GE unveils $11.5-million pollution control facility

General Electric's Noryl Products plant in Selkirk broke ground today (Thursday) on an $11.5-million wastewater treatment plant described as incorporating the most advanced pollution control technology available.

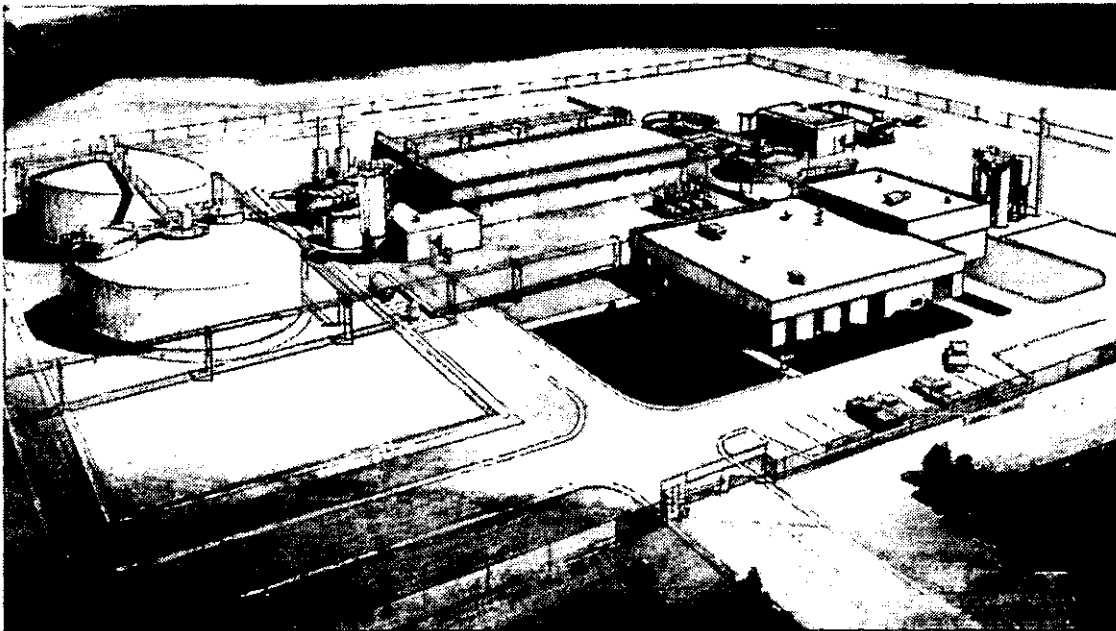

The ceremonial first-shovel was scheduled to take place with company executives, government officials and civic leaders participating in front of newspaper and television cameras.

A GE spokesman said the company has "made the commitment to proceed with this facility now" in compliance with all county, state and federal requirements. The statement added that "construction today will insure continued future compliance and will demonstrate maximum environmental control for the growing Noryl business."

The facility, the spokesman said, "will be well ahead of present industry standards."

The Noryl wastewater will be treated by a multi-step process that includes biological waste reduction similar to that occurring in nature. This removal is, however, greatly accelerated by a process called "activated sludge" which optimizes and controls this natural biological process, the company said.

Two additional steps are provided to eliminate pollutants that might not be removed by the biological process—activated carbon absorption followed by tertiary sand filtration. This two-step operation removes dissolved pollutants and particles and is very similar to the treatment normally only used for drinking water purification, the statement declared.

The facility also incorporates several other advanced technologies including computerized control, spill detection and containment and solids destruction, the company said.

General Electric in 1966 began the worldwide commercialization of Noryl thermoplastic resin with the construction of the Selkirk plant. This one-of-a-kind plant produces a plastic molding compound that is used to manufacture a broad spectrum of household, consumer, and industrial applications, such as automobile parts, television components, business machine parts, hospital furnishings and household appliances.

Construction of the new treatment facility will be completed by the end of 1980. The project will add ten new, permanent jobs to the community.

SLINGERLANDS Deputies hold fugitive driver

A motorist wanted in two Western states was arrested by Albany County sheriff's deputies on the Voorheesville patrol after being stopped on Rt. 85, Slingerlands, Saturday morning.

Yves P. Stamenov, 44, a native of Bulgaria with U.S. citizenship, was charged with being a fugitive from justice after a routine check of his Oregon license plates revealed charges pending against him. Deputies said he was wanted in Oregon for theft of services and in Kansas for violation of parole.

Deputy Thomas Trivison, Jr., who made the arrest, said Stamenov gave an Albany address. He was remanded to Albany County jail to await extradition.

4 teens indicted on vandal counts

An Albany County grand jury has indicted four Delmar teenagers on three charges stemming from the Memorial Day spree of vandalism at the Bethlehem Central Middle School.

Mark T. Hines, 19, of Rose Ct.; Joseph M. Paigo, 17, of 60 The Crossway; Christopher P. Elliott, 17, of 46 Montrose Dr., and Michael Ganley, 17, of 10 Woodridge Rd., pleaded innocent to two felony counts and one misdemeanor at their arraignment Monday before Judge John J. Clyne in county court. Clyne continued each in the $5,000 bail set at their arraignment in Bethlehem justice court.

The four were charged with second-degree criminal mischief and third-degree burglary, both felonies, and petit larceny in sealed indictments handed down last Thursday. Hines and Paigo were arrested by Bethlehem police 24 hours after the daytime spree in the school. Elliott and Ganley were arrested five days later.

House at Darnley Greene: matter of interpretation.

same materials, siding and color of the house.

This week the controversy was resolved when Goltz notified Flanigan he was altering the design to comply with the four-foot limit. The board, which had scheduled a public hearing for July 11 and had the required legal notice in type, immediately cancelled the hearing and pulled the notice from the Spotlight calendar and legal section within hours of presstime.

The house, which stands out starkly in a neighborhood of Williamsburg Colonials, is situated on the corner of Darnley Greene and Murray Ave. In one architect's drawing filed with the board, the landscaped courtyard on the Darnley Greene side—or possibly the front—is shown as embracing an "outdoor pool/spa," but on a smaller diagram the feature is labelled an 8x4 "redwood hot tub" on a six-inch concrete slab.

When is a fence not a fence?

On the Bethlehem board of appeals, applications for a variance from provisions of the town's zoning ordinance are routine and are handled, after due consideration, by routine procedure.

Not so in the matter of a new dwelling at 6 Darnley Greene, Delmar, an architectural exponent of the "mod" contemporary design, currently nearing completion. The architect and the town's building department last week found themselves at odds on a structural interpretation, leaving the board to decide which one is correct.

The controversy centered on 22-foot L-shaped extension of a 6-foot-high wall constructed of 2-by-4s. In the elbow of the extension the architect has designed an open-air courtyard that accommodates a pool, which in itself is open to a technical interpretation.

The architect, Lawrence H. Goltz of 9 Brookview Ave., Delmar, considered the wall an extension of the house. The head of the town's building department, John Flanigan, considered it a fence.

Therein lay the legal problem: under the town's zoning law, the maximum height for a fence of solid construction is four feet, five feet when it protects a swimming pool. A six-foot fence must be of the see-through variety, such as a chain link or a loosely constructed picket fence.

When Flanigan made a formal determination that it was a fence, Goltz filed for a variance from the building inspector's decision. That in itself is an unusual occurrence for the board of appeals.

Goltz contended that the barrier was an extension of the house itself because it is attached to the house and has the

BETHLEHEM

Gas pinch spurs signups at park

Many Bethlehem residents apparently have decided to stay home this summer instead of battling the gasoline service lines, if registration figures for summer recreation programs at the town park are any indication.

Phil Maher, director of parks and recreation, said his department is adding to its summer staff and blocking out additional pool time to keep pace with a record demand.

The biggest squeeze came in the signups for the town's "tiny tot swim" program for children 4-6. The 12 daily sessions of 20 children each were filled on the first day of registration. Maher said there were so many phone calls that word got back to his office that operators were telling callers his phones were out of order. Not true, he said.

The two-week Learn to Swim program, which has three sections, was filled in two and a half days of registration, one of the sessions being closed out 30 minutes after the signups began. Also filled was the class in diving for beginners.

UNIONVILLE

Carnival to aid new fire truck

Onesquethaw Volunteer Fire Co. members are putting the finishing touches on preparations for their 13th annual carnival, to be held on the first two weekends of July, as usual, on the grounds of the Unionville fire house.

With the proceeds of last year's carnival used to retire the mortgage on the department's new central station on Plank Rd. in Clarksville, this year's carnival will help defray the cost of a new $30,000 mini-pumper.

The pumper is slated to replace a used 1959 utility vehicle purchased from the Delmar Fire Dept. in 1968, and is scheduled for delivery this fall.

The 1979 carnival, to be held on Friday and Saturday, July 6-7 and July 13-14, will feature several new games, including a ball bingo game being offered for the first time, according to the committee. Don Weller is carnival chairman, assisted by Walt Miller, Quent Turner and Mary VanAlstyne.

A chicken barbecue dinner will be served from 4 to 8 p.m. both Saturdays.

Driver faces charges

Mark G. Haines, 22, a resident of Kissel's trailer court, Slingerlands, was hurrying home at 2:30 a.m. Sunday when Bethlehem police clocked his car at 71 miles an hour on New Scotland Rd. just west of the Blue Cross building. Officer Robert J. Samsel stopped Haines at the Tollgate, returned him to police headquarters for a breathalyzer test, and issued him tickets for driving while intoxicated, driving 71 mph in a 55-mile zone, failing to keep right and driving with no insurance. The charges are returnable in Bethlehem justice court.

NEW SCOTLAND

Long to rebuild after fire loss

Long's Lumber and Supply was back in business Tuesday morning after more than one third of its valuable supply of redwood and cedar and a 6,000-square foot furniture assembly shed were swept by flames late Monday afternoon.

"The only thing we can do is replace the building we lost and make the best of the situation," he said philosophically after suffering his second fire in 16 years. Long said there was no insurance to cover the loss.

The spectacular blaze, breaking out at the west end of the furniture shed on Rt. 85, New Scotland, was quickly fanned by a west breeze and rapidly engulfed several stacks of redwood and cedar in the front section of the yard. More than half of the stock, however, was in the rear and was saved.

Origin of the blaze, which sent a tower of black smoke hundreds of feet in the crystal clear sky, was not immediately determined. There was an unofficial report of a trash fire in the grass near the Conrail tracks, which flank the yard on an embankment to the south. The flames were discovered shortly after 4 p.m.

In 1963 the same lumber yard was levelled by flames that were believed to have started from sparks from a passing diesel locomotive.

Buzz on or buzz off

The town of Bethlehem's 1979 mosquito spraying program is getting a mixed reaction from homeowners.

The town highway department has had two crews spraying a chemical called Methoxychlor in residential yards where the owners have requested the service, but the crews are having a hard time keeping up with the demand.

On the other hand, some residents have vigorously protested the program. Several have warned the town that if any of the spray lands in their yards, they will take the town to court.

SLINGERLANDS

Graders learn about their town

Rena Bezilla's fourth grade class at Slingerlands School has completed an ambitious and informative booklet about the town of Bethlehem.

It's their town and the 25 members of the class know a lot more about it now than they did before they tackled the project. They did all the research and writing themselves.

When the industrious undertaking was completed and copies of the booklet were presented to Bethlehem Supervisor Tom Corrigan and to W. Gordon Morris, president of the Bethlehem chamber of commerce, Mrs. Bezilla observed: "We have a place to be proud of—our town."

The 20-page booklet came into being with the help and inspiration of May Blackmore of the BCHS guidance department, Mrs. Allison Bennett, former town historian, and Mrs. Steve Strong, a parent volunteer. The project was started in March and completed in April with final typing in May.

"We researched our town. Students worked in pairs to research and write about designated areas," Mrs. Bezilla explained. In March, the class went on a field trip to explore the town of Bethlehem in all its parts. They canvassed local businesses, industries, transportation sites, historical points of interest, housing projects and recreation facilities.

A Ritchko tribute from his players

Members of Bethlehem Central's Suburban Council championship football team have asked the Spotlight to print a tribute written by members of the team in praise of retiring coach Art Ritchko.

Ritchko, dean of Capital District football coaches, stepped down this year after leading the 1978 Eagles to a 9-0 record in the regular season before bowing to 10-0 Bishop Maginn in the first Class A playoff game in Section 2 history.

The tribute:

"For the past 20 years Delmar has had the honor of having Arthur Ritchko as the head coach of the Bethlehem Central varsity football team. This year, after his 21st season, he has decided to retire. With him go many fine memories of hard work, sweat, determination and success.

"We, the members of the 1978 varsity team, wish to thank Coach Ritchko for all he has done for us. He has shown us that through hard work and hours of practice a person can accomplish certain feats which might have seemed impossible. Looking at Coach Ritchko's career record and statistics, one might think that he has accomplished the impossible. A career record of 123 wins, 42 losses and eight ties, while having five championship teams and three undefeated seasons depicts the magnitude and intensity with which Art Ritchko coaches.

"Each member of this year's team is grateful for the time and effort he has placed into shaping us into young men. Although football is just a game, Coach Ritchko has taught us more than we could have learned in any classroom. He has taught us sportsmanship, diligence, admiration and what it takes to be a champion.

"Bethlehem players, past and present, will truly miss the coaching of Art Ritchko. We all wish him luck and good fortune in the future.

A highlight of Family Fun Day at the Bethlehem town park on the Fourth of July will be a 1 p.m. softball game between the Bethlehem Tomboys' newly-formed travelling team and the Jimmie Girls of Schenectady, a women's fast-pitch softball team that plays in the Yankee Conference throughout the Northeast.

The Jimmies are managed by Bob Eberle of Delmar, a member of the Tomboys' board of directors. "We'll probably trade pitchers to make it a little more even," he said recently about the planned exhibition game at the Elm Ave. Park.

Three former Bethlehem Tomboys are current members of the Jimmies team: Linda Allaway, Julie Mayfield and Joanne VanWoert. They'll be playing on familiar territory, against old friends, with a healthy respect for this travelling team, which represents the cream of the local crop of older players.

IMPROVEMENT CAN BE COSTLY

You can make a million mistakes trying to sell your own home. And one of them is making the wrong improvements. Many times, an expensive addition or repair can be the kind of thing that'll cost you far more than you get back.

True, the house should present a favorable appearance—mowed lawn, trimmed shrubs, and no obvious indications of neglect, but it's rare when a large financial undertaking will bring more than its cost in the final selling price.

There is always the financial risk of miscalculation too. Home repair costs frequently end up a lot higher than originally anticipated. You may end up with a faster sale and less inconvenience if you lower the selling price an equivalent amount.

Instead of guessing as to how much, if any, repair work to undertake, see a Realtor. He can tell you what to do to make your home more salable. And what not to do so you won't lose money.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at Century 21—Betty Lent Real Estate, 1537 Central Avenue, Albany. Phone 869-8407.

Community effort

Editor, The Spotlight:
It has been my privilege to witness a group of dedicated Lenmont School teachers give their students their time and energy in providing a truly measurable learning experience in their outdoor education program.

In a day and age where we all see examples of widespread apathy in every profession and aspect of life, it was exciting to see teachers and parents working from early morning to late night giving their all to the children of our community. Many thanks!

Summer Programs Abound

Few communities have the breadth of recreation programs that Bethlehem does. Examples: there are tennis classes for Grades 2-12, basketball clinics, swimming classes, boys' baseball, girls' softball, gymnastics and many other activities.

And don't forget Family Day at Elm Ave. Park on the Fourth. There will exhibition baseball and softball games, a chicken barbecue, Hoagy the Clown and Skip Parsons Riverboat Jazz Band among other delights.

Enjoy yourself and have a pleasant and safe holiday!
