BETHLEHEM

Zoning issues come to a head as new code approved

One town board member got into an argument with a Glenmont resident about "polarization" between citizens and builders. The chairman of the planning board threatened to resign if his plan isn't carried through in 30 days. And the town board gave serious thought to whether there are builders in the town who will take advantage of a loophole they had just learned about.

If it proved anything, the lengthy public hearing last Wednesday showed again that zoning in Bethlehem is the stuff of strong emotions and very little trust.

The hearing was on whether the board should adopt a set of major revisions to the zoning code which will create a new zone specifically for apartments of three units or more, ban apartments in other residential zones and give the planning board site plan review powers. After the hearing, the board did adopt the changes, but decided to move the effective date back into the second week of June.

The reason for the delay is a certain nervousness instilled in the board by Michael Bergan, an Elsmere attorney. Bergan pointed out that as they are written now, the code revisions allow builders to put apartments in A-Residential zones. That is because there are at present no areas zoned AB, which is the new zone designed for apartments.

The plan, explained Town Supervisor Tom Corrigan, is to zone at least a few areas AB "within 30 days" and at the same time delete the apartments from the A zone.

But, asked Bergan, what happens in the meantime? "What I'm saying is that there's a sleight of hand that's being perpetrated by everyone who lives in an A zone."

Bergan's question never got a satisfactory answer at the hearing, which was dominated by suspicious homeowners on one side and nervous builders on the other, but in the relative calm of the regular meeting Town Attorney Bernard Kaplowitz told the board that Bergan might be correct.

Because of the short space of time involved, he said, "I don't think we have a problem. But there may be a rat out there."

The alternative would have been to amend that section of the code, a costly and time-consuming procedure. Instead, the decision was simply to delay the effective date and hope the AB zones will be in place.

The urgency of getting those AB zones in place was underscored by Planning

Delmar Rescue Squad members extricate Lisa M. Mauro, 18, from a car owned by John J. Mauro, 56 Linda Ct., Delmar, after a two-car collision on Elsmere Ave. last Tuesday. She was treated at Albany Medical Center and released. Bethlehem police said a car driven by Emily S. Berkowitz, 17, of 13 Windsor Ct., crossed into the on coming lane and sideswiped the Mauro car, forcing it into a tree. Berkowitz told police that when she glanced at the speedometer, her car veered across the center line.

Tim Haverly

Board Chairman Edward Sargent, who has repeatedly stressed the "commitment" he feels the town has to the petitioners in Glenmont and on Kenaware Ave. who have asked for protection against apartments in their areas.

"If it doesn't happen in a month they'll have my resignation," Sargent said.

But neither Sargent nor the town board would promise that the petitioners will be totally happy with the new system once it's in place. The AB zones, noted Kaplowitz, "have got to come from somewhere." Sargent stressed the need to be "fair to the builders."

The key question is whether the new code will allow the town to exert more control over where apartments go. From Kaplowitz's point of view, the change from "special use" permits to the new site plan review system is necessary because changing court interpretations are making it harder for all municipalities to defend their decision in court.

"We're running into that in three cases, and I suspect we may lose all three," he said.

The builders, on the other hand, are most anxious to eliminate uncertainty and pare down the costly, time-consuming review process. Lindsay Boutelle, who has played a significant role in the development of the town as an engineer and developer, questioned whether the builders were much better off under site plan review if they still have to go through a public hearing before the planning board.

The difference, said Sargent, is that the public hearing is discretionary for the planning board, and that there will be many routing cases where it is not necessary. "This is a fair attempt to balance things out, he said.

That leaves the homeowners, several of whom made no secret of the fact that they don't think the town has protected their areas adequately in the past. William G. Scanlan of Glenmont talked about the advantage builders have in the process because of their money and expertise, and the "polarization" which exists between homeowners and developer.

"Let's get this into some kind of perspective," shot back Councilman Edward Mocker, who sat on the planning board for 11 years.

"Not all developers are rascals." It's not always possible to please the neighborhood because the planning board "has to look at the whole... they've made very hard decisions," Mocker said.

"I find your attitude frightening," replied Scanlan.

Craft show coming

The Town of Bethlehem Historical Association will sponsor a craft show and sale on June 6 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the Cedar Hill School House Museum grounds, Route 144 and Clapper Road in Selkirk. Booths will include antiques, plants and herbs, white elephants, a bake sale, and a genealogy corner. Booth rentals are available at $10 per booth by calling 767-9057 or 767-9919. ### Planners get down to brass tacks

After months of discussion and thought, the Bethlehem Planning Board is at last considering specific areas in the town for rezoning to permit apartment buildings.

Ed Kleinke, planning consultant to the board, presented a map of the Delaware and Cherry Avenue corridors to the board last week with his proposals for extensive rezoning. Engineering consultant Al Wirth and Building Inspector John Flanigan helped Kleinke identify the rezoned areas. The board was to discuss them again Tuesday and will probably make final recommendations to the town board for its May 27 meeting.

"It's time we address ourselves to the petitions and suggestions that various citizens and builders have presented" said board Chairman Ed Sargent. To this end, the rezoning proposals reflect to some degree, these various requests to keep apartments out of existing single-family areas.

On Kleinke's maps, lots fronting on Cherry Ave. from Kenwood to Custer would be rezoned AB-Residential, the newly proposed zone which would permit construction of 1, 2, 3 and 4-family residences. This rezoning would eliminate apartment buildings of more than four units, from the Cherry Ave. corridor, which are permitted in the present B-Residential zone.

In addition, it was proposed that lots fronting on the south side of Delaware Ave. from Cherry to Minnow Brook Ave., and on the north side from Custer to the Bethlehem Public Library be assigned to the AB-Residential zone.

Some upgrading was suggested for the residential areas along Custer, Carson and Dawson Rds., which are presently zoned B-Residential but could become A-Residential. This would include part of the property owned by Harry Gochee that has been under debate recently.

Gochee is seeking a special exception to construct two four-unit apartment buildings on the corner of Kenaware and Dawson Rds., and would apparently be granted this request as that half of his property is included in the proposed AB-Residential area. But the rest of his adjacent property was included in an A-Residential zone which would permit construction of single or two-family residences only.

The other area of the town that has been mentioned frequently in zoning discussions for the past six months is the eastern part of Feura Bush Rd. in Glenmont. Although definite designations of zones have not yet been proposed here, the board did begin to discuss the area in a general way. For instance, it was agreed that the parcel of undeveloped land on the southeast side of the intersection of Bender Lane and the Delmar Bypass was an obvious site for a future apartment complex, as the area is accessible from major thoroughfares and isolated from single family residential areas. In addition, the land fronting on the Elsmere Ave. corridor between the bypass and Feura Bush Rd. was identified as an A-Residential area, with the adjoining lands towards the east up to Colonial Acres suggested as a possible AA-Residential zone.

A map of the whole Glenmont area, which will include more definite proposals, is expected to be ready in the next few weeks.

District voters in a sunny mood

Was it board member John Clyne's endorsement? Or did the bright sunshine last Wednesday put voters in the mood to give solid approval to the $14 million Bethlehem Central School District budget for 1981-82?

Whatever the reason, the vote was 1,674 to 1,008, the widest margin of approval since 1972, according to District Clerk Ann Treadway.

A total of 2,948 district residents voted.

Mrs. Treadway said a number of factors probably contributed to the comfortable margin, including the fact that there were contests for two seats on the board, which tends to bring out the "yes" voters.

Clyne's endorsement was a plus because in other years he has voted "no" on the budget. But this one, with an estimated tax rate increase for Bethlehem residents of only 4.9 percent, had his stamp of approval.

The fact that the increase is below that of the previous year may also have led some voters to think they were getting a bargain in these inflationary times.

In the board contests, Sheila Fuller easily held on to her seat, turning back a challenge from John Bellizzi, Jr., 1955 to 748. Bellizzi had made Mrs. Fuller's opposition to the Challenge program a central issue in his campaign.

In the four-way race for the seat held by Bert Weinberg, who did not seek reelection, Jed Wolkenbreit garnered 947 votes, followed by Joseph Mosca with 697, Carolyn Bennett, 594, and Lois Dorman, 498. Wolkenbreit was the first candidate to enter the race, and ran a thorough, well-financed campaign.

Robert Ziek, unopposed, received 1,765 votes for another three-year term.

Voters also okayed a new roof for the Bethlehem Library, by a vote of 1,826-749, and approved the Library's 1981-82 budget, 1,861-759.

Library board President Ethel Birchenough, who was unopposed, received 1,836 votes. Thomas Shen, also unopposed, received 1,838 votes to join the library board.

Language program cited

The Bethlehem School District's foreign language department has taken second place honors in Capital Region competition for the James E. Allen Distinguished Foreign Language Program Award.

The award is made by the New York State Association of Foreign Language Teachers. Bethlehem Department Supervisor Ralph Vander Heide said recently the criteria includes teacher preparation and professional involvement, Regents exam results, number of languages offered, length of sequences in each foreign language offered, extra-classroom activities such as trips to foreign countries, and teaching methods and innovations.

Dr. Vander Heide also said he believes the award committee looked favorably upon the early offerings made available to Bethlehem students — Spanish and French starting in the sixth grade.

Orchestra to perform

The Delmar Community Orchestra will present a concert Sunday, May 31, at 7:30 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church, Delmar. Conductor is Robert McGowan. A free-will offering for the benefit of World Hunger will be taken.

The board also agreed to allow Highway Superintendent Martin Cross buy back two trucks he recently traded in to use as back-ups. That request has been tabled from the previous meeting, but Corrigan assured the board that the old trucks, at $500 each, would be useful.

In other business, the board:

- Discussed the town's dwindling water supply, but took no action on Corrigan's proposal for a ban on automatic sprinkling of lawns. Kaplowitz suggested that a first step would be to increase enforcement of the existing partial sprinkling ban.

- Received from Kaplowitz the proposed local law establishing a new department of public works to encompass the engineering department and the water and sewer districts. The law will give the new public works commissioner, a job created for Town Engineer Bruce Secor, exempt civil service status, which means he will have the power to hire and fire employees in his department. Kaplowitz said.

- Approved a new employee tuition policy, in which the town will pay half the tuition for job-related courses after the employee has successfully completed the course.

- Named Mrs. Harry Brown as a member of the Bethlehem Tree Planting Committee. She replaces David Reville.

- Gave Corrigan authority to take easements for the new sewer project by eminent domain if the town cannot conclude agreements in time to meet its Aug. 10 federal deadline.

After the ball is over...

This year's BCHS Senior Ball will take place at the school on Friday, June 5, and for the second year there will be after-the-ball activities until dawn at the Bethlehem Town Park.

Activities at the park, weather permitting, will include dancing to a live band, swimming, tennis, and a breakfast served at 5 a.m. Del Lanes in Delmar will be open for bowling. In case of rain, as many activities as possible will be offered at the school.

The after-the-ball activities are open to all BCHS seniors and their dates, and seniors can choose to attend just the activities, without going to the ball beforehand. Tickets for after-the-ball activities, for a fee to cover costs, are now on sale in the school cafeteria.

This is the 19th straight year that night-long after-the-ball activities have been made available to BCHS graduating seniors, through the efforts of parent and student volunteers. Last year was the first year they were held at the town park.

The theme of this year's ball is "Summer Breeze," and the decorations will include palm trees and "little grass shacks." Hours of the dance are from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., and visitors are welcome to see the decorations from 8 to 9 p.m.

Mary Bousvaros is chairman of the Senior Ball, assisted by Karla Bove, decorations; Jeff Blount and Kim Wilcox, band; and Kerin Welch, after-the-ball activities ticket sales.

A committee of parents, headed by Muriel and Lew Welch and Barbara and Mike Hodom, is helping the senior class with arrangements for both the ball and the night-long activities.

Parent committee members include: treasurers, Sheila and John McGarahan; decorations, Sue and Bob Zick; refreshments, Jeanne and Tony Tartaglia and Jo Lawrence; breakfast, Kate and John Mooney; tickets, Pat and Jack Healy; publicity, Ann Treadway; bowling, Nancy and John Rodgers, Helen and Jack Herrmann, and Betty and Dave Essex; recreational activities, Mary Anne and John Dinneen; photography, Al Lierheimer; and after-ball music, Bill Reusswig.

Also working with the committee on all plans for the event are Senior Class advisors Rosemary Norelli and Bill Cleveland, and Senior Class officers Chuck Asprien, Sue Digeser, Mary Bousvaros, and Sue Domenico.

Dems offer tax help

The Bethlehem Democratic Committee will sponsor a free real property tax assessment review night Thursday, May 28, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the Bethlehem Public Library.

"We have found increasing numbers of residents questioning the amount of their taxes and disparities in assessments," said committee Chairman Michael Breslin in announcing the workshop. Help will be available in reading the tax rolls, learning to identify high assessments and learning to prepare and present a challenge, Breslin said.

BETHLEHEM

Vial of Life plan to begin here

Residents of Bethlehem will be receiving the Vial of Life, the unique medical information system designed to help people in the event of an emergency in their own homes, during the month of June.

The program, sponsored by the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce and the Bethlehem Fire Officers Association in conjunction with Price Chopper Supermarkets, uses a small plastic vial stored in the front of the refrigerator which contains a data sheet listing pertinent medical information about its owner.

Distribution of the vials will be done by the Delmar, Elsmere, Slingerlands, Selkirk and North Bethlehem volunteer fire departments. Each home will receive one vial along with three information sheets. One sheet is to be filled out for each member of the household. If there are more than three members of your household, or you should need additional sheets or vials, they can be picked up at the town hall.

The information contained in the vial is an invaluable aid to firemen, policemen or ambulance attendants in a crisis situation, when a patient may be too ill or under too much stress to supply it. Among the facts included on the data sheet are the name of the person's doctor, insurance identification numbers, next of kin, medical problem, allergies and medications taken regularly.

Local fire and emergency medical care personnel are being alerted to look for the vials when they are called to a home.

Should the patient need to be taken to the hospital, the vial and the information sheet go along with him. In addition, vital information can be telephoned ahead to the hospital, alerting the doctor and the staff. Admission to the hospital is also simplified, because insurance information is recorded on the form.

NEW SCOTLAND

Town to replace homeowners' trees

Shortly after moving to Upper Flat Rock Rd., New Scotland, eight years ago, Theodore J. Boluch decided to block off the unsightly view of junk cars on the property across the road. He planted a row of trees along the front of his land a short distance north of Delaware Tpk. to screen the view.

Last week Boluch appeared at the New Scotland town board's monthly meeting to complain that a town highway crew had cut down 102 small oaks ranging in diameter from an inch and a half to 10 inches for a distance of some 300 feet along the road.

When Supervisor Steve Wallace asked whether the trees were within 25 feet of the center line of the town road, Boluch replied: "It's still my property. I don't think it was hindering traffic."

Peter Van Zetten, town highway superintendent, admitted his men had cut the trees. "My foreman said it was an impediment to snowplows. The men were being hit in the face by the branches."

Boluch protested that "many other roads in other parts of town weren't cleared like that."

Van Zetten admitted the trees were cut without his knowledge. That set off this dialogue:

Boluch: "What happened to the wood?"

Van Zetten: "Some of them (road workers) took it home."

Boluch: "I burn wood. I have yet to cut a live tree for firewood. There is so much dead wood around, it bugs me that someone would cut live trees. Why pick on my area?"

Van Zetten: "We're getting ready to pave that road."

Boluch: "I've gone through state law and found no authority for a town highway superintendent to cut trees without authorization of the property owner." Then he added: "Well, the trees are gone and you can't grow 'em back."

Wallace: "I'm sorry that happened. Ted, We'll replace the trees with fast-growing trees, like pine. Would you consider us planting pines as replacement?"

Boluch: "Yes. We can work something out."

St. Thomas Parish wins music award

St. Thomas the Apostle Church, the Catholic parish of Bethlehem, recently received a national "Outstanding Parish Award" for 1981.

The honor which was given to eight parishes in the U.S., was announced by Bishop Howard Hubbard in a letter to the parish. Granted biennially by the National Association of Pastoral Musicians, the award is given to parishes "which have succeeded in developing exemplary pastoral music programs on a consistent basis."

The 2,500 Bethlehem families who attend St. Thomas know that the music liturgy at their church is special, but they might not realize that the person responsible for coordinating both the liturgy and music is Dominick J. Alonzo. Alonzo began his career 18 years ago, when as a boy of 14 he served as the organist at the Church of the Assumption in Mechanicville. He has served as music director of St. Thomas for six years, and is involved in many aspects of the parish including directing the choir, planning the liturgical services with Father

Dominick J. Alonzo

James J. Daley and the other parish priests, and providing the music for almost all the masses at the church.

Alonzo is also a composer and has won two "New Composition Awards" for his works. Parishioners are familiar with his skills, since his compositions are used freely in masses at the church. This spring Alonzo will realize a long-time dream when he receives a degree in English and music from the State University at Albany.

Tops at patrol seminar

Leighton White, 17, a senior at Voorheesville High School, attended the 10th annual National Junior Ski Patrol Seminar at Whiteface Mountain, Lake Placid, last month.

He trained intensively in advanced first aid for skiing accidents, in nordic skiing, mountaineering and avalanche rescue.

In the competition, out of 118 junior patrollers 15 to 18 years old, White placed sixth overall by trying for second in free skiing, tying for eighth in ski and toboggan handling and placing second in the essay.

White is the son of Don and Leigh White of Voorheesville. His father, brother and grandfather have been volunteer ski patrollers.

VOORHEESVILLE
Library budget
loses by 4 votes

Trustees for the Voorheesville Public Library will decide whether and how to resubmit their 1981-82 budget to the voters after their meeting next week—hopeful after they find a reason for last week's four-vote defeat at the polls.

The unexpected 226-230 vote was not the only surprise in Voorheesville. Voters turned out in unusual numbers to pass the school budget, 291-241.

David Teuten won the school board seat being vacated by Dominick Turk. Teuten received 218 votes to 152 for Carlyle Sutherland, 110 for Salvatore Mazzara and 30 for Dr. Raj Keishore. A nine-year resident of the village, Teuten is a former teacher with two children in the schools and is active in civic and church work.

If there is a clue to the library budget defeat it could be in the exceptionally heavy—for Voorheesville—turnout. The 532 votes for and against the school budget are 210 more than last year and 183 more than the year before. That, in turn, could be the result of what appears to be a hefty tax increase, although final figures are not yet available because of teacher negotiations and the uncertainties of assessments and equalization rates.

The current projection is for an increase from $171.50 per $1,000 of assessed valuation for New Scotland residents to $194.18 per $1,000. Only a month ago, district officials were contemplating a $187 per $1,000 tax rate, but another reduction in state aid threw that figure off.

The library budget also attracted more voters—136 more than last year—but the board of trustees isn't sure why. Wyman Osterhout, president of the board, said Friday the property tax rate for the library budget would have either stayed the same or decreased slightly.

"We don't know why it went down," Osterhout said.

Trustee Jane Blessing, running unopposed, received 359 votes for reelection.

Flea market planned

The Selkirk Fire Department Co. No. 1 will hold its annual flea market, with more than 40 indoor spaces, June 7. Persons wishing to donate items should contact any member of the department. Space, at $15 inside and $10 outside, is available by contacting Ken Bornhorst, 767-2197, or Elmar Welsey, 767-9545.

The newly-formed Voorheesville Sports Club is off to a flying start thanks to $558 presented to club secretary Bill Hotaling, right, by Dick Trout and Jim Nowicki of the Colonie-Guilderland Rotary Club. The Rotarians recently held a pancake breakfast for the new organization, which aims to promote boys and girls sports at the high school. The club meets at the high school the first Wednesday of the month at 8 p.m.

Spotlight move to new site set for next week

After more than five years on Kenwood Ave., the Spotlight will move next week to a building of its own—the former Bethlehem community building at 125 Adams St., Delmar.

The move will consolidate the newspaper's news editors, advertising sales people, classified and business departments, typesetting and production facilities and commercial printing operation under one roof for the first time in its 25-year history.

Display advertising and classified departments will move from 414 Kenwood to the new Spotlight building on Thursday, May 28, with the editorial department following on Friday. Customer parking will be available along the north side of the building and in the town of Bethlehem's public parking area adjacent to the recycling center.

The building, purchased in February by Richard A. Ahlstrom, publisher of the paper, and Nathaniel A. Boynton, former editor and publisher now serving as senior editor, has undergone extensive interior remodeling. The exterior will be renovated over the next three months.

The Spotlight will occupy approximately 3,000 square feet of the building. Approximately 1,000 square feet of floor space fronting on Adams St. will be made available for rental as office space or a retail store.

The Spotlight's last move was on March 1, 1976 from 154 Delaware Ave., Elsmere, to the present offices at 414 Kenwood Ave., Delmar. Its first commercial location was at 397 Kenwood Ave., currently occupied by the Christian Science reading room at Four Corners.

Crash injures two

Two Bethlehem teenagers were hospitalized after the car in which they were riding left a rural road and struck a tree last Wednesday afternoon.

Timothy Gross, 16, of 9 North St., Delmar was detained in the intensive care unit at Albany Medical Center until Tuesday, suffering from a fractured arm, broken ribs and internal injuries, and was reported in fair condition at the hospital Tuesday. Karen Macri, 9 Gardner Terr., Delmar, was reported in good condition at the hospital with a fractured ankle.

Bethlehem police said the driver, William J. Heffernan, 17, of 13 Gardner Terr., admitted he was going too fast on Lyons Rd. approaching Rt. 144 in Cedar Hill when he lost control. The car veered from one side of the road to the other, and caromed off a tree on the right before coming to rest, police said. Gross was thrown 30 feet into a ditch, according to the report. A fourth occupant, Debbie Dedes, 18, was not injured, police said. The car was owned by Joseph P. Macri, 9 Gardner Terr.

Burglar enjoys himself

Bethlehem police have a description of a burglar who made himself at home after breaking into a residence on Font Grove Rd., Slingerlands, while the occupants were attending an out-of-town wedding Saturday. Returning home at 12:45 a.m. and realizing someone was in the house they started to walk to a neighbor's house to call police when the intruder appeared at the front door.

Police said the burglar pried open a side door, ransacked the house, ate and drank items from the refrigerator, watched TV and smoked a half pack of cigarets. The only items missing were a pair of initialled silver candlesticks, police said.

Another break-in less than a quarter of a mile away netted a burglar or burglars $845 in cash, another $24 in silver coins a diamond tie-tac and a digital watch. Police said a rear patio door on Carstead Dr., Slingerlands, was forced between 11 a.m. and 2:15 p.m. Thursday.

Shop Talk visits

Delaware Plaza

by Judi James

In the fourth installment in our series on regional shopping centers, we visit the irreplaceable shopping area called Delaware Plaza, an outside mall built 27 years ago. Located right on Delaware Ave. and within one-half mile of Albany's southern limit, one finds 27 stores.

The Delaware Plaza deserves local support. Here the merchants strive to serve the community. For instance, right now they'd like to have YOU answer this question: Should the plaza stores remain open on Memorial Day and on July 4th? Send your answer to the Spotlight or give it to anyone of the merchants involved. They want your input on this decision.

This week the Delaware Plaza merchants have brought a wonderful amusement park right to their mall. There's a ferris wheel, a merry-go-round, popcorn and candy booths, ball games, poster games etc. And...each time you shop in one of the stores you'll be given a 10 cent ride coupon.

We begin at the north side of the plaza where there is a Key Bank with nice friendly people serving its customers. Denbys, one of a chain of department stores in the Capital District, anchors the north end. Here one finds clothing for men, women and children and a soft goods department with household linens and small accessories.

On the east side of the plaza there's a lot going on! The Off Track Betting parlor is on the corner. Right next door there's a fun place opened only a few weeks ago by two Tri-Village men who saw a need and have filled it with McBoogles Leisure Time Emporium! Jezz Austin, who has long been active in Little League in this area, and Dick Matarrese, co-owner of the Paper Mill, established McBoogles mainly for the youth of the area. They're finding, however, that age is no barrier — adults like McBoogles as well. They have a snack bar where hot dogs, soda, chocolate milk, etc. are available, and they have a great arcade of pin-ball type machines. (Mothers wanting to keep the kids busy while they get in a little shopping at Delaware Plaza LOVE McBoogles!)

Next door is Roger's Sports and Ski Shop. They carry top brands of sportswear — right now they have a nice selection of tennis things and of bathing suits. They also sell and service tennis racquets and are doing a great business in roller skates at this time of year. Owned by Peter Rogers, this is a total sports store which prides itself on service and good quality.

The Paper Mill is a center for Hallmark greeting cards, wrappings and gift items. They carry a fine supply of office equipment, school supplies and party supplies. Also, there's a nice corner here where one choosing invitations to weddings and other special occasions may make selections.

Alfred's Fabric Center is next door. Managed and owned by Reuben Alfred this is one of several fabric stores owned by this family in the Capital District. They have fabrics of all types, threads, zippers and patterns. It's a serve-yourself store where you carry the fabric up front to be measured and priced...and trundle home to create your own special garments!

Brooks Discount store has everything in the way of toiletries, over-the-counter

MEMORIAL DAY . . .

This Memorial Day weekend a great many families will visit their Cemetery Plots to pay tribute to their departed Loved Ones. As you look over their last resting place is there anything which should be cared for at this time?

Should you need a Headstone, a Family Memorial or lettering added to one which is already in place, please keep in mind that our office will be open all weekend to assist you in whatever your Cemetery needs may be.

drug needs, as well as wrappings, some gadgets and some toys are sold. Tim Malaney is the manager and right now has some nice buys in summer items such as coolers, picnic things, rakes and some lawn care special buys.

The Grand Union Store was remodeled last year. They have a good meat and vegetable department and their management is very cooperative with local organizations in helping them promote special affairs.

The Fabric Care Center has been under new ownership for the past month. Primarily a laundromat, they do a fine job of dry cleaning as well. Bulk dry cleaning is always spotted first and often can be left there and picked up within an hour or two. Shirts are sent out for laundry. The women who work here are pleasant and most accomodating.

Jack Donnelly, a resident of East Berne who has owned Donnelly's Shoes at Delaware Plaza for the past ten years, was formerly a district manager for the Miles Shoe Chain. He knows footwear well and in his plaza store he does quite a business with children's shoes, featuring Buster Browns. He has a nice selection of women's shoes and is very careful in fitting.

What can one say about Woolworths? It's a great store...selling almost everything that one so often needs around the house: paper products, cosmetics, lamps, picture frames, some items of clothing, and so on. This Woolworth's also has a lunch counter which does a constant business and often a nice selection of plants and flowers is to be found out in front.

Keep on going...to the small arcade just beyond Woolworths where we discover three fine places worth knowing. The first is Paul Mitchells. It's a men's wear shop par excellence featuring such fine brand names as Cricketeer, Jaymar, Harbor Master, Van Heusen and others. They have a fine selection of Hubbard and Jantzen Sportswear as well as McGregor and Lord Jeff. Their ties are nicely chosen from the Bronzini, Superba and the Rooser lines. Ken Schenkel is the affable owner of this store. He also serves as president of the merchants association.

next door needs no introduction to shoppers who have tried the wonderful baked goods of this chain. They are known for their special orders on cakes. Their pastries and rolls also may be specially ordered, and one whiff of the cozy-kitchen odors of the Golden Crust Bakery sets taste buds a 'tingling'.

Lee's Chinese Restaurant is a charming place to eat. Owned by Daniel Lee of Guilderland, the menu includes Cantonese, Mandarin, Szechuan, Polynesian and American foods. You'll find this to be a restaurant which is very clean, where the atmosphere is quiet and the food excellent.

It was just about this time of year fourteen years ago that Arlen Devine and her family opened the Plaza Liquor Store. Her son Peter is in the business with her. Wines are their biggest sales and they do discount all of their fine wines and liquors. They gladly advise the customer — drawing on their years of experience — and we can assure you of pleasant and helpful service at this store.

Kay-Bee Toys is managed by Mike Zimbal. Every month they run special promotions. May is the month of "Play Ball" with special discounts on things such as badminton and other sports equipment. The store carries toys of all types, some books, computer games and also art supplies.

Town and Tweed, owned by Helen and Herman Rasker, is known throughout the entire Capital region for its fine selection of quality women's wear. They've been in Delaware Plaza for 26 years and they know their customers and fill their needs. Stock is carefully selected. They carry separates, daytime and evening wear, coats suits and accessories. Anne Baxter is their capable manager.

Next door is Record Town. Managed by Ken Van Kampen, their top 20 albums are always featured sales.

They always have some good new releases. Right now, Ken tells me that REO Speedwagon is their best selling album. (And we understand the performance of this group at SPAC this summer is almost sold out!)

The Honeycomb Restaurant is a wonderful place for a quick meal or take out. Their homemade soup and pies are famous! Owners Jean Hart and Betty Guilini open their restaurant at six in the morning. They serve breakfast, lunch and dinner.

Johns Normanside Unisex Shop is managed by Anne Carroll. They have some fine operators and are very popular. They give 20 percent discounts Monday through Wednesday to Senior Citizens. They're open Monday through Saturdays and also in the evenings. Watch for their special money saving coupons which run regularly in The Spotlight!

The Plaza Pharmacy is a center for all pharmaceutical needs. Service here is prompt. They carry a good line of cosmetics and sundries and have been featuring the Dr. Scholl exercise sandals. George M. George is the manager of this pharmacy and has another one down at the Empire State Plaza. Shop Talk can't resist: "By George, you can find almost everything at the Plaza Pharmacy."

The Little Folks shop needs no introduction. The Warsh family has been known for their fine stores featuring children's wear for years. Their Delaware Plaza store is graciously managed by Mrs. Vincent. In keeping with the Memorial Day theme of red white and blue—there will be a 50 percent discount on any piece of wearing apparel in the store which has either red, white or blue on it, through May 26th. This is limited, one item to a customer, and it excludes their Lee and Levi jeans which, they tell us, are the lowest priced in the area. Sizes in this store run from infants right up through teens and the quality and selection are excellent.

Next door to Little Folks is the Plaza Barber Shop owned by Tom Tartaglia. It's a clean and pleasant shop with quick and professional service for men.

The Village Shop is a marvelous place for gifts of all types. They have a bridal registry and can supply the fine chinas, glassware, bath accessories and cookware every bride (whether a new one or an "old" one) needs! The Village Shop has a fine selection of herbs and cookbooks and periodically has a special demonstration in culinary arts. You'll like their nice imports as well as fine domestic items. Gift wrapping is customary, and your shopping selections will be made easier by a staff of knowledgeable personnel. Brad Kimball is manager.

LeWanda Jewelers is the place to go for custom-made jewelry, for watch repair, and for clocks as well. Mr. and Mrs. LeWanda were among the first to become part of the Delaware Plaza concept and everyone knows that they can be counted on for fine jewelry and technical knowledge. Mr. LeWanda is a member of the Diamond Masters of America and we can recommend his work to you.

If you've ever had Baskin and Robbins Ice Cream... you're hooked! A variety of fine ice creams, sherbets and specialty items makes this store exceptionally popular. They will make up special ice cream cakes for birthdays and other occasions and at holiday times always feature a special ice cream treat.

DiNapoli & DiNapoli Opticians are at the West end of this interesting plaza, facing Delaware Avenue. Doug Marone has been the personable manager, but Doug is retiring at the end of June to move to Florida. Tom DiNapoli and his sons Mike and Joe will continue to give the same fine optical service that they have since Tom began in 1941. They are specialists in contact lens and have a fine stock of frames.

The Delaware Plaza is a fine family center.

Eagles look for help on the mound

For Bethlehem lately, it's been "Maley and Malone and pray for rain." Monday it was all Steve Malone a fine four-hitter by the hard working senior hurler but that only increases Coach Art Ritchko's pitching problems. He has three more games this week, and four next week, three of them rescheduled because of rain earlier in the season. And only Corson Maley rested and ready to start.

Monday's 4-3 win at home over Guilderland, which raises the Eagle's Suburban Council record to five wins against nine losses, did give Ritchko something to cheer about.

"Our defense is playing a bit better," he said Monday. "We've got to because those errors hurt our pitching too much." Lou Conera and Brian Peek both went two for three.

What the pitching staff needs most, though, is a healthy Jim McGuinness, who is on the mend after reinjuring a rib muscle against Shaker two weeks ago. Ritchko says he hopes McGuinness can help the Eagles finish out the season.

But for the last few weeks, it's been a staff of two.

Friday Bethlehem lost 5-3 against league leading Colonie, a tough game in which the Eagles threatened in the late innings but failed to score. Maley started that game and was relieved by Malone after three.

Maley also started last Wednesday's 13-8 win over Scotia, and again Malone mopped up.

TENNIS

BC aims to improve council standing

With a solid second place in the Suburban Council locked up, Bethlehem Central's tennis team is pointing toward the top spot in this week's council championship.

"It's going to be really close," says Coach Julie Wendth. "Niskayuna, us and Shaker are all going to be right up there. They're all going to have to play up to potential."

BC's record last week—a pair of 5-4 wins over Shaker and Shenendehowa and a 2-5 exhibition loss to Albany Academy—are not the stuff to inspire confidence, but Coach Wendth is not concerned. She rested her number two singles player, Jeff Goodman, all week, and number three Mike Cole was "limping around a bit."

"I wanted to get them ready for the tournament... we've had so many matches I think everybody was getting a little stale." A stickler for fitness and practice, she even skipped a scrimmage this week to allow her players to rest up for the last league match of the season, against Guilderland Wednesday.

BC carries an 8-1 council record into that match (its only loss was to Niskayuna), and will finish second win or lose.

For the tournament, Coach Wendth will field a singles line-up of Alex Marcario, who has played number one all year, Goodman, Charlie Marden and Tim Talmage. Mike Cole and Jeff Elletson will team to make up the fourth doubles team.

B.T.A. plans tournament

The Bethlehem Tennis Association's 1981 Spring Tournament will be held on June 5, 6, 7, 13 and 14 at the Bethlehem Central Middle School.

Bethlehem town and school district residents, as well as those who were B.T.A. members as of September, 1980, are eligible to enter.

Entry fees for each event are $5.00 for B.T.A. members and $6.00 for non-members. Events held will be "A", "B" and Masters (age 45 and over). Up to three events may be entered if all are "A" levels; otherwise the limit is two.

The draw will consist of those players whose entry blanks, with fee, are received by 5:00 p.m. on Saturday, May 30, at Box 403, Delmar, N.Y. No refunds after the above deadline.

Entry blanks are available in Delmar at Courtside Tennis Shop, Rogers Ski and Sport Shop and Bethlehem Town Hall, Public Library, and Parks and Recreation Department. They are also available in Albany at Southwood Tennis Club.

TRACK

BC thinclads tune for Sectionals

Bethlehem Central's boys' varsity track team had more than its share of ups and downs last week. With the outdoor track season drawing to a close, BC's schedule is filled with important invitational meets where the team's top performers will face the best the Empire State has to offer on the track and in the field.

The week began with several pleasant surprises for Coach Gregory Catalano. Tuesday's prestigious Albany County Track Meet saw a flock of soggy BC heroes win a surprising 23 points to earn fourth place of twelve teams in the steady downpour that fell on Bleecker Stadium.

Kurt Boluch proved that he could run on water as well as on land when he placed first in the open 440 yard run with a relatively quick 51.7 victory, and fourth in the 100 yard dash with a respectable 10.5. Boluch chose to pass up his specialty — the 440 intermediate hurdles — in order to save himself for Saturday's all-important Eddy Meet. He did, however, anchor BC's first-place mile relay team, which finally emerged from its recent slump.

Andy Gould helped the team by finishing third in the 880. Perhaps the best news of all was the return of New York State's indoor pole vaulting champion, Bob McArthur, to competition after an ankle injury that has bothered him all season. Back to his usual fine form, McArthur vaulted to a winning 13 feet in the rain, when he was forced to stop by the meet's judges for safety reasons.

Thursday brought a Shenendahowa rout of BC with a demolishing 128-43 victory in BC's last dual meet of the season. However, several Eagles declined to compete in order to prepare for Saturday's Eddy Meet. In fact, BC won only one event against Shenendahowa.

The week's third meet was the William S. Eddy Meet held on Saturday at the Linton High School track. With over 1,000 of the state's fastest and strongest track stars representing some 80 teams, BC's few stood little chance. Only the ever-reliable Boluch was able to earn a fourth place with a time of 56.2 in the 440 intermediate hurdles.

This week will see Bethlehem competing in the Suburban Council Championships, the Class A Sectionals, and then the State Qualifiers.

BC girls strong in field, relays

The BC girls' track team has added Saratoga to its list of victims, which already includes Colonie, Scotia and Guilderland, thus raising its record to 4 wins and 3 losses.

At the recent Niskayuna Co-Ed Meet, the BC girls earned 18 points and placed fifth of 12 teams. With more than half of its season over, the 21-member female track squad will now be preparing diligently for its all-important season closers, including the Suburban Council championships that BC is hosting at its home track this week and the state meet June 6.

With eight freshmen serving as the backbone of her team, Coach Denise Minnear has had an abundance of energy and outstanding talent to mold for many varsity events. BC's depth in the field, which would be practically non-existent if it weren't for two freshmen, is one of the strongest aspects of the team.

Terry Plunkett earned an impressive 10 of the team's 13 point-total at the recent Ravena Invitational Meet. She consistently places high in the shotput and does even better in the discus, where she has managed a throw of 115 feet, 8 inches. In addition, freshman Marisa Weaver has held her own in the long jump, where she leaped a noteworthy 15 feet, 7 inches.

On the track BC's greatest potential seems to be in the 400-meter relay, with a time of 51.4 achieved by Karin Toussaint, Laura Treadway, Sue Goodrich and Dawn Watkins. Individually, these same people have also proved strong in the short to middle distance running. Watkins, who doubles in the 100 and 200 meter dashes, is usually closely followed by Karin Toussaint and Laura Treadway. Sue Goodrich is strong in the 400 meters. BC's hurdling has also been strong, thanks to Evelyn Carey and Meg Manion, who moved outdoors from their successful winter indoor season.

The team has also been doing well at the JV level, where some of the younger girls have been working to improve their individual times. Among those talents working up this ladder of accomplishment are freshmen Sue Czerw, Aryan Shayegani, and Karen Quinn.

Kim J. Wright, 19, of 285 Kenwood Ave., Delmar, escaped injury at 12:25 p.m. Friday when he leaped from his bicycle seconds before it was struck by an eastbound Delaware and Hudson work train near the Elsmere Ave. overpass. Bethlehem police said the bike was demolished by the locomotive.

A reply to candidates

Editor, The Spotlight:

Two candidates for the Bethlehem Board of Education, Sheila Fuller and Carolyn Bennett, have expressed positions on the Challenge Program which I feel indicate a deep lack of understanding of both educational processes and goals.

For example, Sheila Fuller states that there is no need for the Challenge Program because teachers "presently provide instruction at three separate ability levels within a class." In actuality, however, this may be true if we neglect to consider science and social studies, and look only at math and reading. In addition, the one or two exceptional children of truly gifted ability, who are reading or doing math at a level which is years ahead of even the "top" group in the class, typically do not fit into the current instructional programs.

Some exceptional teachers have taken it upon themselves to guide and direct such children within the context of their own classrooms. They consider it their duty as educators, but the majority of teachers simply don't have the extra time needed to adequately tend to such children's needs. They are forced to go with the more "cost-beneficial" approach of coping who fall, rather neatly, into the three existing reading and the three existing reading and math groups. For many teachers it is not a wise allotment of time to spend a half hour or more planning for and teaching possibly just a single child. This burden could so easily be lifted if we had a special resource teacher in each school to deal with such children.

We presently have many teachers who deal with children at the opposite end of the spectrum, so as to relieve the burden on the classroom teacher. When such huge sums of money are being spent on programs for students with other special needs, we must question Mrs. Fuller's sense of fairness on this matter.

Mrs. Fuller is also concerned with the overabundance of "labels". The fact is that labels exist in every aspect of life. Appropriating funds for the Challenge Program will not contribute to the preponderance of labels for the simple reason that these children have already been labeled by their own classmates who have ears and eyes!!

I would also like to take issue with Carolyn Bennett's philosophy of education which equates challenging our youngsters via a relevant, thought-provoking curriculum to rushing them through childhood. I see absolutely no correlation here. We are talking about some individual children who are being denied what all other children are receiving, namely a meaningful and constructive education. That is, after all, why they are attending school each day. How can Mrs. Bennett profess that she is not insensitive to the gifted child, when at the same time she is against making a commitment that would assure then an educationally valid experience?

Mrs. Bennett believes it is odd that we equate success in life with educational achievement. The fact is that we have idolized people in our society known for success in the fields of athletics, art, music, theatre and motion pictures. For example, we haven't the foggiest notion of what Reggie Jackson's grades were in school, nor do we care! However it seems to me that Mrs. Bennett, as candidate for the board of education, should be concerned with attaining quality education and the benefits a well-educated individual receives from having a more interesting and challenging job as well as a greater appreciation of history, literature, etc.

Spring Cleaning?

If you are, the Bethlehem Public Library is now accepting donations of good, clean used books and phonograph records, as well as special interest magazines on such subjects as antiques, sports or hobbies.

The staff first checks donations and often adds items to the library collection. If not added to the collection, items are put into the book sale. A phone call (439-9314) will alert the staff that a donor is bringing books so that the storage area can be opened.
