Police crackdown on alcohol sales causes jitters

A Bethlehem police crackdown on sales of alcoholic beverages to minors has brought a generally—but not entirely—favorable reaction from the community.

Three more traffic deaths along with eight serious highway accidents in a 12-hour span gave impetus to the department's most intensive campaign against tipsy drivers recent annals. Bethlehem's 1979 highway death toll stood at six as of last weekend, compared to two in the corresponding period a year ago.

But the crusade, applauded by a large majority of local residents, had some negative repercussions apart from drivers ticketed for DW1—driving while intoxicated.

For instance: in an effort to focus attention on the problem of sales of beer, wine and liquor to minors—the legal drinking age in New York State is 18— Behtlehem police sent a 17year-old youth on a round of seven retail stores to purchase beer while a plainsclothes detective stood nearby to observe. Police said later the youth made the assigned purchases in each location without being asked to show the required identification card.

In two of three Elsmere supermarkets, the girls on the checkout counter were fired. One insisted the youth looked more mature than 17, and complained the police were working with a loaded deck, but she graciously declared her support of the campaign's intentions.

The girl, an honor graduate of Bethlehem Central and a student at SUNYA, said she was shocked at being discharged. "I proof everyone," she said later, "but it was after 9, we were very busy and I was tired. He looked a lot older than 18."

When called to the manager's office a short time later, she said a police officer threatened her with criminal action by the grand jury, and she went home shaken and frightened. At police headquarters, a spokesman said no criminal action was taken nor intended, but the implication was that subsequent offenses will be prosecuted.

"The intention was to emphasize the seriousness of the situation," the spokesman said. "We wanted to observe the merchants' reaction. The fact that the youth was not asked for any ID in any of the stores proved that the program is not moving along in the direction we intended."

Last week police invited proprietors of every market, liquor store, tavern and restaurant-bar to a briefing at headquarters. Some 27 persons representing about two thirds of the businesses attended. One Delmar retailer whose store was among those "tested" by police said he agreed wholeheartedly with the campaign, but he complained bitterly that "the laws are unfair." Proprietors who sell intoxicants legally to youths showing proper credentials are still liable, he said, if the purchaser without the seller's knowledge takes the beverage to a waiting car occupied by a passenger under the legal drinking age.

Meanwhile a number of local residents, alarmed at the rising incidence of teenage drinking, are convinced the New York law is too lenient. Their consensus: a majority of youths 18-21 are unable to handle moderate alcoholic consumption.

By the same token, scores of local residents in their early and middle 20s are being asked for ID cards by jittery clerks and bartenders, and a number of young adults, not possessing more than a driver's license, are finding it hard to buy a sixpack or a glass of beer. Some businesses are not accepting a driver's license as proof of age.

In an unrelated incident last week, a 15-year-old boy was rushed to Albany Medical Center Hospital after drinking a pint of rum within the span of a few minutes on a dare. Police said he "came very close to death" from the overdose.

The liquor, police said, was purchased by a 17-year-old companion who was not asked for his ID.

A double fatality in which Charles Whiting, 35, of Center Lane, Glenmont, and his 7 year-old son, David, were killed in their front yard by a speeding car driven by Whiting's nephew shocked the community on June 30. Police arrested the driver, James M. Whiting, 19, of Albany on charges of driving while intoxicated, second-degree manslaughter and criminally negligent homicide. The victim was widely known for his genial nature and for helping people.

On July 4, Elizabeth Crosby, 28, of 7 Harrison Ave., Delmar, was fatally injured when she was struck by a motorcycle while crossing Adams Pl. at Kenwood ave. The driver, Scott Boice, 20, of Delmar, was reported in stable condition at Albany Medical Center.

Police said that between 2 p.m. June 30 and 2 a.m. July 1 they investigated eight "serious" accidents. The total did not include a head-on collision on Rt. 9W in Selkirk in which state police at the Selkirk substation arrested both drivers on DWI charges.

Bethlehem police records show 119 DWI arrests during the six months ended June 30, compared to 76 in the corresponding period of 1978.

SALEM HILLS Judge to retry sewer rate flap

A state agency's action in muzzling the testimony of its staff members has balked the village of Voorheesville's efforts to freeeze the Salem Hills private sewer rate at $14 per month per household.

As a result, Judge Edward Conway declared a mistrial in the State Supreme Court case in which the utility, the Salem Hills Sewerage Corp., is seeking to have the monthly rate set at $21.85.

The village board, which serves as a municipal public service commission in such matters, had two "expert witnesses" ready to testify when the witnesses, both members of the staff of the state's Public Service Commission, were advised by their superiors not to take the stand, courtroom sources said. When the village asked for a two-week adjournment to line up replacement witnesses, Conway declared a mistrial.

Conway said the retrial would be scheduled for the September calendar in State Supreme Court in Albany. In Voorheesville, however, Mayor William J. Wenzel, a key witness for the defense in the suit brought by the utility, said his business would take him to Australia during most of that month. Wenzel is vice president of sales for the Walter Motor Truck Co.

The sewerage company, a subsidiary of Rosen-Michaels, Inc., one of the Capital District's largest builders and land developers, took the village to court when the board denied its request for a rate hike to $29.05 in the spring of 1978. In the wake of an outcry from the residents of the Salem Hills subdivision, the utility modified its request to $21.85 and the board granted a rise to $14. The previous rate was $10. The utility contends the $14 rate does not cover its expenses.

Wenzel said the board conducted an "exhaustive study" of the firm's financial management of the private sewer system serving the development's 286 dwellings, and found the $14 fee "extremely fair and equitable." He later declared that the village "will stand firm" against any attempt to boost the rate.

Salem Hills residents have been paying the $14 rate since the board action earlier this year. Judge Conway authorized a continuation of that rate pending the outcome of the court case.

NEW SCOTLAND Ryan steps down as town counsel

James Ryan, a former Navy combat pilot who used the GI Bill to go to law school, has retired as New Scotland town attorney after nine years in the post.

Ryan, 59 and the father of seven children, turned in his resignation at the town board's monthly meeting last week. The board appointed Michael E. Stafford of Cedar Grove Rd., Feura Bush, an Albany attorney, to replace Ryan.

The post pays $4,718.59 a year.

Ryan also is retiring from his state job with the Facilities Development Corp., one of several public benefit agencies he has served since 1971. He worked in the state comptroller's office in Albany for six years after earning his law degree from Albany Law School in 1952. He was in private practice from 1957 to 1971, when he took the state job.

A native of LeRoy, Genesee County, Ryan was a fighter pilot in the Pacific theater during World War 2, flying Navy Hellcats off the carrier Lexington. He joined the Navy after the Pearl Harbor attack and was discharged in 1946 with the rank of lieutenant, junior grade. After one semester at a junior college, he enrolled in Albany Law School with only a high school diploma.

Ryan and his wife, Dorothy, have lived in Voorheesville for 21 years. He served as attorney for the New Scotland planning board and board of appeals before becoming town attorney in 1970.

Two of his children live at home. "I hope to do some parttime consulting and enjoy my family," he said the other day. "I also hope to get back to some hunting and fishing."

Stafford, 29, comes from Lake George, attended Siena College and was graduated in 1975 from Albany Law School, He was admitted to the bar in February, 1976, and opened his own law office in Albany. He serves as confidential law secretary to Judge Lawrence E. Kahn, Albany County surrogate, and when the Legislature is in session, serves as an assistant on the staff of Senate Majority Leader Warren Anderson. He is married to the former Carol Tuman.

Delmar recycling center: 30 tons of paper with no place to go.

BETHLEHEM Paper glut stalls recycling

Hundreds of tons of newspapers and magazines are piling up in Bethlehem homes for lack of a disposal area, and the glut is causing some short tempers.

On Adams St., the town of Bethlehem's recycling center has been forced to reject all paper for the past several weeks. The reason: there is no market for it and no one to take it off the town's hands.

Even worse, there are more than 30 tons of paper stacked and bundled, languishing in the ancient garage behind the Community Center.

Up until a few weeks ago, the Brown Paper Co. in Castleton had been taking the bulk paper from the recycling center in Delmar, the last several loads as an accommodation to the town.

But now no one wants the stuff. "We're now looking for another purchaser," said Supervisor Tom Corrigan.

Meanwhile, the recycling center continues to accept cans, both tin and aluminum, aluminum dishes and glass but no paper.

The shutoff has dealt a hard blow to youth groups from local churches and Scout troops, who have been forced to abandon plans for paper drives as a major fund-raiser for their activities. Some local residents, balked at clearing their cellars and garages of waste paper, have taken their carloads to the Port of Albany, only to encounter another rejection.

Several have vented their frustration at William L. Lang, the conscientious custodian of the recycling center.

"Some really get angry and give me a hard time," he remarked last weekend. "Even with the publicity, we still got about 60 people Saturday and more than 100 the Saturday before. It's not my fault and it's not the town's fault."

Up to now, discarded newspapers and magazines have been recycled into cardboard cartons for a

NEW SCOTLAND Elderly to get a tax break

The New Scotland town board has scheduled a public hearing on a proposal to provide partial relief on real property taxes for senior citizens.

The board set the hearing for July 20 at 7 p.m. at the town hall. The proposal, which has been adopted by a number of neighboring towns and school districts, raises the maximum income from the present $7,200 to $8,000 for property owners 65 and over eligible for partial tax exemptions.

In other actions at the board's July 2 meeting, board members reappointed Robert Smith of Feura Bush to a seven-year term on the New Scotland recreation commission, adopted a resolution requesting the State Dept. of Transportation to include a bicycle path in its $500,000 resurfacing project on Rt. 85 between the town hall and New Salem, and moved the time of its regular Aug. 1 meeting from 8 to 7 p.m. to permit members to attend a meeting in Bethlehem on a water waste facility plan on that date.

In response to a letter from residents of Cass Hill Rd., Clarksville, Supervisor Steve Wallace requested Highway Supt. Peter Van Zetten to erect a "Children at Play" sign on Cass Hill Rd.

BETHLEHEM Walsh decides against primary

Bethlehem Republicans will have only two candidates in their lone primary election in September, not three as indicated earlier.

James Peter Walsh of Delmar, who has had his eye on the town justice post now held by Harry B. Rezzimini, has decided not to make the run.

Walsh's candidacy would have created a three-way contest in the Republican primary. Already in the race are Delmar attorney Peter C. Wenger and Rezzimini.

The contest was set up when Rezzimini challenged Bethlehem's Republican leadership after the town committee had nominated Wenger instead of Rezzimini for justice on the November ballot. Rezzimini, former town attorney, is serving an interim term in justice court after winning a close election last November against Democrat Michael Breslin.

The committee's action in bypassing Rezzimini came on a split vote on a closed ballot in committee. Unofficial sources indicated the majority of the 42-member committee was apprehensive of Rezzimini's vote-getting ability in the wake of his narrow margin over Breslin in 1978 despite the town's dominant Republican registration.

Tomato Storage is Important

It's all right to pick tomatoes any time after the red color starts to show, but how they are stored after picking is important. Fruits not fully red are best ripened at room temperature, about 70 degrees. Fruit stored in the refrigerator below temperatures of 55 degrees will not color properly.

Walsh had told friends he would not consider running against Rezzimini in a one-onone situation, but was tempted to make the race now that the primary was a reality. Rezzimini now is expected to have substantial Republican support from "old-guard" members of the party.

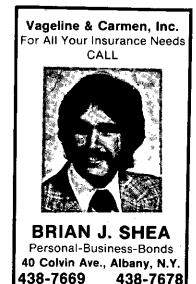

"My commitments all around preclude it (the primary)," Walsh told the Spotlight last week. "I was tempted, but unless I can go all-out on a campaign, I shouldn't try it."

^{ВЕТНLЕНЕМ} Teachers prepare for new math

Five Bethlehem math teachers will spend next week preparing to teach Math 9 (Course 1) in accordance with the new integrated math program being implemented in the Bethlehem school district during the next school year.

A federal grant of about $5,500 will underwrite expenses for the week of inservice, including materials and consultant fees, and some staff and consultant time during the school year. The new curriculum has been piloted in three school districts in New York State, and the director of one of those, Dr. Len Szumiloski, will be here next week to advise the Bethlehem teachers.

An application for the Title IV-C grant was written by Asst-Supt. Briggs McAndrews and Math Supervisor Philip Gibbons, and notification of its approval was received by the school district in May.

The participating teachers will be Christine Corson, Rosemary Norelli and Sandra Westfall, ninth grade math teachers at the High School, and Robert Fiordilino and Gary Hammer, who will teach accelerated math to eighth-graders at the Middle School; Marie Koonce, eighth grade math teacher at St. Thomas School, has also been invited to participate.

BUSINESS Fitness facility for 'mini-mall'

A Slingerlands couple will soon launch a Nautilus fitness and shape-up program in the Delmar area and have leased space in the "mini-mall" at 154 Delaware Ave., Elsmere, for an August opening.

The center will be owned and operated by Lee and Gail Faulkner with a qualified group of instructors chosen from area athletes with long and varied Nautilus experience. Faulkner, a former New Jersey all-state high school track and football star, also led Colgate University's track and football teams during his college career. He coached U.S. Air Force football and track teams in England, and became Royal Air Force—U.S. Air Force high, low and 400-meter hurdle champion and USAFE European champion in the same events.

The 3,300-square foot facility will include an office, pro shop and lounge, mens' and ladies' locker rooms and a 1,900-square foot exercise area. In addition to one complete "circuit" of Nautilus equipment, the facility will also include exercycles, electric jogger, and abdominal boards that can be incorporated into an individuals personal fitness program. A wide selection of exercise classes can be combined with the Nautilus equipment to provide a comprehensive program for those who have time available. Prescribed rehabilitation programs will also be administered.

BETHLEHEM Schools adopting new health units

The Bethlehem School District will this year begin teaching some kindergarten and first grade pupils a nationally recognized health curriculum originally developed in Seattle.

Four Bethlehem teachers at those grade levels, Jean Kallop, Charlotte Rounds, Patricia Eckhardt and Kathy Baird, attended a workshop in Plattsburgh during the week of June 25-29 to receive training in the health curriculum. The workshop cost of $400 was donated by Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Northeastern New York. The American Lung Assn., headed locally by Ray Williams, has also cooperated with the Bethlehem district in obtaining materials and guidelines for use of the health instruction here.

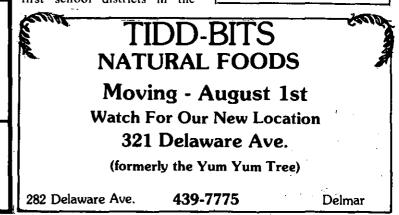

Bethlehem was one of the first school districts in the country to begin teaching the Berkeley Health Program about 10 years ago, and new units have been added since then. Berkeley instruction is now introduced in Bethlehem third grade classes with a unit on the eye. With this new Seattle-based program, even the youngest Bethlehem pupils will receive instruction related to good health habits.

The new curriculum is patterned after the Berkeley Program, so will lead naturally into it, according to Briggs McAndrews, assistant superintendent of Bethlehem schools.

BETHLEHEM Students return from sea project

Two Bethlehem Central graduates have returned home from six weeks at sea aboard the research and training schooner, R/V Westward, as part of their college studies.

Gretchen Rich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell H. Rich, Jr. of Slingerlands, and Dennis FitzPatrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene FitzPatrick of Delmar, were members of the 12-week college-level course offered by the Sea Education Assn. (SEA) based in Woods Hole, Mass.

Gretchen, a senior at the University of New Hampshire, will complete her degree work next semester. Dennis will be a junior at Cornell University in the fall.

The shore component of the program, comprising the first six weeks at Woods Hole, included an introduction to marine science, a survey course on oceanography, and concepts of navigation, naval architecture, ship construction, marine engineering systems and ship management.

For the sea component segment, the students boarded the Westward at Key West, Fla. and sailed 200 miles east to

BUSINESS Landmark cafe changes hands

For most of the last five decades there has been a luncheonette-restaurant at 371 Delaware Ave., Delmar. Since World War 2 perhaps a dozen owners have catered to the businessmen, shopkeepers, office workers, bank employees and other "regulars," starting with the pre-dawn breakfasts and ending with the late lunch patrons, the place where scores of lawyers, policemen, postal workers and nearby residents drop in every morning for a cup of coffee and commentary on the day's topics.

The building dates to 1880 and was the site of one of the first gasoline pumps in upstate New York, at curbside.

Last week Newell Cross, proprietor of Newell's Cafe, turned over the keys to John Berhaupt and William Salmeri, partners in a Colonie florist business, who are renovating the premises as the Four Corners Luncheonette.

John Berhaupt, a 26-yearold Slingerlands resident with a varied background in food management, will manage the new enterprise and his brother, Peter, 21, will be the chef, leaving Salmeri to manage the florist shop on Central Ave.

The brothers are giving the landmark site a thorough renovation, installing booths and a complete new menu. "We're redecorating to give it some atmosphere," said John, adding the restaurateur's classic cliche of "good food, good service and reasonable prices."

They also plan an innovation: incorporating a deli service with the luncheonette. They're also shooting for an opening on Friday the 13th. "We like to think that will bring us luck," says John.

The elder brother comes from Colonie, graduated from Colonie Central High School, Hudson Valley Community College and a hotel training school in Washington, D.C. He worked as an apprentice meat cutter while a student, then worked at several hotels and restaurants in Washington and managed several bar-restaurants in the Albany area. He spent 21/2 years as manager of the Ground Round restaurants on Wolf Rd. and in Schenectady, where his brother, Peter, was a cook.

The transaction, effective July 1, will enable the most recent owner, Newell Cross of Delmar, to pursue his favorite hobbies—camping, fishing and telling World War 2 stories.

Sharing rides

The public is invited to the third of a series of meetings to discuss programs to encourage ridesharing in the Capital District. Ridesharing can be defined as a trip made by two or more persons using buses, vans, automobiles or taxis. The meeting will be held on July 16 at 1:30 p.m. at the Capital District Transportation Committee office, 1450 Western Ave., Albany.

Beautification awards

Recipients of the 1979 Business Beautification Awards sponsored by the Bethlehem Garden Club have been announced by Mrs. Clark Galloway and Mrs. Edward Howell, co-chairmen of the club's beautification and conservation committee. The "green thumbs" this year belong to Peter Staniels, manager of the Roberts Realty Delmar office, Nancy Kuivila, manager of the Delmar office of Picotte Real Estate, Inc., and David Murphy, who was given the award for McDonald's Restaurant in Delmar.

The awards, begun last year by the club, are intended to show appreciation to local business people who properties are especially attractive and well-maintained.

Student leaders chosen

Juniors chosen to represent Bethlehem Central High School this summer at Boys' State and Girls' State are David Propp and Maribeth Gunner. The Boys' State conference will be held at the State University Agricultural and Technical School at Morrisville, and the Girls' State conference at the State University of New York at Albany. Sponsored by the American Legion, the annual get-togethers are attended by high school students throughout New York State who are named participants for their outstanding qualities of citizenship, scholarship and character.

Wins logo contest

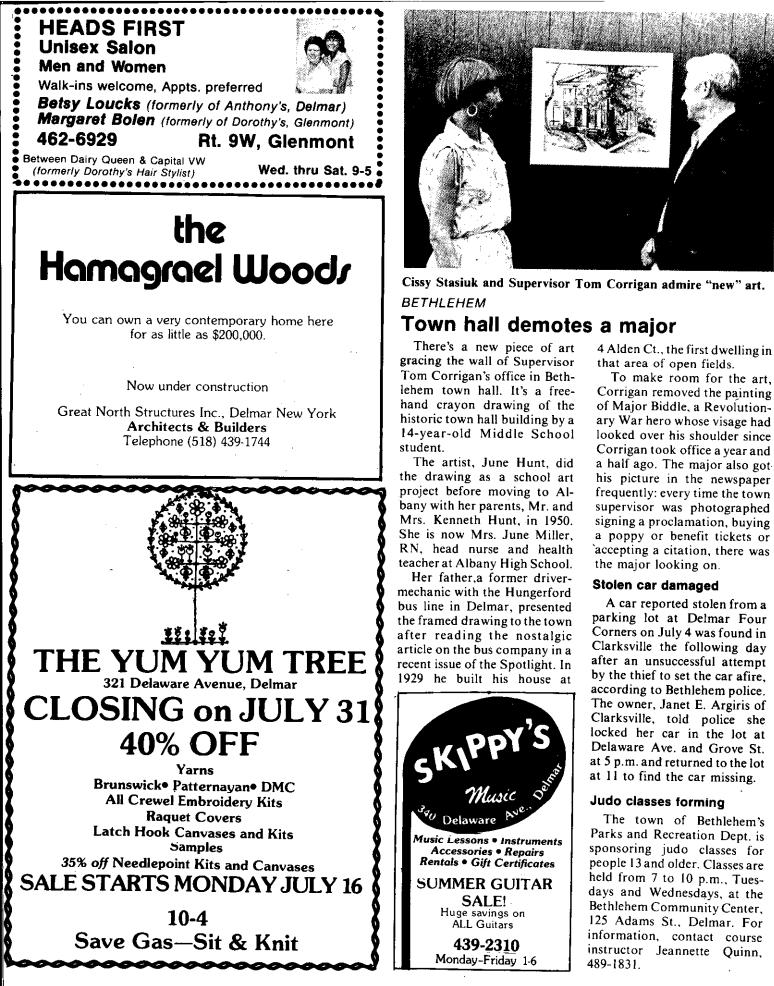

Carol Turner, prominent Slingerlands artist, has been named the winner of a contest to create a logo for the Rensselaer County Council for the Arts. Her entry was chosen this month from 47 submitted by high school and college students and teachers, advertising professionals and architects and members of the community.

Undersized mail ban

"Use up your small envelopes and cards before July 15," Postmaster Henry Betke reminds his Delmar customers. This is the day that the new Postal Service standard sizes become effective. After July 15, envelopes and cards measuring less than 31/2 inches high or 5 inches long will be returned to the sender.

Envelope and card industries have had more than three years to prepare for these new standards. The regulations also prohibit flimsy cards. Undersized pieces and flimsy cards are being banned because they can become trapped in other mail, tear and jam mail processing machinery, which can cause other letters nearby to be damaged.

Gretchen Waugh Local teacher published

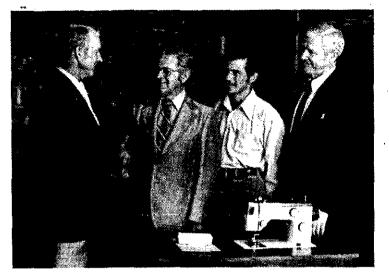

Jan Xeller, a teacher at the Clarksville School, contributed an idea that was printed in the April issue of Instructor magazine, a nationally-circulated publication for people in the field of education.

Her contribution reads:

"Use an unusual, yet readily available, tool to motivate kids to recognize letters and words—Alpha-Bits cereal. Give each child a small bowl of letters. Write a word on the board and instruct children to find the letters of the word from their bowl of cereal. When all have assembled the word, spell it together, and use it in a sentence. With older children, have them make as many words as possible from the letters in their bowl."

While the idea is for teachers, it can obviously also be used by parents who may wish to turn a leisurely summer breakfast into a learning experience.

A new business in the Elsmere "mini-mall" is planning its "grand opening" in July. Gordon Morris, left, president of the Bethlehem chamber of commerce, and Supervisor Tom Corrigan dropped by last week to congratulate John Besson and Larry Johnson at Delmar Sales and Service, specializing in sewing machines, vacuum cleaners and carpet and wallpaper cleaning machines, including rentals.

BASEBALL Blue Jays eye 6th straight win

There were enough nailbiting moments to satisfy the hungriest baseball fan Saturday as the Delmar Blue Jays, rapidly establishing themselves as one of the area's top-quality baseball teams, swept their second straight doubleheader, this one from the Schenectady Sons of Italy at the BCHS diamond.

This weekend's schedule calls for a visit to Delmar by Saratoga for a Capital District League game at 12:30 Saturday and a Sunday game with Saratoga at Sand Creek Junior High School, Colonie, at 1 p.m. Tonight (Thursday) the Blue Jays face the Schenectady R&R Pools, an amateur team stocked by the Chicago White Sox, at Schenectady Community College at 6.

Saturday's nail-biters came in the final frame of each game with this scenario.

First game, Jays leading 4-0, John MacDonald working on a four-hitter, bases loaded with Sons, one out. Batter belts a long shot to deep right that looked like a triple or a home run. Ward Phalen, running with his back to the plate, makes the catch over his shoulder. The drive spoiled MacDonald's shutout as the run crossed after the catch, but Big John ended the game by getting the next hitter to bounce to Billy Karp at third.

Second game, eighth inning of a scheduled seven-inning nightcap, Sons take the lead at 10-9 and have the bases loaded with two out. Batter clouts a 400-foot drive to deep center, where Mark Kleinke takes it on the dead run to end the rally.

Second game, bottom half of the eighth, Delmar loads the bases with two outs, trailing by one run. Tony Naglieri outlegs an infield hit, tying the score, and Ken Gall lines a sharp single for the winning run.

The 4-1, 11-10 sweep gave Delmar a five-game winning streak and boosted their league record to 7-3 and their overall mark to 11-7. Kleinke had a big day at the plate with three singles in the first game and a homer and triple in the second. John Terko and Steve Caruso had two hits each in the opener, and Phalen and Naglieri two apiece in the nightcap.

Rosters are open in Pop Warner

Almost 70 young football players ages 9-14 are now registered for the fall season with Bethlehem Pop Warner. Frank Kelly, in charge, says there are openings for more teammates.

Players can sign up with Pop Warner until early August. League rules require a minimum of 10 practices before contact can be allowed. The season begins Sept. 9. If family vacations interfere, arrangements can be made for practice make-ups.

Kelly also disclosed that Pop Warner players this year will be receiving guidance and direction from the Bethlehem Central coaching staff.

Eight games are scheduled for the fall season. Young players who have any questions may call Frank Kelly at 439-2446.

NEW SCOTLAND Park to sponsor softball program

A softball program for girls 12-16 will get underway July 21 at the New Scotland town park on Swift Rd. in place of a minicoed summer basketball program.

Richard D. Ellis, coordinator of recreation for the town, said the five-week basketball program for junior high school pupils scheduled to start in Clarksville Saturday had been cancelled for lack of response.

"The softball program should be an excellent supplement to school and community softball programs, and will be particularly good for girls with little or no softball experience," Ellis said.

The program will be divided into two sessions of five weeks. Ellis said. Girls living in the village of Voorheesville and the hamlets of New Salem and New Scotland should report to the first session July 21 from 9 a.m. to 12 noon. Girls living in Clarksville, Feura Bush, and Unionville should report at 1 p.m. and play to 4 p.m.

The sessions will run each Saturday from July 21 through Aug. 11, and will conclude with a tournament Aug. 18-19. Instructors will be Steve Burgoon and Patricia Jablonowski. For signup information, call Ellis at 765-4011.

Dog licensing changed

A new three-part application-license form for dogs will be distributed during the 1979 census. If dogs are obtained after these forms are passed out to the owners, forms can be picked up at town hall.

No dog license is transferrable, so each new owner of a dog must apply for a new license. A veterinarian's certification is required. Permanent license tag numbers will apply for a dog's lifetime, affixed to the dog's collar. Local dog wardens will be able to identify lost dogs within minutes by transmitting the ID number to the State Dept. of Agriculture and Markets in Albany.

SOCCER Under-12 boots have a big day

The other under-ll team, the Tornadoes, put together a good team effort to bury the East Greenbush A team, 11-0.

In other games, Clifton Park overnowered Bethlehem's Stars, 6-0, and the Golden Eagles got revenge over their local counterparts, the Bald Eagles, 3-0.

A variety of activities will be featured from simple crafts for pre-schoolers to bread dough art, kite-making and small engine maintenance for older participants . . . a total of 11 crafts and activities will be offered.

Each student will also take part in a Bible lesson. An opportunity will be provided each morning during the opening exercise to help people in underdeveloped countries by contributing to "tools for CROP," a project that provides simple tools-shovels, hoes, hammers, and saws-to these people.

BEAT RISING COSTS Act now...SAVE MORE MONEY DURING OUR 15th ANNUAL AUTHORIZED SUMMER SALE. Most products sold today will be higher priced tomorrow, how much higher is unpredictable. One way to protect your future is to buy with in-vestment in mind. For example: a $4,000 kit-chen remodeling job done five years ago, would now cost over $5,500. Therefore, that home might be worth $5,500 more today. (And remember, one of the most important con-alderations to a prospective home buyer is the kitchen.) No one can say for for sure what future prices will be, but it's safe to assume that money spent on your home may be one of the best investments possible. To enhence this investment, it is also an outstanding tax shelter. When you sell your home and take the appreciation of your kitchen, you do not pay in-come tax on the profits, assuming they do not exceed $100,000. This is one of the few ways for you to have inflation on your side...for a change.

MAKE IT SPICY!

As a salad or dessert, Spiced Jellied Peaches are the perfect complement to a busy-day dinner. The delicately spiced peaches enhance the fresh fruity flavor of Jell-O orange or peach gelatin. - 2 tablespoons vinegar

Strain, discarding spices. Dissolve gelatin in hot liquid. Chill until slightly thickened. Stir in peaches and pour into individual molds. Chill until firm, about 3 hours. Unmold. Serve on crisp lettuce, if desired. Makes 2-3/4 cups or 5 or 6 servings.

Pet discrimination

Editor, The Spotlight:

In our neighborhood, as in many others, I'm sure, we have a number of cats which are allowed to wander freely, day and night. We buy bird seed to lure the beautiful birds to our yard, only to see one of these poor creatures being eaten alive by a preying cat.

Many times, one of these cats perches on my window sill or my car, only to scratch and soil it. In the middle of the night, it is alarming to be awakened by this cat screeching on my window sill. I also don't appreciate these same cats scratching up my garden, shrubs, and lawn to bury their debris.

We have a leash law for dogs, and I abide by it. I feel sure these same neighbors would complain bitterly, if my dog sat on their window sill or car and soiled their gardens or lawns.

Fun at Firemen's Fairs

Everybody in the family has fun at the firemen's carnivals that are held each summer in each fire district. One of the first (one of the best) of these is the carnival the Onesquethaw district volunteers put on every year at the firehouse on Delaware Tpk., Unionville.

There are games and prizes for everyone Friday starting at 7 p.m. and Saturday starting at 4. On Saturday there is an old-fashioned chicken barbecue from 4 to 8. See you there!
