Parties exchange final salvos

The Republicans

The Republicans are running on a record of accomplishments over the past four years.

We have tried to make government more accessible to everybody in the town, regardless of their political affiliation. It's been a natural evolution -- our accessibility has been enhanced and we discuss issues openly at town board meetings, with the public having ample opportunity to be heard.

Here is what we have accomplished:

- Town Hall -- Your town government has run more smoothly for 18 months in the renovated

The Democrats

Bethlehem Democrats are focusing on wasteful spending, rising taxes, antiquated zoning and unfair assessment practices as our campaign issues this fall.

The Democrats cite the tremendous increase in spending and real property taxes over the last several years and promise to cut wasteful spending by over $250,000 and reduce real property taxes by 20%. Included among the unnecessary spending to be cut is the over $100,000 spent annually on garbage collection which duplicates the service performed by

Dear New Scotland Voters and Neighbors

This Election Day, Nov. 3, is an important one for us in New Scotland.

This year we have the opportunity to elect as one of our Town Justices Alan Joseph a resident of our community and a practicing attorney who has shown a deep concern for the community and its residents.

I am going to support Alan Joseph and vote for him on Tuesday November 3, because I feel he will be an excellent Town Justice; available to the people of the community; able to handle the increasingly complex judicial matters and a willing team player who will truly share these increasing burdens.

I urge you to make Alan Joseph—Judge Joseph.

Sincerely,
David K. Teuten

Candidates forum: more clashes

Early in the evening, Town Supervisor Tom Corrigan called it an "appalling" campaign, full of "personal attacks and character assassinations."

Later, his opponent, Patricia McCord, accused him of having her and other Democrats investigated. "You're not the smiling ribbon cutter you'd like people to think."

So went Friday's "forum" for town supervisor and council candidates. As a debate it mirrored the campaign perfectly — quick and dirty. But as the only opportunity Bethlehem voters will have to compare how the Republicans and the Democrats stand on the issues it may have served some purpose.

In between personal attacks the candidates did manage to say a few words about fluoridation, full value assessment, the police department, tax relief, garbage collection, land use and youth programs.

The forum, sponsored by the Bethlehem unit of the Albany County League of Women Voters, drew fewer than 100 people to the town hall auditorium on a rainy night. "From the tenor of the questions it was evident that many of those present were partisans or concerned with a single issue.

If the crowd was looking for a fight, they got it. Corrigan began the evening with a sweeping and uncharacteristic attack on Democratic positions, ending with a complaint that Mrs. McCord's

Fluoridation issue stirs the political waters

Fluoridation, the issue which has done more to divide the citizens of Bethlehem than any other in the last several decades, has finally made it into the political arena. And despite its late arrival the pro-fluoridation stance taken by three top Democratic candidates is likely to be the most important issue in the 1981 town election.

The announcement last week by supervisor candidate Patricia McCord and council candidates Joseph Feller and Stanley Wright that they are endorsing fluoridation of the town's water supply caught most observers by surprise and left anti-fluoridation forces furious.

The issue dominated the town last winter, but had apparently died down after the all-Republican town board split 4-1 in favor of the status quo. Supervisor Tom Corrigan was the only member to support fluoridation.

The three Democrats said they "made every attempt from the beginning to keep fluoridation a health matter. However, during our door-to-door campaigning it became very clear that it was a major voter concern."

Nevertheless, the Democrats' timing quickly came under attack. Laurel Cahill, a leader of the anti-fluoride Bethlehem Safe Water Association and active in past local Democratic campaigns, complained that her group was denied an audience with the Democratic platform committee, and was assured Sept. 23 that the party would not make fluoride a campaign issue.

"They have refused to hear the safe water people," she charged. "It has been done for political reasons with total disregard for the health of the town."

The statement by Mrs. McCord, Feller and background statement was unnecessarily vague. Among other positions she has held is listed "staff intern to lieutenant governor." Said Corrigan: "If the unnamed Lt. Gov. is Mary Anne Krupsak, then say so."

Mrs. McCord said she was

"disappointed" in Corrigan. "I think it sets us off to a rather unpleasant evening."

Moments later, Democratic council candidate Stanley Wright took after incumbent John Geurtze as "a man who habitually does not pay his property taxes."

Wright specifies that they "have individually endorsed" fluoride.

Republican criticisms were spearheaded by Corrigan at Friday's candidates forum. Corrigan said he was "appalled" that no Democrats took a stand prior to the town board vote, recalling specifically that he had asked Democratic Chairman Michael Breslin to comment. He also took note of an anti-fluoride petition signed by Feller.

"I wonder if Joe will change his mind tomorrow after he has talked to a few more voters."

Feller was later given the opportunity to explain his change in position by Dr. Joseph Hart, the Delmar dentist who led the pro-fluoridation drive last winter. Feller said a friend had asked him to sign her petition, and he did sign it. "But that wasn't the end of it for me," he continued.

Feller said he attended the public hearing, continued to read on the subject and talked to physician friends. "I did in fact change my position," he said, but insisted that change came before his decision to run for the town board.

None of the factual or ethical issues which had dominated last winter's debate came up Friday as both sides concentrated on painting the other's decision in a political light.

Incumbent John Geurtze, who had opposed fluoridation last winter, said, "I've tried to avoid the trap my opponents have fallen into by providing special interest groups with whatever they demand."

Mrs. McCord said the Republicans had simply ducked the issue, noting that it didn't even come up for a formal vote in February. "The reason any government is there is to make collective decisions. If you try to please everybody you will be immobilized," she said.

Geurtze replied that he is a "businessman who must compete in the marketplace for his tax dollars," drawing the contrast with both Wright and his running mate Joseph Feller, who are employed by the state. The Democrats had come up with two additional times (in addition to the late payment this year) when Geurtze had not paid his property taxes on time, and Geurtze explained that, "being in the farming business I simply didn't have the money to pay them. I paid them when I had it."

And, said Geurtze, Wright "does not seem to know the difference between farm and residential assessments," since he had charged that Geurtze's property is underassessed compared to homes in Bethlehem. Would Wright promise not to raise farm assessments if elected? He got no answer.

Almost as confusing as that dialogue was the discussion on full value assessment, an issue which has become politicized at both the state and local levels. The idea behind full value assessment is to make it easier for property owners to tell if they are being assessed fairly in comparison to other properties, but the complexity of the different plans for dealing with court mandates on full value made it difficult to determine where some of the candidates stood. On top of that, the Republicans and claimed that the Democrats

(by reproducing a Spotlight headline on one of their flyers) had already endorsed full value — a charge denied by the Democrats.

Nevertheless, Mrs. McCord's position appeared to be an unequivocal endorsement: "If you're not paying your fair share, you should be," she said. "It comes down to fairness."

Corrigan said that the reason for delays in the town's move to full value is the uncertainty at the state level. But he added more doubts of his own, particularly in how revaluation would affect longtime homeowners.

"Something has to be done to address that problem," he said. "I don't think there's an easy solution to it."

All four candidates Geurtze, Feller, Wright and Republican Robert Hendrick said they are against full value. But Wright said he wants a system where "People in neighborhoods" can be assessed fairly in relation to each other, while Geurtze said he would like to see assessments "on a percentage basis."

Here's what the candidates said about the other issues:

Republicans... (from the cover)

Delmar School — a new centralized seat of town government, all at less than $21 per square foot — an unbelievable savings in tax dollars, and it is paid for! Its spacious auditorium and other public accommodations make it the town's community center.

- Public Works — The Sewer and Water Districts have been combined with the Engineering Department for more efficient, coordinated town-wide services.

- Sewer Funding — A $7.5 million sanitary sewer system extension will be built over the next two years. It will then service 90 percent of the town's residents, thus eliminating trouble spots with septic systems. Town officials have succeeded over a six-year period to win a $5.5 million Federal grant and $200,000 in State funds to ease the tax burden on homeowners and businesses.

- Water Supply — In addition to the town reservoir and wells, a contract for an additional steady long-term supply of Albany municipal water was agreed to, and an additional 60 million gallons was added by raising the spillway, thus greatly strengthening the town's future outlook.

- Highways-Byways — Veteran Superintendent of Highways, Martin Cross keeps 134 miles of town roads smooth, plowed and always operational year-round. The Highway Department has won high points with taxpayers with its fall foliage pick-up and recycling into mulch for home gardeners.

- Parks and Recreation — Maximum use of town parks is now extended to year-round activities, with major improvements and updating such as added parking and a hiking trail at Elm Avenue Park; improved softball field and Henry Hudson River Park. Land for another park in North Bethlehem has been acquired.

- Public Safety — The new central dispatch system, located in town hall, provides a fast and efficient link-up of town police, state police, fire districts, ambulances and all emergency services.

- Zoning-Planning — The zoning code has been refined to allow continued growth in those areas where it is appropriate, while still preserving residential character.

- Youth — In addition to emphasis on youth activities in Parks and Recreation, the town is working with citizen committees and school officials to deal with growing pains and problems of youth, and had provided office space for Project Equinox in dealing with substance abuse problems.

private trash collectors and an annual saving of $30,000 by the abolition of the Public Safety Commission, which is totally unneeded since the town has a chief and inspector already running the police department.

The Democratic candidates have also vowed to refuse the Republican proposed 7½% pay raises for the town board and supervisor.

In the area of zoning Democrats promise a review of existing zoning and the implementation of a comprehensive zoning regulation to preserve existing residential communities, rather than the perceived approach of the Republican administration. The existing patchwork quilt is easily manipulated by the builders and developers and affords little or no protection to homeowners and residential communities.

Democrats have also scored Republicans for their failure to address the issue of fluoridation, when the existing board refused to even put the question to a vote. Democrats feel the health of the children of the town is too important and the benefit to our children is all too obvious to duck this question. The question must be faced and the Democrats will address the question and vote for fluoridation for the health of our children.

The Democrats promise to open up the real property assessment records so that homeowners will have an opportunity to make meaningful review of assessments. They challenge the existing procedures which are designed to inhibit and frustrate any review of assessments, because people are not permitted to see the public records upon which assessments are based. The homeowner must and will be allowed to review the records so there can be a fair assessment.

*Patricia McCord
Joseph Feller
Stanley Wright*

•Police: The Democrats advocate cutting the police department budget, a position Corrigan attacked as inconsistent with their calls for increased patrols. Feller said the problem is a "bloated administration that can't get its act together," and characterized Public Safety Commissioner Ralph Tipple as a man "who does who knows what except for place signs on streets." Mrs. McCord said she would have a study done of the department and cut costs "through attrition."

•Garbage collection: All the candidates agreed with Corrigan's statement that "there is no choice" for the town except to participate in the ANSWERS waste recycling project, although the Democrats criticized the town's lengthy consultant study of the situation. And all agreed with Wright's suggestion "tax relief" for using the money saved if the town eliminates free garbage collection.

Geurtze said he is in favor of having private haulers take over the pickups. During the question period, Democratic Chairman Michael Breslin tried to pin Geurtze down on why, if he favors private haulers, he hadn't done anything about it in four years on the town board. Geurtze said the present system "was put in before I got on the board and we haven't done anything about it."

•Land use planning: A questioner asked why more people are upset with decisions of the planning board and the board of appeals. Corrigan disagreed with the premise, noting that changes in the zoning code are designed to take the pressure off developed areas. "I think we have a real mess on our hands," said Mrs. McCord, citing lack of planning, as well as undue influence of "special interests."

•Youth activities: should the town have a youth center? Feller said yes, noting that in 1976 a citizens group recommended a center and "the town board did not act." And Wright said he would go a step further and look for state or federal aid to build a "youth and sports complex."

Geurtze and Hendrick were both skeptical. Geurtze said the problem now is that fewer kids can work because of the high minimum wage. "I think we have enough recreation activities now for the kids," he said. Hendrick called for closer supervision at home.

Juveniles arrested

Two Glenmont juveniles ages 11 and 9 and a 9-year-old companion from Watervliet were arrested on Wednesday in connection with a burglary at the Glenmont Elementary School on Oct. 15. Bethlehem detectives said further arrests are pending. The boys were charged with burglary, third degree, and petty larceny and released in custody of their mothers to await family court action in Albany.

Killer dog sought

Robert W. Campbell, Selkirk, has given Bethlehem police a description of a mongrel dog who he said entered his yard on Rt. 144 and killed two hen turkeys valued at $15 each. Police said the town dog warden caught one of two dogs involved in a similar incident at the site last spring.

The Spotlight — October 29, 1981 — PAGE 11

The Democrats press the attack

The Democrats remained the party on the attack as Bethlehem town elections wound into their final week. And again the tactics were personal.

This time the target was Bernard Kaplowitz, who doubles as town attorney and Republican party chairman. In a press release issued over the weekend the Democrats call that dual job a "conflict of interest" and say Kaplowitz abuses his position by "doling out patronage to his law partners and five other lawyers who hold positions as special counsels to the town."

Kaplowitz Monday shrugged off the patronage charge, noting that it has come up regularly in past elections.

The highest paid special counsel makes $2,200, he said, "We probably couldn't find a full-time attorney to handle all those jobs." Kaplowitz said he was the second person to hold both jobs at the same time, and added that there is no legal or ethical conflict.

The charge and rebuttal followed the usual pattern of this election. How successful the tactic has been will be decided by the voters on Nov. 3, but it is certain that the constant Democratic barrage has changed the focus of the campaign and, to some extent, forced the Republicans on the defensive.

That's an achievement for a party which is outnumbered three to one in registered voters, has no incumbents or "name" candidates, and had $86 in the bank a month before the election.

As the party out of power, the Democrats have a complex and often controversial message to get across—that taxes are too high, that town services are mismanaged and that town officials had violated their public trust.

Getting that message across without the "filtering" of the news media has been accomplished by a series of news letters mailed to every residence in the town. The letters provide the space for the Democrats to make their charges, with documentation, in a format of their choosing.

As of two weeks ago, the Democrats had spent $2,444 of their $3,852 in total campaign expenditures in these mailings.

A third and final letter is due out this week, according to party chairman Michael Breslin, but the final pre-election financial report for the Democrats, due Friday, was not available at the Albany County Board of Elections Monday morning.

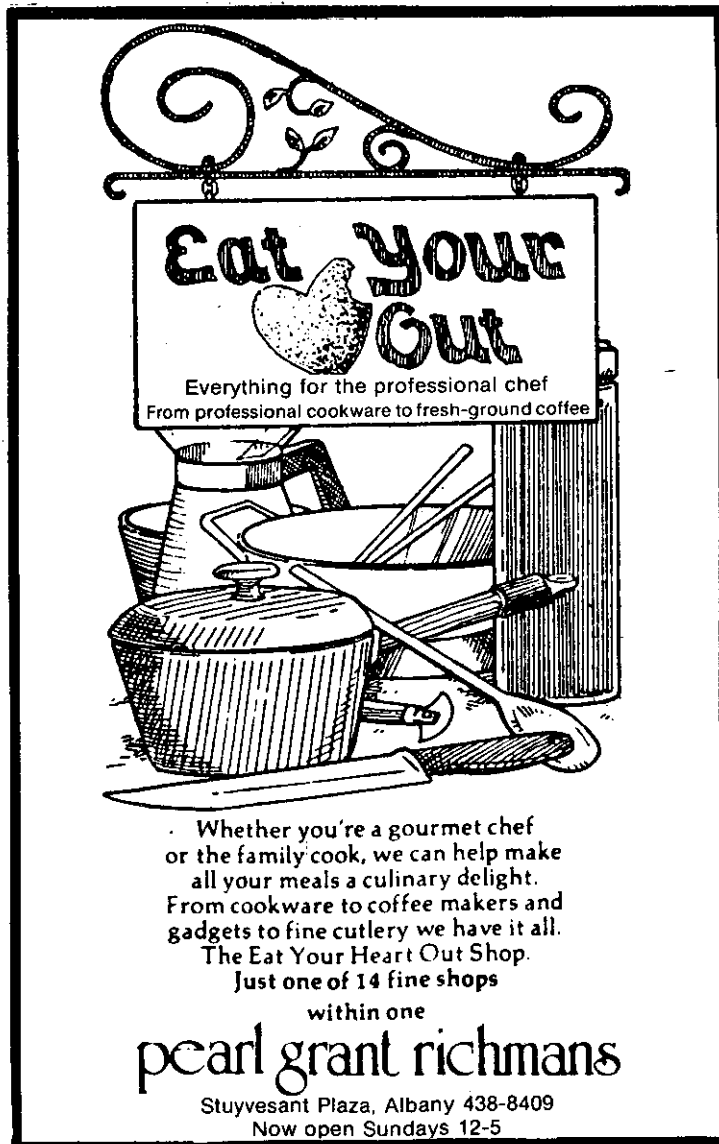

The Democrats have followed up the news letters with press releases, and have had some success here also. Attacks on incumbent Republicans John Geurtze and the late Edward Mocker for late payment of taxes got good play in the Albany papers, as did Democratic Supervisor Candidate Pat McCord's complaints that the Republicans proposed tax decrease was achieved by leaving some expenditures out of the budget.

When the Democrats took a position on fluoridation of town water they issued their press release first to the Albany Times-Union, whose reporter had not covered the debate on the subject last winter. Their release was printed almost verbatim.

As targets themselves, the Democrats have proved more elusive. For the past year, Lawrence Farbstein, a former Long Island town manager and Democratic state official, has been the party's unofficial spokesman at town board meetings. His needling questions and comment, as well as his obvious expertise in town government affairs, had led the Republicans to do considerable research on his own background. They were ready for his questions at the candidates' forum Friday.

But Farbstein has become less visible as the campaign progressed. The Democrats say he has no official role in their campaign. And although he was in the audience Friday, he spoke not a word. T.M.

The Republicans regroup

The vaunted Bethlehem Republican organization has a new candidate, J. Robert Hendrick, along with another chance to show just how good it is.

The challenge: to sell a virtual unknown to the voters as a replacement for the late Edward Mocker on the town board with just 11 days to go before the election. Beside the massive physical effort involved — new stickers and signs, new literature delivered door-to-door — party leaders had to face the fact last week that the selection process had revived old regional differences.

The Oct 18 death of Mocker, the 54-year-old dairy farmer who had evolved from party dissident to party stalwart, was totally unexpected and forced party leaders to improvise a new ending to what had become one of the bitterest campaigns in town history. That history includes an unbroken string of Republican victories.

Hendrick, a retired state budget examiner from Elsmere, is as quiet as Mocker was controversial, but controversy still revolved around his selection. After Mocker's death, party leaders huddled Sunday night, but decided to defer a decision on a new candidate until Thursday's already-scheduled committee meeting. By Thursday, the fact that Hendrick was party Chairman Bernard Kaplowitz's choice was all over town, but the vote was hardly a formality.

According to Kaplowitz, the committee spent about 45 minutes discussing the merits of all the possible candidates, with name recognition a major concern among some committee members. "Frankly, I had to do a bit of a selling job," said Kaplowitz.

When it came time for nominations, however, two names were put forward — Hendrick and Gilbert Houk, the town assessor who, like Mocker, is from Selkirk. A majority was for Hendrick, but the vote was by no means unanimous, and more talking did nothing to resolve the split. "Those people (from Selkirk) were saying 'don't forget us,'" observed Kaplowitz later.

Finally, Houk was located at a bowling alley and persuaded to come to the meeting. Appraised of the situation, he formally withdrew his name and the vote for Hendrick was made unanimous.

Hendrick, 57, has lived in Elsmere for 25 years and has been active in the Elsmere Fire District for nearly all of that time, having served as chief for five years and as a fire commissioner for six years. His only political links appear to be with county legislator Gordon Morris, who is also active in the fire district. Hendrick is a member of the Albany County Governmental Review Commission, a "watchdog" group set up by Morris in preparation for the 1983 county elections.

Hendrick took a low profile at the candidates forum Friday, declining to take a stand on most of the issues raised. "I like to take things cautiously, being an old budget examiner," he said earlier that day. He did say that his "major focus" on the town board would be on the budget, which has come under criticism from the Democrats.

Kaplowitz said Hendrick will not be appointed to the board before the election, but if he wins he likely will be appointed to fill the remainder of Mocker's term.

The Republicans, with their powers of incumbency and three-to-one advantage in registered voters, had been content to run a traditional campaign. Records filed with the Albany County Board of Election show that the party had spent $4,811 through Friday, the bulk of that going for signs, printed materials and advertising in The Spotlight.

This week, however, there will be a special effort. Kaplowitz said party workers will be delivering a special flyer introducing Hendrick to every voter in the town. "That's something we've never done before," he said Friday.

But the basic GOP message isn't likely to change: an outline of the accomplishments of Supervisor Tom Corrigan and Councilmen Mocker and John Geurtze in their four years in office. Corrigan demonstrated again this week the powers of incumbency when he announced that the 1982 budget will contain a 13 percent tax decrease, from $30.76 per $1,000 of assessed valuation this year to an estimated $26.65 next year.

The Democrats had made much of this year's 15 percent tax increase, and their literature claims that Bethlehem taxes are in the top three percent in the state, and nearly five times higher than the statewide average.

Corrigan called those charges "half truths," obtained by comparing towns with incorporated villages in their limits. A comparison of towns of similar size without incorporated villages shows Bethlehem to be near the middle in appropriations and taxes, he said.

Break-ins reported

Bethlehem police are investigating a burglary on Elsmere Ave. on Oct. 21 in which $185 in cash was taken from six envelopes in a metal file box, and a break-in on Kenwood Ave., Elsmere, in which nothing appeared to be missing. Police said entry was gained on Elsmere Ave. through a locked side door, and on Kenwood Ave. by removing a basement window.

Popularity contest — as usual

For more than a decade, New Scotland has hovered on a delicately balanced political seesaw that could teeter either way in any local election. This year is no exception.

For the umpteenth time, New Scotland candidates are waging a personality contest devoid of major issues as the town's Republican administration risks its precarious margin on the town board in next Tuesday's balloting. That margin is currently hypothetical: the death of incumbent Republican Councilman George Hotaling of Voorheesville six weeks after he was nominated for a second term evened the political scales at 2-2 on the board, motivating Supervisor Steve Wallace to leave the chair vacant pending the election results.

Hotaling's sudden death also stripped the Republicans of their strongest political personality, apart from incumbent Supervisor Steve Wallace, who is running unopposed. Anne Carson, a Voorheesville mother of four and a part-time secretary-bookkeeper to Wallace, was nominated as Hotaling's successor to run with John Graziano, a political newcomer, in the critical town council race.

The Democrats' chief strength lies in Herbert Reilly Jr., Voorheesville mortician and civic worker, an incumbent seeking a second four-year term. Reilly caused the only stir in the otherwise placid campaign by criticizing the town board's delay in closing the town dump as mandated by state and county agencies. The town's budget and property tax rates, annually a bare-bones affair, is rarely, if ever, a campaign issue because the budget is a bi-partisan effort in a rural community with few of the public services offered in more metropolitan municipalities.

Robert Mudge, an industrial arts teacher active in veterans' and conservation groups, is Reilly's running mate in the four-cornered council contest that will tip the balance. In a race in which the two candidates with the highest total vote will win the seats, the Democrats must elect both Reilly and Mudge to take control of the town board, whereas the Republicans must elect either Graziano or Carson to retain a slender 3-2 edge for another two years.

In Albany County, four of the 10 townships are Republican, the three cities of Albany, Cohoes and Water-vliet solidly Democratic.

The only other incident that flirted with becoming a campaign issue came this week when Thomas Dolin, New Scotland Democratic chairman, accused the Republicans of deception in distributing a GOP campaign brochure house-to-house.

The handout, a four-page flyer in color, designated the incumbent candidates with a star beneath the candidate's photo, and included stars under the pictures of Graziano and Carson, both newcomers to the slate.

"They continue to hand this out, even though it's misleading and deceptive," Dolin charged. "I believe it's intentional. They should have withdrawn it when they received it from the printers, and they owe an apology to Herb Reilly, who is the incumbent."

Dolin's blast was quickly brushed off by Frederick Edmunds, the town's Republican chairman. "When we go out and hand this out, we tell everyone it's a typographical error. Each candidate is under instruction to do this. It's too bad that happened. We've gone out of our way to tell people it's a typographical error."

In the key council race, one candidate from each major party will have the Conservative line. In the Conservative primary, Graziano got 11 votes and Mudge 10 to make the ballot, while Reilly with 9 and Carson with 8 missed it. In New Scotland, where independent voters traditionally choose among personalities, many registered Republicans and Democrats take refuge in the Conservative line, and the designation could be a factor in the tight race that is expected.

In other contests, Democrats JoAnn Donohue of Voorheesville, running for town clerk, and Alan Joseph of New Scotland, running for town justice, appear to have the best chance of unseating incumbent Republicans, but New Scotland voters traditionally vote Republican by wide margins after they have finished clicking the levers for the town council. Also on the 1981 ballot are contests for highway superintendent and tax collector.

EDITORIALS:

Thomas Corrigan for town supervisor

Thomas Corrigan, the Republican and Conservative candidate seeking re-election for the post of town supervisor, has demonstrated a long-standing commitment to the Town of Bethlehem, and we support him for another term.

Besides serving for the past four years in that post, Mr. Corrigan served 11 years as town councilman. During his tenure, Bethlehem appears to have been reasonably well governed.

The cost of government there, however, does strike us as relatively high, and on that count we express considerable concern. Bethlehem's budget is about twice as large as Clifton Park's, for example, even though both towns have approximately the same number of residents. The proposed town budget for 1982 is a whopping $4.1 million, a figure that does not even include an allocation for the garbage transfer station. The cost of government in Bethlehem is a problem that begs to be addressed during the forthcoming term.

The Times Union Editorial Comparison of the budget of Clifton Park to Bethlehem is very misleading to the voters.

The Editorial failed to point out that Clifton Park has NO POLICE, NO PUBLIC WORKS, NO WATER, NO SEWER, NO GARBAGE PICKUP, NO LEAF PICKUP, AND VERY LIMITED RECREATION FACILITIES

There simply is
NO COMPARISON!

Gas and oil burners waste up to 55% of your fuel dollar

Homeowners will be surprised to learn that they could be wasting as much as $50 out of every $100 they pay for oil or gas. With home heating costing as much as it does, that could amount to well over $1,000 a year.

The average gas or oil burner is, in fact, often no more than 43% to 55% efficient in delivering heat. Much of the waste in the burners occurs because heat has to travel lengthy distances through ducts and pipes. Gas and oil burners also have built-in chimneys which further decrease efficiency.

A Kero-Sun™ Portable Heater is 99.9% fuel-efficient.

A Kero-Sun Portable Heater will keep you warm for pennies an hour. Hundreds of uses because they're all portable. 99.9% fuel efficiency means odorless, smokeless operation. And they need no chimney. Battery-powered ignition system and automatic shut-off device for extra safety. Kero-Sun offers portable kerosene heaters in 9 different models to fit your particular needs. See a demonstration today.

Radiant 8™

Rated at 8,200 BTUs per hour. The most compact, most economical Kero-Sun radiant model. Great for smaller heating jobs. Operates from 28 to 39 hours on 1.7 gals. kerosene. 17 1/4" high; 20 3/4" wide, 13 1/2" deep. 21.1 lbs. U.L. Listed.

The good news in home heating.

Girl, 9, injured

A 9-year-old Voorheesville girl who was struck by a car less than 150 feet from the village ambulance station was listed in fair condition at St. Peter's Hospital, Albany, this week.

Sheriff's deputies said Karen Deeley, 202 Deerfield Ct., ran into the path of a southbound car in front of 12 Voorheesville Ave. at 3:30 p.m. Sunday. The hospital declined to say what her injuries were, but denied an Albany newspaper report that she suffered two broken legs.

Police said no charges were made against the driver, identified as Veronica A. Genovese, 49, of Font Grove Rd., Slingerlands.

Tax payers sought

The Internal Revenue Service has announced that the following residents of the Tri-Village area have tax refunds coming to them: Rudolph A. Dolence, Delmar; Arthur Coons, Voorheesville, and Leonard Martin, also of Voorheesville. The checks were returned to the IRS as undeliverable. They can be claimed by calling 1-800-343-9000, or by writing the IRS, Attn: TX:W, Clinton Ave. and N. Pearl St., Albany, N.Y. 12207.

Christopher Holder
Mime at middle school

You needn't worry if a group of local youngsters soon start making faces and "acting out" more than usual. They'll be members of Team A-7 at the Bethlehem Middle School, who are being visited Thursday and Friday by Christopher Holder, a pantomime performer and instructor.

Holder, a Schenectady resident and sponsor of "Children's Performance Tours," will give two presentations of "Ssshhh, It's Mime," and direct five workshops for the 125 seventh-graders on the arts-oriented team.

Besides demonstrating the techniques of pantomime, Holder will encourage the students to develop their own "studies in illusion." He believes: "Most children play in mime much of the time anyway, so the transition from unsupervised mime play to 'scenario-bound' pantomime is rarely difficult."

The visiting artist also gives suggestions to teachers on how they can use the students' new knowledge of pantomime to enliven classroom lessons.

For children of this age, he says, slow motion exercises can be "highly instructive about the nature of our bodies."

And devising mime plays about historical events, such as the building of Egyptian pyramids or an explorer's travels, can help children understand and remember those events, he says.

Many of the 7-A students have requested placement on this team because of their interest in the arts, and other guest artists and events have been scheduled for them throughout the school year.

The team's teachers are Warren Stoker, Patricia Curtin, Candice Bosworth and Lynne Maisel.

Woodlot workshop

gy Office, the Department of Environmental Conservation and Cooperative Extension are sponsoring a series of woodland management workshops for woodland owners and firewood cutters throughout the Capital Area.

Presentations in the morning session will include the role of firewood harvesting in multiple use forest management, management strategies for various forest stands, the sale of wood products such as firewood, wood volume calculation and firewood characteristics. The afternoon session will consist of a review of morning topics through demonstrations in a nearby woodlot.

A workshop for Albany and Schenectady County area residents will be held Saturday, Oct. 31, in Voorhees-

Voorheesville residents were treated to a Solar Tour of five locations Oct. 17, including this 1,300-square-foot installation to provide heat for the high school swimming pool, demonstrated by Robert Muller, VHS industrial arts teacher. A second solar exchanger was added in June to provide domestic hot water for the school. Other sites visited were the homes of Gus Pratt, Robert Mitchell, Gary and Jeannie Petre and Muller.

Visitors from Jordan

Two visiting professors from Jordan toured Clayton A. Bouton High School in September as part of a State Department visitor program.

Dr. Kahlil Mahski and Dr. Nabeel Issa Kassis, professors at the Birzeit University, visited the school in order its energy technology program, its solar energy system and its use of computers in instruction.

After meeting with Superintendent Werner W. Berglas, the Mid-East professors were accompanied by Industrial Arts Instructor Robert Mueller, who has been deeply involved in the educational development of energy technology both in Voorheesville and state-wide.

The International Visitor Program is arranged by the Federal Visitor Program in cooperation with the United States International Communication Agency. The Voorheesville school had been selected as one of the schools to be visited because of its advanced energy technology program

CLARKSVILLE
Residents launch
phone rate protest

More than 150 residents of the Clarksville area signed a petition protesting a proposed telephone rate change that would isolate them from a toll-free call to nearby Albany.

Announcement of the New York Telephone Co.'s proposal earlier this month to shrink the local calling perimeter caused shock and dismay among subscribers in the 768 exchange. A petition at the checkout counter at the Clarksville Supermarket on Delaware Tpk. drew an immediate response.

The Clarksville exchange extends to within eight miles of the Albany city line, but telephone subscribers with the 768 prefix would have to pay a toll ranging upward from an estimated 30 cents for the first three minutes in order to call Albany. Clarksville and its surrounding area is a suburb of Albany and many residents work and do business there.

Under the company's proposed realignment of local calling areas, toll-free calls by Clarksville residents would be restricted to Delmar, Voorheesville, South Bethlehem, Ravena and Westerlo.

same number or by calling church.

A mini bazaar will start 7 p.m. This will take the place of the annual holiday bazaar which is usually held in November. Handmade items and decorations for the holidays and the home will be for sale until the last setting of the supper has started. There will be used books and chances to win an afghan that was hand made.

BETHLEHEM

Educator urges local involvement

Dr. Robert Rienow of Selkirk, prominent author and educator, inaugurated the first in an intended series of "Futures Symposia" organized by the Bethlehem Central School District by proclaiming to his audience, "Parochialism is dead — Delmar is part of the world." After a discussion of the problems of the world today and projections of their consequences in the future, Rienow advocated the formation of "grass-roots task forces" to study these problems. Members of these groups would include students, educators and members of the community.

"The reservoir of intellectual talent in this community is unrivalled," he said, claiming that Bethlehem could assume a role of leadership on a national level if it would commit itself to finding and advocating solutions to the problems of ecology, population, technology and government, among others.

"The state of the country's resources demands recycling on a monumental scale. What is required is not an individual decision but a commitment from an entire society. Bethlehem could show the way by supporting such programs, even at an economic loss," he said. "What we need is not a sacrificing but a substitution of values."

Art group holds show

The Bethlehem Art Association will hold its fall Juried Art Show beginning Wednesday, Nov. 4, at 7:30 p.m. at the Bethlehem Public Library.

The show will be judged by Bill Wilson, painter and professor at the State University at Albany. Entries are due at the library board room between 1 and 4 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 1, and works not accepted can be picked up Monday from 6 to 9 p.m. and Wednesday, Nov. 4, from 7 to 7:30 p.m.

Cash prizes will total approximately $250. All sculptors must provide their own bases and sculptures should be secured to bases to prevent theft. All paintings must be framed, wired and ready to hang.

Entries are $2.50 per piece with a maximum of three entries per artist. Dues for the year ($10, $5 for retirees and students under 23) must be paid up.

A Normansville ghost story

It is now late October; the hunter's moon is well past, the geese prepare for their southern flight, and the winds of the Hudson Valley blow cold in threat of winter storms to come.

It is a time to seek the warm sanctuary of one's fireside and to reflect on the witching hour of All Hallows' Eve - a moment trapped between the vibrant golds and reds of October and the decaying browns of November. Another log placed on the fire for reassurance crackles while our imagination drifts to tales of restless spirits and creatures of the night.

At times like this, the mind's eye often turns to the winding old yellow brick road of Normansville, the tiny hamlet in the shadow of Graceland Cemetery which straddles the murky waters of the Norman's Kill separating the City of Albany from the Town of Bethlehem. Over-shadowed and by-passed by the well-trafficked Delaware Avenue bridge high above the smoking chimneys of its scattered residences, Normansville was not always so isolated. Not long ago it was on a main road to the capital city. During the free-wheeling days of prohibition the hamlet boasted a considerable night life. Jimmy Harder's Dance Hall on Mill Road, on the Bethlehem side of the creek, featured New York City bands to entertain patrons to the wee hours. Until they burned in the 1930s, the community had its own home industry in the Pappalau ice houses.

Atop the steep bluff overlooking Normansville is the home base of Albany's most persistent ghost story - The Graceland Hitchhiker. The story has several versions and may be found in other parts of the country. It is related in folkloricist Louis C. Jones' authoritative works as well as a recent publication by two local youths, Mark MacGregor Steese and Sam McPheeters. It is called Travelers' Tales and is now available at Lincoln Hill and Albany book stores.

The story is as follows:

It seems that on dark and rainy nights, when visibility is at its dimmest and the imagination is at its keenest, the solitary motorist approaching the city along Delaware Avenue is apt to see a wispy vision of a young girl, a teenager, clad only in the flowing draperies of an evening dress, whose white fabric drifts eerily with the currents of the wind. She is not really hitchhiking, but from the inclemency of the weather and the haunting, pleading look on her young face it's clear that she would surely appreciate the kindness of a ride. The stranger willingly comes to her aid; he stops the car and the girl gets in. The driver scarcely notices that he is at the entrance of a cemetery.

She requests a ride to an address on Lark Street and offers no explanation for the unusual circumstances. The short ride is pleasant, though hardly dominated by conversation from the teenager. In one version of the story, the driver offers his coat to his passenger in order to offset the ill effects of the chilling rain.

Upon arrival at a modest row house cited by the midnight traveler, the driver turns, only to discover that she is gone, her seat in the car marked only by puddles of rainwater.

Perplexed and greatly distraught, the well-meaning motorist seeks reassurance that he is not losing his mind. He approaches the front door of the darkened brownstone, and waits until he is greeted by a sad-looking matron, clad in an old bathrobe. Over her shoulder he can make out the faded photograph of his youthful passenger, in a place of honor on the piano. The woman answers with a statement that she has apparently issued on previous occasions. "Thank you for your kindness, sir, it's my daughter, you see, dead these several years, killed in an accident while traveling on a night when the wind and rain threatened the traveler as they do now. We buried her in Graceland to have her nearby, but sometimes, on nights like this, she tries to complete her journey - to come home again for just one more visit. Someday, perhaps, she may reach her goal."

An epilogue to one account sends the bewildered driver to Graceland the next morning to see the poor girl's gravesite. And there on that wooded bluff overlooking the Norman's Kill, folded neatly on top of her granite tombstone is his raincoat, accepted so gratefully by the cold and wet teenager he picked up on the lonely highway only the night before.

That flea-flicker was a beaut

Hardy Bethlehem football fans who stayed to the end of Saturday's Suburban Council game at Latham were rewarded with a spectacle not often seen on Van Dyke Rd. The bedraggled Eagles, trailing 27-7 behind one of the league's best teams, surprised Shaker and themselves with a razzle-dazzle play good for 50 yards and a touchdown.

Bethlehem was down 27-0 in the fourth quarter when they scored two rapid touchdowns on breakaway plays. The first came when Danny Chambers, BC's outstanding defensive end, blocked a Shaker punt. Bruce Szelest scooped up the loose ball, broke a tackle, and sprinted 25 yards to the end zone. Tom Burdick kicked the point.

Moments later the Eagles pulled off their flea-flicker, trying the gambit for the first time this year. Quarterback Steve Radzaminski, standing in the shotgun formation, took the snap and started off-tackle, and handed to fullback Matt LaBarge, who flipped the ball to halfback Tom Dexter running outside to the right. Dexter hurled a 40-yard spiral to Szelest on the dead run down the right sideline. Szelest took it in the clear on the 20. Brian Peek jammed over for the final two points, making the final score 27-15.

"We played a good game," said Coach Gene FitzPatrick. "It was an old story, with breakdowns on key plays, but the defense had some great moments. We held for downs three times inside the 10, once when Shaker had a first down on the one and we held 'em." Shaker got their scores on TD passes of 30 and 10 yards, a 44-yard run and a 15-yard run.

The Eagles return to the home turf this weekend, facing a rugged Guilderland team that upset mighty Shenendehowa last week. "They'll either be sky high or ripe for a letdown," said FitzPatrick.

Warner PeeWees win

Long scoring plays carried the Bethlehem Falcons to a 32-6 rout of Guiderland in a Pop Warner PeeWee Division game Sunday. Rich Gary ran 40, 45 and 70 yards for touchdowns, but the 70-yarder was nullified by a penalty. Other breakaway plays were a 55-yard scamper by Mike Mosely, a 40-yard TD by John Lindsay and a 10-yard run by Chris Saba. Larry Sandgren's sack in the end zone scored a safety.

A 25-yard field goal beat the Bethlehem Hawks in the Junior Midget Division, 15-12. John Waddingham and Bob Gambelungho combined on a 42-yard pass-run for a touchdown, and Eric Opalka added six points on a 22-yard sweep. The Midget Eagles lost to East Greenbush, 8-6, Abe Higgins getting the Bethlehem score on a sweep from 10 yards out.

Baseball reminders

The final chance to register for Tri-Village Little League, T-Ball, Senior League or the new Big League, will be Saturday, Oct. 31, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Bethlehem Town Hall auditorium. Any child failing to register by that date may be placed on a waiting list until a vacancy occurs.

Both the senior league and the proposed big league teams will be playing next year at the Little League park on Kenwood Ave.

BC swim program

The Bethlehem Parks and Recreation Department will offer a series of recreational swims from 1 to 4 p.m. on Sundays, from Nov. 1, through Dec. 20 at the Bethlehem Central Middle School Pool.

The program is open to residents of the Town of Bethlehem and Bethlehem Central School District and fees are $1 per adult per swim, and 50 cents per child aged 8 to 13. Children under eight may swim free of charge when accompanied by a responsible adult.

Blackbirds face a rugged test

Voorheesville and Mohonasen will fight it out for second place in the Colonial Division of the Capital Football Conference Saturday at Rotterdam. Both teams are 3-1 in the division.

"They're big and tough, and it's just a matter of how well we execute," observed Coach Tom Buckley, looking ahead following Voorheesville's 12-6 victory over a stubborn Watervliet team at home last week. "We did a good job defensively against Watervliet, but we're not consistent on the offense. We have good and bad plays."

Mohonasen's unbeaten slate was spoiled last week by league-leading Albany Academy. 7-0 a week after the Cadets had blanked the Blackbirds by 34-0. But Buckley and his coaches pay no attention to comparative scores.

Tim Murnane had a big day against Watervliet, sparking the Blackbirds' two longest drives. The senior halfback carried 17 times for 128 yards and caught two passes for 23 more. Jim Meacham went overhead for 72 yards on five completions in 10 attempts, and Jerry Clark had two interceptions for Voorheesville.

Once again the Blackbirds had to come from behind after bobbling a punt early in the game near the Voorheesville 20. Watervliet ran it in from there in several plays, but the Blackbirds came back in the second period with a 48-yard scoring drive in five plays. Meachem hit Murnane for 13 yards on the first play, handed off to Murnane for six more and got the score on a Murnane sweep to the right from the 6.

The 6-all deadlock lasted into the fourth period, and it was the defense that engineered the victory with the rare spectacle of three safeties in less than six minutes. The Blackbirds had marched from their own 37 to the visitors' 11, but lost possession when Murnane fumbled as he was hit after a 50-yard sprint. The Voorheesville defense pushed Watervliet back to the 6, where a fourth-down snap sailed past the punter and out of the end zone for an automatic 2-pointer.

Mark Tuzzolo returned the ensuing free kick 45 yards to the Watervliet 12, but again the Blackbirds couldn't score from the 2. On the first play after the turnover, John Donato sacked the quarterback in the end zone for safety No. 2 and a 10-6 lead.

Watervliet tried an on-side kick, but Voorheesville recovered on the enemy 38 and hammered to the half-yard line in six plays. Again Watervliet held, and again yielded a safety on the first play when Jim Harding nailed the quarterback in the end zone.

TENNIS

BC netters dominate sectionals

Revenge was sweet for Bethlehem Central's girls' tennis team as the smooth-stroking varsity overwhelmed league champion Niskayuna to win the Sectional crown and sent two doubles tandems into the individual Sectional semifinals.

Still smarting from the rain-swept 5-4 setback dealt by Niskayuna in the regular season meeting that snapped BC's three-year win streak at 32, the Eagles blistered the pesky Niskies, 7-2, in last Thursday's final in the Class A Sectional final. It was Bethlehem's fourth straight Section 2 title.

That triumph was especially sweet for Laura Treadway and Jean-Marie Franze, playing the fourth and fifth singles matches. They upset previously undefeated Niskayuna players in straight sets. Treadway taking Lynn Bilgore, 6-1, 6-1, and Franze disposing of Kim Jordan, 7-5, 6-0. Kathy Bragaw and Ann Weber, playing No. 1 and No. 2, each won three-sets.

Despite an unexpected loss suffered by BC's No. 1 doubles combo of Ayran Shaye-gani and Sheila Gould, the Eagles swept the other two doubles matches. Leanne Corey-Laurie Gould completed an undefeated season, and a new tandem of freshman Carolyn Cross and junior Laurie Weinert won in straight sets. A day earlier, when the Eagles had a rugged time against Saratoga. Cross-Weinert came through in their varsity debut, 5-7, 7-6, 6-1.

En route to the crown, Bethlehem completed its league season at 8-1 with a 9-0 wipeout of Shaker Monday, obliterated Troy High, 9-0, in the first round of the Sectionals Tuesday, dropping only five games in 18 sets, and squeezing past an unexpectedly tough Saratoga team, 6-3, Wednesday.

In the individual Sectional tournaments at Schenectady's Central Park Saturday, two BC pairs reached the semi finals, setting up the possibility of an all-Bethlehem final this Saturday. The roadblocks, however, are formidable: Kathleen Bragaw-Judy Van Woert, defending champion, face Niskayuna's top two players, Jessica Vernon and Eunice Werner, in a Thursday semi final indoors at the American Racquet Club, while Weber-Treadway take on the No. 2 seeds from Queensbury. The three top teams will qualify for the state championships at Syracuse Nov. 7-8.

In singles play last weekend, Laurie Gould lost to Angela Sparks, Linton's top player, in the round of 16, and Jean Marie Franze lost in the quarter finals. Franze upset fifth-seeded Pam Nunez of Lansingburgh, 6-0, 6-2, before running into Tracy Steve, Guilderland's No. 1 who had shocked the tourney's No. 2 seed from Burnt Hills in the first match of the day.

SWIMMING

Records tumble in BC sweeps

Although the Bethlehem Central girls' varsity swim team faced back-to-back meets against Section 2's most aggressive stokers, Burnt Hills and Glens Falls, they emerged with their undefeated record unscathed.

With most of the BC swimmers called on for three events each, the Eagles kept their trip to Burnt Hills short when they downed their hosts, 99-73. Janet Shaffer also set a school and Section record of 53.9 seconds in the 100-yard freestyle. Donna Schulz shattered the school record in the 100-yard butterfly race, and Andrea Orietas defeated arch-rival freestyler Julie Wright to win the 200 and 500 free.

Several other swimmers lowered their personal-best times, including Lynn Apicelli in the 200 IM. Jessica Follet returned to the diving board, where she finished 1-2 with Patty Beldon in the diving events.

Thursday's clash of undefeated teams proved fatal for BC records as well as the Glens Falls team, who yielded to Bethlehem in a 48-35 battle at BC. Surrounded by a large, partial crowd and four postered walls spurring the hometown favorites, the Glens Falls girls were nevertheless still thinking "win" when the second-to-last event of the meet, the 100-yard breaststroke, was called. Julie Green's second-place finish was enough to put the point total beyond the reach of Glens Falls.

But the stiff competition called for the best of the BC girls. Schulz had another field day when she broke a school and pool record, in the 200 individual medley and a pool record in the 100-yard backstroke. Shaffer also doubled with pool records in the 50 and 100 free.

Other standout performances were turned in by Orietas and Kathleen Henahan, who went 1-2 in the 500 freestyle. Diving was swept by Follett and Beldon, who has continued solidly on Follett's heels. BC took firsts in seven individual events and one relay.

This week BC hosts Shenendehowa at 4 p.m. Thursday, and Rome at 1 p.m. Saturday.

A 'must' game for BC booters

By the time most people read these lines, the morning papers will have the word as to whether Bethlehem Central's varsity soccer team makes the Sectionals or misses the post-season scramble for the first time in more than a decade.

Coach Gene Lewis' young booters got themselves mired in a muddy game at Delmar Monday and dropped a 5-1 decision to Shenendehowa. Going into that game at 8-8 and needing one victory or two ties in their last two games, the Eagles found themselves this week in the uncomfortable position of having to win at Colonie Wednesday, a formidable assignment against one of the best teams in the section.

Bethlehem could gain no better than a split in the four games leading up to the Colonie test this week. Needing to win three of their last five, the Eagles polished off two second-division teams, Mohonasen by 3-1 and the Shens by 5-1. In their first-round encounters with Shenendehowa and Colonie, they lost to each by one goal, Colonie in overtime.

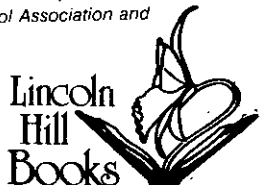

Randy Dean, Chris Congemi and Steve Scoons dented the nets at Rotterdam. Dean got three more at Scotia, and scored the only goal against the Plainsmen Monday to run his season total to 13. Jeff Guinn, one of the Suburban Council's top all-around players, was credited with his 14th assist in the Scotia game and scored the tying goal against Shaker on an indirect corner kick inside the penalty box. The other goals against Scotia were scored by Mark Elletson, Ed Radzynski and Pete Bell, his fourth.

$500 winners

Ann Heilmann and Carl Paepke, both of Delmar, are winners of $500 in the New York State Lottery Anniversary Drawing. Their tickets were selected at a drawing held at the Empire State Plaza on Oct. 14.

FIELD HOCKEY

Sectionals next for BC stickers

Bethlehem Central's varsity field hockey team last week routed Burnt Hills, the team that had previously upset them in a flick-off. The first of the second half brought inner Jackie Cozzy to the goal twice and wing Ann Howell once. Their goals went unanswered and gave BC a 3-0 shutout.

In that game Cozzy saw her last action for at least 10 days. Torn ligaments in her right hand, suffered when she was hit by a hockey stick, will keep Jackie on the bench for BC's first Sectional game.

Nevertheless, Coach Julie Wendth guided her girls to their 11th victory in their last regular season game against Columbia. The Eagles won, 4-0, with Ann Howell scoring three goals and Linda Stokoe one.

Finishing their season with an 11-3 record, BC placed second in the Suburban Council behind Saratoga and now moves on to Sectionals. Although the threat of Queensbury and Johnstown looms in BC's path to a sectional or regional championship, Mrs. Wendth is confident in the depth of her team.

In addition to her forward line of Howell, Cozzy, Whitney Obrig and Kathy Brown, and the stickwork of "links" Diane Cohen and Linda Stokoe, Wendth can rely on her defense, which has been leakproof in shutting out the last four teams BC faced. Largely responsible are center halfback Chrissie Gray and Amy Davis, who has had to fill the shoes of Cozzy as sweeper. Halfbacks Amy Besteman and Allison Gallup have also proved strong, as has Elin Swanson in goal.

Arrested in burglary

A 15-year-old Kenwood Ave. youth is awaiting Albany County Family Court action following his arrest Thursday on charges of third-degree burglary and petty larceny. Bethlehem police said the youth was involved in a burglary on Kenwood Ave. last Wednesday. His identity was withheld under the youthful offender law.

Swing that pumpkin

The Altamont Station Squares will hold a Halloween Square Dance on Friday, Oct. 30, at the Guilderland Community Center, Rt. 20, Guilderland. Costumes are optional. Caller will be Cliff Austin.

On the cover: There are book fairs coming up Nov. 4 at Hamagrael School and Nov. 9 at Glenmont School, and who better to chose the books than young readers? Young Gabe Kesselman, who goes to Glenmont, and Barbara McCuen, a Hamagrael student, enjoy a light read at Lincoln Hill Book Store, which will be supplying books for both fairs. Hamagrael's fair is Wednesday throughout the day and from 7 to 9 p.m. and will feature Frank Hodge, well-known children's literature scholar, who will spend the day and speak to parents at 7:45 p.m.

The rest of the story
Editor, The Spotlight:
 The rest of the story is this. It was not reported in the recent news articles about Maj. Gen. Robert L. Schweitzer being removed from the National Security Council staff after his remarks about a "drift toward war" and his expression about the position of the Soviets.

Hope for the future
Editor, The Spotlight:
 I feel congratulations are in order to a winning freshman football team.
 With a record this season — so far — of 2 wins, 1 tie and 1 loss, the coaches, Mr. Salamone and Mr. DeMeo, and the boys should be congratulated!
 I am proud to be a part of this freshman team. Keep up the spirit and the fight.
Nancy Oberheim
 Slingerlands

As the delegate of the Capital District of New York Chapter for the occasion I was in the audience of the 27th annual meeting of the Association of the United States Army.
 Gen. Schweitzer was on a programmed seminar, "A Global Strategic Appraisal for the 80's." It was moderated by Gen. Richard G. Stilwell, retired, now deputy under secretary of defense for policy. The panelists with Gen. Schweitzer were William G. Hyland, senior associate of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, and Maj. Gen. John W. Seigle, director, strategy, plans and policy for ODCSOPS in the Department of the Army. There was audience participation.

It's not cool
Editor, The Spotlight:
 As a student at Bethlehem Central High School every day I see other classmates come to school drunk and stoned. I've been in the high school two years and find no good reasons to use drugs or alcohol.
 Most kids don't admit it, but they use drugs and drink either to go along with the crowd or to act cool. I don't think being stupid makes you cool so why doesn't everyone just STOP!!
 Don't use drugs ever again.
Michael Welton
 Delmar

The appraisal by the panelists was an overview of current events with comments about the future. The views of the other panelists, to me, supported that of Gen. Schweitzer. But he was on the NSC. Sad to relate, had he not been "fired" there would have been no story. The complete text of the seminar may be available from the AUSA.

Features

1. Up front mower
2. Maneuverability - dual hydrostatic transmission system - true zero degree steering - "effortless steering" - minimizes operator fatigue.
3. Maximum productivity - steering and up front mower combination ensures fastest job cycle time. Sure to eliminate much of your present walk-behind mower cost.
4. Excellent stability on hillsides.
5. Excellent unobstructed view of mower deck.
6. Choice of 12 HP & 16 HP air cooled engines.
7. Choice of 44", 52" & 61" mower decks.
8. Low maintenance - all major components easily accessible for service. Simple components, common sense design.
9. Low purchase price - priced about the same as ordinary brand name garden tractors.

Hallowe'en Treats

Our community is fortunate to have so many places for youngsters to go for a Hallowe'en party. Check the Spotlight calendar for costume parties and treats at firehouses, libraries and schools.

At the same time, children and parents should remember tips issued by police: wear light-colored costumes at night and large eye-holes in masks, walk only on well-lighted streets, travel in groups or with parents or older brothers and sisters, and don't eat any treats until your parents have inspected them.

Have a safe Hallowe'en and lots of fun!
