BETHLEHEM

3-way judgeship race looms in GOP primary

Political artillery will get an early workout locally this year with two candidates expected to challenge Bethlehem's entrenched Republican organization by forcing a September primary.

Incumbent Justice Harry B. Rezzimini, miffed at being bypassed for renomination by the town committee, told newsmen this week that he would be a candidate for reelection, thus setting up a GOP primary election on Sept. 11.

Earlier, Delmar attorney James Peter Walsh indicated to friends that he was "seriously considering" making a run for the town justice post now held by Rezzimini.

Walsh, 45, was defeated in a contest for Albany County judge four years ago, losing to the Democratic organization candidate, Joseph Harris.

At a caucus last month, the 42-member Bethlehem Republican committee nominated Peter C. Wenger of Delmar, an Albany attorney, for a fouryear term as town justice. There was no official explanation for the committee's switch to Wenger while Rezzimini, a longtime member of the GOP hierarchy, was completing an interim term by appointment to succeed Donald DeAngelis, who resigned in 1978 with two years remaining of his fouryear term.

Sources close to the GOP leadership administration indicated Rezzimini was by-passed because his victory margin over Democratic Mike Breslin last November was slender, giving rise to Republican fears that Rezzimini might not be able to withstand a Democratic challenge at the polls in the fall.

Walsh had made it plain he wanted the nomination if Rezzimini didn't get it, and has been thinking about challening Wenger in the primary. Walsh's friends say he would not have run against Rezzimini if the incumbent had been endorsed by the committee, but with the primary now a certainty and a three-cornered contest in prospect, Walsh is on the verge of taking the plunge.

According to the political calendar, the first day for circulating nominating petitions for the primary was Tuesday. Filing dates are July 23 to July 26 and the primary is Sept. 11.

Bethlehem Democrats are not expected to put together their slate until mid-summer. There have been hints that town chairman Ken Thacher may decide not to run a full ticket this year, and concentrate instead on selected seats. If such is the case, one of those seats is certain to be that of town justice.

NEW SCOTLAND

Democrats pick Tice, Boehlke

New Scotland Democrats have endorsed Kenneth Tice of Voorheesville and Sharon Boehlke of Unionville for the town council race in November.

The town committee, meeting Monday night at Trotta's Restaurant, left open the supervisor's slot, but the names most often mentioned were Herbert W. Reilly, Jr. of Voorheesville, a town councilman, and Charles Houghtaling of Feura Bush, a former town councilman.

A source close to the committee indicated a prominent New Salem businessman also was a possibility, but declined to identify him. Of the three, Houghtaling, a Feura Bush grocery store owner, is regarded as having the inside track for the nomination.

Thomas Dolin, town chairman, said the committee's recommendations would be presented to the official party caucus when it convenes in July to formalize the ticket.

Tice, a former New Scotland Democratic chairman, was one of the first Democrats to be elected to the town board in more than 40 years. He and Reilly, incumbents, represent the party in the board's present 3-2 makeup under Republican Supervisor Steve Wallace.

Boehlke made an unsuccessful run for town clerk two years ago, and has taken a leadership role in party councils during the past several campaigns.

The committee also endorsed Allen Joseph, an attorney from New Salem, for town justice, and James Dunn of Feura Bush, an employee of the Albany County Highway Dept., as superintendent of highways. The committee made no recommendations for two other slots on the November ballot, town clerk and tax collector, but Dolin left open the question as to whether he would present names for these posts to the caucus next month.

New Scotland's Republican committee announced a full slate of candidates earlier this month. The slate includes Wallace, running for a fourth four-year term, and incumbent Wyman Osterhout and Voorheesville Mayor William J. Wenzel for the council seath.

Driver is jailed

A motorist who refused to take a breathalyzer test at Bethlehem police headquarters after forcing a police car over the curb has been committed to Albany County jail in lieu of posting a $1,000 bond.

Edward L. Rimbaud, 58, of Castleton, was arraigned before Justice Roger Fritts in Bethlehem town court on charges of driving while intoxicated, failure to keep right, refusing a DWI test, failure to comply with an officer and driving while his license was suspended.

Rimbaud was arrested by Officer J.J. Corbett after his car, eastbound on Delaware Ave. at 9:30 p.m. Friday, crossed in front of the oncoming patrol car near St. Clair Dr., forcing Corbett to drive on the lawn of a residence at the site, according to police reports.

Rt. 85 repaying bids are slated

The State Dept. of Transportation 'scheduled a 10:30 a.m. bid opening today (Thursday) on six highway projects, one of them reconditioning Rt. 85 in the town of New Scotland.

The specifications for the project include resurfacing 3.3 miles with asphalt, strengthening shoulders and installing new guide railings between the New Scotland town hall and the intersection of Rt. 85A in the hamlet of New Salem.

A DOT spokesman said there are no provisions for widening the highway, as was done in the reconditioning of Rt. 85 through Slingerlands a year ago.

A number of New Scotland residents and drivers who use the highway regularly filed a number of complaints last year protesting the deteriorated condition of the pavement. The DOT later announced it would include the reconditioning project on its 1979 list.

Procedures set on assignments

A written procedure for the assignment of elementary pupils to schools in the Bethlehem school district was scheduled for a second public airing at the school board's meeting on Wednesday of this week.

School officials have pointed out since last week's article appeared in the Spotlight that what is being proposed does not represent a change, but merely a formalization of procedures followed in the past. Geographic boundaries have and will be observed, with elementary children assigned to schools outside their attendance areas only when summer turnover causes unreasonable class size imbalances.

The only pupils in grades 1-5 affected by such assignments are those who move in over the summer and those whose parents volunteer or agree to have them assigned to another school. In other words, a child already attending a Bethlehem elementary school in the spring is assured of being assigned to that same school for the following year, if that is the parents' desire.

The written guidelines do call for a timing change in notification of class (not school) assignments. Elementary children would find out in August, rather than in June, which teacher they will have for the next school year. Since moves of children in and out over the summer necessitate class re-arrangements, the later notification will be firm and not subject to change.

Bethlehem Middle School and High School pupils have always received their team and class assignments in August. Supt. of Schools Lawrence A. Zinn has also pointed out that most schools across the country get this information to pupils either just before school starts or on the first day of school each fall.

NATURAL PRODUCTS
439-4857

Because the elementary school assignment guidelines have now been put into written form, the school board is following its standard procedure of reviewing the proposal at three consecutive public meetings. This week's is the second, and then the written proposal will be on the agenda for a third review and possible adoption at the next board meeting on July 11.

Anyone interested in details of the written guidelines may call the superintendent's office, or attend the July 11 board meeting. An explanation is also printed in the July issue of Central Highlights, to be mailed to district residents in early July.

Bethlehem town board members moved quickly to post a 30-mile speed limit on Beacon Rd., Glenmont, within minutes after the close of a public hearing.

The hearing last Wednesday drew 30 people to town hall to support the petition for a speed restriction. Among the speakers were Paul Gerber, 51 Beacon Rd., who described a motorcycle accident at a "blind" corner near his property, and William Mizener, a Beacon Rd. resident for 27 years, who declared that traffic on the street has increased over the last two years. There was no opposition.

Board members, who normally defer action on matters in public hearings until they have evaluated the statements, took an immediate vote, and set July I as the date the new ordinance takes effect.

DELMAR

Food co-op launched with 30

A new local enterprise designed to save participants as much as one-third on food items is under way in Delmar-a food co-op.

More than 40 people came to an information meeting at the Delmar Reformed Church on June 6, and 30 signed up on the spot.

Local cheese and eggs, fresh produce, ham and bacon (no nitrates) will be offered with other food items. Staples will be delivered to the church every four to six weeks. Co-op leaders expect that Menands market goods will arrive Saturday morning each week.

Word from other area co-ops is that members are able to save up to 33 percent on certain grocery expenses. Neil Smith of the coordinating committee explains: "We can't always beat special supermarket prices on certain items on sale each week. But overall the whole gamut will be a saving because there is no middle man involved and we buy in bulk at wholesale prices."

Smith says that he expects the membership to double in a short time. "It is our goal to spend less amounts of money on food without frills, and to help bring people together through cooperative action. We want to show the church is concerned with physical and spiritual needs of the community. We are promoting and encouraging cooperation among each other in a basic human needs project and an alternative economic/social activity."

How will this co-op work? Everyone is welcome to join. Large and small orders are both acceptable. There is a $5 membership fee for the simple operation of the non-profit group. And each member must commit a few hours occasionally to some co-op task such as collating, helping tally and taking phone orders or bagging the goods when they arrive.

Food is to be paid for when orders are placed. Then it is picked up at the church parking lot when it arrives Saturday between 10 and noon. Because this venture is new to Delman environs, it will be a while before it hits full stride. Members are now ordering ahead sufficient staples to help them the next two to three months. In October, the co-op intends to be ordering on a regularly monthly basis for staples and more frequently for produce.

The first arrival of foods will be Saturday morning, June 23. Anyone wishing more coop information may call 439-9929 or 439-6003.

If your Spotlight doesn't come it Thursday's mail, call 439-4949.

Police tracking lamp vandals

Bethlehem police are looking for a young bicycle rider with a penchant for breaking lamp posts on Delmar lawns in the pre-dawn hours.

Fen lamps were reported smashed with a baseball bat or a similar club before daybreak Saturday, bringing the total to 17 over a three-week period. Police said they believed a number of similar incidents had occurred in the area, but were not reported.

The latest incidents, all involving bicycle tracks on the lawn, were reported from two addresses on Fernbank Ave., two on Chestnut Rd., three on Greenock Rd., two on Devon Rd. and one on Oldox Rd., most of them between 3 and 5 a.m. Saturday.

At the same time, police said, a large front window on Montrose Dr. was shattered by a baseball bat, and a short time later someone threw a broken bat through a double-pane picture window on Marlboro Rd. Police said bicycle tire tracks led across the lawn to the window.

A separate police report stated that when police officers spotted a youth riding a bicycle south on Murray Ave. at daybreak Saturday, the rider abandoned the bike and fled on foot. The bike was turned over to the police youth bureau, which is continuing its investigation.

Meanwhile a visitor from Massachusetts told police a window and sideview mirror on his car had been smashed while it was parked at a residence on Heather Lane.

Shop Talk

by Judi James

If there were ever a doubt that this community is sportsminded, a visit to Courtside Tennis Shop and Sportshoes at 253 Delaware Ave. in Elsmere would eliminate any doubt. Tennis buffs have been stopping in there the past month to register for the Bethlehem Tennis Tournament which ended last weekend. They always have frequented the shop for tennis wearing apparel and accessories. Right now, though, with the addition of Sportshoes, they are literally flocking there! But, let's start at the beginning ... with an interview with Dave Corbin.

Meeting Dave Corbin, the first impression is of relaxed friendliness. The second is that here is a man interested in his work and the people who come into his shop.

It all came about naturally. Dave was a physical education major at Penn State. He then switched his major to law. After working with Legal Aid in Albany a few years, he and Inderjit Singh (one of the area's top-ranked tennis players) opened a tennis store—Courtside—in Schenectady in April, 1975.

It was successful. And so, a year later, with considerable help from his wife, Lynn (a full-time social worker who took time out to do most of the buying and attend the merchandise shows) he opened Courtside in the town of Bethlehem. It started as simply a tennis store, but last fall Dave opened a Sportshoes store opposite the SUNY campus in Albany (Campus Sportshoes) and added Sportshoes Delmar to his Elsmere shop.

Forgive us if we say "people are running all over the place!" Apparently the need was great, for the activity in the shop is tremendous.

"We carry shoes for 10 different sports," Dave said recently. "Shoes for tennis, running, basketball, soccer, football, softball, baseball, racquetball, volleyball, wrestling, boxing and golf."

"All of these shoes? How do they differ?" we murmured.

"Well . . . take racquetball shoes, for instance," Dave drawled. "They are more strongly reenforced at the point where the sole meets the top. That's because of the sudden stopping and the severe strain put on them during the game." Then he continued to tell us that a very important factor today is that many healthconscious persons who do a lot of walking need a wellconstructed shoe and come in for their all-purpose shoe. It accommodates the person with foot problems who still wants to be "on the go."

Price-wise, the shoes vary from $12 to $50. Most expensive is the running shoe with air channels built inside the sole. They're cooler and have greater shock absorption.

"Are you phasing out the tennis apparel?" we asked.

"No, indeed! We still consider it to be a very important part of our inventory. It makes us unique. We aren't competing with the large city stores, we are simply a center for tennis and sports shoes,"

Editorially, we might emphasize that. For example, persons who wished to sign up for the tournament sponsored by the Bethlehem Tennis Assn. did so at Courtside. They also keep a ladder posting in the score. This community cooperation is further shown in the fact that BCHS tennis team members Matt McCall, Dave Tomlinson and Chip Schanz do racquet stringing for the store. In addition, other odd jobs are done by tennis players Scott Rukwid, Tim Talmage, Jeff Goodman and Ed McCall.

Track coach Mike Bourdeau works there part-time as well as some of his track team members. All of this, because Dave Corbin has a real interest in the school, its young people and the development and performance of teams.

There's no favoritism here, either . . . for in their line of athletic bags, they've bags in the school colors and with the insignia of Voorheesville, Albany Academy, R-C-S, CBA as well as Bethlehem.

On the female side of the ledger . . . they're just as interested in the Tomboys as they are the Little League! And those pleasant gals Barbara Schanz, Barbara Tate and Trish McCall are wonderfully helpful when one shops for tennis gear or for accessories such as the tennis coasters, that wild cookbook entitled "I'd Rather Play Tennis Than Cook," jewelry or stationery. Barbara Schanz also coordinates the special fashion shows such as the one later on this month at Albany Country Club or the one last month at Woodgate.

It's all in fun... and for fun... and we're glad to salute Courtside and Sportshoes this week, and to congratulate every one of the players who made it to the finals in Bethlehem's annual tennis tourney. It's the spirit of good sportsmanship that counts... and we're glad it prevails in sportsminded Bethlehem!

Road racing on the upswing

A record entry list and rising spectator interest featured Bethlehem's fourth annual road race in broiling temperatures Sunday as a Delmar runner, Dennis Northrup, sprinted off with top honors.

Northrup covered the 10.5-mile grind in 59 minutes, 35 seconds, the only marathoner to break the one-hour barrier. Jeff Hickey was second at 62:46 and Lars Edwards third at 63:31.

The races, which included a five-mile event and junior events at 1.3 miles, drew nearly 300 entries, largest ever, under the sponsorship of the Courtside Sportshoes Shop, McDonald's of Delmar and the town of Bethlehem.

First female through the finish gate was Sue Cohen, who covered the long route in 82:15 to win the sub-masters (age 30-39) in 38th place. Barbara Frazier took the prize in the open event with a 51st place finish in 97:10.

Other 10-mile winners were Frank Ripple in the sub-masters and Donald Wilken in the masters.

The five-mile race also produced some fast times despite the scorching sun. Mark Dalton won it as the first five finishers hit the chute within 29 seconds. Richard D'Aleo, winner of the sub-masters, was second overall, 22 seconds behind Dalton's 26:32.6 and barely two seconds

Cadet earns wings

Ellen Pert, 22 East Bayberry Rd., Glenmont, who is in the ROTC program at MIT, has earned her "wings" at Airborne School at Fort Benning, Ga. After parachuting, sometimes from a jet aircraft, she said the feeling of falling in air is "utter tranquility." She will next attend ROTC advanced camp at Fort Bragg, N.C. for six weeks. Ellen is entering her senior year at Tufts University, where she has a double major in political science and psychology.

Goalies stingy in boot action

Two goals each by Dave Spinosa and Peter Blaustein gave the Bethlehem Soccer Club's Shooting Stars a 4-0 victory over Guilderland's under-12 team in Sunday's vouth soccer action.

The shutout was credited to the bulls-eye shots by Spinosa and Blaustein, plus the fine defensive work of Glenn Castle and Paul Doyle and goaltending by Dave Jones and Brett Zick.

In the under-14 category, the local squad put down Uncle Sam's Braves from Troy, 4-1. Jeff Guinn scored twice, while Tom Vichot and Randy Dean added one apiece. Coaches singled out Sean Farrow and Sung Kwon and goalie Tom Connelly as defensive stand-

The two local under-19 teams squared off, and the Bald Eagles came out with a 3-1 victory over the Golden Eagles. Mark Shaw, Keith Brown. Mike Lewis and Mark Dean did the scoring.

Dean teamed with Don Perillat and Bill Duffy for goals in a 3-2 makeup game victory over Albany.

Blue Jays host to Tigers for 2

Delmar Blue Jays will carry a 2-2 Capital District League record into a doubleheader against the Halfmoon Tigers from Saratoga County at the BCHS field at 12:30 Saturday.

Manager Rudy Toffenetti was expected to send either Jeff Rose or Kevin Lee to the rubber in one game and throw the hometown standby Jack Dalton and his breaking stuff in the other.

The Blue Jays had their ups and downs last week, dropping a 5-4 cliffhanger Sunday to Cocca's Diner of Watervliet with two outs in the ninth after blasting Granville, 17-4, and 11-1, in a non-league twin bill Saturday.

Cocca's, whom the Blue Jays had beaten by 12-5 in their first meeting, came back with Frank Dietz, Hudson Valley CC pitching ace, who checked the Jays on seven hits. Steve Caruso had three singles for Delmar.

Dalton didn't have his usual stuff, and gave way to Shawn Burns, a submarine sidearmer from Voorheesville with the count knotted at 4-4 in the seventh. Burns pitched out of two tight jams, but was touched for the deciding run in the ninth.

At Granville the Blue Jays pounded the ball, enjoying sixrun innings in the fourth and seventh of the opener. Bill Karp was 4-for-5, Al Bradt 3-for-5. Caruso had two doubles and Mark Kleinke a 355-foot home run. In the nightcap, Bradt had two more singles and Caruso a triple. Big John McDonald pitched the first game, and Lee, a 6-2. 185-pound righthander, and Burns shared the chores in the finale.

Jack Dalton

Income limit hearing

The Bethlehem town board will hold a public hearing to consider raising the income limit for aged exemptions from $7,200 to $8,000 annually at 8 p.m., Wednesday, June 27, at Bethlehem town hall.

Currently, property owners in the town who are over 65 years of age, who have been residents of the town for two years and whose annual income is less than $7,200 are eligible for a 50-percent reduction in general town real property taxes. A town official estimates that there are about 25 property owners who would be affected by the change.

Hiding the scores

In the eyes of Albany sports editors, the ancient game of tennis, invented by Major Wingdale in England just over 100 years ago, has become a fair-weather friend. It was great when it was winning.

In the years of the so-called Tennis Boom, our metropolitan journals gave comparitively good space to tennis news and scores. The Times-Union contracted with the only local member of the U.S. Tennis Writers Assn., to produce a weekly Capital District tennis column the year 'round, and as the constituents flocked to a burgeoning number of courts, indoors and out, people started going to tournaments and following their favorites on the tube and in print.

Now the savants will tell you that the bloom is off the rose, meaning the tennis boom has run its course. It is true that the phenomenal growth trajectory of the game has levelled off, but try and tell that to eager players trying to find an unoccupied court when they want to play.

Meanwhile, tennis coverage in the Albany area is threatened with extinction. The morning paper, which Guilderland's widely recognized football coach Bud Kenyon likes to call "the daily racing sheet," gives two paragraphs below the fold to a major local tournament such as the Albany County championships and the Tri-County. The afternoon paper, which has cut is sports page space allotment to the bone, gets by with an occasional column by Larry Linett, a champion local player with no journalistic experience.

This is particularly disconcerting to the tennis fans who like to follow the fortunes of national figures like Butch Seewagen, Caroline Stoll, Sheila McInerny, John James, Jimmy Arias and other highlevel technicians who have played here on several occasions. Caroline Stoll, the pintsized tomboy with the giantsized topspin, delighted fans at Tony DiOrio's Schenectady Racquet Club prize-money events when she was 14 and 15, has emerged on the international circuit at 19. You'd have to read the New York Times or Schenectady Gazette to learn that Caroline won the Vienna tournament last month over big-name players and went to the finals of the West German championship where she met Chris Evert Lloyd in the final. The score of that match? Unreported. Next week Caroline will be playing at Wimbledon for the first time.

Jimmy Arias, an 8-year-old phenom from Buffalo, played in Hank Linett's junior tourneys at Ridgefield and Washington Park after instructing his father to sit no closer than that bench way over there three courts away. Now he's 13 and No. 1 in the U.S. in his age group. Jimmy thrilled a large gallery in Schenectady last year at age 12 with a serve and ground game that had to be seen to be believed, and he made believers out of 6-foot college sluggers. A feature article on Jimmy in the New York Times a few weeks ago whetted our appetites for more about a player considered to be better today than John Mc-Enroe was at that age.

Seewagen, brother of our own Barbara Steger, was in the quarterfinals of the New York State championships, but I missed Monday's Times and may never know who the 1979 champion is. And who is winning the tournaments in our area?

Before the alleged "boom," tennis players labored as second-class citizens, relegated to the back benches in country club locker room and ignored in Monday morning's office lies about great tee shots and one-putt greens. Golfers felt it was alright to have a drink with a tennis player once in a while, but you wouldn't want your sister to marry one.

In the 1970s tennis players achieved equal status socially, especially in the winter when the people who chase little pills around the scenery have to go to southern climes to pursue their foolishness. Although no one has yet devised a way to put a roof over a golf course or how to play a round in less than four hours, even with those beambroadening golf carts, tennis players apparently have been banished—by the local papers, anyway—to the back of the bus.

Incidentally, if you want to catch some high-grade tennis, drop over to the Schenectady Racquet Club at Exit 25 this weekend. The $1,500 prize money draws the kind of people whose names might make the papers a few years from now—some papers, that is.

Recognizing the girls

Editor, The Spotlight:

On behalf of the Girl's Athletic Assn. of Bethlehem Central High School, I wish to extend sincere thanks to the Bethlehem Central Athletic Assn. for hosting the varsity picnic at the Elm Ave. Park. This occasion honored both male and female athletes and recognized them for their accomplishments.

The combined picnic for both male and female athletes was a great success and a giant step forward for women's sports. I hope this event continues to be an annual celebration for male and female student-athletes.

Editor, The Spotlight:

A crackdown on speeders to reduce the number of traffi deaths is commendable, but it is hoped the Bethlehem police in carrying this out, will confine their actions to the objective and refrain from issuin tickets wherever and to whom ever they can.

It is one thing to put pressur on persistent violators, habitus speeders and irresponsible tai gaters. It is quite another thin to ticket drivers who obvious have made the mistake of minor infraction, eithe through a moment of inatter tiveness or a momentary di traction.

Late night and weeken "cowboys" on the highway a a menace to life and propert and Bethlehem police are to b commended for their efforts t safeguard citizens from the people. A young mother with child, whom I saw getting ticket at 4:15 in the afternoon the Toll Gate, could not had been guilty of being a dange ous threat to other motorist Nor is a Sunday mornit church-goer on the By-pa indiscreet enough to be a fe m.p.h. over the limit.

Cannot a warning be su ficient in these cases? A

Bethlehem police capable of making judgements on "the spirit of the law" rather than strict adherence regardless of circumstance? For some people, the experience of being topped by police, regardless of a ticket, is traumatic enough to be a deterrent, and today's nsurance rates makes even a top-sign violation worth $50 o $200 in cost.

Let's hope the Bethlehem police are successful in their fforts to insure highway safety n our town, but at the same ime let's hope the individual fficers exercise prudence and udgement in evaluating the lature and circumstance of the iolation in the overall obectives of the traffic campaign.

Clarksville's owi

Editor, The Spotlight:

Thank you for the nice article and photo on the screech owl at the Clarksville School. I do have one correction. The screech owl is not an endangered specie, but rather a proected specie.

All naturally occuring species in the U.S. are protected. (This excludes English sparrows and starlings.) Game birds are also excluded. An endangered species one whose very existence in this country or the world is threatened.

Thanks again for the coverage.

Editor, The Spotlight:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all those town residents, businesses, students and faculty who purchased candy bars that enabled me to travel to Houston, Tex. to compete in the National DECA competition May 8 through May 13. My appreciation also goes to McDonalds of Delmar for their support and effort in making the trip possible.

Although I did not win, it was an experience I will not forget, nor will I forget the encouragement and help given to me by my advisor, chaperones and fellow DECA Students. Thank you all.

Community Corner

Hometown Baseball

In the days before television and superhighways, everybody went to the ball game when the home team was playing. Today only a few towns are fortunate enough to have their own baseball team, but ours is one of them.

The Delmar Blue Jays, playing amateur baseball on the level of the professional minor leagues, have been playing at the BCHS field each weekend. On Saturday at 12:30 take your folding chair and enjoy strong pitching, fast fielding and sharp hitting when the Blue Jays play the Halfmoon Tigers in a Capital District League double-header.

See you at the ball game!
