLEHEM UPDATE

Behind the politics: water and other pressures

For 10 days before the town elections Bethlehem residents were thrown into the middle of a political skirmish that caused a succession of reactions varying from dismay, surprise, uncertainty and confusion. The issue was the town's water system, fed into residential areas from a bountiful source in the lush basins between ridges in the lea of the Helderberg escarpment in New Salem via three mains running downhill beneath New Scotland Rd.

Bethlehem Democrats, desperately struggling for a foot in the door at 393 Delaware Ave. against a dominant Republican administration with a 4-1 registration advantage, seized on a routine engineering report to make water pressure the key issue in the 1977 municipal campaign. They did it in showy fashion, inviting TV cameras to a news conference at the water tower on Kenwood Ave. in Delmar and using such terms as "potential catastrophe in the event of fire" and "necessitate water use restrictions." Edward B. Stringham, the Democratic-Conservative candidate for supervisor and an engineer by profession, told newsmen at the Oct. 20 session at the tower that the county health department had held up approvals on home building in the town because of water problems.

When town officials pointed out the system's capacity and pressures were satisfactory and the chiefs of the town's five volunteer fire departments issued a statement belittling the charge that there was a potential fire hazard, Bethlehem residents wrote off the verbiage as another exercise in political prose designed to attract headlines. But last week the water issue gushed up again like a geyser when the Albany Times Union bannered a Page 1 headline that read, "Water Crisis Halts Bethlehem Building." The story by Harry Haggerty, a former Troy sportswriter who has been assigned part-time coverage of Bethlehem since January, quoted Dr. John J. A. Lyons, Albany County health commissioner, as announcing a temporary ban on new residential and commercial developments using public water because of a "severe" shortage of town water.

The headline, coming six days before the election, so angered Bethlehem Supervisor

Harry H. Sheaffer that he called his own press conference. It was the first time the GOP supervisor, jettisoned by his party's leaders, had entered the campaign arena.

When newspaper and TV reporters and cameramen crowded into the supervisor's office in town hall, Sheaffer unleashed a blast at Lyons and Bethlehem Democrats. In a prepared statement, he declared that "in a county that has long displayed a history of political strong-arming, the Democrats have succeeded in establishing a new low in cheap shots. None other than the good Dr. Lyons, county health commissioner, has responded to the desperate pleas for help from Kenelm Thacher (town Democratic chairman) and Ed Stringham, and in what appears to be a blatant and precisely timed attempt to influence the election in Bethlehem, he has brought the power of his office to bear on this town."

Sheaffer said the town has available 38 million gallons of processed water at all times, has 1.2 billion gallons stored in the Vly reservoir, and has never dropped to the minimum pressure decreed by the state. He added: "Dr. Lyons knows, but didn't bother to say, that this town has been planning for its future water needs for over two years, and yet he has strongly and most suddenly, less than a week before election, taken this action."

In mid-1976 the town commissioned an engineering firm, Myrick and Chevalier, to study potential sources of additional water to accommodate the town's anticipated growth. A year earlier the town had retained J. Kenneth Fraser and Associates to prepare recommendations for expanding the town's water system.

It was the Fraser report, received this September, that provided Bethlehem Democrats with campaign ammunition. The report suggested three alternatives to protect against any future pressure problems: an additional 20-inch main from the New Scotland storage basin to supplement the present 10-inch and two 6-inch conduits across Slingerlands, the installation of pumps to handle the 5-to-8 days in the average year when dry spells cause a pressure drop below 70 pounds per square inch (the state minimum is 20 psi), or a 3-million-gallon standpipe. The town board at its regular meeting Oct. 12 selected the third option and authorized feasibility studies and site considerations for a new cylindrical storage tank 130 feet tall and 60 feet in diameter. Estimated cost, including land: $1.3 million.

Lyons scoffed at Sheaffer's broadside. "I'm not even enrolled," he told the Spotlight, referring to his residence in the town of New Scotland not far from the Bethlehem line. He said his department imposed the moratorium on developments last month pending "positive action" by the town board. The county health department has requested a meeting with Bethlehem officials "after the election, probably the week of the 15th" to discuss a solution. "We probably will have to have a phased expansion of industry and housing subdivisions coincident with what the town timetable represents." Town officials have said the proposed standpipe will take at least one year to install, probably longer.

Lyons said Thacher had called him, but "I told him I wouldn't deal with him." He did, however, receive Stringham and reviewed the Fraser report in detail with him, thus providing the candidate with material he subsequently used in his campaign.

Richard W. Svenson, director of environmental health services under Lyons and a Delmar resident, said he met Oct. 11 with Bethlehem officials -- Councilman Tom Corrigan, GOP candidate for supervisor, Councilman Harold Williams, deputy supervisor while Sheaffer was on vacation, Paul Wagner, director of operations for the water department, William R. Weber, chairman of the planning board, and Fraser engineers. Svenson said the department had approved an extension to the Airco plant in Glenmont in August, 1976, but cautioned town officials at that time that "no future water extensions should be considered until a new source and pressure problems were resolved." In October, 1976, Svenson again met with town officials and agreed to continue to approve subdivisions pending further town board action.

So far Svenson has done just that, but now the lid is on. Health Dept. officials are holding up on approvals for residential subdivisions that involve between 60 and 75 building lots immediately and many more eventually. Immediately affected are 34 lots in Westwood Section I, 17 lots in Candlewood Forest Section I, seven lots in Michaels Estate off Beacon Rd., 17 lots in Westchester Woods Extension on Axbridge

Lane and eight duplex units in Elmwood near the town park. There is uncertainty about 34 lots in the big Lyndhurst development in Slingerlands and 131 sites in the sprawling Brookfield project behind Brockley Dr., where the Biatess Corp. has invested more than $700,000 in water lines and other construction. Three building permits issued for the Candlewood Forest subdivision got in before the embargo, but the ban is certain to delay development of the second section, an additional 16 lots, and other projects. Three other subdivisions, including the 36-unit Equinox apartment complex on Kenwood Ave., were given county health department blessing this fall before the cutoff was imposed.

Sheaffer, who has kept a low profile since being bypassed for the supervisor nomination, was irked at the Times Union's treatment. "Wednesday's paper quoted Dr. Lyons in detail, but no one called me for any comment," he asserted. "Then when I made my statement, the reporter (Haggerty) immediately called Lyons for his response to me." Added a Republican committeeman: "If anyone wanted a better example of the tie-in between the Albany County machine and Bethlehem Democrats, you'd have a hard time topping this one." Now that the political expediency is past, the water expediency will continue --- for a while, anyway. The standpipe has to be installed, new sources have to be found, and the building ban has to be lifted. The question now, for all three, is "when?"

Resigns from panel

Robert E. Budliger of Elsmere has resigned from the town of Bethlehem's Environmental Council. Budliger, who formerly was director of the Five Rivers Center on Game Farm Rd., Delmar, has been transferred to another location by the State Dept. of Environmental Conservation.

BETHLEHEM

Board pressing for teacher pact

The Bethlehem Central district board of education reportedly is pressing the state-appointed conciliator to resume bargaining sessions in an effort to settle the drawn-out dispute over a new two-year contract with the local teachers' union.

Theodore Gerber, conciliator appointed by the Public Employee Relations Board (PERB) would not confirm the report, but said "the board has expressed a concern that there's no contract at this late date." The board's two-year contract with the Bethlehem Central Teachers Assn. (BCTA) expired June 30, and union teachers have been implementing work-to-rule procedures since mid-September.

Gerber said Friday that no further negotiating sessions had been scheduled. He said he planned to "talk to both sides" this week in an effort to find an option that could break the stalemate. The union is seeking pay raises for all levels. The board has proposed teachers work an additional 20 minutes daily in monitoring duties.

BCTA members staged another mass picketing demonstration last week in front of the district's Educational Services Center at 90 Adams Pl., Delmar.

Grace and charm recalls Font Grove of yore

By Allison P. Bennett

Over 100 years ago land was purchased near the hamlet of Slingerlands which formed the nucleus of a vast country estate that came to be known as "Font Grove." This estate grew into a large enterprise that consisted of 600 acres of land, 12 houses, several large hay and cattle barns, many outbuildings, and extensive greenhouses. All of this came about through the efforts of Col. James Hendrick, an Albany businessman, who began acquiring land along New Scotland Rd. around 1863.

Col. Hendrick began by purchasing land from James Burnside Wands, who lived in the house that is pictured with this article. Not only did he buy land from Wands, but he married his daughter Elizabeth, and thus began the eventual acquisition of this particular house into his estate.

The Wands house has had many owners since it was built in 1841, and is presently the home of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Brewster, Jr. At one time the Fisher family, for whom Fisher Blvd. is named, operated this property as a large dairy farm and raised hay and forage crops. The house was large enough even then to shelter several children in the family, as well as a couple of uncles and a cook and hired girl or two. The place was sold out of the Fisher family to Charles Wood, whose daughter, Mary, was wed in the house to Dr. Frank Williams of Altamont, and tossed her bridal bouquet over the graceful curving bannister of the stairway. Several structural changes and additions were made during the Wood's tenancy, including the eastern wing containing the dining room and kitchen, added in 1906. At that time the large red painted barns were still standing, just to the west of the house.

The present supervisor of the Town of Colonie, William K. Sanford, was one of the better known residents of the house. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rollin B. Sanford, purchased the home after World War I and at that time extensive renovations were made. Mrs. Sanford was Harriet Keeler of the Albany restaurant family, and it was she who brought an interior designer from Boston to re-do the interior of the house and give it a more mansion-like aspect. The carriage house was across the street, on the corner of Fisher Blvd. and New Scotland Rd., and this was torn down and tennis courts were made there for the use of the Sanford children.

The house was later sold to Alonzo P. Adams, a president of the First Trust. Co. Mr. Adams lost one son in World War II, but his other son, James, is now residing on Upper Font Grove Rd., in sight of his childhood home.

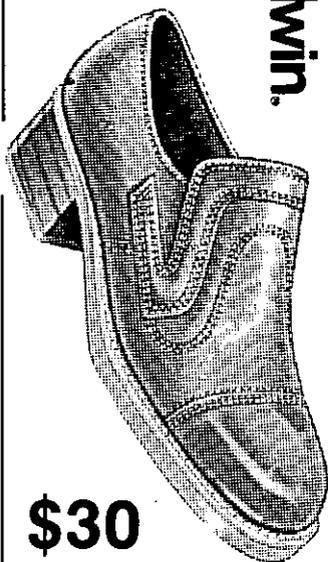

Driving up to the side doorway of the house, one is impressed with its mansion-like qualities, by the fact that it is an historical house and originally the home of a prosperous Scotch immigrant farmer, does not escape the trained eye. A carved date stone over the front entrance portico proclaims that the house was built in 1841, and it has all of the traditional Greek Revival style features of other houses of that period, being closely related architecturally to the Kiley house in Slingerlands. The Doric columned front entrance way and its entablature reminds us of a Greek temple entrance. Although the house is now painted white, it was originally a pink brick and in the period that the J. Walter Hotalings lived there (he being a coal dealer in Delmar) in the 1940's, Mrs. Hotaling tells us that the house was covered with ivy vines. Her daughter, Mrs.

Everett Watson, was also married in this house.

The brick used in this dwelling was manufactured in a kiln which was located east of the house near a small stream. This stream also fed a small pond on the property which is located behind the present Manning residence next door. The Brewsters now have five acres, but when the Wands originally held the property it was a working farm of many acres, which was gradually sold off as building lots.

Across the front of the house if a large living room, bright and pleasant and perfect for entertaining a gathering. The Brewsters have Philadelphia roots and there is plenty of evidence of their colonial background in the living room furniture, which includes an early wing chair, an upholstered mahogany Sheraton sofa and a magnificent Philadelphia highboy. A soft aqua paint color is carried throughout the house, in varying tones and shades, and lends a unity to the large rooms. The library is directly behind the living room and open to it through a spacious archway, supported with reeded pilasters. This room has great warmth and charm, being decorated in a warm shade of aqua green with wooden cornices over the windows, handpainted with bouquets of lush roses and field flowers. The corner fireplace is graced with a Federal style mantel, with reeded pilasters and insets of carving which match the entrance archway.

The back portion of the central stair hall is large enough that Mrs. Brewster calls it her "family room" and leads to the dining room and kitchen with its large butler's pantry that could serve a variety of uses. The formal dining room is baronial in size and has a carved wooden wainscoting and beamed ceiling, with built-in corner cupboards on which are displayed lovely old Oriental and American glass and chinaware. The large oval table with eight chairs surrounding it is in readiness for a dinner party at any time and the room is so spacious that it seems not the least bit crowded. Stately French doors lead out from the dining room onto a flagstone patio, which would be perfect for summer dining.

A door from the back of the house leads out to a garden setting, complete with stone barbecue fireplace and a little white wooden building, used over the years as a tool shed, garden house, playhouse for children and even a sleeping dormitory for teenage boys. Originally there were several other outbuildings on the property, but these have long since disappeared.

The downstairs floors are covered with carpeting, but the wide board floors can still be found in the upstairs hall and bedrooms. There are interesting light fixtures throughout the house, many of them reproductions, but with lovely glass globes and crystal prisms, which add to the aura of luxury. Upstairs are six bedrooms and three baths, and there is also a bedroom on the third floor, as well as a front and back staircase.

The master bedroom has its own fireplace and an interesting alcove area that could well have been another small bedroom at one time. A huge carved four poster bed seems just right in this room and Mrs. Brewster tells us that her parents bought this bed while they were in Canada on their honeymoon. Another bedroom has a lovely fourposter, its headboard carved with a cornucopia and a bowl of fruit, entwined with carved leaves, and elaborately carved foot posts. Some of the bedrooms have windows which reach to the floor, and since the house has had many changes and additions, it is felt that originally the windows in the back part may have been the "stomach" windows, which were enlarged then the roofline was raised. There are also two interesting oval windows upstairs, which open inward, and were probably added at the

This home started out as the well appointed home of a prosperous farmer, but over the years has evolved into a charming small mansion. It has sheltered many families of varying sizes and life styles, and is again on the market, since the Brewsters' children have matured and moved on to other places. It is to be hoped that someone of means and good taste will acquire the property and continue the style of gracious living to which the house is so eminently suited.

School bus hit by skidding car

A Bethlehem Central school bus that had stopped to pick up a pupil was hit head-on by a skidding car in front of the firehouse in Unionville Friday, but there were no injuries.

State police at the Selkirk substation said Maureen T. Marto, 18, of Berne, was driving on Delaware Tpk. at 7:20 a.m. toward Delmar when she applied her brakes on the hill behind two cars waiting for the halted school bus. The car skidded on the wet pavement into the left lane, missed the two waiting cars and slammed into the front of the bus. Louis Fleming, 49, of Delmar was at the wheel of the halted bus.

Troopers said the car was demolished. The driver was ticketed for failure to keep right, police said.

PLANNING

Board skeptical of new project

An Albany dentist is making a new try to develop a multi-unit housing subdivision on a 10-acre tract he owns in Delmar. Dr. Frank J. Campione Jr. told the Bethlehem planning board last week he was considering erecting town houses or an apartment complex on a plot off Hudson Ave. that extends across a deep gully to the foot of Rural Pl.

In 1970 the board denied Campione's request to change the tract's zone classification to Planned Residential Development to permit a high-rise complex. The Hudson Ave. segment of the tract is zoned B-Residential, The Rural Pl. segment is in a commercial zone.

Last week Campione was told he would have to apply to the town board for a zoning change and to the board of appeals for a variance to build apartments. The B-Residential zone classification does not include apartments as an allowable land use. Planning board members, who would be asked to make recommendations to the town board, indicated they might consider a modest number of apartment units, but would discourage any plan that would strain the density ratio and compound traffic flow problems on Hudson Ave.

Delmar cadets cited

Two Delmar juniors received ROTC awards during recent ceremonies at Norwich University. Timothy P. Foster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Foster Jr., 93 Brockley Dr., was awarded Army parachute wings for completing the parachute qualification course at Fort Benning, Ga., which included five jumps from a plane. Leon A. Mable, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Mable, 41 Douglas Rd., was awarded the Air Force ROTC superior performance ribbon for achieving the highest possible rating in field training.

He also received the AFROTC leadership ribbon. Foster, a government major at Norwich, is a master sergeant in the university's Corps of Cadets. Mable, a business administration major, holds the rank of sergeant major.

Firemen accept a new pumper

It was 9:30 p.m. and the regular October meeting of the New Salem Volunteer Fire Dept., Inc., was just about to adjourn for a few rounds of beer. There was a shout and a commotion outside the fire house on Rt. 85A, and into the yard rolled the department's long-awaited new pumper. Chief Fred Carl at the wheel high in the cab, ending a 1,000-mile trip from the FMC-Bean Fire Apparatus factory in Tipton, Ind. Behind the big new beauty was Carl's motor home, in which the chief and three assistants had made the trip out to Indiana five days earlier.

The quartet, Carl, Assistant Chief Craig Shufelt, Capt. Gordon Pinney and Administrator John O'Connell, accepted the custom-made 1,500-gallon truck at the factory, completed a two-day training and maintenance automatic transmission system and the Bean operation of FMC Corp. to add such special features, as a 1,000-gallons-per-minute two-stage centrifugal pump, a high-pressure fog booster system, special piping and storage compartments, and to put it all together in final assembly.

The Punkintown boys are proudest of the tandem rear axles with gear ratios especially designed for rapid acceleration on the steep hill climbing the Helderberg escarpment. With the fire house nestled at the foot of the long, curving hill of Rt. 85, the New Salem volunteers have to have a tailor-made pumper with more kick than neighboring departments who don't have to climb that grade to answer calls. The gear ratios, computer matched between the Allison and International equipment, were furnished through H. L. Gage International Harvester Sales and Service, Altamont. Tech. Supply Co. of Latham furnished the new equipment needed for normal operation along with special ventilation and rescue equipment the department felt it needed.

New Salem's volunteer fire company receives approximately half its funding from a fire protection contract with the town of New Scotland. The other half comes from the annual two-weekend Punkintown Fair, one of the earliest and most popular of the area's summer firemen's carnivals.

On Sunday, Nov. 13 New Salem's proud firemen will show off the new pumper-tanker at an open house from 1 to 4 p.m. at the main fire station.

Nothing like honesty

A 19-year-old Troy girl lured into a rural area of Glenmont for a marijuana session with two youths she allowed to pick her up in downtown Albany believes in making an honest report to authorities. She told Bethlehem police that after a visit to a Rt. 9W bar the trio went to enjoy a smoke in an area off Wemple Rd., where she said her two companions suddenly drove off with her knapsack in the back seat of their car. When police asked her to list the contents of the knapsack, she named 10 items with a total value of $172. The ninth item on the list, according to the police report, was: one ounce of pot, value $20.

Maureen Flanigan, left of Glenmont has been elected president of Xi Nu Chapter of Phi Theta Kappa honor fraternity at Mount Ida Junior College. A Physical Education major, she will earn her associates in science degree in May. With Maureen are other officers, Domenica Mosca, Marie Reeger and Michele Mervine.

Gems disappear in garage sale

In preparation for a move from Delmar to Washington, D.C., this month, Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Whitford held a series of garage sales and received people in and out of their house at 32 Hawthorne Ave. showing household items for sale.

After several days, Mrs. Ruth Whitford discovered that seven rings with settings of diamonds and other jewels and a valuable watch were missing from a drawer in an upstairs room. Bethlehem police broadcast a description of the missing items by teletype.

The Slingerlands Community United Methodist Church's annual advent workshop will be held Nov. 19 at the church. Children enrolled in Slingerland Sunday School and inner city children will participate in the morning activities. The schedule includes a brief worship service, craft projects, a movie and lunch.

Fourth graders in Mrs. Marion Choppy's class at St. Thomas School in Delmar were asked to write letters to the candidate of their choice in the town election. Many of the letters asked what kind of job the candidate was running for, and added a request for campaign buttons and bumper stickers.

Roger Fritts, candidate for town justice received a letter: "Why do you want to run for town justice. Is it because you want another job or a better job?" Another wrote: "I hope my mom and dad vote for you. You are a great person."

Thomas V. Corrigan, Republican candidate for supervisor, got the bulk of the letters from the fourth graders. One queried: "Why are you running? Could you give me some bumper stickers? If you can and if you can't give me anything, that is ok. What kind of a job do you think it will be? Hard or easy work?" A classmate wrote: "I will vote for you if my mom will let me. I wonder why you are running. I would like to run but I am too young because (sic) I am just 9." After one of the lengthier letters, the writer added a postscript: "My whole family is Republican."

I hope you

Halloween vandals leave their marks

Bethlehem police reported a rash of destructive vandalism during the annual Halloween observance, and a number of complaints were received at police headquarters and at the Spotlight for abusive treatment of persons and property.

"There were more eggs in the air than flies," remarked one police officer following a dozen or more reports of houses and windows splattered with raw eggs. A number of cars were damaged by spray paint and a pedestrian on Huron Rd. in Delmar was sprayed in the face with an unidentified liquid by a boy she recognized.

A large front window in Carol's Haircutting at 700 Kenwood Ave., Slingerlands, was smashed the night of Oct. 28-29. On Halloween night a broken broom handle was hurled through the front window of a residence on Bennett Terr., Delmar.

Youths admit arson

In the early evening of Nov. 1, Harley Strauss and his daughter watched from a window as two juveniles stuffed the mailbox in front of the Strauss residence at 30 Reinaman St., North Bethlehem, with straw and set it afire. He identified the youths for Officer Ted Wilson of Bethlehem police, and agreed not to press charges if restitution was made. Wilson talked with the parents of both youths, aged 14, who said they would make good the damage.

Friendship tea

The annual Friendship Tea of the Delmar Presbyterian Church will be on Tuesday, Nov. 15 from 1:30 p.m. The public is invited to look over the boutique, Christmas bazaar and baked goods table. Baby sitting will be available.

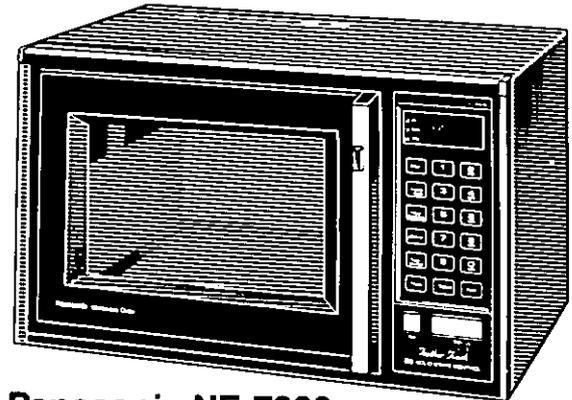

Child abuse seminar

Child abuse will be the topic of a panel discussion on Thursday, Nov. 17 at 7:30 p.m. at the Bethlehem Public Library. Sponsored by the Tri-Village Welcome Wagon Club, speakers for the discussion will be Dr. Jonathan Pasternack, Delmar, pediatrician, John Sulzman of Child Protective Services, Albany County Dept. of Social Services, Albany County; and Ms. Paula Wilson, Director, Parent & Children Center. Mrs. Peggy Donovan is chairing the event.

TENNIS

Area net titles at stake Sunday

Three tennis tournaments designed to crown the Capital District's premier players will move into the showdown stages at Southwood Tennis and Swim Club at Exit 23 this weekend. A long series of gruelling round-robins in men's doubles and mixed doubles last weekend narrowed the field to the quarterfinals in the second annual Southwood Invitational, which, along with the men's singles, carries more than $2,000 in prize money.

Survivors of the three-day eliminations in the two doubles tournaments join four seeded teams in each draw, with the championship finals scheduled for Sunday. The tournaments, matching the area's best players, are free to spectators Friday night and all day Saturday and Sunday.

Under the innovative format devised by Dick Balsam, tournament director, four men's doubles teams emerging from last weekend's round-robins in four brackets remain alive. They are Lou Gwinner-Stan Majerowski, Tony DeTommasi-Al Napper, George Mahan-Seth Silverstein and Larry Linett-Dick Balsam. In the quarters they join the four seeded tandems, Inderjit Singh-Barry Negri, Gene and Tom Gould, Pat LaHaise-Dave Taylor and Paul Feldman-Mike Fertig.

In mixed doubles, playing the same format, round-robin winners were Bob Schmitz-Joanne Merritt, Pete Boyd-Sue Romeo, Charlie Schantz-Lisa Denenmark and Balsam-Carole DeMetre. Withdrawal of the top-seeded team of Larry Nealon-Louise Halle caused the tourney committee to institute an eleventh-hour "wild card" berth, necessitating a mid-week playoff between Roger Fritz-Ann Treadway and Stan Majerowski-Diane Baertsch. Seeded teams are Lou Gwinner-Barbara Steger, Tom Gould-Carol Mesch and Seth and Kristina Silverstein.

There were no surprises as the men's singles moved into the quarterfinals. Top-seeded Inderjit Singh meets Dave Taylor, the Schenectady Racquet Club pro, Albany State's brilliant Paul Feldman faces John Sciara, the Southwood pro, No. 3 seed Larry Linett meets Pat LaHaise of Schenectady and Pete Boyd opposes Alec Roberts.

Louise Halle, defending women's and mixed champion, was forced to withdraw when she developed tendonitis in her Achilles tendon. She has been sidelined for most of the past month with an ankle injury.

Children's play coming

Two performances of "The Emperor's Nightingale" will be presented by the High School Theatre Arts Club of the Doane Stuart School on Friday, Nov. 18 at 7:30 p.m. and Saturday, Nov. 19 at 2 p.m. in the school auditorium on Rt. 9W. The play, an adaptation of the Hans Christian Andersen fairy tale, will be presented as a modified version of Chinese theatre, with an emphasis on colorful costumes, stylized movement and dance, and is particularly suited to audiences of children ages 7-12. The cast of 14 students includes Julie Hill of Delmar.

VOORHEESVILLE
Blackbirds set to be a spoiler

A happy bunch of Voorheesville Central football players will be on the bus for Eagle Mills-Cropseyville Saturday eager to spoil an undefeated conference season for an old rival. The Blackbirds, 5-2 in the Southern Conference and 5-3 overall, will wind up their season against powerful Tamarac, 7-0 in the league and 7-1 on the year. The home team has won seven straight and is fresh from a solid thumping of Rensselaer.

But the Blackbirds are buoyed by last week's performance against a Class A school. The score was 34-13 for Scotia, but Coach Tom Buckley was pleased with his pupils. "We played closer to Scotia than the score indicated," he said. "We proved we could play with some of the bigger schools, and if we had scored in the first period I think the game would have been a lot closer. Defensively we gave up a couple of big plays. We got caught twice on gambles, one led to a touchdown and the other set up a touchdown."

The Blackbirds dominated the first quarter but couldn't reach the end zone. Tom George showed no more respect for a big school than one his own size when he peeled off 158 yards on 30 trips as Voorheesville chewed up 264 yards overland. "Our running was superb," said Buckley. In the air the 'Birds missed injured QB Greg Hawkins and went only four for 17.

Hawkins, sidelined in the Rensselaer game, is an unlikely starter, but all other hands are healthy for the finale. Buckley plans no changes in personnel or strategy for the Tamarac meeting. "We're just going out there and do what we do best," he said.

SECTIONALS

Eagle booters in finest hour

Bethlehem Central's varsity soccer team ended its 1977 season in dramatic fashion on Saturday with a triple-overtime 2-1 loss to top-rated Burnt Hills before a large crowd that braved poor weather. Earlier in the week, the Eagles gained the right to face Burnt Hills with a convincing 3-0 win over Amsterdam.

Bethlehem, playing its finest game of the season in the Section 2 semifinal against the Suburban Council's regular-season champions on a neutral field in Guilderland, lost in the sudden-death third overtime on a free kick from 40 yards straightaway in front of the Eagles' net. Fullback John Ormsbee booted it beautifully into the penalty area, where BC keeper Tim Fitzgerald tried to get the ball. It slipped from his fingers and right wing Tom Fisk blasted it home for the winner.

Bethlehem, which had lost twice to the Spartans during the regular schedule, took control of the game after giving up an early goal when Dave Sargeant dribbled through two players and set up Jeff Walker for a 10-foot shot. Jay Guinn got the equalizer from 15 feet in the second stanza as he shot a loose ball past prone Burnt Hills netminder Jim Cullen. The Eagles dominated much of the game in the crucial midfield area with Dan Weinberg receiving much of the credit. Guinn's ball control kept constant pressure on the Burnt Hills defense, as witnessed by the advantage in shots on goal going to BC by 26-18. In the net, Fitzgerald turned in perhaps his best performance of the year with several key saves from close range and two acrobatic stops during the overtime periods.

Sectional action began for Bethlehem at Guilderland as they faced a non-Suburban team for the first time this year. Right halfback Kevin O'Hearn scored the first goal against Amsterdam on a cornerkick. The ball struck a defender and glanced into the net with the keeper having no chance. The first half ended that way with the Eagles holding a shot advantage of 24-2. Jay Guinn set up linemate Stu Harro with a perfect cross, and Harro headed the ball home from the crease and Bethlehem was on its way to their shutout. Tim Fitzgerald was called on to make only two saves as the final shots were 42-9.

Amsterdam was a last minute switch for the Eagles as the Sectional soccer committee yielded to a complaint by Troy High School at not being one of the two seeded teams. The committee originally had paired Troy with Bethlehem in a quarterfinal in the light of Troy's weak schedule. As it turned out, Guilderland had its easiest game of the year in blanking Troy.

Mike Tagliarini

Another devastating ground game that accounted for 280 yards. Greg Manion, one of the Capital District's leading ball carriers, stepped for 98 yards on only 13 sorties, twice lugging the leather into the end zone. Manion also is well up in the area's scoring race with 68 points for the season. The Eagles took to the air only once but that was a dilly when Steve Nowak hit Jim Giacone for 30 yards and a touchdown. It was the fourth scoring strike for this pair in the last three games.

Mike Tagliarini and Mickey Farrell turned in the defensive gems of the afternoon, the former with 20 tackles in his best game of the year, the latter with a key interception that stopped a Shaker drive with two minutes to go. The Eagles would have had a cakewalk but for two breakdowns, the first a breakaway kickoff return by Shaker that opened the second half with the Bison on the Bethlehem 5, the second a

Eagles bidding for 2nd place

Bethlehem Central can tie Niskayuna for second place in the Suburban Council's football showdown by taking Columbia at East Greenbush Saturday. On the basis of recent performances, the Eagles should do just that, and they have the momentum from last week's 22-14 thrashing of Shaker and 6-2 record for the season, 4-2 in the league.

Bethlehem took care of the Blue Bison from Latham with blocked punt that rolled into the end zone late in the fourth period. When Shaker tried an onside kick and made it good,

Bethlehem found itself in trouble, but Farrell picked off a pass and the Eagles ran out the clock.

Kenny Reed (20) grabs a pass from Mark Verstandig in Pop Warner finale in Delmar.

POP WARNER

Hawks click, 27-0 in grid windup

Bethlehem's three Pop Warner teams closed their season even-Stephen with three foes over the weekend, registering one win, one loss and a tie.

The Hawks of the Junior Midget Division had their biggest win of the season, a 27-0 win rout of Saratoga. The blocking by the forward line helped spring Kenny Reed for an 18-yard score, set up two TD jaunts by Mark Verstandig and a 25-yard Verstandig-Reed pass play for the final six-pointer.

The Vultures dropped a 12-7 verdict to Brunswick Bengals in the Pee Wee league, while the Bethlehem Falcons and Ravena battled to a scoreless standoff between the 20-yard lines in the Midget Division.

Blood pressure clinic

The town of Bethlehem will sponsor a free blood pressure clinic on Tuesday, Nov. 15. The clinic will be held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and from 7-9 p.m. at the Bethlehem Community Center, 125 Adams St. Clinics are under the direction of Mrs. Ruth Bickel and are open to residents of the town. The clinics are staffed entirely by volunteers.

Furey's final game

John Furey of Delmar was named honorary defensive captain for Ithaca College's final home football game of the season last Saturday against RIT. Furey is one of four starting seniors in the team's lineup.

It was relatively easy to move a wide garage through Delmar Four Corners in the mid-1930's. The truck belongs to Abele Bros. Contractors, but there's no way to tell which of the brothers is driving, George Abele or Henry F. Abele Sr. The top photo shows the gas station, the variety 5-10-25-cent store and drug store marquee where the National Savings Bank now stands. The lower photo was taken on either Delaware Ave. or Kenwood Ave. — perhaps one of our readers can identify the location. Man on the roof in top photo was assigned to raising telephone wires that might hang too low for clearance. The photos were brought to the Spotlight by Mrs. Marcia Abele Rosenfield of Kenwood Ave., daughter of Henry.

Joy of Stitching

by ELSA WILLIAMS

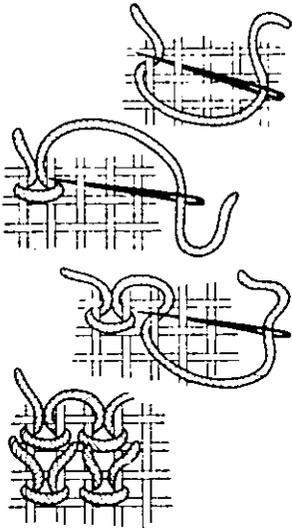

NEEDLE-MADE CARPETS

Turkey Stitch has almost as many aliases as a master criminal—from Carpet stitch and Bermuda Faggoting to Tufted stitch, Raised Canvas work and Ghiordes Knot. The Ghiordes Knot reminds me of elegant oriental rugs which makes me think of Jane Lamont, an expert in needle-made carpets who teaches at my school.

If you ask Jane how she learned so much about carpets she'll tell you she grew up in a houseful of them—"mostly Persian".

"I learned the technique at a seminar of the National Embroidery Guild. Though there are two stitches, the Turkey Knot (diagrammed here) and the Persian Knot for curvilinear designs, the same technique is used throughout."

Jane explains that the knots are done between two threads of the canvas. "It's as though warp and weft threads are already in place, instead of just one set of threads as in Oriental rugs."

She teaches class with our own five-ply Persian yarn on No. 13 linen canvas to make a small carpet, about 10 by 18 inches. This can also be done on cotton warp cloth. Jane suggests starting with a simple design in three colors—a dark and medium value of one color plus a contrasting color.

"Actually much of the important work is done before you start stitching," says Jane. "Remember, a carpet must lie FLAT on the floor so your design can't use perspective. A symmetrical design that can be enjoyed from all angles is best."

"You should also consider whether furniture is going to cover part of the carpet and plan your design accordingly."

Would you like a FREE illustrated folder about the Elsa Williams School of Needle Art? Write to Elsa Williams, Box 3788, Grand Central Station, New York, New York 10017.

"The Persian yarn has such luster and sheen it literally glows. But remember," she cautions, "the stitch technique can deepen yarn shades as much as two tones; choose a medium color for a 'deep' shade. Use muted or deep colors in a light room, brighter or pale tones for a darker room."

And smooth clipping when you work the Turkey Knot, says Jane, is essential for a velvety feel and look.

Dear Elsa,

I'd like to make a sampler to learn more needlepoint stitches, since I know only three now. I'm not good at creating a design, but I'd like my sampler to end up as a picture or pillow when I finish. I don't care for squares. What other type of design could I use that would look more like a picture?

H.H.R.

Dear H.H.R.,

A very decorative design comes immediately to mind—the compass rosette you see in the corner of maps. Some are more complex than others, but all are attractive. This can be blown up to any size by photostat or you can enlarge it yourself using a grid of squares. Children's coloring books also yield fish and flowers, birds and landscapes in simple outline form which can make attractive samplers.

Mrs. Lane Esposito

Bride in Slingerlands

Cheryl Ann Elmendorf, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harris Elmendorf of Delmar, was married to Lane Esposito, son of Dr. and Mrs. Nicholas Esposito of Troy, by the Rev. Luther Patton in a Sept. 17 ceremony at the Slingerlands Methodist Church. Attendants were Mrs. Jerry Model, matron of honor, and Dr. Robert Webb, best man.

The bride graduated from Bethlehem Central High School and Albany College of Pharmacy, and is currently employed by Mack Drug as a pharmacist. Her husband is a graduate of Catholic Central High School and Parsons College. He is an assistant research scientist for the New York State Kidney Disease Institute.

Following a reception at the Heavenly Inn in Slingerlands, the couple left on a trip to the outer Hawaiian Islands. They are now living in Menands.

Another car torched

For the second week in a row, car thieves abandoned a car stolen in Albany and set it afire in a remote section of Bethlehem near the West Shore railroad track. A passing motorist reported to Bethlehem police that a car was in flames on Wemple Rd., near Rt. 144, Glenmont, at 1:15 a.m. Friday. A computer check showed the car, a 1977 Chrysler four-door sedan, had been reported stolen in Colonie four hours earlier.

In an earlier incident, a car stolen in Albany on the night of Oct. 24 was set afire on the Beaver Dam Rd. railroad crossing in Selkirk four hours later. Det. Richard J. LaChappelle of Bethlehem police is investigating.

Veterans' rite at Legion post

Nathaniel Adams Blanchard Post 1040, American Legion, Delmar, will honor veterans of all wars in a brief ceremony at the post on Poplar Dr. at 11 a.m. Friday, Veterans' Day. This date was originally established by Congress as Armistice Day to commemorate the signing of the Armistice at 11 a.m. on Nov. 11, 1918, ending World War I. Since this turned out not to be the "war to end all wars," the date was renamed Veterans' Day after World War II in order to pay honor to veterans of all wars.

Blanchard Post, named for Nathaniel Adams Blanchard who was killed in World War I on Nov. 9, 1918, two days before the Armistice, will commemorate the service of all men and women who served honorably in our armed forces since the American Revolution. Those veterans who served loyally and honorably in the recent Vietnam War and who returned to apathetic and often hostile receptions, will be in the forefront of those being honored this day.

Members of the community are invited to attend the brief ceremony. Post members and their guests will have their monthly luncheon at the Post following the ceremony.

Variety at bazaar

The Voorheesville Community Club is sponsoring a Christmas bazaar on Saturday, Nov. 12 from 10 to 3 at the First Methodist Church, Voorheesville. Arts and crafts projects include seasonal decorations such as macrame hangers, wall plaques, candles, tree ornaments, tinsel art pictures, stockings, stuffed toys, pine-cone wreaths, cross-stitch ornaments and needlepoint items, tote bags, fabric flowers, and fabric wreaths. The bazaar will also feature homemade baked goods, door prizes, drawings and an arcade, white elephant sale and plants.

Union National Bank, following the lead of Irving Trust three years ago in the New York City market, has introduced Personal Banker Service to the Capital District. Each Union National customer or family is automatically assigned a "personal banker" whose name and phone number appear on their monthly statement. The personal banker is an executive who is the customer's primary contact at the bank and is familiar with all phases of the customer's activity.

By using advanced computer programming techniques, Union National correlates the varied banking activities of each customer family, providing the personal banker with the historical information necessary to deal with the needs of the customer family or individual.

REAL ESTATE CORNER

Audrey Duncan
Sales Representative

Generally, land use in communities and cities is regulated throughout the United States... Certain areas are set aside for single residences, others for residential apartments and still others for commercial and industrial purpose... There are two ways the law accomplishes this: with zoning laws, enacted by the city or county, and with deed restrictions... Deed restrictions usually originate when a land developer establishes certain limits on the use of the land through provisions in the deed... for example, he may specify that each lot must be used only for a single-family residence. When you buy a home, you should become familiar with the zoning ordinances and the deed restrictions...

If you are selling your home, take advantage of our knowledge and experience in real estate to prevent problems. KLERSY REALTY will see that you get fair market value for your property and bring only qualified buyers to look. List with us at KLERSY REALTY, 282 Delaware Ave., Delmar. Call 439-7601 when ready to sell.

Nov. 9, 1967

Bethlehem supervisor Bertram E. Kohinke was returned to office for a fifth term by an overwhelming 4-1 margin in Tuesday's election. Unofficial totals gave Kohinke 7,785 to 2,667 for Bob Connolly, Democratic challenger, in a Republican sweep. Martin J. Cross led the ticket with 8,597 for superintendent of highways. The transportation bond issue was given a clear-cut endorsement by Bethlehem voters, but two amendments, a job development proposal and a proposal for the Blue Ridge Ski Area, and a question on the Constitution were defeated.

Cult phenomenon

Editor, The Spotlight:

Persons who are truly concerned about the search of our young people for a meaningful contribution to society and for new values will have the opportunity to participate in an important seminar at Siena College on Tuesday, Nov. 15, on "The New Messiahs."

The cult phenomenon is not going away. The Unification Church of Rev. Moon has maintained a low profile locally for the past year, but they are now stepping up their activities. They have moved to the heart of the student off-campus area at 407 Hamilton St., Albany, taking out paid newspaper advertising inviting people to come to their center. They have been concentrating their "begging" at Clifton Country Knolls and new stores. Their door-to-door solicitations ask for contributions for the New Hope Singers, one of their groups.

Authoritative speakers will discuss "The Mind Trip," a background on religious cults, and responses to the cult movement that have been successful. One of the discussion leaders is a former member of the Unification Church who has been involved in rehabilitation work for the past three years.

Registrations are still being accepted. For information call 438-6681. The seminar is sponsored by the Ecumenical Commission of the Roman Catholic diocese, the Capital Area Council of Churches and the Capital District Board of Rabbis.

Anne Brewster

Slingerlands

Members of the Unification Church and affiliated groups are barred from soliciting in the town of Bethlehem by police order. The last reported incident was in April, 1976, when several young men were seen selling candy on Delaware Ave.

Arts Sampler Fair

Editor, the Spotlight:

An idea is born, efforts are made, but all to no avail if there is not publicity to apprise the public!

The publicity the Spotlight gave the Albany League of Arts aided greatly in drawing some 6,000 persons to the Empire State Plaza last Sunday, Oct. 31. We filled each theatre area for each performance of drama, music and art. People enjoyed sampling the fine talent that this area has to offer. The exposure benefited our 80 organizations and provided a wonderful day of free entertainment for the community.

We appreciate, as a Board of Directors, and I do personally, your kind of cooperation and expertise in telling our story and helping us make Arts Sampler Fair a joyous and successful event.

Community Corner

Paperback Bonanza Booksale

The Bethlehem Public Library has proclaimed November as Paperback Booksale month. The Library corridor is filled with used paperbacks, each of which sells for one thin dime. Now is the time to stock up on your reading supplies — think of those snowy days ahead when you won't be able to get out to the library. Be prepared. Buy a paperback at the BPL.

A reminder: the Red Cross Bloodmobile will be at the Methodist Church in Voorheesville Monday from noon to 6.
