NEW SCOTLAND

Stabbing, neighbors' protests mar orderly rock party

Several residents of Spore Rd. and Orchard Hill Rd. were rounding up neighbors to lodge a protest with the New Scotland town board for issuing a permit for Sunday's 11-hour, 10-band rock music festival at Murray-Jennex Sunset Park.

Neighbors complained the loud music, amplified by electronics, could be heard up to a mile away as late as 11 p.m. They planned an appearance at this week's (Wednesday) board session.

Meanwhile, state police investigators were busy Tuesday trying to sort out the facts behind a stabbing at the concert which left a Schenectady man in serious condition at Albany Medical Center Hospital.

Investigator James Dolan of the state police bureau of criminal investigation said Keith Snare, 21, of Schenectady, was admitted to the hospital Monday afternoon. Unconfirmed reports from the concert were that the stabbing incident took place about 8 p.m., and that the victim was taken away in a van by one of the security guards hired by the Hulla-Baloo Club of Rensselaer, which cosponsored the event with radio station WPYX.

Investigator Dolan confirmed that he was checking the same reports and planned to talk to concert organizers Tuesday.

However, the incident went largely unnoticed at the concert, where a crowd of approximately 2,000, by WPYX's tally, was generally well behaved. And the sponsors claimed to know nothing about it.

"We had one minor skirmish that lasted about 15 seconds," said Rick Van Zandt, promotion director for WPYX. Ron Lasek, president of Hulla-Baloo Music Club, told reporters Monday and Tuesday morning he knew of no incident. But later Tuesday he said he had checked the first aid station log and found Snare's name there. After being treated for a cut, "the kid refused medical care and went back to the party," Lasek said.

Lasek vehemently denied that one of his security guards took Snare away from the party. "That, I promise you, is a rumor. This thing is being made out to be a cover-up," he said.

The affair was well-organized, with red-shirted "security" staffers sprinkled copiously throughout the park grounds. Food and beverages were readily available, and participants played volleyball, threw Frisbees, listened to the music—live and continuous on two stages—stretched out on a blanket or towel in front of the outdoor stage, or sat at a picnic table on the lawn or in the pavillion, where the indoor stage was situated. There were ample health and parking facilities.

Carloads of picnickers were stopped at the entrance gate where proof of age was required and the appropriate hospital-type wristbands were snapped on—blue for minors, orange for those who could legally drink alcohol. These did not prove to be as fool-proof as promoters had hoped, however: with a coin or pocket knife the orange bands were transferred to those who shouldn't have been wearing them.

Sheriff's deputies said they received only one call—a complaint about noise—and two crews, a regular and a standby team who reported to the Onesquethaw Fire Dept.

Rescue Squad vehicle at the Clarksville firehouse did not receive a call.

Bethlehem police did have a reception committee waiting for returning festivalgoers who ventured home through the town.

But a Bethlehem police spokesman said the 68 traffic arrests on Sunday "was not a significant number based on the increased volume of traffic." He said some of the drivers arrested wore the plastic wristbands issued at the concert, but many others had not been to the event.

The spokesman said that the number of DWI arrests — three — and drug arrests — five — also was "not unusual considering the traffic volume" on a summer Sunday.

Most of the arrests, however, were made on Delaware Ave. and New Scotland Rd., two of the main highways serving the Sunset Park area.

The session marked the first test of New Scotland's new public-assembly law, which went into effect earlier this year.

Brothers arrested

Two brothers, 14 and 15, were arrested by Bethlehem police last week when they were found in possession of a moped stolen from a garage on Parkwyn Circle. The pair, who claimed they found the moped in the bushes near the Bethlehem Central High School, were released in the custody of their parents.

On the same day, a 16-year-old boy was arrested at Delaware Plaza after Officer Theodore Wilson spotted him with a bicycle he believed was stolen. The boy's parents were called in and the bicycle impounded.

Teacher pension tax rate stands

Property owners in New York's 760-odd school districts will pay the same payroll assessment rate in 1982-83 for teachers retirement as in the current school budget year.

The New York State Teachers Retirement System's board set the rate of employer contributions at 23.49 per cent of salaries at their regular quarterly meeting in Albany last Thursday. The board reduced the "normal" assessment from 22.57 per cent to 22.29 per cent while raising the "supplemental" rate from 0.92 to 1.20 per cent, which leaves the totals for each of the two years the same.

The Legislature permits the nine-member board to assess school districts for mandatory contributions to the multi-billion-dollar NYSTRS fund for teachers' pensions.

Last week's action was good news for school administrators and school board members charged with the annual chore of getting a steadily rising school budget approved by district voters. The pension assessment is a major item in the budget: Bethlehem taxpayers paid $1,175,935 last year and are budgeted for $1,273,000 this year. The Voorheesville budget allocation for the current year is $450,000 for teacher pensions, up from $411,000 in the school year ending last June 30.

Board members attributed the action in maintaining the current payroll assessment rate to an "extremely satisfactory" jump in earnings from investments. Net investment income leaped 37.4 per cent, from $456.0 million in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1980, to $626.7 million in the 12 months ending June 30 this year.

The $626.7 million from the system's $7.2-billion portfolio of stocks, bonds, mortgages and other investments was more than enough to cover the system's total cost for fiscal 1981, which rose only 9.9 per cent to $421.2 million. That figure includes all pensions, death payments and other benefits paid the system's approximately 45,000 retired members.

The system's investment performance less the total costs of member service and administrative expenses left a surplus on June 30 of $205.5 million, compared to $72.9 million for the previous fiscal year. This gain, representing a jump of 181.9 per cent, is attributed to the steady increase in yields from bonds, equities and money market funds, and the retirement system's adding fiscal 1980's surplus of $710.7 million to its investment portfolio.

Most of that surplus came from the assessment on New York State taxpayers, which in fiscal 1980 amounted to $620.4 million. In the fiscal year just ended, employer contributions, i.e., taxpayer assessment, rose to $683.4 million, which accounted for 51.4 per cent of the system's 1981 total revenues of $1.33 billion. The system's total surplus for fiscal 1981 reached a record peak of $907.4 million, up 27.7 per cent from the previous year's $710.7 million surplus.

NYSTRS assets rose to a record $8.7 billion, based on book value as of June 30, from the $7.8 billion for the comparable date a year ago.

Push 15, breathe 2

There's no good excuse for not learning how to save a life.

That may be true, but for a lot of people the bother of taking a course in CPR—cardiopulmonary resuscitation—has been just a bit more than they wanted to deal with. And the idea of learning how to start somebody's heart or lungs working again is, after all, a bit daunting.

But next week learning CPR will be as easy as switching on the television and then dropping by Bethlehem Town Hall for a quick round of personalized instruction and a test. All you have to remember, says Harry Metchick, is "push 15, breathe two."

Metchick is organizing the CPR teaching day Saturday, Aug. 15, in Bethlehem, which is one of a number of Capital District communities participating in the program. From 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Bethlehem Town Hall, volunteers will be ready to give CPR instruction to as many as 800 people.

All that is needed, he says, is about five minutes to register, another 20 minutes or so to learn the skill, and then a few minutes to take a simple written test.

"Take the test and walk out qualified," says Metchick.

The half-hour television program, "Five Minutes to Live," produced by the American Red Cross, will appear at 9:30 a.m. next Monday through Friday on Channel 6. The Red Cross booklet, "CPR: Race for Life", will be available Saturday at the town hall.

The course covers mouth to mouth breathing and one-rescuer cardiopulmonary resuscitation, as well as basic rules on how to handle an emergency situation. The 15 pushes and two breaths? That's the sequence for reviving a victim whose heart has stopped and who has stopped breathing.

Concert at the park

There will be a summer band concert at 8 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 13, at Bethlehem's Elm Avenue Park.

The concert will be held at the park's amphitheater, just outside the pool complex building. Admission is free. Performers are enrolled in the town's summer band program.

BETHLEHEM

Conservative primary likely

Divining the shape of an election from a Conservative Party endorsement may be something like telling fortunes from tea leaves, but the party's Bethlehem endorsements make for interesting speculation.

At the very least, the party's 55 enrolled members will provide the first test of strength this year between the two major parties in the town. The Bethlehem Republicans have announced that they will again seek a primary for the two town council seats the Conservatives have denied them.

The Albany County Conservative Party in a decision seemingly designed to please everybody, last week announced that it had endorsed Supervisor Tom Corrigan, Town Justice Roger Fritts, Town Clerk Marion Camp and Highway Superintendent Martin Cross. All are Republican incumbents.

But the committee also endorsed Democrat Joseph J. Feller of Elsmere for one of the two town council seats up this year, and made no endorsement at all for the other seat. The two Republican incumbents, Edward Mocker and John Geurtze, are both seeking reelection.

With the exception of a flyer mailed to all Bethlehem households late last month, the Bethlehem Democrats have been remarkably quiet this summer. While the Republicans announced their slate weeks ago — all incumbents seeking reelection — the Democrats have produced no names at all. Party Chairman Michael Breslin said two weeks ago that his committee had been holding meetings but didn't know when it would designate candidates. Monday he said he expects to have a slate "in the next two weeks."

Inevitably, Republicans have speculated that the Democrats are having trouble putting together a slate.

Feller, who was an unsuccessful candidate for town council in 1979, is the first name to surface for the Democrats. Conservative Party Chairman James Mantor of Coeymans confirmed Saturday that the Democrats had presented four names to his committee, but refused to name the three non-endorsed candidates.

Breslin said the four are "people who expressed an interest...I didn't really give him the names. They went to him directly."

Breslin did confirm that Feller is likely to be one of the two Democratic council candidates. And he contended that the Democrats will field strong candidates not just for the council race but also for Supervisor, where Corrigan is regarded as very strong.

"I'm convinced that this year we're going to take a couple (of seats)," he said. "I think they've gone too far this year." Breslin's flyer outlines the issues the Democrats hope to exploit this year — property tax increases, assessments, garbage collection, the Fish "police scandal" and zoning — and Breslin said he already has about 45 responses.

The Democrats, who have never won an election in Bethlehem, face a 7,666 to 2,617 enrollment deficit (1980 figures). In the 1979 council race, Feller got 3,803 votes to 6,599 for Ruth Bickel and 6,051 for W. Scott Prothero.

Despite its tiny enrollment, the Conservative line is apparently worth fighting for. In 1979, Republican candidates captured the extra line in a primary and pulled nearly 300 votes each. And Democrats reason their candidates would benefit even more because the line allows dyed-in-the-wool Republicans to vote for a Democratic candidate without voting on that party's line.

The Right To Life Party, which has exerted a surprising influence in the last several state-wide elections, fielded only one local candidate in Bethlehem in 1979. The Liberal party had none.

In Albany County, the Conservatives have for many years been closely allied with the Albany Democratic Party, a fact which Mantor readily acknowledges. "Personally, I know of no one who is more conservative than Corning," he said. Albany Mayor Erasmus Corning and his entire slate were endorsed by the Conservatives, as usual.

In Bethlehem, political leaders on both sides of the fence claim privately that the opposition has "slated" their own people by having them enroll Conservative. But both sides admit they can't prove it.

Mantor dismisses the whole notion, and says his rival for the chairmanship of the party, Anthony Rudmann, has no political base. While Mantor denied that the purpose of the split endorsements in Bethlehem was to "keep everybody happy," he said that "pragmatically" the party is trying to avoid being placed in the middle of controversial situations. This is the reason for avoiding Guilderland altogether, he said.

Technically, the Republicans will be seeking an "opportunity to ballot," which means that enrolled Conservatives would be able to cast their ballot for any candidate in the September primary. The Republicans did this two years ago, and succeeded in capturing the entire Conservative line for their candidates.

Town Republican Chairman Bernard Kaplowitz said the primary will "prove that rank and file Conservatives are 100 percent behind the GOP." Feller, he said, "should be carefully examined by the enrolled Conservatives on his vote-getting weakness."

"It's about time that someone broke the Democrats' strangle-hold on the Albany County Conservative Party," Kaplowitz said.

BETHLEHEM

5 areas rezoned; no cheers, no fuss

Supposing they rezoned large chunks of the town and nobody cared?

That's not quite what happened in Bethlehem last week, but close enough to cause a bit of consternation among town officials. At a public hearing on the rezoning of five areas from B-Residential to A and AB, nobody showed up to speak for or against the changes. After a brief discussion on the merits of the proposals, the town board unanimously adopted the changes.

"If you believe in lower density, then you would want the AB as opposed to the B," explained Planning Board Chairman Edward Sargent. The B zone is the only residential zone left in the town's code which permits apartments of more than four units; the new AB zone which allows four units or less, is being phased in to replace it.

The areas involved are large, but because of existing building and topographical features none of them are in much danger of new development. A section of Cherry Ave. between Huron Rd. and Oak Rd. is being changed from B to A (which permits only single and two-family houses). The four areas being changed to AB are off Hudson Ave., from Delaware Plaza to the Normanskill along the railroad tracks, then from the railroad tracks down to Kenwood Ave., and on Asprion Rd. in Glenmont.

A map of the five areas was published in the July 16 edition of The Spotlight.

Sargent said he and the town's planning and building staff had received several calls about the rezonings. The fact that questions were answered in advance "may be one reason why there aren't more people here," he said.

The B rezonings represent the final phase of planning board's major revisions of the town zoning code and map. The changes shift the burden of overseeing most major developments from the board of appeals to the planning board, which now has site plan review powers, and creates the new AB zone. Two areas of town, the Kenaware Ave. area in Delmar and the Feura Bush Rd. area in Glenmont, were studied in depth and rezoned using the new AB zone.

The only loose end remaining is on the north side of Delaware Ave. between the Christian Science Church and Borthwick Ave. The planning board had proposed making the area an AB zone, but the town board, bowing to protests from home owners, sent it back for more study. The planning board then recommended no change, and two weeks ago the town board tabled that recommendation.

On Wednesday, Tim O'Brien, one of the leaders of the petition drive in the area, asked the town board for a more definite decision. He said neighbors don't object to the planning board's latest recommendation, since the existing A zone will limit development to two-family units, but want certainty.

Town Supervisor Tom Corrigan said he would ask the board for a formal vote at its next meeting, Aug. 12.

Cherry Hill gets grant

Historic Cherry Hill has received a $24,000 grant from the National Endowment of the Humanities.

A nonprofit educational corporation, Historic Cherry Hill was chartered in 1964 to preserve the property known as Cherry Hill, home of the first supervisor of Bethlehem. The Van Rensselaer home built in 1787 containing family collections is a museum located at 523½ South Pearl Street.

The grant will be used for research and planning of an exhibit to be held at the Albany Institute of History and Art in late fall of 1982. The exhibit will emphasize the historical and cultural significance of dress and household fabrics of the Van Rensselaer/Rankin family, inhabitants of Cherry Hill from the eighteenth century until 1963.

Using the clothing and textiles left by the family, Cornelia H. Frisbee Houde, project director of the museum, is determining major themes of the exhibit and is selecting objects for display.

Tax maps available at town library

Need to settle a boundary dispute with a neighbor? Find out who owns that vacant lot up the street? There are a lot of reasons for looking at property lines, including simple curiosity, and now there is an easy, convenient way to do it in Bethlehem.

The Bethlehem Public Library has a set of the tax maps completed this spring as part of the town's eventual property tax reevaluation program. The maps, prepared by the Albany engineering firm of Smith and Mahoney, give the boundaries of every parcel of land in the town and are cross indexed by the owner's name.

The maps are used by Town Assessor Gilbert Houk and by the town's engineering personnel. The third set was purchased by the town and donated to the library, according to Supervisor Tom Corrigan.

"We've had people who want to come in and look at them, and Gil was just getting swamped," he explained.

Under the new system, each parcel of land has its own number, and when ownership changes or land is subdivided that information is posted by Albany County and relayed to the town. Eventually,

Death creates ballot vacancy

New Scotland Republicans have until Friday, Aug. 7, to nominate a town council candidate to replace George P. Hotaling of Voorheesville, who died last Wednesday (July 30) six days after being stricken with a heart attack at his home. He was 71.

Hotaling, a popular civic leader in the village and town for nearly half a century, was six months short of completing a four-year term on the New Scotland town board, and in May had been nominated by the Republican committee for a new term in the November municipal elections. In the 1977 elections, Hotaling received the highest vote total in a four-way contest for two council seats, and had been expected to do the same this year.

His sudden passing creates a political problem as well as a deep personal loss for New Scotland GOP leaders, who face a major challenge in holding onto a 3-2 margin on the town board.

The Republicans' committee on vacancies was expected to be called to a meeting by Frederick Edmunds, town GOP chairman, before the Friday deadline this week, but at presstime no date for the session had been set. The committee is composed of two town committeemen, Anne Carson and William Childs, and Edmunds himself. There was no indication as to who the committee would pick to make the run with John Graziano of New Scotland, who was nominated at the May session for the second seat. The nominee also would finish Hotaling's term, which expires Dec. 31.

Town and village officials paid warm tributes to Hotaling at a funeral service Saturday at the First United Methodist Church, Voorheesville. In his 20 years as village superintendant of public works, he was the driving force behind the development of village parks in the rear of the village hall and on Maple Ave. The latter park, known as Evergreen Park and containing Hotaling Park in his honor two years ago.

Long before his retirement as superintendant in 1968, Hotaling was the guiding spirit in several local youth programs. An enthusiastic sports fan, he headed the village's summer baseball program and rarely missed a home game or an important "away" game of the Voorheesville High School football and basketball teams. He served as manager of the Voorheesville Youth Canteen for 17 years and was a Boy Scout leader. Last year sports fans and youth organizations "roasted" Hotaling at a fund-raising dinner at the American Legion hall. He also was the recipient of New Scotland's Citizen of the Year award in 1975.

A Navy veteran of World War II, Hotaling was one of the founders of the Legion post in Voorheesville. He was a longtime member of the village fire department, serving as its first assistant chief for 15 years, and was the first captain of the Voorheesville Ambulance Service. He was a past president of the Kiwanis Club of New Scotland, and a member of a number of other local civic and sports organizations.

He leaves his wife, the former Edith Warren DeWitt of Voorheesville; three sons, George Hotaling of Jefferson, Schoharie County; William F. Hotaling of Voorheesville, presently village superintendant of public works and like his father active in sports and youth works, and James W. Hotaling of Syracuse; three daughters, Hazel Kurkowski of Oneonta, Edith Zeh of Voorheesville and Bonnie Mosier of Delaware, two sisters and 18 grandchildren.

Accident on Rt. 85A

Five Voorheesville residents were injured and the driver arrested in a single-car accident Sunday on Rt. 85A near Picard Rd. in New Scotland, according to Albany County Sheriff's deputies.

The driver of the vehicle, Ross Matott, 18, of Voorheesville Ave., and Cathy Hitt, 16, were listed in fair condition Monday at Albany Medical Center Hospital. Deputies said Matott, who apparently tried to negotiate a curve too fast while returning from an outing at Warner Lake, was arrested for driving while intoxicated.

Passengers Judy Koch, 15, Kyle Koch, 12, and Sheila Matott, 18, were treated at Albany Medical Center and released.

Democrats pass supervisor bid

New Scotland Democrats will permit Town Supervisor Steve Wallace to run unopposed for reelection this fall.

Thomas F. Dolin of Voorheesville, an Albany attorney and town Democratic chairman, said this week there would be no nomination for the post on the November ballot. "We want to run only qualified candidates," he said, "and we don't have one for town supervisor this year."

This will be the second time in the three most recent local elections that New Scotland Democrats have not put up a challenge to Wallace. There was no candidate in 1977, and in 1979 Fred Carl, a widely known New Salem auto dealer and fire chief, was a token candidate.

"They (the Republicans) make a big thing out of this being a full-time job," Dolin declared. "We don't agree, but it is still difficult to find a strong candidate willing to give the time and effort, particularly if it means giving up his present job."

Dolin said his party leaders would concentrate on the contests for two seats on the town board, where Republicans have held a 3-2 advantage for most of the last decade.

In an unrelated political development last week, Albany County's Conservative Party leadership filed papers endorsing four Republicans and three Democrats in the seven contests on the New Scotland ballot on Nov. 3. Republican candidates are Wallace, Corrine Cossac for town clerk, Peter Van Zetten for highway superintendent and Edita Probst for tax collector. Democrats getting the Conservative nod are Robert T. Mudge and incumbent Herbert W. Reilly, Jr. for town council, and Alan Joseph for town justice.

Bethlehem water sale rates set

The Bethlehem Town Board has agreed to sell water to the proposed Feura Bush water district for the same rate now charged to other customers outside the town. The project recently cleared a major hurdle when Albany agreed to supply the extra water through the Bethlehem system.

Bethlehem's rates for out-of-town customers are $1.20 per 100 cubic feet for the first 6,000 cubic feet, $1 per 100 cubic feet for everything over 18,000 cubic feet.

Bethlehem Town Supervisor Tom Corrigan said Friday, following a closed "executive session" of the board, that other matters still remain to be negotiated with New Scotland town officials. And, he noted, the project faces "a lot of paperwork" before it becomes a reality.

New Scotland has hired an engineering firm to prepare an application for federal funding which would enable the town to float a $500,000 bond issue at a 5 percent interest rate. Property owners in the new district would be assessed to repay the bonds and would also pay metered rates for consumption. The new district would tap into the Bethlehem system near the town line at Feura Bush.

On the cover:

Peter Van Zetten, New Scotland's highway superintendent, takes on a new identity for the 39th annual Punkintown Fair last weekend. The fair at New Salem has a second weekend of games, rides and food scheduled coming up Friday starting at 7 p.m. and Saturday at 6:30 p.m.

Oakbrook revived

The proposed Oakview development will shortly be brought back to life after a short stay in limbo according to Lindsay Boutelle, engineering consultant for the project. Boutelle had asked the Town Planning Board to suspend indefinitely its studies concerning the site east of the Cherry Ave. extension after the death of Norman Burtman, developer of the project. But he said Friday, Mrs. Burtman is ready to take up where her husband left off.

"We had a meeting with Mrs. Burtman and she apparently had been working very closely with her husband," Boutelle said. "It only took two hours to bring her up to date. I'll be asking the planning board to resume its studies at its next meeting."

Boutelle said Mrs. Burtman was pleased that so little time had been lost.

Picnic for seniors

The Bethlehem Lions Club has set Thursday, Aug 13, as the date for its annual Cliff VanDyke Memorial Senior Citizens Picnic. Festivities begin at 12:30 p.m. at the Bethlehem Town Park on Elm Ave.

French student 'loves New York'

Sylvie Gallochat, a 17-year-old Parisian, was welcomed to Bethlehem three weeks ago by Rus and Dee Stembel and their 16-year-old daughter, Linda. Since then the Elsmere family has taken Sylvie into their hearts, and she's learned to "love New York."

Sylvie is the second foreign student in the Delmar Lions Club ten-year-old summer exchange program. The Lions Club, an international organization, finances the travel of students to other lands in order to expose them to different cultures. This year 40 French students are visiting various parts of the United States as part of the program.

A foreign exchange student program is also being financed by the Rotary Club this year. That program differs from that of the Lions in that it allows the student to visit the adopted country for a full year rather than just the summer, enabling the student to go to school there. Both programs are open to high school students interested in the cultural exchange.

Sylvie's host family, the Stembels, are veteran supporters of the program. They were host to Petra Visch, a Rotary Club exchange student from the Netherlands, several years ago. A lasting friendship developed and they correspond often. The Stembels are so enthusiastic about the program that they sent their older daughter, Lee Ann, to France this summer as part of the Lions Club program.

Although this is Sylvie's first trip to the United States,

she previously visited both Italy and Spain. Since arriving, Sylvie has visited New York City, Lake Placid, Cherry Hill, the Empire State Plaza, Thatcher Park, and many of the local stores. She has explored the streets of Bethlehem by bicycle, swam in the Kenholm pool, and even attended a high school graduation party. She enjoyed the music of the Doobie Brothers at Saratoga and has seen many of the summer's movies. Only Niagara Falls remains on her list of places to go.

So far, the Stembels haven't given Sylvie time to feel homesick. "Only my first two days in New York City were hard," said Sylvie of the time spent in the Big Apple before flying to Albany to join the Stembels. "I was nervous and felt very alone."

Mademoiselle Gallochat is keeping a diary of her visit, sending lots of postcards and is already laden with gifts for friends and family back home.

Fortunately, Sylvie has not had to cope with the language shock that so often paralyzes tourists. She studied English for six years and now only has difficulty "thibking" in English. She has also studied German for four years and Russian for two.

One unpleasant surprise was the unfavorable rate of exchange between francs and dollars which is limiting her shopping.

Asked her opinion of French cuisine in the United States, Sylvie said emphatically, "I haven't had any since I've been here. I came to America to eat American food!" Hamburgers seem to have made the biggest impression.

Sylvie returns to Paris Aug. 19. Perhaps a teaching career and another trip to the United States will follow. "I love Paris, but I also love New York," she said, quite unaware of the famous jingle.

Elm Ave. work set

Bethlehem highway crews will start Aug. 10 on a project to widen the shoulder on the east side of Elm Ave. between Murray Ave. and Axbridge La., according to Town Supervisor Tom Corrigan.

The widened shoulder will "facilitate bicycle travel, although it won't be formally designated as a bikeway," Corrigan said. The road leads to the town park and is highly traveled by bicycles.

Missing money

Texaco puts terminal on block

Texaco, which announced some time ago that it is pulling out of upstate New York, has put its Glenmont terminal on the market for $7 million.

The facility on the Hudson River near the Port of Albany will be closed "probably by the end of August," according to Top Ingram, public affairs director for Texaco's north-east region. The 15 employees have been offered jobs at Texaco's Eagle Point, N.J., plant; if they refuse them they will be given severance pay, Ingram said.

Closing of the terminal would represent a severe loss to the Town of Bethlehem, which will collect $410,000 in real estate taxes from Texaco this year, as well as the Bethlehem Central School District. However, local officials say they are hopeful that the facility will be sold to another oil company.

New firm wants to help find jobs

Two state employees have formed a new company dedicated to making the job hunt more efficient and affordable for the average person.

Strategic Job Search is, says Joseph Alphen of Elsmere, "a low cost, professional counseling service... What we're trying to do is take a lot of the ideas that are coming into the field and bring them down to where the average person can use them."

Alphen and his partner, Barry Schwartzberg of Guilderland, are supervisors in the state Department of Labor. Alphen has worked as a counselor and administrator for the state for 11 years, and prior to that was a counselor for two years with a private employment agency. Schwartzberg has worked for the state for eight years, and before that for the New York City school system.

Schwartzberg said they decided to start their service because they feel there is a lack of affordable job counseling available in the area. Libraries are losing their funding for job placement services and "schools are not doing the job," he said. Strategic Job Search will not attempt to place its clients, but will help them prepare for the job search through "self-discovery," he said.

Fees will range from $10 to $15 per session, usually to be conducted at the client's residence. The average would be 10 sessions, but fewer or more can be arranged.

Alphen can be contacted in the evenings at 439-7739, and Schwartzberg at 869-2579.

Seats still open on Blue Jay bus

Some baseball fans who have waited until the last day to reserve seats on the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce bus(es) for Friday's charter trip to a Delmar Blue Jays night game in Schenectady may get seats on the bus, but they're taking a chance.

Chamber President Ed Danner said reservations ($2 adults, $1 under 16) will be accepted by mail until Friday, or may be brought to the Spotlight office until 4 p.m. Friday. No telephone reservations will be accepted.

The bus will leave the Bethlehem Middle School at 6:30 p.m. Friday and return immediately after the Schenectady Twilight League game. Rain date is Monday, Aug. 10.

The chamber is underwriting the cost of the charter as a contribution to baseball-starved fans of the community who cannot see the Blue Jays for lack of a suitable diamond in Bethlehem. The Blue Jays won the Capital District Baseball League championship last year and are currently tied for first place in the fast Schenectady circuit at 10-3.

Strong hitting and a one-hit pitching job enabled Delmar to sweep three league games last week. Mickey Brantley, the speedster with the rifle arm, walloped a three-run homer and Tom Lorenzo a two-run shot over the center-field wall in a 12-2 win over the Rotterdam Esquires, and Delmar's Dave Reed contributed a 375-foot double in his debut with the Blue Jays in a 9-3 pasting of Cazzaza's.

SWIMMING

Donna and Janet near unbeatable

Somewhere among the nearly 500 young swimmers who will compete this weekend in the gruelling eliminations in the Adirondack Assn. Long Course championships at the Elm Ave. Park may be a teenage girl who can beat Donna Schulz or Janet Shaffer in their specialties.

But that swimmer will have to go all out, as witnessed by the performances of these two Delmar Dolphin stars in the Junior Olympics at Clifton Park July 25-26. In the senior girls' division, Donna took five events, setting three meet records in the process, and breezed to the high point trophy. Janet set one meet record in taking two firsts and a first-place tie.

Donna lowered the records for 400-meter IM, 100-meter butterfly and 200-meter backstroke. She also won the 200 IM and 100 back. Janet's record was in the 50-meter freestyle.

Delmar's 13-14 boys' 400-meter relay also set a new meet record. The foursome, Dave Young, Matt Holland, Scott Apicelli and Eric Patrick, also scored high in individual events.

Last weekend 21 Dolphins represented their club at the annual Woodlin B swim meet

Hudson Ave. thefts

Two Hudson Ave. residents told Bethlehem police that they lost tools and tool boxes Thursday. Another resident had a bicycle stolen that day, and on Friday still another garage was entered and $115 worth of tools taken. Those tools were later recovered.

More commendations

Editor, The Spotlight:

Captain James Kerr's letter to The Spotlight, July 30, tells of the near-tragedy on July 18 at the Elm Avenue Park.

I was at the park that day, as I am nearly every day, and I know many of the young men and women personally. All of them are polite, helpful and fun-loving.

I'm aware of the training they undergo and they learned their lessons well. How reassuring that is.

I am very proud to say I know these wonderful kids, as well as the young medical student (a former lifeguard), who saved the man's life. God bless them all.

Successful muster

Editor, The Spotlight:

On July 25 the Village Volunteers Fife and Drum Corps sponsored another successful muster. There were many dedicated friends who made this possible.

The cooperation of The Spotlight kept our town residents informed of the event through articles, pictures, and continuing coverage.

None of this would have been possible without the support of town government, our extremely capable police department and the Bethlehem Central School District.

We also extend our thanks to all the merchants who supported the muster financially.

The Village Volunteers thank all our friends for the support and assistance which has allowed us to show so many what we have to be proud of in Delmar.

Community Corner

A Spectator Treat

If you've never seen a championship swimming meet—even if you have no connection with any of the 500 competitors—take a few moments this weekend to stop by the Elm Ave. pool complex in Delmar.

The occasion is the annual Adirondack Region swim meet, drawing athletes from a wide area. Many of them will be housed in Bethlehem or camping at the town park.

It's not only exciting to watch the races, but you'll be proud of the Delmar Dolfin's fine organizational capabilities. You'll also be proud of the Bethlehem pool facility, which hosts this important event each year because it's the finest pool in Northeastern New York.
