BETHLEHEM

Third fatality spurs step-up in radar speed checks

Bethlehem police, often criticized for putting too much emphasis on radar checks, were stepping up their campaign against speeders and drinking drivers this week in the wake of the town's third traffic fatality of 1979.

The death of a 19-year-old youth in a one-car accident in Glenmont Sunday was the third traffic fatality of the year in Bethlehem, compared to two in the corresponding period last year. The town's 1978 total of 11 deaths in nine fatal accidents was the highest on record.

Inspector Richard LaChappelle, a police department spokesman, said the department will intensify its radar and road checks in the coming months in an effort to cut down the toll. "Every one of the fatal accidents was related to excessive speed or alcohol or both," he said.

LaChappelle also said that the department's arrests for DWI (driving while intoxicated) are running "100 percent over last year" and that arrests for exceeding posted speed limits "also are up."

The latest fatality was Christopher Ortiz, 19, of Cedar Hill, a passenger in a car driven by Thomas J. Paquette, 25, of 17 Wiggand Dr., Glenmont. Police said Paquette's small foreign sports car failed to make a left hand turn from Wheeler Rd. onto Rt. 144 at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, slammed broadside into a power pole and spun down a slight embankment.

Police said Ortiz was ejected as the right side of the fiberglass car disintegrated on impact.

Paquette was treated for cuts and bruises at Albany Medical Center and released. He was charged with driving while ability was impaired, reckless driving and imprudent speed, and ticketed for a later appearance in Bethlehem justice court.

VOORHEESVILLE

School to offer 'booster' courses

Voorheesville Junior-Senior High School will offer a summer school program in language arts and mathematics this year for the first time, focusing on seventh and eighth grade students who have either failed those courses or need additional classroom work.

The school announcement said that students can receive credit for a course they failed and move to the next level.

The five-week program will begin Monday, July 2 and will end Friday, Aug. 3. Class time will be from 9 to 10:30 and 10:40 to 12:10.

Deadline for course registration, either by mail or in person at the guidance office is by registering the student in person on Thursday, June 28. There will be no charge for district residents and no district transportation.

Somebody's swinging

Bethlehem police are looking for a swinger: someone removed a $100 swinging chair from a residence on Font Grove Rd., Slingerlands, in the pre-dawn hours last Sunday.

Jim Kerr and George Ten Eyck of the Delmar Rescue Squad demonstrate some of their equipment for Boy Scouts of Troop 260 working on their emergency preparedness merit badge.

SLINGERLANDS

Police track down hit-run driver

It started with a coincidence and ended with an example of dogged police work aided by another coincidence. The result: a hit-run driver faces a traffic charge and his employer a possible damage suit.

Officer John R. Cox, Jr., ending the first of a double shift early Saturday, had been running a radar check on New Scotland Rd. at Slingerlands St. when he returned to headquarters at 6:45 a.m. to write reports before beginning his 7 to 3 shift. Within 20 minutes a call came that a water main had ruptured—at New Scotland Rd. and Slingerlands St.

Back at the site, Cox found a hit-run vehicle had hit a hydrant, causing the water main break and a gushing torrent. A water department crew lost a few minutes when they discovered last year's road resurfacing had covered the shutoff valve. The crew halted the gusher and repaired the main, but not before the water had risen to five feet in the basement of a nearby house.

Meanwhile Cox found a smear of green paint on the smashed hydrant and began asking questions in the area. A neighbor told him a Hamilton News driver had been seen changing a tire at the Toll Gate a short time earlier.

At the Hamilton News garage on Hannay Lane, Glenmont, Cox found the building unlocked, so he notified the manager to secure the premises. Inside, Cox found one of the green trucks with a smear of yellow paint on the front bumper and wheel cover. The paint matched the color of the hydrant.

When the manager, Nick Maniscalco, arrived, he told Cox he had been notified that one of his trucks had struck a hydrant and had a flat tire, but was unaware of the extent of the damage caused by the ruptured main. The driver of the truck, Maniscalco told police, said he had been forced off the road by a passing vehicle.

Cox didn't buy that. His report stated there were no skid marks on the pavement and there was "plenty of room" to avoid the hydrant.

At Spotlight press time police were preparing to ticket the truck driver for leaving the scene of an incident. The official word was that the matter was "still under investigation."

Meanwhile, William Somerville, whose basement at 1598 New Scotland Rd. was flooded, was evaluating the damage, to his furnace, food freezer, furniture, tools and other items. There was no official indication whether Cox's police work in identifying the driver of the vehicle had shifted liability for the damage from the town of Bethlehem to the owner of the van.

Wenzel to run for town council

In a surprise political move, Voorheesville Mayor William J. Wenzel has accepted nomination to run for the New Scotland town board on the Republican ticket in the local elections in November.

The Republican town committee, meeting at the home of GOP chairman Frederick R. Edmunds in New Salem Monday night, nominated Wenzel and incumbent Wyman Osterhout for the two four-year council seats on the November ballot.

Wenzel, now serving his fifth two-year term as village mayor and a popular leader, represents the GOP's bid to regain the council seat lost four years ago to Kenneth Tice of Voorheesville.

Tice, former town Democratic chairman, is regarded as a strong vote-getter, and is expected to be a candidate for reelection in the fall. The Republicans have held a 3-2 edge on the council for the last four years, a margin that could tip either way in New Scotland's characteristically close elections.

For other spots on the ballot, the Republican committee renominated the present leadership: Supervisor Steve Wallace, seeking his fourth two-year term, Town Clerk Corinne Cossac, Highway Supt. Peter Van Zetten, Tax Collector Edita Probst, and Town Justice William Seymour. The committee also nominated Michael Ricci of Voorheesville for reelection to the Albany County Legislature.

Church honors graduates

This year's high school graduates will be honored at a 10 a.m. service Sunday at the United Methodist Church, Voorheesville. Because the weather is expected to be ideal, the service will be held on the back lawns of the Cureau and Roe properties, which adjoin the church to the east. If the weather is threatening, the social hall of the church will be used.

A short reception for the graduates will follow in the social hall. Rev. Sherwood E. Carver, seeking volunteers among the graduates to assist him in the service, welcomes calls at 765-2895. The public is invited to this outside service, the only one of its kind during the year.

Parents are wary of pupil shifts

When the word got out that the Bethlehem board of education was thinking of modifying its long-standing policy of basing elementary school pupil assignments on class size rather than geographical boundaries, more than 30 parents flocked to 90 Adams Pl. Wednesday to find out what was happening.

The gist: the board, wrestling with the problem of shifting elementary school enrollments and sensitive to class sizes, is leaving itself open to making last-minute shifts in school assignments of pupils who live in areas nearly equidistant from two elementary schools. Instead of making next year's class assignments in the spring, the board now will wait till August. If students have to be transferred from their home schools, parents are given the choice as a rule about which alternate school location they prefer.

"The way we have it planned is that every youngster will attend the school he is now attending," said Supt. of Schools Lawrence A. Zinn. "But home-school placement can never be promised. With our mobile society, it might not always be so."

Moving students to new schools is not as traumatic as some believe, Zinn pointed out. Board President Ann Patton explained that "we are staffed to provide favorably for students. To overload a teacher's class would be unfair."

Mrs. Patton said classes are usually 27 or 28 pupils in size. "This is sometimes changed by families moving into the district. Our purpose is to make it fair and understood by everyone." The board took no action. The next meeting will be June 20.

State backing off on church suppers

Those delicious covered dishes of pork chunks in baked beans, macaroni and cheese, chicken and biscuits and the heaping bowls of mashed potatoes and string beans that symbolize church suppers are safe, after all, from the prying of state inspectors.

A report last week in the Watertown Daily Times says the State Health Dept., in a surprise turnabout, has decided not to require sanitary inspections of food offered by volunteer fire companies, church groups, scout troops and other non-profit civic organizations.

But State Health Commissioner David Axelrod told Paul J. Browne, Albany correspondent of the Watertown Times, that his agency would require these organizations to keep it posted on their activities so that the department can mail them information on food preparations and sanitary precautions.

The Times, which carries detailed local coverage of four counties in Northern New York, got interested in the situation when a bill exempting such organizations from expanded state regulations was vetoed by Gov. Hugh L. Carey after being passed overwhelmingly by both houses of the Legislature. Church suppers and firemen's carnivals are a way of life in the rural areas of "the North country" and in many other parts of upstate New York.

The fight to exempt the volunteer organizations from permits and inspections was led by Assemblyman David Martin, St. Lawrence County Republican.

But the Times reporter said Axelrod still "had cautionary words that long-time bakers of beans and fryers of chicken may find hard to swallow." The paper quoted the commissioner as saying that "these are dangerous" and added that such foods are prepared by "well-meaning people with no experience" in handling large amounts of food.

The "compromise" reportedly provides that non-profit organizations have a 120-day grace period to put on suppers, picnics, barbecues and the like without state interference, and then have only to notify the State Health Dept. of their intentions by letter to keep them in good standing for two years.

The newspaper refrained from reminding its readers that one of its constituents became famous for making one basic ingredient of covered dish suppers famous. "Grandma Brown" came from the small village of Mexico, Oswego County, barely 60 miles from Watertown, and her name now is synonymous with baked beans.

VOORHEESVILLE Swift Rd. group seeking water

A group of Swift Rd. residents have petitioned the New Scotland town board to set up a water district that would connect with the Bethlehem trunk line beneath Rt. 85.

But Mrs. Frederick W. Biernacki and some 30 others who signed the petition face a long and costly struggle in their effort to obtain a permanent water supply for their neighborhood.

As explained by Town Attorney James Ryan, the petitioners must, among other things, determine whether the town of Bethlehem is willing to sell water to Swift Rd. residents, go through legal procedures to set up a water district, compile engineering data and sketches, come up with cost figures and determine district boundaries. Such a district, Ryan said, must also have the approval of state and county agencies as well as go through at least one public hearing.

Residents would also be required to bear the cost of installing the system. Ironically, the storage tower of the Voorheesville village water system is located on Swift Rd., but Mrs. Biernacki said the village board has expressed reluctance to grant additional taps.

Operetta at school

Leading roles will be played by Beth Ammerman, Jennifer and Susan Scott, Jeremy Manning, Joe Frazier, Julie Cornell, Eric Stilan, Sean Sheehan and Bill Keck.

NEW SCOTLAND
Inflation cuts
road program

New Scotland's rented Moto-paver will spend next week on Spore Rd. after completing its assignment on Bullock Rd. in Slingerlands.

Peter Van Zetten, New Scotland highway superintendent, plans to give Spore Rd. the full treatment for the road's 1.3 mile length between Delaware Tpk. and Murray-Jennex Park: that is, base and top surface. Town crews did the necessary ditching work last year.

Also on Van Zetten's 1979 agenda are Collabeck Rd., Feura Bush, which will also get the full treatment for about seven-tenths of a mile, and Cass Hill Rd., nine-tenths of a mile between Delaware Tpk. and Dunbar Hollow Rd.

On Cass Hill, one of the steepest roads in the town, road crews still have some grading work to do, Van Zetten said. "Most of the ditching is done, and some will be done after the paving." Cass Hill will get a base as well as a top coating of pavement, but the sharp curve on the hill that gives the area's 14 households most of their vehicle grief isn't going to be re-routed.

"We can't do much about changing the curve," Van Zetten said.

The soaring cost of materials, especially oil, is raising hob with New Scotland's highway budget. Included in the $350,000 allocated to roads is $100,000 for resurfacing, a sum that used to accommodate about six miles of new paving and now barely covers four.

It now costs the town 57.5 cents a gallon for oil and another 10.5 cents to apply it to the roads, Van Zetten said. The 68 cents compares with 50 cents a year ago and 42 cents eight years ago. New Scotland uses about 400,000 gallons a year, which translates to a cost increase of $72,000 in oil alone over last year.

BETHLEHEM

Grievance Day Saturday hours

Last year, when Gilbert Houk, Bethlehem assessor, announced that the town tax rolls would be open on Saturdays to taxpayers considering Grievance Day appeals, only one person showed up.

This year Houk has opened his office on the first three Saturdays of June—there's one more to go on June 16—and business is on the rise. This year 18 persons came by on the first Saturday and another 28 last Saturday.

"It looks like we're setting a precedent," he said, stating that the Saturday hours are an accommodation for people who cannot get to town hall during weekday office hours.

Grievance Day is Tuesday June 19, and the town's three member board of assessment review is girding for a possible avalanche. The reason: 100 percent assessment goes into effect next year.

VOORHEESVILLE Villagers forming drug-drink unit

A group of Voorheesville residents is organizing a community drug and alcohol abuse committee, and has issued a call for volunteers. An organization meeting will be held on Monday, June 18, at 7:30 p.m. at the United Methodist Church in Voorheesville.

John Zongrone, chairman of the drug abuse committee of the New Scotland Kiwanis Club, will serve as temporary chairman of the larger committee.

A spokesman said the committee will be an active working group. It will spend time educating itself about the drug and alcohol problem in the Voorheesville area. From there, it will work to educate the public about the problem and to implement any support systems it feels are needed in the community.

The meeting is open to all concerned citizens of the community who wish to make a serious commitment to work in the area of drug and alcohol abuse.

NEW SCOTLAND Baltis to seek business zoning

A Voorheesville developer has asked the town of New Scotland to rezone a tract at the intersection of Rts. 85A and 155 to light industrial.

Peter Baltis, 5 Evergreen Dr., petitioned the town board at last Wednesday's regular meeting to change the zone classification of the 11-acre parcel from its current status as Residential-1. The board referred the petition to the town planning board for study.

If the planning board is able to reach a recommendation at its next scheduled meeting on June 12, the request could come before the town board for action on July 2.

Baltis was balked two years ago in an attempt to persuade the Voorheesville village board to annex the property. The annexation, which would have qualified Baltis to tap into the village water system, was denied.

At that time, Baltis indicated he had plans to develop the corner tract for stores and offices. There was no indication on the current petition as to what plans Baltis now has for the property.

A zoning change would require a public hearing before the New Scotland town board.

In other actions last week, the board:

- Moved the date of its July meeting from the first Wednesday to July 2 at 8 p.m. to avoid the holiday on the Fourth.

- Appointed Chester Boehlke of Unionville as town dog warden at a salary of $5,200, effective immediately.

- Received a lengthy set of suggested rules for the town park drawn up by the recreation commission based on rules for Thatcher State Park and the Bethlehem town park.

Honors at JCA

Four local students were cited for academic excellence at the Junior College of Albany commencement last month. They were: Donna Kane of Glenmont, the Secretarial Science Award; Gail LaDuke of Voorheesville, excellence in applied science; Ellen Prakken of Delmar, excellence in applied science and achievement in commercial art, and Noreen Carpenter of Delmar, meritorious service to student life at JCA.

Driver faces charges

Thomas M. Shea, 40, of Cohoes will answer two traffic charges in Bethlehem justice court after his car struck a utility pole at Bedell Ave. and Delaware Ave. at 11:30 p.m. Saturday. Police said Shea submitted to a blood test at St. Peter's Hospital where he was treated for head, neck and chest injuries, then while Officer Paul F. Roberts was writing the tickets, tried to elude the officer. Roberts and a hospital security guard halted him before he could enter a hospital elevator. He was charged with driving while intoxicated and driving while his license was suspended.

GLENMONT

Planners ponder major subdivision

Whenever land developers come up with plans for a large residential subdivision, it's usual for homeowners in the area to find a dozen reasons why the town planning board should turn thumbs down on the whole project.

This has happened countless times, especially in Slingerlands where residents have battled against the big Deerfield project, nee Lyndhurst, and in Delmar, where neighbors crowded the hearing room to oppose Brookfield.

Last week, when the Bethlehem planning board held a public hearing on preliminary plans for a proposed 72-lot residential development in Glenmont, there was an audience of one, Mrs. Mildred Knauff, who owns the adjoining property. Board members were surprised that no one else showed up, but as one member commented later: "At least we know that if the project should be approved, we're not offending a lot of people."

The empty hearing room was all the more surprising because the project, still in its preliminary design stage, is a major one:

59 single-family lots and 13 duplexes on 32 acres on the north side of Glenmont Rd. between Jolly Rd. and Hartman Rd. just east of the Thruway. The subdivision's name is Pondfield, although a field inspection by engineers of the J. Kenneth Fraser Associates, consultants to the town, found no pond as shown on the site plan. The developer is David Porat of Monsey, N.Y.

The tract is in a Residential-A zone, which requires a minimum lot size of 8,500 square feet for single dwellings and 14,500 for duplexes. The minimum frontage under the zoning ordinance in Single-A is 60 feet for one-family houses and 100 feet for duplexes.

The board deferred action on the proposal, pending receipt of engineering reports on drainage and soil analysis, and a green light from the Albany County planning board. The State Dept. of Transportation, which rules on traffic impact, has already given its tentative approval to Pondfield.

At its April 4 meeting, the town planning board determined that the proposed subdivision would not require an environmental impact statement to be filed by the developer.

Shop Talk

by Judi James

take you there time and time again.

It's a small shop . . . and a very personal one. The owner and her husband grow all the herbs, pot them and care for them. At this time of year, they are exceptionally busy. Outside the shop is a screened area where the plants are watered and sheltered, and are there for browsing customers.

"So you have some lemon-scented basil plants?" one young woman asked. When told that they were all gone . . . and that the lemon-scented basil should be in the ground by now, her disappointment was mollified as the owner told her of another plant she might like.

"The sweet woodruff is available, and you might like that. It's the flavoring of May wine. It has a pretty flower — small and dainty and delicate — and can be used for culinary purposes or as a dried flower in arrangements," she was told.

It is this kind of knowledge and direction that keeps customers coming back to the Shuttle Hill Herb Shop.

We discussed herbs and their growth possibilities with the owner. She told us that herbs are Mediterranean plants. They need a well-drained soil and lots of sun. The Tri-Village area is rather a border-line area for growing. However some herbs grow here exceptionally well. Among them is rosemary, an herb that must winter indoors and is a wonderful additive to soups and many vegetables.

Rose geraniums also are highly recommended to the beginning herb gardener. They have a dual purpose. They are primarily used for potpourri and for jelly and wines.

We asked about harvest time for herbs, and apparently it varies. "Most herbs have two harvests. For cooking purposes, we generally like to harvest them before they come into bloom. Then, of course, if used in dried arrangements, they must be picked later."

They are picked, tied together and hung up to dry in a good airy and protected place. One woman I know strings wire in her garage and hangs the various herbs there.

The Shuttle Hill owners take special orders for plants, too. "If something doesn't take to planting, we dig it up especially for the customer."

Recalling a lovely gift a young bride once gave us . . . a ginger jar filled with rose-geranium leaves . . . we asked about potpourris. We were told that one can buy the oils and fixitives which are added to the flower petals to make the potpourri right there at Shuttle hill too. The owner told us that it is a popular art . . . and there is always a steady interest in it.

At this point, our eyes roved the shop. A darling "rope" of tanzey, lavender, and yarrow frames a special group of shelves holding cooking herbs, somewhere put together by the owners of the shop . . . the special blends of herbs for soups, for fish and some very special wine vinegars.

In the fall, Shuttle Hill herb wreaths, dried flower wreaths and arrangements are very much in demand. And, they also have some special miniature dried flowers that make nice arrangements all year round.

It's the time to plant, and to plant some herbs is a wondrous thing. Herbs, used in culinary ventures, make a day that is sunshine and a house that is filled with a wondrous aroma!

With these thoughts in mind, we ventured into the Shuttle Hill herb shop, in Elsmere behind Mullen's Pharmacy. To go there is an experience . . . and undoubtedly one that will

Sign shortage
abets speeders

Drivers with a heavy foot on the gas pedal will get a lift when they read this:

There's a shortage of speed limit signs in New York State, which means the cops can't enforce new restrictions until they're posted. The state says it has a backlog of 300 signs, which may be six months to a year.

This perplexing information was revealed Wednesday by Supervisor Steve Wallace of the town of New Scotland, who wants to post Spore Rd. at 35 mph and Apple Blossom Lane at 30 mph. It took a long time for the New Scotland town board to get state approval of the new limits—some applications are still pending—so it's especially frustrating to have to wait for the signs.

In describing his frustration at last week's town board meeting, Wallace was persistent. "I'm going to try to borrow some," he said.

An outdoor treat at Lawson's Lake

Hamagrael students were able to enjoy the great outdoors—and learn—the first week in June. Two busloads of fourth and fifth graders were taken to Lawson's Lake for a week of outdoor education.

Fifteen workshops were offered . . . creative writing, nature crafts, sketching, dramatics, insects, reporting, compass use, tree identification, indoor and outdoor cooking, music, perimeter and area. Each of the 70 students could select seven workshops to explore and learn through participation.

Several young journalists wrote five issues of the "Lawson's Lake Gazette." The sponsors feel the important thing about preparing this daily newspaper and the workshop is learning the importance of working together. Also inherent is cooperation in cooking, firebuilding and all activities the students experience helping each other.

The helping hands of parents are also integral to making the Lawson's program a success. The venture with participation by various Bethlehem schools has been going on for eight years. One year it was not possible because there were not enough parents to help.

This year also may be the last year for the program. With the state taking over the property as a public site, the future of the Bethlehem program is uncertain.

Last Friday the finale to the week at Lawson's Lake was a family picnic featuring fishing, food, softball, skits and a shore campfire. Sue Hemingway

Christian workshop program is set

Something different! That's the theme for the 14th annual Bethlehem Christian Workshop this year.

Al Ruechel, area TV newscaster for Channel 13, will help climax the Workshop week of July 9-13 as the featured guest at an all-family campfire and sing-a-long on Friday, July 13. It will be held at Bethlehem Community Church, 201 Elm Ave., Delmar, sponsors of the Workshop.

Al is co-youth director at Our Saviour's Lutheran Church in Colonie and a traveling minstrel. He will play his guitar, lead the singing and present his testimony in song around the campfire. Festivities will begin at 7:30 p.m. and the campfire will be followed by a family food, fun and fellowship time. Displays from most Workshop classes will be in the church sanctuary for viewing all evening.

This year's Workshop features a total of 43 classes, held in various Bethlehem area homes and at Bethlehem Community Church. The curriculum will include an expanded evening Teenadult section for teenagers and adults, offered for the second year, in addition to regular Workshop courses for kindergartners through Senior High. Many old favorites from previous Workshop years, along with a host of new classes, are included in the variety of course offerings.

Brochures containing all class descriptions, plus registration information, were distributed throughout the Bethlehem area last Saturday.

The Workshop is designed to provide a format of spiritual enrichment coupled with enjoyable and stimulating academic offerings. Each student participates in a Bible study, taught from an interdenominational perspective. The studies center around developing a personal relationship with Jesus Christ and incorporating Christian faith into everyday life.

Dr. L. Gerald Winn is again director of this year's Workshop. The steering committee includes Donna Frueh, chairman of the curriculum committee; William McDowell, transportation; Carl Dugan, equipment; Alan Hoffman, publicity; Lee Pearsall, circulation, and Margery Hoffman, registrar.

Denny back on net throne

A whirlwind finish has put Dave Denny back on top as Bethlehem's town tennis champion.

In a battle between two homegrown shotmakers who were teammates at BCHS and Albany State, Denny conquered Phil Ackerman, 7-5, 6-0, in the feature final of the annual Bethlehem Tennis Assn. championships.

Denny unleashed a fusillade of rocket backhands and low-skidding forehands that enabled him to dominate the net after Ackerman had taken a 5-2 lead in the first set at the Middle School Sunday.

Denny then abandoned his cautious backline game and began to charge the net. Ackerman couldn't win another game as Denny ran out 11 straight games to take the trophy.

Denny won the title in 1977, Ackerman in 1978.

Jessica Treadway, a Bethlehem Central senior, won the women's singles crown with a 6-1, 6-3 triumph over Dodie Segel. Jessica's trophy will take its place alongside those collected by her mother, Ann Treadway, a perennial Bethlehem women's singles champion.

Jessica's mother and a younger sister added two more trophies to the Treadway collection when Ann Treadway and Nancy McCammon took the women's "A" doubles title, 6-2, 6-1, over Jean Balint and Grace Franze, and teenagers Allison Cooper and Molly Treadway squeezed out a 2-6, 6-4, 7-5 victory over Jackie Walden and Marie Liddle in the women's "B" doubles in the closest match of the final day.

A year ago the Balint-Franze tandem won the crown in straight sets from the mother-daughter team of Ann and Jessica Treadway.

Ackerman gained some solace from his performance in the men's doubles, where he and Craig Jones successfully defended their title with a 6-1, 6-1 win over Ed Taylor and Mike Harrison. In the mixed doubles, Kirby Hannan and Nancy McCammon won over Craig and Eileen Jones in a crowd-pleaser, 7-5, 5-7, 6-3. The Joneses won the 1977 crown only to lose the 1978 final in a third-set 10-8 tie-breaker.

In other "B" finals, the winners were: men's singles, Jim Schaefer over Neal Robbins, 3-6, 6-0, 6-2; women's singles, Ann Weber over Pat Tomasetti, 6-1, 6-1; men's doubles, Steve Kafka-Steve Gregory over Mike Kirkman-Bob Cory, 6-0, 7-6, and mixed doubles, Jim Graber-Aussie Shayegani over Peter and Alice Tenbeau, 6-1, 6-3.

The ten events in the tournament went off smoothly under the guidance of co-chairmen Pat Tomasetti and Carol Turner despite gusty winds on the final day that gave some of the players trouble. One sidelight: Bethlehem teenagers made a substantial dent in the tourneys, led by the Treadway sisters, Allison Cooper and Tim Talmadge, 14-year-old Slingerlands protege who teamed with John Shafer, a BTA past president, to reach the semifinals of the men's "B" doubles. Elsewhere in the draws, young players won their share in the elimination rounds, gaining experience if not trophies.

FOOTBALL

FitzPatrick takes BC football post

For the first time in 22 years, Bethlehem Central's varsity football team will take the field without Art Ritchko directing from the bench. The new coach is Gene FitzPatrick, who coached freshman football for 13 years at BCHS before taking a full-time assignment in the guidance department.

FitzPatrick's selection was disclosed Monday. The Bethlehem board of education is expected to confirm the appointment officially at its next meeting on June 20.

A source at the school said a selection committee screened "about a dozen" applicants after Ritchko stepped down in the wake of the Eagles' 9-1 season last year.

FitzPatrick, 46, spent 13 years as a physical education teacher at Bethlehem, during which time he coached freshman football, plus seven years as varsity wrestling coach. He coached freshman baseball nine years, freshman swimming six years and 7-8 basketball one year. He has been officiating football, wrestling and lacrosse for the past six years.

A native of Syracuse, he was educated at Cazenovia High School and Cortland State. He lives at 6 Roweland Ave., Delmar, with his wife, three sons who are well known local athletes, and two daughters.

DAR elects

The Mohawk chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution met in May at the 18th century home of Mrs. DuMont Elmendorf, Jr., retiring regent, in Feura Bush.

Reports from the Continental Congress were presented by Mrs. H. Gordon Brower. Among the officers elected and installed were Mrs. Frederick W. Moore, Coeymans, regent, and Mrs. Ruth Baumbach, Voorheesville, chaplain.

Plans are being made for the June family picnic to observe Flag Day. At the May graduation review at Christian Brothers Academy, Mrs. Moore presented the DAR ROTC medal to Douglas Lavigne on behalf of the Mohawk chapter.

Bank dividend

A regular quarterly dividend of 30 cents a share was declared by Key Banks Inc., payable July 13 to shareholders of record June 29.

Blue Jays get pitching boost

Good pitchers are hard to find, but Manager Rudy Toffenetti has come up with a beauty in Jeff Rose, who has chosen to mix his Twilight League chores with an occasional stint for the Delmar Blue Jays.

The Jays moved into fast company Sunday against the semi-pro Bennington Generals in Vermont, but Rose had a one-hitter for five innings in a 5-2 loss. On Saturday, dependable Jack Dalton hurled his third straight complete game despite a shaky start as Delmar split a Capital District League doubleheader with Schuylerville.

Coming up are a non-league win bill at Granville Saturday and a league game against Cocca's Diner of Watervliet Sunday at 12:30 at the BCHS field.

The Blue Jays gave the potent Generals a rough time Sunday, but were victimized by one shots directly at infielders. Ken White had two singles and two line drives before the ultimate bad break: trailing 5-2 with the bases loaded in the ninth, White bludgeoned a 375-foot shot to right center that Bill Hart, a former Kansas City Royals farmhand, caught over his shoulder on the run.

Rose pitched a six-hitter and fanned 10 with only one walk. Schuylerville came to town with a 7-0 record and nicked Dalton for three runs in the first inning, but the hometown favorite got a tie in the fifth on an infield error and three Delmar singles, then opened the winning rally in the final frame with a lead-off double. Schuylerville set up a force with two intentional passes, but with Mark Kleinke up, Dalton scored on a wild pitch for the 6-5 win.

Schuylerville won the second game, 12-5, roughing up a weary Frank Venezia, pitching with only one day's rest.

Toffenetti hopes to show Rose or Big John MacDonald on the mound for Delmar fans Saturday, depending on revolving schedules with Twilight League commitments. MacDonald pitched a strong shut-out in his first game, but has been sitting out with a sore arm. Toffenetti says he's okay now.

The enterprising pilot also indicated he might have another pitcher by the weekend. "The word is getting around that our Blue Jays have one of the best defensive teams in the league as well as some hitting, so we're getting inquiries from interested pitchers in the area," he said.

Energy economics

Editor, The Spotlight:

The President has again made a feeble speech about the energy problem, probably trying to rouse the populace to save fuel and incidentally keep down inflation which is really part of the energy problem. If he had put a little more energy into the delivery of that speech, it might have been more convincing. But the people are not convinced—about the energy problem or about his leadership.

One of the reasons the OPEC nations are constantly raising the price of their chief exportable commodity is that they receive U.S. dollars in return, and the U.S. dollars are worth less each year.

The economic reason for the diminishing value of our currency is almost too simple to enunciate. We simply buy more goods from other countries than we sell them. Even when we "sell" goods to other countries we frequently "give them" at low prices or no prices at all.

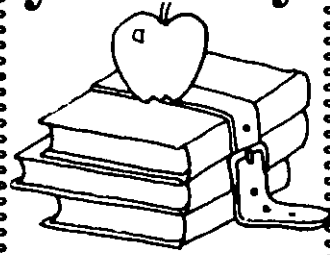

This has been going on since World War I ended. We have had a Santa Claus relation with other countries, and they always reasoned that the U.S. could be counted on to give them whatever they wanted.

Guided by ill-advised information that the internal U.S. debt was nothing to worry about because "we owe it to ourselves" a generation has been brought up in this country believing that Santa Claus really does live in Washington because he can print money without anything to sustain its value.

With all that background, why should we settle down now? Bite the bullet? Get back to work? Unions, government and large corporations have conspired to establish an economy based on getting as much as possible for doing as little as we could get away with. And now we suddenly hear our elected leaders tell us that somehow we are in trouble. Suddenly the President thinks we are going down the drain. I do not do something drastic about it—and soon—we are. Now we know that during the past three years the OPEC countries not only have us over a barrel. They are buying us lock, stock and barrel. And with our own money.

There are lots of things the people can do to save energy. But they are not doing them because they do not believe there is an energy crisis. Wh save gasoline when we can buy all we need? Why go 55 miles an hour to save gasoline and lives when everyone on the road is racing past us at 60-70 miles an hour? Why worry about gasoline when we have all that Alaskan crude—or do we?

Rumors are pretty strong that it is going to Japan. If so, Mr. President, do we get the going world price? They say the Alaskan oil is piling up in California seaports. Why didn't we do something about that ahead of time? It took several years to build the Alaska pipeline. Why did we wait to get ready to handle the oil? Where was governmental leadership?

We have an inept President. He and his advisers simply are incapable of the leadership we have a right to expect from them. Jimmy's chief claim to fame is the preliminary signing of an Israeli-Egyptian peace agreement. Hard to do? Not when we agreed to pay 5 billions or 10 billions or more. So now—we will have two more nations hating us.

Meanwhile we have done very little to husband our energy resources or capitalize on the use of existing energy assets. Why have we not started to use our vast coal reserves? Do the oil people own coal mines and keep it off the market? Mr. President, you talk about our unused technology. Until the people believe in their leadership we are going to continue to drift—waste—and go fishing. Must we wait for 1980?

Tribute to 'Our Town'

Editor, The Spotlight:

Tri-Village Welcome Wagon's 270 members are from 23 states and five foreign countries. We have all chosen Bethlehem as "Our Town," and, therefore, we recently celebrated "Our Town - Bethlehem" at a luncheon and fashion show.

We would like to thank Supervisor Tom Corrigan and Town Historian Ed Mulligan for being our guest speakers.

We also appreciated the display created by Cissy Stasiuk on town services.

Bethlehem merchants sponsored the fashion show and pointed out that "Our Town" offers the latest in fashion for all family budgets. Our thanks to the Clothes Horse, Court-side Tennis, the Delmar Department Store, Fashion Gallery, Lady Madonna, Little Folks, Virginia Lynch, Dorothy Lynn, Roger's Sport Shop, Town and Tweed and Donnelly Shoes.

As new members of the community, we are happy to be part of "Our Town - Bethlehem."

Wasting minds

Editor, The Spotlight:

Why is it that when an epileptic says, "I have epilepsy," the immediate reaction is: why should you feel sorry for yourself? The retarded have too few dedicated souls like Annie Sullivan to probe their depths.

If one of our members hadn't persevered in talking about epilepsy, we wouldn't be meeting the first Wednesday of every month at her church, the First Presbyterian, in Albany (State and Willet). Now any mother whose daughter has an epileptic seizure in school (as two of our members did) can come and learn about epilepsy. There is so much more available now than when I had my first seizure, 44 years ago.

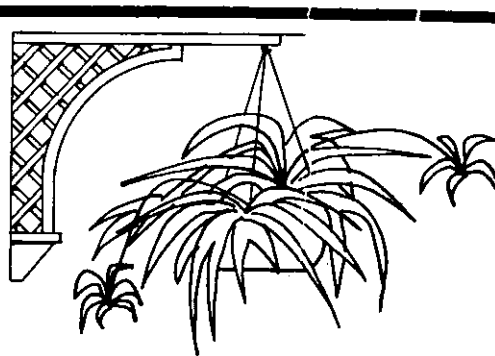

Dr. Pratt says there are now seven chemicals with which to fight epilepsy. We also try to keep School Nurses supplied with information.

A survey taken a few years back of Albany businessmen showed that, given the preference between hiring an epileptic or non-epileptic, they'd choose the latter.

Caesar, Alfred the Great and Handel were epileptics. A mind is a terrible thing to waste.
