BETHLEHEM

Intertie to link town, city water

History will be made when final touches are added to an emergency interconnecting link that will allow Albany and Bethlehem for the first time to tap into each other's water supplies.

Construction is underway to complete early next year the seven-foot "meter pit" at the corner of Kenwood Ave. and Dumbarton Dr. linking the 48-inch Albany main with Bethlehem's own 12-inch main.

Paul Wagner, director of operations for Bethlehem's Water District No. 1 says the added water, to be used in emergency situations, will be his "ace in the hole" combatting pressure problems such as a water main break or a fire. "It will be there only in case we have to use it," says Wagner. "So far we have been able to stand on our own two legs."

The verbal agreement, initially to help Bethlehem, will be a benefit to both communities whose water mains cross because of Albany's purification plant near South Bethlehem.

Wagner feels the sharing will help establish a community relationship. "In Albany County we'd better work together, so let's be brothers."

Diet lecturers meet

The lecturing staff of Weight Watchers of the Capital District will hear a presentation by Dr. Kenneth S. Wein, staff psychologist of Weight Watchers International, Sunday, Sept. 24, at noon at the Bavarian Chalet, Guelderland.

Board to act on cable TV

The Voorheesville village board is expected to grant a cable television franchise to Bethlehem Video, Inc. at the board's next regular meeting Sept. 26.

William C. Henchy, president of the cable company, told village trustees and an audience of fewer than two dozen residents that local viewers would be able to hook into the service in "approximately 12 months." Stringing the cable system would take about nine months after the make-ready work on new and existing utility poles is completed. Henchy said.

The installation "will serve everybody in the village," and some dwellings in the town of New Scotland outside the village limits, such as areas along New Scotland Rd. in Slingerlands on the route of the trunk-cable linkup with the Bethlehem grid and certain sections adjacent to populated areas of the village. Cable officials estimate the market at approximately 900 homes. The system will give free service to schools.

Henchy said the Voorheesville system would consist of 14 miles of overhead cable and two miles of underground cable.

Tentative rates for village viewers are expected to be $9.95 per month, which includes a converter box and the full spectrum of channels, and an option $8 per month for Home Box Office (HBO). In the sections where the service is underground, there will be a 50-percent premium charge, running the tab over $12, but George Smede, manager of operations, said the surcharge would be reduced or eliminated "if the going is easy." He was referring to the chore of digging ditches for buried cable.

The surcharge could add another burden to Salem Hills homeowners, already facing an unresolved boost in sewerage fees in an unrelated case. If the CATV backhoe encounters boulders, shale and stone, the costs go up, Smede said, whereas "a nice sandy soil is a piece of cake."

Soil conditions also will affect installation costs for individual hookups, Smede said. Villagers on the overhead cable will be offered a free introductory hookup for a limited period, saving $20, but the one-time installation charge for homes on the underground grid could go as high as $60.

Bethlehem Video, a subsidiary of Adams-Russell Corp., Waltham, Mass., was the only bidder for the Voorheesville franchise. The obvious reason: the company can hook into the adjacent Bethlehem system, whereas a competing franchise would have to string trunk lines from distant transmitters.

A backpacking workshop will be given on Saturday, Sept. 30, from 2-4:30 p.m. at the Five Rivers Environmental Education Center, Game Farm Rd., Delmar. A new system on water bills

Customers of Bethlehem Water District No. 1 will write fewer checks for their water bills next year, but indications are that only the light users will save money.

The Bethlehem town board last week authorized a change in the billing procedure from quarterly mailings to three times a year, effective next Jan. 1. Under the present system, those who use less than 1,200 cubic feet per quarter pay a minimum of $7.20, or $28.80 per annum.

Under the new three-times-a-year billing, the minimum has been changed to 1,400 cubic feet, with a minimum price tag of $8.40 for each four-month period. The new annual total for minimum water users will be $25.80, a saving of $3.60.

Town officials said they are not changing the base rates for water consumption, but indicated it is unlikely the average consumer will realize any savings in the change. Supervisor Tom Corrigan said the new billing procedure will be an incentive to conserve water and will save the town the expense of 7,000 15-cent stamps, plus clerical costs. He said that 40 percent of the water customers, mainly elderly, stay inside the

It's the grass-roots season in political campaigning: Gordon Morris, Delmar, Republican candidate for the county legislature, talks issues with the James B. minimum and would benefit from the lowering.

"I would take it down further, to only twice a year," says Corrigan, "but we'll see how it goes."

Industrial rates will be raised from 20 cents to 24 cents per 100 cubic feet after 20,000 cubic feet to make up for an estimated $21,000 in lost revenue, according to Corrigan.

Hearing is slated
on federal funds

A public hearing will be held in Delmar Sept. 27 at 8 p.m. to air suggestions for possible uses of over $168,000 in federal revenue sharing funds for 1979, but if history is any indication, Bethlehem town board members don't expect a heavy turnout.

Supervisor Tom Corrigan says that it is a mystery to him why year after year more people don't come out to give their suggestions on how to spend the federal funds. Last year, of the $188,000 in federal revenue sharing funds and unspent 1977 funds, $27,000 was allocated for five police cars, $75,000 for repairing roads, of which $20,000 went for partial payment on a $45,000 paving machine, $53,000 for two lots in Henry Hudson Park and $12,000 for development of park property near the Slingerlands fire house. Corrigan says that $7,000 left over from last year must be spent by 1979.

Faculty returns to senior play

Bethlehem Central High School seniors will return to the conventional format of having faculty members direct their senior play this year after a one-year lapse. The board of education this week confirmed the appointments of Joseph Farrell and Joseph Mara as co-directors.

Dates of the production and the play selected have not been announced.

Last year faculty members declined to volunteer for the positions, for which extra pay is budgeted by the board. Faced with the possible cancellation of the annual play, which regularly plays to full-house audiences, senior class officers wrote to the Vox Pop column in the Spotlight and otherwise publicized their plight by asking for volunteers from the community. The play was saved when two Albany State graduate students served as director and choreographer.

DELMAR Vandals' boxscore: 20 lawns, 8 signs

Bethlehem police cars were apparently only minutes behind the culprits following a trail of pre-dawn vandalism through a residential section of Delmar last Sunday.

In the wake of the vandals' cars 20 lawns were reported damaged by tire tracks and four stop signs, a yield sign and three street signs were knocked down between 4 and 5 a.m., police said. Five of the lawns were on Winne Rd., five on Fernbank Rd., three on Mosher Rd. and the remainder on Daroch Rd., Heather La. and Wicklow Terr.

Police said the vandals were just minutes ahead of calls relayed by headquarters to the patrol cars. The investigation is continuing.

Media Rare

An occasional Spotlight commentary on the world of radio, TV and newspapers

by Perry Galt

On the day after the Sept. 12 primary elections in New York State several red faces appeared at 1400 Balltown Rd., in Niskayuna, the comfortable home of General Electric Broadcasting's history-making WGY and WRGB-Channel 6.

The crimson countenances came from the 11 p.m. newscast the night before on News Center Six, fiercely proud of an alleged No. 1 rating in its desperate competition with Action News on Channel 10, which purportedly is No. 1 in the 6 p.m. timeframe. Of such fragile fancies are television ratings constructed.

Viewers tuned to Channel 6 eager for election results in the Democratic primary had to be paying strict attention or they would have missed the 10-second report of the biggest political story in New York State in the past decade—the startling defeat of Assembly Speaker Stanley Steingut. The shocking upset of Steingut, the most powerful Democrat in the state with the possible exception of Gov. Carey, was recited on the Six newscast in a list of one-liners in much the same manner that Bob McNamara reports the scores of the Seattle-Toronto baseball game after the Yankees-Red Sox have dominated center stage.

Alert viewers who picked the Steingut shocker out of the basket of culls then waited for WRGB's resident political professional, Arvis Chalmers, to fill them in on what happened. But the commercials came and went and there was no Arvis, and the News Center team adjourned for their midnight snack blissfully unaware that their competing channels had made hay with the headliner story.

Where was Arvis, the Capital District's premier political pundit, whose 30 years at the Capitol for the Albany Knickerbocker News makes him the ranking authority in his specialty? Well, wherever he was, he wasn't on Balltown Rd. in the camera's eye or being televised with microphone in hand in some setting like Capitol Park. We asked him why:

"Bob Fichenberg (executive editor of the Knick News) called me in week before last and told me I couldn't do the TV thing anymore. Said it was a policy about Capital Newspapers employees doing radio and TV stuff on a regular basis."

Was he disappointed, mad, upset? Certainly, wouldn't you be all three after six years of being a television commentator of some status?

By cutting off an "outside" plum, is your employer depriving you of personal income? Replied Arvis: "Darn right, a substantial income."

Whatever Arvis might have lacked in the photogenic projection of a Walter Cronkite or the polished professionalism of Tom Brokaw, he made up for with his expertise and encyclopaedic knowledge of New York State politics and politicians. If his TV tones seemed flat, his words and messages were authoritative.

Feeling deprived, I called

Don Decker, manager of Channel 6's news operation, and asked if the Knickerbocker News policy on its in-house radio and TV performers was indeed the reason Chalmers hadn't been on the tube lately. Decker would say only that he was "hopeful it will be resolved that Arvis can stay with us."

A call to Roger Grier, publisher of the Capital Newspapers, to inquire whether the policy was new or just being resurrected was referred by a secretary to John Larrabee, general manager. Larrabee was out, expected back, but didn't return the call. The following day he was in budget meeting, and again ignored the message to call back.

Meanwhile a disgruntled Arvis Chalmers, now the last of a vanishing breed of old-time newsmen from the glory days of Gannett ownership when the Knick was a forceful voice in Albany and the state, is looking at his career and his employers in a new light, and Channel 6 is wondering how to explain the absence of their political commentator.

Jumping from print media to electronics is not new to local newsmen. Among Capital Newspapers alumni now on the tube are Bob McNamara of Channel 6 and John McLaughlin of Channel 10.

If the Chalmers banishment turns out to be permanent, the public is the loser, for he belongs to the old-fashioned "digging" school of investigative journalism. When I joined the Albany AP bureau in 1951 and was assigned to the Capitol press room, Arvis was in his third year of painstaking coverage of the Capitol beat for the Knick. He wasn't breaking big stories, but he was carefully doing the groundwork nobody has time for any more, developing trusted sources. By the mid-Fifties his patience was paying off, and you know the rest. Over the years he has given the Knick inside story after inside story, a priceless public service. He's the last of his generation on the Knick, and only Specs Fowler and my favorite columnist, John Maguire, are left on the Times Union.

SO. BETHLEHEM Cable, Conrail, settle dispute

Representatives of Bethlehem Video, Inc., Conrail and Penn Central have reached an agreement in a dispute that has blocked the installation of cable television in the South Bethlehem area.

William C. Henchy, president of Bethlehem Video, said the stalemate on the question of air space over the sprawling Selkirk railroad yards was settled last Tuesday. Rail officials had demanded an annual "rent" of $2,000 for permitting a cable to be strung across the tracks, but agreed last week to an offer of $500, Henchy said. He added that "the negotiations were amicable." Robert Coan, a Schenectady attorney, represented the cable company in the negotiations.

It was reported that Penn Central officials opposed the granting of any easement in Selkirk because the property is in the process of being sold to Conrail.

Henchy said work on extending Bethlehem's cable TV lines to approximately 180 homes in South Bethlehem would start in three or four weeks.

How to use Weed Killers on your lawns

Homeowners who feel it is necessary to use weed killers should use them carefully on lawns, so they won't damage surrounding flower and vegetable beds, bushes, shrubs, and other plants.

Weed killer should be applied only on calm days, when the wind speed is less than two miles an hour. Treatments are best done in early morning or late evening. All liquid weed killers should be applied under low pressure, with large droplets, keeping the nozzle close to the ground.

Instructions on the container should be followed carefully; care should be taken to avoid overuse that can result in costly damage to ornamental shrubs and bushes.

Bethlehem hires a town engineer

The town of Bethlehem has decided to save money by hiring a full-time engineer at $18,000 a year.

The move was seen as a step toward creating a new public works department combining the water and sewer departments. Bruce Secor of Averill Park, 1970 graduate of Clarkson College of Technology in Potsdam, was selected from a list of 10 candidates at a special meeting of the town board last week.

Two positions, including one administrator and one laborer, in the now overlapping water and sewer departments would be eliminated when the new department is officially created late this year, according to Thomas Corrigan, town supervisor.

Corrigan said Secor, who has had seven years of professional experience, will work on plans for the new town hall until the new department is created.

Town employee retires

Arthur T. Spore, a Bethlehem Water Dept. shift operator at the New Salem treatment plant for the past 10 years, will retire Sept. 23. Spore lives at 1565 New Scotland Rd., Slingerlands.

Wins scholarship

Kathleen Neumann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Neumann, 184 Hudson Ave., has been selected as one of 16 eastern New York recipients of $300 scholarships made available by the training and education fund of Iron Workers Local No. 12. The presentation was made in an awards ceremony by Fred English, vice president of the local, and Anthony Caropreso, a management trustee of the fund. Miss Neumann is a 1978 graduate of Bethlehem Central High School and will be a freshman at Cobleskill Agricultural and Technical College majoring in secretarial science.

Two passengers, Rita Milham, 17, of Albany, owner of the car, and Holly Schipano, 21, no address given, suffered mild contusions in the accident, troopers said. Shop to feature 'natural' foods

A former mathematics teacher, mother of three children, is preparing to open a natural food store at 282 Delaware Ave., Elsmere, in quarters recently vacated by DiNapoli & DiNapoli opticians prior to their move to Delaware Plaza.

Teresa (Terry) Tidd, 27 Herber Ave., who taught four years in Connecticut and in Keene, N.H., will feature grains, fruits, nuts, natural vitamins and minerals. She will also carry natural cosmetics and biodegradable products. Ironically, a previous natural food store was located at the same address some years ago, but Mrs. Tidd is confident her enterprise will be successful. She operated a similar store in Burnt Hills for six months before selling it in August. The new Delmar store will be called Tidd-bits.

Mrs. Tidd has three children, Laura 11, Jennifer 7 and Shawn, 3. She met her husband, Michael Tidd, in college at Keene State. He formerly taught computer programming at Cybernetics Institute, Albany, and worked at General Electric before taking a state job nine years ago.

Ballet school starting

A prominent Capital District ballet teacher, dancer and choreographer is planning to open a ballet school in Delmar and has leased space at 159 Delaware Ave. for an opening next month.

Sheran C. Hevenor, a Skidmore College graduate who has been dancing since the age of 3, will hold an open house for the Hevenor School of Ballet Arts on Oct. 1 from 2-6. Classes will start Oct. 2. Her basic objective is to provide early traditional training for "young hopefuls who may want to join the expanding world of professional dance," but she also is encouraging individuals to join "for the wonderful exercise, grace and poise" dancing offers along with an appreciation of classical music.

Sheran, 25, became a dance instructor while still in high school at The School of Holy Child Jesus in Rye, a short distance from her home in Larchmont. She earned a BS in dance-theater at Skidmore, and has studied with Melissa Hayden and other well known artists. She has performed in and choreographed numerous stage productions, and has taught at Albany Jewish Community Center, Northeast Institute of Gymnastics, Saratoga Springs YMCA and the Junior College of Albany among others.

Another crown for Ackerman

Phil Ackerman has added the Bethlehem Tennis Assn. men's singles open championship to his town crown, the "closed" title he won in June. Ackerman, top-seeded, overpowered Pete Rogers, seeded No. 3, in Sunday's final, 6-4, 6-3. Rogers had upset second-seeded Don Castle of Green Island in the semis, 6-3, 7-5.

In the women's draws, Nancy McCammon, a transplant from Maryland, defeated Arlene Glassman of Delmar, 6-0, 6-0, for the singles title and teamed with her husband, Roger, the new pro at Southwood, to take the mixed doubles, 6-3, 6-4, over Craig and Eileen Jones, defending champions. Jones and Ackerman won the men's doubles over Matt Reich and Gren Van Heest, 7-6, 6-1.

Lynn Corbin and Anne Treadway won over Pat Bowman and Yeats of Hudson in the women's doubles. In the "B" events the winners were: men's singles, Lonzie Lewis of Albany; women's singles, Debbie Morris of Albany; women's doubles, Marcia Plante and Belinda Stanton; and mixed doubles, Dennie and Josie Sperry, a Troy husband-and-wife team.

Y-Guides meet

The Y-Guides, a father and child organization of the YMCA, launched their program with the seventh annual federation family field day Sept. 17 at Camp Mohawk in Altamont. The Bethlehem branch of Y-Guides is led by Tom Kershaw. Past chiefs are Clem Munger, Doug Pratt, and Rick Rudofsky.

The coming activities will include a christmas party, the Snow-Blast, indoor Olympics, the Bethlehem Memorial Day parade and the camp-out at Silver Bay, Lake George, in June. Y-Guide adviser Robert Klein has announced a meeting for prospective new members at 7 p.m. on Sept. 28 at the Bethlehem Library and a second meeting at 7 p.m. on Sept. 29 at The Bank community room, Delmar. Fathers and their children are invited to watch a brief slide show about the Y-Guide program and meet present members.

Held in larceny

Bethlehem detectives have arrested a 17-year-old Albany girl in connection with the burglary of a Delmar home earlier this month. Diane, J. Lyman, 17, of Mt. Hope Dr., was arrested last Wednesday by Dets. Colin Clark and Richard LaChappelle and charged with third degree grand larceny in the reported theft of $400 in jewelry and coins and a .22 caliber automatic pistol from 27 Albin Rd. She was arraigned before Justice Roger Fritts and remanded to Albany County Jail.

Blackbirds soar in grid opener

Voorheesville Central's football Blackbirds are flying high this week as they get ready for four straight games on the road after an impressive 14-0 conquest of Hudson.

"It was a big win for us," beamed Coach Tom Buckley. "Hudson is one of the better teams we'll be playing this year. We need some work on the offense, but defensively we were better than I had hoped."

This Saturday's trip is to Taconic Hills, which lost their opener, 26-6, to Rensselaer. Buckley plans no changes in the lineup, and the Blackbirds came through the Hudson game with no physical setbacks other than the usual bumps and bruises.

Last week the Birds got off to a cautious start as Hudson dominated the first quarter by running 18 plays and driving 75 yards to the VC 12. John Okesson halted that by cradling a Hudson fumble. Two long Voorheesville drives in the second period fizzled short of paydirt, and it wasn't until the third stanza that Greg Hawkins got his boys on the scoreboard. The big play in the 70-yard march was a 35-yard strike to Craig Gleason on the Hudson 8, but it was the off-tackle veers by the two halfbacks, Gleason and Jim Cillis, on option plays that picked up a lot of the ground. From the 8, Fullback Tom George got two yards on the inside, then Hawkins faked the same play so beautifully that Gleason slanted into the end zone from the 6 untouched.

After George was inches under the bar on a 31-yard field goal attempt, Gleason picked off a Hudson pass on the enemy 35 late in the fourth. This time it was George barreling in from the one with less than two minutes left. George kicked both extra points.

On the move, George had 116 yards in 25 carries. Gleason 46 in 9 and Cillis 25 for 5. Hawkins went 7-for-16 in the air for 130 yards, mostly to Gleason and Cillis.

Apart from the opening drive, the defense never permitted Hudson to get anything going. Buckley was happy. "Jim Cillis did an outstanding job at safety, and Sean O'Connor had a fine game at noseguard."

Shots wound girl, 16

Linda J. Clement, 16, of Western Ave., Guilderland, was treated at Albany Medical Center for shotgun wounds and released after an incident near the New Scotland-Bethlehem line Sunday. State police at the Selkirk substation said the girl was struck in both legs and the right hand by pellets fired by Michael J. Van Alostyne, 17, of Slingerlands during target practice. Troopers said Van Alostyne had been firing birdshot from a shotgun at an old refrigerator, and had walked up with the girl to check the shot pattern. The girl went into some nearby bushes and emerged as Van Alostyne was shooting, police said. No charges were placed.

Ritchko drills BC on offense

Still troubled by backfield mistakes, Coach Art Ritchko is putting the accent on polishing Bethlehem Central's offense this week in preparation for a trip to Niskayuna Saturday.

Coming off the 14-0 win at Colonie last week, Ritchko said he was "disappointed" in the running attack. "We didn't move the ball the way we should," he opined. "Too many fumbles and mistakes."

The veteran football tutor also is working on the aerial attack. "We've neglected our passing game, we've got to bring that up."

The Eagles got enough together in Saturday's opener to cross the line twice. Jim Giacone caught several key passes, including a 15-yard scoring toss from Steve Nowak, in the first period. Mike DeAngelis bucked over from the one in the third period.

Defensively the Eagles permitted Colonie only one decent drive, and shut that one off on the Bethlehem 10. Brian Bourque had an outstanding game for BC. "He was all over the field making tackles," Ritchko said.

Niskayuna, beaten in a non-league game in the opener, could be sub-par this year, but in the Suburban Council, everybody's tough on a given day.

The Vultures, Bethlehem's entry in the Pee Wee Division of Pop Warner football, went down by 27-6 at the hands of South Troy in Sunday's action at the Middle School field, Delmar. Mike Whitney's five-yard pass over the middle to Pat Davis was the only Bethlehem score.

In the Junior Midget contest, Bethlehem and Colonie battled to a scoreless tie. The Junior Midgets travel to East Greenbush this Sunday while the Pee Wees draw a bye.

An environmental education workshop will be given on Wednesday, Sept. 27, from 3:30 p.m. to 6 p.m. and again on Saturday, Sept. 30, at 10 a.m. at the Five Rivers Environmental Education Center, Game Farm Rd., Delmar. SOCCER

BC booters face critical tests

By nightfall next Tuesday, Bethlehem Central's soccer team will know just how much of a factor it will be in the 1978 Suburban Council race. The Eagles, coming off an impressive 5-0 win over Shaker in their opener last Saturday and two games this week with Colonie and Columbia, face powerful Shenendehowa at home Saturday and travel to Burnt Hills to meet the league and Sectional champions Tuesday.

The Eagles used crisp passing and a strong offense in whitewashing Shaker. With 13 minutes gone, Wayne Allen scored on a pass from Mark Dean, catching the Shaker goalie out of position with a 12-yard goal. The situation was reversed later as Dean scored on a pass from Allen, giving Bethlehem a 2-0 edge at half time.

Mike Lewis scored the third goal on a penalty shot and assisted on the next with a 40-foot cross to Wayne Allen who headed in his second tally. The final goal was another assist by Lewis to Jay Guinn who headed it in.

Coach Dale Walts was happy with the team's performance, but was cautious in his optimism. "Any time you get five goals you've got to be fairly well pleased," he admitted. "But there were a couple of breakdowns. We sat back for the first seven or eight minutes."

Walts was pleased with the play of rookie goalie Ed Gulligan. "Ed did well in his

A stone house in Onesquethaw: a dream come true

By Allison Bennett

You could fall in love with the scenic beauty that you find in the town of New Scotland. Driving westward on a perfect June day, the air is so clear that the fields are the color of new money and the Helderberg foothills swim in a brilliant blue, with every tree standing out in bold relief. Snuggled into a sloping hillside at the little settlement of Onesquethaw is one of New Scotland's jewels—the stone and wood frame house of Donald and Dorothy Bradt.

It was their dream to find a stone house in the country and they persisted until they were able to purchase this one, over 20 years ago. The Bradts have so beautifully cared for this home, both inside and out, that it belies its age of over 200 years. Don Bradt has lavished much hard work on its restoration and has even done the stone masonry that was required. To say that he is "handy" is sheer understatement. He's also an artist and sculptor, who paints and carves for pleasure, but people would surely pay for his works if he was so inclined. Although he and Dot are both retired, their house and hobbies leave them few empty hours.

This article begins a new series on historic homes in Bethlehem and New Scotland by Allison P. Bennett, prominent Delmar historian and writer. Subsequent articles will appear in the Spotlight over the next several months.

With the house came a 1790 indenture from Stephen Van Rensselaer, with the rent price of the land included: 12 skipplles of good winter wheat, four fat fowl and one day's service with horse and carriage at the Manor House of the Patroon. This deed is nearly identical with many others that are still in existence in the old farm houses of Albany County. The deed was re-executed when Thomas Austin bought the place in 1839. Sam Winston lived here later, and he told Mr. Bradt that he could recall his grandmother baking bread and trading it with Indians for their handmade baskets. This was not unusual in Albany County in the mid-19th century. Indians from western New York would come into the area in the summer with a supply of baskets they had woven during the long winter, camp out in a farmer's field, and sell or trade baskets to the local people.

The original part of the house was a one-room cottage, made of the limestone rock that is so prevalent here. The beams are put together with wooden pegs and a ladder beside the fireplace led to a sleeping loft. Mr. Bradt removed three layers of plaster in this room to expose the ceiling beams and the living room now has three walls of stone on the interior. Where he has made a massive stone fireplace, there was originally a Dutch-type jambless fireplace, with a dirt hearth. A large window has been added to one wall to give a view of the lawns, and the comfortable furniture, spiced with scattered antiques, gives an air of graciousness to the room. The wall of white painted pine paneling that adjoins the hall is hung with Don's art work. A scene of local interest is the old bridge over the Onesquethaw Creek at Clarksville, painted on a piece of barnboard.

Coming into the wooden section of the house there is a hall that leads us upstairs to a large central hall and two spacious bedrooms. There are little gable windows, such as are so often found in houses of this type, which allow for good cross ventilation. There is a great deal more room in this house than meets the eye when you view it from the outside. Beyond the hall is the combination kitchen-dining room, large enough that one corner of it is reserved for some comfortable chairs and a television set. This room too shows Don Bradt's skill, as he removed the lath and plaster to expose the ceiling beams and refinished the original wide-board floors. Wood kitchen cabinets unobtrusively carry out the country theme and blend with the chest high partition that separates the two areas of the room. This is a cozy arrangement, since it lets the cook be a part of what's going on in the dining-sitting room. Don now regrets that they took out a pair of stairs from this room, but says that is one of the perils of doing over old houses - sometimes you later wish you had done it differently! When they came here the entire upper floor was an open attic with logs for rafters, still with the bark on them.

Beyond the kitchen is another room that serves as a place for Don's desk and a store room of projects and furniture to be refinished. This room has not been finished to Don's liking, and is the next project in sight. A small porch from this room is attached to a carriage house structure that stores lawn and garden equipment. One unusual building stands in the yard. It's a wooden smoke house, lined with galvanized tin, and even the door is tin plated, to resist the ravages of fire. The smoke escaped through holes in the roof, and the wooden poles are there with wrought iron hangers, from which the meat was suspended for smoking.

The original barn on the property burned some years ago, and then the present barn was built. A winding country lane between the house and barn leads tantalizingly down into the broad meadows that border the Onesquethaw Creek. The Vanderbilts lease this land to raise hay, corn and alfalfa for their dairy herd, and that is truly a blessing since it keeps the fields in their original cultivated state. Too many country fields have long since been given over to second growth underbrush. The old Plank Road was beyond the lane and there is an old spring down there, lined with wooden sides. Older residents can remember that in dry times in summer local farmers were allowed to go there for barrels of water for their stock, and water could be drawn from here for use at the church.

The Bradts' 46 acres and colonial home is about as near as you can come to imagining what a country farmstead might have looked like in 18th century Albany County. Their home is their pride and their hobby, and it brings joy not only to them, but to the eye of the beholder.

Retired teachers meet

The Albany Area Retired Teachers Assn. will hold its fall luncheon meeting on Tuesday, Sept. 26, at 12:30 at the Century House, Latham. Grace Erkson, 439-2467, is taking reservations. Roslyn Faust of Delmar is association president.

Local Boy is Off The Wall

All the King's horses and all the King's men were gathered in Delaware Plaza, but they just couldn't get it all together. The object of their eggcitement was our split-personality friend, Ima Dreamer 17, of Delmar.

"Omeletteing you know eggsactly how I feel about Rogers Sport & Ski Shop-oval the stores around, he's got the most hard-boiled bargains. Pete's no poacher; you'd have a real scrambled head if you didn't shell out for his savings. His sporting goods are the most eggonomical in the area; yolkan't do better anywhere. You'll be in eggstasy over his eggcellent ineggspensive prices."

Town eggsecutive U.R. Whacko eggsclaimed, "I'm as eggumenical as anyone, but after all these egg salted benedictions, I'm ready to eggsplode! It's eggasperating the way he eggspresses himself, eggsuming such eggpositions. There's just no eggscuse for such eggcessive eggageration." (Now we know why the chicken crossed the road—even she found this eggstremely eggsecrable.)

Cleveland seeking state union post

William T. Cleveland, president of the Bethlehem Central teachers' union, is a candidate for president of the New York Educators Assn., one of New York's two statewide teachers' unions.

Cleveland, a social studies teacher at Bethlehem Central High School, is president of the New York State Council for Social Studies Teachers and national vice president of the History Teachers Assn. For the past three years he has been preparing an American Indian curriculum at the Newberry Library in Chicago under a federal grant.

The Schenectady Gazette reported last week that Cleveland is relinquishing his post as chairman of the Guilderland Democratic Committee, a post he has held for the past two years. The Gazette story said Cleveland had confirmed the report he was stepping down as party leader, but indicated his decision was not due to criticism from members of the town committee. The newspaper said he has not endorsed Donald Lawrence, the only announced candidate for the chairmanship, despite the fact that the committee's vice chairman and secretary are supporting Lawrence.

Senior citizens outdoors

The Bethlehem Senior Citizens exercise class will meet at Five Rivers Environmental Education Center for a special outdoor activity session at 11:30 a.m. Wednesday, Sept. 27.

BUSINESS

A fashion store opens in Elsmere

Two business-tested proprietors of women's clothing stores in the Albany area and in the nearby Berkshires have teamed in opening a new fashion store in Elsmere.

Larry Schwartz, who owned men's clothing stores in the Stockbridge area for five years, and his wife, Lois Miller, who owns the Lady Madonna Maternity boutique in Stuyvesant Plaza and a similar outlet in Pittsfield, have set up shop at 163 Delaware Ave. in space vacated by the Ari Isolino menswear store.

Schwartz, 40, came to Albany from Stockbridge in August, looked around for a location and picked Delmar as "a promising marketing area as well as a nice place to live." He and his wife have taken an apartment on Feura Bush Rd.

Both are natives of New York City. Lois Miller, 30, retaining her maiden name professionally, lived in the Berkshires for six years. The new store will advertise "better women's clothing at discount prices," according to Schwartz, and is carrying a full line with an accent on sportswear.

Gymnastics for boys

Albany YMCA will offer a course in gymnastics for boys 6-12 on Saturdays from 11:15 to 12:30 for an eight-week session. Information 449-7196.

Clarksville celebrates

All the people served by the Onesquethaw Fire Co. Inc. and its ambulance unit are invited to a celebration honoring these two organizations. The celebration will start with services at the Clarksville Community Church at 10:30 a.m. Rev. Stephen Wing will deliver the sermon. A plaque will be presented to the company commending the officers and members, past and present, for their dedication to the well-being and safety of the community. A dinner will follow, where personal thanks can be given by those who received assistance in the past. A memorabilia of incidents involving the fire company will be on display in the dining hall.

Parents' seminar at school

Bethlehem Middle School parents who may be concerned about their children's basic educational skills are invited to attend a meeting on Thursday, Sept. 28, at 7:30 p.m. in the school auditorium. Principal Frederick Burdick and four department supervisors will explain how Middle School teachers instruct pupils in certain skill areas, such as study habits, and suggest how parents can help their children at home.

Find service as you like it—fast and friendly from the efficient staff at KRUGMAN'S DELMAR PHARMACY INC. We handle a full line of drugs and have a large well equipped pharmacy to handle your prescriptions. YES, WE NEED NEW LISTINGS

We have several excellent properties available — but we could certainly use more. We all know the present mortgage market is difficult, probably more so than we predicted in our late winter ads. However, if you drive thru Westchester Woods & other areas, you will notice that we are still able to market homes even under these difficulties. Small, medium, and large houses are still selling but continued pressure on the mortgage market could depress values. Act now; contact our office immediately if you are contemplating a change. We are open 7 days a week, have a 24 hr. answering service, are associated with nationwide referral services & have been actively involved in the tri-village area for over a 1/4 of a century.

W. Van Kirk Brownell

Executive retires

W. Van Kirk Brownell of Slingerlands retired Sept. 1 as executive vice president of Blue Cross of Northeastern New York after 40 years of service. He joined Albany Blue Cross in 1938 as a sales representative when it was known as the "3¢ a Day for Hospital Care Plan" and had 7,000 subscribers. He helped the fledgling organization grow from a limited concept of providing basic hospital benefits into a plan that offers comprehensive health care coverage to 70 percent of the population of New York's 13 northeastern counties.

Mr. Brownell served on past boards of the United Fund (now the United Way), Albany Kiwanis Club and Albany Travelers Aid. He helped to found the Capital District's first federally qualified health maintenance organization, the Community Health Plan (CHP) in Latham.

Mr. Brownell was married in 1939 to Clara Stutz, who died in 1973. He married the former Sally Everett Quinlan of Potsdam in 1975. Mr. Brownell has two children, David Brownell, a social worker in Syracuse, and Barbara Brownell, who works with the computer division of American Telephone and Telegraph Co., White Plains.

Joining Air Force

Marie Stephany, daughter of Mrs. Ruth Thomas of 339 Kenwood Ave., Delmar, recently entered the Air Force delayed enlisted program. The 1978 graduate of Bethlehem Central High School is scheduled to leave for basic training at Lackland Air Force Base near San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 5, 1979. County court house

Editor, The Spotlight:

I feel that most of my constituents would agree with my recent vote on the bond issue to finance the reconstruction of county-owned buildings if they had all of the facts.

The Albany County Court House was built in 1913 and in 65 years there have been no major improvements to it. Great strides have been made in engineering and construction skills and equipment, and they should be applied to correct the heating, ventilating, lighting and storage conditions. The architect and engineering report indicates such problems as boilers cracked in 17 places, antiquated lighting and the need for a new roof.

The report indicates that the ventilating system is so inefficient it is not in operation, which is in violation of the building code. With a modern, efficient heating system we could save 36,000 gallons of oil a year and about $18,000. If the ventilating system were put back into use as it currently is, it would use about 135,000 gallons of oil and cost about $65,000. By modernizing it both of these figures would be cut in half. The report also indicates the building is structurally sound.

What were the alternatives? We could try to patch things up out of current costs while the building continues to deteriorate. We can refuse to do even this and allow the building to fall apart (witness Union Station). We could build a new county building at prohibitive costs. I believe that most of my constituents want to preserve this building rather than to have it fall into such disrepair that it would not be worth modernizing.

As a responsible county legislator, I have looked at all the alternatives and I feel it is the most economical way to house and operate our county government through the turn of the century. Building costs will not go down in the near future. Whether we like it or not county government is here to stay and I believe it is cheaper to modernize the Albany County Court House and not procrastinate.

The state, the city and state university have all done their part to rehabilitate downtown Albany. I think we in county government should make our contribution. (Look at what has been done to City Hall and the D&H Building.)

I understand and hear all the sounds concerning Proposition 13. It calls for the prudent use of taxpayers' money. Of all the alternatives, this bond issue is the most prudent way to use the taxpayers' money, in my opinion.

One additional part of this bond issue is to be used to design a master plan which will bring the operation of county government into the 21st century. This will be accomplished through interviews and planning with all department heads, administrators and supervisors so that we will have a long-range plan for all county departments and centralized county offices. This is something that several of us in the legislature called for at least eight years ago and is therefore long overdue.

To sum up, I feel this bond issue for capital improvements is necessary, and over the long haul will prevent much greater expenditures at a later date if we are to preserve our 65-year-old court house and use it efficiently.

Career advancement

Editor, The Spotlight:

Your article in the Sept. 14 issue announcing the appointments of five provisional police officers to the Bethlehem Police Force was read with a great deal of interest and pride. Four of the five new officers were all employed at the New York Job Corps Center and performed in an outstanding manner under the leadership of Anthony DeMeo, our security chief.

This is but another spin-off value of having an institution such as the Job Corps in the community. The opportunities for employment and training provide a stepping stone for career advancement. Congratulations to all five of the new officers.
