GLENMONT

Accident site to get signs

The site of a spectacular pileup on Rt. 9W at the new Glenmont Post Office Friday will get a new set of warning signs soon. But beyond that state officials plan to take a wait and see approach.

The spot, just north of Glenmont Rd., is at the bottom of a sharp dip in the busy state highway. Since the post office opened its doors March 30, there have been four accidents.

The crash Friday involved three cars, a van and a large dump truck; there were no serious injuries.

"We looked at that site at the end of May at the request of the state police," William Logan, a traffic engineer with the state Department of Transportation's Division One, said Tuesday. The decision, he said, was to install intersection warning signs with additional post office signs at either end.

"It's marginal," Logan said, because the sight distance is reasonably good.

Privately, police officials say they feel the situation requires more drastic action. The hills make sudden unplanned stops difficult, and the road is heavily traveled by trucks.

But the alternative, a turning lane for north-bound traffic, is "A very expensive proposition. I doubt whether the the state is going to do anything at this time," said one official.

There were no signs at the site Friday prior to the accident, but temporary driveway warning signs were installed immediately after the accident.

Here, as nearly as Bethlehem police could unravel the story, is what happened Friday. At about 11 a.m. an unidentified car traveling north on Rt. 9W stopped in the road to make a left turn into the post office parking lot. Cars driven by Goldie Blodget, of Elm Ave., Selkirk, and Clifford Pinkerton, of Lake Tahoe, Calif., stopped behind the first car.

A van, driven by William F. Prime, of Greenfield Center, attempted to stop behind the other three, but then saw a dump truck looming behind him, attempted to go left, saw another vehicle coming, and swerved back right.

The van was hit by the Callanan Industries dump truck driven by Bruce E. Brate of Feura Bush, upending it over the guardrail. In turn, the truck hit the Pinkerton vehicle, which hit the Blodget vehicle, sending them both into the guard rail.

The truck then lost some of its load, further damaging the two cars, and finally hit the southbound vehicle, driven by Rodney Krzykowski of Ravena.

All the drivers, as well as Pinkerton's wife, were taken to Albany Medical Center, where they were treated and released.

Postmaster elected

Louis J. Picarazzi, postmaster of Selkirk, was recently elected president of the New York Chapter of the National Association of Postmasters of the United States.

Picarazzi has held many positions in the organization, including a four-year term as state secretary treasurer which he has just completed.

The Callanan Industries dump truck at rest after the accident on Rt. 9W. On the cover: The van driven by William Prime of Greenfield Center is pulled from the ditch as wary firefighters hose down escaping gasoline. Spotlight

No strike talks seen at Owens-Corning

There appears to be little light at the end of the tunnel as the strike at Owens-Corning enters its eighth week. There has been virtually no communication between the strikers and the company since a federal mediator met with the two parties in negotiations June 11.

"Nothing has happened since the meeting," said union recording secretary Tony Drexel. "The company came out of it with the same offer it went in with. I guess their first offer was their last."

"We're at a standstill," agreed plant personnel manager Dennis Vereb. By the company's calculations, the union is asking for pay increases which come to 16.9 percent the first year and 35 percent over three years; the workers contend that they want parity with other Owens-Corning plants.

But the strikers have crossed a threshold, since the length of the strike now entitles them to unemployment benefits. "Maybe the fact that the company will have to start paying for those benefits will make a difference," Drexel said. "If not, this could go on until early next year, when the benefits run out."

Up until now, strikers were reimbursed by the union international for walking the picket line. But nearly 150 employees laid off during a December slump and hoping to get back on the job by August were not entitled to union reimbursement, because technically they were unemployed at the time the strike was declared. Their unemployment benefits are running out.

"The possibility of those laid off getting back by August now seems pretty remote. We'll just have to wait and see," said Drexel.

Meanwhile, Fiberglas insulating material production at the plant has been shut down since May 15. The 70 salaried workers still employed are doing a variety of odd jobs around the plant, Vereb said.

CLARKSVILLE

Fuel oil tank leak detected

Fuel oil from a Bethlehem School District storage tank in Clarksville apparently leaked into the well water of a neighboring property about three weeks ago.

District Business Administrator Franz Zwicklbauer said at a special school board meeting Thursday the fuel oil in the tank had been transferred to a tank at Hamagrael School. The in-ground Clarksville tank has been filled with water to weight it, he added.

Early this week, the district was seeking price quotations for repair of the tank. The school board voted to declare an emergency, which allows the district to bypass the bidding process.

Building and Grounds Supervisor Bruce Houghton told board members that the district's fuel oil tanks are "desludged" every five years. Zwicklbauer said the state reimburses districts for testing such tanks only if there is evidence of a leak, not as routine procedure. He added that the cost to test a tank is in the neighborhood of $1,000. The neighboring property owner was not identified.

In other business at the early-morning meeting, the board awarded several contracts. One, in the amount of $76,000, went to A-E Architectural Materials, Inc., of Albany, for window replacement at Elsmere School. A $56,660 roofing contract was awarded to Schuyler Construction Co., Inc., of Ft. Edward.

Bike accident fatal

A Slingerlands youth was killed Tuesday when his bicycle veered into the path of a car on Rt. 85A outside Voorheesville.

Killed was John R. Larabee, 16, of Krumkill Rd., a student at Voorheesville High School. His father, John E. Larabee, is general manager of Capital Newspapers.

According to Albany County Sheriff's deputies, Larabee was riding near Martin Rd. when his bicycle veered into the path of a car driven by James Swahlan, 21, of Rennselaer. No charges were filed against Swahlan.

Antiques stolen

An antique cherry table and wood stove were stolen from a residence on Rt. 144 in Selkirk over the weekend, according to Bethlehem police reports. The owner told police the house is for sale, and had been shown several times recently by a real estate agent. The loss, which also included a chandelier, was estimated at $800.

BC talks in mediation

A Public Employment Relations Board mediator was scheduled this week to enter contract negotiations between the Bethlehem Central School District and the union representing its noninstructional staff.

The three-year contract between the district and the Bethlehem Central United Employees Association expired at the end of June. The union represents about 190 workers, including bus drivers and clerical workers.

BCUEA President Charles J. Preska and district Business Administrator Franz Zwicklbauer have been negotiating.

New Oakview plan follows the hills

It's prime land—wooded, rolling hills with lovely views, but close to services and the city. Why isn't the area between Hudson Ave. and the Normanskill developed?

That question came up again last week when the new owner of one of the largest parcels of land in the area, Oakview subdivision, asked the Bethlehem Town Board to consider a Planned Residential District (PRD) zoning.

Oakview fronts on McCormack Rd. and extends back to the Oakbrook subdivision, which extends east nearly as far as Gardner Ter. and North St. On the other side of the Cherry Ave. Extension is the Lafayette-Edison development, 44 acres which extends to New Scotland Rd. on the west and the Normanskill on the north.

Lafayette-Edison was rezoned to PRD status in 1970 and 1973. Oakbrook got PRD status in the late 1970s. Nothing has happened with either development since then.

Now, developer Norman Burtman has—reluctantly—decided to go the PRD route on Oakview. "This has been in process for two years," said Lindsay M. Boutelle, the civil engineer and surveyor who made the presentation to the board last Wednesday.

The immediate problem for Oakview is the terrain. "It's a heavily wooded, beautiful piece of property," said Boutelle, but so steep that in order to develop it as a conventional subdivision, "we would practically have to annihilate everything."

The original environmental impact statement for the property, now zoned A-Residential, shows 70 percent of the land being cleared and leveled. In addition, there is a wetlands, an owl roost and several sites of historical significance.

The solution Boutelle presented involves winding roads following the ridges, with 168 units of single-family housing (probably attached dwellings) along an east-west road, and 132 units of apartments on a second road extending north toward the Normanskill. Herick's Pond would be preserved, and the 25 acres to the south (with the marsh land) would be left mostly undeveloped.

The proposal faces a long and probably arduous path as it is examined first by the planning board and then subjected to public hearings by the town board.

Burtman made his request for PRD status only after both boards indicated they wanted no part of a proposal to use a section of the zoning code which permits "cluster" developments. The PRD ordinance requires that density be figured on the basis of "usable" land; exactly how that will be applied in this case remains to be seen.

(OUR PRICES SUBJECT TO CHANGE)

Density may also be an issue for the Slingerlands Homeowners Association, which has in the past viewed this area as part of its territory and has carefully monitored proposals which would change the character of the area.

Boutelle said Burtman, who did not attend the meeting Wednesday, also has a contract to purchase the Oakbrook area, where the current PRD plan calls for 360 units. When that land was rezoned, it was residents of the Hudson Ave.-Gardner Ter. area who objected and won an agreement that there would be no through roads to their area.

However, as Boutelle noted Wednesday, fire officials from both Delmar and Slingerlands are exerting "pressure" to change that agreement, reasoning that a connection to Hudson Ave. is vital to the safety of the area.

The other major factor in the development of the area is sewers. The new sewer extension will run along New Scotland Ave., which will finally make the Lafayette-Edison property developable, and will finally make Oakview and Oakbrook feasible. That line, however, won't be completed until next year at the earliest.

So town officials see no great rush in approving Burtman's plans. "There's no building going on now to speak of," noted Supervisor Tom Corrigan. "They're laying all the groundwork."

SPOTLIGHT PROFILE

New library director likes what he sees

John S. Hodges is a new-comer to Bethlehem, and he couldn't be happier with one piece of friendly advice he's been getting from people who aren't aware of what he does: "Go to the library," they say. "We have a wonderful library here."

Hodges, a tall, soft-spoken native of North Carolina, is the library's new director. Not surprisingly, his first impressions are all good.

"It's beautiful," he says of the town. Bethlehem seems to have "a sense of community pride—and responsibility." Hodges said he has the impression townspeople

"would not tolerate a job poorly done."

As for library, he says "I've never seen such a dedicated staff." The 55 staff members "know their jobs, and they put in extra hours. The library is a fun place to work. It's diversified work, and people are diversified."

At the moment, data processors on the library staff are busy entering each of the library's 100,000 items into a computerized data base at the Albany Public Library so that an automated checkout system can be inaugurated this fall. Each item will carry a bar code similar to the Universal Product Code (seen increasingly in stores), which will be scanned by a laser "reading" machine at the checkout desk, Hodges explained. When and with whom the book left the library will then be logged into the system, which will maintain records and produce overdue notices when needed.

Hodges came here from Wrentham, Mass., where the library was undergoing a budget cutback of nearly one third because of Proposition 2½, which severely limits taxing powers in the Bay State.

Given the resounding endorsement of the Bethlehem Library budget at the polls in May, Hodges said he does not anticipate any cutback here.

About 90 percent of the library's $730,000 budget comes from school district funds. In addition, he noted, the library has been successful in obtaining federal and state grant money, and he expects this to continue—"success feeds success."

For the future, Hodges sees the library moving increasingly into audio-visual materials, and making greater use of automation, perhaps coupled with home computers. He also anticipates that the library will be involved in programming for local television.

Asked his opinion about television's influence on readership, Hodges said, "I'm not going to condemn a cathode ray tube.

"TV is not being utilized the way it could and should be utilized. But I don't feel I should condemn information sources.

"Hopefully, we'll never come to the point where it's

are in the infancy of air waves; we haven't imagined all we can do.

For the moment, though, Hodges stressed: "I'm available to the community. Anybody can come any time with problems, suggestions..."

Those who know the library, however, know it will be tough to improve the product.

Workshop offers summer learning

The Heldeberg Workshop is accepting registration for its summer classes in folk art, science, theater, art and high adventure. More than 30 outdoor classes will be offered on the workshop's 270 acres on Picard Road, Voorheesville, at the foot of the Helderberg escarpment.

This year the two 2-week sessions are from July 20 to July 31 and from August 3 to August 13. Classes are offered for all ages, from grade one to adult, and bus stops are located throughout the Capital District. For more information call Robin Freyer at 765-2555.

The workshop was designed to provide a summer program that would spark a child's interest in learning — a program that would offer courses not found in the regular school curriculum. The program has expanded over the years to include year-round activities and classes.

Classes this year include discoverland and warm fuz-zies, creepy crawlies and other fun creatures for the younger set. For the older adventurer there is wilderness survival, spelunking, speleology, archery and gone fishin'.

The Folk Arts Department is offering outdoor cooking, go fly a kite, log building, music, life with an Iroquois family and folk arts sampler.

Budding artists can choose from kaleidoscope of art, studios in weaving, calligraphy, printmaking, painting and pottery, woodlands writing workshop, more than just statues, Navajo loom building and weaving, and learning to design things.

Potpourri of theater, acting it outdoors, and the theater that nature built are offered by the Theater Department.

Young scientists can choose from rocks and fossils, living creatures in the wild, adventures in wildlife, tracks and trackers, insect worlds and archeology.

Wins design contest

Designer Pamela Lewis of Delmar has been awarded first place in the 1981 National Student Box Competition, sponsored by the National Paper Box and Packaging Association. The prize includes a $500 cash award.

Lewis participated in the competition as a senior communication design student at Rochester Institute of Technology (RIT). Her design of a Widmer wine gift box, based on her theme "Our Special Wine for Your Special Time," won in the regional Empire Division Design School Competition in March, which qualified her for entry in the national contest.

Her idea for a wine gift box included two glasses and two bottles of wine. "I staged a scene with bottles of wine and the free gift glasses to create an enjoyable atmosphere the consumer would appreciate," she says of the color photography she added to her packaging concept.

A Dean's List student, Lewis has had her work selected for two student honors shows at RIT's Bevier Gallery. Since her May graduation, she has been head graphics assistant at RIT.

Five more areas are being proposed for rezoning in Bethlehem's massive revision of its zoning code and map. The areas are now B-Residential, the only residential zone left in the code which permits apartments of more than four units. The maps (prepared from maps supplied by town planning consultant Edward Kleinke) show (above) a section of Delmar off Hudson Ave. and two adjacent areas along the Normanskill between Delaware and Kenwood Aves. At right top, a new A zone proposed for the area on Cherry Ave. near Kenwood Ave. in Delmar, and at bottom Aspron Rd. in Glenmont. The new AB zone allows apartments of four units or less, and the A zone allows only single-family and duplex housing. The changes, proposed by the planning commission, will be the subject of a public hearing by the town board at 7:30 p.m. July 29.

Let's be realistic...

Millions of questionable watches are sold every year by non-jewelers and no one wants to service them.

You can't expect your favorite jeweler to be thrilled when you bring in one of those so-called "old famous names," watches to be repaired, or one of those brands no one ever heard of.

A reputable jeweler doesn't handle that kind of product (Or stock batteries for all those cheap digitals of unknown make). There are 74 different model batteries.

So, unless you don't mind sending your "bargain" watch back to Hong Kong or wherever for services you'll usually find it wasn't such a bargain after all. It's much wiser and much more practical to buy your watch from a reputable jeweler. You'll always receive better value and you'll always be assured of proper service.

Delmar Printers has new owner

Delmar Printers has changed hands, and the new owner Tom Thorsen says he intends to keep it a family-type operation. Thorsen and his wife Linda purchased the business at 121 Adams St. June 1.

"What we liked about the business is it seemed to be a very friendly atmosphere," said Thorsen. "We're going to try and continue on the basis of satisfying customers."

Thorsen, an Albany native, spent 18 years with Addressograph-Multigraph (now AM International) in sales and merchandising, and he said he plans to use his sales experience to help his new company grow.

Delmar Printers does just about any kind of printing, Thorsen said. "One area I like is assisting someone to go from an idea to a design."

Jays pitching wing clipped by injuries

With the entire pitching staff absent, the Delmar Blue Jays took a 15-9 drubbing from the St. Johnsville Saints in a July 9 night game.

Both teams had 11 hits, but the Jays let 13 runs cross the plate in the fourth. After that, sore-armed right fielder Neil Stickles shut out the Saints for the final three innings.

The Jays offense went down swinging in the losing cause. Stickles had a field day with two singles and a solo home run. Mickey Brantley found the time ripe for a bases loaded triple as well as a single, while Ward Phalen had a double and a single and Ken Gall drove in two runs with a single.

Nevertheless, the near future of the Delmar team looks rather bleak. The Jays face their next 19 games with a weakened pitching staff. Jim Conde has a broken arm, and John McKay a torn ligament. Job conflicts will allow John MacDonald and Kevin George to be available only sporadically. John Rigos was forced to leave the team due to travel problems, and Greg Brown will not be able to attend every Jays game. Only Rick Lombardo is left on the pitching staff and he is just coming off the disabled list.

To supplement this one-man staff, the Blue Jays hope to press Mont Pleasant's Jeff Ronella into a pitching rotation with the two Jay outfielders who improvise as pitchers, Ward Phalen and Stickles, who has a remarkable 3-0 .058 ERA record.

Despite these problems, the Blue Jays mounted a 14-hit attack to trounce the Half-moon Tigers 12-1 Sunday. Stickles had a solo homer, while Ken Gall went four for four including a double. Catcher Tony Curro played spectacular ball behind as well as at the plate.

And the pitching held up well. Lombardo allowed only three hits in three innings. Stickles relieved him with scoreless ball in the last four innings, allowing only 5 hits.

The Blue Jays next game will be on Friday at 6 p.m. in Central Park against Villa's.

SWIMMING

Ten Dolphins going to Games

The waves in Clifton Park's pool had just begun to subside after the July 4 Firecracker Meet when they were roiled again as the area's best swimmers suited up and returned to do battle in the Empire State Games Trial Meet.

After the two days of elimination races last weekend, 10 Delmar Dolphins found that they had won themselves tickets to compete in the Empire State Games, the "Olympics" of this state.

At the games, to be held Aug. 12 through 16 in Syracuse, the swimmers will compete in two divisions—open and scholastic—based on their age. Scholastic athletes are those age 15 and under.

In the scholastic girls group, Janet Shaffer came away with the most honors by qualifying in the 50, 100 and 200 meter freestyle races. Becky Friedlander will be going to Syracuse to compete in the 200 meter butterfly.

Sue Mallery, a Delmar 12-year-old swimming for the SUNYA swim team, also qualified for the girls scholastic group in the 100 and 200 meter butterfly and the 200 meter backstroke.

The male Dolphins far outdid their female counterparts in the scholastic division. Doug Schulz led the boys by qualifying in the 400 meter freestyle, and the 200 and 400 meter IMS. Matt Holland will be competing against fellow Dolphin Schulz in the 200 meter IM. Dave Young will be making his bid for a win in the 200 freestyle, while Scott Apicelli will be racing in the 200 breaststroke. Eric Patrick is travelling to Syracuse to swim in the 1,500 meter freestyle.

Three Dolphins qualified to compete in the open division of the games. Donna Schulz qualified in the 200 meter backstroke, 100 butterfly, and 100 backstroke. Jay Henahan will be competing in the 400 and 1,500 meter freestyle races, as well as in the 400 IM. Steve Bonawitz rounds out the trio by qualifying for the 200 meter backstroke, 100 butterfly and 100 backstroke.

Guest minister

Rev. Byron Whipple, pastor of the Brentwood Congregational Church, St. Louis, Mo., and father of local swim coach Jack Whipple, will be guest minister Sunday at the Delmar Presbyterian Church.

The 9:30 a.m. special service and sermon will be on the theme, "The Hills are Alive," the result of a recent visit to Lake Charles, Fort William Henry and Fort Ticonderoga by Rev. and Mrs. Whipple.

Carnival continues

The Onesquethaw Volunteer Fire Co. Carnival continues this weekend at the Unionville Fire House. Blessed with perfect weather last weekend the firemen and ladies enjoyed the largest crowds in the history of the carnival.

The event opens this Friday at 7 p.m. featuring Skip Parsons' Riverboat Jazz Band. They will be playing on the green between the fire house and the games.

Games featured this year include tic tac toe, roll down, darts, cork guns, bottle stand up, pepsie ring toss, glass pitch, fish bowls and many others. There are five kiddie rides to keep the little ones happy.

On Saturday from 4 to 8 p.m. a chicken barbecue will be served with all the extras. Take out orders are accepted.

Man and nature

The human environment and its relationships with the natural world will be the subject of a guided public walk given at Five Rivers Environmental Education Center, Delmar, Tuesday, July 21, at 7 p.m.

During a one and one-half hour walk on the center grounds, educators will point out the man-made additions to the former game farm, and show how these and other leavings have provided plants and animals with unique opportunities to adapt to new surroundings.

Mrs. Hemstead Y head

Elizabeth Hemstead of Slingerlands was recently elected president of the board of directors of the Albany YWCA, 28 Colvin Avenue. Mrs. Hemstead, a board of directors member for several years, has served in a variety of positions on the executive board and recently completed a term as vice-president in charge of program planning.

On the Cover

Bethlehem's farmers got a warm, enthusiastic welcome when they returned last week for another year of the Friday morning markets at the St. Thomas Church parking lot near the Four Corners. Here Dodie and John Hillman, at the right of the picture, dispense their home-grown produce.

Editor's View

Occasional comments by the editors of The Spotlight.

Even the most casual observer would have to conclude that most people don't know how to ride a bicycle.

Sure, they can stay upright without training wheels and steer a reasonably straight course. What they can't (or won't) do—despite heroic efforts by such organizations as the Bethlehem Police Youth Bureau—is follow the simple rules of the road which can mean the difference between getting there safely and a serious accident.

As a reminder, here is a summary of local laws regarding bicycles. Most of these laws simply reflect good, commonsense rules that all bicycle riders follow instinctively.

- Ride with the traffic. The law says that bicycle riders have "all the rights and shall be subject to all the duties" of automobile drivers. That includes proper hand signals when turning, and making turns from the proper lane of traffic. (Experienced riders learn that their greatest safety comes in acting in a predictable manner, so that drivers know what to expect of them.)

- Ride to the right. The law says that where there is no bicycle lane or path, riders should stay as far to the right "as practicable," using the shoulder if that is possible. Riding two abreast is permitted only if sufficient space is available and if the bicyclist is not passing another vehicle or being overtaken by a vehicle. Where there is a usable path or bicycle lane, use it.

- Don't catch rides from other vehicles.

- Don't ride more than one person on a bike (except a tandem).

- Don't carry articles which make it hard to steer.

- Use proper lights and reflectors when riding one half hour after sunset to one half hour before sunrise.

Wear light-colored clothing or reflective clothing when riding after dark. TMcP
